SWIFT FLOOD SWEEPS OVER ANOTHER SUBURB

Lansdowne Is Covered and Water Is Rising.

Flood Is Declining Very Slowly In River.

St. Louis, June 12—At 7 a. m. when the official observation was made the river had fallen slightly more than an inch since midnight and stood at 37.6 feet on the government gauge. The flood is declining very slowly, but with falling rivers above and no indications of rain, the prospect for relief, to the territory and north for hundreds of miles that is covered with a great body of water, is near.

Lansdowne, the northwestern suburb of East St. Louis, is flooded by water from the trestle on the Baltimore & Ohio embankment at Hunter's switch. At 8 o'clock this morning the water was from six to twenty inches deep all over the suburb and rising rapidly. A swift torrent is running under the trestle at Lake Zion, meeting the back water from south and spreading over Winstanley suburb, south of the Rock road.

At midnight last night the East St. Louis & Suburban company abandoned its car sheds at the Rock road, and the terminal belt. The seventy-five cars there were taken to sheds at the bluffs. At 1 o'clock this morning 200 men and a supply of sacks were hurried out to the belt track at Lansdowne. By daylight a levee of dirt bags, three feet high and two feet wide, extended along the tracks for 300 yards opposite the flooded suburb.

If the water continues rising at the present rate the fight for the north part of East St. Louis will be made at this point.

The extent to which East St. Louis is to be submerged depends entirely upon the level which the water, coming in from the east and northeast, will have to reach.

The water has crossed the Louisville & Nashville tracks two miles east of the Belt Line. During the night it reached the St. Clair turnpike, over which runs the East St. Louis & Suburban electric road to Belleville. This morning it had spread over the low ground between Lake bridge and the Jerome farm house and was pouring through a culvert a short distance west of Jerome, filling the space between the turnpike and the Day electric line embankment and passing on through a trestle to the south of Day line, where it joined the water which has been backing up to the south of Winstantley park.

At 10 o'clock official announcement was made that on account of the encroachment of water in the plant and tracks of the company, no cars would be run to Belleville, where thousands of refugees are being cared for, after 12 o'clock.

The united waters are pressing west along the south of the Day line directly towards East St. Louis. They menace the power house of the electric line at Winstanley park. The water from the north is gradually filling and covering the ground between the L. & N. and augmenting the flow toward East St. Louis along both sides of the Day line. From the northeast the water is steadily advancing on East St. Louis.

The shutting down of the electric line will cut off communication with Belleville except by way of the Illinois Central. A train was run over the Illinois Central today for the first time since the tracks were covered after the break Wednesday. It had to run through water most of the way from the bluff, but got through all right. The officials wanted to run it onto the viaduct to St. Louis, but police were sent with strict orders to stop it. In view of the want and suffering caused by the flood in East St. Louis, Mayor Cook has issued an appeal to the public for aid.

CHIEF OF THE GENERAL STAFF WILL BE THE WHOLE THING

New Regulations Being Prepared to Carry the New Staff Law Into Effect Will Make Many Radical Changes In the Army.

Washington, June 12.—A committee of twelve of the general staff, of which Gen. Tasker Bliss is chairman, has nearly completed a draft of regulations for the government of the general staff. The regulations to carry the general staff act into effect will make radical changes in the army. The chief of staff will be the all-powerful person, uniting in himself all the theoretical authority exercised by the commanding general under the present law and the power heretofore unofficially vested in the adjutant general. As drafted the new regulations leave little or nothing of the adjutant general's department and less of the inspector general's department. The adjutant general will keep the records as now and the orders to the army will be promulgated and published by him, but the chief of staff will direct the issue of the orders.

He will be the intermediate between the president and secretary of war and the army and staff bureaus will receive instructions and orders from the chief of staff in the name of the secretary of war. The chief of staff will have the supervision of the troops of the line, will direct military operations and in general will be the most powerful officer that ever held a position in the army in times of peace. Of course at all times he will be subject to the order of the president and the secretary of war. Not only the purely military matters, supposed to be vested in the commanding general are given to the new staff in the new regulations, but the supplies and equipments also are under his direction. The new regulations make the general staff officers on duty in Washington boards to consider all matters requiring investigation and report, including inspection. The general staff will recommend officers for detail and promotion and the enlistment and recruitment of soldiers also will be taken from the adjutant general's department and given to the general staff. An important feature not yet wholly determined, relates to officers detailed from the general staff to the various army departments. The regulations, as prepared, provide that the officers so detailed, either to a department or with a division, or brigade in the field shall become the chief of staff of the commanding officer of the department or division of troops operating in the field, without regard to the rank of any other staff officers in the command.

The committee hopes to submit a draft to eGn. Young today in order that he may send it to the secretary of war before he leaves the city. Gen. Young will make a tour of the great lakes next week, leaving here on Saturday.

POLITENESS COST HIM HIS LIFE

New York, June 12.—By giving his seat to a woman in a street car in Sixth avenue, Adrian Ferre met with an accident which caused his death. He got up to allow the woman his seat and perched on the railing. A car passing in the opposite direction caught his clothing. He was dragged to the street and almost instantly killed. Screams from the women and shouts from the men on the cars drew a large crowd and the police arrested the motorman.

EMPLOYES OF TEN HOTELS STRIKE

Chicago, June 12.—Union employes in ten of the leading hotels struck today. Approximately 2000 men, chiefly waiters and cooks, are out. The leading family hotels are the principal sufferers from the strike, the large downtown establishments, with on exception not being affected up to a late hour. At the Sherman house 350 men walked out, completely tieing up the dining room and bar service. Among the other prominent establishments, most of which will make an effort to continue work, are the Windermere, Hyde Park, Chicago Beach, Holland, Metropole, Delprado, Vendome, Kenwood and Lakota.

HIGH PRICES

Paid For Coach Horses By Wealthy Whips.

New York, June 12.—Probably the highest price ever paid in this country for coach horses at auction have been realized at the sale here of thirty-four animals, which have been used two months, in working the coach Pioneer between New York and Ardsley. The total proceeds of the sale were $24,000. Among the buyers were Harry Payne Whitney, G. G. Haven, Jr., and other well known whips. The former paid the top price, $1750 for one pair. Several others were sold singly at $1000 to $1800.

PAPER SUSPENDS.

Buffalo, June 12.—The Buffalo Review, which has been published during the last six years, has suspended. The affairs of the paper have been in an unsettled shape for several months.

CLAIM FOR BOUNTY

By Beet Sugar People to Come Into Court Again.

Company Wins First Blood In Controversy Over $20,000.

St. Paul, June 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—After many failures, in the courts and through the legislature, to collect $20,000 earned under the beet sugar bounty law, the Minnesota Sugar company today obtained a legal standing in the supreme court. The supreme court granted the petition of the Minnesota Sugar company for a writ of certiorari directed to State Auditor Iverson to show cause why he should not certify to the court the records in the beet sugar bounty controversy. The order does not determine anything, but it is first blood for the beet sugar people, as it gets their case against the state into court. It is the beginning of the end of the case, because it will be decided whether the state must pay the claim.

THE GOOD TEMPLARS.

District and Grand Lodge Degrees Are Conferred.

Brainerd, Minn., June 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—The grand lodge of the I. O. G. T., state of Minnesota, met in secret session yesterday in the Columbia hall, with the following officers present: N. T. Moen, grand chief Templar, presiding; C. W. B. Ellis, grand counselor; Emma M. Jones, grand vice Templar; juvenile Templars superintendent, Lizzie P. Cole, and Agnes E. Sofely, grand secretary, with A. G. McCauley, Duluth, acting grand treasurer.

The district and grand lodge degrees were conferred on numerous candidates. There was a special session of the supreme international lodge at 5 o'clock, convened by Col. Parker, right worthy grand secretary of the World's Good Templars.

A public meeting was held last evening in the First Baptist church, at 8 o'clock, and was largely attended.

COAL COMPANIES.

Are Fined $500 Each By Judge Horton.

Chicago, June 12.—In an opinion delivered today by Judge Horton, members of the Northern Illinois Coal Dealers' association, were found guilty of conspiracy in restraint of trade and were fined $500 each. The members of the Retail Coal Dealers' Association of Illinois and Wisconsin were denied a motion for a new trial and fined $100 each.

ROADS MADE REFUNDS

To Dealers When Price Of Coal Was Low.

New York, June 12.—The investigation by the interstate commerce commission into W. R. Heart's complaint that the six railroads operating in the anthracite regions have combined to violate the itnerstate commerce law, was continued today. W. A. Marshall submitted a table showing the refund made to his firm by the Lehigh Valley railroad, when the price of coal at tidewater was too low to let the dealers make a profit and pay full rates. No refunds, he said have been made since March, 1900.

HEAVY EXPLOSION

Caused Barber to Cut His Customer Badly.

New York, June 12.—Many persons have been slightly injured by the discharge of a heavy blast in the subway at Broadway and Four hundred and Thirty-Ninth street. Windows were broken on both sides of the street, heavy rocks were thrown to the roofs of nearby buildings and a shower of splinters and stones hurt many persons but none seriously.

The shock so startled a barber in shop nearby that he drew his razor edge across the customer's cheek and laid it open for three inches.

No explanation for the heavy charge of dynamite has been obtainable.

FOREST FIRES

Seattle, Wash., June 12.—Reports received here show that there is grave danger of last year's forest fires being repeated this summer. The crew of a logging camp have been fighting fire in the hills back of Enumenclaw, which town narrowly escaped being wiped out last summer, for the past couple of days. The woods are on fire all around Granite Falls. Ellsworth camp, on Nasel river, was destroyed by the flames. This fire is still raging.

COAL ROADS WIN.

New York, June 12.—Judge LaCombe today handed down a decision in the matter of the appeal of the coal-carrying railroads against the ruling of the interstate commerce commission. The coal roa[illegible] point.

LOOTED THE CAR

Robbers Carefully Pick Over All the Express Packages.

Scattered Those Not Wanted Along Side of the Track.

Rochester, Ind., June 12.—Last night at midnight an express car attached to the east-bound train on the Erie road was entered by robbers just outside of Englewood, who completely looted it. The robbers threw express packages along the road all the way from Hammond to Rochester. The crew of a freight train followed the express and discovered the packages beside the track and notified the officers at Huntington, where the express car door was forced open. As this was done one of the robbers dashed out, firing two shots from his revolver and made his escape. The police then made their way into the car and found two other robbers hidden behind some packages. They were covered with revolvers and placed under arrest. In all the pockets in their clothing they had valuable goods stored away. Every package in the car with the exception of one, had been pried open. This package contained about $5000 worth of valuables. The crew of the freight train picked up goods to the amount of $4000.

Chicago, June 12.—B. Wygant, general agent of the Wells Fargo company, whose car on the Erie road was entered by robbers last night, could not give an estimate of the value of the goods picked up along the road, but believed that practically all of the goods had been recovered.

"My opinion is that it was the intention of the robbers to come back at night and pick up the packages thrown from the car," he said. "Those recovered nearly all contained valuable express matter such as would naturally be selected by the robbers. The car was locked before it left Chicago and the messenger was in the next car. All the express matter in the car was destined to New York or points reached from there, and we cannot tell until the contents are checked up what the loss, if any, is."

BULGARIANS KILLED.

Constantinople, June 12.—It became known today that twenty Bulgarians were killed at the village of Yenije, Roumelia, recently in a combined attack made on it by a detachment of troops and neighboring Mussulman villagers. Fifty prisoners were taken to Adrianople.

KANSAS CITY, KAS., MAKES URGENT APPEAL FOR AID

City Officials Say That the Destitution of the Flood Sufferers Demands Immediate Relief, Local Charity Being Totally Inadequate.

Kansas City, June 12.—Kansas City, Kan., is still sorely in need of aid for its flood sufferers. A second urgent appeal to the country at large has been issued by the relief committee of that city. It follows:

The destitution on the part of the flood sufferers in Kansas City, Kan., demands immediate relief. Local charity is totally inadequate to meet the situation. Outside assistance is imperative. Two entire wards and parts of two others, comprising by official census in March, 1903, at least 23,000 souls out of a population of 60,000 in the entire city, are made homeless and dependent. Hundredh of their homes have been swept away, and those that remain have been left with a deposit of filth both inside and out, of from one to three feet in depth. In most instances persons were able to save only the clothing they wore. Their household goods and clothing have been swept away or destroyed by water and mud. Kansas City, Kan., has fed and sheltered these 23,000 persons for eleven days. While the number dependent on charity is gradually decreasing as employment opens up, yet there will be many thousands dependent on charity for food, clothing and household goods for weeks to come. The funds raised up to the present time have been nearly exhausted. The authorities will be unable to cope with existing conditions unless the outside public shall come to their aid. The city officials have inaugurated a vigorous and effective system for the care of the flood sufferers. Money and supplies in large amounts will be needed to prevent extreme suffering. All donations from the general public should be sent to Thomas B. Gilbert, mayor of Kansas City, Kan. Unlike its sister, Kansas City, Mo., Kansas City, Kan., has no wealthy citizens to whom it may look for aid. Its population is made up largely of working people.

THOMAS B. GILBERT, Mayor.
W. H. CRADDOCK, ex-Mayor.

THE ITALIAN CABINET TO RESIGN

Rome, June 12.—The cabinet ministers have decided to announce their resignation in the chamber today. Although there was a ministerial majority of forty, the chamber of deputies' vote on Wednesday against a parliamentary inquiry into the conduct of the navy department, in which proposition Signor Giolitti, the minister of the interior, was a leading figure, caused the cabinet to decide to resign, on the ground that there was no further reason for its existence.

The milinstry was until recently in union with all the liberal elements, including the extreme left, which, however, joined the opposition in the adverse vote.

INSANE WHEN SHE STOLE JEWELS

Watertown, N. Y., June 12.—A commission appointed to inquire into the sanity of Mrs. Rachel Richman, wife of a wealthy New York business man, has rendered its report. The commissioners find that Mrs. Richman is insane now, and that she was insane on July 1, 1902, when she was accused of stealing from Mrs. Walter Delabarre, at a hotel in Alexandria Bay, a pearl and diamond necklace, valued at $1000. Mr. Richman is now in a sanitarium. Mr. and Mrs. Richman were both indicted, but an order was obtained for a commission to investigate Mrs. Richman's sanity, and its report probably means that the proceedings against her will be dropped.

ALLEGED MURDERER IS INSANE

Houghton, Mich., June 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—Nick Thompson, of Portage Entry, the alleged self-confessed murderer of his wife, has been committed to Newberry jail by Judge Gray. At yesterday's hearing Prosecuting Attorney Larson has concluded that Thompson was insane and could not be prosecuted on the charge of murder. Thompson was arrested at the time of the alleged crime, but was released from lack of evidence. His neighbors believed him guilty and since then he has wandered about the county, ostracized by his friends. Larson, who was retained by Thompson at the time of thecrime, says he believes that Thompson was insane at that time and if not, brooding over the crime has made him so since. The truth of Thompson's confession is doubted by some, who believe his wife committed suicide to escape domestic trouble.

SERVIAN MONARCHS BURIED AT NIGHT

IMPLICATE JUDGE

Witnesses Testify Hargis Furnished Money to Kill Marcum.

Sheriff Callahan Was Also In the Murderous Plot.

Jackson, Ky., June 12.—Provost Marshal Longmeir reported today that no arrests were made during the night. Lieut. Kinnard, who was sent after the missing witness Henry Freiman, has returned without his man and Deputy Sheriff Whittaker was sent after him today. Upon the opening of court Attorney Nell for the defense filed a motion asking that the case be continued on the ground that the defense needed absent witnesses Moses Weltner, John Smith and John Abner to contradict the evidence of Mrs. Mary Johnson, a sister of the dead man. Judge Redwine decided that the trial should proceed.

The first witness today, William Hurst, was questioned regarding a plot to assassinate Marcum, in which two county officials were implicated. William Eversole and other witnesses were examined as to the alleged conspiracy.

Abner, Smith and Weltner are said to have been in the plot to assassinate Marcum. Abner afterwards made an affidavit that he kept Marcum informed. He put Marcum's affidavit, which was filed in court, stating that the plots were formed in the office of County Judge Hargis and that Judge Hargis and Sheriff Callahan were furnishing the money. Mrs. Johnson testified also to this information being furnished her brother by Weltner. Now, the defense claims that these men are badly needed. Weltner has forfeited a bond of $2000 after being granted a new trial for murder of Jessie Fields in the French-Eversole feud. Marcum was his lawyer and secured a reversal in his case. Because he was a friend of Marcum, it is alleged he was picked out to assassinate him as he would not be suspected, a pardon for the Fields murder being the reward promised.

Placed In the Obrenovitch Vault In the Night.

One Dispatch Says They Were Cast Into a Pit.

Belgrade, Servia, June 12.—King Alexander and Queen Draga, who were assassinated early yesterday in the royal palace, were buried during the night in the family vault of the Obrenovitchs in the chapel of Cemetery of St. Mark. The interment was carried out with complete secrecy between 1:30 and 3 o'clock this morning. Col. Naumovics will be buried this morning.

The funeral occurred at 1:30 a. m., the strictest privacy being maintained in order to avoid hostile demonstrations. The coffins were brought in by servants and carried up to the room where the bodies of the late king and queen were lying. The corpses were then put in the coffins and the latter were placed in a hearse, which was hurriedly driven to the old cemetery where the other members of the royal family are interred. In addition to the attendants, only two priests were present at the funeral. The metropolitan of Belgrade was absent. The whole ceremony lasted only a few minutes.

The body of the late Premier Markovitch will be buried with military honors.

Col. Naumovitch, who was killed while forcing an entrance into the palace with dynamite, is described in the official notice of his death as "dying on the field of honor for his fatherland."

It is now confirmed that only Queen Draga's two brothers were killed. Her sisters were taken to Panscova by some of the conspirators.

London, June 12.—A special dispatch from Belgrade says the bodies of King Alexander and Queen Draga were buried in a large pit dug in the village of Rakovica, and that as a mark of ignominy the bodies of their murdered relatives and those of the ministry killed, were placed above them and then the common grave was filled with earth.

The Servian minister here has received confirmation of the statement that neither Russia nor Austria will interfere in the Servian choice of a sovereign. He anticipates that Prince Peter Karageorgevitch will await at Geneva a summons from the skupshtina, a deputation from which will probably go to Geneva to escort the new king to Belgrade.

Vienna, June 12.—The Austrian river monitors Szamos, Leitha, Maros and Koerse are said to have anchored before Belgrade yesterday evening. It is reported that the garrison of Nish, Servia, has refused obedience to the new government.

The report that the Austrian monitors had anchored before Belgrade was later officially denied.

Prince Alexis Karageorgevitch, a nephew of the newly proclaimed king of Servia, who has himself been a pretender to the throne, during the course of an interview here today announced that he had abandoned all claim thereto and would recognize his uncle as king.

The new Servian premier, M. Avakumovics, is quoted in a dispatch from Belgrade today as saying: "I returned home yesterday from Alexinatz, where I was on professional, legal business. I was at once summoned to the ministry, where the other ministers had assembled. They informed me that the deed was committed at their request. I accept the premiership. The cabinet meets today and will consider what steps shall next be taken. At present we are not in communication with Karageorgevitch, even if the army has proclaimed him king. His election as king is probable, however, as there is no other course open. It will remain for the Skupshtina to elect him or not."

Sensation stories, many of which are undoubtedly being sent for the purpose of political influence, are published here, most revolting of them being that the soldiers outraged Queen Draga and mutilated the body of King Alexander, and that those who were admitted to the palace yesterday to view the remains spat and stamped on them.

The telegrams from Belgrade differ as to the attitude of the Servian people. Some of them say that only the military element desires Prince Karageorgevitch to be king, others say the Servians want Prince Mirko of Montenegro to rule over them, while many of the more intelligent section of the population are in favor of the establishment of a republic.

Budapest, June 12.—In the Hungarian diet today the premier, Coloman De Szell, following other members of the diet who expressed horror at the occurrences at Belgrade, said he would confine himself to an expression of the deep sorrow and indignation produced by the outrages, the consequences of which could not at present be foreseen.

Berlin, June 12.—A dispatch to the Local Anzeiger from Budapest says the garrison of Nish, where the late King Alexander was most popular is, according to a railroad official who has arrived at Budapest from Belgrade, marching on the Servian capital with full war equipment and artillery.

St. Petersburg, June 12.—The tragedy at Belgrade yesterday caused an immense impression here. The newspapers express indignation and horror at the outrages, parallels for which, they add, are only findable in ancient times.

At the same time, the papers consider that the interference of the powers in Servian internal affairs at present is not permissible, although developments might compel Russia and Austria to take action.

Berlin, June 12.—A dispatch to the Cologne Gazette from Belgrade today says the massacre lasted three-quarters of an hour. The assailants declared the killing of King Alexander was unavoidable, because if the queen alone had been murdered or removed, the court clique would have incited the king to persecution and reprisals. The window of the Russian legation at Belgrade was shattered by a bullet during the fussilade at the palace.

Paris, June 12.—The foreign office here received a dispatch from the French agent on the Servian frontier, confirming the press announcements that the new government at Belgrade had abolished the legislative assembly created by the late King Alexander and had renewed the ancient skupshtina, which has been ordered to assemble next Monday for the purpose of ratifying the proclamation of Prince Peter Karageorgevitch as king. The assembly just abolished was made up of appointees of the late king and did not contain a member who was opposed to Alexander's policy. The dispatch adds that Belgrade continues quiet, the people, apparently, being reconciled to the new conditions.

Officials here doubt the truth of the report that Belgrade is quiet, as the authorities here are unable to secure direct dispatches from Belgrade. Even the official dispatches which have reached Paris appear to have been mutilated.

It is stated authoritatively that thus far there has been no exchange of communications between the powers concerning Prince Peter Karageorgevitch's assumption of the throne of Servia, but the officials are beginning to seriously consider the delicate question of the recognition of the new sovereignty. It is expected that the Servian authorities will convoke a meeting of the foreign ministers at Belgrade and present the latter with definite evidence that the people accept the new government and that it has the ability to maintain order and guarantee the safety of foreigners. When the ministers advise their respective governments that such assurances have been received, the various powers will determine whether recognition will be acorded. It is considered probable that the powers will act together on the question of giving or withholding recognition. It is further stated that if the powers individually or collectively protest against the bloody methods, this is likely to occur in connection with the question of recognizing the new government. The latter thus far, has not addressed any communication to the powers, the latter receiving all their information from their own ministers or from agents.

London, June 12.—Herbert Vivian, the well-known traveler and author of a book on Servia, writes: "I decline to believe this crime has the countenance of the Servian nation. I have conversed with all classes and know absolutely that the only malcontents were a few ladies who were jealous of Queen Draga because they thought themselves more suitable to share the throne; a few officers, who thought themselves entitled to more speedy promotion, and a few professional politicians who coveted office. When I last had the honor of an audience of the king he talked to me of the geographical position of the capital. He said no other country had a capital on its frontier. A scribe need only cross it and he could telegraph any lies he liked, while the Servian officials had to wait until they were published before they could refute them. I gathered that the king contemplated making Nish the capital. It was his and Queen Draga's favorite resort, as it was King Milan's.

"Queen Draga's unfailing good humor, wit, beauty and charm conquered all hearts. The devotion of King Alexander to Queen Draga was pathetic and inspiring. Even after years of married life, when the foreign press was representing them as slapping each other's faces, they never seemed happy half an hour apart. The Servians have Oriental ideas of the subjection of women.

"In country houses I have protested vainly when the hostess stood and acted as waitress while the men folk took their ease. The Servians were accordingly shocked when the queen was treated like a lady, and they complained that when the king drove out in Belgrade he would gaze at her and hold her hand, instead of taking off his hat with regal regularity."

RIO GRANDE FLOODS NEW MEXICO

Sante Fe, N. M., June 12.—Flood conditions prevail throughout Northern and Central New Mexico. The Rio Grande is flooding the lowlands and settlers are taking to the high grounds for safety. The bridge at Barranca was swept away. No train from the East has entered the city the past forty-eight hours. The Sante Fe road had to suspend track laying as the water on Estansia plains is even with the top of the grade. Rain is still falling and this with the melting snow will cause a further rise of the Rio Grande, Chama, Pecos and other rivers.

THE MELON SEASON

Luscious Summer Fruit Begins to Appear In the Market.

Wisconsin Strawberries Now Coming In Freely —Butter Firmer.

Watermelon time has come and the Michigan street commission houses are beginning to assume a summery aspect. The first shipment of watermelons arrived in Duluth on Monday. It was a local shipment from Chicago, as the price is still too high to allow of the importation of carload lots direct from the South. The melons at present are coming from Florida and are selling at about 60 cents apiece.

The first musk melons also have arrived, coming from California. They are selling at $4 a crate.

The Wisconsin berries are now coming in freely. The first shipment was received last Saturday and the season is now at its height. Iowa berries are also being received and the price is now probably at the low water mark for the season.

The first cherries have also been received. The first shipment arrived during the early part of the week and others have followed. They come from Iowa.

One or two shipments of black berries arrived during the early part of the week, coming from Florida. They came in a local shipment from Chicago no carload lots yet having been received. Red raspberries are now on the Chicago market, but none have yet reached Duluth. The first shipment is expected Monday. They are also coming from Texas and Florida.

New potatoes from Louisiana and Texas are being received freely, but the price remains high.

Large shipments of fresh tomatoes are coming in. They are from Mississippi and are selling at $2.25 a crate.

Butter is firmer this week, the shipments having fallen off slightly and the price of creamery has risen to 22 cents. Packing stock remains firm at 14 cents.

The dealers report a very busy week.

Chickens have been coming in freely during the past week and the price has fallen to 13 cents, the first change in poultry prices for many weeks. The first spring chickens are due, but none have yet arrived. The wet weather of the early spring months is said to have been very injurious to young poultry and the shipments are delayed on this account.

Meat prices remain unchanged, with the exception of a slight stiffening in the price of beef, which is now selling at 8 cents.

WEST ENDERS WILL MEET

Several Matters of Importance—Want Double Truck Street Cars.

The West End Business Men's club will meet this evening for the purpose of discussing the proposition of petitioning the city council to instruct the street railway company to run double truck cars through the West End to West Duluth. The West Enders are desirous that some of the double truck cars be run through the residence portion of that part of the city.

Another question that will come up for discussion is the alleged unsanitary condition of the West End sewers. It is claimed that the sewers in that part of the city have been gradually filling up in the last few years with the result that after rainstorms they back water and flood many places with sewer water, endangering the health of the occupants of property.

Sentiment of the West Enders is said to be divided as to the ordinance against the distribution of bills and circulars in public thoroughfares and an effort will be made this evening to find out how the majority of the West Enders think about it.

Amended Articles.

Eleven mining companies, representing properties of the Minnesota Iron company, filed amended articles of incorporation yesterday afternoon with the county register of deeds. The several offices have been transferred from Chicago to Duluth. The companies making the change are the Norman, Hugo, Genoa, Fayal, Elba, Delaware, Auburn, Bishop, Canton, Cloquet and Chippewa Iron companies. It is stated at the local offices of the Minnesota Iron company that the change is merely a technical one and has no special significance as all the companies concerned are not yet active corporations.

LE SUEUR IS WINNER.

Secures the State Firemen's Convention For 1906.

Brainerd, Minn., June 12.—The convention and tournament of the Minnesota State Firemen's association have come to a close. The following officers were elected: G. G. Stone, Pipestone, president; George Worthington, Litchfield, first vice president; R. O. Strong, St. Paul, secretary; Frank E. Joy, Stillwater, treasurer; Edward F. Kelley, Faribault, statistician.

There was a fight over the office of second vice president, but Le Sueur was on the ground early and had the matter well in hand when the vote was put, and carried the day by a big majority against the town of Wells, which had presented the name of Edward Hayes. This fight was important from the fact that it determined the location of the tournament and convention in 1906.

SAN JUAN FIRM IN TROUBLE.

San Juan, P. R., June 12.—The representatives of three New York firms have petitioned the federal court to declare bankrupt the dry goods firm known as "successors of Jose De Hernandez," of San Juan, owners of three of the leading retail stores of the island. The liabilities are said to be $87,000 and the assets $100,000.

THE GREAT WILD WEST

Forepaugh-Fish to Present Its Exhibition In Duluth Saturday.

The Forepaugh-Fish Wild West will arrive in town tomorrow morning, and exhibitions will be given in the afternoon at 2 o'clock and at night at 8 o'clock, at the show grounds, Twenty-ninth avenue west. The Forepaugh-Fish Wild West is the largest organization of its character now in the United States.

The show is said to be brimful of novelties and for two hours and a half an array of fascinating, thrilling and enjoyable features are given with that confidence born of success. In Kansas City over 16,000 persons filled the big waterproof canvas and found unqualified delight in the riding of the Cossacks, the dare-devil horsemanship of the cowboys, the strange realistic war dances, customs and bareback riding of the forty color-covered Sioux, Ogallalla and Cheyenne Indians, the whirlwind acrobatics of the troupe of Bedouin Arabs and, in fact, all the various numbers on the long program won hearty approval. At Leavenworth, Kans., thousands were turned away at both performances, being unable to find even standing room in the big tents, while in St. Louis two weeks' time could have been readily filled instead of one week's stay, and in St. Paul the attendance was tremendous.

In the arena will be seen together with the fourteen genuine Russian Cossacks, led by Col. Alexis Gerglan, who are veritable demon riders and whose exhibitions can not be duplicated by any other light cavalry from any other country; the cowboys, with Charley Tompkins, premier cowboy, cowgirls, sombreroed, booted and spurred Mexican vaqueros under the direction of Jose Silveris Hinijosa, who is considered the greatest exponent of fancy lariat and lasso roping in the world; Indians headed by Chiefs Bear Shield, Short Bull and Crazy Horse; Arabian horsemen, acrobats and lightning sword fighters headed by Shiek Hadji Hassan; United States cavalrymen, commanded by Sergt. William Evans from Fort Sill, O. T., together with a host of others.

In the Wild West features attention will be attracted to the extraordinary rifle work of May Mackey, better known as Lone Star May, whose experiences and rapidity with a repeating Remington is simply remarkable. Cherokee Bill is another wonderful shot, riding at full speed around the arena and breaking glass balls without an apparent effort. Harry Nelce is another expert shot, confining his labor to revolver practice producing marvelous results. Popular numbers on the program are the attack on the stage coach and the repulse of the Indians by the cowboys; the hanging of the horsethief, the quadrille on horseback, pony express riding, the burning of Trapper Tom's cabin, and finally the vivid reproduction of the massacre on the Little Big Horn, in which Gen. Custer and his brave-hearted cavalrymen were butchered by the fierce redskins.

Tomorrow morning the usual parade will be held, starting about 10 o'clock. It will be an attractive and brilliant spectacle, consisting of all the arena features, Indians, cowboys, Cossacks, Arabs, Mexicans, soldiers, etc., together with handsome band wagons, cowboy and military bands, cages of lions, tigers, pumas, hyenas and other wild beasts; Barney, the bucking elephant, camel, elk, etc.

WOMEN BATTLE

With Snakes and Slaughter Family of Ten.

Avon, Ill., June 12.—There was considerable excitement in the south part of town last Thursday afternoon over the discovery of a den of snakes in Miss Ella Beckleen's yard. For several days previous Miss Beckleen had seen a number of snakes near her house, some of which she killed.

Upon the afternoon named she discovered a snake emerging from a hole near the slough in the rear of the yard. Thinking that perhaps more reptiles might have burrowed in the ground, she called to her sister-in-law, Mrs. Olaf Beckleen, and other near-by neighbor women to come to her assistance. Together with various weapons of destruction they started out to wage war upon the snakes.

They carried a tub of hot soapsuds, which they poured into the hole, and the excitement commenced sooner than the women anticipated. The hot water had done its work well and the snakes fairly crawled over each other as they emerged from the hole. The way those women flourished their hoes and clubs with which they were well armed, as they chased the reptiles about the yard, caused passers-by to stop and wonder what was going on. But the ladies were brave, and when the conflict ceased and an inventory was taken they found they had killed ten snakes.

BIG SCANDAL IS LAID BARE

Inner History of Amazing Network of Postal Irregularities.

New York, June 12.—A Washington special to the World says:

From a government official who has been intimately associated with the president and the postoffice department for nearly two years past, an authentic statement has been secured, laying bare the inner history of an amazing network of postal irregularities which are gradually being disclosed to public view. The facts thus far established are:

First—That there existed in the postal branch of the government a clique of officials who were using their official positions for personal profit by levying blackmail upon all contractors for supplies.

Second—That this clique was supported and maintained in its thieving operations by men powerful in the national Republican organization, by at least one United States senator, several members of congress and by prominent Republican leaders in various parts of the United States.

Third—That responsible heads of departments in the postal service were cognizant of the evils which are now being exposed and that they tolerated them at the direct instance of prominent Republican leaders.

Fourth—That the clique of dishonest officials, some of whom have been removed, and others who will surely follow, paid for their protection by expending for the benefit of their protectors many millions of dollars.

Fifth—That the rural free delivery system has been maintained mainly for the purpose of providing patronage for Republican leaders, there being on the rolls of that bureau the names of 15,200 men who receive $600 a year each from public funds for performing a class of unskilled labor.

The possibilities of vast political power and "graft" in the rural free delivery, in view of what has already been disclosed, may be judged by the appropriations for this branch of the postal service. In 1897 the amount was $40,000; 1898, $50,000; 1899, $150,000; 1900, $450,000; 1901, $750,000; 1902, $3,095,740; 1903, $7,000,000, with a deficiency appropriation of $500,000 added; 1904, $12,000,000. The estimated cost of the service when it is completed as now planned will be $34,000,000 a year.

Sixth—That while the erection of this bureau found its inspiration in the demand of farmers for increased mail facilities, it was later transferred into a compact and perfectly organized factional machine representing nearly 100,000 votes and was intended to be used as a club by the members of the national Republican committee and their aides, who were secretly working against President Roosevelt.

A PRETTY PARK

Grounds at the Ship Canal Piers Will Be Handsome.

Good Prospect That the City Will Light the Piers.

Duluth may get another small park during the next few months, which will add greatly to its already excellent park facilities.

The ground which was laid out for that purpose at the ship canal is expected to be improved very soon. It has already been leved off and the government has only to sod it over and plant trees, shrubs and flowers to make it one of the greatest beauty spots in the city.

Lights will probably be placed on all the posts for that purpose along the canal by the city. When this is done the canal will present a beautiful appearance in the evenings.

The matter of lights for the piers is now before the council and in the hands of the committee on light and water. It is not known whether or not they will report on the matter at the next meeting. It is certain, however, that if the city's finances will permit it at all, the matter will be taken up immediately.

It was thought that the park would not be completed until the work on the aerial bridge was completed, but according to recent report the government purposes to finish up the park this summer and then if in the building operations on the bridge it is injured the city will be charged for damages to the extent of necessary repairs.

The new park will be near the middle of the city and easy of access to the people who live down town. It is right at the edge of Lake Superior and will be one of the coolest and most beautiful places in the Northwest on warm summer evenings.

The appearance of the ship canal here will be very similar to that of the St. Mary's river where there are blocks and blocks of electric lights similar to those which will be put on the piers here. These lights at the Sault on the quiet nights present a very beautiful view.

TWO BLOCKS ARE TORN UP

Condemned Concrete On East Superior Street Being Taken Up.

Two blocks of the concrete work which City Engineer Patton condemned between Twelfth and Sixteenth avenue east have been torn up. The condemned strip is four blocks long and lies between the car tracks.

No serious delay will be caused by the condemnation, according to Mr. Patton as the company can relay the pavement as soon as that which is now down has set thoroughly.

Warren brothers this morning began laying the tar macadam pavement on First avenue west. They finished on Nineteenth avenue east yesterday.

The pavement which they are laying is receiving almost unanimous approval and it is probable that it will become the most common pavement on Duluth streets.

It is believed the city's project of buying a plant to make the pavement will probably go through.

A concern with a portable plant has been after City Engineer Patton of late and he will look into their offers. The plant used by the Warren people and the one which they wished to sell the city is permanent—that is, it will allow movement only once during the season, on account of its bulk and when set up once must remain.

This is an inconvenience as is demonstrated by the fact that at present Warren brothers have to haul all their rock out to Nineteenth avenue east and then back to First avenue, whereas, if they had a portable plant which could be moved to First avenue a great deal of work by teams which are paid $4.50 per day could be avoided.

NEW TOWN ON THE MESABA

Aurora to Be Located Five Miles East of Biwabik.

The Aurora Improvement company, a corporation organized under the laws of Minnesota, is platting a town on section 3-85-15, about five miles east of Biwabik, on the Duluth & Iron Range road, to be named Aurora. The location is an exceptionally good one, being surrounded by several promising mines, including the Miller, owned by the Pitt Iron Mining company, the Meadow, Stephens, Donora and other properties.

Lots will be placed on sale about July 1. The officers of the corporation are Jacob Stein and Edward J. O'Rourke of Virginia, Minn., and James Devoy, of Ironwood, Mich.

EXCURSION FROM MORRIS

From Five to Seven Hundred People Come To the City.

An excursion of between 500 and 700 people arrived in Duluth this afternoon over the Northern Pacific road from Morris, Minn., and points intermediate. A large number of the excursionists took quarters at Superior, but a large number also came to Duluth. The excursion will leave here Sunday night for Morris.

WILL PLAY ONCE MORE

Wolvin Building Baseball Fiends At It Again.

The baseball fever in the Wolvin building has reached an abnormal point, and another game is to be played at the old Driving park tomorrow.

Contrary to all precedents and conventionalities, the Duluth & Iron Range railroad employes in the building challenged the loser of last Saturday's game, and will play the men from the Duluth, Missabe & Northern railroad.

The Iron Range company men believed that they would stand a far better show of victory, and some practice for the final game also, if they challenged the loser now, and played the winner later. Consequently a challenge was sent to Manager W. G. Taylor, and he accepted because his team had so much fun last week.

The game will take place at the same grounds, and the local officials of the road corporation are expected to be present to lend encouragement to the players.

IS TAKEN TO STILLWATER

Louis Corriveau, Lake County Murderer, Removed to Prison.

Louis Corriveau, the Lake county murderer, who was convicted of the murder of William Allen, a bartender at Knife River, was this afternoon taken to Stillwater, Minn., to serve out his sentence of life imprisonment. Corriveau was tried in Lake county and sentenced to be hanged, but the state board of pardons commuted sentence. He was taken to Stillwater on the Northern Pacific train, by the sheriff of Lake county.

Corriveau has been failing in health rapidly since his conviction and it has been claimed that he does not have the appearance of a man that will long survive confinement.

Week End Excursions.

These week-end excursions give fishermen an excellent opportunity of having a fine day's fishing at these notable resorts. Ticket office, Spalding hotel corner, 432 West Superior street.

THOSE WHO HAVE DIED

Gen. Alexander McCook Dead From Third Stroke of Paralysis.

Dayton, Ohio, June 12.—Gen. Alexander McDowell McCook, U. S. A., retired, suffered a third stroke of paralysis at his home this morning and died half an hour later. Gen. McCook came West from Washington a few weeks ago and shortly afterward suffered a mild stroke of paralysis. This was followed a few days later with a second stroke more severe than the first, but despite this fact it was believed that the general would recover. He appeared to be steadily improving until this morning, when the end came suddenly. Mrs. McCook, the widow, Mrs. Chauncey Baker, of Washington, D. C., a daughter, and Mrs. Craighead, were at the bedside at the hour of parting.

Details for the funeral of Gen. McCook have not been effected, but it is likely the services will be held here Monday. The burial will take place at Spring Grove cemetery, Cincinnati, where are buried the other members of the McCook family.

Jackson, Miss., June 12.—James Hill, for many years a noted negro leader in the Republican party of Mississippi and secretary of state during reconstruction days, is dead. He was known throughout the country.

BACKS WERE BROKEN.

King and Queen Thrown Violently From Window.

Berlin, June 12.—The flag was half-masted over the Servian legation here today. Most of the members of the diplomatic corps called to express condolence.

Foreign Minister Von Rischtofen informed the ambassadors and ministers who called at the foreign office that Germany did not expect complications involving other states as a result of the changes in the Servian government. A dispatch to the Lokal Anzeiger from Belgrade says the provisional government of Servia is bringing troops there from the country preparatory to resisting Austrian intervention if it comes.

The backbones of both King Alexander and Queen Draga. It is announced, were broken in consequence of the violence with which the murdered sovereigns were thrown from the windows of the palace.

USE A PENNY.

The days when one can put a penny in the slot and get an automobile have not yet arrived, but you can put a penny in the slot and make one run, says the Motor World. This may not be news to old stagers in the electric vehicle business, but one man who thought he was well posted learned it only the other day in a way that impressed him with the notion that he had a narrow escape from being financially ruined.

He was in a garage uptown in New York City, not a hundred miles from the automobile club, and was conversing with the head of the firm, when one of the employes entered the office and asked for a plug to fit a certain Columbia machine.

"You don't need one. Use a penny," remarked the proprietor, fumbling in his pocket as he led the way to a Columbia Stanhope.

"Got a penny?" he queried suddenly.

The inquisitive visitor produced the coin and silently handed it over. The demonstrator wedged the penny crosswise, edge up, in the socket made for the plug, and readily started the car. Then he repeated the experiment successfully with another make of electric.

"That's worth knowing," remarked the proprietor of the establishment, and as the talk turned to other subjects he absent-mindedly slid the borrowed penny into his pocket.

"Yes, that information was worth a cent," remarked the man as he left the store, "but holy smoke! I'm glad it didn't need a five-dollar gold piece to illustrate the trick."

GREAT GAMBLING DOG

Saw Master Lose and Then Started Something.

There isn't a telegraph operator in the state of Colorado that does not remember Tanquary's gambling dog. A few years ago Tanquary was an operator at Graneros, in this state, writes the Denver correspondent of the Chicago Inter-Ocean. The present operator at that lost-in-the-mountains metropolis was in Denver a few years ago. He carried with him a picture of Tanquary's dog. This operator knew Tanquary when he won at the poker game that made the dog famous. He declares positively that Tanquary's dog was the most remarkable animal that ever lived.

"Everybody down at Graneros remembers Tan's pup," said the operator as he flashed the picture of the dog. "I remember the dog very well. Tanquary was the operator down there when I first came to Colorado. Graneros was made up of a battered box car that had been dumped at one side of the track. This served as a telegraph office, and it was a dreary place for the bravest man, and Tan was lonesome staying there.

"One day someone sent Tanquary a dog. It was a mean-looking animal of mingled breeding, and it had a tail of the length, breadth, thickness and general outline of a banana. But the dog was welcomed, and soon made friends with the lonely operator. Tanquary taught the animal to go to the section foreman's hotel, where he boarded, and fetch his lunch, although the dog was at first inclined to take a Roman holiday with the food.

"Tan also taught the dog a number of tricks, such as standing on his head, to leap sidewise, to chew tobacco and to smoke. The only picture I have of the dog is the one where he is seen smoking.

"Although Tanquary taught the dog a good many things, the brute went on to learn many other things without the operator's assistance. The two grew more and more fond of each other, and once when Tanquary came up to see if Denver was still here he brought the dog with him. They had sundry adventures, and finally brought up at a poker game behind a Wazee street barber shop. There three strangers had decided to gather in Tanquary's six months' salary.

"They played with great energy until the operator had reached the last dime in his pocketbook. He looked about him, and his eyes fell upon his faithful dog, which had taken a position on a chair on the opposite side of the table. Tan looked mournfully at the brute for a minute, and then his love for the game overcame him, and he said:

"'If you are good sports you will let me put up that dog against a dollar's worth of excitement, and we can go it a little longer. Otherwise I am out of it.'

"Tanquary told of the dog's accomplishments, and put him through a few of his tricks. Something seemed to be worrying the dog, and it could be seen that Tanquary saw his pet was not satisfied to masquerade as a jack pot. Well, the three gamblers consented to let Tanquary stake the dog.

"After that the game became one of life and death. Tanquary, after the draw, found himself possessed of two kings and the same number of tens. All but one of the strangers fell by the wayside, and Tan was getting worried about the single opponent, for the fellow held up three cards. The operator weighed his hand, and then sat silently gazing at the two pairs. Suddenly he heard a sound, a slow, steady tap-tap. Tan's telegraphic ear caught from the mysterious sound these Morse characters:

"'He has deuces.'

"Now, Tan was a man who did not inquire into the whys and wherefores of Providence. When a miracle was performed, the purport of which was to inform him that the other fellow was bluffing on deuces, he accepted the tip, and played back with all his strength. The result was that he garnered $2.85 on that pot and was staked for the next deal.

"They started in again, and Tan got three kings. He was inclined to bet like an amateur, but he suddenly heard again the slow tap-tap. He inclined his head and heard the telegraphic alphabet. The dots and dashes read:

"'Keep out. I see four nines.'

"Tan cast a hurried glance around to see if he could locate his miracle-working messenger. He saw nothing but the dog sitting disconsolately on the chair on the opposite side of the table. Nevertheless, Tan threw down his kings and lost ten cents. On the next hand he reaped $37 on one of the spirit manifestations by telegraph, which told him one man held a pair of fives, another a bobtail flush, and the other two pairs, kings up. He himself held three treys.

"Well as the night wore away the mysterious messages kept coming and Tan began to roll in wealth. Next morning he went back to Graneros with $1737, all that the three sports and he himself had at the beginning.

"When Tan got up out of his chair one of the sports said: 'Well, I hope you've got enough money to buy that dog some grub. He's been sitting there wagging his tail all night.'

"Tanquary looked up in a rather startled manner, for a great truth was beginning to dawn upon him. And he guessed right. The dog had been watching the other fellows' hands. His tail was sandwiched in between two of the uprights in the back of the chair. As Tanquary stood looking at the dog the brute's tail began wagging again. Tan listened closely, and as the dog's tail struck the uprights of the chair the operator disciphered the letters. The message was: 'And we didn't do a thing to them.'

"Tanquary reached over and stroked the dog's head. He was mystified for a while, and I don't believe he ever did figure out just how it came about, but it's a well-known fact about Graneros that his winnings that night were all due to the messages flashed by the dog's tail."

DEFECTIVE PAGE

BEGINNING OF WORK

Actual Steps Toward Improvement of St. Louis River Power.

C. C. Cokefair, general manager of the Great Northern Power company, left today for New York to be away for a week on business connected with the development of the company's plans.

Actual work is about to commence on the improvement. The Northern Pacific Railroad company has already surveyed the ground for side tracks and the location of a station at the site where the company's power house will be located, two miles this side of Thomson. All trains that stop at Thomson will stop at this station after it is put in. About 900 feet of side trackage is to be put in. The work of the company in the next year will call for the delivery of about 1600 cars of material at this station.

The name given it will probable be Power station.

From the station a tramway will be built at once down the hillside to the power house of the company. It will be about a mile in length and the J. M. Mont company, of New York, has the contract for building it. This company put in the tramway at the big coal docks of the Northwestern company in Superior.

PAYNE NON-COMMITTAL.

Says Bristow Has Papers In Rand Case.

Washington, June 12.—Postmaster General Payne returned today from Cleveland, Ohio, where he attended the Hanna-McCormick wedding. Mr. Payne was asked regarding published reports concerning Mr. Rand, who was his confidential clerk for some years, and latterly assistant superintendent of the salary and allowance division of the postoffice department. Mr. Payne replied that Fourth Assistant Postmaster General Bristow, who had charge of the investigation of the affairs of the department, has had all the papers in Mr. Rand's case in his hands for three months.

ROBBED ON SHIPBOARD

So Los Angeles Man Reports to the Police.

New York, June 12.—Robert Neil, a wealthy resident of Los Angeles, Cal., who was a first-cabin passenger on the White Star liner Germanic, which arrived from Liverpool today, reported to the police on his arrival that he had been robbed on Wednesday last while in mid-ocean of drafts and money to the amount of about $20,000. The money stolen was the proceeds of the sale of an estate in Belfast. Mr. Neill landed here penniless and was unable to pay $126 duty demanded on some gifts he was bringing in. Detectives are investigating the case.

TWO OF A KIND

By Eleanor Arnold.

(Copyright, 1903, by Daily Story Pub. Co.)

"There is no reason why I should not go and stay a year with Marion, but I have been my own mystress so long that somehow I dislike to shut up the old house, sometimes when I think how free I am to come and go, how there are no ties to bind me and no one to miss me, I almost wish—Yes, I will go to Marion's; I'll go tomorrow. I'll—no-morrow! To-morrow is Saturday, and—Tom Mc-Nair usually calls on Sunday. No, I'll wait till Monday. O, yes, decidedly, Monday would be a much better day for me to go.

"And I will not tell on that I am going away for a year, because he would want me to write to him, and I never could do it. Somehow one shows oneself plainer in letters than in talk, and if I were to write to him, I know I would say lots of things that I never could say with those serious gray eyes on me. I might show him—he might think that I cared—

I have been two months at Marion's, and I am beginning to wish that I had promised to write to Tom. Poor fellow! He looked so kind of forlorn when I told him I was going and never said a word about letters; but I suppose it was merely that there would be no time or place for him to call and spend Sunday afternoon. What a cranky old bachelor he is, anyway. I don't believe he cares for anything on earth but his creature comforts, but what do I care what he cares or whether he cares—I don't care one little bit; of course not, but I would just like to know—I am going in to sit with Grandma Gordon for awhile.

"Yes, my dear, that is my dearest friend. Is she not a beautiful woman? I hardly think any picture can do her justice, but you can get some idea of the high ideals, the sentiment and the romance of her nature. That's a very old-fashioned word, my dear, but I am an old-fashioned woman, and I love it, and it is not altogether an inappropriate word to apply to Caroline, for she has a rather romantic little history.

"Tell it to you? Are you so really so interested inan old lady's friends? Well, Caroline Richards and I were schoolmates—but first, dear, put another log on the fire and pull up that low rocker for yourself. Do! You would rather sit on that stool? Well, then, lean against my knee. It is a dreadful day, isn't it? Such a snowstorm! There, that blaze is quite cheery.

"Well, we were girls together, as I said, and never were two girls better friends. I don't believe that even had a lover thanned to come between us, he could have changed the friendship that we felt for one another. But that never happened, and when we got to the time for lovers, I married my first one. I was very young, but sometimes the first is the right one, my dear, and it happened to be so in my case." And grandma reverently raised her eyes to the portrait hanging above the mantel, and the painted eyes of her first and last love looked back to her with something of the tenderness with which they had rested on her in life.

"But it was not so with Caroline, for though she had many lovers, she did not marry. The years slipped by, and she became what the world calls an old maid, leading a busy useful life, taking care of her old father and mother till they were both laid side by side upon the hill, and then doing for her brothers and sisters and all the rest of the family, and when there was no longer anything she could do for them, she did for the poor and unfortunate of the city, until her name came to stand for all that was good in them.

"A busy life she led, and, I supposed, a happy one, but a nature like Caroline's could hardly be happy in single life. She was so essentially a womanly woman and, with all her helpfulness, a dependent one in some ways; in those ways, I mean in which a true woman is meant to be dependent.

"And so it was that when my husband went to England for his company, to be gone a whole year, and my Henry, being only a few months old, I could not go with him, that it was arranged that Caroline should come and spend that year with me.

"Well, she came, and we settled down to a good visit, and Caroline devoted herself to my babies with such good results that in a short time Aunt Caroline was fairly fought for by them. And her motherly traits blossomed most beautifully, and the half sad, heart-hungry look that her lovely face wore when she first came to us began to disappear from it, and she seemed again, to me, my schoolmate, Carrie.

"When she had been with me about six months, there came to her one day a letter from Hiram Wight, one of the old schoolboys. We used to thing, when we were boys and girls together, that she and Hiram thought a good deal of each other, but the years had gone by and nothing had come of it, and I had very nearly forgotten all about it when this letter came to her. I could see that the contents disturbed her not a little, although she said nothing, but when only a few hours following her letter, Hiram walked in upon us and announced that he had come to take Carrie back with him, she told me all.

"The dear old girl had loved that ridiculous boy all those years, and he had never come to his senses till now. I do believe that he never would have come to them if it were not that when Carrie went away for so long he suddenly found out what made life worth living, and without losing any time in berating himself for being such a "laggard in love," he very wisely decided to ask Carrie to come and help him try to gather up those lost years and let him carry her burdens, "as he used to her lunch basket, 'and perhaps,' he said, 'I may yet live to show the world that there is one worse fool than an old fool, and that is a young fool.' And so, my dear, they were married. Yes, right then and there, at my house, and— What is it, May? A visitor? Dear me! It can't be anyone to see me, is it?"

"No, ma'am, it's Miss Amy, and he would come right up—"

A large snowy overcoat brushed by her, and two big, cold hands grasped mine "Mr. McNair, this is Grandma Gordon," but no it isn't for grandma went out with little Mary—but I must say something, for those gray eyes are full of laugh at sight of my discomfiture.

"Come up by the fire. It—It is a terrible day—let me take that coat. You should have let the maid brush the snow off for you." And I pile on the wood and draw up a large chair before the blaze.

Not a word yet, only those dreadful eyes following every move I make. Why, don't he—"Amy, won't you look round and see if you can find a fool's-cap for me, or, couldn't you fasten a long pair of ears on me, or do something that will serve to label me as the most assinine of asses.

"However, I have let you slip through my fingers these five years or more without finding out that you were the only person I could ever love—hang it —I did know it, but some people never can appreciate a blessing till they lose it, and that's my particular idiocy, but if you will come back to be my blessing forever—O, the presumption of me to ask it—I'll tell you, you just marry me, and you will have the best chance in the world to punnish me for being such a swine as not to know pearls when they were cast before him. Will you?"

FATAL KISS

Given to Little Boy By a Young Woman.

Sandusky, Ohio, June 12.—A kiss resulted in the death of Myron Kropp, 4 years old, at Vermillion. The child was met by a young woman a few days ago, a friend of the family and a niece of William Brooks, and was picked up and kissed. Brooks was suffering from smallpox, although this was not known. Afterward Brooks died and then the Kropp boy was taken down with the disease, his death resulting. Mayor Williams, who is leading the fight against the dread disease, said that the kiss undoubtedly spread the contagion.

It is feared that the wife of Guy Davis, a dry goods merchant, will die of the disease. She was formerly Minnie Fisher, and very popular. She contracted the disease from the Brooks home, which is only a short distance from the new store, recently erected, the second floor of which is fitted up for living rooms. Mr. Davis, from an upstairs window, said that his wife's death would cause the death of two others. The store has been closed.

So far there have been five deaths. Will Brooks was the first, his father followed close after, then came his niece Mabel and nephew Orville, and then Baby Kropp.

Brooks contracted black smallpox from an Ashtabula barber, who has since died. The work of disinfecting continues all over Vermillion, but a move is made which is not followed by a spraying of formaldehyde or burning of a disinfector.

DIPLOMA WITHHELD.

Graduate Refused to Sit Alongside a Negro.

Indianapolis, Ind., June 12.—One chair was vacant at the commencement exercises of the manual training high school because the one next to it was occupied by a colored graduate. The vacant chair had been assigned to George O. Wildback, an athlete and member of the Vazier fraternity of the school. When the names of the graduates were read that of Wildback was dropped by Charles E. Emmerick, principal of the school, and the diploma was withheld. Mr. Emmerick refused to discuss the incident further than to say that similar conditions have arisen every year and that they will now be definitely settled. This, however, is the first time the color line has been so rigidly drawn in the Indianapolis schools. The incident has awakened much public interest.

4 more big sales coming next week

Over 1000 dozen ladies' neckwear—6000 shirt waists, thousands of yards of wash goods, silks and white goods have arrived. Watch the papers for the announcement of prices. The labor involved in sorting and marking such great purchases makes a few days' delay unavoidable, but when we're ready for you the prices will make you ready to come.

The crowds since Wednesday have been immense. Each day they have grown until the space devoted to the display of our 7 great purchases has proved inadequate and we have been forced to double the space and engage a big extra force of salespeople in anticipation of still greater crowds on Saturday. The bargains tempted us into the biggest purchases ever made by a single house in Minnesota, and it's only natural they should prove fully as tempting to you. That they are genuine is shown by the increasing crowds, who come because those who have bought have been telling of the very unusual values. Plenty of everything in these first 3 great purchases remains for the

CORNERED ITSELF

W. P. Brown, the "Bull" Leader, Discusses Rise In Cotton.

Prepared to Buy All Cotton That May Be Offered.

New Orleans, La., June 12.—"Cotton has cornered itself; no man or set of men may be held responsible for the advances that have been made in recent months. Some of my friends have been kind enough to say that I have added to the material wealth of the South many millions of dollars by taking the 'bull' side of the cotton market and forcing prices up. I have done nothing of the sort; that is, I mean individually. I have simply bought cotton at prices I thought were in consonance with demands for the staple. If what I have done has assisted in bettering the financial interests of the South, surely I am glad. But I claim that cotton itself has made the prices, I did not make them. It has been a simple question of supply and demand."

That was the way W. P. Brown, the "bull" leader, expressed himself when he was questioned about the remarkable quotations that have prevailed for some months. He was asked to state, in his opinion, when the top notch was to be reached.

"I am a 'bull' now; was a 'bull' five years ago; will be a 'bull' for some time to come," he answered. "One must remember that the firm of W. P. Brown & Co. is not a 'future' concern. We buy cotton for delivery; buy cotton because as cotton merchants we have demands for so much of the product. We concluded years ago, when the staple was down to 4.75, that the price inevitably was to go higher. The 'bears' had hammered a necessary commodity down to figures that looked unreasonable, and were unreasonable. To me it was a plain case of buy at that figure; but at quotations double; buy as we are buying now, at figures almost treble those that existed five years ago. We have proceeded upon facts; we have not gone along erratically, blindly, or in the fashion of trusting to luck. Had we not dealt with serious conditions seriously we should have gone down."

"July cotton sold at 120 points lower in New York today than New Orleans sold," he was reminded. "Why did not that have some effect on the market here?"

"Really, I cannot say," he replied. "One must remember that New Orleans is a spot market. The cotton merchants of this city are not scalpers. They buy and sell because there are demands for the article itself. When facts confront us, we meet them. Futures are not dealt in to any considerable extent, except by speculators. Our firm, as many others here, deals in cotton itself. This is a substantial market. It is not an erratic one now, nor has it been for a long time. In the spot market we play second fiddle to no other."

"How long is your campaign to last? Cotton continues to advance; do you not see a stopping place?"

"I am dealing with conditions," he replied. "These conditions tell me that the demand for cotton is greater than the supply even at present figures. Our firm shall continue to buy at figures now quoted and figures that will be higher."

Mr. Brown is going ahead on the bull side, expects to continue doing so until cotton has reached that figure in commercial keeping with the demand. He does not attempt to conceal his position. He will tell any man who goes to see him where he stands. In his talk he did not speak bombastically; he declined to discuss Mr. Sully or the McFadden company, or to forecast what prices would prevail a year hence.

"We are cotton merchants," he said. "We believe cotton is going higher; we have bought spot wherever it was offered; we will buy it today and tomorrow and next month and on and on as long as facts stand as they stand. We have bought a lot of cotton in the past because it is cheap. That is our position. There is no campaign about it. We are dealing with conditions which we did not bring about, but which commercial demands have brought about."

P. H. MARTIN IS CHIEF RANGER

Elected By Catholic Foresters at St. Cloud Convention.

St. Cloud, Minn., June 12.—The state convention of Catholic Foresters closed a three-days' session here last evening. P. H. Martin, of Duluth, won out in a three-cornered fight for chief ranger, succeeding J. F. Niemeier, of St. Paul, the retiring chief, who had a plurality of the delegates, but met a combination of his two opponents. George F. Stenger, St. Paul, was re-elected state secretary; Henry Vonder Weler, of St. Paul, was chosen treasurer. P. J. McMahon, Minneapolis; A. J. Eckstein, New Ulm; P. Maroney, St. Paul; Alois Schwab, Le Seuer Center, and Dr. J. H. Van Beek, Hastings, were chosen to the international Forester convention at Dubuque in August. They are: At large, A. Chonard, Minneapolis; M. Bantz, St. Paul; C. C. Collars, Le Seuer Center; C. F. Ladner, St. Cloud; W. J. Lewis, Staples. First district—C. I. Riley, N. P. Seifert. Second—P. B. Scheltes, J. M. Voda. Third—J. B. Meier, J. W. Cranee. Fourth—Peter Loskiel, Clemens Debald. Fifth—William E. Beau, H. L. Grogan. Sixth—Chris Schmitt, J. H. Seal. Seventh—A H. Mahowald, George Graff. Eighth—T. B. McDonald, P. J. Houle. Ninth—Rev. George Scheffold, A. R. Charest.

The next convention will be held in June, two years hence, at New Ulm. Resolutions were adopted strongly favoring the perpetuity of Catholic parochial schools.

STARTLING EVIDENCE.

Fresh testimony in great quantity is constantly coming in, declaring Dr. King's New Discovery for consumption, coughs and colds to be unequaled. A recent expression from T. J. McFarland, Berryville, Va., serves as example. He writes: "I had bronchitis for three years and doctored all the times without being benefited. Then I began taking Dr. King's New Discovery, and a few bottles wholly cured me." Equally effective in curing all lung and throat troubles, consumption, pneumonia and grip. Guaranteed by all druggists. Trial bottles free, regular sizes 50c, and $1.00.

GOOD LAND TO AVOID

Is California District Soon to Be Open to Settlement.

Is Dry Now and Has Little Chance of Irrigation.

Washington, June 12.—It is officially announced that on and after June 15, 1903, a certain portion of California hitherto unsettled and undeveloped will be thrown open to entry and reclamation. This strip, which stretches from Mojave on the west to the Colorado river on the east, comprises about 1,000,000 acres, and may be taken up either under the desert land act or as homesteads in forty and 160-acre lots.

Now is a good time to warn all prospective squatters not to go West a-hunting up any of this desert acreage with the expectation of settling in a "promised land." Irrigation or no irrigation, the vast sizzling stretches of desert lands to be thrown open to settlement will never repay any one the trouble and expense of making the run, unless, indeed, he should chance to discover oil or mineral wealth.

While it is true the government is making extensive preparations to irrigate certain portions of the desert contiguous to the Colorado river, both in California and Arizona, only a comparatively small area will be available under the desert land act, for the reason that no lofty dams are to be constructed such as will irrigate millions of acres of land. It is the intention simply to divert the river waters at certain points, allowing them to fertilize, through the medium of canals, considerable land lying below the point of such divergence.

When one stops to consider that, proportionate to the whole amount to be laid open to entry, that portion of the land which can be so irrigated is not of vast extent, it is not difficult to perceive the fallacy of tenderfeet rushing in where forty-niners would fear to tread.

As for those who persist, despite this warning, in entering upon claims of a homestead nature in any of the townships outside the territory to be influenced by the proposed national irrigation system, they will have to depend entirely upon the accident of striking artesian water or of finding water in wells of considerable depth. There is little rainfall in this arid region, and much of the land is so full of gravel, sand and stone that it would be of little value even if water were turned upon it.

Making the desert bloom as the rose (so far as it pertains to this unwatered section) is a mere figure of speech, trumped up by certain boomers, who, for various reasons, are anxious to bring large numbers of suckers to this part of the state. Those lands lying close to the Colorado river, between Needles and Yuma, particularly in the extreme south, are being reclaimed with a considerable degree of success, because the soil down there is fairly well adapted to agricultural enterprises. The same cannot be said of the vast areas of sand and waste stretching almost entirely across the state further north. Most of this land is notoriously worthless.

Prospectors, government surveyors, railroad builders and others who have had occasion to travel over the very country that is to be subject to entry, condemn it from east to west and from A to Z.

"It would be a kind, Christian act," remarked J. B. Lippincot, resident hydrographer of the United States survey, who has been all over the region, "if some one were to warn Eastern people of the actual conditions prevailing out there—of the real barrenness and utter worthlessness of that particular portion of the state. It is not now and never can be made of any value as farming land. However, it may be rich in mineral wealth. I don't know as to that. I believe it has been thoroughly prospected. But I would most certainly warn prospective settlers against taking up any land with the expectation of establishing homes."

Picture, if you can, an illimitable expanse of brown, barren, sloping, brush-covered, cactus-grown landscape, with dim mountain ranges peeking above the horizon, the whole scene sweltering under a bronze sky, in which the sun, a dazzling ball of fire, swings pitilessly from east to west. Under foot coarse, pebbly, gritty sand and gravel and rocks on all sides giant, gaunt, oddly-shaped cactus growths that seem to thrive upon the ozone of the atmosphere rather than on anything in the pumice-dry, sterile soil. Little bunch-like growths, never green, stunted bushes of a strange desert species, afford the only shade to the timid rabbits and squirming, ugly toads, lizards, Gila monsters and venomous snakes that crawl over this dismal plain. The slightest wind sifts up a fine, pulverized dust that percolates, like a whitish powder, into everything not air-tight, while an occasional norther, or "Santa Ana," as it is called, brings with it a stifling, overwhelming sand storm that blinds, kills, buries and sweeps on its way like an Oriental typhoon.

This is not a description of some one bad section, but of the whole monotonous expanse of country stretching for scores of weary miles in an endless succession of reaches, hogbacks, arroyas, dry lakes and rugged, forbidding mountain ranges.

Here, then, are to be located the "homesteads" of prospective settlers. Not one in fifty of those who make the run in June, it is prophesied, will draw aught but bitter disappointment, coupled with hardship untold and unimaginable. Indeed, it is asserted that many of the most venturesome may leave their dried and withered carcasses bleaching upon the inhospitable sands.

THE COMING CARNIVAL.

Will Cover Immense Ground —Speedy, the Diver.

S. C. Haller, agent for the Ferari Bros'. big shows, which will be in Duluth at the July fair and carnival, says that the shows will cover an immense space. Among the sensational features which he has just arranged for in connection with the carnival is the high dive by Speedy and the sensational bicycle whirl. In the high dive, Speedy will leap head foremost 125 feet into a tank containing exactly three and a half feet of water.

The bicycle whirl is said to occupy the pinnacle of cycle sensationalism. Instead of having the whirl on terra firma, as is frequently in shows, the structure will be raised high in air, while the bicyclists are riding at high speed. A slight mistake on the part of the riders will precipitate them through the open bottom to the ground below. This attraction is in charge of Tom Cooper, the ex-champion fast bicycle rider of the world.

CANCEROUS ULCERS

ROOTED IN THE BLOOD.

After the age of 45 or 50, when the vital powers are naturally weaker, it is noticed that a hurt of any kind heals slowly and often a very insignificant scratch or bruise becomes a bad ulcer or sore. At this time of life warty growths, moles and pimples that have been on the body almost from birth begin to inflame and fester, and before very long are large eating ulcers.

A small pimple came on my jaw, but gave me no pain or inconvenience, and I should have forgotten about it had it not begun to inflame and itch; it would bleed a little, then scab over, but would not heal. This continued for some time then the Cancer began to eat and spread, until it was as large as a half dollar, when I heard of S. S. S. and determined to give it a fair trial, and it is remarkable what a wonderful effect it had from the beginning; the sore began to heal and after taking a few bottles disappeared entirely. This was two years ago; there are still no signs of the Cancer, and my general health continues good. Mrs. R. SHIRER, Wyaconda, Mo.

Whenever a sore or ulcer is slow in healing then you may be sure something is radically wrong with your blood. Some old taint or poison that has been slumbering there for years, is beginning to assert itself, and breaks out and becomes a bad ulcer and perhaps the beginning of Cancer. These old sores are rooted in the blood, and while washes, soaps, salves, etc., keep the surface clean, they are not healing. A blood medicine to purify and strengthen the polluted blood and a tonic to build up the general system is what is needed, and S. S. S. is just such a remedy. No poison is so powerful and no germ so deadly that this great vegetable blood remedy cannot reach it, and ulcers of every kind quickly yield to its wonderful curative properties. If you have an old sore or ulcer, write us all about it, and medical advice or any information you may desire will be given by our physicians without charge. THE SWIFT SPECIFIC CO., ATLANTA, GA.

THE TRAGEDY IN SERVIA.

The sensational tragedy in Servia, including the assassination of King Alexander, Queen Draga, the premier, the minister of war, the queen's brothers and several officers, undoubtedly produced a profounder sensation in other countries than in the kingdom directly affected. The people of Servia are apparently well pleased with the revolutionary proceedings which were the result of long-continued discontent with the actions of King Alexander and his advisers. What actually led to the assassination of the king and queen and the principal adherents was Alexander's recent arbitrary action in suspending the constitution and dissolving the legislature, thus assuming absolute power for himself. There was also deep-seated hatred of Queen Draga. She was a lady-in-waiting to Queen Natalie, mother of the late king, and her reputation was rather shady. This alliance seriously offended the better class of Servians, and the king was repeatedly urged to get rid of her, but he persistently refused and was loyal to her to the last.

The political radicals have created much trouble in Servia in recent years. In the lower house of the Servian legislature, the skupshtina, the Radicals became strong enough to balk some of King Alexander's pet measures and otherwise annoy him greatly. Things came to such a pass early in April that the king determined to do a little radical business himself. He therefore suddenly issued a decree suspending the constitution for ten minutes, he being during this brief interval an absolute monarch, a situation which he took advantage of to dissolve the skupshtina and abolish half a dozen laws which he said undermined the authority of the crown. After the king had arranged matters more to his liking, he issued a second proclamation, restoring the constitution as it was before. This undoubtedly led to his assassination on the anniversary of the day that his grand uncle, Michael, was assassinated while walking in his park near Belgrade. Under the reign of Michael, who is said to have been a man of refinement, the condition of the country was greatly improved, but he fell a victim to the rivalry between the Ohrenovitch family and the partisans of the Karageorge claimants. Emissaries of Alexander Karageorgevitch, who had been compelled to resign in 1850, killed Michael. Then Milan ascended the throne, and the world knows of his disgraceful rule and of the bitter quarrels between him and his queen, Natalie. Milan was forced to resign in 1889 in favor of his son Alexander, and both Milan and Natalie were later driven from the country, while Alexander followed in the footsteps of his notorious parent.

TRANSPORTATION BY RAIL.

Figures relating to modern transportation by rail offer a field of study to the student, that in their entirety, can hardly be equalled in any other industry. So enormous has the business become that it is almost beyond the comprehension of the ordinary man. According to an article in the Railway Age, compiled from a German publication, the railway lines in operation at the close of 1901 include a total length of 507,498 miles, or about twenty times the circumference of the earth. This mileage does not take into consideration double, triple and quadruple tracks. Distributed according to the grand divisions, America leads, with 255,149 miles, or more than one-half of the total mileage of the world. Europe stands next with 170,506 miles, followed by Asia with 41,788 miles; Australia with 15,630.8 miles, and Africa with 13,878 miles. Among the individual nations, the United States leads with 197,066 miles. Other countries stand in the list as follows: German empire, 32,733 miles; European Russia, 25,925 miles; France, 27,011 miles; British India, 25,352 miles; Austro-Hungary, 23,282 miles; Great Britain and Ireland, 22,022 miles, and Canada, 18,270 miles. In density, or the relation of railway mileage to area, Belgium leads with 22 miles or road for every 100 square miles of area, followed by Saxony, with 19.2, the United States with 4.1, Victoria with 2.3, Natal, 1.7, down to 0.6 for Norway.

Compared with population, Sweden leads in Europe with 14 miles for every 10,000; Denmark, 9; Switzerland, 7.2, and France, 7. Naturally, in sparsely populated countries the mileage is much greater than in the densely populated European countries, as is shown by the following: Queensland, 58 miles for every 10,000 population; South Africa, 52.1; Canada, 34.3, and the United States, 25.2. The increase in the railway mileage of the world from 1897 to 1901 amounts to 11.4 per cent. The number of miles of increase for the Americas is approximately equal to the increase for Europe. In the United States this amounted to 6.9 per cent, the percentage being small because of the large mileage previously in existence. Africa represents the largest relative increase of 44.1 pr cent. The increase in Australia is only 8.9 per cent. The average cost of construction of European railways is $111,990.41 per mile, and for all countries outside of Europe, $56,245.36 per mile. The total cost of construction of all the railways of the world thus aggregates, $38,626,662,216.89. It has been estimated that this capital represents a solid row of 20-mark gold pieces 7023 miles in length, and that the transportation of this gold would require 6500 freight cars with a carrying capacity of slightly more than 11 tons each.

These figures show results in a general way. Should they be carried out to the amount of business done, and the general expenditures, they would become bewildering. Railroads are the life of the world. Without them the wonderful progress of nations could never have been made.

MR. HILL'S PREDICTIONS.

President James J. Hill of the Great Northern system, who recently made an inspection tour as far as the Pacific coast, has been telling the New York papers of the conditions which he found indicating a prosperous year. "All industries are flourishing," he said. "I cannot say I have ever seen crops in the Northwest in a more flourishing condition at this season. Spring and winter wheat and the small grains generally give promise of a bumper harvest. In the corn belt conditions are less favorable, for there has been too much moisture, but it is almost a farmers' axiom that a wet season means a big corn crop. The loss from floods will scarcely aggregate more than 4 per cent."

Mr. Hill is a pretty good prophet, and when he predicts a year of prosperity there is good reason to believe that he has accurately gauged the situation. Those who traveled over the ground that he has recently covered agree with this opinion that the crops in the Northwest were never in a more flourishing condition at this season of the year, and unless something unexpected happens there will be a bountiful harvest of grain next fall. In industrial and commercial lines, everything is in a flourishing state and throughout the whole Northwest there are substantial evidences of prosperity on every hand. When Mr. Hill tells the people in the East that a prosperous year is assured, he does not exaggerate the conditions that exist.

The whole country, in fact, continues to experience the benefits of prosperous times. All the industries are flourishing, labor is being better paid and more steadily employed than at any previous time in the history of the country, and the volume of commerce is exceeding all past records. There has been disturbance in Wall street, due to the excessive number of combinations with inflated capital that have been launched. The load of "undigested securities" was too heavy, and the natural result was a toppling of prices and heavy liquidation. The flurry now appears to be practically ended. Stocks have descended to a normal basis; in many cases they are now quoted much below their intrinsic value, and an advance is about due.

Mr. Hill, by the way, "called the turn" on the present situation in Wall street, in an interview published in Chicago early last winter. He then pointed out the dangerous situation, due to inflated stocks and undue speculation, and gave warning that a crash was coming. But many people failed to heed the warning and have lost heavily in the slump. They may have better respect for Mr. Hill's views in the future.

TRADE WITH THE TRANSVAAL.

The great devastation of buildings, implements, and in short all necessities of life in the Transvaal, due to the protracted war has caused a demand for outside products that has increased the commerce of that country to a wonderful extent. The purchases by the new colony have been enormous, being limited in fact only by the ability of the people to pay. The assistance of the British government has been of the utmost benefit, and has served to greatly swell the commerce of the territory. The total imports of the Transvaal for the first three months of the present year, were about $30,000,000, an increase of almost $25,000,000 if the corresponding period for the previous year be taken for comparison. The largest items were $10,000,000 for iron and steel products and $3,000,000 for machinery. The total exports for the same period were $13,000,000, of which gold made up all but some $400,000.

During the year 1902 the Transvaal imported mining machinery alone to the value of $6,000,000, of which about $4,500,000 worth came from Britain. The United States is next in order of enterprise with about $1,000,000, and Germany, third, with $580,000. The returns do not show the extent to which other colonies have participated in the trade. In imports of mining machinery about $450,000 worth are recorded as "local purchase." This indefinite item is due to the fact that the colony has no ports of her own, and a large part of her supplies is shipped to the Cape. In agricultural implements, $150,000, and in preserved fish, $600,000, are the amounts recorded as local purchase.

It is pleasing to know that the United States stands second on the list in trade with this colony, and the best part of it is, it is steadily increasing. Representatives of the different manufacturers are constantly being sent over and large orders have resulted. Last year a salesman for a wagon company at Winona, in this state, went to South Africa to sell his goods. As a result carload after carload has been shipped to that far-away country. The United States can beat the world with its products and all that is necessary is to go after the business.

WHAT IS PAYNE CONCEALING?

It is claimed that Postmaster General Payne is trying to protect certain high officials in and out of the postoffice service. This is rendered certain by his refusal to make public the report of Fourth Assistant Bristow covering his investigations in the Washington postoffice, and the administration of former officials of the department. There has been a great public demand for the publication of the facts reported by Gen. Bristow, and it is said that the president himself favors the fullest publicity of the discoveries of wrong doings in the postal service. Postmaster General Payne, however, firmly refuses to disclose what Mr. Bristow found in looking into the charges preferred by Seymour Tulloch, formerly cashier in the Washington postoffice, regarding the operations of the department at present and several years ago.

Postmaster General Payne is keeping this report under cover because, as he admits, it may place certain officials in a bad light. He proposes to wait until the whole inquiry is ended, possibly in the hope that subsequent developments may overshadow the revelations made by Gen. Bristow, or that a new and more favorable construction may be placed on them. Postmaster General Payne has from the first discredited the charges of Tulloch and referred to him as a wind-bag. It is evident now that the inquiry made by the postoffice inspectors failed to back up Mr. Payne's estimate of Tulloch. On the contrary, it is said the inspectors found that Tulloch spoke by the cards when he accused Heath and others with maladministration.

It is understood that Bristow's report reflects strongly on Perry Heath and to make it public would have the result of making Bristow the accuser of Heath and other officials, and this Payne desires to avoid. Payne is a politician from start to finish and a shrewd political manager as well, and he realizes the injury that the circulation of reports would do the Republican party. He does not care so much about protecting officials as he does about the party. It may be possible, in case the public clamor continues, that the president may take a hand and require the postmaster general to give out Bristow's report. If he does this there will be nothing for Payne to do but resign.

A Baltimore councilman wants the city to have a mosquito inspector for each ward. Why not also make the 'skeeters take out licenses?

HOTEL GOSSIP.

The hotel lobbies have been a surging mass of white and black caps, gaudy badges, ribbons, traveling men and others since late yesterday afternoon.

Up to noon today not a female drummer or "woman traveling man" as she is generally termed, had appeared at the meeting.

There are plenty of old timers at the gathering. They feel the cramped condition of hotels more than anyone else, and they talk about it more.

Wives and families of the traveling men are here in large numbers, and they generally have adorned the colors to which their husbands or fathers are entitled.

If anyone has broken into any of the hotels who is not immediately connected with the commercial traveling profession, nobody has been able to locate him.

The traveling men OWN THE TOWN and incidentally THE HOTELS and the LAKE.

The youngest representative of the grip fraternity is small and active Swift, William, Jr., of Minneapolis, who is registered at the Spalding hotel.

Little William is a son of William Swift, who is a regular visitor at Duluth, and the lad has been acting as drum major for his father on all walks and excursions. He carries a cane with Minneapolis colors and numbers on it, and is a pet with the delegation from that city.

He is a cute youngster, and when he marches down the carpet in the dining room, there is something of a stir, for he paces off the distance with haughty disregard for the headwaiter or any other official.

He dances a little, but marches most, and will be chosen mascot of the delegation.

Among the elders in the profession is William Weed. He is also a Minneapolis traveler, though he is known hundreds of miles East and West, and is always a warm member at conventions, keeping up the interest of members by clever devices.

He is known as "Gum Shoe" Weed. Not because he sells gum shoes, for he is a cigar salesman, and handles the John Sherman variety. But his title is given for far different and obscure reasons.

Mr. Weed has a large, robust and rotund voice. The supposition is that a man with rubber heels or gum shoes on, is a very quiet person in walk at least, and the general impression is that a man with gum shoes on will circulate about with little noise.

Therefore in the "reverse English" that is common to the traveling man, he is referred to as "Gum Shoe" because of his energetic voice.

Powhatan G. Gordon, is another cigar man, and an old timer. He hails from New York, but is a good member of the western U. C. T. His first name is his real name, though some people have doubted it, and say it was assumed for registering purposes entirely.

L. P. Sigsbee got away this morning. He comes from New York, and is a relative of the captain who commanded the ill-fated Maine.

He didn't show the fortitude in Duluth, however, that his distinguished relative did in Havana harbor, for he fled in disorderly retreat when he saw the traveling men come sweeping down on the town.

"I have seen enough parades and I have eaten too many times and made unsuccessful attempts to sleep in crowded hotels," he said, "and I guess I'll get out with my health."

His bon voyage was one of scornful disdain from his brothers of the road. They said "piker," at him.

A disheveled looking person, who appeared to be very tired got up on a dry goods box just east of the Commercial club this morning, and started to talk loudly.

"Doesn't he look tired?" asked some women members who were going by. "Probably that man couldn't find any place to stay last night, and hasn't had any sleep."

They passed along, but he kept right on talking, until there were half a hundred people around him. His friends were trying to pull him down from his elevated position, but he wouldn't go.

"The mayor has told a lie! The mayor has told a lie! The mayor, the mayor, the mayor! Be-a-a-a-h. The mayor is misrepentin' his town!"

There were some rather annoyed looks in the crowd, but the man evidently had everything gauged.

He yelled again, and the crowd increased. Some stood and looked at the man in contempt, some in pity and some in anger.

"How do I know? How do I know? How do I know?" he shouted.

"Why, gentlemen, he told me there were 267 saloons in the town. Two sixty-seven, do you understand. Told me so. I've been all over the town and in every one here, and I could only find 266. He's wrong. The mayor told a lie——".

At that point he was pulled off his perch, and dragged into one of the hotels, and the crowd dispersed.

A rooster was the center of a whole lot of interest in front of the Spalding about 9:30 this morning, when the band was gathering there.

The sidewalks were crowded, and the cars that passed were going slow.

A West Duluth car came slowly along, and in front of it was a big rooster. Somebody in the crowd called out to "Butch" Nelson Frank to "get an axe," and the attention of all the crowd was attracted to it.

The rooster was going at a pretty good clip, keeping just ahead of the car, and the motorman evidently didn't see him. There was momentary danger of there being a dead rooster.

The crowd began to yell. The bandsmen started to toot their horns, and the motorman "got on to himself," as Carlos Moore, the "Mother's Oats," man said.

He began to manipulate his brake in the presence of fully a thousand people. It was a moment of intensity for the crowd, and there was as much consideration displayed for the fowl as there would have been for a human being who was in the same predicament. The rooster just kited along and minded his own business of trying to get away from that lumbering machine behind him.

The crowd held its breath.

Then the car came to a sudden standstill, the people inside being thrown forward and wondering what the trouble was.

Mr. Rooster was just under the fender, when the car stopped, and when it did, he stepped out in front.

He flapped his wings and uttered a weak, frightened little crow, and started to half walk and half fly west on Superior street.

The crowd cheered, and the band boys rendered a bar of "I Want Mah Chicken," before they started down the street with the regular music.

William Brodie, a liquor man, is here with his family. He registers from Milwaukee, because he don't live there, but he gets his salary from that point.

Mr. Brodie wants it understood that he is not the famous bridge-jumping "Steve" though he has been taken for that individual by people seeing his name, and it has caused him some participation in interesting experiences.

The key racks at the hotels are almost empty, and the wise and wily traveling man is carrying his around in his pockets.

The general run of traveling man is too experienced to take chances on losing his room through a chance that someone else might get his key.

Some of them left their keys at the desks this morning with a demand for a receipt for them, which in some cases were given.

The arrangements for accommodations have been such that all the traveling men and their guests and families have been taken care of nicely.

Doped Wine From Abroad.

New York World: Steps are being taken in the bureau of chemistry, department of agriculture, at Washington, to secure a rigid enforcement of the law against the importation of adulterated goods. In connection with this subject attention is again directed to the fact that impure wines in large quantities are brought here both from Germany and France. Chemical compounds variously colored and having small trace of grape juice are sent to America in plain bottles to be labeled as dealers choose. From Havre, according to a department agent, a thriving trade is done in a liquid prepared from American apple cores and skins—shipped to France in bulk—and colored with Brazilian logwood.

BRIGHT AND BREEZY.

Philadelphia Ledger: "Only a silver watch," said the pawnbroker. "The last time I advanced you money on your watch it had a solid gold case."

"Yes," replied Hardduppe, "but—er—circumstances alter cases, you know."

Chicago Tribune: "Yes, I had my pocket camera trained on the president, but I thought he might not like it, and I didn't take his picture."

"Shucks! Had you forgotten that he said, himself, 'Never draw unless you intend to shoot'?"

Chicago Tribune: The orginal wool growers' convention was in session.

"That goat has no business in a gathering of this kind," said the indignant Southdown. "What is he doing here?"

"I don't know," replied the Cotswold. "He butted in in spite of us."

Chicago Post: "Fortune knocks once at the door of every man."

"Yes, but she's generally very cleverly disguised."

Atlanta Constitution: "Does you b'lieve de devil rides a white hoss?"

"Dunno. But I knows dis much: Whatever hoss he rides will sho' git dar."

Philadelphia Press: "Well," said Grumbell, "it's a true saying that misfortunes always come in pairs."

Washington Star: "Do you remember how you used to talk for hours about free silver?"

"Yes," answered Farmer Corntossel. "That was when business was slack. I reckon the reason a lot of us talked about free silver was that we had plenty of time to talk about anything that came handy."

A Conspiracy That Failed.

Chicago Record-Herald: The people who thought they were going to put Roosevelt on the shelf by nominating him for vice president have about made up their minds that they ought to have tried some other scheme.

Getting Next to a Great Thing.

Detroit Free Press: A clever politician like Mr. Chamberlain must also appreciate the political advantages of protection. When the oppressive schedules have been established, the party in power can always plead for another term on the ground that the tariff ought to be reformed by its friends.

Reflections of a Bachelor.

New York Press: No girl ever looks as well in her portrait as she does in her mind.

It's not the shirt waist but the shape of it that makes a fool of a man.

All the investments of married men are not made up of home securities.

There is a great difference in the way a woman tells you how she likes you and the way she proves it.

NO PLACE FOR A POCKET.

"No place for a pocket?" That's nothing new;
'Twas Eve said it first, if the record's true.
But that was just after old Satan sneaked round,
And the baneful knowledge of evil was found.

The wondrous improvement had not begun
That makes woman a dummy to hang things on.
The soft air of Eden was pure and sweet
When clover blooms tickled our first mother's feet.

But Satan went into the garden one day,
Where innocent impulses had full play,
And, blighting all life with poisonous breath,
Left the gates wide open to woe and death.

Adam knew not that the Devil was there,
And Eve, unsuspicious, sat braiding her hair,
When the serpent, that creature so smooth and wise,
With Satan directing, attacked Eve's eyes.

Did Eve give a scream and run like a deer?
She knew not as yet there was aught to fear.
So she quietly heard the snake explain
How nice it would be if she'd raise Cain.

He began by praising her, I've no doubt,
For that's old way to bring things about;
And the fiend knew well when she gladly smiled
That Eve, poor Eve, was sadly beguiled.

Then Adam partook of the fruit tabooed,
And started the germ of the modern dude;
Now the hapless pair skulked round in the shade,
And planned the tricks of the fig-leaf trade.

'Twas thought small business for man to be in Till he'd long been used to the ways of sin;
But since the French have enlarged and refined it
'Tis the pride of a style that the Devil's behind it.

Go out on the street, and what do you see,
A natural woman with light step and free,
Or a pitiful make-up of whalebone and chalk,
With a burden of clothes and a tottering walk?

And the sawed-out, corn-crippled, tailor-made man
Imagines he's built on a beautiful plan.
If the great masquerade were not so sad,
We'd laugh at the slaves of fashion and fad.

—BERIAH F. COCHRAN, in Omaha Bee.

Baltimore American: Since the development of the scandals in the postoffice it is no wonder that George Washington's face on the postage stamps looks so red.

Words of Great Weight.

St. Louis Globe-Democrat: This nugget of wisdom is from the president's speech at Boise: "The forests and the grasses are not to be treated as we properly treat mining—that is, as material to be used up and nothing left behind. We must recognize the fact that we have passed the stage when we can afford to tolerate the man whose object is simply to skin the land and get out. We must handle the water, the wood, the grasses so that we may hand them on to our children and children's children in better and not worse shape than we got them." These are words of decided weight touching the resources and economic future of the United States.

Spanish War Pensions.

Portland Oregonian: The Spanish was lasted only a short time, and there was very little fighting; the larger number of those who enlisted never left the United States, and yet 65,000 have so far applied for pensions. The pension office has rejected 18,385 claims, but there were 34,210 pending May 1. About 13,000 pensions on account of the Spanish war have been granted, including 3100 of the widow and dependent class. More pensions have been granted on account of the Spanish war than have been granted up to 1864 on account of the civil war. In 1862 the applications numbered 2487 and 462 pensions were allowed; in 1863 there were 7884 allowed, and the number was 9977 in 1876.

THE CLASS OF '03

Graduates of High School Present an Entertaining Program.

Fun and Music For a Crowd That Fills Assembly Hall.

Mirth and music ran riot last evening in the Assembly hall of the high school, where 1700 people gathered to attend the class day exercises of the class of 1903. The audience was in very good humor and the excellent exercises which the class gave elicited much applause and laughter.

Flowers and potted plants adorned the stage, where sixty-six graduates, young women in many colored gowns, and boys in black and white, whose fresh, young faces presented a fine appearance under the light from the high chandeliers.

"Alma Mater," the well-known valedictory song, composed by A. F. M. Custance, was first on the program. It was well sung by the class.

His talk was unusually good, both from the standpoint of subject matter and delivery. He thanked the public for its patronage during the four years which the class had been a part of the high school. He told something of the achievements of the organization in various lines since it entered the institution, but said he must not say too much along that line for fear of encroaching on the territory of the historian. The class, he said, was not going out into the world to reform it. They would go forth and endeavor to take their places in the world of the people, with no revolutionary project on hand to accomplish.

In conclusion, he delivered himself of a little quotation from Milton, which, he said, fitted the situation of the graduating students exactly. It is:

"We rise and twitch our mantles blue,
Tomorrow to green fields and pastures new."

Miss Bessie Rathbun Harsh's class history was something entirely new in the way of high school class history. A dozen members of the senior class assisted her, all dressed in the garb of childhood, and seated in tiny kindergarten chairs. Miss Harsh acted as their teacher, and in telling them stories gave the history of the class. This was humorously puntuated by interruptions by the little ones about. Miss Olive Colbraith acted as assistant, trying her best to keep the bellicose little boys and mischievous girls from fighting all the time.

"Miss Bessie," came a wee, small voice from what proved to be a giant when its owner rose, "May I speak a little piece?"

"Certainly, Jimmy, go ahead."

"Mary had a little lamb,
Its fleece was white as snow;
But then it went to Pitsburg,
And you ought to see the darn thing now."

Leslie Bassett sang a solo, "Ora Pro Nobis," delightfully. He was given an encore.

Miss Kathleen Winnifred Watterworth performed the arduous task of delivering the class prophecy in a manner which instantly made her the friend of the big audience and elicited applause from the students and others who appreciated the fads, foibles and preferences of the different members of the class.

She laid her scene in the United States Superior court of the proposed state of Superior, with capital at Duluth. Time, 1927. She represented one of the young women of the class as being in the toils of the law for demolishing the phonograph, which one of the masculine members of the class had made to represent his own voice as it was heard when he sang. Judge, jury, attorneys, witnesses and spectators were all members of the class of 1903, who did and said funny things.

The song of the classes, arranged by Mr. Custance, was given by the students of all classes. A few minutes intermission was held, during which the "Zenith," the annual high school publication was sold in the audience.

Joseph Gorin Harrison delivered the class oration. His treatment of "Hamilton and His Relation to the Constitution" was masterly. His achievements, his influence, his trouble with Burr and his death at the hands of that rival were all told in a fine oratorical manner.

"Farewell, Central High School," with solo part by George Fredin and chorus by the class, was one of the most amusing songs on the list. It was cleverly arranged with catchy words addressed to the other three classes. The Freshmen bore the brunt of the most acute ridicule, and Leslie Bassett rose to sing a reply.

But the foxy little freshmen got even. They went along with their song just as they had been instructed to do until nearly the end. Then, when they should have said "We give you a last farewell," they said "We give you one last yell," and before anything could be done one hundred freshman throats boomed out the class slogan, and the smallest class in the lot had stolen a march on the other three, getting their yell off first. The incident, however, precipitated pandemonium, as the sophomores and juniors immediately howled their loudest in an effort to drown out the presumptuous first year men.

When quiet had been restored William Steiner gave the last will and testament of the class. A bushel basket bearing the articles which were to be left to the other classes was brought onto the stage and the reading of the will proceeded.

The wording of the document deviated slightly from the approved legal style. The juniors were given a bunch of multipapered flowers to wear at their commencement exercises next year, so that neither they nor the board of education should be worried over that important question.

Laughable bequests were made to others, and finally a little remembrance was given to Mr. Custance, who has been the friend of the class through all the years of its term in the high school.

The singing of "Triumphales" ended the program.

The high school has a 300-pound janitor, whose geniality has commended him to all of the students. His only name so far as the students know is "John." He figured more prominently than any other personage in the papers and addresses last night. Every speaker had some joke or other at his expense, and they usually related to his size.

Hundreds of students flooded the streets in the direction of a popular soda fountain, and the crush there nearly precipitated a row. When the juniors came the sophomores had gained possession of the place, and there was nothing for the upper class men to do but stand up or not drink.

Cries of "Throw 'em out; throw 'em out!" were started, but wiser counsel prevailed.

DIVORCE MATTERS.

Suit Begun By William G. Olds For Separation.

William G. Olds has begun an action for a divorce from Jennie Olds in district court, the complaint being filed yesterday afternoon. According to the complaint, the couple were married nearly 30 years ago at Union City, Mich. The plaintiff is 65 and the defendant 56 years of age. The divorce is asked on the grounds of desertion, which is alleged to have taken place in 1902.

James Freeborn has asked for a decree of divorce from Rebecca W. Freeborn, on the ground of alleged infidelity, that they were married at Bessemer, Mich., Jan. 2, 1902, the plaintiff being 36 and the defendant 39 years old.

In the divorce action of Mina E. Dahlsten, who was granted a decree, Judge Dibell yesterday issued an order giving the husband the custody of her nine-year old son, Magnus Roy Dahlsten. The court had previously ordered the child into the custody of the mother, but she is ill and petitioned the court to change the order. The father resides at Lockport, N. Y.

HIBBING ROBBERY.

Frank Coulter Is Charged With the Crime.

Frank Coulter has been brought down from Hibbing and lodged in the county jail to await the action of the next grand jury. He is charged with robbing Andrew Whren of a pocketbook containing about $65 in paper money. The hearing was had before Justice Connors of Hibbing.

It is alleged that Coultner took the pocket book from Whren's person while standing talking to the latter, but that the loss was not discovered for some little time afterward. The money was not found on Coulter, but is claimed to have been stolen from him by some person whose identity is unknown. Coulter is said to have thrown the pocket book away after extracting the money, and to have gone into a saloon where he was robbed in turn while drinking at the bar.

TWO YEARS SENTENCE.

Oscar Anderson of Superior Sent Up For Manslaughter.

Oscar Anderson, who was convicted in circuit court of Douglas county, Wis., of manslaughter in the fourth degree, was yesterday sentenced by Judge Vinje to a term of two years in the state penitentiary at Waupun. Anderson was accused of causing the death of Bernard Nassin, an old shoemaker with whom he roomed. They are said to have quarrelled and the trouble resulted in Anderson beating the older man in such a manner that he afterward died at the hospital. The evidence showed that Nassin had been drinking heavily up to the time his injuries were inflicted.

SENATOR HANNA'S GIFT

To Daughter Was Large Check and Home.

Cleveland, Ohio, June 12.—Senator Hanna's gift to his daughter, Miss Ruth, who became the wife of Joseph Medill McCormick, of Chicago, was a check for $50,000 and a deed to a valuable piece of property located in the residence section of Chicago. The Hanna family refused to discuss the matter at all further than to admit that such a gift had been made.

The senator made a gift fully as valuable to his eldest daughter, Miss Mabel, when she was married about a year ago to Harry A. Parsons.

ANNUAL CONVENTION

Of Evangelical Lutheran Synod Has Adjourned.

Waconta, Minn., June 12.—The annual convention of the Minnesota and Dakota district of the Evangelical Lutheran synod of Missouri adjourned yesterday afternoon after a session of seven days. In addition to representatives from the above-mentioned states, there were missionaries present from Montana and the Northwest Canadian provinces. In all there were 345 delegates and pastors in attendance, 100 of whom were netertained at the Coney Island hotel and the remainder among members of the local congregation.

The treasurer reported a surplus of funds on hand. A resolution was passed that the synod incorporate under the Minnesota laws. The 1904 convention will be held at Hamburg, Minn.

FINEST OF SEASON

Eleven Inning Game With Crookston Fails to Duluth, 3 to 2.

Shaw took another hard-hitting aggregation out riding in the daffy wagon yesterday. In eleven innings Crookston only got four safe bumps. Duluth won 3 to 2.

It was the little fellow's fine work that won despite the fact that his support had large blow holes in it. He struck out nine men, gave five bases on balls, had two hits, and accepted seven chances without an error.

In the eleventh with two men out, Harris on third and Shaw enroute between first and second, Quillan rapped out a gallant double along the right field foul line and Harris came home with the winning tally.

About two seconds behind Harris came Shaw, speeding along like a runaway automobile. He crossed the plate and the crowd left the park thinking the score was 4 to 2, but according to the rules the game terminates the moment the winning run crosses the plate.

The Cardinals bunged the celebrated Martin hard enough to win several games but were unable to get their singles properly bunched.

In the second inning on daring base running by Lyons and Kennally coupled with two errors, the Cardinals scored twice. An error, a sacrifice and a single gave Crookston one in the fifth, and the visitors nestled a score in the eighth when Hoffmeister showed his ingratitude for free transportation to first by stealing second. He came home on White's long drive to right.

The score:

The fielding feature of the game was Burns' catch of Lyons' drive to center in the eighth which kept Duluth from scoring the winning run in that inning. The "Irish King" was playing deep center when Lyons hit a short one to that garden. Burns came in on a dead run nicking the ball with one hand just a few inches off the ground.

Shepard made a phenominal one-handed catch of Cameron's drive back of second in the eighth.

Kennally's double in the eighth went clear over the left field fence.

Lyons' base running was worth the price of admission. He is also fast in recovering a ball after a fumble.

The Superior team went up 1000 points in the estimation of all good Duluthians by beating Fargo yesterday. It gave Duluth clear title to fourth place.

THE GUILTY LOVE

Of Madelaine and Antonio Ends In a Double Killing.

She Fled With Lover and There Was Usual Result.

San Francisco, June 12.—In Turin, Italy, Antonio Calcagno loved Madelaine Piconi, sweet faced enough to be a daughter of the Conois. He called her caro mio; he looked into her eyes with a lover's longing, and her eyes answered back.

On Sansome street, San Francisco, Antonio Calcagno shot Madelaine Piconi to death. Then he turned the pistol against himself and died, too. Life was nothing without her, either in Turin or in San Francisco, and he was not worthy of her love.

In Turin, Calcagno was a shoemaker. The father of Signorina Madelaine Piconi was a merchant. It would not do for the maker of shoes to lift his hand and his hopes to the daughter of the prosperous merchant. He could sigh; she could sigh—but she was intended for somebody else.

But they wandered there as loving children, all unmindful of the beautiful slopes of Monte del Cappuccini; careless of the art in Vincenzo Vela's kneeling statues of Maria Teresa and Matilda Adelaide, which attract many feet to la Beata Vergine della Consolata; thinking nothing that Turenne hammered out his fame under the city's walls; thinking of little but love and the unreasonableness of parents.

Her dark eyes snapped and she tangled the masses of her black hair when these parents told her to wed a wealthier suitor, but she obeyed. What could she do? She was 17, and in Turin girls must hurry as they are told. So she took her hand to the altar, but her heart she left with Antonio Calcagno.

Then came a time of sly notes and clandestine meetings, of passionate pledgings, of starts and tremors of guiltiness, just as the love story had been rehearsed in Turin since long before Agilulf, the Lombard, was duke there. Nine years ago there was discovery, and Antonio Calcagno fled into the great world, and came to San Francisco. Madelaine and her husband put Turin and the scandal behind them and went to Lyons, and then to Paris.

Calcagno was a cobbler on Folsom street, but he had no prosperity, save in dreams. Out of those dreams he wrote to Madeline as Claude Melnotte wrote to Pauline Deschappelles. In his letters he was no longer a mender of outworn shoes, but a lord of a realm, easy, gracious and patronizing. He urged her constantly to leave her husband and fly to him, here, in another Italy, to share his fortune and his fame.

Her heart still yearned for him, though two children had come to give her pause. But one evil day the heart beat down all barriers. She gathered her children to her and left her husband's roof and sought the idol of her youth in the land which he had peopled with luxuries and with comforts and with love.

She found him living in poverty on Pacific street and playing an accordeon in a Pacific street saloon. He hardly could provide for himself, much less for her, with her little girl and little boy. It was a dreadful disappointment to her, but she was proud. Her parents sent for her, but she would not go. Her husband's heart broke in Paris and he died. Then Antonio Calcagno would not marry her. She put her two children in St. Vincent's home, beyond San Rafael, and urged her lover to go to work.

Calcagno would do nothing. He treated her cruelly. Two months ago she left him, found a home with friends at 820 Pacific street and secured employment in the Standard Biscuit Factory at 50 Front street. She tried to hide herself from Calcagno. "Peccavi," she said, "I have sinned."

He found where she was working and laid in wait for her on the east side of Sansome street, between Pacific street and Broadway. R. C. Holm, a passing street car conductor, saw him fire a shot into her head. She fell, and he stood over her, firing three more shots. Then he put the pistol to his ear and fired the last cartridge.

Madelaine Piconi and Antonio Calcagno were side by side and dead when the coroner's men came. In St. Vincent's Asylum are a little boy and a little girl who never again are to know a mother's caress. In Turin, Italy, ar eproud hearts that will be bowed in sorrow as they already have been bowed in shame.

WILL RETURN TO ENGLAND.

Monreal, June 12.—Sir Charles Rivers-Wilson and a party of directors of the Grand Trunk company, accompanied by General Manager Hayes have left for New York after a final conference with the Dominion cabinet about the Grand Trunk-Pacific scheme. They will sail for England in a few days.

All ladies and children who cannot stand the shocking strain of laxative syrups, cathartics, etc., are invited to try the famous Little Early Risers. They are different from all other pills. They do not purge the system. Even a double dose will not gripe, weaken or sicken; many people call them the easy pills. Sold by all druggists.

Fergus Falls, Minn., June 12.—The address of Chairman Leavitt of the state board of control, in connection with the nurses' graduating exercises at the insane hospital here, has created quite a sensation, the interesting feature being his scathing denunciation of the late legislature. The hospital here is always crowded, and the two or three hundred attendants live in the building, their duties being almost perpetual. The close confinement among the insane, many of whom are physically as well as mentally ill, the continuous breathing of one inside atmosphere, and the constant mental strain incident to watching those whose actions are always uncertain, naturally has a depressing effect, and very few of the attendants can be induced to regard hospital work as a life occupation.

The members of the board of control are fully aware of this, and Mr. Leavitt stated in the course of his address that they were earnestly desirous of improving the conditions surrounding hospital employment. They had hoped, first of all, to provide cottages outside the institutions which the nurses could regard as homes, where they could live, could have a change of atmosphere, and entertain their friends when the long, long hours on the wards were ended. The board had planned to erect such cottages during the present year, and had not had the least doubt but what the legislature would readily appropriate the necessary money.

"We recommended the appropriation in our report to the governor, and we recommended it on every possible occasion to the legislature, but the legislators, instead of granting the money, raised their hands and informed us that the state could not afford it, that the expenses must be kept down or the tax rate would have to be raised, and that raising of the tax rate would be political suicide.

"There would not be so much ground for complaint if the statements had been true," he continued, "but they were not true. The legislature had $1,000 to spend for a baseball park and race track down at the State university, it had $100,000 to appropriate for the St. Louis exposition, it had $20,000 to expend on a state fish hatchery, it could afford a special tax to build a palace for the officers of the state agricultural college, it had plenty of money for these and other purposes, but it could not afford funds for suitable accommodations for hospital employes.

"The members of the legislature," continued Mr. Leavitt, turning to the nurses, "regarded you as of less importance than the fishes, they regarded your welfare as of less consequence than a race track, they refused to make any appropriation to provide you with cottages or enable us to reduce your hours.

"The time to remedy these things is before the next election. Hearings before legislative committees amount to very little. It is before election, and not afterwards, that your influence must be felt, and I trust we will some day have a legislature that will regard you as of more importance than fishes."

The address was received with vigorous applause.

BRIDEGROOM SUICIDES.

New York, June 12.—Herbert Hendrickson, 23 years old, a bridegroom of two months and a brother-in-law to the former wife of Louis T. Disbrow, who was tried for murder in connection with the Tiana Bay tragedy, has committed suicide. By a strange coincidence this second tragedy came on the anniversary of the drowning of "Dimples" Lawrence and Clarence Foster. Temporary insanity is said to have been the cause of the suicide. Hendrickson was well known on Long Island as an amateur athlete.

BEVERIDGE SAYS

He Will Not Become Candidate For Vice President.

Second Place on the Ticket Has No Attraction.

Indianapolis, Ind., June 12.—If Indiana has a candidate for vice president before the Republican national convention next year he will not be Senator Albert J. Beveridge. The latter does not aspire to second place on the ticket, even as a running mate for his close personal and political friend, President Roosevelt, and he will not permit the use of his name in that connection. And it may be added here that his wishes will be respected, as it is becoming more evident every day to the party workers of Indiana that he is an administration favorite, and that he will have much to say in the selection of the delegation which the state will send to the convention.

Senator Henry Cabot Lodge's interview on the political situation among the Republicans, in which he picked Senator Beveridge as a prospective nominee for vice president, caused Senator Beveridge to make the positive statement that he will not under any conditions become a candidate.

When the interview was brought to his attention he referred to the following letter he wrote to James R. Ross, a Republican at Wabash, Ind., and which, he said, covered the situation so far as he is concerned.

"My Dear Mr. Ross: I have your letter of May 9, calling my attention to a statement in the New York Independent concerning a supposed letter from me to a friend to the effect that I am a candidate for the vice presidency. This dispatch from Washington was a direct falsehood, a fake of the rankest description. No such letter was ever written. On the contrary, I have on many occasions stated that I am not and will not be a candidate for the vice presidency. I am content with my work in the senate, where I expect by the partiality of the people of Indiana to remain."

Senator Beveridge added yesterday that he did not care to discuss the same situation over and over again, as he thought he had already made himself understood in the matter.

The situation here has been greatly misrepresented recently in dispatches sent to some of the Eastern papers. It has been stated in them that an organization was being formed in Indiana to get the vice presidential nomination for Senator Beveridge, and that he regarded it as an effort to sidetrack him effectively as a candidate for re-election to the senate. He says such conditions do not exist in Indiana, and that there is no organized movement to make him a vice presidential candidate. He says he does not believe that one will be set on foot in hopes of defeating him for the senate.

The positive refusal of Senator Beveridge to stand in the light of being even a prospective candidate may encourage the friends of Governor Winfield T. Durbin to present his name, as he has been credited lately with having a vice presidential bee. It was thought for some time that he might oppose Senator Beveridge's re-election. Governor Durbin has been credited with a desire throughout his administration to build up a powerful political machine. It is suspected by many that he would welcome an opportunity to have his welcome an opportunity to have his name presented as a candidate for vice president, and it is believed that he is strong enough to get an enthusiastic backing from his own state. So if Indiana has any candidate at all at the national convention it is the general impression that Governor Durbin will be the man.

DANCING MASTERS

At Work on New Figures For Cotillon.

New York, June 12.—The dancing masters' convention at Asbury Park is now at work on the cotillon, and some of the new figures were exploited last night and today. The cotillon, they say, has felt the baneful influence of the two-step, and for this reason the long march and the complex and drawn out denouement has come to be in bad repute. The dancing masters have given much time to the invention of short, catchy figures, some of which were shown in the Hotel Brunswick casino with telling effect. One of them, which Mrs. Ella Westcott demonstrated, was a new double bowknot, though a military or marching figure. In single file the dancers are carried quickly through a serpentine which at a given time shows a double bowknot.

Oscar Dungeon made a hit with a new figure, which he calls "the double cross he dancers march until they are four abreast from the sides to the center of the room. As the leading couple approach each other they divide, changing partners, and form arbors with new partners, other couples passing under the arbor and form an arch at the end, until the couples, reunited, emerge for the two-step.

WIFE WAS CRUEL.

Reason Why Wealthy Man Asks a Divorce.

Mansfield, Ohio, June 12.—A divorce suit in which wealthy Park avenue west people are plaintiff and defendant, has just come to light. Curtis E. McBride, who has been for a number of years one of the state law examiners for admission to the bar and Richland county's representative in the legislature for two terms, has brought suit for legal separation on the ground that his wife has been guilty of extreme cruelty toward him. He alleges that she has abused his children and has been extravagant.

The filing of the petition was kept a secret and no record made of it upon the books of the probate court. Sheriff Payne, it has been learned, served the papers upon Mrs. McBride at a local drug store a few evenings ago. She had been out of the city and had just returned when the sheriff served the notice on her. When Mr. McBride was united in marriage with Mrs. Werrick, divorced wife of a ball player, Jan. 30, 1902, it created considerable surprise, and the news of the application for divorce came as a still greater surprise to Mansfield people.

Mr. McBride has two very charming daughters and Mrs. McBride a son by her former marriage. These have been living at the McBride home. It is claimed that the relations between the young ladies and their stepmother have not been entirely harmonious for some time.

A FUGITIVE IS CAPTURED

As the Result of a Dream By Prison Guard.

Chicago, June 12.—After a twenty-four hours' search for John Ross, who escaped from the Bridewell on Tuesday, his hiding place is said to have been revealed by a dream.

The dreamer was John Straka, a guard at the bridewell, and with a deputy he went to a barn, climbed to the loft, and after several bales of broomcorn had been removed some board were lifted, and there, between the floor of the loft and the ceiling below, Ross was found.

Then all who had taken part in the search gathered in Supt. Sloan's office to learn the story. Straka said that Monday night he had a dream, in which it seemed a prisoner had escaped. On Tuesday he was with the searchers until midnight, when he retired. Then he said he had another dream, in which he saw a man hiding beneath the floor of the barn loft, but could not tell whether the man was Ross.

"If this had happened at any other place and the story had been told to us we would not have believed it," said Supt. Sloan last evening. "It happened right here and, while it is strange, we know it is so. Straka could not have known where the man had hidden himself, for Ross worked in the brush shop, and was there ten minutes before quitting time, while Straka was in the tailor shop and could not possibly have seen Ross go to the barn."

ILL FORTUNE

Brought to Victor Montgomery on Fridays.

Atlanta, Ga., June 12.—Victor Montgomery, proprietor of the cotton mills wrecked at Gainesville, Ga., and Spartanburg, S. C., has reached the conclusion that there is something in the old saying that it is unlucky to begin things on Friday. Colonel Webb, of Athens, Ga., who has recently seen Mr. Montgomery, quotes the latter as saying that Friday has figured in nearly all the disasters that have overtaken his factory enterprises.

Mr. Montgomery said that when he went to Gainesville to look for a site for the mill he proposed to establish there it was on a Friday afternoon. He went back to South Carolina and reported to his board of directors, and they met on Friday. When he came back to Gainesville and laid off the ground upon which the buildings were to be constructed it was on Friday. When the actual work of beginning the construction of the mill was started it was Friday, and he remarked to the superintendent of construction that there was a superstition about beginning work on Friday. The superintendent laughed and said he was born on Friday and the 13th of the month at that.

Over a year ago Mr. Montgomery's father lost his life in an accident on a Friday. So Mr. Montgomery told Colonel Webb that if the Gainesville tornado had come on Friday he would not have been surprised. He went on home to Spartanburg, and on last Friday night the great rainstorm fell that swept away his fortune in the wreck and ruin of the Pacolet mills.

FUGITIVE IS ALIVE.

Was Supposed to Have Been Murdered.

Wabash, Ind., June 12.—Clinton Buchanan, formerly field superintendent in the southern part of this county for the Logansport and Wabash Valley Gas company, who mysteriously disappeared three years ago, and who, the police say, was supposed to have been murdered by James Clark, the Converse saloon keeper now serving a term in the Michigan City prison for killing Clark "the Jagger," a tough character, has been heard from. Buchanan was short several hundred dollars in his accounts with the gas company, and later proposed, if not prosecuted, to make a settlement by monthly payments. The payments, together with the payments for the support of his family, came regularly. He was then in Anderson working as a machinist, but recently he got wind of prospective prosecution and fled. No one knows of his whereabouts. Had not Buchanan turned up Clark, the police declare, would have been arrested for his murder on his release from the penitentiary shortly. Buchanan was seen in Clark's place just before he disappeared.

OFF FOR A TRIP.

The big automobile stood in front of the house, says the Brooklyn Eagle.

"Just going for a little pleasure spin," the owner explained to his wife who was watching from the steps.

"You'll be back to dinner?" she said, inquiringly.

"Oh, yes," he answered, carelessly.

"You're sure that you've made all the necessary arrangements to get back on time?" she persisted.

"Why, certainly. I know this automobile like a book now, and it's no trick at all to tell just how far I can go in a given time. Why, I can even estimate to a minute the delays necessary to tighten bolts, loosen screws and all that." Then to make doubly sure he turned to the chauffuer. Everything all right, isn't it?" he asked.

"Yes, sir."

"The battery is fully charged, isn't it?"

"Yes, sir."

"Machinery oiled?"

"Yes, sir."

"Tires are practically new, aren't they?"

"Yes, sir."

"You see," he said, turning to his wife, "it's all right."

"How about the fines?"

"By George! I did overlook something!" he exclaimed in answer to her question. Then to the rest of the party: "Gentlemen, we'll have to take a slow run to the bank first so that I can provide myself with the money necessary to pay the usual fines, or we may not get back until breakfast time."

AT WEST DULUTH

The twenty members of the Old Hickory camp No. 1555, Modern Woodmen, who are to compose the degree team which is to represent the order at the biennial convention at Indianapolis will leave tomorrow afternoon at 4 o'clock over the Wisconsin Central road. E. Barnard, of Duluth camp No. 1341, will accompany them as the Duluth representative.

The members of the team have been drilling for the past two or three months and hope to win one or more of the prizes which are offered for the best drilled team.

It is expected that over 65,000 Woodmen from all parts of the country will be present in Indianapolis next week. In St. Paul last year over 50,000 were present. The men will be placed under military discipline during their stay in Indianapolis and will be governored by the same rules as the members of the United States army. The members of the team will take no part in the deliberations of the convention, but will be present at all parades and drills.

PAVING QUESTION.

Coming Up at the Commercial Club Meeting.

The question of the paving of Central avenue will likely come up before the meeting of the West Duluth Commercial club this evening for discussion.

West Duluthians are exceedingly anxious that work should be commenced at once in order that it may be completed before next winter. After the required number of signatures to the petition had been obtained it was feared that the condition of the revolving fund would not allow the work to be commenced this summer, but the West Duluth aldermen are making a determined effort to obtain the desired amount from the fund in order to have the paving laid during the present summer.

Fifty-fifth avenue has become impassable for carriages and heavy teams are compelled to avoid it entirely. Property owners believe that it will mean a serious depreciation in the value of Central avenue property if the work is allowed to lay over until next summer and a motion strongly urging the council to push the work this summer will probably be passed at the meeting of the Commercial club this evening.

SEVERELY INJURED.

William Coburn Falls From Roof to Ground.

William Coburn, a farmer living on the road between Duluth and Fond du Lac, sustained rather severe injuries Wednesday by a fall from the roof of a barn.

Mr. Coburn was engaged in reshingling his barn, which has a very steep roof. A board which he had nailed to the roof for a brace gave way, and he fell to the ground below, a distance of about twenty feet. His left arm was turned under him and broken by the fall. His right ankle was sprained and he sustained severe bruises about the body.

His injuries, while painful, are not thought to be serious, although he will probably be confined to his room for two or three weeks. Mr. Coburn is a young man about 30 years of age and of a vigorous constitution.

WEST DULUTH BRIEFS.

The West Duluth Commercial club will hold its regular weekly meeting this evening.

Ladies' slippers at Lauermann's.

Children's slippers at Lauermann's.

Miss Mayme Mark, of St. Paul, is visiting her sister, Mrs. M. B. Abrahamson.

Hammock sale going on at Wieland & Wade's.

Regent $3.50 shoes at Lauermann's.

Miss Hilda Solberg and Benjamin Christianson, of Duluth, were married yesterday afternoon by Justice Stone.

Gasoline and blue flame stoves, all kinds, prices right, at Wieland & Wade's.

The perpetrators of West Duluth's two robberies are still at large, and the police are at a loss for a clue as to their whereabouts. It is thought that the man who relieved Mr. Bellmeur of $40 left town by a westbound freight.

S. G. Hardon, of East Grand Forks, is in West Duluth today on a business trip.

Several West Duluthians have profited by the slump and subsequent rise in stocks. Two or three well known business men bought United States steel on margins during the early part of the week and are now selling at an advance of from one to two points.

Mrs. F. B. Swanson, of Fifty-eighth avenue, will leave this afternoon for a short visit with her sister in Milwaukee.

J. F. Hanson, who resides on Sixty-third avenue, will leave during the early part of next week for a trip to his old home in Sweden, where he has not been for fifteen years.

A number of the commercial travelers and their wives are visiting West Duluth today. Some have hired carriages and driven up the river, and others are taking in the trip up the incline to Proctorknott.

The West Duluth baseball team held its regular weekly practice yesterday afternoon. No game has yet been scheduled for Sunday, but it is likely that one of the city teams will be met. Several of the members of the team will go to Indianapolis tomorrow with the delegation of Woodmen from West Duluth.

A GREAT SCHEME SURELY.

The thoughtful theorist was most thoughtfully theoretical, says the Brooklyn Eagle.

"I have devised a great scheme for civic government," he said.

"What is it?" they asked.

"Well," he returned, "I have discovered that there is always plenty of money for a civic campaign, but usually not enough to transact the business of the city as it should be transacted, and that has given me an idea for a platform."

"Which is?"

"Why, just let the usual campaign contributions be made and then apply it to the city's uses. Any candidate who willhe has decided instead to apply it to the city's needs, he will go in with a whoop. You see, we dodge our taxes and then contribute to the politicians. We'd get more for our money if we worked it the other way, and any politician who has sense enough to see it will win. I'm looking for some wise man to come to the front with some such statement."

ROBS WIVES OF FORMER MATES

Clever Italian Swindler Being Searched For By Police.

San Francisco, June 12.—The police are searching for one of the cleverest swindlers who has operated in this city for some time, and when he is located several charges of obtaining money under false pretenses will be placed against him unless the wives of a score or more of his fellow countrymen, who are his victims, find him first. In that event they promise that there will not be enough left of this particular Italian to give him burial.

This clever son of sunny Italy shipped from this port about thirty days ago with a score or more of his fellow countrymen who had been employed by the Pacific Packing and Navigation company to spend the winter in the fisheries of the corporation at Alaska.

He was a companionable fellow, claimed to be a scion of noble blood in Italy, and so favorably did he impress his associates that without even making inquiries as to his name they had absolute confidence in his integrity, and would have trusted him with anything in the world.

When the boat reached Seattle the man in whose blood coursed some of the bluest blood of Italy, claimed that he was ill and would have to forego the pleasures of traveling further in their company. He said that he was going to return to San Francisco and suggested to his mates that it would be a good plan to send their first month's pay down by him as a surprise to their wives. Of course, the money was not due at that time, but they could send orders made out in the name of their wives and they could be cashed at the offices of the company when the first month's pay fell due. His mates were pleased at the suggestion, and it is said, fell over one another in their effort to be the first one to hand over their time checks to their kind friend, whose departure they regretted.

The schemer reached this port, but he was careful not to call upon the wives of his former mates until the month's pay for which he held vouchers was due. Then he went to see them and to all related a sad story of the suffering of the men from whom he had such a short time before departed. He said that they were in need of funds; had sent him as a messenger to their wives, and he was to return with supplies and cash for his unfortunate comrades. He carried letters from them, saying nothing, to be sure, about their suffering, but commending him to good treatment, and advising that he was to be fully trusted.

On the strength of these letters the poor wives of the absent fishermen endorsed the time checks which had been made out in their favor and he promptly collected the amount they called for from the Pacific and Navigation company. Just how much he secured is not definitely known, but the amount is believed to be something like $600. The five who have already complained to the police were victims to the sum of $20, and if a like amount was secured from each of the twenty-five others, the amount cleaned up by the crafty rascal would be just $600.

The complaint was filed originally with the police by Joe Lecamp, the keeper of a boarding house at 711 Montgomery street, where five of the victimized wives of the fishermen are living during the absence of their husbands. He first learned of the affair yesterday, when he went to the Bank of California to cash some time checks which he had received. He was then told that the women at his house had been swindled and that no trace of the swindler could be found.

REMEDY FOR STRIKES

Is In Arbitration, Co-Operation and Profit-Sharing.

Lincoln, Neb., June 12.—In the commencement oration at the Nebraska Wesleyan university, Bishop P. W. Warren, of Colorado, discussed the strike question at some length. He described dictation by unionism as constituting a detestable oligarchy, although approving of organized labor as a general proposition. He said:

"There have been cities as readily held up as if occupied by a foreign arm, and nearly every industry brought to a standstill by the attitude of men numbering one in a hundred. All this is un-American and must inevitably go down. It is not just, and therefore must fail. The good sense and experience of American people that have faced a thousand difficulties will eventually surmount this one.

"The remedy may be partially in arbitration, but it will be mostly in co-operation and profit-sharing. Let the privates of industry feel that a just participation in profits is theirs, and they will be anxious to make profits as large as possible. Let the privates know that they can advance to sergeants, captains, colonels and generals as rapidly as they are fit to advance, and all trouble from strikes will cease. This is American."

TAKEN UNDER ADVISEMENT.

St. Paul, June 12.—Attorney Munn completed his argument in the merger case at 2:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon and Judge Lochren announced that he would take the case under advisement and announce his decision later.

HAPPENINGS IN DAKOTAS

Stranger With Duluth Bank Book Killed at Fargo.

NORTH DAKOTA.

Fargo—William Knight attempted to board an eastbound Northern Pacific train with three companions Thursday morning and fell between two cars. His head was crushed into an unrecognized mass, but his body was not injured. Knight was apparently a laboring man, about 40 years old. He had $12 and bank books showing deposits in the Duluth Savings bank in December, 1902, of $300; in the Farmers and Mechanics' bank of Minneapolis of $241, in March, 1902, and Superior First National bank of $300 in April, 1902. The entry book showed he was in Casselton, June 3, and a letter dated Odd Mills, without state, and addressed "Dear Son," and signed John Knight, was also found on his person.

There seems to be an almost unanimous opinion that feed will be scarce and the price high next winter on account of the floods in Iowa, Kansas and other states. The farmers of North Dakota will pay more attention to feed crops and forage this year than usual. Every effort will be made to put up large quantities of the wild hay, which is famous for its nutritious qualities.

The Northern Pacific freight depot is being enlarged. It will be extended 150 feet, which will make a total length of 461 feet.

The Fargo friends of George Edwards, one of the sons of Maj. Edwards, consul general at Montreal, are rejoicing over his success in winning the gold medal awarded for excellence in composition in the Chicago Musical college.

The Salvationists had a hallelujah wedding in which Capt. Robert Askin of Valley City and Capt. Nettie Meyers of Minot were the participants.

There have been many ructions among the farmers in this state over ditch cutting during the spring floods. Two or three cases are being tried in Fargo. In some, assault and battery charges are preferred as a sequel.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

Huron—The damage by frost in this locality and reports from various parts of the James river valley indicated that frost appeared only in very small spots, and that neither garden stuff nor crops of any kind were injured. Wheat and all small grains are having a splendid growth. Corn is in good condition and making fair progress, although higher temperature is needed to make rapid growth.

Armour—William Scholes has purchased the Boughn interests in the Citizens' State bank, and succeeds Homer W. Johnson as president. Johnson Bros. still retain their interest in the institution, but are too busy with other affairs to give attention to the bank.

Mrs. Gaylord has filed a claim against the city asking damages to the amount of $2500 for injuries received from a fall last winter on the slippery sidewalks.

W. E. Tipton, secretary of the board of charities and corrections of the state, has sold his residence and will move to Mitchell. He was among the pioneers of the county.

Andover—Owing to the fact that a recent fire revealed the lack of a disciplined fire fighting force, the business men called a meeting at which it was decided to organize a volunteer department. The department starts with the following officers: Foreman, J. H. Pew; treasurer, N. L. Finch; clerk, W. J. Ellwood.

Hartford—A stock company has been organized for the purpose of constructing a rural telephone line from Hartford north. H. J. Wintersteen was elected president and D. W. Greatorex secretary.

Pierre—G. W. Dexter arrived from Charter Oak, Iowa, and has identified the body of the young man drowned in Bad river about ten days ago as that of his brother, Marion Dexter.

Highmore—A special election has been called for July 2 for the purpose of voting upon the proposition of incorporating Highmore as a city.

Clark—Rev. Charles Wyatt of the Congregational church has tendered his resignation as pastor, to take effect Aug. 1.

INSTITUTE AT CHAUTAUQUA

Program For Week Covering Field of Civic Improvement.

Chautauqua, N. Y. June 12.—In connection with the third annual convention of the American League for Civic Improvement, a Civic Institute will be conducted at Chautauqua. For an entire week students and workers in the field of civic improvement will be offered a program of lectures and conferences, under the guidance of some of the chief leaders in civic improvement, which will give for the first time a complete survey of the principles, achievements and hopes of this great movement.

This institute will begin at 11 a. m. Monday, July 13, with the first of a series of lectures on "Art in the Daily Life" by Prof. John Quincy Adams of Philadelphia, in which the beautifying of American life and the elevation of the citizen will be the theme. On Monday evening the American Park and Outdoor association, which is in session at Buffalo the week previous, will hold a joint session with the American League for Civic Improvement.

In another course of lectures on "Contemporary Society," Prof. Charles Zueblin of the University of Chicago will attempt to define the function of the various efforts being made today to improve social conditions. Dr. Charles B. Gilbert will give a lecture treating of the place of the school and the school teacher in the improvement of social institutions.

A series of conferences, conducted by eminent specialists, will cover the immediate practical problems of civic improvement—rural, urban and national. Gov. R. M. La Follette of Wisconsin will speak on "Representative Government." Evening illustrated lectures on some of the most significant phases of civic betterment will furnish both entertainment and instruction. On Friday evening at the annual banquet at the Hotel Athenaeum, the presidential address will be delivered. On Saturday the business sessions of the convention will be held, the institute closing Saturday night with Mr. Albert Kelsey's prophetic treatment of "The Model City," as exemplified by the proposed exhibit at the Louisiana Purchase Exposition and the plans for making the future Chautauqua a model community.

THE POLICY OF MEXICO

Is to Prevent Trusts Securing a Foothold There.

Mexico City, June 12.—El Imparcial published an article which is attracting much attention as developing the policy of the federal government towards railroads. It deals especially with the government's recent purchase of a controlling interest in the Mexican National railway, in order to prevent railroads having new power in the nation. In conjunction with its control of the Inter-oceanic railroad, these two lines, extending from the Rio Grande to the Gulf of Mexico, at Vera Cruz, become a part of one great unified system. El Imparcial declares trusts are brutal concentrators of capital against the immense legion of the defenseless. It says the Standard Oil company, to which, it asserts, now owns the Mexican Central system, has assured its continued predominance in the United States by the acquisition of the principal railroads giving outlet to the oil produced in petroleum yielding regions, and says this monopoly, if extended into Mexico, might inflict great injury to Mexican interests.

WINONA'S BIG FAMILIES.

Sixty-Two Have Eight or More Children.

Winona, Minn., June 12.—Since the remarks of President Roosevelt on his Western trip this summer, in which he spoke in terms of praise of those citizens having large families, much interest has been directed to this question. A census of Winona just taken on this point gives sixty-two families in Winona in which the number of children is eight or more.

The largest family is that of Fred Struck, with fourteen children. Nic Ramczik, Fred Brumeister and E. Kerkow each have families of twelve children. C. H. Stark, J. C. Loeding and Martin Siebold each have families of eleven children. There are seven families of ten children, seventeen of nine and thirty-three of eight.

DROWNED WHILE BATHING.

Fred Spalding Fourth Victim at Same Point.

Delhi, Minn., June 12.—Fred Spalding, son of W. D. Spalding, a Renville merchant, was drowned while bathing in the Minnesota river three miles north of this town Wednesday evening. He was a member of the 1904 class at Hamline and was picnicking with his parents below the rapids.

He is the fourth victim to be drowned at this same point, two Renville boys named Hamilton and Mason having lost their lives there two years ago. He was a good swimmer.

DOINGS IN MICHIGAN

Ishpeming People Are Very Anxious For Union Depot.

Ishpeming—A big petition that has been circulated for a number of days was sent to the head officials of the two railroad companies, asking them to establish a new union depot here. All the influential business and professional men of the city, including the local representatives of the mining companies, were among the signers.

Menominee—After having been separated for three months Mr. and Mrs. John Kaufmen of Dale, Wis., were reunited in marriage by a local justice.

The body of Abner Baker, aged 63 years, was found in the road north of Menominee yesterday. The coroner decided that the man came to his death by heart disease.

The motormen and conductors of the Menominee & Marinette Street Railway company have served notice on the company demanding an increase in wages. They are now receiving 16½ cents an hour but want twenty cents, with twenty-five cents an hour for overtime. They also want a ten-hour day. The men claim they now have to work eighteen hours a day quite often and think that four is too much. They must be at the barn to take cars out at 5:55 o'clock a. m. and some of them do not get through work until after midnight.

Escanaba—Edward Stinson, an employe of Peppard & Co., the contracting builders of the new Northwestern ore dock at Escanaba, is dead at the Delta county hospital. He was employed about the hoisting derrick used in raising the ore chutes to the top of the dock. In some manner, the boom on the derrick fell and struck Stinson on the head. His skull was terribly fractured and his brains were scattered about the ground. Stinson was a resident of Sheppard, Minn. He was a single man.

Manistique—Evelyn McGregor, a little Manistique girl, was badly bitten by a dog last week and as a result will be scarred for life. With her mother the little girl was visiting at the home of a neighbor and was in the act of petting the family dog when the animal sprang at her. The dog bit her severely in the cheek, making one particularly deep gash. The canine was shot the next day.

Crystal Falls—While a number of Crystal Falls boys were playing with a pistol, a cartridge became wedged in the breach. They were unable to dislodge it with their fingers so a piece of iron was resorted to. Robert Wilson held the pistol by the barrel with one hand and tapped it with the iron. The blow was sufficient to explode the cartridge and the bullet went through young Wilson's hand, making a bad wound.

Calumet—The contract for the erection of the new St. Joseph's Austrian church has been awarded to Paul P. Roehm of this city, the price agreed upon being $46,000. The edifice will be one of the finest in the upper peninsula.

SEAMAN PARDONED.

Havana, June 12.—President Palma has pardoned Seaman M. Reddick, of the United States cruiser San Francisco, who recently was confined in jail and fined $50 by a court at Santiago after having been convicted of intoxication and disorderly conduct. Reddick was unable to pay the fine personally, but was released on its payment by his shipmates, just before the San Francisco sailed for Spain. The pardon was granted at Minister Squire's request on the ground that the fine was excessive.

THE STAGE

Last evening the largest audience that has gathered in the Metropolitan this week, greeted the Wilburs in the production of Jakobowski's funny opera, "The Two Vagabonds." The piece was pleasingly rendered and as the opera is a favorite with all the members of the cast the execution of the individual parts was exceptionally good. Miss Hattie Richardson, the prima donna, was the favorite among the soloists, but the others received an equal share of attention. Gus Vaughan and W. A. McGraw, as the two vagabonds, were funny and were the recipients of enthusiastic applause. Miss Ethel Hunt, the popular leader of the Amazon march, appeared well in the character of Capt. Pastile. In the vaudeville features there were complete changes and the three little Gardner children, Miss Goodrich and the illustrated songs were enthusiastically received. "The Two Vagabonds" will be the bill again tonight, tomorrow night and at the Saturday matinee.

One of the jolliest plays of the season will be seen at the Lyceum theater tonight and tomorrow night, when Zeb and Zarrow appear here for the first time in "Zig Zag Alley," a novel stage conceit by James Gorman, which doubtless owes part of its great success to the fact that it leaves in the memory of those who witness it a confused recollection of beautiful and shapely women, sparkling dialogue, bright musical numbers and a bewildering lot of novel vaudeville specialties. A strong advance interest is evinced in the coming of this attraction.

The Northwestern Opera company presents "The Black Hussar" at Superior this evening and tomorrow night will put on "Mikado." The Superior people have prepared a royal welcome for the company, and Manager Walle was informed this morning of a heavy advance sale for all the performances. The company will return to Duluth to present "Mikado" Monday evening.

Otto Eckhard, Bancroft, Iowa.—Rocky Mountain Tea has put new life into me. Shall always keep it in the house. Makes sick people well. 35 cents. S. F. BOYCE.

THE WELCOME OF DULUTH

Formal Greeting of City to Visiting Travelers.

Zenith Council No. 40 Receives Fine Banner'

Smiling skies, a kindly sun whose rays were softened to a delicious temperature by a mellow southerly breeze, marked the opening day of the tenth annual convention of the United Commercial Travelers of America for the jurisdiction of Minnesota, the Dakotas and Manitoba.

This is the third time that the grand council of the order has been in session in Duluth. The first time, in 1894, was when the council was first organized. The seventh annual convention was held here in 1900, and now on the tenth gathering the delegates from the order are again in the city.

The start this morning gave promise that the convention would not only be the best ever held in Duluth, but the best ever held by the order in this jurisdiction.

The session opened with a public meeting in the Armory, where the addresses of welcome were made before the delegates adjourned to Elks' hall for the opening of the secret sessions of the grand council.

The Armory was magnificently decorated, the colors of the order—blue, white and gold—being the theme. Expressions of surprise and admiration were almost unanimous, the verdict being from those of Duluth that the Armory has never been so handsomely decorated, and from those of the outside world that the grand council had never met in a hall so charmingly done.

The entire hall was a mass of the lodge colors, in festoons, streamers, tassels, fluted semi-circles and penants. The work was done by Lieut. Charles Josten, who came in for many compliments.

The members of the order gathered at the convention headquarters between Second and Third avenues west, and, headed by the Third Regiment band, marched to the Armory, where the grand officers and speakers took their positions on the platform, while the crowd comfortably filled the body of the Armory. H. G. Mooney, of Duluth, past grand councilor of the jurisdiction, acted as chairman and opened as follows:

"It is a pleasure to again welcome you to Duluth. You have been asked to assemble here in order that we might give our expressions of welcome. I speak only as a doorkeeper in the house of Duluth's greatness, and I will introduce those who have helped make Duluth and spread her fame. My only qualification to speak is that I know you; that I know you in work and in play, at the lunch counter and at the feast, when you feel like showing your order book and when you feel like concealing it. In the name of the city of Duluth, of the United Commercial Travelers, of Zenith council, I welcome you, but we have chosen one from the official list of Duluth, from the top, one of the big prunes that decorate the top of the package, Mayor T. W. Hugo."

Mayor Hugo was greeted with applause and said:

"When I lived in a boarding house, prunes were not very highly regarded, so I hardly know how to take being called a big prune. I repeat what I said three years ago, and heartily welcome you to our city. I am glad to see you. It is gratifying to know that part of the welcome that was extended to you three years ago was an invitation to come again. I am glad to know that your keen sense of what is a good thing impels you in this direction once more.

"Duluth stands as a bride decked out for the occasion. She is here to look at and admire. We are proud of our city. Not at all times, perhaps, but generally, and especially when she is on dress parade. You hear Duluth men speak kindly of our summers, falls and winters, but you do not hear them mention our springs. This is a young city, very young. She is twenty-six miles long, and, to use the old chestnut, she is a mile wide and a mile high. She is the fifth largest city in the United States, with her 69¾ square miles. With that picture before you, you can understand how extremely difficult it has been to bring Duluth up to what she is now. We see daylight ahead, and while our expenses now are up to what we want to carry, we hope to see them reduced soon so we can have not only a beautiful city, but a cheap city to live in.

"Duluth was fortunately situated from the creation of the world. You may smile, but I mean just what I say. Within a stone's throw are a number of historic spots, for the city stands on the brink of the garden of Eden. Up over the hill is the place where the angel stood with the flaming sword when Adam and Eve were turned out to do something. I have lately come across in a book of rabbinical legends a statement that the garden of Eden disappeared after the disobedience of Adam and Eve, so there is nothing left of it. It was the center of the earth at that time. Go out any night and look, those of you who can see stars or anything about 11 or 12 o'clock. Looking up, you will find that all the lines of the sky come to a point above Duluth, so a plumb line dropped down would strike the city hall. You won't find that any other place, because they don't sell the same stuff we do. You will find the marks of the flaming sword on the rocks in the hill, too. Some say that is only due to glacial action, but that is merely geologists' talk.

"No wonder we are within the banana belt, and can pick oragnes here to sell to St. Paul and Minneapolis. Adam and Eve were told to 'do luth.' You know what 'do' means, and 'luth' is the Sanscrit for 'something.' 'Do something' is what it means, and Duluth has been 'doing something' ever since. That is the origin of the name 'Duluth.'

"I extend a hearty welcome to you, because you are the kind of people we want within our borders. Of course we do not know a great deal about the strangers, but we are proud of the Duluth samples of your kind. They get what they want whenever they go after it. While Duluth is growing rapidly, a large part of the credit is due to them, to the skirmishers sent out over the country. The commercial travelers are the skirmishers. Without them our big concerns would be of little value.

"I have nothing to say to the ladies, though I am glad to see so many of them here. The only thing I could say is that I have noticed longing looks towards the handsome decorations of the hall, and I have no doubt some of the styles shown here will be adopted soon in dressmaking. I hope you will like the town, so you will come again, and come often. We are always ready to welcome you with open arms."

Terry McCosker, of Grand Forks, grand councilor of the jurisdiction, was the next speaker, and he received a handsome ovation.

"I think that after that Adam and Eve story of the mayor's," he said, "I will take a drink (taking a drink of water). If you had many using that brand you would soon have a great city here. I wish to thank you for this most hearty welcome. The travelers like Duluth. The first grand council convention was held here in 1894, and the seventh was held here, too. We are here again because it is our favorite convention city, because we like Duluth and the Duluth people. I am glad that the hopes of Duluth are being realized. It is one of the greatest commercial cetners of the country.

"Standing here and thanking you for this welcome, I represent a body of men who are carrying the gospel of unity to a country that will be paying an increasing tribute to Duluth and the other commercial cities. I refer to Manitoba, brothers, from which place delegates are with us today. Their work is a move toward a commercial union between the two countries. Sentiment makes laws. American farmers are now going into Canadian hordes, and their presence there will work toward commercial unity. They were preceded by the commercial traveler, and hands are now stretched across the order. It means much for the future.

"I am glad to see many ladies here, and glad that the travelers have brought their wives and are falling more into the practice than they once were. When you see a commercial traveler bringing his wife you see a good fellow. I hope when you leave Duluth after this convention that you will be glad to have been here, and I believe you will be."

Robert F. Fitzgerald, "one of our old constituents and always with us," was the next speaker.

"I bid you welcome to Duluth," he said, "and I trust that you will enjoy the freedom of the city which has been extended to you by our worthy mayor. I hope you will return to your accustomed duties with larger visions. I have been asked to speak to you on 'our old constituents,' and it is a pleasure to say a few words in praise of them. It is a task, believing as I do in the importance and necessity of traveling salesmen for the profitable conduct of the jobbing business. There are all kinds of salesmen, good, bad and indifferent, but the superior salesman sells goods because he knows how. He has winning ways in which to approach the trade. He understands the wants and peculiarities of his customers. He drives a team, keeping jobbers and retailers together. He must be careful, or he will have a runaway and a wreck. Trade is expanding, and it must expand to keep the country growing and prosperous. The commercial traveler is the keystone that supports the commercial arch that connects the business of today with that of tomorrow. He carries light to the benighted retailer, showing him how to get wealthy and turn his money if he uses the proper kind of goods, which the traveler car-

THE CITY IS THEIRS

United Commercial Travelers In Complete Possession For Two Days.

Specials Bring Great Crowds—Plans For Entertainment.

It wasn't hard to tell last night that there was something unusual going on in town.

After about 7:30 o'clock the streets were crowded from one end to the other. Masses of people, many of them strangers, marched up and down, and a holiday atmosphere pervaded everything.

There was something unusual going on. A stir of greater or less magnitude always follows when a traveling man descends upon a town, even if he is all alone or traveling in pairs. What may the result be, then, when nearly a thousand of them drop in suddenly and spread themselves over the business portion of the city?

The result, it is to be hoped, is that the town will be a maze of hilarity and happiness for forty-eight hours, and it started well last night.

The two specials that came in last night brought traveling men to the number of over 700 to attend the U. C. T. convention. More came in on the regular trains, and this morning's regular trains brought other large bunches, until this morning it was a sure thing that there were well over 1000 traveling men in town, and their friends and relatives that came along swelled this number a couple of times, anyway.

The first train that got in came from the West over the Great Northern, and it brought traveling men from Fargo, Crookston, Winnipeg, Grand Forks and the smaller towns along the way. There were 300 on this train. They were met at the depot by the Third Regiment band and by a large contingent of the members of "40," the local council.

It was 7:30 o'clock before the Twin City special got in, after a long ride. It was a bit tiresome, but the crowd appeared to be happy, and communicated an air of merriment to the waiting crowds along the streets.

Many of the visitors were still laughing over the foolish actions of a colt that got on the track down the line a way. It got in front of the engine and trotted along for four miles, absolutely refusing to leave the track and let the train take on its necessary speed. So the train had to crawl along, the engine tooting dismally and restively at being held up in this fashion. This was partially responsible for the train's being late. Then it was a big train, nine coaches all packed—for many came besides traveling men.

Headquarters for the grand officers of the order had been established at the Spalding. Here came Grand Councilor Terry McCosker, of Grand Forks; Grand Junior Councilor Ernest Grant, of Minneapolis; Grand Secretary J. M. Dresser, of St. Paul; Grand Conductor G. W. Rodgers, of St. Paul; Grand Page W. G. Jacobs, of Aberdeen, S. D.; Grand Sentinel O. M. Hatcher, of Winnipeg, and E. C. Walters, Minneapolis; H. J. McGarvey, Huron, S. D.; S. L. Levy, Winona, and D. C. Ricker, Sioux Falls, S. D., members of the executive council.

The election of officers will take place tomorrow. A. H. Overman, of Duluth, will retire as grand treasurer, and by virtue of his office will become past grand councilor. Ernest Grant, the present grand junior councilor, will become grand councilor, and the other officers will take a step up. No applicant for the place of grand sentinel, the lowest in the list, has yet been reported.

Members of the local lodge were decorated last night with a little institution that looked like a candy heart on wire. This was a sign that the wearers were bearers of information, and that they were to be appealed to by the visitors for answers to any questions and for assistance of any sort.

The Third regiment band led the Twin City crowd up from the station, headed by the magnificent Maj. McGuffin, the famous drum major, whose martial bearing and gallant appearance made a great hit, as usual.

Last night there was no formal entertainment, but there was plenty to do. The Elks gave a social session to the visiting traveling men, with a mightily interesting program. Many of the visitors went to this and enjoyed every minute of it. The Commercial club kept open house and hundreds of the visitors found their way there.

Many of the visiting councils had distinguishing costumes. Crookston had a straw hat with the lodge colors draped around it. Minnehaha council, of Minneapolis, had linen dusters and a large yellow tag. The various costumes will be more in evidence at the parade.

The hotels were filled to overflowing last night, but there was the Commercial club's list of rooms to fall back upon, so there was no scarcity of lodgings, and nobody went homeless last night. Many of the visitors brought their wives and female relatives along.

It was a late hour last night before the streets calmed down, because it was a late hour before the guests had had their suppers and started in to look the town over.

HAIR GROWTH

Promoted by Shampoos of Cuticura Soap

And Dressings of Cuticura the Great Skin Cure

This treatment at once stops falling hair, removes crusts, scales and dandruff, destroys hair parasites, soothes irritated, itching surfaces, stimulates the hair follicles, loosens the scalp skin, supplies the roots with energy and nourishment, and makes the hair grow upon a sweet, wholesome, healthy scalp when all else fails.

Millions of women now rely on Cuticura Soap assisted by Cuticura Ointment, the great skin cure, for preserving, purifying and beautifying the skin, for cleansing the scalp of crusts, scales and dandruff, and the stopping of falling hair, for softening, whitening and soothing red, rough and sore hands, for baby rashes, itchings and chafings, for annoying irritations, or too free or offensive perspiration, for ulcerative weaknesses, and many sanative, antiseptic purposes which readily suggest themselves, as well as for all the purposes of the toilet and nursery.

Cuticura remedies are the standard skin cures and humour remedies of the world. Bathe the affected parts with hot water and Cuticura Soap, to cleanse the surface of crusts and scales and soften the thickened cuticle. Dry, without hard rubbing, and apply Cuticura Ointment freely, to allay itching, irritation and inflammation, and soothe and heal, and, lastly, in the severer forms, take Cuticura Resolvent, to cool and cleanse the blood. A single set is often sufficient to cure the most torturing, disfiguring, skin, scalp and blood humours, from pimples to scrofula, from infancy to age, when all else fails.

Sold throughout the world. Cuticura Resolvent, 50c (in form of Chocolate Coated Pills, 25c. per vial of 60), Ointment, 50c., Soap, 25c. Depots: London, 57, Charterhouse Sq.; Paris, 5 Rue de la Paix; Boston, 137 Columbus Ave. Potter Drug & Chem. Corp., Sole Props.

DROPPED FROM ROLLS

Many Employes at New York Postoffice Must Go.

New York, June 12.—Four additional postoffice inspectors arrived yesterday from the West to assist in the investigation of the New York postoffice, and forty-eight men who are filling posts as superintendents at the general postoffice were informed by the postmaster general, through Postmaster Vaucott, that they would be reduced to the rank of common clerks and have their pay reduced from $2500 to $1200 a year, in addition, forty-eight men employed as cashiers and clerks, are to be dropped from the rolls. It is explained at the postoffice that they are really superintendents of departments, for which there is no official classification order designation. That they migh draw a salary in keeping with the work done, they were placed on the rolls as cashiers and financial clerks. Through this classification the men were paid $2000 and $2500 per annum. The results of today's order, unless modified, will be to reduce them to positions at $1200.

WORST OF EXPERIENCES.

Can anything be worse than to feel that every minute will be your last? Such was the experience of Mrs. S. E. Newson, Decatur, Ala. "For three years" she writes, "I endured insufferable pain from indigestion, stomach and bowel trouble. Death seemed inevitable when doctors and all remedies failed. At length I was induced to try Electric Bitters and the result was miraculous. I improved at once and now I'm completely recovered." For liver, kidney, stomach and bowel troubles Electric Bitters is the only medicine. Only 50c. It's guaranteed by all druggists.

WILDER BANK BURGLARIZED.

Wilder, Minn., June 12.—The safe of the Farmers' state bank of this place was burglarized yesterday morning at 1:30 o'clock. Three charges of nitro glycerine were used, totally demolishing the safe and damaging the building to the extent of $200. It is not definitely known the exact amount taken, but it will reach $1000 to $1500.

PRESIDENT FIRED

Head of Chicago Restaurant Keeper's Association Expelled.

Accused of Acting as Mediator With Labor Leaders.

Chicago, June 12.—Trouble developed rapidly last night in the strike of cooks, waiters and restaurant employes. Early in the evening the employes of Kinsley's restaurant went on a strike, leaving a number of Methodist ministers, who were at dinner in the place, to shift for themselves. Later the Cooks' and Waiters' union held a meeting that lasted until after midnight, and when they adjourned it was announced that a strike would be called in all the hotels the managers of which are members of the Hotel Keepers' association.

While the union meeting was going on the Restaurant Keepers' association, an organization distinct from the Hotel Keepers' association, was holding a stormy meeting, and after midnight G. W. Walton, president of the association, was deposed from the chair and expelled from the organization as being openly accused of acting as a mediator between labor leaders and restaurant owners with a proposition to settle the strike for $7000. Of this sum $2000 was to be paid to a labor man whose name was mentioned in the meeting and written in the reports of the negotiations which have occurred, and $1000 was to be paid to each of five other members of the joint board of the Waiters' union.

After the charge had been made, President Walton appealed for a hearing, but a motion that he be deposed from office and expelled from the association prevailed.

Stormy scenes followed the effort of Mr. Walton to be heard. He rose to his feet and shouted at the top of his voice, hurling accusations in the faces of prominent restaurant men. Cries of "sit down" and "question" arose from all parts of the room.

In the midst of the turmoil Max Koppel, acting as chairman, put the motion on the question of deposing and expelling Walton, and it was unanimously carried. The alleged attempts at extortion were detailed by members of the association to the general meeting.

"Last Saturday evening," said John Z. Vogelsang, "I met Mr. Walton and related to him our failure in our negotiations with the joint board of the Cooks and Walters on the previous evening. After finishing, Walton said to me: 'Mr. Vogelsang, don't you know that you cannot do any business with that board unless you put up some money?'

"Later in the day I was met again by Mr. Walton, who told me he had been in communication with these members of the joint board, that $7000 was the amount demanded, and that if the money was deposited with a satisfactory person they would agree to a plan of arbitration, as follows:

"We would be allowed on our side to appoint three men; the joint board would appoint three men, and a seventh man would be appointed by these six, and that we would not have to pay $1 until the 'goods had been delivered.'

"I told him we would have nothing to do with such a scheme. The motion to expell Mr. Walton followed this statement. The restaurantkeepers declared that a general lockout will be inaugurated if a strike is attempted on a large scale. The sudden breaking off in the negotiations between the unions and hotelkeepers came through the fact that the managers of the union became convinced that they were dealing with the hotelkeepers as an association and not as individuals. The cooks and waiters have contended that their union could not recognize the association of hotelkeepers, and has refused to have any dealings with the members of that organization, save as individuals. The meeting last night was originally planned to settle troubles that have been existing in the hotels in the Hyde Park district. During the progress of the meeting the representatives of the union declared that they had reason to believe that they had been dealing with the association and not with individuals.

They at once withdrew from the original meeting, and returning to their own hedaquarters, decided, after a long conference, to begin a strike in all the hotels, whose managers are members of the Hotelkeepers' association. Among some of the large hotels which will be affected by this order are the Auditorium, Auditorium Annex, Grand Pacific, Sherman house, Great Northern, Wellington, a number of smaller hotels in the downtown districts. The employes in the hotels are well organized, and the order for a strike will carry out all the cooks, waiters, bell boys, elevator men, chambermaids, scrub women and all other classes of help with the exception of those employed in the offices.

Word was received from Poundling Mill, W. Va., a small town on the Norfolk & Western railroad, of the killing of Mrs. Belle Wingo by a crowd of young men. The men quarrel over Mrs. Wingo and in a fight with knives, revolvers, rocks, clubs and other weapons, Mrs. Wingo was struck on the head. John Harris was shot and seriously injured.

Fire destroyed the Laack block, the handsomest structure in Plymouth, Wis., and in which were located several firms. The total loss is estimated at $61,000, partly covered by insurance. H. J. Goelzer & Co., general merchants, suffered the heaviest loss, $40,000; insurance $25,000. Other losses include Corbett & Aakerman, druggists, $6000; Dr. R. C. Nutt, $3000; Dr. Edward Felton, $1000; Dr. W. C. Neuman, $500; Loss on building $10,000. The fire started from the explosion of a lamp in the basement of the Goelzer store.

A MARVELLOUS ACT.

Minting, With Forepaugh-Sells, Does Wonderful Riding.

Minting, the Marvel, returned to London last fall after concluding a summer's engagement with the Adam Forepaugh and Sells Bros'. shows, and began his second engagement at the London Aquarium, the great permanent exhibition in the world's metropolis. When he left the aquarium to come to America to join the Forepaugh-Sells shows he had been exhibiting there for two years and seven months, the longest engagement ever played by any performer in Europe.

He returned to America again last spring to begin his second engagement with the Forepaugh-Sells shows, and is now with them, appearing at every afternoon and evening exhibition. His act is one of the greatest single circus acts ever known. No other can compare with it in the elements of nerve, skill and strength. He rides a single wheel of a bicycle up and down a high spiral tower. There are very few bicycle riders who can ride up a grade so steep on two wheels. The skill and strength to ride up and down such a grade that is at no time straight can scarcely be imagined. There are very few professional trick bicycle riders who can ride a single on a level floor. He will be here with the Forepaugh-Sells shows, together with the famous Diavolo, who loops the loop on a bicycle, the most daring feat ever attempted; the Aurora Zouaves, generally acknowledged the world's best-drilled soldiers, twenty-four champion bare-back riders, a score of famous aerialists and an army of clever clowns. The date of the big aggregation in Duluth is Monday, June 29.

HIS SIN TOO HEAVY

Guilty Conscience Forced Him to Confess His Crime.

San Francisco, June 12.—The strange workings of a guilty mind, the swinging of the mental pendulum between remorse and the dread of punishment, were never better exemplified than by the case of J. F. Dent, who is now under detention at the tanks in the hall of justice pending the arrival of a sheriff from the state of Georgia.

Dent is a swindler of no mean order. He is a man of brains and capacity, well educated and smooth spoken. He talked in thousands when tens and hundreds would be the game of swindlers of a smaller kidney. He played, won and then got clear away, putting all the continent between himself and his victims.

From Americus, Ga., to Redding, Cal., is a far cry, but it is not too far for the haunting pangs of a guilty conscience to follow. All unsuspected Dent, under the alias of S. W. Denison, lived in Redding with his wife and child, and he might there have carved out a new career for himself, but accusing fingers seemed ever pointing at him, and he deliberately wrote to Georgia on two occasions telling of his own whereabouts and the alias under which he was travelling. Then when arrest came the reaction set in. Fear of the law and the horror of facing those whom he had defrauded drove him to the thought of suicide, but the chance of ending his own existence was taken away from him, and now he waits for a fate that seems assured.

The story of Dent's operations was told at the Grand Hotel yesterday afternoon by J. A. Hixon, an attorney of Americus, Ga., and formerly mayor of that place.

Dent went to Americus from Savannah, Ga., several years ago. He had been engaged as a piano agent in Savannah and went to the other Georgia city to engage in the musical instrument business. He did fairly well for a while, but became involved in trade difficulties with a Chicago piano firm. The exact nature of that trouble, which occurred three or four years ago, is not known, but it is understood that Dent made some arrangement to work out his indebtedness. However that may be, he returned to Americus last October after a protracted absence, and again embarked in the musical instrument business.

Things appeared to go swimmingly. He seemed to have a good line of credit and he did a cash business with his customers on a very small margin of profit. He made a specialty, too, of selling pianos on the installment plan, taking a cash payment down and notes for the balance owing. He drove a brisk trade, but early last March the crash came. He gave a bill of sale on his furniture and disappeared, taking his wife and child with him.

An investigation into his affairs developed a startling state of things. The notes that he had taken he had not only discounted, but he had forged duplicates and even triplicates of them, and these he had discounted also. He played no favorites, but distributed his bogus paper among four banks in Americus. One bank alone holds $11,000 of his discounted notes, and not more than $500 of the amount is now believed to be genuine. Different merchants in the city have claims against him footing up to $2500, and how much he owes to different piano manufacturers and wholesale dealers throughout the country amounts to a large sum.

It transpired then that he had been able to obtain unlimited credit by a cleverly devised scheme. He had represented himself as the head of a joint stock concern with $50,000 paid-up capital and had laid his plans so well that the scheme was not discovered. As a matter of fact the only basis that his story of a joint stock company had was that he had applied for a charter to form a company with a capital stock of $10,000, of which not a cent had been paid.

But Dent had disappeared. For all that inquiry and search brought,he might have vanished into thin air. The victims relied on detectives; they had no thought that Dent had a conscience.

A few weeks after he had gone the cashier of one of the defrauded banks received a note from Redding, Cal., stating that Dent was there and was going under the name of S. W. Denison. The letter was written in blue pencil and was unsigned. The bank officials merely thought this a "stall," that Dent had some friend out here who was helping him with a false scent, but when a second similar letter arrived it was put in the hands of ex-Mayor Hixon, the bank's attorney.

It happened that Hixon was in San Francisco about a year ago, and while there formed the acquaintance of Detective O'Mara of the city force. To O'Mara he sent the tell-tale letters with a photo and description of the man wanted. The detective took the matter up with Chief Wittman and proceeded to Redding, where he made sure of his man and then wired to Attorney Hixon to come on. Hixon arrived on Tuesday and went to Redding, where he was met by Sheriff Richardson. He went to the courthouse and Under Sheriff Behrens went out to get Dent. The man was simply told that a person wished to see him, and he agreeably complied, but when brought face to face with the Georgia bank's attorney he broke down, wept bitterly and confessed all. He admitted that under pressure of his conscience he had written the letters which led to his own arrest and stated his willingness to return to Georgia without extradition papers.

He went back to his hotel in custody to pack up, but by the time he reached there his mood had changed again and he made a frantic attempt to get a revolver in order to end his own life. His wife and child were left up country, and he was brought on here.

Sheriff Bell, of Americus, has been wired and has already started with a warrant. Meanwhile, no matter how often Dent may change his mind, he will beyond question go back to the scene of his wrongdoing.

PAUL'S CHARGE TO TIMOTHY

International Sunday School Lesson For June 14, 1903.

2 Timothy 3:14-4:8. "But abide you in the things which thou hast learned and hast been assured of, knowing of whom thou hast learned them; and that from a babe thou hast known the sacred writings which are able to make thee wise unto salvation through faith which is in Christ Jesus. Every scripture inspired of God is also profitable for teaching, for reproof, for correction, for instruction, which is in righteousness; that the man of God may be complete, furnished completely unto every good work.

I charge thee in the sight of God, and of Christ Jesus, who shall judge the quick and the dead, and by his appearing and his kingdom: preach the word; be instant in season, out of season; reprove, rebuke, exhort, with all long-suffering and teaching. For the time will come when they will not endure sound doctrine; but, having itching ears, will heap to themselves teachers after their own lusts; and will turn away their ears from the truth, and turn aside unto fables. But be thou sober in all things, suffer hardship, do the work of an evangelist, fulfill thy ministry. For I am already being offered, and the time of my departure is come. I have fought the good fight, I have finished the course, I have kept the faith: henceforth there is laid up for me the crown of righteousness, which the Lord, the righteous judge, shall give to me at that day; and not only to me, but also to all them that have loved his appearing."

Golden Text: "There is laid up for me a crown of righteousness." 2 Timothy 4:8.

The last recorded words of Paul are found in the second letter he wrote to Timothy. His life was then nearly ended, and he was able to look back upon many years of eventful efforts spent in the service of Christ. During the period of about twenty-five years covered by his ministry he saw the Christian faith pass from a mere sect of the Jews to a great independent movement rapidly gathering a momentum that would carry it around the world. No mere man contributed more to the great power of this faith than he did. He began his work as soon as he was converted, but spent a period in retirement before actually entering upon his apostolate. His great desire was to preach the gospel to his fellow-countrymen in Judea, but God forbade him, commanding that he go far away to the Gentiles.

Accordingly Paul started forth to Antioch to begin a long and marvelous career, destined to cover Asia Minor, Greece, Rome, the larger islands of the Mediterranean sea, and perhaps distant Spain. While he was absorbed in his task, others were pushing the claims of the gospel in Jerusalem and Palestine, in Babylon, in Egypt and in Syria, as well as in the same regions where he evangelized. It was not long after Paul's death before Peter addressed a letter "To the elect who are sojourners of the Dispersion in Pontius, Galatia, Cappadocia, Asia and Bithynia." Such an address indicates the extensive area that had been covered by the successful efforts of the church.

Paul's personal success is marked not only by the knowledge we have of his preaching and planting churches, but also of personal incidents mentioned in connection with his ministry. There seem to have been many slaves converted through his influence, some of who afforded great comfort to him by their faithfulness. Crispus, the ruler of the synagogue at Corinth, was one of Paul's prominent converts. Paul accounted Erastus, the treasurer of one of the Macedonian or Grecian cities, a companion and a true enough Christian to send his salutation to the Roman Christians in the greatest of the apostles letters. The Asiarchs of Ephesus were among Paul's friends, and there are other indications that he had many firm and profitable friendships among people of prominence and influence, and that many of these friends were true believers. Paul's gospel appealed to the very best class of people. He desired to have Timothy strong in his ability to present the claims of the gospel so that it would appeal to all conditions of men and build them up in faith and character.

Timothy had been under the tutelage of Paul from the time of the former's conversion. A native of Lystra, born of a Greek father and a Jewish mother, he was as a child trained by his mother in the Jewish scriptures, but was brought up rather loosely so far as the observance of the Jewish ceremonial laws was concerned. He was not even circumcised when a child. He was converted at Lystra on the first missionary journey of Paul. He soon became a disciple well known to all the believers in his section, and attracted the attention of Paul by his noble confession of faith and by his Christian bearing. Some of those who spoke with inspiration, Christian prophets, foretold the excellent service of Timothy; the elders of the church laid their hands on him in token of their confidence in his ability and character and of the promise of the Holy Spirit's power for service. Paul joining in this ordination; and thus the young man was officialy started on his career as an evangelist. As an uncircumcised Jew, Timothy was unacceptable to the strict Jews; therefore Paul caused him to be circumcised, and Timothy became a loyal companion to his "father" in Christ.

On Paul's second missionary journey, from the time he left Lystra, Timothy either accompanied him or was on some mission to one of the Christian communities, as in the instance of his going to strengthen and comfort the Thessalonians who were suffering persecution. On the third missionary journey Timothy was with the apostle at Ephesus, going on missions at his wish or accompanying him on his journeys. He was probably in the apostle's little company that journeyed together for the last time toward Jerusalem. What became of Timothy while Paul was imprisoned at Caesarea we do not know; he was probably with the latter in Rome during the first imprisonment there, but was in all probability sent from thence to Philippi to bear a message of Christian love and to shepherd the church at that place for a time. After being released from his first imprisonment at Rome, Paul rejoined Timothy in the East, but left him at Ephesus while he himself took a journey through Macedonia. The first epistle to Timothy was written from Macedonia to lay emphasis on the duties that had been imposed on the young man and to strengthen and encourage him, with the expectation that it would not be long before he and Paul would meet again. But soon afterwards Paul was rearrested and taken to Rome, from whence he wrote Timothy to bring Mark and come to him, first ordaining such true ministers as were needed for the progress of the work that had been entrusted to him. It is possible that on the visit thus advised by Paul, Timothy was arrested, and that to the imprisonment that followed the epistle to the Hebrews refers when it says, "Know ye that our brother Timothy hath been set at liberty." But this is mere conjecture.

When II Timothy was written the situation in brief was: Paul was a prisoner at Rome, charged with being a malefactor; had had one trial, of which he wrote, "At my first defense no one took my part, but all forsook me: may it not be laid to their account. But the Lord stood by me and strengthened me * * * and I was delivered out of the mouth of the lion." Though "delivered," he yet expected death, for he wrote, "I am already being offered, and the time of my departure is come." His other trials were intensified by the defection of a friend and the enmity of some assumed believers from Asia, also by an injury Alexander the coppersmith had done him. But he had made new friends, and some of the old ones were were faithful to the end, and these comforted him much. Amid such conditions he wrote his charge to the young minister whom he loved so much and whom he called his child in the gospel. The letter abides as the classical charge to ministers and other Christian workers.

The first item in the part of this charge printed above is "Abide in the things which thou hast learned." Timothy's mother had been faithful to him in her efforts to store his mind with the wealth of teaching and story that the Old Testament possesses. Paul knew the value of that training for the gospel minister. He had himself received the finest Scripture training which the schools of the rabbis could afford. His own preaching had been enriched by the knowledge he had thus acquired. He knew that Timothy had substantially the same foundation of elementary religious instruction that he had received, and accordingly urged him to be faithful to it, remembering the sacred source from which he had gotten it, and that from infancy he had been drilled in the ancient word of God in fulfillment of the obligation which those Scriptures laid upon every parent.

Jesus said, "Ye search the Scriptures because in them ye think ye have eternal life; and these are they which bear witness of me." In the light of his thorough knowledge of those Scriptures Paul had studied and thought upon the gospel of Christ for many years, and, on the verge of his grave, when he could almost hear the whirr of the headsman's ax, he testified to the man he loved as his own child that those sacred writings were able to make him wise unto salvation. Some people today are inclined to limit their Bible reading and study to the New Testament, despite the fact that some of the richest spiritual teaching in the Holy Book is to be found in the pages that precede Malachi.

What Paul here says of the ancient Hebrew Scriptures may be applied to all our holy Scriptures as we have them today: they are of profit to the believer because they instruct, reprove, correct and discipline him in the way of the righteousness that Christ requires of us. What is needed in the development of any given individual in spirituality? Turn the pages of holy writ and there you will find commands, precepts, exhortations, sermons, letters of spiritual advice, beautiful examples of the noblest conduct and character, examples of wrong conduct with the punishments that followed with the certainty of night following day. Inspiration and warning, truth and precept, benedictions and discipline alternate as light and shade throughout the Bible and furnish whatever elements are needed for the edification or correction of character. Truly, this book is able to accomplish its work, "that the man of God may be complete, furnished completely unto every good work."

The second item in the above printed Scripture may be summed up in the precept, Attend to your business. By all that was said in his faith, Paul enforced this charge. The word of God is given for the salvation of the world. For millions of people the hope of eternal life hinges on the faithful hearing and acceptance of the gospel. No man who is charged with preaching it can be remiss in the performance of that duty without drawing upon himself the responsibility for the eternal loss of souls that his efforts might have led to true faith. All phases of his duty must be attended to, unpleasant though some of them may be. It is never a pleasant rebuke or reprove, especially in these days when the authority of the religious teacher is not well acknowledged. But this is a part of the minister's duty, according to Paul. One must be sober, hardy and unremitting in toil if he would claim that he has fulfilled his ministry faithfully.

The third item before us is a warning, a prophecy of ill omen. The signs of the times had been read aright by the apostle, and he told Timothy that false teachers would spring up and teach with such plausibility that the very elect would be in danger of being drawn away to their own ruin and the imperilling of the church. The Christian minister must be armed against such perils and be ready to withstand them even as he withstands the sweep of immorality. Every age seems to have its own new peril of this sort and must have its own remedy from the gospel. Therefore, the task of each new generation of Christian ministers presents something fresh which will task the ingenuity and industry of the minister's mind and spiritual force. And what is said all through this passage about the minister is true in a measure of every instructor in the Christian Scriptures.

At last we have come down to the end of Paul's ministry. He will close his last letter with a few personal messages; but before dictating them he wrote those majestic words that every one knows, and that commend themselves to all minds as the words of a dying hero: "I have fought the good fight," etc. He looked back in retrospect upon his past life and saw it all pass in panorama before him. It had been a good life and yet full of hard and even bitter conflict. He was not one who smelt the battle from afar, but ever sought the thick of it, and gloried in the moment of enduring hardship for his master. Many assaults had been made upon the faith which he had kept intact and had defended against divers enemies. Toils and arrests and scourgings and imprisonments and shipwrecks and persecutions and sickness and mobs and exposure to all the elements of nature and of human fury had been his lot. These had all been borne with fortitude and now seemed but a portion of a life that had been filled with the exhuberant pleasure of preaching the gospel of salvation to lost men. On reading his last words, one feels sure that Paul would have gladly endured it all over again for the privilege of winning others to faith in his glorified Christ.

There was a bright and shining hope before the apostle, and he looked forward to it with joy, for he had long wished that he might join his Savior in glory. That wish was soon to be fulfilled, and he was confident that a welcome awaited him there and that a crown of righteousness would be given to him by the Lord, who would be his judge. With what blessed faith he had come to the close of his life! But he was sure that he would not be alone in the enjoyment of the favor of the Lord: all those who love the prospect of the Lord's coming, or of their going to meet him, will be accorded the same greeting which Paul expected, when together they meet the Lord in the air. "The Lord be with thy spirit. Grace be with you."

SIDE SADDLE HER UNDOING

Conventional Mount Led to Accident to Colorado Girl.

New York, June 12.—When it comes to breaking broncos and riding across the Colorado ranges on a fiery mustang, Miss Ida Holthuesen, of Rocky Ford, is a girl who can hold her own with the most experienced cowboy on the plains, but she came near meeting her Waterloo in Central park.

Miss Holthuesen is visiting her aunt, Mrs. J. K. Murray, at 270 Manhattan avenue, and started out with her cousin, Rollo L. Murray, for a ride through Central park.

Near One Hundred and Fourth street Miss Holtheusen lost control of the horse, an animal hired from a livery stable, and if it had not been for the timely action of Mr. Murray the young woman might have been dashed to death. As it was, she is badly shaken up and is confined to the house.

"It was all the fault of Eastern manners," said the injured young woman.

"When I said I would like to go horse-back riding I was asked where my habit was. I immediately got out my short skirt that I always wear at home, and my aunt was horrified. She told me I would have to wear a habit and ride in a side-saddle—a side-saddle!" continued Miss Holtuesen contemptuously.

"The minute I got in that side-saddle with a long skirt on I knew something would happen. I have lopped over the range and I have ridden the wildest ponies, but I always ride astride. That's the way I was raised, and I can't see what pleasure people get out of riding with all these Eastern contraptions. Naturally I was all confused.

"We entered the park at Eighth avenue and One Hundred and Tenth street, and my horse acted strangely from the first.

"I never yet have seen the horse I could not manage when I was properly dressed, but when the animal began to prance and pull my position was so awkward I was handicapped.

"Out in Rocky Ford I ride half the time without a saddle at all, but when it comes to these side affairs I draw the line.

"For real enjoyment give me a spirited pony, a short skirt and the privilege to ride 'straddle,' as we call it. Why, New York women don't know what real riding is. I don't believe I care for any more Central park riding.

"We started early, at 5 o'clock, and I had anticipated a pleasant ride in spite of the uncivilized clothes with which my aunt had provided me.

"If it had not been for my cousin I am afraid I should never ride over the Holtheusen ranch again. He caught the bridle of the horse just as my head was striking the ground."

When Miss Holthuesen was thrown her foot caught in the stirrup and she was dragged a considerable distance.

The young Colorado girl, who can manage Western ponies, says her reputation would be blighted in the far West if her misadventure in Central park should be known.

"Out there I enjoy the reputation of never having ben thrown, and I would e ridiculed unmercifully if my Colorado friends knew I had met that fate on a New York livery horse, riding along the peaceful roads of Central park."

E. C. Holthuesen, the father of the injured girl, is a wealthy ranchman. His daughter has been practically raised saddle and owns two of the finest horses in Southern Colorado.

Miss Holthuesen is a handsome young woman, and in no way resembles the traditional female bronco buster. She is college bred and well educated. In spite of her accident she says her love for riding is unchanged, though she says the rarifide air of Colorado is the place for her.

Tanko Up For Life—Campbell Gets More Than Three Years.

Judge Dibell, in district court this morning, cleaned up the criminal calendar for the present term by imposing sentences in all criminal cases but one that have been before the court, either for trial or on pleas of guilty.

Eighteen men who were convicted or who have entered pleas of guilty to various charges presented by the grand jury, received sentences which ranged all the way from a fine and a county jail sentence to life imprisonment in the state penitentiary at Stillwater.

John Tanko, convicted of murder in the second degree, was given the life sentence. The defendant is an Austrian and does not speak English. Father Kosmerl acted as interpreter, at the request of the court. Tanko looks pale and worn, and his eyes showed traces of frequent weeping. In his own language Tanko pleaded earnestly for leniency when asked if he had anything to say why sentence should not be passed. He claims that he was not guilty of killing George Bolich; that the state's witnesses were all of one clan and gave him the worst of it at the trial. Tanko pleaded that the court be merciful on account of his wife and child in Austria.

In passing sentence Judge Dibell explained to Tanko that the punishment for murder in the second degree is not optional with the court; that the law fixes it at life imprisonment and the court must follow the law.

Judge Dibell said that the defendant had had an eminently fair trial, that his defense by E. J. Dowdall was exceedingly skillful, as much so as in any first degree murder case that the court had heard. The county attorney, the court said, had been very fair and as zealous as the duties of his office require. In closing the court said to Tanko:

"The sentence of this court is, that you, John Tanko, as a punishment for the crime of murder in the first degree, of which you now stand convicted, be taken to the state penitentiary at Stillwater, Minn., and there confined for the rest of your natural life."

The import of the sentence was explained to Tanko by the interpreter, and he returned to his seat in tears.

Benjamin J. Campbell, the former head bookkeeper and chief clerk of the imperial council of the Modern Samaritans, who pleaded guilty to the charge of grand larceny in the second degree, was sentenced to imprisonment in the state penitentiary at hard labor for a term of three years and nine months.

Campbell was indicted by the grand jury for grand larceny in the first degree, the information against him being that he embezzled nearly $3000 of the funds of the Modern Samaritans that passed through his hands. Since his arrest a strong influence has been brought to bear on the court by Campbell's friends and relatives to have the penalty for his offense made as light as possible.

Judge Dibell said that it had been represented to him that Campbell, a young man of 28 years, who was raised in Duluth, and for the past ten years has been employed in the capacity of stenographer and bookkeeper, had occupied various positions of high trust and had always, up to the present trouble, borne an irreproachable reputation. The case, said the court, is a very mysterious one from the fact that there has been no explanation by the defendant as to what he did with the money, that his method of living, taking in consideration the amount of his salary, did not indicate that an excessively large amount had gone in that direction. The court refrained from asking Campbell what he did with the money, but intimated in every manner possible that he was open to any explanations the defendant wished to make.

Campbell would say nothing further than that he hoped his sentence would go into effect as soon as possible, so that he could come back to Duluth.

In imposing sentence, the court said he would have to conjecture what Campbell did with the money and be influenced somewhat in accordance. He told the defendant that there was but one thing for him to do after serving his sentence, and that is, to come back to Duluth and, with the help of his friends, live down his trouble.

Martin Moore, the alleged Minneapolis "big mitt" man and associate of "Cheerful Charley" Howard and Billy Edwards, was given a reformatory sentence, on conviction of the charge of swindling. Moore was one of the trio that sat in the fake poker game with Joseph Beming, the country boy, last February, in a local hotel, and fleeced him out of $8. When asked if he had anything to say why sentence should not be passed, Moore declared that he was innocent of any intention to deece Beming, that he believed the poker game was on the square.

The court asked him a number of questions relative to his occupation and where he had worked, and John Brown, Moore's attorney at the trial, asked the court for leniency, that the crime was more of a small misdemeanor than anything else and little harm had been done and that the defendant was an innocent farmer boy.

The court remarked with a smile that Moore did not look much like the green country boy of the period during which his honor was a boy, and Moore himself smiled at the attempted similarity.

Charles L. Clarke, the dapper young bookkeeper who was convicted of grand larceny in the second degree, was sentenced to imprisonment at hard labor, in the state penitentiary at Stillwater, for a term of four years and nine months. Clarke was formerly collector for the water department at Hibbing, and not long ago left that place for Montana, where he was arrested and brought back to answer to the charge of embezzlement of about $1700 of the village funds. Clarke was represented by his counsel, C. E. Miller, who argued that the previous good record of the defendant, who is 25 years of age, and who has held positions of trust for the last eight years, should be taken into consideration. He claimed that the bad associations on the range were at the bottom of his client's downfall.

Marco Lugi, the old Italian from Eveleth, who was convicted of assault in the second degree, was sentenced to a term of four years and six months in the state penitentiary at Stillwater. Lugi is 61 years of age. He was employed for several years in ditch work at Eveleth, and after being plagued by a boy, Tony Stefonetti by name, he procured a gun and shot the lad in the shoulder. Lugi claimed that the shooting was not done intentionally; that he was beside himself when he committed the deed.

It was brought out at his trial that Lugi was arrested in the old country and sentenced to twenty years' imprisonment for killing a man, but after he had served seven years of the sentence his innocence was discovered and he was set free, to come to America. With tears running down his cheeks the old man pleaded that he had not much longer to live, and if the court would be lenient he would hereafter live peacefully with all men.

Louis Carlson, who pleaded guilty to assault in the second degree, was sentenced to a term of three years and nine months' imprisonment in the state penitentiary. Carlson is the young Finlander who, when crazy drunk, had hallucinations that he was being pursued by several men and ran into a Lake avenue saloon at an early morning hour, with a knife, carving the faces and hands of August Hibika and Victor Hill in a horrible manner. Carlson was represented as an honest, hard-working man when sober. He has a wife and family in the old country.

Robert Fitzgerald, the lumber camp cook who got on a drunk and attempted to clean out the Saratoga hotel saloon, was sentenced to two years' imprisonment in the state penitentiary, on his plea of guilty of assault in the second degree. Fitzgerald pleaded hard to be let off with a light sentence, claiming that the revolver he used was given him as security for money loaned; that he was so drunk he did not know what he was about. The defendant drew the revolver on a bartender in the saloon and threatened to shoot him. In the scuffle that followed to disarm him, Fitzgerald had a leg broken and was severely beaten. The proprietor of the saloon was accidentally shot in the hand and leg. Fitzgerald is still using crutches as a result of his encounter.

John Ponder, who plead guilty to the indictment charging grand larceny in the first degree, was sentenced to a term of one year at hard labor in the state penitentiary. Ponder, who is a farmer and has worked in the woods some, came to Duluth with a man he had known a short time and stopped at a cheap lodging house. Ponder got on a protracted spree and while drunk and short of funds stole $10 and a check for $90 from under his companion's pillow. When arrested he admitted his guilt, gave up the check and what remained of the money, turning over his watch as security for the balance. Ponder claimed that he was not in the habit of getting drunk and had always had the reputation of an honest and hard-working man.

Charles C. Harris, who pleaded guilty to forgery in the second degree, was given a reformatory sentence. Harris is a bright-looking young man about 22 years of age. He said he came to Duluth about the time of the waiters' strike, expecting to get work, but failing to do so was driven to dire extremity to keep from starving. He attempted to pass a bogus check on a Bowery merchant in the amount of $10.

Yrjo Pallonaki, a young Finlander, who pleaded guilty to the charge of assault in the second degree, was given the reformatory sentence. Pallonaki has been but four years in this country. His counsel represented that the young man entered a saloon at McKinley where he was set upon by a lot of strangers, without provocation and it was but natural that he should defend himself with his knife. Andrew Norstrom was the man whom he cut with the knife.

John Ahla, who, when drunk, and in a spirit of revenge, smashed a saloon window at Virginia, was sentenced to sixty days in the county jail at hard labor. The only explanation Ahla made was that he was assaulted first by the proprietor.

Alexander E. Morgues, the talkative young Englishman who tried to break into jail by purposely smashing a plate glass window on East Superior street, was given a 90 days' jail sentence at hard labor. Morgues appeared as his own lawyer and told the court that he felt he had already been punished enough by imprisonment and that if he be permitted to go he would leave the city and go back East, where he claims to own a house in Lowell, Mass. Morgues claimed that the smashing of a window in England is not a serious misdemeanor and that had he known the punishment was so severe he would not have committed the deed.

He claimed that he was here without food and work and that it was up to him to commit a theft or do something to get himself in jail where he would be cared for, and he chose the latter course. Morgues claims to have traveled with an opera company and to have been a ship's steward on one of the ocean liners.

Matt Alitalla who pleaded guilty to the indictment of carrying concealed weapons at Chisholm, was sentenced to pay a fine of $100, in default of which he was given the alternative of 90 days in the county jail at hard labor.

David Wright, T. Callahan, Thomas Doran, H. E. Pomeroy and Michael Morrison, the striking freight handlers who pleaded guilty to the charge of unlawful assembly after being indicted for rioting, were, with the exception of Pomeroy, sentenced to pay a fine of $100 or spend 90 days in the county jail. This punishment is the limit for a misdemeanor of the nature. Pomeroy is a married man with a family and the court let him off with a fine of $25 or 25 days imprisonment in the county jail.

David Wright was the only one of the defendants that apparently had the means to pay his fine and it was understood that the rest of the men will serve out their time.

C. O. Baldwin, appeared as counsel for all five men. He said that since the trouble occurred in the railroad yards the men have kept away and have been working wherever they could get anything to do. Some of them have earned a little money since first arrested.

GAMBLING IN THE WEST.

Games of Chance Are Looked on as Necessary.

About two weeks ago there died at Tucson, Ariz., one of the most noted characters of the Southwest. This was Henry P. Brown, better known throughout that section and the Pacific coast as "Caribou" Brown, and said to have been the oldest professional faro dealer in the world. In noting his death the Phoenix, Ariz., Republican said:

He belonged to the famous family of Browns of Mt. Brown, Limerick, Ireland, and early in life entered the English navy, being advanced to the rank of captain. He quarreled with a superior officer, challenged him to fight a duel, and was dismissed from the service. He claimed to have been born in 1830, the year of Queen Victoria's birth, but some of his Phoenix friends say he was much older than that, some claiming he was over 100.

After he was dismissed from the British navy he went to California and from there to the Caribou country in British Columbia, where he earned the sobriquet that stuck to him till death. He came to Arizona about 1875 or 1876, living first in Prescott. After this he lived all over Arizona, making occasional trips to the coast. His activity in Arizona was almost entirely confined to operations over the green cloth, and he had a host of friends not only among those of similar vocation but among the pioneers all over the coast.

Gambling would seem to be almost inseparable from frontier life. In every new country all over the world, and especially where the search for the precious metals is the incentive which sent men there, there appears to be a subtle something in conditions which brings out strongly that love of the excitement of chance which seems almost inherent in most mankind. Everywhere into new lands the gambler follows the miner or cattleman. Everywhere the goddess of chance has her ardent votaries. It may be because the adventurous spirits who mark out new paths are usually inspired by the hope of sudden wealth, and seek a more speedy, if not so sure, way of acquiring gain than that afforded them in their old homes. In mining especially the whole pursuit of the prospector is a sort of gamble. He may make a lucky strike and become a millionaire, or, as is true in by far the larger proportion of cases, he may find nothing but rocks and ledges barren of the yellow gold, and lose both his time and money, sometimes his life. The cattleman makes great gains in good seasons, but a hard winter or a long drought may practically wipe out his herds, and he sees his gains disappear.

To a far greater degree than in other sections and other occupations life in new and distant regions contains the element of fickle chance.

Then the isolation of life out there has doubtless much to do with it. The prospector or miner is often out alone in the hills and gulches, the cowboy and his employer on the ranges, for long, lonely months, and when they get into the towns the very exuberance of feeling caused by the change leads them to fling their hard-earned money into the gaming whirlpool. There are so many then in the East, however, who do the same thing without having any of these reasons to urge that the Westerner is not without his excuse in any event.

The feature of this gambling business which most surprises the visitor from the East is the open way in which it is carried on. There is no attempt at concealment. Gambling houses are run as openly as are grocery stores, and cause no more comment. In the best hotels of the largest cities and towns one side of the barroom is lined with practically all sorts of games—faro, roulette, craps, poker and many others perhaps unknown in the East. Day and night the dealers sit at the tables, and they are seldom without players. White men, Chinamen, colored men and Mexicans all play together, for the alleged inferiorities of race seem to have no place around the gaming table. On one side the faro dealer, cool, keen, and sprucely dressed; on the other a pig-tailed Chinaman, "keeping cases." Gold and silver coins are stacked up alongside the chips, and the clicking of one or the other sounds continually. But there is little conversation. No one can call gambling, as a business, a sociable sort of thing. Money, not amusement, is what all are after, and they pursue the phantom of fortune with a taciturnity that is almost oppressive. Occasionally in some smaller New Mexican town a band of swarthy Mexicans with guitars and mandolins, dispense a jingling music at intervals, but this is the exception.

The Chinamen, here as elsewhere, are inveterate gamblers. With stolid, impassive faces, their oblique eyes following every turn of the card, cast of the dice or whirl of the wheel, they stake their money, often in sums astonishingly large for their apparent circumstances, and imperturbably win or lose. Luck or lack of luck does not seem to affect them. If winners, they pick up their money without even a gleam of gratification upon the features; if losers, they turn away from the table without a sign or sound of disappointment or regret. They can give the white man "cards and spades" when it comes to masking their emotions in the game.

The gambling goes on in every saloon, big or little. If the traveler has to wait for a train at some railroad crossing he will find a little station, perhaps an eating house, a water tank and the inevitable saloon with its gaming tables. The crowd is smaller, but just as typical as in the cities and towns. There are the dealers, better dressed, perhaps, than the customers, half a dozen cowboys who have ridden in from the headquarters ranch, a Mexican or two, a Chinaman, if there is one around, and there usually is, the ordinary set of hangers-on, and the constant turning of the wheel, rattling of the dice and clicking of the chips. All are chasing chance.

It cannot be denied that the scenes are interesting to the stranger. A tenderfoot from the East was a looker-on.

During a slack time in the game he entered into conversation with the presiding genius at the roulette table. Acknowledging a total ignorance of the game, the gentlemanly dealer at once volunteered to explain it to him. How every two alternate numbers make 37; how if you play on any number and the ball stops on it, "you get 35 for 1;" how if you played in a certain place you got 2 for 1, and if you played the double red and won you got 5½ for 1, but less if you played and won on the double black—all this it is not necessary to repeat here. Finally the seeker after knowledge determined to try the game to a very limited extent. "Now," he said in beginning, "I am, of course, going to play this by guess merely. If there is any system I don't know it." "You or anybody else will do just as well playing by guess as by any other way," said the dealer. "It is these fellows with systems from whom we make most of our money. Partner, this is all chance. You may win or you may lose, but whichever it is, chance does it."

So the novice was initiated. It is needless to detail the vicissitudes of the game—how the stack of chips alternately grew until "cashing in" would have led to some small gain, or dwindled until what might have been temporary bankruptcy seemed perilously near. The ball appeared possessed of a sort of contrariness. If red was played, it ran its course and wobbled around, always alighting on the black, but once change onto black and then its motto seemed to be "any color, so long as it's red." At one time the game was delayed until the dealer explained to a friend who dropped in that he couldn't go over to this friend's house that night because "our church is going to have a sociable and I have promised my wife to go there with her."

The instruction game progressed until the player found out that he was just like the majority of those who play the game—when he could have "cashed in" and got out ahead of the game he felt sure that he would win more, and therefore stayed with it. Finally the last chip disappeared and the lesson was over. It didn't cost much, and while the information wasn't worth the cost, the experience certainly was. The friendly dealer consolingly said: "Oh, that's the way it goes. Now, the next time you hit it, you may win big money. Nobody can tell until he tries it."

BUSINESS BEGINS

Grand Council of U. C. T. Opens Session at Noon.

Grand Secretary's Report Shows Order In Flourishing Condition.

The first business meeting of the grand council was called to order in Elks' hall shortly before noon by Grand Councilor Terry McCosker, of Grand Forks.

The session was short and was devoted almost entirely to organization in preparation for the real business meetings that are to follow.

The work of the committee on credentials showed that every one of the fifteen councils in the jurisdiction were represented. The list is as follows:

No. 40, Duluth—W. N. Donaldson, C. A. Parker, W. H. Wilson.
No. 58, St. Paul—F. W. Baer, H. C. Capser, H. E. Newton.
No. 63, Minneapolis—E. F. Lewis, Walter Johns, A. J. Dillman.
No. 64, Grand Forks—H. W. Simms, L. A. Roth, Frank Hanson.
No. 65, Fargo—W. D. Austin, T. E. Dunn, C. W. Barton.
No. 68, Winona—J. W. Calvert, J. M. Church.
No. 85, Owatonna—Charles Jacobson.
No. 88, Crookston—C. A. Hitchcock, N. J. Nelson.
No. 98, Austin—E. H. Smith.
No. 130, Sioux Falls—J. N. Harris, H. M. Westfall, Hayward Marshall.
No. 101, Mankato—M. E. Babcock.
No. 125, Aberdeen, S. D.—J. C. Sheldon, C. I. Crow.
No. 141, Minnehaha, Minneapolis—J. W. Smart, B. W. Kager.
No. 154, Winnipeg—W. A. Cavanaugh, F. M. Morgan.
No. 111, Huron, S. D.—G. S. Hutchins, J. C. McAdams.

The only other business was the reading of the annual report of Grand Secretary J. M. Dresser.

This afternoon Grand Councilor Terry McCosker was to make his report, committee reports were to be received, and the place of holding the eleventh annual convention decided upon.

The prospects appeared to be today that Winnipeg would get this honor without much if any opposition.

Secretary Dresser's report showed the jurisdiction to be in excellent shape in every manner. The treasury shows a balance of $2867.64 in hand as compared with $2062.73 a year ago.

Membership figures show that the jurisdiction is next to the largest in the United States, only that of Ohio leading it. The total membership is 3457 against 2870 a year ago and 2257 two years ago. Nearly all of the councils show an increase in membership over a year ago, Zenith council—Duluth—increasing from 186 to 227.

In part the report is as follows: "Many tender memories gather around this city in which we meet today for our tenth annual session. It was here, on Sept. 29, 1894, that this grand council was organized. It was here, in 1900, that we held our seventh convocation, and as we return again in glad anticipation to the city that gave us birth, we are not unmindful of the courtesies and the lavish hospitalities extended on former occasions by the good people of Duluth, and we know that any "U. T. C." that fails to enjoy himself will be clearly out of order.

"It is under very favorable auspices that we come together for our tenth session. The conditions were very different nine years ago, when less than a dozen commercial travelers, representatives of the small councils at Duluth, St. Paul, Minneapolis, Grand Forks and Fargo, gathered together in this city and organized this grand council.

"The history of the order in the Northwest, from the date of its inception, shows a steady and progressive advancement. To bring the order to the front has ever been the aim of our enthusiastic brethren of this jurisdiction, and how well we have succeeded we will leave you to judge, as we lay before you, one by one, our records.

"Before taking up the subjects relative to our own domain, we will briefly review the records of the order at large and note the progress that is being made.

"On March 31, 1902 the order comprised a total membership of 18,763, divided into 195 subordinate councils in twenty grand jurisdictions. While the number of grand jurisdictions has not been increased, the institution of thirty-three subordinate councils during the last year shows a substantial increase in our fraternal field, and the reports for March 31, 1903, show a total membership of 22,691, a net increase for the year of 3928 members, or 21 per cent.

"In our jurisdiction ten councils show an increase in membership, four a loss and the smallest council in the jurisdiction, Austin, remains unchanged with 27 members enrolled. The four councils losing in membership with their net loss are: Winona, 3 members; Crookston, 6 members; Mankato, 10 members, and Winnipeg, 14 members. With the exception of Mankato all councils had initiations during the year.

From the towering flagstaff of Minneapolis council No. 63 the banner now unfurled proclaims the "Greatest Council of America," with 1012 members, and just ten miles down the Mississippi is "Old Number Fifty," with 897 "Knights of the Saintly City."

"The past year has witnessed a most remarkable growth in our jurisdiction. It is phenomenal, considering the field from which we have to draw. With success attending our efforts on every hand we should not lose sight of the fact that there is no time when we can afford to be idle. In a number of U. C. T. communities the fraternal fires are burning low, and little interest is being taken by individual members. During the coming year may we hope to see renewed vigor manifested in these localities.

"On March 31, 1902, the subordinate councils had a total cash balance on hand of $12,721.82. During the year the receipts were $18,559.71 and the disbursements, $49,401.67, leaving a total balance on hand March 31, 1903, of $11,879.86. This reduction in the total cash on hand of $841.96 is due entirely to the deficit existing temporarily in the indemnity fund, the reported balance of $4228 being short $2578, which is computed on a $2 capita basis in 3453 members in good standing. In explanation, we will state that the subordinate councils paid in the month of March assessment No. 64 to the supreme council, and had just begun the collection of assessment No. 65 on the membership, this assessment being called, March 20, and expiring April 20. Nearly all, if not quite all, of the councils collect but $3 for annual dues. In the proposed amendments to the supreme constitution to be considered by this session is one fixing the minimum dues in all councils at $4 per year. Whether it is right or wrong to incorporate such a law in the supreme constitution, it is certainly a necessity, and it should be unanimously approved.

"In the insurance department the claims were in excess of any previous year. The total amount of indemnity claims paid was $31,762.50, which included two death losses. During the same period we have paid $9,392 to the supreme body toward the maintenance of this department.

Grand Secretary Dresser closes his report by thanking the members of the grand council for the courtesy exhibited to him as manifested by his re-election for such a series of years, and signifies his intention of not seeking another term. He also extends to Grand Councilor McCosker his heartiest congratulations upon the success attained under his leadership, saying that by his devotion to the order and his uniform courtesy and fairness he has endeared himself to all.

Tonight the Commercial club will give a banquet to the grand officers of the organization and the officers of the local lodge.

From 2 to 3:30 o'clock this afternoon the Commercial club gave a reception to the ladies, including music by Flaaten's orchestra and a male quartet. Refreshments were served.

Tomorrow morning the closing session of the grand council will be held, and officers will probably be elected then. There will also be a grand open-air concert by Flaaten's Third regiment band, between Third and Fifth avenues west.

At 1:30 o'clock the grand industrial and civic parade will start, leaving Fifth avenue west and First street to go east on First street to Seventh avenue east, then to Superior street, then west to Fifth avenue west and south to the boat landing, where boats will be provided for an excursion on the lake. Only those with proper credentials will be allowed on board. The entertainment will conclude tomorrow night with a concert in the high school assembly hall.

THE WELCOME OF DULUTH

ries, of course. If customers kick, he must be the buffer.

"Travelers are discriminated against all over the line. The farmer sells a chicken to a hotel for 50 cents, and then comes in and eats it all up, paying a quarter. The traveling man has to pay twice that, and only gets a wing. When the travelers die, some of them take the toboggan and some the elevator, but which ever way it is they land with a grip full of samples suited to the climate. Of those that fall by the wayside, let us draw the mantle of charity over their lives and leave their faults to the last Judge. As a whole, there never was a class of men who could be so thoroughly depended upon as the traveling men under any and all circumstances."

E. L. Millar, of the Duluth Trade News, was introduced as a representative of the trade press.

"Traveling gentlemen and queens of the home," he said: "The mayor just asked me if the U. C. T.'s were related to the W. C. T. U.'s, and I said I guessed not, not even by marriage. There is nothing left for me to say about, after these eloquent addresses, unless it is the tariff and Duluth. I don't think Duluth is quite so dry a subject as the tariff, especially under the present administration, and I will therefore take Duluth. Or, rather, with the consent of the mayor, I will permit you to take it. Duluth has made wonderful improvements since you were here three years ago. We want you to see our miles of new pavement, our hundreds of new business blocks and thousands of new residences, our 20,000 new people and our 200 new traveling men. The city is improved, widened and changed. I think I am the only thing in Duluth that has not changed, and I am not a day older or a pound lighter.

"I am glad to welcome you, travelers and their good ladies. I am glad to have the brightest and best, most active and energetic, the United Commercial Travelers of Minnesota, the Dakotas and Manitoba.

"I like that name. Binding Canada and the United States, it is a step in advance of the legislation of the two countries. It is the recognition of a thought uppermost in the United States, closer commercial relations between the United States and Canada. We have a common destiny, we are engaged in the struggle of working out the destiny of the Northwest, and there should be no hindrance to trade between the two such great and glorious peoples. We speak the same language, bow at the same altar, have the same environments. When a youth from Manitoba comes and marries one of the fairest daughters of Duluth, everybody is glad, and when children come it is difficult for King Edward and President Roosevelt to tell which is subject and which constituent. I hope you will have the best time of your lives, and go away with the thought that there is only one brighter spot on earth than Duluth, and that your own firesides."

Grand Councillor Terry McCosker, in a graceful little talk, then presented the handsome banner won by Zenith council, No. 40, for having the largest attendance at the Minnetonka convention, two years ago. H. G. Mooney, of Duluth, responded.

Music by the Third Regiment band and a male quartet, both well received, were features of this brilliant program, after which the grand council adjourned to Elks' hall for the opening meeting.

tion on behalf of that city for the convention.

We're a fancy bunch of drummers—
Grand Forks, Grand Forks;
Don't forget we're nine time hummers;
Grand Forks, Grand Forks;
We were corkers in our youth,
We'll astonish old Duluth—
We're U. C. T.'s.

CHORUS.
U. C. T.'s—we're a natty bunch!
U. C. T.'s—take us out to lunch;
Then we'll trot as swiftly as you please;
Sixty-four, sixty-four U. C. T.'s.

Of your ball team we've been reading,
You bet, you bet;
But the league you aren't leading,
Not yet, not yet.
There's just one team like New York's,
And each man the leather corks—
Ten to one on old Grand Forks,
U. C. T.'s.

CHORUS.
U. C. T.'s—we're a natty bunch!
U. C. T.'s—take us out to lunch;
Then we'll trot as swiftly as you please;
Sixty-four, sixty-four U. C. T.'s.

West Superior, o'er the stream,
Oh my, oh my!
Has a phoney baseball team,
Oh my, oh my!
When you meet them, nail and tooth,
We'll be with you, that's the truth,
They can never beat Duluth,
U. C. T.'s.

CHORUS.
U. C. T.'s—we're a natty bunch!
U. C. T.'s—take us out to lunch;
Then we'll trot as swiftly as you please;
Sixty-four, sixty-four U. C. T.'s.

For Duluth, the hilly city,
We cheer, we cheer,
Girls are pretty, men are witty
Down here, down here.
Next to old Grand Forks, the earth
Cannot show a better berth,
And we'll get our money's worth,
U. C. T.'s.

CHORUS.
U. C. T.'s—we're a natty bunch!
U. C. T.'s—take us out to lunch;
Then we'll trot as swiftly as you please;
Sixty-four, sixty-four U. C. T.'s.

BACKWARD BABIES.

Their Food Usually at Fault.

When a baby is peevish and backward about walking or talking, the food will often be found to be the reason. This can be proved by changing to Grape-Nuts food for a few days, for this scientific food will digest in the weakest stomach and will give the proper nourishment for baby building. "When our girl was a tiny baby she had indigestion, and although we did our best, nothing seemed to help her. She was peevish and would not even try to walk, and many times would cry aloud and seemed to be in much pain.

"As we had buried three children before, you can imagine how we felt to see this little girl wasting away. When she was two years old she had a terrible sick spell, and we were very much alarmed. The doctor said she had summer complaint and indigestion, and told us to use Grape-Nuts. After we had given her two meals of this food her bowels were checked and in a short time she was completely well and strong again.

"Then we noticed how her mind, too, began to improve. She had never talked before, but now she brightened up and understood things that were said to her. She laughs all the time instead of crying, and now, after two years living on Grape-Nuts, she talks well, has a splendid memory, and is as bright and healthy and happy a baby as anyone would ever care to see. I hope some other discouraged mother will read these lines and profit by them." Name given by Postum company, Battle Creek, Mich.

An excellent way to prepare for very young babies is to take one and one-half tablespoonfuls of Grape-Nuts and cover with a pint of cold water. Let it stand for half an hour, strain, and set aside. When ready to use take twelve teaspoonfuls of the strained Grape-Nuts juice and six teaspoonfuls of rich milk. Add a pinch of salt and a little sugar, warm and feed to baby every two hours. Grape-Nuts, of course, is a food for everybody, but tiny babies are not expected to take the food in the same way as adults.

A BANQUET AT BEMIDJI

Citizens Honor the Traveling Men—Incident of Gathering.

The citizens of Bemidji took advantage of the special train with 250 western traveling men and their wives and friends, running through the place on the Great Northern, and gave a large banquet yesterday noon.

The party was in charge of Traveling Passenger Agent Otto Thuesen, of the Great Northern, who came into Duluth with the party.

The whole trainload was escorted from the train to the Commercial club rooms of the city of Bemidji, where a luncheon was served. There were a number of representative citizens, and there were speeches from both contingents.

The mayor of Bemidji made a few appropriate remarks regarding the city, and told the traveling men what there was in the county surrounding the city, and also exploited the beauties and commercial advantages of the place.

A response was made to the speech by Mr. Engelson of the party, and he expressed the appreciation of the party at the reception, and assured the citizens of Bemidji that the men of the road would not overlook the booming city in the future.

The Gideons, an organization within the United Commercial Travelers, is being largely represented at the meeting of the organization in Duluth this season.

The leading members of the organization, which has for its object Christian work among traveling men, will conduct services at the men's meeting at the Y. M. C. A., Sunday afternoon, when demonstrations of the work pursued by these itinerant Christians will be given.

The Gideons is a comparatively new order, and the branch in this state has established headquarters at the Russel Coffee House in Minneapolis. The emblem of the society has been more or less of a puzzle to large numbers of people, especially hotel employes and waiters, for a long time. It is a button worn in the lapel of the coat, upon which is represented a white jug.

For a long time it was generally believed that the jug represented some wholesale liquor dealers' association, and the hotel waiters, especially, ran their legs off whenever they saw one of the buttons come into the dining room.

More recently, however, the significance of the badge has been learned, and the offices of the servants are not performed with such up-winning extravagance and dispatch.

The members of the Gideons have been doing a lot of missionary work throughout the Northwest and the fame of the order has spread. There are several of the members in Duluth at this meeting and they are doing some lively missionary work.

John B. Harker, of Minneapolis, and W. H. Teetzel, of Chicago, are among those in the city, and they will speak at the meeting to be held Sunday afternoon at the Y. M. C. A. building.

Council No. 111, Minneapolis, is making a great hit in the city, and one can tell the members and the members' wives and families by the linen duster worn.

The members of this council will blossom out in the parade tomorrow with full regalia. They wear cap, duster, a blue umbrella and a huge yellow tag, upon which the name of the council is printed. Besides this the members have badges and the number of the council on their cap.

A couple of hundred visitors to the U. C. T. convention will leave this evening and afternoon. At the ticket offices of the railroads this morning and afternoon there were about 100 applications for return trips and extra transportation for the afternoon and evening trains. The outgoing members of the traveling men's organizations are not delegates, and came to Duluth to be present at the reunion that always accompanies the meeting of the organization.

There were a large number of traveling men and members of the organization came in on the afternoon trains. Nearly all of these had to be taken care of by private residences, as the hotels have been crowded to the farthest extent since yesterday noon.

The reason for all this business lies in the fact that his job is to take all persons' hats when they go into the dining room, and give the proper hat to its rightful owner when he emerges well fed and happy.

The dining room is packed, in the first place, during the convention.

In the second place there are about nine out of ten, who wear the caps of the order, and they are all alike.

The hats are all given to the hat man as the owners go in, and this noon Mr. Conroy had nearly seventy caps all alike, and none with the slightest mark for identification.

The young man depended entirely upon his memory of the face which was under the hat when it was given him. Out of the lot he made no mistake this noon, and the traveling men are patting him on the back, for the exhibition is an unusual one for even an expert and professional hat man to do.

DROPS THE SECOND

Crookston Turns Tables on Duluth In Good Shape.

Freeman In Box, Well Nigh Invincible—Gehring Hit Freely.

In the presence of only a few immediate professional friends and relatives of the contracting parties, Crookston defeated the Cardinals, 8 to 1.

Members of the Fargo and Superior teams comprised over half the people in the grand stand, and on the bleachers was little better.

The Cardinals did not show the form of the previous day and were unable to bunch hits on Freeman, who mowed ten of them down in their prime.

Besides hitting in bunches, the Crookston team gave Freeman errorless support and had the game well in hand at all stages. Burns livened the proceedings a bit in the first by stealing home from third while Murphy held the ball.

Duluth was robbed of a run when Quillan, getting a base on balls, was sacrificed to second and stole third. Lambert drove a hit past third that stirred up the whitewash on the base line. Umpire Bray called it a foul. Steve Cusack and the bunch of Fargo and Superior players in the grand stand were certain it was safe. The score:

Duluth will probably get Jack Burns, the Crookston center fielder. A deal was practically made for his release to Duluth this morning.

Lyons made a couple of mistakes in trying to cover second when there was a man on first and the batter hit the ball.

Gehring was playing in hard luck this morning. It was one of those occasions where hits go anywhere but in the direction of a fielder.

Neither Glenn or McGaughney reported today, and the management decided to rest McCoy up with a view to having him pitch in a pinch. Murphy went out to right field.

Little Shaw is another Rube Waddell. Despite the fact that he was presented with the finest $5 hat for winning his first game, he appeared in citizens clothes this morning wearing a 15-cent straw hat and looking more like a farmer boy going fishing than a star twirler celebrating an eleven-inning victory.

ELLA OLA WON

The Thousand Dollar Race Trotted at Hancock.

Houghton, Mich., June 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—In the match race for $1000 at Hancock, yesterday afternoon, Ella Ola, the trotter owned by O'Connell & Sam, of Houghton, won handily from Texas Jessie, owned by Marquette people, winning three straight heats in 2:22 4-5, 2:23 2-5 and 2:21 4-5. The race was witnessed by 1500 people.

MARKET IS LOWER

Wheat Drags Under the Influence of Bearish News.

Flax Loses Strength and Closes More Than Cent Lower.

Duluth Board of Trade, June 12.—The wheat market started out easy and lower and held steady at the decline throughout the morning. The chief causes of the weakness were liberal Northwest receipts, large Argentine shipments and easier cables. The Modern Miller was bullish and this gave some temporary strength to the market, but it did not last long.

The cash situation is dull. A cable from Liverpool this morning said that Indian offerings are pressing on the market.

The Liverpool market closed ½d lower. The Argentine shipments for the week were 2,096,000 bus, somewhat larger than estimated. Last week they were 1,712,000 bus, and last year 304,000 bus.

Bradstreet reported clearances for the week of 4,891,000 bus, against 4,760,000 bus last week and 3,400,000 bus last year.

Primary receipts of wheat were 362,000 bus, last year 327,000 bus. Shipments 255,000 bus, last year 186,000 bus. Clearances of wheat and flour were 222,000 bus.

Receipts of wheat at Duluth and Minneapolis, 281 cars, and at Chicago 20, a total of 301 cars, against 206 last week and 245 last year.

Corn in the Liverpool market closed ¾d lower. July corn in Chicago was unchanged and July oats advanced ¼c. Primary receipts of corn were 367,000 bus, last year 340,000 bus. Shipments 482,000 bus, last year 185,000 bus. Clearances were 91,000 bus.

Trading in the wheat market at Duluth was next thing to dead. The opening was ⅜c off at 70¾c and it held at that price all morning except for a sale at 70⅝c at 1 o'clock. The close was at 70¾c. This was a decline of ⅝c from yesterday. September fell ⅞c. In Chicago July declined ⅝c and September ¾c. In Minneapolis July fell 1¾-⅞c and September ⅞c. New York July was off ⅝-1⅛c and September ¾c. St. Louis also suffered a decline, the July being off ⅞c and September ⅝c.

Cash sales were 25,000 bus and July price was paid for No. 1 northern and 1½c under for No. 2.

Flax was fairly active and the price weak, the strength of yesterday being manifest only for a few moments. July sold ¾c up to $1.12 and then turned weak selling down to $1.12⅜ and closing there. September and October fell 1½c. Argentine shipments were 488,000 bus this week, last week 320,000 bus, last year 180,000 bus.

Following are the closing prices:

Wheat—To arrive, No. 1 hard, 3c; No. 1 northern, 70¾c; No. 2 northern, 78c; July, 70¾c; September, 72¾c. Flax, in store, $1.11½; to arrive, $1.11½; on track, $1.11½; July, $1.11¾; September, $1.10½; October $1.12½; November, $1.13¼. Oats, to arrive, 36@36½c; on track, 36@36½c. Rye, to arrive, 56c; on track, 56c. Barley, 35@45c.

Shipments—Wheat, 50,600; oats, 2925; barley, 167.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Wheat Easier on Liberal Northwest Receipts.

Chicago, June 12.—Wheat opened easier on liberal Northwest receipts, large Argentine shipments and easier cables, July being a shade to 1c lower at 75½c to 75¾c. There was only a small trade with little demand and as the session advanced the market became weaker, July selling down to 75¼c. Duluth and Minneapolis reported receipts of 281 cars, which, with local receipts of 20 cars, none of contract grade, made total receipts for the three points of 301 cars, against 369 cars last week and 245 cars last year.

The market continued dull and easy the entire day, the tone being influenced to some extent by the report of the first new wheat of the season which was received at Nashville, July closed at 75⅜c, a loss of 1⅛@⅜c.

Corn opened steady on a general commission house demand, but later the excellent weather brought out considerable selling and prices eased off, July holding around 48¾c, after opening unchanged to ⅛c higher, at 48¾c to 48⅝c. Local receipts were 427 cars, with 21 of contract grade.

There was a fairly good trade in oats early in the day with selling by commission houses and local longs, the rains in the East being the main cause of the selling. July opened unchanged to ⅛c lower, at 36⅜@35c and there was little change in prices during the first hour. Local receipts were 182 cars.

Provisions opened steady on a good demand for lard and ribs by packers notwithstanding the lower prices for hogs. Trading was featureless and of small volume. September pork opened unchanged at $16.80; September lard was a shade higher at $8.87½, while ribs were off a shade at $9.25.

Close: Wheat—July, 75⅜c; old, 75⅜c; September, 72½@75c; old, 75⅜c; December, 72½c. Corn, June, 48¾c; July, 48@48½c; September, 47½@48c; December, 46½c. May, 46c. GRAIN GOSSIP.

Chicago Record-Herald: The views of George Broomhall on the wheat future are given us by C. F. Bond, his American representative, who is just back from Liverpool, as follows: "Europe has been importing wheat at the rate of 9,000,000 bus per week, and ex-European countries at the rate of 1,560,000 bus per week. As far as one can judge, this state of things is likely to continue for the next four-teen months. So that, however large the next American crop may be, unless it is well supplemented by a large production in Russia, the Balkan states and Argentina, the American surplus will be easily disposed of next season. There are indubitable signs the continental nations are becoming more and more reconciled to a free use of wheaten bread. Since the abnormally low prices which ruled in the years 1884 and 1885, when wheat fell to the price of rye, this discretion on the part of Germany, Austria, Holland and Russia to displace the coarse rye loaf with white bread has been conspicuously prominent. The crops of Europe have come through the winter only moderately well compared with last season. The prospects are decidedly inferior, but in comparison with the average prospects of the preceding four or five years one would not like to say that there is much to complain of. If I were asked to give an estimate of the world's crop of the season 1903-04, I should place it about 20,000,000 quarters below that of the exceptionally large yield of 1902. In this estimate I am allowing for a crop to be raised in America of 800,000,000 bus, upon which your people may be congratulated, as there seems every prospect of them being able to command a satisfactory price for it, as they did in the year 1901, when prices ranged in Chicago between 85c and $1.16."

The mere mention of the premium which millers are paying for small lots of cash wheat suggests an unusually strong cash situation. There has been paid of late for small lots of No. 1 northern 2½c over the July price, and for small lots of No. 2 red wheat 3c over July. But the figures are not a fair criterion of the cash market. The business doing is in only small lots. There is no shipping inquiry at any such prices. The largest handlers of cash grain here report the Eastern bids not within 2c of what is being obtained for the small retail lots required by the local millers. The East is offering wheat also under this milling basis, and those who have grain in the East, either the No. 1 northern or No. 2 red, find they cannot get relatively over 1c above July. The No. 1 northern and cannot get equivalent to the July price for their No. 2 red.

Everoft of Chicago: Our Liverpool house cables that the wheat market is quiet and steady with very little speculation. Cash demand is moderate, prices firm and steady. There is only taking for immediate wants. They expect a better demand in England when duty comes off. The weather in this country is extremely favorable and so long as it continues so we are inclined to think prices may sell a little lower.

Modern Miller: Further deterioration in condition of winter wheat reported from many sections in Missouri, Illinois and Indiana where rain caused rust. Some complaints of rust are heard from Southern Kansas and territories and from South Ohio. Damage by floods in bottom lands has been serious along Mississippi river from Iowa line to Ohio river. Extent of actual loss cannot be determined as yet.

Logan & Bryan, Chicago: Wheat market dull and featureless. Speculative trade was confined to speculative operations and to a small commission house business. There is very little activity in the cash market. All reports which come from the Northwest through commercial channels are favorable. Stocks of wheat in speculator hands are not however, heavy enough to make much selling pressure. We still think the chances are better for the buyer of wheat though the market at the moment is without tendency. Estimated cars, 20.

Corn—Market very steady. Weather still cool throughout the West, but the tendency is better and the drought stricken area in the east is having pretty general relief. The small country offerings, however, prevent much selling pressure. Armour was supposed to be selling freely through brokers. Corn is too high we think for the conservative buyer, but until the crop conditions in the west increase country offerings there may not be much money in selling them. Estimated cars 370.

Oats—July oats are strong. There is a good cash demand and small arrivals. Conditins both east and west are most favorable for the crop, but farmers are holding rather tenaciously so far. A week or so of good weather may change this. Out of the enormous crop of last year, there must still be a good many oats in farmers hands. Estimated cars 175.

STOCKS SHOW GAINS ARE ACTIVE AND FIRM

Slight Recessions On Prokt-Taking But Close Near Top.

Reading Rushed Up Nearly Four Points In Late Trading.

New York, June 12.—With the exception of a decline in Pennsylvania opening prices of all the principal stocks were higher. Gains ran from ½ to a point in Baltimore & Ohio, Chesapeake & Ohio, Norfolk & Western, Reading, Missouri Pacific, Atchison, St. Paul and blocks of 1000 to 2000 shares of most of these stocks changed hands. The higher level of prices of Americans in London helped the rise here but some disposition to realize was reported from London.

Large selling orders came on the market, but the demand was sufficient to keep the list fairly steady and after these offerings were worked off prices improved sharply in all directions. One point gains or over were numerous in the active division and included St. Paul, Rock Island, Norfolk & Western, Sugar, Missouri Pacific, Baltimore & Ohio, Erie, New York Central, Canadian Pacific and Atchison. A feature of the market was the increased demand for stocks selling between 20 and 40 and also the high priced investment grades. Many of these rose from 1 to 2 points with the more striking gains in Consolidated Gas, Northwestern, New Jersey Central, Toledo, St. Louis & Western and the Kansas City Southern stocks. Minneapolis, St. Paul & Soo preferred, Westinghouse Electric and Wheeling & Lake Erie first preferred jumped 5½, and Brooklyn Union Gas, 5.

The market gave way slightly after 11 o'clock, Norfolk & Western reaching a point but selling was easily absorbed at the recessions and prices rose to a new high level. Wabash advanced 2⅜, Louisville and Illinois Central 2 and Union Pacific and Reading a point. Recoveries of 2 to 3 points from recent avide declines, were made in a number of less conspicuous stocks. Detroit United Railroad rose 4⅛ and New York, Chicago & St. Louis second preferred 6. The demand slackened towards noon, but a rise of over a point in Amalgamated held the market steady. Bonds were strong at noon.

The announcement that President Baer was upheld by the court in his refusal to answer questions before the interstate commerce commission started a buying movement that the coalers, Reading, Erie and Pennsylvania were risen in large blocks and rose betwee nl and 2 points and Delaware & Hudson and Lackawanna gained 2½@3. Missouri Pacific crossed 104. St. Paul, Atchison, Southern Pacific, and Amalgamated also went considerably higher. The market quieted down at 1 p. m., and there were some slight recessions.

The buying was renewed in the early afternoon and prices remained steady. Gains of 2 points or more were made by St. Paul, Atchison, Union Pacific, Baltimore & Ohio, Chesapeake & Ohio, Norfolk & Western, Reading, Louisville & Nashville, Copper and Gas. Rocking Valley gained 3½ and Consolidated Gas, 5.

Reading was rushed up nearly 4 points in the late trading and the former gains in active stocks were generally extended a fraction reaching about 2½ for St. Paul and B. & O., Canadian Pacific rose 3, Brooklyn Gas 9, Buffalo, Rochester & Pittsburg 7, U. S. Steel 5, Westinghouse 12 and a number of minor stocks 2 to 3 points. There were slight recessions on profit taking, but the closing was active and firm and near the top level.

STOCK GOSSIP.

New York to Coe Commission Co.: An important New York house with Chicago headquarters is responsible for this on Copper: Specialists in Amalgamated Copper believe insiders are accumulating the stock on an extensive scale. During the last few days the stock has been comparatively steady and specialists are convinced that insiders are absorbing the stock on an extensive scale. They are believed to be buying back the stock which they sold when Amalgamated Copper was selling from 25 to 30 points higher. It is said the company is now earning at the rate of slightly over 6 per cent on its outstanding capital stock. Since the first of the year Amalgamated has received 2¼ cents per pound more for its copper than it received a year ago.

Ridgely to W. H. Laidley & Co.: The man I told you of who bought 40,000 shares, was taking profits around high figures yesterday. I understand he expects to be rid of the line by noon today, that is if the market is very strong this morning. He says he is going to buy on the next break for keeps. Of course this is only one man's opinion. You must make your own guess about playing for another break. Of one thing I am pretty certain, stocks will be a great deal higher by the end of the month. According to rule a very strong Thursday afternoon and Friday morning is followed by declines Saturday and Monday morning. On the other hand strong people have bought stocks and there is every indication that the bear market ended Wednesday, so whatever you do with long holdings, don't think of selling short. Purchases should be made on all declines.

Sinn to W. H. Laidley & Co.: The fact that no failures were announced and the general belief that all weak accounts have been eliminated contributed no small share to the improvement in sentiment, but on further advance today, traders who bought on the last slump will probably take profits with the expectation of buying back on on reaction which a poor bank statement may bring. There are bull tips out on copper emanating from inside interests. An increase in Amalgamated, next dividend is certain.

Logan & Bryan to Paine, Webber & Co.: The Chronicle says: "Dominion Coal people say that notwithstanding the recent disasters, it will put out as much coal this year as last and owing to the prevalence of better prices it will show larger net earnings this year than last. The management expects to show net earnings this year of at least $1,000,000 above its $1,400,000 guarantee of the Dominion Steel company. Probably $500,000 will be used for capital account which would leave $500,000 for the Dominion Iron and Steel company and it is in view of this addition to its earnings that the directors of the Dominion Iron and Steel company are providing but $1,500,000 for new construction purposes of the steel company, whereas $2,000,000 is needed to complete the steel plant under the most favorable conditions."

Harriman to Paine, Webber & Co.: There has been considerable realizing and some short selling on the theory that market should react and a point decline would not be unnatural. However, there are good buying orders in below the market, particularly for foreign account and for investors.

COPPER GOSSIP.

Boston to Paine, Webber & Co.: The Chronicle says: "The balance sheet of the Adventure Mining Co. as of date May 1st shows a floating debt of $219,521 against which there are cash and supplies at mine valued at $215,295 leaving a deficit of $4225. The cost to the company of each ton of rock hoisted is now $1.40 and for each ton stamped $1.70, which includes all rock transportation and milling costs."

Boston to Paine, Webber & Co.: The Chronicle says: It will require $350,000 to complete the plant of the Majestic Copper Company in Utah and the directors ask stockholders to subscribe $250,000 towards a loan at 6 per cent for one year, for which the subscribers will receive two shares of stock in the company for every $100 advanced. The directors offer to subscribe $100,000 toward such a loan. The directors state that there is not a dollar of indebtedness outstanding against the company at the present time, but that funds are needed for development and new construction work. The smelter which has recently been erected cost $250,000. The company is capitalized for $6,000,000, (600,000 shares) and $5,000,000 stock is outstanding. The company owns 2260 acres in Beaver county, Utah. The management claims to have 500,000 tons of ore blocked out ready for stoping with 1,000,000 tons of ore in sight.

Boston to Paine, Webber & Co.: The Chronicle says: Copper interests in position to be largely dependent upon Amalgamated affairs express the opinion that the directors of that company will not increase the dividend in July above the two per cent basis, as it is claimed that the management is desirous of accumulating a large surplus and placing the company in an impregnable position. It is officially admitted that the Amalgamated company has since January 1 received 2½ per pound more for its copper than it received a year ago and on profitable deliveries of 100,000,000 pounds of copper the Amalgamated company for the first five months of 1903. This includes sales of copper on hand January 1. This increased profit from the sale of its copper would amount to $1.50 per share for the $155,000,000 of Amalgamated stock. The Amalgamated company is now earning at the rate of 30 per share per annum and if it was desirable the company could pay dividends in excess of the present 2 per cent.

THE COTTON MARKET.

New York, June 12.—Cotton opened strong at an advance of from 18 to 45 points over yesterday's close. The greatest advance was in July, which closed yesterday at 11.55 and sold as high as 12.30 this morning. Liverpool displayed surprising strength this morning. It opened 1 point lower and by 12:30 o'clock was net 16@18 points higher on near and and 3½ to 5 points higher on far positions. Further cables showed irregularity but great firmness and local operators were inclined to attribute the strength abroad to the presence there of the New England bull leader, who is also credited with having sent buying orders in here recently. Whatever may have caused the advance, local shorts were again completely routed.

Cotton spot closed 10 points higher; middling uplands, 12.30; middling gulf, 12.60; sales, 1900 bales. Cotton futures closed barely steady, June, 12.04; July, 12.10; August, 11.68; September, 10.75; October, 9.92; November, 8.78; December, 8.72; January, 8.73.

TREASURY BALANCES.

IN MARINE CIRCLES

Takes Out 7729 Tons of Ore—Lumber Shipments Reviving.

The ore record has again been broken, this time by the big freighter Edenborn, of the Pittsburg Steamship company's fleet, which cleared today. The Edenborn carried a total of 7729 tons of ore, which exceeds the former record established by the Elwood last week by 69 tons.

Three of the four 500 footers of the Pittsburg Steamship company's fleet, the Edenborn, Hill and Elwood cleared today with a total cargo of 22,790 tons, which is probably the greatest amount ever carried by any three vessels on the lakes. The Hill carried 7559 tons and the Elwood 7502.

The record up to today was held by the Elwood. She has been the proud possessor of the title of the greatest ore carrier on the lakes for but little over a week, having established it on her last trip down the lakes, when she carried 7660 tons.

It is seldom that the ore record is broken twice within two weeks, but the conditions at present are very favorable for heavy cargoes. The waters in the connecting channels of the great lakes are at a higher stage than they have been for years past, and the recent cut in the ore rate is an incentive for shippers to test the capacity of their vessels.

The four 500-footers of the Steel trust, all of which have held the record at various times, are the Elwood, Edenborn, Hill and Gates.

TO RAISE GILLEN.

Arrangements Being Made To Bring Tug Up.

Arrangements are being made to raise the tug Gillen, of the Duluth Dredge & Dock company, which was sunk last month by the steamer Maunaloa, of the Pittsburg Steamship company, a short distance outside the superior entry.

Considerable difficulty was experienced in locating the tug as the water is deep at the spot where she sank and there is a strong current through the channel.

Scows will be anchored above the sunken tug and she will be raised by a hoisting gear fitted on these.

The Gillen is lying in a badly damaged condition as she was caught between the sharp steel bow of the tug steamer and the side of a heavy mud-laden scow. It is thought that she is cut almost completely in two, having sunk almost immediately.

LUMBER SHIPMENTS BETTER.

After a heavy decline during the past week, lumber shipments again show renewed activity. Six lumber carriers cleared today for the lower lake ports and one, the Sult, for Chicago. The Sult has been recently sold to Chicago capitalists and she goes to Chicago to be turned over to her new owners. She will be used in a run between Chicago and South Chicago.

DELEGATES RETURN

Duluth Men Back From State Labor Federation Meeting.

Henry Perault Pronounces It Best One Held In the State.

Many members of the Duluth delegation to the Little Falls convention of the Minnesota State Federation of Labor returned this morning. Others remained over in Minneapolis for a day at the carnival and will return tomorrow.

Among those returning was Henry Perrault, president of the Federated Trades' assembly. Speaking of the convention, he said:

"It was undoubtedly the best convention that has ever been held in the state. During the first few days there were several best fights on, but take it all in all the amount of good work accomplished at Little Falls has seldom been equaled.

"There were upwards of 200 delegates present and all seemed pleased with the hospitality extended by the people of the convention town. Men that have been attending the conventions for many years told me it was a record breaker for work accomplished and in point of attendance.

"The Duluth delegation acquitted itself proudly, being much in evidence when questions of importance were under consideration, and the speech of Joseph Pratts against an effort to commit labor unions to an expression of political preference was acknowledged the oratorical effort of the session.

Secretary Barron, of the assembly, also speaks very highly of Mr. Pratts' speech, and, like President Perrault, says the convention was a grand success in every way.

There will be an important meeting of the Federated Trades assembly in Kahnamoo hall, 18 West Superior street, this evening, at which the returning delegates will make a full report of work and proceedings at Little Falls and take up a number of important matters of local interest.

It is probable that the question of re seating delegates returned to the assembly by locals, after those delegates had practically resigned for being critibised by certain members of the body for not taking an obligation to buy only union goods is likely to come up and stir up a hot debate.

FELL INTO THE GUTTER.

Horse Steps on Eye of a Bowery Character.

A bowery character by the name of Gaskell succumbed to a violent attack of decendio fasto at Fourth avenue west and Superior street shortly before 3 o'clock this afternoon.

After falling against the window of one of the stores and on the middle of the sidewalk, he fell off the sidewalk and rolled under a white horse attached to a delivery wagon.

The horse moved over a way when the man rolled against its hoofs and then stepped flemly, but carefully, on his right eye.

The streets were crowded and a gathering of several hundred people witnessed what might have been the remains if the horse had continued his stamping.

The police were summoned and they took the man to the station, where it was found that he was only slightly injured and he was locked up and booked as a "d and d" for falling.

The man is an artist of some ability, but hasn't been working at it for a long time, and is a frequenter of the Bowery saloons, where he exhibits his talents upon the floors and walls for a slight consideration. He is the son of a Scotch clergyman, a college bred man, but now a hard piece of wreckage which is continually stranding on police shoals.

ACCUSED BY HIS SISTER

On a complaint sworn out by his sister, Fred Ackerman was brought into the municipal court this morning charged with petty larceny. He pleaded guilty and was sentenced to ninety days in the county jail or a fine of $100.

About a week ago the young man entered the room in a house on West Tenth street, between Twenty-third and Twenty-fourth avenues, that was occupied by Susie Ackerman and her room mate, Annie Nelson.

He took two watches and some other jewelry. The police were notified, and for the last week have been on the lookout for the young man. Last evening Patrolman Wilcox found him on the boxcars and took him to the central station.

Some of the articles he returned to his sister, but one of the rings had been placed in a pawn shop and he had spent the money loaned on it.

The young man comes of a well-known and highly respected family in the West End. His sister is cashier in a West End department store, and he has several brothers who are popular and respected in that end of the city. Young Ackerman is the black sheep of the family, and has been in trouble before.

His sister called upon Chief Troyer this morning to ask his advice in regard to what should be done with the boy. She said she was anxious to reform him, but did not want to see him go to prison. During the conference with the chief she was overcome by the perplexity of the situation and wept bitterly.

The offense was serious enough to warrant a charge of grand larceny, but it was decided to include only one of the stolen articles in the complaint and have the young man arraigned on the charge of petty larceny, which is not a state's prison offense.

He pleaded guilty and under the circumstances Judge Windom had to give him the limit punishment by which the crime is punishable.

BUDGET BILL PASSED.

London, June 12.—In the house of commons today the budget bill was passed without a division.

Kodol gives strength by enabling the digestive organs to digest, assimilate and transform all of the wholesome food that may be eaten into the kind of blood that nourishes the nerves, feeds the tissues, hardens the muscles and recuperates the organs of the entire body. Kodol digests what you eat. Sold by all druggists.

WON TWICE; LOST ONCE

Parker's Injury Suit Is Gone For Good Now.

St. Paul, June 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—In the supreme court today William J. Parker, of Little Falls, loses his suit for personal injury damages against the Pine Tree Lumber company, after recovering two verdicts during a period of five years. He worked in a sawmill at Little Falls and on Oct. 13, 1895, was injured as he claimed, by a defective trimmer which he was operating. He sued for $2000 and got a verdict of $1000, which Judge Searle set aside. On the second trial he got a verdict for $1848 and Judge Searle refused to set it aside, but the company appealed and the supreme court ordered a new trial. On the third trial the case was dismissed on defendant's motion, and this action the supreme court upholds on grounds that plaintiff was clearly guilty of contributory negligence.

THE ROADS WIN.

Not Necessary to Produce Contracts or Answer Questions.

New York, June 12.—Judge Lacombe in the United States circuit court today handed down an opinion in the appeal taken by the interstate commerce commission against the coal carrying roads to compel the witnesses to produce certain contracts and answer certain questions in the W. R. Hearst proceedings. The contracts were refused by the witnesses on the advice of counsel. In the opinion Judge Lacombe sustains the positions of the railroad companies in every particular, except in one instance. President Truesdale of the Lackawanna & Western, is directed to answer certain questions regarding the details of general expense. Judge Lacombe holds as reason for this that documents regarding the items of expense were already in evidence. He holds that any contract referring to coal transportation should be produced, but no such contracts were called for.

CALLS WARE DOWN.

Mayor of Kansas City, Kas., Sends Message.

Kansas City, Kas., June 12.—Mayor Gilbert has sent the following telegram to E. F. Ware, commissioner of pensions at Washington:

"The relief committee invited you to come to Kansas City, Kas., and see if were correct in the statement that Kansas needs no aid for the 20,000 people homeless here. Is it right for us who are in need, to let our pride prevent charity coming to those who are really suffering when we cannot furnish it?"

JONES AND OAKLEY

Will Be Land Officers at Cass Lake.

Washington, June 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—Secretary Hitchcock has approved the recommendations of Representative Buckman, who endorsed J. D. Jones, of Long Prairie, to be register of the new land office at Cass Lake, and Egbert Oakley, of Buffalo, to be receiver. Secretary Hitchcock today laid these names before the president and their commissions will be issued to them in a few days.

Indianapolis, Ind., and Return $20.55.

On June 13 and 14 the Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis & Omaha railway will sell excursion tickets to Indianapolis, Ind., at the rate of $20.55 for the round trip. Final limit for return July 25. For full particulars call at city ticket office, 405 West Superior street.

STORM IN NEW ENGLAND.

Boston, June 12.—Telegraphic service in New England was demoralized today by a heavy bank of fog and by severe storms.

BRIGHAM ACQUITTED.

Judge Window Releases Him From Charge of Assault.

J. H. Brigham, who was arrested on the charge of assault as the outcome of his taking a horse and wagon from John Quackenbush, which had come to him on a foreclosed mortgage, was acquitted today by Judge Windom, who has had the case under advisement.

The evidence showed that no unnecessary force had been used in taking the horse from its former owner, and as the defendant had a perfect right to the steed and accoutrements, no crime had been committed.

PARADE OF INDUSTRY

Big Demonstration on First and Superior Streets Saturday.

The big industrial parade to be given in connection with the U. C. T. convention, will start from Eighth avenue West and Superior street, at 1:30 sharp tomorrow afternoon. The procession will go up Mesaba avenue to First street, thence east to Seventh avenue East then down to Superior street, and west to Fifth avenue, where excursion boats to give the visitors a ride on the bay and lake will be ready at the docks at the foot of the avenue.

It is hoped by the committee in charge that every merchant and business man in the city will make a special effort to have a float ready for the parade and have it in line when the time comes to start the procession. It is expected that a splendid display will be made.

Secretary Eva of the Commercial club, who has been receiving addresses of those who were willing to rent rooms during the traveling men's convention, has turned the lists over to the U. C. T. headquarters, where all assignments will be made. This should be understood so that Mr. Eva will not be called upon by various people to explain why he has not sent them roomers.

This afternoon the ladies of the local membeds of the U. C. T. are giving an informal reception to the visiting ladies in the Commercial club assembly rooms. The rooms are very prettily decorated with flowers and potted plants and are crowded with guests. Flaaten's orchestra is furnishing the music and light refreshments are being served. The men have been relegated to the card rooms.

WINDOW REVEALED SECRET

Clever Detective Work Caught the Counterfeiters.

"The common belief that men in my profession work upon one case at a time to the absolute exclusion of any other is a fallacy," said the old Secret Service man to the New York Tribune. "Of course when we are given an assignment we follow it earnestly and attentively, but at the same time we keep our eyes and ears open for anything that may lead to a clew in any of the cases—and they are generally numerous—that have baffled us in the past.

"And it has not been an uncommon occurrence for me to stumble suddenly upon the very information for which at some previous time I had spent many precious weeks, if not months, in search.

"I remember one occasion many years ago while I was investigating some pilferings in the mail service. I was a passenger on an Ohio River steamer on my way from Pittsburg to Cincinnati, and while the boat was lying at one of the small towns on the Kentucky side of the river I stepped upon the wharfboat and stood idly watching the deckhands loading a shipment of tobacco.

"While I was thus engaged a negro staggered past me, bending under the weight of a box upon his shoulder, and as our eyes met for a brief instant I heard him say: 'Golly, dis am de hebbiest terbacker I ebber tackled.'

"Instantly there swept through me a strange sensation, as though I had found a clew for which I had long been searching.

"Impulsively I followed the darky aboard the boat and noted where the box was stored. Later, when I had an opportunity, I casually inspected the box and found that it was marked 'M' and consigned to Cincinnati.

"I was about to lift one end of the box in order to test its weight when I noticed a small, dark-eyed man, who stood but a few feet away watching me keenly. The caution which I had developed from years of training in my profession prompted me to promptly turn my attention to other packages lying near, to idly examine them, and to leisurely ascend the stairs to the cabin of the boat.

"That the box concealed some mystery I now entertained no doubt. But I was baffled and knew not how best to proceed. That the black-eyed man was an important factor in the case I was confident, and I determined to keep an eye on him. But further than that I did not know how far I dared to go.

"During the remainder of the journey to Cincinnati I saw the man with the dark eyes several times. He was invariably in a position to note if any one should examine the box too closely.

"This circumstance, of course, did not escape my attention, and had the effect of increasing my suspicions. But I could get nothing tangible upon which to base a theory.

"From the clerk of the boat I learned that the shipper and consignee of the 'box of tobacco,' as it had been billed, were the same—probably the dark-eyed stranger. Further than that the clerk could give me no information. The man so the clerk informed me, was a stranger to him, although he made occasional trips to Cincinnati, always taking a box of tobacco with him.

"As the steamer neared Cincinnati my anxiety to fathom the mystery of the box naturally increased. For some reason I felt that I was upon the very threshold of an important revelation, but what this was to be I had not the power to even guess.

"When I finally reached the end of my journey you may be sure I kept watch of that box. I saw it carried aboard the wharfboat and expected to see the dark-eyed man hovering near. But in that I was disappointed, for, disembarking with the other passengers he took a bus and was driven away.

"When the confusion incident to the arrival of the boat had somewhat subsided I revealed my identity to the wharfmaster and requested that the box be opened. My request was granted, and when the lid was pried off I found, to my astonishment that the box was full of counterfeit silver coin—dollars and half dollars.

"Then, and not till then, it occurred to me that for a year past there had been reports of an abundance of counterfeit money along the Ohio Valley.

"Some of the best men in the service had been detailed to run down the makers of the 'bogus, but had been unable to do so, or even to obtain a definite clew.

"And I had stumbled upon by accident! For a moment I was actually stupefied with surprise and delight. Then, pulling my wits together, I ordered that the box be resailed and left intact to await the consignee.

"I next drafted the services of the local officers, and, giving orders that any one calling for the box should be arrested, I went in search of the stranger with the dark eyes. But I could not find him, and, so far as I know, he was never apprehended.

"A week later, when I had finished the job to which I had been assigned, I returned to Cincinnati. The box of tobacco was still at the wharfboat. The dark-eyed man had evidently 'got next.'

"But having stumbled upon a 'lead,' I had no intention of losing my game so easily. First confiscating the box of 'bogus,' I took the next boat up the river, and soon after landed at the little Kentucky town whence the box had been shipped.

"It did not take me long to locate the headquarters of the 'gang' for whom the dark-eyed man was a 'floater.'

"The 'gang' occupied a two-story brick house that stood in a gloomy ravine between two hills in the edge of the town. There were seven or eight of them and they were all smooth men. So I considered it wiser, before attempting to spring any traps, to procure assistance from headquarters.

"In due time four of the boys arrived, and we planned to make a raid early the following morning.

"Shortly after sunrise we surrounded the house, and, leaving two of the boys outside to see that no one got away, the other three, including myself, broke in the front door and proceeded to take possession of things.

"We found the men, all right, but what was just as important—evidence of their guilt—was lacking. I had learned enough to convince me that a mint was located in the building, but though we searched the house carefully from the dingy garret to the cellar that was darker than midnight, not a tool or mold or anything to indicate counterfeiting could be found.

"Of course the men under arrest protested their innocence, and the 'boys' had considerable fun at my expense. I will admit I didn't feel very comfortable. We decided, however, to put our men in the town jail, and, marching them between us, we left the building.

"Now, for some reason I chanced to glance back, after going a few yards from the house. What I saw caused me to grin, and one of the boys noticed me.

"'Well, what's the matter with you now?' he asked.

"'Don't you see?' I answered. 'Look at the light shining on that cellar window.'

"'What of it?' he demanded.

"'What of it?' I grinned; 'nothing, only there wasn't any window in the cellar we visited—it was darker than hades.'

"So we went back and finally found a trap-door that opened into a second compartment of the cellar. And there we found all the evidence we wanted. It was the most complete 'mint' I ever saw. But if it hadn't been for that cellar window—"

TRUE TO HIS FIRST LOVE.

More than a quarter of a century after her death, the body of Miss Sallie May Byers was disinterred by him who was once her suitor, and who has remained faithful to her memory ever since—Daniel E. Comstock, a member of the Union League club of New York, who built a large part of the Clover Leaf railroad system, and who is now a wealthy man, says the Indianapolis News.

Mr. Comstock says that his courtship of Miss Byers was his only affair of the heart and that his affection for her is as great today as it was when in 1876 he went to Frankfort, Ind., where she was a pupil. It was "a case of love at first sight," but death stepped in soon after the engagement had been announced. Miss Byers was laid to rest in the Odd Fellows' cemetery at Frankfort.

As the years passed her relatives died, until Mr. Comstock was the only person left to keep Miss Byers's grave green. When he learned recently that the cemetery was about to be cut up into building lots he boarded the first train from New York, purchased a lot in the picturesque Greenlawn cemetery and ordered the transfer of his old sweetheart's remains.

In honor of the memory of Miss Byers, Mr. Comstock has ordered the erection over her new grave of an imposing monument of granite, and has endowed the Frankfort high school where she was a student when he met her, with a fund to be used for prizes to be given graduates who excel in English language, literature and composition and in elocution, these having been Miss Byers's favorite branches.

ASSASSINS OF SERVIAN RULERS MUST SUFFER

Powers Will Insist Upon Their Punishment.

Such Crimes Cannot Be Tolerated By Them.

London, June 13.—A special dispatch from Rome says, a semi-official note published there declares that whoever is made king of Servia the powers will exact the punishment of the murderers of King Alexander and Queen Draga, as civilized countries cannot tolerate that administrative and military positions in a country should be occupied by assassins.

Belgrade, Servia, June 13.—At midnight last night tranquility prevailed here. The streets have practically been deserted since 9 p. m., with the exception of small military patrols, which paraded the thoroughfares. The palace was guarded by a cordon of troops. A general feeling of cheerfulness pervades the city, and according to reports the country also. The city continues beflagged. Minister of Commerce Genes, in an interview, said he considered that if there was any Republican tendencies in the country they were insignificant. The election of a ruler, he thought, could not occur before Tuesday, but it was almost certain Prince Peter Karageorgevitch would be elected. Prince Mirko of Montenegro had no chance whatever.

M. Genshics was reticent as to the event at the palace early on Thursday morning. He did not consider it expedient to publish an official account of what had transpired until matters had settled down. The minister added that should his secession the late King Alexander committed constant errors, and lost his hold on the public by his marriage with Draga Maschin, and the comedy played in connection with the preparations for the birth of an alleged heir. The coup d'etat was fixed for June 11, because on that day Queen Draga's wish to proclaim her brother, Mikodem, heir to the throne was to have been fulfilled.

M. Genshics concluded with endorsing Prince Peter Karageorgevitch as an honorable man and an earnest well-wisher of Servia.

The chief interest centers in the approaching session of the skupshtina. The election of Prince Peter Karageorgevitch as king of Servia is regarded as certain, although Prince Mirko of Montenegro may have some votes. Here and there a Republican tendency is noticed.

Notices have been placarded on the walls of Belgrade enjoining the people to observe the laws, and reminding them that meetings of any kind on the day preceding the assembling of the skupshtina, or during its session, are strictly prohibited.

Mingled with the general satisfaction felt at the success of the coup d'etat there is some sense of depression and anxiety at the possibility of foreign intervention.

The war minister has issued a decree dismissing several military commanders and appointing successors to their posts.

St. Petersburg, June 13.—In official circles here it is stated that none of the powers is inclined to raise difficulties in recognizing the soverign the Servian parliament elects, whose succession is calculated to end a dangerous condition which might lead to anarchy. An official note giving the views of the government follows:

"The tragic events at Belgrade have occasioned profound emotion in Russia, where there is the keenest interest in everything affecting the destinies of the Servian people. All the blood that has been shed can only awaken in Russia a feeling of compassion, which in the present instance is increased by the fact that the king and queen of a friendly state have fallen victims of a violent death, and that the dynasty, so closely bound up in the history of Servia is now extinct. The most fervent desire prevails in Russia that Serval, after this fearful tragedy, may be able to pursue peacefully the course of her national life in the direction which the patriotism of the Servian people and a proper conception of their supreme interests will indicate."

Paris, June 13.—The foreign office here today received two dispatches direct from the French minister at Belgrade, saying that the city and country are quiet and that the Servian officials say it is established that there is no truth in the reports that a portion of the Servian army is marching to attack Belgrade.

Constantinople, June 13.—The terrible drama at Belgrade caused stupefaction at the Yildiz palace. The sultan was so affected that he was unable to listen to the details published in the newspapers, and allowed those who conversed with him to speak of the "death" of the king and queen of Servia, and would not permit them to mention the word "assassination."

It is announced here that King Charles of Roumania, who was honorary colonel of the Sixth regiment of Servian infantry, which perpetrated the massacres at Belgrade, has severed his connection with the regiment, which, he considers, has given such horrible proof of lack of military honor."

IS FALLING SLOWLY

Mississippi Going Down Gradually In Vicinity of St. Louis.

A Much Faster Fall Is Predicted For Next Week.

St. Louis, Jun 13.—The river is falling at the rate of about .4 of a foot in twenty-four hours. This rate will probably be increased by Sunday or Monday to 1 foot in twenty-four hours and it is predicted by the local weather bureau that without floods from above or additional rain fall, the river will go down to the danger line, thirty feet by the latter part of next week.

There is very little change in the situation in East St. Louis, except that the falling river has filled the hearts of the flood sufferers with hope of speedy relief from discomfort and peril and will soon enable them to return to their ordinary pursuits and manner of living. It is expected that the embargo caused by the high water will be lifted from the stockyards, where business has been entirely suspended during the past few days, early next week.

GIVES UP TRIP.

Could Not Cross Ocean In an Open Dory.

Gloucester, Mass., June 13.—Ludwig Eisenbanm, who left Boston three weeks ago in a small open dory to cross the Atlantic, has returned and given up the trip. He went 350 miles to the eastward, making the gulf stream. There was no shelter on the boat and so much fog was encountered that Eisenbaum was wet from the start. The result was that he became stiff with rheumatism and was afraid he could not navigate the boat.

MOTION TO ACQUIT

Jett and White Promptly Refused By Judge Redwine.

Commonwealth Rests Case and Defense Ordered to Begin.

Jackson, Ky., June 13.—Court was convened this morning by Judge Redwine, and the trials of Jett and White charged with the assassination of Attorney James B. Marcum resumed. Commonwealth Attorney Boyd stated that the details sent out last night to arrest and bring into court Henry Freeman, a much wanted witness had returned without the man. Lieut. Canard and Deputy Whittaker sent by the commonwealth say that Goodloe Combs went along on the orders of Judge Redwine and to the surprise of the soldiers, when within a hundred yards of Freeman's house he ran ahead and fired two shots. He claimed that he saw something on the road. When the soldiers arrived at Freeman's house he was not there. Evidence is that the shots were that some garments had been left behind and his imprint in the bed was fresh.

His wife admitted that he had been there and she was held but Judge Redwine refused to have her as a witness. The anti-Hargis people say that Freeman is an important witness and they feel that he has been hired to remain away from court. Mr. Boyd says he would have to close the case without Freeman and submitted the case of the commonwealth. Attorney O'Neal for the defense moved for peremptory instruction dismissing the defendants. Judge Redwine excused the jury to hear the arguments on motion.

Attorney Golden made a lengthy address and by his vigorous manner showed none of the effects of the illness on which he asked for a continuance of the case yesterday. Thomas Marcum took his first prominent hand in the case by replying to the motion. His reply was very strong and intensely dramatic. O'Neal replied to Marcum. The motion to instruct the jury to acquit White was overruled. While heard the arguments with tears in his eyes. He was extremely nervous when they closed.

The defense, after their motion was overruled, asked till Monday to prepare their case and get their witnesses together. Judge Redwine told them he thought that would be an unnecessary delay and extended gave them till 2 o'clock this afternoon. The prisoners were permitted to stay in the court room till noon hour to consult with their counsel, but are under heavy guard which has been instructed to allow no outside conversation.

POSTOFFICE USED FOR PERSONAL PURPOSES

Department Officials Are Severely Condemned In Report Made By Civil Service Commission.

Washington, June 13.—Chairman Proctor of the civil service commission today submitteo to Postmaster General Payne the report made by the commission at the request of the postmaster general with reference to the charge of violation of the civil service regulations in the Washington postoffice. In addition to the report proper and a transcript of the testimony taken, Mr. Proctor presented a summary of the findings. This summary concludes as follows:

"A departure from the observance of the civil service rules appears in the promotions of certain employes in the Washington postoffice, which have been directed by the department, although reports of efficiency are neither requested nor received by the department."

The information disclosed by the investigation seems to warrant the statement that appointments to classified positions in the Washington postoffice without examination, by the devious method of appointment in small unclassified offices, or in offices about to be consolidated, and subsequent transfer, and the appointments of those laborers who were appointed and separated during the administration of the present postmaster general, show a wide departure in policy from a strict regard for the public interest, and afford indications that the department used the Washington postoffice for political and personal purposes to an extent which left the authority of the postmaster in transfers and appointments of this sort but little more than nominal, and placed the office, in many respects, in the relation of a bureau to the department.

The investigation seems to show clearly that most of the irregularities herein set forth were directed by the department or requested or suggested by high departmental officials, and in either case came to the postmaster with all the force of a direction.

Investigation indicates that employes who entered the service are in general, inferior to those appointed through competition.

That the service was packed with employes in the interests of the individual is indicated by the fact that the number of appointments in the month of the classification was more than twice as great as for the preceding four months.

These appointments made under the circumstances above set forth resulted in a congestion of the service, and when a reduction is to be made the employes appointed for political or person considerations are cared for, sometimes at the expense of persons appointed upon merit and without influence. In relieving the branches of the service thus crowded with employes, transfers are made to other parts of the service, to the injury of eligibles in line for appointment by reason of their ascertained fitness.

The passing of the war emergency, the amendment on December 31, 1901, of the rule referring to transfers and new provisions of the revised rules which became effective on April 15, 1905, will, it is believed, prevent the continuance of these abuses in the classified service and the adoption at the earliest practicable date of regulations for the employment of laborers in the Washington postoffice, in accordance with the executive order of March 20, 1905, will, there is reason to hope, put the employment of laborers on the basis of fitness and the needs of the service.

PRESIDENT TALKS

With Eugene Hay and Bede on Reciprocity With Canada.

Meeting of Joint High Commission to Be Called Soon.

FROM THE HERALD WASHINGTON BUREAU.

Washington, June 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—Eugene G. Hay, of Minneapolis, who is connected with the Minnesota division of the National Reciprocity league, of which John Miller, of Duluth, is president, is in Washington, and this morning, accompanied by Representative J. Adam Bede, called upon President Roosevelt and afterwards on Secretary of State Hay. Eugene Hay had quite a chat with President Roosevelt relative to the advantages which would accrue through reciprocal trade relations with Canada along certain lines, wheat and lumber, for instance, being the two chief industries touched upon. Senator Fairbanks, of Indiana, is chairman of the high joint commission, and it is expected that he will soon be in Washington and that a meeting will be called during the early summer for the discussion of the proposed treaty.

PAPER SUSPENDS.

Buffalo, June 12.—The Buffalo Review, which has been published during the last six years, has suspended. The affairs of the paper have been in an unsettled shape for several months.

WILL ARBITRATE TROUBLE.

Oakland, Cal., June 13.—That the building interests in this city may not suffer unnecessarily, the Mill Men's union has agreed with the mill owners to call off the strike which was ordered Thursday and submit to arbitration the differences between the employes and the employers. The strike affects directly thirty-five mills.

FIVE PERSONS ARE BURNED TO DEATH IN TENEMENT FIRE

Building Was Burned by Murderous Incendiary Who Saturated Hallways With Oil.

New York, June 13.—Five persons were burned to death early today in a flat building at 347 East Forty-seventh street. It is believed the fire was of incendiary origin. The dead:

Theresa DeCicco, four-years-old.

Camillo DeCicco, two-years-old.

Alfredo DeCico, four months.

Francisca Stefano, eight-years-old.

Guisseppe Cipriano, twenty-four years old.

It is asserted by the police that the hallways of the place had been covered with oil and that bundles of rags saturated with the same substance were found scattered about the place.

The fire was discovered by Idilio DeCicco, who lived on the third floor of the building. He was caring for a sick child when he smelt smoke and looking into the hall found it filled with smoke and flames. DeCicco's cries of "fire" aroused the other tenants, most of whom made their escape. DeCicco with his wife and one child were taken down a fire escape by a policeman who tried to return for others but was surrounded by flames at the third floor and was preparing to jump when the firemen arrived. The building at this time was fiercely burning but the firemen were sent up the ladders in an effort to rescue others. Cipriano was found on the top floor still alive but unconscious. He was taken to the hospital where he died half an hour later. Again the firemen started up the ladder but they were forced back by the blaze and further search of the building was impossible until the fire was extinguished. The bodies of the three DeCicco children were found on the third floor. The Stefano child was on the top floor, but was still alive. She died while an ambulance surgeon was trying to resuscitate her. Cipriano is thought to have assisted members of the Stefano family to the street, and was overcome by smoke when he returned to make further rescues. The police are of the opinion the fire was of incendiary origin and are investigating. There have been a numbr of incendiary fires in tenements in this locality and a number of lives have been lost.

THE GRAND TRUNK PACIFIC IS ASSURED OF SUCCESS

Will Build a Line Over Three Thousand Miles Long, Running From Ottawa to the Pacific Coast, With Several Branches.

New York, June 13.—Sir Charles Rivers-Wilson, president of the Grand Trunk railroad, who will sail for England today, says, regarding the proposed extension of the Grand Trunk lines through the Dominion of Canada to the Pacific coast, to cost $75,000,000, is now practically assured of success. The enabling bill, which will be the charter of the new road, has passed through all the committees of the Canadian parliament, and is about to be advanced to the third reading in the house of commons at Ottawa.

This charter provides for the organization of a separate company, to be known as the Grand Trunk Pacific railroad, with a capital of $75,000,000. Under this charter there will be built a line extending from Ottawa to the Pacific coast, over 3500 miles long, with several branch lines. From North Bay west the line will be practically as heretofore mapped out, passing through the cities of Winnipeg and Edmonton, and with branches to Port Arthur, Regina and Calgary. The possibility is also being considered of building a branch from Port Simpson to Dawson City, but under the charter, as now asked for, no provision has been made for this extension.

The road will be divided into the Eastern, the Prairie and the Rocky Mountain sections. It is believed that it will take over five years to complete the entire project.

It is asserted that the new route will provide the shortest line between London and the far East, and that it will also shorten the distance between many United States points and the far East, as Port Simpson is about 550 miles nearer the ports of China, Vladivostock and Manila than Vancouver or Seattle, and about 650 miles nearer San Francisco, while it is no further away than these ports from Hawaii, Australia and other important south sea ports. From Liverpool the distance to Yokohama will be 310 miles less than by the nearest existing line, and 1212 miles less than via New York and Vancouver. It will even be shorter than by the trans-Siberian railroad.

STRIKERS ARE MAKING EVERY EFFORT TO TIE UP ALL HOTELS

Chicago, June 13—With the union employes of twenty-six hotels, including practically all the large hotels in Chicago, already on strike, the officers of the Cooks and Waiters' unions announce their intention this morning of again turning their attention to the restaurants, cafes, etc. They have decided to stake the success of their movement for better working conditions, and, if necessary, even the existence of their union, on one effort that is to involve all the resources of their local and international unions. Particular attention, it is declared, is to be given the department store restaurants, and their first move will be against them. While they did their work thoroughly among the hotels, the strikers have succeeded in only partially crippling the service. Many of the affected establishments served breakfast with varying degrees of success today, and already there is a noticeable influx of outside help, which is being taken on as fast as presented. These non-union employes, together with the small proportion of help that has remained loyal, enable many of the hotels to care for guests with comfort.

Many of the restaurant owners informed their employes today that those who obeyed the union and struck would be permanently discharged. Restaurant owners and hotel proprietors alike have decided that unless the union agrees by Monday to submit their grievances to arbitration, in all places where the employes have walked out so far, the union would be ignored and the employes treated only as individuals. Hundreds of business men today carried their lunches from home with them, having learned that the hotel war would probably be extended to include all restaurants.

Early in the day George A. Schilling, in behalf of the National Civic Federation, appeared at the strikers' headquarters and offered the services of that body to arbitrate the differences between the men and their employers. In addition to the regularly appointed arbitration committee of the federation it was proposed to invite Joan Mitchell to become a member for this occasion and to give him the deciding vote. The offer was refused by the strikers, they declaring that arbitration would be accepted only as a last resort.

Attempts are being made to complete the tie-up of the hotels by stopping the delivery of supplies. Striking waitresses and chambermaids took a hand in the work, it apparently being believed by the unions that the appeals of the women would be of greater avail. Every effort, on the other hand, is being made to prevent the pickets getting into communication with the employes who have remained faithful and the new recruits. Police guards are stationed at each hotel where the strike is on, and a contingent is being held at Central station, ready to answer riot calls in the event of disorders occurring. No violence, however, has been attempted.

TOOK A SHOT AT ITALIAN CONSUL

Havana, June 13.—While the Italian consul here, Vitelo Tornielli, was seated in his office yesterday afternoon, a young Italian sailor entered and inquired whether he was the consul. On receiving an affirmative reply, he whipped out a revolver and fired, the bullet grazing the consul's head. The sailor turned and fled along the street, pursued by the consul. The miscreant ineffectively fired the only charge in his revolver at his nearest pursuers. He was finally overpowered and arrested. He gave the name of Pietro Alleney, and offered no explanation other than that he was compelled to do the deed. It is believed that he is insane.

INDIANS STAND OFF AGENT.

Missoula, Mont., June 13.—Trouble is brewing in the Flathead Indian reservation as the result of an attempt of an Indian agent to collect taxes on cattle where there are more than 100 head in a herd. Payment of the tax was refused by the redskins, and when Maj. Snead attempted to seize the cattle for the taxes the Indians stood him off with their rifles.

DEATH PENALTY FOR TWO.

Prescott, Ariz., June 13.—The case of San Francisco Rentzia and Eligol Hidalgo, two Mexicans charged with the killing of Charles Goddard and Frank Cox at Goddard's station last Thursday was given to the jury last evening and the verdict was rendered forty minutes later of "guilty of murder in the first degree." The jury named death as the penalty.

RIFLEMEN TO SAIL.

New York, June 13.—American riflemen who are to compete at Bisley, England, or the Palma trofphy, which the English experts won in Canada last year, have arrived from Seagirt, N. J., where they were practicing and will sail today on the steamship Lucania. On the team of twelve men, which includes four substitutes, are four New York men. The others came from Massachusetts, Pennsylvania, Ohio and the District of Columbia.

ATTEMPTED LYNCHING FRUSTRATED

Chicago, June 13.—A dispatch to the Record-Herald from Greeneville, Ill., says: A second attempt at lynching in Illinois within a week was frustrated last night by the vigilance of the authorities, who had removed the object of the mob's fury to a place of safety. At 10:30 o'clock a crowd of citizens went to the jail to secure Ben Lee, colored, accused of assaulting a white woman. The mob broke in the doors and found the prisoner gone. Sheriff Lloyd having taken him away about 7 o'clock.

THE NORTHERN SECURITIES COMPANY TO BE DISSOLVED

Apparently Well Authenticated Rumor That the Stocks of Great Northern and Northern Pacific Roads Will Be Distributed Among Former Owners.

New York, June 13.—It is stated by the American that the Northern Securities company will be voluntarily dissolved and that the stocks of the Great Northern and Northern Pacific companies will be distributed among the shareholders. In this manner the properties mentioned will be returned to their former owners. That preparations are being made for the dissolution of the Securities company is declared by the American to have been learned on the highest authority, but officials of the company refuse either to confirm or deny the statement. It is said, however, that the appeal now pending in the United States supreme court will be carried to its conclusion, so as to establish the legal status of such companies by the court of last resort.

The Northern Securities company was incorporated in 1901, with a capital of $400,000,000. Its formation was the outcome of a struggle for control of the Northern Pacific which precipitated the stock market panic of May 9, 1901.

EMBEZZLER ENDS HIS EXISTENCE

Chicago, June 13.—Having confessed to an embezzlement that probably will amount to $4000, Ernest Naoraji, a native of Ceylon, has shot and killed himself in the safety deposit vaults of the Prairie State bank, where he had taken his employer to reimburse him as best he could with the small savings he had there. Naraoji was cashier for Edward Rueb, a commission merchant. He was 28 years old, and came to Chicago from Ceylon six years ago.

The cashier frequently received remittances from Europe in addition to a liberal salary, and had told fellow-employes that he was the scion of a royal family in India. He was well educated and declared himself a graduate of English and East Indian universities. Naoraji asserted that all the money, together with that received from abroad, had been lost in gambling.

CLAIMS HE DID NOT

Mueller Denies That He Deliberately Threw the Game Yesterday.

Claims He Was Not In Condition—Game at Bemidji Sunday.

To charge that a player has deliberately thrown a game is a pretty serious matter in professional baseball, and the accusations that have been made against Pitcher Mueller border very closely on being sensational.

Mr. Mueller denies that he tried to throw the game and says it would be proper for the Northern League officers to make an investigation, and would be willing to take the consequences and be blacklisted if the assertions of dishonorable playing can be proven.

The pitcher feels badly about yesterday's incident and claims that he informed the management before going in that he was not in condition. In fact it was the intention to pitch McGaughey in the afternoon game, but the American Association twirler failed to arrive and Mueller was put in at the last moment. There is no denying his ability as a pitcher when he gets his stride. His work for the University of Wisconsin and with Minneapolis last season was of first class order. Walter Wilmot, who can usually tell the genuine article at sight, predicted that Mueller would be fit for the big leagues after a season of two with the latter.

The big fellow will probably go to Crookston get in form and finish the season strong, though at present the Duluth fans seem well satisfied with the management for trading him for Burns.

Some surprise has been expressed that Crookston should let such a fast man as Burns go from the outfield. It is understood that he and Capt. Quigley do not get along well together.

Yesterday Crookston had a regular famine of pitchers but today things are different. Two new twirlers have reported, Beebe and Higgins, both of whom are said to be good.

Instead of playing two games here today the fifth game of the Duluth-Crookston series will be played tomorrow afternoon at Bemidji, Minn. The town is said to be baseball crazy. The players leave here about 8 o'clock in the morning getting to Bemidji in time for the game. Duluth will return Monday morning and Crookston will open up at home Monday with Winnipeg. In the Bemidji game Gehring will probably pitch for the Cardinals.

Fans that like to see games between Duluth and Superior will have a whole week of their favorite amusement beginning Monday afternoon. The Cardinals will be at West Superior on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday and Superior will be at Athletic park on Thursday, Friday and Saturday. After that Duluth will will be away from home for eleven straight games returning here on the afternoon of July 4.

* * *

From advices received this morning it is probable that the new battery, Lesh and Hubbard, will be here for either Monday or Tuesday's game with Superior.

EXPENSES ARE HEAVY.

Philadelphia Man Cannot Live on $12,000 a Year.

New York, June 13.—Declaring his income of $12,000 a year inadequate to support him in the condition of life to which he is accustomed, Harry G. Moore, a member of an old and wealthy Philadelphia family, is bitterly fighting the collection of a judgment of $2000 obtained by his wife for alimony, which, at the rate of $223 a month, was awarded her last year.

Moore's fortune is one-third of the $3,000,000 left by his father. He pays only $62.50 for a flat, but his living expenses and regular payments on back debts, he avers, consume the balance of his income. He swears that it is absolutely necessary for him to spend $500 a month for carriages and cabs, at least $90 a week for household expenses and proportionately large sums for incidentals, in which he includes tailors' bills. "I'm about as poor a man as there is in the country, I think," he said at the examination.

NEW YORK'S SUBWAY

May Not Be Ready on January First.

New York, June 13.—According to William Barclay Parsons, chief engineer of the Rapid Transit company, the time margin under which it is possible to complete the rapid transit subway for the operation of trains by Jan. 1, 1904, has elapsed, and in order to open the subway for traffic on the date announced by John McDonald, the contractor, it will be necessary to carry on the work from now on without any interruption whatever.

This is the first acknowledgment by persons in charge of the construction work that the subway may not be completed this year. Mr. Parsons hopes, however, that some of the time which has been lost on account of the strike during the last two months may be made up.

KILLED AT A FIRE.

Glasgow, June 13.—Three men, three boys and a woman were killed and a number of persons were injured last night as the result of a fire at a distillery. Thousands of casks of spirits exploded, blowing down a wall of an adjoining mill. The victims were buried beneath the debris.

TERRIBLE TYPHOON.

Saigon, French Cochin China, June 13.—A typhoon of extraordinary violence swept over Hanoi, Namdinh and Thaibinh last night, causing much damage. Many natives perished and several Europeans were injured. Three trains were overturned between Hanoi and Namdinh.

DOCTORS DISAGREE

EACH GAVE MRS. BREWEN'S TROUBLE A DIFFERENT NAME.

None Helped Her, But Dr. Williams' Pink Pills Cured Her When Her Case Was Thought Helpless.

Prejudice and scepticism, however sincere, must give way before an honest presentation of facts, and any readers who may have hesitated to test the virtues of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People owe it to themselves to seriously consider a statement that is actuated solely by a desire to help others.

"I suffered with stomach trouble for three years," says Mrs. A. H. Brewen, of No. 403 North Sargent avenue, Joplin, Mo. "I had three doctors at different times. One of them said my trouble was indigestion, the second said it was gastritis, and the third pronounced it cancer of the stomach. None of them did me any good. At one time I was confined to my bed for nearly three months. Many of my friends thought I would never get better, and I began to think so myself.

"I had a headache pretty much all the time and suffered continually with a burning pain in my stomach. Sometimes I could hardly get my breath. My stomach would retain food but a few minutes, and I frequently vomited quite a lot of blood. My condition had become alarming when a friend recommended Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People, and gave me some that she had left after she was cured. They seemed to help me, and I bought another box. Before they were gone I was on the road to recovery. I have recommended Dr. Williams' Pink Pills to several of my friends and neighbors, and am glad of this opportunity to tell them what the pills have done for me."

Any reader who is suffering from stomach trouble should send for a copy of Dr. Williams' diet book, entitled "What to Eat and How to Eat." It is free, whether you try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills or not, and it has helped many to find renewed health and vigor.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People are not a new remedy, but have been used for years throughout the civilized world. As a blood builder and a nerve tonic the pills have no equal, and they have cured many cases of locomotor ataxia, partial paralysis, St. Vitus' dance, sciatica, neuralgia, rheumatism, nervous headache, the after-effects of the grip, palpitation of the heart, pale and sallow complexions and all forms of weakness either in male or female. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People are sold by all dealers, or will be sent postpaid on receipt of price, fifty cents a box, or six boxes for two dollars and fifty cents, by addressing Dr. Williams Medicine company, Schenectady, N. Y.

OUTLOOK IN ORE

Lake Superior Movement May Not Equal Last Year's.

Revival of Demand May Cause Shipping to Increase.

Cleveland, June 13.—The Iron Trade Review says: A good many of the best men in the business, among iron ore mining and selling companies, are figuring that Lake Superior ore movement this year will not exceed, if it equals, that of 1902. There are many causes that seem to indicate a lessened business. Strikes and unsettled conditions among consuming interests are among them; but perhaps more potent is the fact that conservative steel makers are not going to buy ore ahead of requirements, as they did last year, when the fixing of higher prices for Lake Superior ores has been followed by a receding movement in pig iron prices. One cannot receive 25 per cent excess over requirements very long without having an unwieldy furnace stockpile, and one is not apt to bring down more than needed when he thinks that by another spring he can get it for less price. There is little buying of Mesabas by Bessemers, though plenty of non-Bessemers of that range are going off. There was too great a difference between prices of the two grades compared with the slight chemical divergence.

Mesaba non-Bessemers, at present price, mixed with old range low phosphorus ores, come out of the furnace an all-Bessemer pig at minimum cost. Some large independent interests, that a year or two ago made heavy long-time contracts for the delivery of a guaranteed 61 per cent low-phosphorus Mesaba ore at $2.75 Cleveland, are shipping heavily, and quite naturally so; and the steel corporation is getting out its ore, especially from stockpiles, as fast as possible. Lake freights are low, and there may be a revival in the fall, in which case shippers consider it is well to have as much of requirements down early as possible. Some underground mines are laying off a few men, some are cutting the night shift, and some steam shovel properties are reducing their output. This is believed to be temporary. Many Bessemer mines have sold only about 50 to 75 per cent of their expectations and are ready for an increased demand. There are some thirty-five Mesaba mines, either new this year or were opened in a sort of preliminary way last year, and made initial shipments. These are all ready to ship largely, those of last year at once and those of this year either now or later in the season. Other new Mesaba mines, that were expected to be open this year, will scarcely get around to make delivery of any ore, and it is probably just as well that they cannot. Every facility has been furnished for a very much heavier ore movement than ever before, both by lake and rail transportation, by loading and unloading devices on the docks, and by preparations at the mines; and if there shall be a revival of demand for any class of ore later in the season it will be easier to fill it than it has ever been in the past, though it is probable that some mixtures and grades may suffer if purchases are left too long. The increase of facilities of all kinds is on a scale that is scarcely realized, and it would be an easy matter to make lower lake delivery of 33,000,000 to 35,000,000 tons this year, if it could be handled away from the docks and if there was demand for it.

At Mrs. Schuyler's Ball

By L. C. Howe.

(Copyright, 1903, by Daily Story Pub. Co.)

With all the wealth of the Rothbilts back of her, Caroline had been brought up with the belief that she must not let herself go too cheaply. Nothing else than an English earl, or a Russian prince, could aspire to her and her famous silver mines. So when Prince Austerlitz and his suite came to visit America, and incidentally to find an heiress wealthy enough to retrieve the Austerlitz fortunes, the world and his wife pointed to Caroline Rothbilt and said:

"She is the one. There is no other who stands a ghost of a chance to be princess. She can outbid all heiresses of America; her wealth is fabulous."

Mrs. Cortland Schuyler was the fortunate leader of society, upon whom was conferred the honor of introducing the prince and his suite to the world of America. She had planned a ball that should outrival the Bradley Martins'. The only disappointment she had had in her preparations was the fact that Caroline Rothbilt had been unable to accept her invitation to the dinner that should precede the ball; Caroline and her fabulous wealth had been one of the drawing cards in attracting the prince. Notwithstanding her absence, however, the dinner was pronounced the most magnificent ever given in New York, and the dance that followed was as brilliant and sumptuous as a colossal fortune could make it.

Caroline was late at the ball, and Mrs. Schuyler was almost in despair, when the prince had asked for the third time if the lovely Miss Rothbilt were not to appear at all. Her entrance was all the more effective when she did arrive, and the prince watched her eagerly from his place beside Mrs. Schuyler, as she pointed out the heiress to him. Flushed, radiant, her superb shoulders and neck rising flowerlike from a filmy pink cloud of drapery, the famous Rothbilt pearls gleaming softly on her bosom and in her hair, she drew the attention of everyone in the room as she made her way to her hostess.

The rooms were filled with the most beautiful women in America, with a gay sprinkling of brilliant foreign uniforms of the prince's suite against a background of sober, conventional evening dress. The gorgeously decorated house, full of priceless paintings and bronzes and tapestries made an appropriate setting for the gay scene. Caroline felt that she had stepped into some old-world palace.

With ill-concealed eagerness her hostess brought up the prince and his secretary to be presented to her, and all the world stopped a moment in its mad career and watched the portentious meeting. Both men bowed low before her in their courtly foreign fashion, and both looked upon her with open admiration in their eyes. That much the world could see.

The prince was a magnificent specimen of manhood. One could tell at a glance that the blood of a race of nobles flowed in his veins. Tall and muscular, with the body of a Greek athlete, and the head of an Adonis, he was in striking contrast to his secretary, who was small, premature old, with a face lined with dissipation, a face weak, uninteresting, almost repulsive to beauty-loving Caroline. She imperiously turned her back upon him, leaving him to the tender mercies of her hostess. As long as destiny had ordained her to be the wife of a great man, what good fortune that such a one as this prince should be sent to her!

When their eyes met a swift electric flash thrilled them both. "It is destined," he murmured to himself.

She refused the secretary curtly, when he pleaded for a dance, and a look of hatred and hurt pride followed her and her prince, as they moved toward the ballroom, a stately couple in their youth and perfect physical beauty. He danced as only an Austrian can, and after their third waltz together, with eloquent eyes he bent his beautiful head down and whispered: "You waltz divinely, as no American I have ever seen. One would think you were an Austrian."

She was indignant at herself, as she felt the color mount into her cheeks, and knew that he, too, saw it, for he murmured low: "You are a beautiful blush rose in that gown, which is like a bit of sunset cloud. Come in here, where it is cool," and he led her toward the great, dimly-lighted conservatory.

The air was heavy with the fragrance of lilies and roses, a fountain tinkled and splashed softly into a marble basin. From the ballroom floated dreamy music, softened by the distance. Among the palms was a seat of carved ebony, and there, in the dim, rose-colored light, they sat down.

Caroline was swayed by an emotion, of which she had never thought herself capable, as the prince's glorious eyes were bent adoringly on her face. She had laughed at love before as an idle fancy, a mere imaginary fantasy of poets. She had never dreamed of the power that it could wield.

How long they sat there she did not know, or care, as he told her of his Austrian home, of his hopes and fears and ambitions, poured them all out in a boyish longing for a confidante. As the moonlight shone softly down upon them, through the clear glass, the prince was back in his loved homeland, in the semi-tropical night. Suddenly he stopped, confused.

"I know not why I tell you this, Miss Rothbilt," he said, "I am not accustomed to talking thus solely of myself; you must forgive me. I have never told anyone these things before, but you understand. I think I have known you always. I am sure that our souls played together in Paradise in the long ago. I want you for a friend. I will tell you something about myself."

He rose and stood before her, looking down at her in a certain masterful way that she both loved and feared.

"If I want a thing, Miss Rothbilt, I would go through hell itself to get it. I want your friendship—or love." His voice trembled and was full of a lingering sweetness. "I need it. You little know what I would do for love of this rare kind, such as yours would be. I know of no torture on earth, nor can conceive of any in hell, that I would not laugh at, while enduring it, if I knew it would bring me to you."

Caroline listened with downcast eyes, as the musical, impassioned voice went on and then ceased. She was swayed by a feeling stronger than anything she had ever known. Men had made love to her before, but no one had ever had this masterful, compelling sweetness. She was half afraid, and yet she, too, felt this strange familiarity about him, as though somewhere she had known him before. Something had come into her life, a new unknown force, and whether he were prince or peasant it would have been the same to her.

She trembled, as she raised her eyes to his, eyes full of tears, and held out her hands to him. He fell upon one knee beside her and clasped the little hands, pouring out his love and fealty in broken words.

"I know not who you are," he said, "I know nothing about you except that I love you as few women are ever loved. I knew it the moment I looked into your eyes. I am nothing. I have little to offer you. I am poor, but what I have I lay at your dear feet."

She laughed lightly. "Ah, you say that to me," she said. "Nothing to offer, when you hold all power in your hand! You are jesting—prince."

The man started to his feet. A look of surprise and despair stole into his dark eyes.

"Ah, carita," he cried, with passionate sadness, "You have made a mistake. I am the prince's secretary. He is the prince."

He pointed into the ballroom, where the other, weak, sensual, leering, was bending over his hostess, who was smiling upon him, as though he were one of the gods come down from Olympus.

"You are not the prince?" cried Caroline, slowly, looking from one to the other, while he, drooping, despairing, sank down upon a seat at a little distance, and buried his face in his hands. Then a great light shone in her eyes, as she rose and went to him and raised his bowed head.

"I care not whether you are of royal blood or not," she said. "You are a man—and I love you."

SLEEPLESSNESS.

So many persons nowadays suffer from insomnia or from unrefreshing sleep that whatever points the way to relief or mitigation of the evil has special interest for them, says the Indianapolis Journal. Young persons do not suffer in this way, and can only imagine what a distressing affliction it is, but a great many middle-aged and elderly persons know from experience how insomnia saps the strength and weakens the vitality. For sleep is as essential to life as eating is. Existence depends on one as much as it does on the other. Indeed, a person can go without food longer than he can without sleep. During every moment of wakefulness and activity the nervous strength and vitality are being exhausted, while every moment of natural sleep recuperates. Its importance in physic and hygenic is far from being appreciated by people in general.

A recent writer on the subject presents some useful information regarding it, and some hints that may be valuable to sufferers from insomnia—at least, to some such sufferers, for insomnia comes from different causes, and the same treatment is not equally effective in all cases. Everybody knows that children require more sleep than adults, but this author says that youth, until the age of 20 is reached, requires fully ten hours sleep, and that anything less than this is an overdraft on nature's bank account. Young persons who frolic until midnight and report at school or business office at 8 or 9 o'clock the next morning do not realize that they are shortening their lives. Moreover, sleep before midnight is more refreshing and recuperating than sleep after midnight. Early sleep has been called "golden sleep," and there are physical and anatomical reasons why it is better than late sleep.

This author urges cultivating the habit of regular sleep and guarding against the habit of wakefulness. The latter, if permitted to continue, is apt to become chronic insomnia. Of this the author says:

"By far the most common cause of sleeplessness is indigestion in its various forms, due in the majority of cases to injured nervous systems. The nerve racking mental strain which business men undergo, or the everlasting sameness of certain wearying mental work and its terrible monotony, are most pregnant sources of insomnia. These conditions could be at least palliated by a certain amount of muscular activity; and, in fact, physical exercise is an absolute necessity for sound sleep. * * * Everything requiring mental exertion should be laid aside before dinner, and the evening be entirely devoted to recreative enjoyment. Above all, avoid irritation; cultivate cheerfulness and a happy contented mind; do not bring business cares home to par the household. Drop them."

Most persons know that the physical condition of wakefulness is a full flow of blood to the brain, causing cerebral activity. Sleep is preceded by the diminution of blood in the cerebral vessels and whatever tends to withdraw the blood from the brain tends to produce sleep. To create this condition artificially or to compel sleep by opiates or sedatives is not to cure sleeplessness. A harmless drug may be used occasionally at long intervals to break up the habit of sleeplessness, but the drug habit is worse than the other. Drugs diminish the resistance, impair the strength, require an ever-increasing dose and establish a condition of slavery. Among the natural means of drawing the blood from the brain and inducing drowsiness, which is the percursor of sleep, a hot foot bath is highly recommended. A warm bath acts as a sedative for most persons, though a hot one is likely to prove stimulating. A glass of hot water before retiring has a sedative effect with some persons. Often it is advisable for the stomach to have sufficient work for the blood to do, thus drawing it from the brain. This does not mean that a meal, such as will keep the digestive apparatus busy half the night, is a cure for insomnia, or a preventive of it, but that something light and easily digested and a very moderate amount of it, will often induce sleep. Physical exercise before retiring of a kind calculated to draw the blood to the extremities and continued almost to the point of fatigue is often beneficial. Drugs to produce sleep should never be used except on the advice of a physician, and a wise physician will be cautious in prescribing them. Finally:

"Those who wake during the night and are unable to fall asleep again, should on no account be tossing about, fretting at fate. Such a course invariably prevents the return of sleep. It is better to rise, throw back the covers to allow the mattress and sheets to cool, walk two or three times around the room, draw a few deep breaths, fill the lungs with oxygen, brush the hair, take a drink of water, and then go back to what will feel like a cool, fresh bed. If that does not prove efficacious, take to a novel or some other light reading, to temporarily occupy the mind. Such readings is at once a soothing comfort and an aid to sleep."

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS ON TWO CANES

CURED BY DR. MITCHELL

Mr. Garland, Blind Eight Weeks, Cured By Dr. Mitchell, After Ten Other Doctors Fail.

Two of the most remarkable cures ever performed by human hands took place last week at 17 East Superior street, by the laying on of hands. Mr. Richard, from the southern part of the state, had been a cripple for twenty-five years, and all of that time had not been able to move without the use of two canes. He was brought to Dr. Mitchell's office about six weeks ago. After ten days' treatment he was able to walk without his canes, and now you would not know he had ever been lame. This morning he walked out of the office to return to his home, after telling a number of patients who were waiting about his marvelous cure.

Mr. Garland, from the range, was taken with sore and inflamed eyes. He applied to his family physician and received no benefit. He went to an eye and ear infirmary, but failed to find relief. He gradually grew worse, but kept trying different physicians until he had tried ten different doctors, and finally he went entirely blind, without hope, and totally blind he was led to Dr. Mitchell, who cured his eyes and restored his eyesight by his magnetic treatment.

Mr. Silas Williams, of Mattewa, Minn., cured of lung and heart trouble.

Mrs. M. Lautwe, of Grand Forks, cured of female weakness. Was about to have an operation performed, came to Duluth and was cured by Dr. Mitchell in three months. This statement can be substantiated by calling at 125 North Fifty-sixth avenue west.

If you are blind or have any disease of the eye, consult Dr. Mitchell. He cures blindness, removes cataracts, scums, films and white spots on the eye, granulated lids, weak and sore eyes. If you are crippled in any way or suffering from any cause, do not fail to consult this great healer. He will tell you if he can cure or benefit you, as he does not care to handle incurable cases, but cases considered incurable by others are cured by Dr. Mitchell. Office at 17 East Superior street.

KING WAS IN FEAR

Alexander Lived In Terror the Last Weeks of Life.

The Palace Was Searched Every Night For Bombs.

Vienna, June 13.—It is now known that the late King Alexander lived in a state of terror during the last weeks of his life. Nightly, soldiers belonging to the Pioneer's division, searched the palace from roof to cellar, peering into all dark corners for bombs. Each night the king was securely locked in his bed chamber by the adjutant, in the presence of the palace commander. It is also stated that for several weeks the late Queen Draga had prepared for flight, independent of the king, who is supposed to have been gradually growing reconciled to the project of his divorce from Draga and his marriage with Princess Xenia, of Montenegro. The conspirators are reported to have learned this, and, fearing the marriage would prove a continuation of the Obrenvitch dynasty, hurriedly commenced the task of extermination.

Lately King Alexander tried vainly to become reconciled with exiled Servians, which also increased the anxiety of the conspirators. Queen Draga's sisters were permitted to have a last look at the body of the late queen. They say the corpse was shrouded in white silk. The youngest of Draga's sisters was carried away unconscious.

In the late king's desk there was found in addition to various interesting private papers, about $10,000.

The Austrian foreign office pays scant attention to the reports that Prince Peter may renounce his claims to the Servian throne in favor of his eldest son. The officials here consider this quite improbable, especially as it would necessitate a regency, which, under the present circumstances, would be dangerous. The chances of Prince Mirko, of Montenegro are regarded as being slim.

Paris, June 13.—At the council of ministers today Foreign Minister Delcasse communicated to his colleagues telegrams from Belgrade, saying that the provisional government had communicated to the Servian ministers abroad a formal notification of the new regime's assumption of power and that the Servian authorities were determined to give the skuptschtina complete liberty of action in the choice of a king.

The Servian legation here has received a number of dispatches from Belgrade. They say no woman, except Queen Draga, was assassinated, and declare that it was not intended to kill her, but to compel the royal pair to consent to a divorce.

When they refused it was proposed that the king abdicate and depart with the queen. He answered by shooting Col. Naumovics, which brought on a general melee, resulting in several deaths. The queen's sisters have been conducted to the frontier. The official Servian dispatches confirm the press and other statements to the effect that the provisional government has decided to leave the choice of a king to the skuptschtina.

The Patrie quotes M. Georgevatch, secretary of the Servian legation, as saying that Queen Draga was the chief cause of the uprising which was also due to popular resentment of King Alexander's course in establishing a legislative body without including any representatives of the opposition.

NEW SCHOONER WRECKED.

Old Orchard, Me., June 13.—Wreckage found off this point indicates that the new five-masted schooner Washington Thomas of Thomaston, Me., has probably been lost.

Included in the wreckage were a number of life preservers marked "Washington B. Thomas." A trunk full of personal effects bore the name of "J. B. Foster, master." Pieces of small boats, stateroom doors, rigging, etc., have come in. Nothing has been heard of the Thomas, which was due off the cape bound from Norfolk with coal for Randall & McAllister, of Portland.

A big crowd has been on the beach watching an unknown four-master ashore off Stratton's Island when they discovered the wreckage coming ashore. The debris did not correspond with what should have come from the four-master so it was the conclusion that another big schooner had been wrecked off Cape Elizabeth. The storm has been a terrible one.

The trunk washed ashore was opened later and found to contain a chart bearing the name of Capt. William J. Lemond, the commander of the Washington B. Thomas, and cards bearing the name of Mrs. Lemond, who was aboard the schooner when she left Norfolk.

BIG STEAMER ASHORE.

St. Johns, N. F., June 13.—The Allen Liner, Norwegian, Captain White, from Montreal for Glasgow, with a general cargo of cattle, went ashore at Cod Roy today. It is likely that she will be a total loss. Her crew are throwing her cargo and cattle overboard.

The steamer Norwegian (formerly the City of New York and previous to that the Delaware), is of 2253 tons net burden and was built at Glasgow in 1885. She is 375 feet 2 inches long, has 39 feet beam.

RUINS OF CITY FOUND.

Chicago, June 13.—A dispatch to the Inter-Ocean from Mexico City, says: The ruins of a large city have been discovered in a remote part of the state of Pueblo by Francisco Rodriguez, who has just made a report of his find to the government authorities here.

The city contains large pyramids and extensive fortifications. It is located in the midst of a dense forest and a large amount of excavation will be necessary to learn its true extent and importance. A commission will be appointed to explore the ruins.

GERMANS AT MADISON.

Madison, Wis., June 13.—The forty-seven German agriculturists making a tour of the country, are here today inspecting the University of Wisconsin agricultural department. The party will leave for Milwaukee this evening.

ARSORBS NAVIGATION COMPANY.

Tacoma, June 13.—The Canadian Pacific railroad has absorbed the Canadian Pacific Navigation company, with headquarters at Vancouver and has taken over its fourteen steamers plying between Victoria, Skagway and other points. As yet there is no change in the Alaska tariff, but local lines expect that when any large amount of business is open to competition the Canadian road will be a formidable rival.

FOR FLAG DAY

General Celebration Monday All Over the City of Duluth.

Programs at the City Hall and Several Fire Halls.

All arrangements have been made for the first general celebration of flag day in Duluth.

Monday all public buildings—federal, municipal and county—will have the Stars and Stripes conspicuously displayed. Business houses and homes will be decorated with the national color.

The flag raising ceremony at the city hall and various fire halls will occur promptly at 9:30 o'clock in the morning. Laumeis' band has been engaged by the various city officers and city hall employes, to render a short program of national music.

There will be a gathering in the council chamber addressed by Mayor Hugo, President Haven and Comptroller McCormick.

At fire headquarters the firemen and their friends will have a flag raising ceremony and hear a short address from Judge White.

At No. 2 fire hall, in the West End, the speaker will be Dr. J. M. O. Tufty, while at No. 3 Hon. U. O. Baldwin will deliver the address. At No. 4 fire hall, in the East End, Clarence Miller has been chosen to speak. At Lakeside, John Norton, and at West Duluth Alderman Lucien A. Barnes.

It has been suggested by many that a public mass meeting should be held for the celebration of the 126th anniversary of the adoption of the country's flag.

The mayor talked this over with a number of citizens and decided that if the proper amount of patriotic spirit was shown in the city celebration of Monday, the anniversary in the future should be observed with an appropriate meeting of all citizens.

WILL FURNISH STONE.

George A. Wieland Gets Contract From Government.

The United States government chief engineers have accepted the bid of George A. Wieland, of this city, to furnish 45,000 cubic yards of broken stone or pebbles for the construction work of the south pier at the Superior entry. Mr. Wieland was the lowest bidder, his bid being $1.08½ per cubic yard delivered in the stockpile at the entry.

The government will soon advertise for bids for five hoisting engines and a sand pump with complete outfit in connection with the pier work. Other equipment will also be advertised for in turn and the government will have a large works at the old entry by the time the construction work is well under way.

PLAYED IN TOUGH LUCK.

Fishing Party Has Hard Work to Get Horses.

Messrs. Paul, Perry and Kohagen of County Treasurer Whipple's office, after nearly a full week of planning and negotiating for a rig, left the city shortly after 10 o'clock last evening for a fishing trip at Knife river over Sunday. Grave fears were expressed at the county treasurer's office whether the team would live long enough to haul the party back to Duluth and a searching party will be sent out Monday morning if the members of the party do not show up.

Monday of this week a rig was engaged by three fishermen, but the owner of the horse backed out the next morning. Another rig was engaged, but the horse died a few hours later. A third rig was hired and everything was believed to be "all fixed," when the owner decided that he had other use for his horse.

A cloud of disappointment hung around the treasurer's office until late yesterday afternoon when one of the party telephoned that a fourth team had been engaged and he would remain with it until it started for the fishing grounds. It is claimed by other employes at the courthouse that one of the horses in the last team is blind and the other has some other sort of ailment.

BRITT TO MEET O'KEEFE.

Butte, Mont., June 13.—Jimmy Britt, of California, will meet Jack O'Keefe, of Chicago, here this afternoon in a twenty round contest for the white lightweight championship of the world. The contest will take place at the baseball grounds which has been arranged to accommodate 15,000 people. Britt appears to be the favorite, considerable money being placed on him at odds of 10 to 7.

THE SAMSHUI SAFE.

Manila, June 13.—The United States steamer Samshui, which June 5, was reported to have been wrecked during the hurricane which swept over the Philippine islands, has arrived here safe.

THE DOCTOR'S SAMPLE.

How His Wife Used It.

The wife of a physician of Causey, N. C., had an exerpience that shows how valuable a thing it is to have some one handy who knows the way out of coffee ills. Her husband, the physician, knew that the way to satisfy the craving for coffee and cure the coffee troubles, both at the same time, was to prescribe Postum Cereal Food Coffee. "I was so bad off from drinking coffee," writes the wife, "that everything I eat hurt me.

"My stomach was so bad that I would spit up my food as soon as I would get done eating, but I kept on drinking coffee and getting worse off. When I first got sick I weighed 176 pounds and finally got down to 118 pounds. My husband, who is a physician, sent for a sample of Postum and I commenced to drink it. I found that when it is made right it is good, and I improved so much on the sample that I got more from my grocer. I improved so much that my brother's family all quit coffee and went to drinking Postum with fine results. Everywhere I went my neighbors wanted to know what I had done to get my health and flesh back, and lots of them have quit coffee and gone to using Postum.

"I am proud of the fact that I have been the means of helping so many poor coffee fiends back to health.

"My husband always recommends it in his practice when he finds his patients are coffee drinkers. I was a sick woman when I was drinking coffee, but now I am well and it is all due to having quit coffee and steadily used Postum instead." Name furnished by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

AT WEST DULUTH

The West Duluth Commercial club held its regular weekly meeting last evening.

President Hubbard of the Zenith Telephone company was present, and the matter of the rates of the Zenith company was again taken up. The arguments of the company in favor of allowing an advance in the rates were advanced by Mr. Hubbard, and a lively discussion followed, some of the members of the club taking one side and some another. The opinion of many of the members seemed to be that the position taken by the company was a fair one, and that the citizens of Duluth owed much to the company for the manner in which telephone service had been improved since it entered the field. No action was taken, however, and the matter was allowed to lay over until the next meeting.

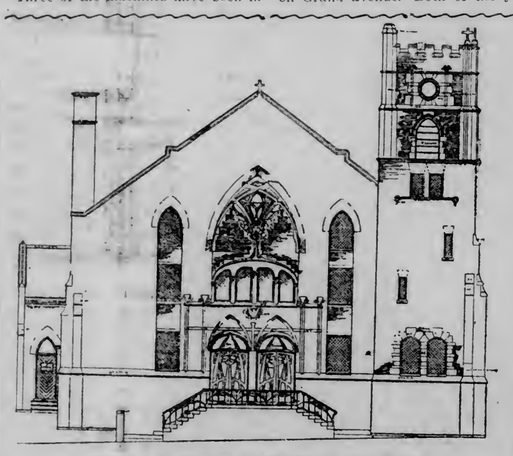
The lateness of the hour prevented the subject of street paving from being taken up, and it was also allowed to remain over until the next meeting of the club.

DISTRIBUTING MATCHES.

Union Match Factory Showing Travelers Its Product.

The management of the Union Match company is distributing small sample boxes of matches among the members of the U. C. T. They are some of the first matches to be turned out by the newly-equipped plant, and are said to be a very excellent grade.

Three of the machines have been installed, and are now turning out matches. The work of installing the other seven is progressing rapidly, and as fast as each is placed in position it will commence running. It is hoped to have all of the machines installed before the fall, when the company will have one of the best-equipped factories for the manufacture of matches in the Northwest. It will employ a large number of hands and will be a notable addition to the industries of West Duluth.



NEW ST. JAMES CATHOLIC CHURCH.

The accompanying cut is a reproduction of the front elevation of the new St. James Catholic society, on Fifty-seventh avenue, in West Duluth. The plans for the new building were prepared by Hill & Bray, local architects. The church will be built of brick and stone and when completed will cost in the neighborhood of about $20,000. It will be one of the handsomest modern church structures in the Northwest, and will have some elegant ornamental designs.

The erection of the new church means the consummation of the hopes of several years by Rev. Father Feehely and his parishioners. The structure will face on Fifty-seventh avenue west, and is centrally located so far as the St. James communicants are concerned. The interior fittings of the church will be simple, but substantial.

LOSES PART OF LEG.

Charles Pollock Injured By a Missabe Train.

Charles Pollock, the young son of W. S. Pollock, of 1913 North Fifty-sixth avenue, suffered a severe accident yesterday afternoon while crossing the tracks of the Duluth, Missabe & Northern railway at the head of Fifty-seventh avenue. He was knocked down by the train, which passed over his left foot, leaving it in a horribly mangled condition.

A carriage was immediately telephoned for by bystanders who witnessed the accident, and the young man was taken to the Red Cross hospital, where his injuries were attended to by Dr. Keyes. His left leg had to be amputated about six inches below the knee, and he is now resting quietly. It is not thought that his injuries will result fatally, unless complications set in.

The accident happened at about 5 o'clock.

SUNDAY SERVICES.

Order to Be Observed In West Duluth Churches.

At the Oneota M. E. church, corner of Forty-sixth avenue west and Halifax street, children's day services will be held at 11 a. m. The pastor, Rev. E. K. Cooper, will have a baptism service for children, and all who may desire baptism. The Sunday school will meet at 10 a. m. There will be no evening service on account of the union service in the First M. E. church. The following will be the musical program for the morning:

Song, "Come With Singing" ..... Choir.
Recitation ..... Intermediate class.
Song, "Rose of Sharon" ..... Young ladies' class.
Class exercises ..... Intermediate class.
Song, "Pretty Golden Buttercups" ..... Intermediate class.
Recitation ..... Song, "Hear Us, We Pray," ..... Class exercise ..... Recitation ..... Baptism ..... Song, "Victory, Victory" ..... Choir.

Children's day will be observed at the Westminster Presbyterian church tomorrow morning at 10:30 o'clock. There will be special music by the choir, recitations by members of the Sunday school and a short address by the pastor, Rev. W. J. Lowrie. In the evening Mr. Lowrie will preach at Duluth Heights on "The Triumphal Entry." Christian Endeavor will meet at 7 p. m. "Three Good Angels" will be the subject of the morning sermon by Rev. Arthur Hoag at the West Duluth Baptist church tomorrow. At 8 p. m. the annual children's day exercises will be held and the pastor will give a blackboard talk to the scholars. Sunday school will meet at 12 o'clock and B. Y. P. U. at 7 p. m.

Confirmation services will be held tomorrow morning in the Norwegian Lutheran church, corner of Fifty-seventh avenue west and Wadena street, at 10:30 o'clock. Communion service will be held in the evening at 7:45 o'clock.

Children's day services will be held in the West Duluth Congregational church tomorrow morning at 10:45 o'clock. In the evening, at 8 o'clock, Rev. E. A. Mirick will preach on "Heaven." There will be infant baptism at the morning service.

At the Asbury M. E. church the pastor, Rev. J. C. Hartley, will preach in the morning at 10:30 o'clock on "Lessons From the Life of John Wesley." Sunday school will meet at 12 o'clock. There will be no evening service.

WEST DULUTH BRIEFS.

David S. Long, a former resident of West Duluth, at present living in Morris, Minn., is in the city to attend the convention of the U. C. T., and is visiting his old friends in West Duluth. Since leaving West Duluth, fate has dealt kindly with Mr. Long and this spring his fellow-citizens elected his mayor of the city of Morris. Eight years ago Mr. Long was one of the best known citizens of West Duluth and is spending his time in the city renewing old acquaintances.

C. A. Stoddy of Kaisey, Minn., is in West Duluth today on a business trip.

Charles Boklen of Brainerd is registered at the Phillips hotel.

A. Woodward of St. Paul is in the city on business and is stopping at the Phillips.

Miss Sadie Scanlon and Steven Krackenberg were married Thursday evening by Rev. J. C. Hartley of the Asbury M. E. church, at the home of the bride, on Grand avenue. Both of the young people are well known in West Duluth. They will make their home here.

H. R. Patterson has received his stock of undertaking supplies and is prepared to answer all calls promptly. H. W. Bingham, licensed undertaker and embalmer, has been engaged by Mr. Patterson to superintend the work of the undertaking establishment. Either phone 3070.

THE WILD WEST SHOW.

Performance Arouses No Enthusiasm Among Duluthians.

The Forepaugh-Fish Wild West show, which lays great accent upon the "Forepaugh" and as little as possible on the "Fish"—probably presuming upon finding "fish" enough among those who attend it—played at the West End grounds this afternoon, and tonight will again endeavor to extract some of the Duluthian dollars from the pockets of its citizens.

Altogether it is a pretty poor aggregation, and seems to be preying upon the popularity of the Wild West performance given by Col. Cody and his great show.

Such success as may come to it in this way will be only temporary.

In other cities where it has appeared there have been complaints as to the maintenance of games of chance and the presence of fakirs with the show, but the police here were watching closely for such things.

Unfortunate Position.

Capt. Henry T. Johns, who used to be a Duluthian but now lives in Washington, is making an energetic attempt to get back his old position in the pension department, which he left to aid in the removal of Commissioner Evans. He is said to have secured information that was largely responsible for Evans' removal, but notwithstanding, he has not been able to get his position back. He is 74 years of age, and now that he is out, finds it hard to get back, owing to the reluctance of officers to appoint men of his age. He is making an appeal to his friends to help him, and particularly to veterans. His position is unfortunate from the fact that he was dependent upon it largely for his living.

THIRTY DAYS STAY GRANTED

Twentieth Avenue Depot Case Goes Over For That Time.

Judge Cant this morning filed an order in district court granting a stay of judgment for thirty days in the case of the State of Minnesota ex rel the Railroad and Warehouse Commission against the Northern Pacific Railway company. The thirty days will date from today. The stay is granted that the defendant may make application to the board of railroad and warehouse commissioners for a modification of its plans for running trains originally in force by the St. Paul & Duluth Railway company.

In the order the court says:

"In above action the supreme court of Minnesota having affirmed the decision of this court appealed from, and ordered that the court grant a reasonable stay before judgment is entered within which time the defendant may, if so advised, make application to the board of railroad and warehouse commission for a modification of running the trains originally in force by the St. Paul & Duluth company, and ordered that as a condition to the granting of such stay said defendant should make a showing that the Twentieth avenue station has been reopened."

The court holds that the showing is properly made by a certified copy of the supreme court's decision and by an affidavit showing that the Twentieth avenue station is open and now ready for business the same as it was before the agent was removed, and it appears the thirty days is a reasonable time for the stay to be granted.

PROMINENT CLUB WOMEN

Curator French Section Ebell Club.

Mrs. Sarah E. Page, Baraboo, Wis., Curator of the French Section of the Ebell Club, writes from 423 Fifth Ave.:

"Peruna is indeed a valuable remedy for the cure of that most troublesome thing, a summer cold. Last summer I caught a cold, but paid no attention to it at first, but soon found it developed into a serious catarrh of the throat. I was very much worried as none of the ordinary remedies had any effect on it. I was advised to give Peruna a trial and in a few weeks' time I was so much better that I could sing without any effort. I therefore take pleasure in recommending Peruna."

Grand Recorder Daughters of American Independence.

Miss Kate Fauser, 116 Brewster street, Detroit, Mich., Grand Recorder of Daughters of American Independence, writes:

"Last summer I caught a severe cold which settled on my lungs and I almost lost my voice and I felt most miserable. I took treatment but nothing did me any good until I took Peruna. One bottle brought me more relief than all the nostrums I had taken, and three bottles cured me completely. For tired and worn out women it is a boon."

Colds are considered one of the necessary ills of life. One is liable to catch cold both summer and winter. Very often summer colds prove fatal. They are always dangerous.

A cold is the beginning of catarrh. It may cause catarrh of any of the internal organs—the head, throat, lungs and stomach, or pelvic organs. A remedy that will cure a cold then would cure all these direct effects of colds. Peruna is such a remedy. We have letters from all over the United States attesting to this fact. The poor and rich alike use and recommend it. A book of testimonials in the exact words of the writer sent to any address free of charge by The Peruna Medicine Co., Columbus, Ohio.

Treasurer Schiller Club.

Mrs. B. F. Henderson, 632 Grand avenue, Milwaukee, Wis., treasurer of the Schiller club, writes:

"I never had any faith in patent medicines until I tried Peruna, but my experience with this reliable medicine has taught me that there is one that can be trusted and that will not fail in time of need.

"For the past few years I have found that I caught cold easily, which would settle in a most unpleasant catarrh of the head. I had to be especially careful about being out evenings and not to get chilled when dressed thin for parties, but since I have used Peruna my general health is improved, and my system is in such good condition that even though I am exposed to inclement weather it no longer affects me.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

CHARGED WITH MURDER.

Two Ex-Convicts Under Arrest at Columbus, O.

Columbus, Ohio, June 13.—Lewis Harmon and Leo Lovell, two ex-convicts, are under arrest, charged with the murder of the aged farmer, George Geyer, Thursday night. Lovell has made a confession implicating Harmon and another ex-convict, Lon Greenlee, a bartender, is detained at the prison. He is implicated by Lovell. The third member of the raiding party was Miles Willingford, who is now a fugitive. Harmon is supposed to be the man who fired the fatal shot. The police were informed of a plot ten days ago, but no definite information could be obtained. Lewis Harmon and Leo Lovell today were brought face to face. Lovell made his confession and Harmon confessed that it was true, except that Miles Willingford did the shooting.

WINNIPEG GETS NEXT MEETING

Manitoba's Capital Wins Convention of 1904.

Ernest Grant, of Minneapolis, Grand Councilor.

Traveling men have a reputation for persuasiveness and winning ways, and they certainly exerted them to their fullest extent with the weather man to get the brand of weather that has been supplied during the two days of the tenth annual covention of the United Commercial Travelers.

If the weather had been made to order for the occasion it would not have been changed in the slightest degree. It has been simply perfection, and it has a good deal to do with making the convention what it was—the best ever held in Duluth, and the best the grand council has had, according to some of its members who are regular visitors at conventions.

Everything on the elaborate and splendidly arranged program has gone off smoothly, without the slightest hitch. The members of the committee of arrangements, Messrs. Burt Hoyt, W. H. Wilson and C. W. Sutton, are coming in for many warm words of praise for the manner in which they carried out the difficult duties that devolved upon them.

The convention itself is over, but the guests are not to leave the city until tonight, and many of them not until tomorrow. Action did not cease with the adjournment of the grand council, for there were things to fill in every spare moment this afternoon and evening.

While the grand council was in session this morning the visiting ladies were given a drive around the boulevard. There were about 400 that took the ride, and in the neighborhood of fifty rigs were in line. It was an ideal day for the boulevard drive, and the ladies were highly delighted with the treat.

The grand council this morning unanimously agreed upon Winnipeg as the ext meeting place, and elected officers as follows:

Grand councillor—Ernest Grant, of Minneapolis.

Grand junior councillor—George W. Rodgers, of St. Paul.

Grand conductor—W. G. Jacobs, of Aberdeen, S. D.

Grand page—O. M. Hatcher, of Winnipeg.

Grand sentinel—C. A. Parker, of Duluth.

Members of executive committee, for two years—C. A. Vanderver, of Minnehaha council, Minneapolis; J. A. McPherson, of Grand Forks.

Most of these selections were simply promotions, and the only office on which there was anything like a contest was that of grand sentinel, which was won by a Duluth man.

The session this morning began at 9:34 o'clock and continued until shortly after noon. Past Grand Councilor F. C. Crenshaw, formerly of Fargo but now of Chicago, was present and was invited to a seat on the platform beside Grand Councilor Terry McCosker.

The committee on resolutions made the following report:

"Your committee reports that the sincere and heartfelt thanks of the grand council assembled are hereby extended to Zenith council No. 40 tor the warm and most generous treatment accorded us. Likewise to the business men of Duluth, whose co-operation is ever appreciated by us. As well do we thank the citizens of Duluth for their cordial welcome to us. We also wish to extend our thanks to the various railroads and the White Line Transportation company, whose liberal concessions in the way of transportation and every effective service we shall ever remember.

"To the Elks, who so royally entertained us, we give the right hand of fellowship and greet as jolly good fellows indeed. We would not forget the proprietors of the various hotels and those in charge of the same, whose uniform courtesy ever tends to make the life of the traveling man easier and happier, and who on this occasion have more than anticipated our desires.

"To the various committees whose arduous labors have made our tenth annual gathering such a grand success we offer the highest words of praise and commendation for the duties so well performed. We would also thank the various business houses who have gratuitously given to us of their different commodities which add so much to the enjoyment of life.

"To the press of the Zenith City we feel very grateful for the kind interest manifested.

"Last, but certainly not least, do we wish to tender our thanks to the ladies of Duluth, who have so pleasantly entertained the wives, daughters and sweethearts of our members during our several sessions.

"Resolved, that we hereby condemn the use of the letters "G. C. T." for any advertising purposes whatsoever, and be it further resolved that each member of our order use his best efforts to discourage and suppress the same and to notify our grand secretary that proper steps may be taken to eliminate the deplorable practice.

"Resolved, that the grand council does hereby tender thanks to our retiring Grand Councilor Terry McCosker for his untiring labors for the welfare of the order in this jurisdiction in particular during the past year.

"Resolved, that we not only approve but heartily thank all of the officers of the grand council for the efficient and able manner in which all of the affairs of this jurisdiction have been conducted."

The committee on necrology presented a beautifully worded memorial on the members of the order who have passed beyond during the past year.

A special committee composed of J. M. Dresser, Ernest Grant and Geo. W. Rogers was appointed to frame amendments to the constitution to be presented at the supreme council convention in 1904.

Telegrams of greeting were received from the Texas and Iowa grand councils now in session.

Winnipeg was the unanimous choice of the delegates for the next meeting place. F. J. C. Cox, secretary of the Winnipeg council, extended a cordial invitation to meet there next year, and D. M. Hatcher, of Winnipeg, added a few words along the same line. On motion of J. A. Shepard of Minneapolis, the invitation was unanimously accepted by a rising vote.

J. A. McPherson, of Grand Forks, read an invitation from the mayor of that town inviting the convention there, but because Winnipeg had got in first, and had never yet had a grand council meeting, the invitation was withdrawn, making the selection of Winnipeg unanimous.

Word was received of the death of H. W. Stoddard, of Minneapolis, a member of the order, and the grand council sent a telegram of condolence to Mrs. Stoddard.

It was voted to levy an assessment of fifty cents per member to go toward paying the expenses of next year's convention.

The two additional delegates which the grand council yesterday decided to send to the supreme council meeting at Columbus, June 26 and 27, were selected this morning, A. H. Overman of Duluth, and J. F. Jordan of Minneapolis, will go. H. B. Mooney of Duluth and Chauncey Burch of Sioux Falls were the alternates.

The installation of officers was performed by Past Grand Councilor F. X. Gravel of Duluth. On assuming the chair for the first time Grand Councilor Grant discovered that there was no further business before the convention and declared the session adjourned to meet next year in Winnipeg.

THE AFTERNOON SESSION.

Grand Councilor McCosker's Address to Delegates.

The afternoon session of the grand council of the United Commercial Travelers yesterday was called to order at 2 o'clock. The following committees were appointed:

State of the order—Frank W. Baer, St. Paul; R. F. Lewis, Minneapolis; H. M. Westfall, Sioux Falls, S. D.

Necrology—A. W. Crozier, Minneapolis; J. C. McAdams, Huron, N. D.; W. G. Austin, Fargo, N. D.

Resolutions—H. C. Casper, St. Paul; C. A. Vanderveerm, Minehaha council, Minneapolis; J. A. McPherson, of Grand Forks.

Auditing—C. P. Ingmundson, Grand Forks; Frank E. Noble, St. Paul; Paul W. Reimer, Duluth.

The proposed new constituution of the order came up, and after being referred to a committee, composed of George W. Rodgers, of St. Paul; Frank X. Gravel, of Duluth, and Ernest Grant, of Minneapolis, was codemned. The two latter gentlemen are among the delegates to the supreme council, meeting in Columbus this month, hence their appointment on the committee. The regular delegates are Terry McCosker, F. X. Gravel and Ernest Grant, but J. M. Dresser, the secretary, is a member of the supreme auditing committee, and will make a fourth delegate. The grand council yesterday voted to pay the expenses of two additional delegates, making six in all.

Horace Wilson, of Winnipeg, made a short speech, in which he presented the grand councillor with the Union Jack, observing that the hall was no properly decorated. He announced that Winnipeg was after the next grand council meeting, and hoped that when the delegates gathered again it would be there, with the Stars and Stripes and the Union Jack entwined.

Grand Councillor Terry McCosker, of Grand Forks, presented his annual report, which is in part as follows:

"Another sucessful year has about closed in the history of this grand council. Many familiar faces are here again this year, and it proves to me that they are good men and true. We meet together once a year to talk over matters of importance and to keep up interest in the order, and at the same time have a little outing with our wives and families. It does me good to see you all here, with renewed interest, to carry out what we have planned and hoped for.

"I would like to see every past grand councillor here today to go to the supreme council meeting and show the supreme council what we have out here in the West. On June 26 I appointed the following district deputies: Zenith council, Paul Reimer; St. Paul, F. E. Noble; Minneapolis, H. A. Murphy; Grand Forks, J. A. McPherson; Fargo, A. C. Kuhfield; Winona, D. Kahn; Owatonna, A. A. Snell, Crookston, J. E. Jerome; Austin, W. W. Smith; Sioux Falls, E. J. Maurix; Mankato, P. W. Pitcher; Huron, C. F. Burrows; Aberdeen, J. C. Sheldon; Minnehaha, Minneapolis, two latter genlemen are among the C. Cox. I take this occasion to thank my district deputies for their good work and promptness in making their reports to me. The system of having deputies makes the grand councillor's work very pleasant. Too high a value cannot be put upon the work of Grand Secretary Dresser, and I wish to thank him for many favors shown me during my reign.

"I have not visited so many of the councils as I could have wished, and it was well observed by nearly all the councils. I hope this will be continued all the time. Death has entered our ranks during the past year. I am sorry to report the death of Brother C. E. March, a member of the grand council, last February at Fargo. Brother J. C. Fenlimore, the father of the order, died Feb. 27. M. J. Matthews, our supreme junior councilor, died April 25.

"We have under way in the jurisdiction an advertising bureau from which each council participating in the work will receive a share of the profits according to membership. The money is to be used as a building home fund. It is a good plan, and I hope to see the day when the jurisdiction will be able to own and maintain a home for the aged and infirm U. C. T. This jurisdiction has made a good gain, getting an increase of 583 members, and we hope to be the largest jurisdiction in the United States. Ohio is only 461 members ahead now. So get busy. No new councils have been organized, but we have had several inquiries, and in every case have advised them not to start a council unless they can have at least forty members to start with, as the small councils have not been as prosperous as the larger ones.

"In closing I wish to thank the brotaer officers who have so ably assisted me during the past year. While I have not done anything wonderful myself I have managed to keep peace in the family and hold my job."

A telegram was received from "Col. Dick" Woods, of Sioux Falls, advising the delegates to tight shy of lake water. W. W. Fagan, of Grand Forks, also telegraphed his regrets at being unable to be present.

Grand Treasurer A. H. Overman presented his report, the figures in which were included in Grand Secretary Dresser's report.

Copies of the following telegram were sent to the Wisconsin, Colorado and Iowa grand councils, now in session: "Thirty-five hundred United Commercial Travelers in regular session assembled send fraternal greetings."

The committee to which was referred the proposed new constitution reported that while it found many features to commend it also found many objectionable ones. Exception was taken to a clause prohibiting the acceptance of representatives of wholesale liquor houses, other than distillers and brewers, as members, because some of the most reputable, earnest and zealous members of the order represent such houses, and as a class are among the most temperate of men. The article on taxes and finances is objected to because it is believed that the grand council should govern its own financial affairs.

An article prohibiting nominations for office is criticised as tending toward perpetuating men in office. The convention went on record in favor of a representation in the supreme council based on membership, and voted to pay the expenses of two additional delegates to the Columbus convention. A number of other clauses were objected to strenuously.

The honor of past grand councilor was conferred upon Grand Treasurer A. H. Overman because he has served in that capacity for three successive years.

A resolution by H. J. McGarvey of Huron, S. D., authorized the grand treasurer to arrange for rates to the convention hereafter.

The committee on the state of the order presented an admirable report, showing the order generally and locally to be in excellent condition.

The supreme representatives were instructed to work for a later day for the supreme council meetings, in order that the grand council meetings may be held later.

The auditing committee reported favorably on the books and accounts.

Last evening the grand officers and local officers of Zenith Council No. 40, were given a splendid banquet by the Commercial club. There was no speech making, except that Chairman E. L. Miller dedicated a neat toast to the visitors, and Grand Junior Councilor Ernest Grant responded for them. Last night, also, there was a grand ball at the Armory.

Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. EVENTS FOR THE VISITORS

Grand Ball at the Armory —Concert at High School.

The visiting members of the United Commercial Travelers' association were entertained last evening at a grand ball given by their brother members of Zenith council No. 40.

The Armory was elaborately decorated for the event. Orange and blue bunting turned the dull interior of the big building into a very gay and pretty sight. A great chandelier of orange and blue paper hung from the ceiling in the center of the hall, and from this in all directions orange and blue streamers hung and were draped to the gallery. Over the platform the emblem, "U. C. T.," hung in great letters formed of twisted orange and blue tissue paper. Bunting and gaily-colored paper were draped about the platform.

One of the adjoining rooms was turned into a Turkish smoking room for the men, and cigars were supplied for the guests. The comfortable chairs and the cool air proved to be a strong competitor with the brilliantly-decorated ball room in the affections of the members of the sterner sex.

The Third Regiment band furnished an excellent program of dance music. There were sixteen regular numbers on the program, but the dancers kept calling for encore after encore and extra after extra until fully three times that number of dances were played.

The hall during the early part of the evening was rather crowded, there being in the neighborhood of 500 couples on the floor, but after 11 o'clock the crowd dwindled in spite of large additions of theater-goers. Punch was served during the course of the evening.

The committee which had charge of the arrangements for the dance, and to which the success of the affair is largely due, consisted of the following members of the Duluth council: Henry Gujer, chairman; D. L. Culbertson, D. E. Case, J. D. Sattler, W. C. Dunning, E. M. Kelly, A. H. Overman, O. C. Reitan, F. S. Sleeper, W. T. Smith, C. H. Whitmore.

The members of the committee were much in evidence on the floor and were kept busy seeing that members of the widely-scattered lodges became acquainted.

It was long after midnight before the dancing broke up.

Benefiting the Sick.

"I herewith testify that I have been sick two years, during which time I have treated with five doctors, paying them $700, without any benefit. Hearing about the Electro-Medical Institute doctors' wonderful new discoveries in medicine I concluded to take their treatment. I, for first time in two years, feel strong and well enough to go to work. I most heartily recommend sick people to go to them.

PARADE A SUCCESS

Industrial Parade Takes Place To Scheduled Program.

Their Is Large Turnout and Very Creditable Display.

The industrial parade this afternoon was quite in keeping with the other features of the travelers' convention—strictly up to the mark for interest, size and ingenuity.

It was so large that a little difficulty was experienced in getting started on time, and it was 2 o'clock instead of 1:30 when it began to move. That, however, is about the usual allowance, there being no record of a parade which started on time.

The streets were lined with people out to look the parade over, and when it passed the walks were packed with men, women and children.

The procession was led by a squad of mounted police in command of Capt. F. E. Resche.

Next came the Third Regiment band, thirty-five strong, with full dress uniform, led by gallant Major McGuffin.

The travelers—on foot—were the next in line. First came No. 60, of St. Paul, the head couple marching comfortably under the shelter of an immense Japanese umbrella. A sample case made of cloth of the colors of the order was another feature, and the marchers carried canes gaily decorated with blue, white and old gold ribbons.

Minneapolis, No. 63, came next, distinguished by large tri-colored umbrellas. Umbrellas were a prominent feature of the parade, from the immense ones down to tiny little ones about the size of a pancake, from the the bearers pretended to be getting much shelter.

Grand Forks had fedora straw hats with tri-colored bands, and Minnehaha council, of Minneapolis, made a striking appearance in short linen overcoats, carrying sample cases and brilliantly flowered umbrellas.

A long line of ladies in carriages followed, and then the grand officers of the grand council in a carriage.

Zenith Council No. 40, the hosts of the occasion, made a striking appearance, its members being well represented by 125 men clad in blue serge coats, white caps, white duck trousers and white bells.

Another squad of police, marching afoot, preceded carriages containing the mayor and other city officers. Then came the fire department, neat as a whistle, headed by Chief Black.

The floats followed. They were both numerous and interesting. Those in line were as follows: Fitzsimmons-Derig company, DeVelda Drug company, A. Fitger & Co., American Biscuit company, Ron, Fernandez & Co., the Union Match company, the Scott-Graff Lumber company, E. A. Pierce & Co., Duluth Shoe company, Wright-Clarkson Mercantile company, Duluth Brass works, Duluth Corrugating and Roffing company, Stone-Ordean-Wells company, Kelley-How-Thomson company, Kelley Hardware company, Blake & Waite company, Swift Packing company, Clyde Iron works, Pearson Boat Construction company.

Most of the exhibits were samples of the various lines of goods handled by the exhibitors. Some of the ways in which they were displayed were unique. The Pearson Boat Construction company had a handsome launch on a wagon, surrounded by canoes and oars. Stone-Ordean-Wells company had fourteen delivery wagons in line, all draped with the colors of the order.

The Wright-Clarkson company had two donkeys in a wagon, and the Duluth Shoe company had a number of workmen in another wagon engaged in making real shoes.

The Union Match company had an interesting exhibit, a wagon and six carriages containing the girls that work in the factory. On the horses were large placards, "Patronize Home Industry," "Union Matches," etc.

A number of the wagons distributed samples of goods along the way, and this kept a crowd of small boys busy keeping up with them.

While the parade was forming at Fifth avenue west and First street, many admiring remarks were uttered about the decorations on The Herald building, which many thought the finest in the city.

The parade went East on First street to Seventh avenue east, then to Superior street and back again to Fifth avenue west, where it turned down to the docks and the travelers took a boat for a lake excursion, which was the program for this afternoon.

AMONG THE VISITORS

Some of the Traveling Men Who Are Conspicuous Figures.

TO THE U. C. T. BOYS.

(With apologies where they belong.)

Oh, why should the spirit of mortal be proud?
The mortal, I mean, that makes up the crowd.
The U. C. T. boys go marching by fast,
Police push the mortals back till they ge' past.

A moment he watches, and then very fleet,
He runs from Superior up to First street.
He cheers as they pass him, in a voice very loud—
This mortal that goes to make up the crowd.

Oh, let me be he who, with head erect,
With band up before him, a marching corrects—
The traveling man who's parading Duluth,
And today is a hero with fair ones and youth.

All decked out so gaily—badge, cane and cap,
He has no use now for the everday yap.
When Duluth is possessed by a gang from St. Cloud,
What excuse have we mortals for thinking we're proud?

Not only St. Cloud, but Twin Cities, too,
And Bemidji and Crookston have sent quite a few.
From Canada, too, they've sent quite a crowd,
And that is one reason why we might feel proud.

Way down in our hearts we all feel the same,
That a big royal welcome is part of the game;
While they're kings for today and we're in the crowd,
We're proud to be proud that we're proud to be proud.

N. B.—The above was constructed under the difficulty that arose by the playing of a calliope, which executed "If the Whole World Turned Against You" in this vicinity, and a bevy of happy looking telephone girls in the window across the alley.

Submitted with these explanations.

Among the people who attend conventions, especially of traveling men, there are always some of distinction and interest, and perhaps one of the most prominent in that line here this time is Mrs. Weed, of Minneapolis, mother of William Weed, a well-known commercial traveler up in this part of the country.

Mrs. Weed is 74 years of age, and admits it. She is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Brody, and Eugene Brody is the commonly termed "Steve" Brody or Brodie, who is believed by many to have been the hero of the bridge jumping episodes.

Mrs. Weed is spry and happy all the time, and the devotion of her son is the talk and envy of all the other women who attend the meetings. She has never missed one of these state meetings of the U. C. T., and says she believes she never will.

At present she is urging the settlement of the next meeting upon Winnipeg, as she wants to make the trip and believes it courtesy to recognize Winnipeg, which has always been well represented at these meetings.

Mrs. Weed travels a great deal and looks like a person of comparatively youthful qualities, though she has passed the three-score-and-ten mark.

One of the old-timers who is in the city is C. M. Kendall, of Milwaukee, who is attending the meeting trying to urge his brothers of the flitting propensities that it will be a great thing to save a portion of their salaries each month, and he has an investment for them.

Mr. Kendall is one of the original traveling men up in this country. He started coming into this region in 1870, fully thirty-three years ago. He was a representative of the B. J. Johnson Soap company, of Milwaukee, and his success was indifferent up here then, for there were few but hard-working pioneers and Indians who couldn't comprehend the necessity of having soap.

It was plain old washing soap for the laundry which he had at that time, so he framed up a way to sell a few.

The trappers and Indians knew all about the badger and his general appearance, so Mr. Kendall named one brand of the laundry soap "Badger." The name was a winner all through the frontier country, and it made as big a hit as the old and peerless "Peerless" tobacco.

He is around shaking hands at the Spalding lobby now and talking over old days with the boys.

C. A. Vanderveer, of the Minnehaha council No. 141, is one of the active political members of the convention. He is after grand councilor, and his friends have formed a perfect phalanx of votes around him. The council is unanimous for him, and it is a strong fight he is putting up.

There is a great deal of discussion over the competitive avoirdupois of Messrs. Holmes, of Minneapolis, and J. E. Coleman, of Duluth. They are the two largest men attending the convention with the badges attached to their coats with proper authority. The question arose at the Elks' social session the other evening while the German dialect story was being told about the visit to Chicago. Not that the story wasn't good, but the argument of it caused the argument on size to start. There will be some settlement, it is expected, of contentions, before the meeting adjourns.

Another of the old guard in attendance at the convention is W. C. Andrews, who has been with Wright, Barrett & Stillwell, the St. Paul paper house since way back in the 90's and on the road practically all his life. Mr. Andrews rarely ever misses one of these fraternal gatherings and says that Duluth is doing itself proud in the entertainment provided for the guests. Accompanying him is Miss Andrews, his daughter and a lady friend.

There are six women in the city who have special reason to express their appreciation for the proverbial courtesy and ready ingenuity of the traveling men. Yesterday afternoon the party of ladies, at the invitation of one of their number went out to the Athletic park to see the last of the series of games between the Crookston and Duluth ball teams. Every member of the party was under the impression that it was Friday, "ladies' day," and woman-like, they left their pocket books at home. After strenuous effort the party pushed its way up to the gate where a halt was called by the ticket taker.

The ladies in charge explained that they were under the impression from previous announcement that Friday was "ladies' day", and consequently, they did not come prepared to pay their way in. The women were in a quandry and some of them very near the tear point from vexation and disappointment as they began to push to one side at the request of the ticket taker to allow others to get in, when one of the traveling cavaliers of the road, in full regalia of the U. C. T., who stood a little back of the party and took in the situation, hurriedly rushed through the crowd and pushing a handful of tickets into the hands of one of the women he lifted his hat and exclaimed distinctly so that all could hear:

"Here are the tickets. Pardon me for being so tardy, but there was such a crowd at the ticket office I could not get here sooner."

With another bow he backed hastily through the crowd and disappeared in the direction of the ticket ofice to buy another lot of tickets for his own party of traveling men.

He explained the situation to "the boys" and they passed a unanimous resolution that their comrade did the right thing. The women were given no opportunity of expressing their thanks for the gallantry of the visitor, but they appreciated it.

Y. A. Shepherd, who has been traveling for a threshing machine house since threshing machines became an article of commercial value in these parts, is a member of the convention here.

"I have never missed attending the U. C. T. convention," he said this morning, "excepting once, and I don't think I will miss the next one at Winnipeg, either."

Mr. Shepherd is getting along in years, and has seen Minnesota and the Dakotas transform from a bare wilderness into thriving communities, and says he don't feel a day older than he did at 30.

Harry Beall, of Chicago, has been introducing the original and only horse laugh at the convention.

Mr. Beall might have been a liveryman, a cowboy or an imitator by profession, but he preferred to be a "peddler," and says there's more money in it.

At all hours and from all comers the horse laugh has been forthcoming, until it is common, and if anyone else can

DEAFNESS CURED

196-Page Book Free Tells All About It.

Since the discovery of a Louisville man it is no longer necessary for any deaf person to carry a trumpet, a tube, or any such old-fashioned device, for it is now possible for any one to hear perfectly by a simple invention that fits in the ear and can not be detected. The honor belongs to Mr. George H. Wilson, of Louisville, who was himself deaf, and now hears as well as any one. He calls it Wilson's Common Sense Ear Drum. It is built on the strictest scientific principles, containing no metal of any kind, and is entirely new in every respect. It is so small that no one can see it, but, nevertheless, it collects all sound waves and diverts them against the drum head, causing you to hear perfectly. It will do this even when the natural ear drums are partially or entirely destroyed, perforated, scarred, relaxed or thickened. It fits any ear from childhood to old age, and, aside from the fact that it does not show, it never causes the least irritation, and can be used with comfort day or night.

It will cure deafness in any person no matter how acquired, whether from catarrh, scarlet fever, typhoid or brain fever, measles, whooping cough, catching in the ear, shocks from artillery, or through accidents. It not only cures but stays the progress of deafness and all roaring and buzzing noises. It does this in a simple, sure and scientific way. The effect is immediate.

Let every person who needs this at once send to the company for its 196-page book, which you can have free. It describes and illustrates Wilson's Common Sense Ear Drums and contains many bonafide letters from numerous users in the United States, Canada, Mexico, England, Scotland, Ireland, Wales, Australia, New Zealand, Tasmania, India. These letters are from people in every station in life—clergymen, physicians, lawyers, merchants, society ladies, etc.—and tell the truth about the benefits to be derived from the use of this wonderful little device; you will find among them the names of people in your own town or state, and you are at liberty to write to any of them. You wish and secure their opinion as to the merits of the only scientific ear drums for restoring the hearing to its normal condition.

Write today and it will not be long before you are again hearing. Address for the free book and convincing evidence, Wilson Ear Drum Co., 861 Todd building, Louisville, Ky., U. S. A.

LIQUOR THE CAUSE

Judge Dibell Says Most Crime Is Traceable to It.

Responsible For Majority of Cases at Present Term of Court.

"If it were not for liquor, I would not have to impose half these sentences," remarked Judge Dibell, of district court, yesterday, after the fifth or sixth attorney for his client on the ground that the deed committed by the latter was done while he was intoxicated.

Out of the eighteen men sentenced by the court yesterday to penalties that were either a fine, jail imprisonment or a term inthe state penitentiary, there was a very small percentage that did not attribute their trouble to drink.

While John Tanko was not proved to be drunk when he shot George Bollich all the evidence in the case showed that the defendant and his companions had been drinking all day, and that Bollich had a drinking party at his house when he ejected Tanko.

Charles L. Clarke, the former bookkeeper and collecter of the water department at Hibbing, who embezzled $700 and was sentenced to a term of over four years in the penitentiary attributed his fall to drink and bad associations. All of the cutting affrays for which several men were yesterday sent to state's prison to serve time, resulted directly from drunken sprees.

One saloon shooting affray resulted in two years' imprisonment to a man who claimed he had not been drunk before in several years. One grand larceny case resulted in the sending of a laboring man to the penitentiary for a year, who claimed that he had not touched a drop of liquor for two years previous to the time he got into trouble. So on down the list.

If drunkenness were a plausible plea for light sentences by the judges of St. Louis county district court there would be little use for a state penitentiary so far as this county is concerned.

BUSY TERM FINISHED.

County Attorney McClintock Has Had Much to Do.

With the sentencing by Judge Dibell of David Frankfort, the young Bowery store clerk, convicted of swindling, County Attorney McClintock will have witnessed the finish of his work for the present term of district court. Frankfort was found guilty of switching a "phony watch" on an unsuspecting woodsman several weeks ago while selling the latter a cheap line of counterfeit jewelry. Of the nineteen convicted or self-confessed criminals that did not receive sentence yesterday.

The number sentenced yesterday, however, does not represent the full amount of work accomplished through the county attorney's office, three men who confessed to gambling appliances operating in their buildings having pleaded guilty, the one to selling liquor with out a license and the other to keeping his saloon open after hours. The total fines paid into the county treasury, through criminal business of this term of district court, will foot up to about $1600.

DOINGS IN MICHIGAN

Prospectors For Copper at Ironwood Find Iron Instead.

Ironwood—The officials of the North Star Mining company, recently organized at Ironwood to explore a tract of land three miles from the city in the hopes of finding copper, of which there are indications, have been surprised at the discovery of iron ore instead. A number of samples brought to the city show the ore to be of low grade, but as the samples were taken from near the surface it is expected the quality will improve as depth is attained.

Iron Mountain—Rex Plowman, a member of this year's graduation class of the Iron Mountain high school, has a record thought unparalleled in the annals of the peninsula. This is the eleventh year of his school life, and during all that time he has not missed attending his classes a single day, nor has he been tardy within that time.

Manistee—The State German Aid society, known as the Arbeiter bund, held its annual convention in this city. It was in session three days. The convention was welcomed to the city in a pleasing address by Mayor Wentz, which was responded to by President William Reichmann of the association. A concert was given at Arbeiter hall.

Crystal Falls—The Crystal Falls common council has settled the tax cases brought against the city. The cases were to have come up before Judge Stone but the city attorney advansed the council to settle and save the costs, as there was not the least doubt that the city would lose. The amount settled for was $709.72.

A MILLION DOLLARS

A Month For American Producers From Porto Rico Market.

Reports on Condition of Banks In the Philippines.

FROM THE HERALD WASHINGTON BUREAU.

Washington, June 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—Porto Rico is furnishing a market of a million dollars a month to the producers and merchants of the United States and supplying nearly a million dollars' worth each month of tropical products required by the United States. The total shipments of domestic merchandise from the United States to Porto Rico in the ten months ending with April were $9,844,318 and of foreign merchandise $218,276, making the total value of merchandise sent to Porto Rico from the United States, $10,062,594. The total shipments of domestic merchandise from Porto Rico to the United States in the ten months ending with April, 1903, was $8,744,427, and of foreign merchandise, $89,037, making the total shipments from that island to the United States in the ten months ending with April, $8,833,464. In the month of April the shipments from the United States to Porto Rico were $931,526 and from Porto Rico to the United States, $1,919,023. These figures indicate that the shipments from the United States to Porto Rico during the fiscal year which ends with the present month will aggregate about $12,000,000, and those from Porto Rico to the United States nearly an equal sum.

These figures of commerce between Porto Rico and the United States are in marked contrast with those of earlier years. In the fiscal year 1898, which immediately preceded the transfer of Porto Rico to the United States, the exports from the United States to that island were $1,505,946. In the next year they were $2,685,848; in 1900, $4,640,449; in 1901, $6,965,408; in 1902, $10,882,653, and, as already indicated, in the year 1903 will be about $12,000,000. Thus the total shipments from the United States to Porto Rico for 1903 will be eight times as great as those of 1898 and six times as great as those of 1901. On the other hand, shipments from Porto Rico to the United States have grown from $2,414,356 in 1898 to $8,378,766 in 1902, and probably nearly or quite $9,000,000 in 1903, or about five times as much in 1903 as in 1898.

Cotton manufactures (mostly cloth)	$1,765,084
Rice	1,640,118
Iron and steel manufactures	1,258,829
Provisions	1,104,565
Breadstuffs (mostly flour)	969,221
Wood and manufactures	459,740
Leather and manufactures	257,036

Chemicals, drugs, etc.	111,862
Paper and manufactures	95,053
Wool manufactures	70,255
Books, maps, engravings, etc.	69,758

The principal articles shipped from Porto Rico into the United States during the same time were:

Sugar and confectionary	$5,969,597
Tobacco and manufactures	1,691,269
Coffee	704,378
Fruit and nuts	274,814

The comptroller of the currency has received through the treasurer of the Philippine archipelago reports of conditions of the banks and bank branches doing business in the islands at the close of the quarter ended March 31, 1903.

There are in operation in Manila branches of the Bank of India and China, the Hongkong and Shanghai Banking corporation, the Guarantee Trust company, of New York, the International Banking corporation, of New York, in addition to the Banco Espanol Filipino, the Monte de Piedad y Caja (savings bank and pawn shop), and the American bank. The Spanish bank and the Hongkonk and Shanghai Banking corporation have in operation branches at Iloilo, and the Chartered Bank of India and China, a branch at Cebu. With the following exceptions no portion of the capital stock of the banks is assigned to the branches in operation in the Philippines. The reported capital used locally is as follows:

Banco Espanol Filipino, 1,500,000 pesos; Monte de Piedad y Caja, 226,532; American bank, 50,000; Manilla branch of the Hongkong and Shanghai Banking corporation, 1,000,000.

The only bank notes in circulation are those issued by the Spanish Filipino bank, and its branch at Iloilo, aggregating 2,076,450.

The returns are given in pesos, with valuation of 2 pesos to $1, except in the report of the Banco Espanol Filipino, in which the valuation is 2.6 to 1.

The total liabilities of the banks and branches are given at 60,623,035 pesos, the principal items being as follows:

Individual deposits, 19,053,981; deposits of insular treasurer and disbursing officers, 12,999,555; due to other banks and bankers, 19,907,045.

NEWS FROM THE ORIENT

Japanese Dock Company Cannot Build Satisfactory American Gunboats.

Tokio, May 25, via Victoria, B. C., June 13.—A sensation was caused today by the announcement that Mr. Tsukahara, premier of the Urga Dock company, had resigned his position in consequence of the failure of his company to turn out United States gunboats for the Philippines government in accordance with specifications. Two boats have been rejected by Governor Taft and the remaining three are said to be equally inadequate.

The Chinese riots in Kwang Si province have developed into violence, and it is unofficially reported that the French consul at Tonquin has reported to the Pekin government that unless the insurgents are suppressed, French troops will be sent across the frontier to quell the disturbances.

The Japanese cruiser Tokio, which was one of the first warships captured from China during the war of 1894-5, ran ashore May 22 during a snow storm off Shakotan, Nemur province. The vessel does not appear to be much damaged, but is exposed to the storms.

Nineteen sailors have been drowned or frozen to death. The warship which Korea had intended to buy from a Japanaese company has not been handed over as the Korean government has not paid for it. The minister of war, who made the deal, has resigned pleading illness to escape the dilemma arising out of the deal.

The Mainich publishes a dispatch giving the alleged history of the Manchurian secret treaty on the authority of a minister, who said that China had refused to comply with the Russian demands and that M. Planchou, acting Russian minister, had wired to Europe and that Chan had accepted. After the powers protested, China sent another refusal to Russia, which government paid no attention to it. The Russians have not withdrawn their demands, which presumably are still lying on the table of the Chinese foreign minister. The minister states that the secret treaty will probably be signed privately, and it is imperative that Japan should assist China in rejecting the Russian demands.

HAPPENINGS IN DAKOTAS

Verdict For Defendant In Gaar-Scott Suit.

NORTH DAKOTA.

Fargo—The United States jury found for the defendant company in the case of Miles vs. Gaar Scott company. Miles lost his foot while operating a machine manufactured by the company and sued for $20,000 damage. The contention of the court was to the effect that he could not recover damages unless it was proved that the company had wilfully or carelessly mannufactured a defective rig. The case will be appealed.

Wahpeton—The annual tournament of the North Dakota Firemen's association, which was held in this city, was very largely attended, something over 500 firemen romf all over the state being present. The prize winners in the parade Wednesday morning were Cooperstown, first, and Larimore, second prize. The principal competition races were run Wednesday afternoon.

Stanley—The marriage of Miss Hilda W. Bergstrom to Albert Larson, both of Stanley, occurred Wednesday morning at the Leland hotel, Minot, Judge Murray officiating. The bride is one of the most popular and accomplished young ladies of Stanley. The groom, of the firm of Anderson & Larson, is the pioneer and most popular merchant of this city. He is a member of the I. O. F., M. W. A. and A. O. U. W. lodges. They left immediately for Grand Forks, thence they will go to Duluth, Minneapolis and St. Louis.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

Sioux Falls—By aid of a confederate on the outside, four prisoners succeeded in making their escape from the county jail in this city. One fugitive is Albert Miller, charged with stealing a horse and buggy from a local liveryman and being held until the next term of the state circuit court. Another is Abe Smith, a Pierre federal prisoner, who was serving a term of six months for selling liquor to Indians. The other two are William Rush, serving a short term for assault and battery, and Daniel Barnes, charged with petit larceny. A posse is in pursuit. Although no trace of the fugitives has yet been found, there is little doubt that all will be recaptured.

Yankton—Yankton college academy graduation exercises were held Tuesday evening. The members of the class were W. B. Buler, Hattie J. Esmay, George C. Gilman, Mary A. R. Himan, Maude N. Madara, Lester B. Madole, Mervin C. Sherwood, Mabel Stewart, Merle Tammen, C. Ray Volin and Bayard Waterbury.

The graduation from the elocution department of the college of Miss Anna Bagstad took place Wednesday evening. The trophy cup just won by Miss Bagstad was on exhibition, having just been received from Mitchell.

TARIFF MUST BE REVISED

Ex-Congressman Eddy Says Western Sentiment Favors It.

Washington, June 13.—"From what I heard around Washington," said Frank M. Eddy, yesterday, "it seems to be conceded that Senator Allison will write the platform for the coming Iowa state Republican convention.

"The venerable senator stands so well with both factions that it is considered quite certain that he will prepare a tariff plank that will be accepted by each side of the controversy. But no matter what is declared by the convention, the Iowa idea on the tariff question has taken deep root and is growing stronger every day all over the country."

"What do you understand the Iowa idea to be?" was asked of Mr. Eddy.

"Well," replied the former congressman, "I understand it to be a straight-out declaration in favor of modifying the tariff schedules where the present existing tariff law fosters and shelters a monopoly or combination.

"Now you are not going to get any interview from me, further than to say that a very great majority of the voters of all parties believe in a tariff revision. I make this as a statement that of any paper would send a corps of men over Minnesota and the Northwest and ask the voters in every branch of business if they preferred to leave the present tariff rates on lumber, iron and steel, glass, earthenware, hardware, paper and a number of articles, intact and not modify the existing Dingley rates, that a very large majority would reply emphatically that they did not.

"They would at the same time affirm their faith in the general Republican policy of protection where protection is actually needed."

GREAT BANK COMBINATION

Has Been Perfected Among Strong Pittsburg Financial Institutions.

Pittsburg, June 13.—Plans have been perfected for the formation of one of the greatest combinations of banking interests ever undertaken in the country. By the scheme the Farmers National bank, Colonial Trust company, Colonial National bank, American Trust company, Pennsylvania Trust company, Columbia National bank, Tradesmen's National bank, Germania Savings bank and Freehold bank will be merged, making the largest and most powerful institution between Priladelphia and Chicago. The capital of the new concern which will probably be known as the Colonial Trust company, will be $7,000,000, with $16,000,000 surplus and undivided profits and about $55,000,000 deposits, making total resources of $78,000,000. T. Hart Given, the president of the Farmers Deposit National bank, will be the head of the new concern. It will take some days to work out the details of the merger so far as the other officers and directors are concerned, but the new institution will be backed by one of the most active and aggressive of the strong financial groups of capitalists west of New York.

RIDGELY'S BANK CALL

Has No Relation to Wall Street Affair.

Washington, June 13.—The fact that Comptroller of the Currency Ridgely has issued his third call for a statement of the condition of the national banks within a period of less than six months, whereas the law provides for only five such calls in a year, was the subject of comment here. It was said that the third call was made earlier than usual on account of the condition of affairs upon Wall street; also that its issuance would have an important bearing upon proposed financial legislation during the extra session of congress, next fall.

Comptroller Ridgely, however, says there is no especial significance in his action. "Under the law," he said, "I am required to call for a statement of the condition of national banks five times during a year. No time is specified for any of them, and I believe I could issue all five in a single month if I chose to do so.

"The average length of the period intervening between calls would be seventy days. It has been sixty days since my last call was issued, bringing today's only ten days sooner. I may say that we aim not to make the calls too regularly, as the banks would be prepared to make their best showing if such were the case."

It is said another matter which had a bearing upon the issuance of today's call was the fact that there is always a large amount of work necessary in the comptroller's office after every call, and if the call had been delayed it would have thrown the greater portion of this work upon a reduced clerical force, because a number of the clerks go away on vacations during the months of July and August.

THE ASSESSMENT PLAN.

The announcement was made during the week that Duluth property-owners propose to institute a vigorous campaign against the new charter provision that permits the city to levy assessments in advance of the making of improvements. The unwisdom of this plan of making assessments has been demonstrated, and a determined effort will be made to secure the repeal of the charter amendment which makes it permissible. The city charter, as originally framed by the commission after careful consideration of the needs of the city and in accordance with past experience in regard to public improvements, did not contain such a provision. It was added by an amendment to the charter secured by the city authorities when many of the property-owners had forgotten the evil consequences which attended the old system of ordering improvements without hardly any restrictions, and imposing heavy and unnecessary burdens on the property-owners.

The charter amendment by which the city authorities are permitted to anticipate improvements with assessments and tie up the money of the property-owners far in advance of the making of the improvements, was adopted by a very small margin in a light vote. It is believed that had there been a larger vote cast the amendment would have been defeated. It is now intended to conduct an active campaign for its repeal. Those who are working to this end believe that when improvements are needed there is ample provision in the provisions originally drafted in the charter and they will endeavor to have these reinstated. Under the old system, no assessments could be made until the work was done, while under the new one the assessment is made first. This invites reckless ordering of improvements and is decidedly disadvantageous to the property-owners who are assessed.

The Herald heartily endorses the movement to repeal the obnoxious provisions of the charter, believing that the system thus introduced is dangerous and encourages extravagance at the expense of the property-owners.

RAILROADS AND FORESTS.

While in some sections of the country, the railroads have about made up their minds that iron ties will soon become necessary, in other places the railways are planting trees for the purpose of continuing the supply of timber. The Rio Grande Western has planted 65,000 catalpa trees and expects excellent results. A catalpa tree twenty years old will supply five railway ties, and these will last about thirty years if tie plates are used, the average life of the ordinary cedar or hemlock tie being about seven or eight years.

The World's Work publishes an article on "The Railroads and Forestry," by Professor John Gifford, of Cornell, in which the needs of railways are estimated according to the growth of timber in natural forests. The annual demand is placed at 100,000,000 ties. A tree which will yield three good ties under forest conditions is at least fifty years old, and it is an exceptional acre that produces more than 300 such trees. An acre ought, therefore, to yield about eighteen or twenty ties each year. The annual demand for each mile of track is about 400 ties. Twenty-five acres of forest are necessary, according to this estimate, for every mile of track. A railroad with a trackage of 5000 miles would need about 125,000 acres of forest to supply itself perpetually with ties, a comparatively light burden for a large corporation.

In dealing with the railway demand "Arboriculture" makes a calculation based on the productiveness of an artificially planted catalpa forest. Allowing five ties from a tree twenty years old, the yield would be 850 ties per acre, or an average growth of 42½ ties a year. With the longer life of the catalpa tie the need of renewal would be only 100 per mile, or a little more than the annual growth of two acres. A railway of 5000 miles would, therefore, require less than 1200 acres of catalpa forest. That 1200 acres of artificially-planted and selected trees will serve the same purpose as 125,000 acres of natural forest, in which much room is wasted, many trees are useless for railway purposes, and all have a tendency to rapid decay when in use, does not seem unreasonable.

The demand of railroads may serve to demonstrate the necessity and possibility of forest culture.

ST. LOUIS COUNTY'S EXHIBIT.

Charles S. Mitchell of Alexandria, the superintendent of the Minnesota exhibit at the St. Louis World's fair, who was in Duluth this week with a view of ascertaining what kind of an exhibit could be secured from St. Louis county, is confident that a very fine iron mining display will be made. Naturally he was much impressed and pleased with the strong committee appointed by the Commercial club to make the arrangements for St. Louis county's exhibit and, he expressed himself very emphatically on this point, feeling assured that no better committee could be named for the purpose.

While at St. Louis, Mr. Mitchell found that the World's fair officials are looking forward with a great deal of interest to the mining exhibit from here, as St. Louis county is known all over the country as containing the greatest deposits of high-grade iron ore to be found in America or in the world. It is expected that this exhibit will be one of the leading features of the fair. It is doubtful whether the Minnesota commission will be able to appropriate sufficient money to cover the whole cost of an exhibit such as St. Louis county should make, but no doubt this difficulty will be overcome by the generosity of the iron mining companies. It is desirable that the very best exhibit possible should be sent from St. Louis county, and every person in a position to help secure it should lend his aid.

THE COAL COMBINE.

It is pleasing to learn that the courts have found the Illinois and Indiana coal dealers guilty of unlawful combination in restraint of trade, and have fined them for their infraction of the law, as well as to dissolve their combinations. The decree breaks up a combination that had been formed for the purpose of keeping up the retail price of coal in those two states. The decision was secured largely through the activity and good work of United States District Attorney Bethea, at Chicago, although he acted under the direction of Judge Day, the new assistant to the attorney general in charge of prosecutions under the federal anti-trust law. District Attorney Bethea learned of a combination among the bituminous mine owners of Illinois and Indiana to arbitrarily raise the wholesale and retail price of coal in those two states. He collected all the information he could obtain and laid it before the department of justice. The officials at Washington saw it was sufficient to bring a conviction, and directed Bethea to proceed in court.

It is of still more interest to know that the government proposes to get after the parent head of these trust corporations, and check their nefarious work. That the producers of coal have laid out a plan to arbitrarily advance prices to suit themselves is evident. In Washington, for instance, where the officials are now basing their estimates, ordinary stove coal is $6.05 a ton. Purchasers are told that next month it will be $7.05 a ton; that in August it will be $7.15 a ton, and that in September it will be $7.25 a ton. Those in control of the trade have decided, it is said, that in the next three months they must get 40 cents a ton more for coal than it brings at present, and all the purchasers are being prepared for the gradual increase. It is said by the dealers that the conditions elsewhere are the same. The department of justice officials admit that steps have been taken in several parts of the country to secure judgments similar to that recently obtained by Attorney Bethea in Chicago. Naturally the officials decline to say where the prosecutions are to be made, as in many instances they have not yet prepared their cases, but they are determined to prosecute these successful trusts which have so long robbed the people, and all the American public will say, amen!

TRADES UNION INCORPORATION.

The incorporation of trades unions has for some time been a question of great interest not only to the representatives of labor, but to employers as well. In general, incorporation is favored by the majority of employers throughout the country and opposed by nearly all employes, while public and judicial opinion is divided. The main argument for incorporation advanced by the employers is that it would promote conservatism on the part of the unions, making their leaders more moderate and reasonable. Says General Manager Kruttschnitt of the Southern Pacific company, in the National Civic Federation Monthly Review: "Conservatism must necessarily follow responsibility, and however this can be brought about, whether by incorporation of the unions or by decisions of the courts against members, I am firmly of the belief that establishing the principle that a party inflicting an injury must pay the resulting damages will confine the efforts of labor leaders to their legitimate functions and will discourage the present practice of declaring actual war on persons and property as soon as any contention arises on any industrial question."

The practically unanimous opposition to incorporation on the side of the unionists springs from fear of troublesome litigation and distrust of the courts. The following statement of President James M. Lynch of the International Typographical union well expresses the apprehensions of labor leaders regarding the danger of incorporation: "It would take a trade-union antagonist with money at his command but a short time to wreck a labor organization through judicial procedure. * * * Where the toiler is able to contribute one cent, the corporation can without strain put up a dollar. We must continue to depend upon public sympathy and public support, and not on courts, the course of which in the past displays corporation and capitalistic sympathy, if not dictation."

That union should object to incorporation under the present statutes governing ordinary business corporations is not surprising. Present legislation is without doubt against them. Not that it was enacted for that purpose, but rather to meet common business conditions which are much more equal than the relations between millionaire corporations and poor workmen. What is needed is a special statute offering definite privileges to incorporated unions and placing proper restrictions on their financial ability. Compulsory incorporation is, of course, out of the question. The law should not force incorporation on the unions, but should make it worth while for them to seek incorporation voluntarily. In this connection, Henry D. Lloyd offers a suggestion which is much to the point. He says: "The trade-unions of New Zealand and Australia have incorporated almost universally, because by doing so they have been given valuable privileges, such as the power to hold real estate, sue members for dues, punish officers—most of all, to secure arbitration in case of dispute with employers. If the leaders of the American world desire our trade unions to incorporate, let them offer them inducements which will make it worth their while to do so."

That labor organizations should be, in some way, made more responsible there is no question. Their irresponsibility is the cause of much trouble. A contract made with them is worthless unless they voluntarily live up to its provisions. Labor unions must in some way be brought under the control of the law. It will be far better for the laboring men as well as for the employers.

A GREAT FISHERMAN.

Izaak Walton himself could hardly have excelled the philosophical thesis by Former President Cleveland on fishing, which appears in the Independent. The ex-president says that a man should not catch more fish than he wants, and on no account should fish be caught in such quantities as to be wasted. "By restraining ourselves in this matter we discourage in our own natures the growth of greed, we prevent wicked waste, we make it easier for us to bear the fall between what we may determine upon as decent good luck and bad luck or no luck, and we make ourselves at all points better men and better fishermen."

But then it very much depends upon what we are fishing for. The points are all well taken for an ordinary catch, but when a man is fishing for such game as the presidency he does not want to lose a good bite, even though, as he says, "This grouping of incongruous elements under a common name does not prevent those of us who properly appreciate the importance of upholding the respectability of decent fishing from coming to an agreement concerning certain causes of congratulation and certain rules of conduct."

In fishing in the presidential pond different rules must be observed from those that obtain in ordinary streams and lakes, and perhaps Mr. Cleveland might be induced to contribute a second article on this feature of the subject.

A PROFITABLE INDUSTRY.

The growing of macaroni wheat has greatly increased in the Northwest of late by reason of the remarkable success that has accompanied the planting of this cereal. Some mention of this has been made in these columns as well as in other papers, and the results are more than justifying the predictions. More data is now at hand and it all goes to show that the raising of macaroni wheat is a most profitable industry. Within the past year the following facts have been proved by tests made in South Dakota:

1. The yield of macaroni wheat is from 60 to 120 per cent greater than that of ordinary bluestem and Fife wheats.

2. The quality of American-grown macaroni wheat is such that its products can be made of fully as high quality as those of the imported variety.

3. Already there is a greater demand from manufacturers than can be supplied by the growers of macaroni wheat.

4. Bread, more nutritious, and by many considered more palatable than ordinary bread, can be made from macaroni wheat.

About 150,000 acres of South Dakota land was last year sown to macaroni wheat or its more common and corrupt form, known as goose wheat. This year the average will be nearly doubled. Practically the same area will be planted in North Dakota, with a considerably smaller area in Nebraska and Kansas. The following results by the acre obtained from macaroni wheat as compared with the ordinary variety, in Edmunds county, S. D., a typical wheat region, explains the desire of the farmer of the grain belt to include macaroni wheat in his list of crops: Thirty bushels macaroni wheat, at 75 cents a bushel, $22.50. Twelve bushels ordinary wheat, at 70 cents a bushel, $8.40.

Thirty-six farmers in all parts of South Dakota who had obtained seed imported from the Crimea and Southern Europe by the Brookings, S. D., station, reported yields varying from four to thirty-nine bushels to the acre, and an average yield of twenty and two-thirds bushels. Last year was an exceptionally unfavorable one for macaroni wheat in South Dakota, this grain doing best with comparatively little rainfall. Much of the crop was damaged by hail and an unusual amount of rain. But even this yield netted the planters 80 per cent more revenue than the ordinary wheat.

There are a number of macaroni mills in Minnesota and North Dakota, manufacturing macaroni, spaghetti, vermicelli, etc. To supply the mill demand in New York and Pennsylvania, hundreds of thousands of bushels of macaroni wheat are imported annually. Even with this the mills are compelled to resort to bread wheats, from which an inferior grade of products results. The importation of the finished product alone amounts to 15,000,000 pounds annually.

With these figures before them it certainly seems worth while for our farmers to try the raising of this grain.

The fire loss in the United States and Canada during May, amounted to $16,366,800. This is a higher total than in any previous month of the current year and $1,600,800 in excess of the May fire loss in 1902, though $6,000,000 lower than in the May fire loss in 1901, which was swelled by the conflagration at Jacksonville. The loss by fire for the first five months of this and each of the two preceding years compares as follows: For 1903, $69,080,900; 1902, $76,850,500; 1901, $79,336,150. The showing is still much to the credit of the present year, and the decrease in the aggregate fire loss of late argues in favor of lower insurance rates.

An Italian court has decided that the Italian king is as amenable to the common law as any of his subjects. This would lead to the conclusion that he must pay his grocery and milk bills.

Vanity is sometimes costly. A Pittsburg clergyman has been swindled out of $25 by a man who began his operations by stating that he was a great admirer of the preacher's sermons.

A special tax on all persons weighing more than 125 pounds has been proposed in Chicago. Would this necessitate every man carrying a tag showing his weight?

THE WEATHER.

HOTEL GOSSIP.

The hotels at Superior have been filled with the overflow from the Duluth hotels, and the registration at the local hotels yesterday was at a minimum.

The only new guests were from surrounding towns, and they only stopped for lunch and got out as soon as they could.

This morning the "relay" system was started on the quarters, and all morning the hotels were working over the rooms of last night guests for new ones this morning, and in the city it is estimated there were about 100 or more tired and weary ones, who sacrificed their sleep last evening to let others be possessed of quarters, who turned in this morning and slept all day.

There was a large number of traveling men, members of the U. C. T., who came in this morning on the early trains, and who swell the number.

They made the rounds of the hotels without much success, though it is a fact that complaints are few and far between.

The U. C. T. men, though usually insistent upon parlor rooms and individual waiters in the dining rooms when they get into a town, are having a fine old time here, and not saying a word, no matter what happens.

In fact, the talk about the hotel lobbies is in praise of the way the hotels are caring for the visitors.

The hotel men are good humored up to date, though the break in temper is looked for at any moment.

Arrangements had been made Thursday with the hotels at Superior to take care of the people the local hotels would send over. Arrangements were reached with several of them at the Wisconsin town, and it is estimated that there are two or three hundred of the attendants at the convention sojourning across the bay.

The hotel men say that Superior people ought to be awfully glad that Duluth is so near, because there is lots of business from this metropolis for that town.

The West Superior hotel was filled with overflow from this side Thursday night, and the Great Northern hotel received its quota before 8 o'clock on that evening. Other hotels received a like number of recruits from the hotels in this city.

Those who are stopping at Superior are enjoying it very much, using the ferries across the bay, and taking their time about moving.

One of the "uitlanders," who broke into town under cover of the big influx of people yesterday, was "Jones of Rock," the boy orator of the Rock River and Democratic politician of the Southwestern country.

Herr Jones got out again last evening, because he failed to find suitable accommodations, when he decided he would look for the chance to "take to the tall alfalfa."

Although an orator of the most forcible kind, when, as a student of the university, he walked away with the honors at the Democratic state convention, through a remarkable speech, he was unable to convince the hotel men here that he was entitled to a room and board, for a consideration, while the traveling men were in town, and owners of the city at the instance of the mayor, who assumed the responsibility of turning over the title of the town to the visitors.

Mr. Jones is a big man when it comes to political gatherings, but he don't reach one-two-seven at a traveling men's meeting.

Howard and Mrs. Greer, Jr., of Marquette, arrived in the city this morning and registered at the Spalding hotel.

* * *

W. W. Nicolo, of Cleveland, a friend of Ralph Ash, and a man with lumber interests, arrived from Cleveland. He registered at the Spalding, but it is not known how long he will stay.

O. Oliver, of Fargo, registered at the same hotel with the following, in the same boat: C. P. Clarke, Eveleth; Richard Vigars, Fort Arthur; T. H. Lang, Houghton, (or Hoten); D. O. Anderson, Virginia; Mr. and Mrs. D. M. Gunn, Grand Rapids.

* * *

E. R. Farley came in from Farley and registered at the St. Louis hotel this morning. He will go out again before night.

F. Boutin, Jr., of Bayfield, had the temerity to enter Duluth this morning. He registered at the St. Louis hotel. That was all—he only registered.

Others who came into the St. Louis hotel this morning and affixed their names to the roll of nervous practration, were: J. T. Hughes, of Hancock; J. W. Wood, of Appleton. Almer Nelson, of Grand Marais; William McFarlane and W. R. Adams, of Ontonagon; George Myers, of Chisholm, and B. F. and M. H. Brown, of Bagley.

O. H. Gates, superintendent of the Vermilion Indian school at Tower, came to town yesterday with Mrs. Gates and son and were going to have a nice time and see the "doings" at the convention. He went to the Hotel McKay first, where he generally stops, and then made the rounds of the town. He went back again yesterday evening for he couldn't get a place to stay.

Others who came to the McKay for a longer or shorter period yesterday and today were: M. D. Stoner and family, of Bemidji; J. H. Osborne, of Ely.

Don't hesytate to fit you with a mighty pinchin' shoe.
He doesn't sugar-coat his words to make 'em good to taste
Nor never 'nunciates a phrase that seems to go to waste.
But every truth that quits his lips perceeds to make a nest
An' takes up its abode to stay right in a feller's berast.

In preachin' to us yisterday he made the p'int that we Must love our neighbors as ourselves, an' it occurred to me
The parson wasn't nowise on to all we'd have to face
By livin' up to his advice with forty-tude and grace.
One sinful neighbor that I've got jest keeps me in a sweat
A playin' Methodistic tunes upon an ol' cornet,
An', sayin' nothin' of the noise, it keeps my pious head
Plum full o' durned onchristian thoughts, me bein' Baptis' bred.

Another neighbor an' his wife an growed up gals has got
A organ, an' their musicnles jest keeps me b'lilin' hot,
Fur every night when honest folks had ort to be in bed,
They keep that ol' harmonic wreck a try'n' to rise the dead.
They sing the sinful songs o' earth, them jerky spasms that
They claim is ragtime gems o' song; I swar 'fore I'd singe a cat!
An' when I made a Christian kick my speech was rudely checked
By hot advice to go to bed—or words to that effect.

There's others 'round on every side with habits that annoy
My calm an' quiet Christian ways an' wreck my peaceful joy.
An' often when I kneel in prayer some strange onearthly sound
'Ll come to pull my thought from God an' smash em on the ground.
I'd like to heed the parson's words an' love sich brutes as them,
Fur I don't want to miss a p'int to win the diadem,
But if it's necessary fur to give sich critters love
I've either got to perish with the onredeemed or move.

Men a Hard Lot to Please.

New York Tribune: Miss Caroline Phelps Stokes, the heiress who will marry Robert Hunter, and afterward will work with Mr. Hunter and her brother, Anson Phelps Stokes, in the slums of New York, made a tour of the tenement house district recently, and was much amused by the wit of an old Irish woman whom she visited.

This good old woman said, among other things, that Miss Stokes, as her years increased, would find men hard to handle and difficult to please.

"I mind me, miss," she said, "of a talk my man and I once had.

"'Pat,' I asks him, 'how many cowards, not including yourself, do you think live in our street?' Pat grumbled. 'What woman, do you mean by that?'

"'Well, then, Pat, since you're not satisfied,' says I, 'how many cowards do you think live here, including yourself?'

"'Even then, miss,' the old woman ended. 'Pat complained. Ah, a hard lot you'll find, a hard lot they are to please, these men.'

Over-Reaching Pat.

Scotsman: An English tourist on his arrival at Dublin hired an Irish cabby to take him and his baggage to one of the principal hotels. When he arrived at his destination he gave the driver half a crown. The cabby looked at it in supreme contempt and asked him what that was for.

"That is your fare," said the Englishman.

At this the Irishman became so violent and abusive that the tourist threatened to take his name and summon him.

"Do it if you can," said Pat.

The Englishman took out his note book and walked around the car to look for his name, and found it was scratched out.

"I see your name is obliterated," said the tourist.

"Pwhat?" says Pat.

"I see your name is obliterated," said the Englishman.

"Faith, then, you're a liar!" cried cabby. "It isn't; it's O'Grady."

Why Her Dancing Dragged.

New York Post: A young man who was born on a ranch and who, while getting his education in the East, has turned westward again every summer, and has thus maintained a fine, strong physique, recently danced with a young woman of some 200 pounds in a village not far west of Rahway. He noticed that the dancing was uphill work, and, when it was over, sank into a chair in the incipient stages of exhaustion. The young woman looked thoughtfully across the shining surface of the floor and threw a glance of investigation at the corner where the punchbowl stood.

"Doesn't it strike you that the floor is very sticky tonight?" she inquired.

The young man gallantly denied thinking so.

"It seems so to me," the young woman observed. Then she looked down at her foot, protruding from a silken flounce, and exclaimed:

"Why, I've got my rubbers on!"

The Dentist's Mistake.

Yonkers Statesman: She—The milliner told me that she had been down to the dentist's to have a nerve killled.

He—Well, from the price she asks for hats, I should say the dentist must have killed the wrong one.

FELLOWSHIP IN CALAMITY.

St. Louis Globe-Democrat: It is remarkable that in floods and many other forms of public calamity there is no insurance and that sufferers must face their losses unaided. As far as the United States is concerned, an important reservation must go with the statement. In case of a catastrophe public sympathy here instantly takes the form of material aid. The national government and state government act with promptness. All Americans combine to lend a hand when disaster descends upon a community. In some state capitals tents and other relief material are kept on hand for emergencies. Business organizations are always among the first act. Relief funds, or the substantial assurance of them, are telegraphed at a moment's notice. All who are within reach of the scene of calamity exert themselves to relieve the most urgent distress, and strong committees take up the supplementary work, which is of high importance and must continue long.

This system has grown up of itself. It is in the character of the American people. In a country as broad and populous as this there must be destructive storms floods, conflagrations and other phases of widespread loss and suffering. But there is also the ready hand of sympathy and effective assistance. Those who must start anew find that the easiest practicable terms are offered them. The givers of today may be the next to call for succor, but aside from this consideration Americans are always generous and thoughtful when the cry of calamity is heard. One of the reasons why immigrants are coming to America at the rate of a million a year is that a broad humanity, as well as free government, prevails within our boundaries.

THE GREAT OLD WORLD.

I.

The cynics mock her,
The red storms rock her,
The earthquakes shock her,
But on she rolls!
Downcast, elated—
For ruin slated,
She still goes freighted
With human souls!

II.

The great seas thunder
And rend asunder—
The white stars wonder,
As Time grows gray;
But—reaping, sowing,
Her way she's going
To meet—unknowing—
A Judgment Day.

III.

But—joy go with her!
Nor slip his tether
When stormy weather
Makes grief and moan!
Tragedy—jest-world—
Lost-unto-rest world,
Still—still the best world
We ever have known!

—Atlanta Constitution.

TO YOU.

Young man, you can
Make a hit—be IT.
It's up to you to do
What you were made for and fed and prayed for.
So don't sit down and frown
And groun and moan
And wait—and rail at Fate—
And speak of a clique
That prevents events
From coming your way. A sure way
To invite disaster which comes the faster
If you beckon to it—for then you woo it.
Just say: "I will do better than Bill
Or Ned or Fred or Ted."
As the case may be. Because, you see,
A thing's half done that's well begun.
There's something you can do
In a way to pay.
Don't whine or grunt, but do your stunt,
And after a while you'll smile
And say, "I may Be happy yet." —Saturday Evening Post.

Chief Source of Wit.

New York Tribune: "There is no place in the world like the trial courtroom for one to get the real, genuine, 'stand-on-your-feet-and-think' wit," remarked Secretary Shaw the other afternoon in a moment of respite from his own arduous manual labor of being secretary of the treasury, as well as acting for the three assistant secretaries who ordinarily divide with him the work of signing five thousand documents a day. "We had a judge out in Iowa—he is dead now—who caused me many a sidesplitting laugh. He was deliberate and quaint in manner and speech, always moderate in tone and used few gestures. He had been appointed judge by the governor of the state, and had served for one term, just to get the title, and then resumed his large practice. After the governor had served his term he too took up his practice. The two were always severe on each other in the trial of a case. One day the former governor as a final broadside to the jury declared in sarcastic tones that there was one act of his official life which he had always regretted with mortification—that was the appointment to the bench of his opponent at the bar.

"'Gentlemen of the jury,' remarked the judge in question, when it came to his opportunity to be heard, 'it is with more regret than I can just now express that I have just listened to the self-condemnation of the governor for the only public act he ever performed that met with general approval.'"

"Another time this same ex-judge was pitted against a young lawyer in the trial of a case," Secretary Shaw continued. "The ex-judge had a habit of pushing back the cuff on either wrist, stroking his imperial and then resting the forefinger of his right hand on the side of his nose. The young lawyer, who was to make the preliminary argument, arose and conspicuously imitated every one of these movements. At the end of every thought he expressed he went through the same performance until he had the judge and jury in laughter. The ex-judge sat complacently until his opportunity arrived for reply. Then he got up, pushed back each cuff with particular care, stroked his imperial and rested his finger beside his nose. 'Gentlemen of the jury,' he remarked, 'that young man acts like a good lawyer, but he talks like a blamed fool.'"

Tho' moths have spoiled my picnic suit;
My Oxford ties not up to par;
I'll still remain a gay galoot—
I have my last year's Panama.

Like Men or Like Brutes.

New York Tribune: The late John Sartain, the eminent engraver, of Philadelphia, knew Edgar Allan Poe intimately. He was free to admit that Poe in his youth had been somewhat profligate, but he always denied stoutly that in later life the poet was anything like the drunkard gossip paints him.

"At the University of Virginia," Mr. Sartain once said, "Poe did drink too much. In the middle of his freshman year there he gave a peach and honey party. Peach and honey was the drink of those days—a mixture of honey and peach brandy that was as overpowering as it was sweet and pleasant?

"Poe sat at the head of the table. 'Boys,' he said to his guests, 'shall we behave like men or like brutes?'

"'Like men, of course,' a senior answered in a rebuking voice.

"'Then,' said Poe, 'We'll all get drunk, for that is something brutes never do.'"

SECULAR SHOTS AT PULPIT.

Baltimore American: White religious assemblies are gravely discussing the admission of infants into heaven, no one else has a particle of doubt as to the fate of innocent children who die.

Buffalo Express: A minister in Brooklyn says that $50.00 a year sends a man to the devil. That, it is true, is the special train service, but in justice to his Satanic majesty, the minister should remember that he is by no means illiberal with his cheap excursion rates.

Brooklyn Eagle: The Presbyterians in general assembly have decided not to belong to the middle ages any more, and have agreed that infants are not to be damned. Does anyone suspect that they ever were—even those who walk the floor with them nights?

Chicago Chronicle: If an utter stranger to the president were to encounter him on neutral ground and instantly begin to talk about "the strenuous life" and similar presidential apothegms, the stranger would be set down as an impertinent person. Yet that is exactly what a Cheyenne (Wyo.) preacher did alst Sunday when he preached at Mr. Roosevelt respecting "Strenuousness." There is a singular deficiency of tact and sense of propriety in some preachers.

New York Times: The Rev. Donald Sage Mackay sal da wise thing in his sermon on Sunday last, which merits such emphasis as it may gain from republication. What especially commends itself to aproval is the following: "The greatest menace to the life of this city lies not in the hordes of foreign ignorance that are thronging our doors, but in the torpid indicerence, the sluggish selfishness of those who, born and bred in the atmosphere of American civil and religious liberty, are forgetful of their responsibilities to the larger life of the city." This is not a new discovery. Probably a great many people have expressed the same thought in generally similar language, but it crystallizes a living truth which cannot be too often or too clearly proclaimed by those who feel responsibility for the education of the people.

Portland Oregonian: And so the pundists of the Presbyterian theology have decided, after a long struggle and many warnings of a disapproving conscience, that those who die in infancy are not lost through a blunder or oversight in the "plan of astvation." It would be a joke, were the subject not so ghastly, to find an intelligent body of men gravely proclaiming this as a discovery to an astounded world, or as a concession wrung by much entreaty from the great All Father. Against all such presumption of absolute knowledge of the purposes of God; against the abhorrent idea of a revengeful God, that could by any possibility, any stretch of the most depraved imagination, commit to endless punishment a sinless babe; against the labored "plan of salvation" itself, how brightly shines the simple faith of Whittier as expressed in the lines:

Not mine to look where cherubim
And seraphs may not see;
But nothing can be good in him
That evil is in me.

DUN'S WEEKLY TRADE REVIEW

Steady Demand For Seasonable Goods With Prices Maintained.

New York, June 13.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review of trade says:

Except in those branches of business that are always quiet at this season, reports indicate a steady demand, and prices of commodities are firmly maintained.

That furnace stocks of pig iron increased only 40,000 tons despite the unprecedented output, testified to the great consumption of the steel industry. Quotations are without alteration, although much business is delayed by labor troubles. In cose of a general settlement of these conflicts there would be resumption of work on many buildings, and, including the requirements of railroads, heavy tonnage would be sought.

It is an evidence of confidence in the future that blast furnace operators are forcing production beyond all previous figures. While the demand for structural steel has diminished, there is notable inquiry for rails and plates. Machinery and hardware lines are doing remarkably well for the season, which is usually quiet in these departments. Coke ovens are surpassing all previous records for activity, and output of anthracite coal promises to establian a new high-water mark this year above 60,000,000 tons.

Cotton goods again average slightly higher in price, the advances being insisted upon by producers on account of the raw material, and in no degree attributable to increased anxiety to place contracts on the part of buyers. Aside from a more liberal demand for print cloth yard fabrics for converting and printing purposes, there is no evidence of activity. On the other hand, supplies are not accumulating at the mills, owing to curtailment of production, not only voluntarily, but by strikes and storms.

Conservatism prevails among buyers of staple woolens and worsteds, while little interest is shown in new lines of light weights for next spring. In so far as market conditions are concerned, carpets are the most satisfactory of the textile products. Footwear conditions continue most prosperous, leather and hides are strong and active. Failures this week are 215 in the United States against 162 last year, and 14 in Canada against 12 a year ago.

BRIEF TELEGRAMS.

In the circuit court Col. Russell B. Harrison, as trustee for his children, won the suit brought by him against Mrs. Benjamin Harrison, widow of ex-President Harrison, and the Union Trust company, as executor under the will of Benj. Harrison. Judge Allen ordered the property sold and the proceeds distributed among the heirs.

Awards are made public of many prize winners in Yale. These include: Winthrop prizes to members of the junior class—First prize, Edwin Clapp, St. Paul. In the Divinity school the Allis scholarship was awarded Ernest Frank Macgregor of St. Paul.

The golden jubilee celebration of Milwaukee Turnverein began Friday night and will continue through Sunday, the members of the Wisconsin turnerbund taking part. The celebration began with the reception of a large delegation of visiting turners from various parts of the state and others from Chicago.

It was learned Friday that Former President Cleveland has been offered the presidency of the university of Virginia. When seen Mr. Cleveland said: "I should be utterly unable to acept such a proposition."

The eight prisoners held under death sentence at Mexico City for the lynching of Arroyo, who, in September, 1897, attempted to assassinate President Diaz have been released, the jury having rendered a verdict that they were compelled by fear of their superior officers to commit the crime.

William Cooper, the negro who recently murdered Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Dowling near Dayton, Ohio, was hanged there Friday.

Eagle lodge of paper makers and rag room workers of the mills of the American Writing Paper company, at Holyoke, voted to strike on the issue of a demand for increase of wages. About 3500 employes will be affected and the seventeen mills of the American Writing Paper company will be closed Sunday, also the independent mill of the Parson's Paper company.

Samuel J. Parks, the walking delegate of the Housesmiths' and Bridgemen's union, who is under criminal charges, was renominated for his office Friday by his union. In a resolution which condemned District Attorney Jerome for prosecuting Parks, the latter was commended for his work for the union. After the meeting Parks was carried on the shoulders of four men to a saloon, surrounded by 400 or more admirers, cheering, shouting and singing for Parks and Deverey.

BECOMING A MOTHER Is an ordeal which all women approach with indescribable fear, for nothing compares with the pain and horror of child-birth. The thought of the suffering and danger in store for her, robs the expectant mother of all pleasant anticipations of the coming event, and casts over her a shadow of gloom which cannot be shaken off. Thousands of women have found that the use of Mother's Friend during pregnancy robs confinement of all pain and danger, and insures safety to life of mother and child. This scientific liniment is a god-send to all women at the time of their most critical trial. Not only does Mother's Friend carry women safely through the perils of child-birth, but its use gently prepares the system for the coming event, prevents "morning sickness," and other discomforts of this period. Sold by all druggists at $1.00 per bottle. Book containing valuable information free.

Keep Your Insides Cool!

Here's a man who thinks he has heart disease, and is scared half to death. His face is all drawn out of shape from fear and agony. Every time he eats, his heart "palpitates"—that simply means that his stomach is swelled up with gases from fermenting undigested food, and his heart thumps against his diaphragm. Nothing the matter with his heart. In the summer time, this gas distention is much worse, his whole body and blood get over-heated, and his heart and lungs get so crowded for room, that he gasps for breath. There he is, look at him! Every minute he expects to drop dead. As a matter of fact, all he needs is to stop that souring and gas forming in his stomach and bowels, help his digestion along, and keep cool inside. You all know that whenever something rots or decays, heat develops. Same in the body. Keep cool inside! Take a candy cathartic CASCARET every night at bed-time. It will work while you sleep, clean up and cool your insides, give you a regular, comfortable movement in the morning, and you'll be feeling fine all day every day. Heart Disease! Fudge!

Cascarets Best for the Bowels. All druggists, 10c, 25c, 50c. Never sold in bulk. The genuine tablet stamped C. C. C. Guaranteed to cure or your money back. Sample and booklet free. Address Sterling Remedy Co., Chicago or New York. 547

Crookston Captures Another Close Game In the Duluth Series.

Duluth Now Made Up Practically as It Will Stand.

NORTHERN LEAGUE.

	Won	Lost	Pct.
Winnipeg	18	4	.818
Crookston	15	7	.682
Grand Forks	14	7	.667
Duluth	7	14	.333

Superior	3	16	.158

That shake-up-and-change policy which kept the members of the Duluth team strangers to each other all season is now at an end.

In the present bunch there is not now a poor player and all that is needed to play the fastest game in the league is a few more days of work together.

The new battery—Disch and Hubbard—will be here in a few days or so and great things are expected. Pitcher McGaughey from the Kansas City team has written that he will get here early next week. Mueller has been traded to Crookston for Burns, the fastest outfielder in the league. McCoy whose pitching has been far better than the average twirler's though he not pretend to do much along that line, will not be worked as hard as he has been but will be developed into a pitcher and he promises to be about as good as the best before the season is very much older.

Shepard is regaining his old time form and it is probable that as soon as Capt. Murphy gets back into the game the short stop will be given a brief rest in order that his physical condition may be improved. His lame leg has seriously interfered with his fielding ever since the season opened.

But what is most needed of all is for the players to be let alone so they may become adjusted to each other's style of play. On paper the Cardinals look as good as anything in the league. Look them over:

Catchers—Dear and Hubbard.

Pitchers—Shaw, Gehring, McCoy, Disch, McGaughey, Glenn.

First base—Kennally (the next mayor of Duluth.)

Infielders—Shepard, Murphy, Quillan, Lyons.

Outfielders—Lambert, Burns, Harris, McCoy.

Mueller's wildness in the first inning and bunched hits in the third won the game for Crookston. There were about 1000 people out to see the contest including a large and noisy delegation from Crookston.

McCoy, the stole, philosopher and old reliable, was called in from right field in the emergency, and he not only pitched in fine form, but fielded, hit and ran bases like a whirlwind. In the third the Crookston men bunched three hits and a sacrifice, scoring two runs, but for the next six innings they only hit safely twice.

Martin was a puzzle to the Cardinals, despite the fact that they hit the long, lanky, lean, cross-fire artist with ease the day before. Duluth was shut out up to the eighth. McCoy broke off a single to right and stole second and third. Murphy singled to third and stole second, making two on bases and one out. Martin then struck Quillan out and had two strikes on Lyons, but the fast second baseman picked out one to his liking and drove a single to middle, scorning McCoy and Murphy. That was all for Duluth.

The fielding features of the game were: McCoy's one-handed catch of White's hit in the sixth; Lambert's running catch of Hoffmeister's hit in the fifth, and Burns' catch of Kennally's long smash in the seventh. The score:

Grand Forks was beaten by Winnipeg again and the wearers of the green were pushed down to third place while the Canadians took a firmer hold on the league leadership. It looks as if the task of overtaking the champions would fall to either Crookston or Duluth. It may sound like a joke as far as Duluth is concerned, but within the next two weeks those that are following the game closely and know ball players when they see them, predict that Duluth will be within striking distance of the leaders, barring further misfortune and accidents.

The game was played in the evening and drew a crowd of 2600. The score:

AMATEUR NINES

No Games In the Wholesale League During Present Week.

Some Teams Playing Outsiders—Eagles Go to Iron River.

Today is an off day in the Wholesalers' league, no games being scheduled for this date. Some of the teams, however, will play with outside nines, and others will indulge in some hard practice for next Saturday. Interest is running high in the race for the pennant. The hardware men are now leading, with the grocers and dry goods men coming a close second.

Next Saturday the hardware men will come together in a battle royal for the leadership in the race, and the Gowan-Peyton-Twohy nine will meet the druggists. The other two teams will take a lay off. The standing at present is as follows:

	Won.	Lost.	Pct.
Kelley-Howe-Thomson	1	0	.1000
Marshall-Wells	1	0	.1000
Gowan-Peyton-Twohy	1	1	.500
Stone-Ordean-Wells	1	1	.500
F. A. Patrick Co.	2	2	.500
Leithhead Drug Co.	0	2	.000

The Marshall-Wells nine were to line up against the millers this afternoon in what promised to be an exciting contest. The hardware men showed their strength last Saturday by defeating the druggists 8 to 5, and the game this afternoon against the millers, who have been playing a strong, consistent game, bade fair to be watched with interest by the fans as an opportunity of judging the strength of the teams in the wholesale league compared with the outsiders.

The Eagles will journey to Iron River tomorrow and will attempt to show the natives of that city the manner in which the game should be played. Iron River, however, is reported to have a speedy aggregation, and the Eagles expect to have their hands full. The line-up will be as follows: Catcher, Shafer; pitcher, Gesseau; first base, Sheehan; second base, Harris; short stop, Blasing; third base, Bennett; left field, Berini; center field, O'Brien, right field, O'Brien.

The Frelmuth team has a game scheduled with Cloquet tomorrow afternoon in that city. The Cloquet team recently defeated the Hinckley nine by the score of 10 to 6, and rumor has it that the little city has one of the fastest amateur aggregations in this section of the state. The Frelmuth team will line up as follows: Catcher, Wagman; pitcher, Lowe; first base, Carrol; second base, Kelly; short stop, Smith; third base, Jack; left field, Stowell; center field, Metley; right field, Powers.

The Duluth Heights nine will journey down to Lake Nebagamon for a game tomorrow. The men from the hill have been playing good ball lately, defeating the strong Kenosha team last Sunday, and they expect to win from the Lake Nebagamon team, which is yet an unknown quantity to Duluth nines.

Two interesting games of baseball between different teams chosen from the employes of the United States Steel company will be played this afternoon.

The employes of the two different range railroads will line up against each other. The game will be played at the old driving park. The Duluth & Iron Range road team modestly decided to play the loser of last Saturday's game, in which the Duluth, Missabe & Northern men were walloped by the miners.

On the same grounds the Pittsburg Seamship nine will line up against the Oliver Iron Mining company's ball-tossers, flushed with their victory over the railroaders last Saturday. L. W. Powell will umpire the game and will impartially decide all protests. Invitations have been sent to the heads of all departments to attend the games, and there is apt to be a sound of silence about the big building occupied by the office of the Steel company during the afternoon.

The Duluth & Iron Range men, who are hoping for an opportunity to administer the same medicine to the Missabe team that it received last Saturday, will challenge the winners of the other game in case their hopes are fulfilled.

The strong Adams school team beat the Jackson school very decisively yesterday afternoon at Thirty-second avenue west. The score was:

Adams	1	5	1	5	2	2	1	1	5	..23
Jackson	1	1	2	0	0	2	1	0	0	—7

The Cloquet and Hinckley teams came together in a fast game during the early part of the week at Hinckley. It was a heavy hitting game in which the visitors had slightly the better of the argument. The final score was 10 to 9 in favor of Cloquet. The line-up and score by innings are as follows:

Cloquet.	Hinckley
Houle, catcher	Newton
Sheehy, pitcher	Westholm
Meisner, first base	Rosdahl
Olson, second base	Andrew
Grotty, short stop	Crouse
Rasch, third base	Stanchfield
Howe, left field	Howell
Pealock, center field	Mortenson
Popkins, right field	Andrews

Cloquet	2	0	0	0	4	1	0	3	0	—10
Hinckley	2	0	2	0	0	0	0	0	0	—6

ROWING IS BEGUN

First of Duluth Boat Club Shells Out For Spin.

Interest In the Sport Running High Among the Members.

The racing season of the Duluth Boat club was opened Thursday evening when Carr, the crack single shell oarsman took the first try out of the season. He took a short sprint for about half a mile down the Park point shore. No fast time was made and none was tried for, it being the first appearance of any of the men this season.

The doubles, fours and eights have not yet made their appearance but are expected out next week.

The Duluth Boat club has a number of good men this season and with the new club house and improved facilities some local records will doubtless be broken during the coming summer. Interest is running high among the members in rowing and a number of the old-timers together with some new material are only awaiting the arrival of warm weather to get out in the shells.

Visions of a revival of old time victories when crews from the Duluth Boat club would compete with the best crews on Lake Minnetonka in fours and eights are beginning to float before the eyes of the enthusiasts and when the big shell is launched next week there will doubtless be a number of applicants for positions on the crew.

WAS A SMUGGLER.

Vera Cruz Had Rum In False Bottom.

Washington, June 13.—The treasury department has received information that the steamer Vera Cruz from Cape Verde Islands, which was wrecked off Ocracake, Inlet, N. C., last month, with a large number of immigrants on board, was a smuggler. An examination of the wreck shows that the vessel had a false bottom, where was secreted a quantity of rum which members of the crew have since been selling in the vicinity of New Berne. Two of the men against whom the proof seems conclusive will be prosecuted for smuggling and selling liquor without a license. The captain of the vessel, who it is charged absconded as soon as the crew were taken ashore with about $5,000 in money belonging to the immigrants, has not yet been found. The vessel at the time of the disaster was flying the Argentine flag.

NOT UNTIL FOURTH

Next Lacrosse Game to Be on the National Holiday.

Port Arthur Coming and Duluthians Will See Canadian Play.

The members of the Duluth Lacrosse team are taking a rest today after their hard battle with St. Paul last Sunday.

The team has shown a great improvement in team work since Coach Foraman has taken charge, and the men promise to give a good account of themselves before the season ends.

Several good games will be seen in Duluth during the coming summer, and the men hope to arouse sufficient interest in the game here to warrant the placing of several teams in the field next year. In St. Paul lacrosse has taken a firm hold and the game there last Sunday was witnessed by a crowd of from 1500 to 2000 people, society being well represented.

It is not likely that another game will be played in Duluth until July 4, when the speedy twelve from Fort William will come down from the North Shore to endeavor to show the home team how the game should be played and how they do it in Canada.

This will be the first opportunity to witness the work of a Canadian team here and the match will doubtless arouse considerable interest. The Fort William twelve is in the same class with the speediest teams in the Dominion to the North, and the match will give a good opportunity of judging of the work of the home players.

St. Paul will also likely be seen here again before the season ends, and the management of the home team is corresponding with several other clubs in neighboring cities in an endeavor to arrange for further games.

The two new men from Winnipeg, Hennessey and McDonald, promise to strengthen the team considerably, and a fast article of lacrosse may be looked for from the Duluth club before the end of the season.

TRYING FOR A MATCH

Tennis Enthusiasts Anxious For Tournament With Superior.

Three Years Since Champions of Two Cities Have Met.

It is several years since a Duluth tennis team was placed in the field and should the tournament with Superior be arranged it will be watched with interest. The last meeting between Duluth and Superior teams took place three years ago and Duluth was victorious. The victory, however, was largely due to the good work of the members of the team in the doubles, the Zenith city men being outclassed in the singles.

This year the members of the East End club hope for better luck. There is a wealth of good material and hard practice is developing a number of fast men. The courts are occupied every fine afternoon and the membership list is full. The membership is limited to forty and there are already a number on the waiting list. The three courts are found to be insufficient for the forty members so constantly do they exercise the rights of membership.

Arrangements are being completed for the tournament which is to be held during July, and it is hoped that by this means a number of good players will be developed from which to choose a team to meet the men from across the bay. Interest is also running high in the game in Superior, several of the old-timers having come out and propects are good for a strong team.

The lady members of the Duluth club are taking a greater interest in the game than ever before and the matches in the ladies' singles event in the tournament promise some excitement.

THE LABOR WORLD

Assembly Endorses Miss Mabel McDonald For Carnival Queen.

John A. Barron Elected President of the Typographical Union.

There was a good sized and interesting meeting of the Federated Trades' assembly last evening at which delegates returning from the Little Falls convention discussed state federation matters and took up a number of important local matters.

Miss Mabel McDonald of the Waiters' Union, received the assembly's endorsement for queen of the coming carnival. Miss Ella Powers was prominently mentioned for the honor and had a strong backing from the painters and decorators' union.

Delegates from the Moulders' union informed the assembly that they knew nothing about the strike at the Clyde works being declared off, at least up to last evening, and were much surprised that the morning paper should publish such information without seeking to have it confirmed by an officer of the union.

The labor difficulty at the Schulz shops was reported favorably adjusted by delegates from the Leather workers' union.

Among delegates obligated last evening were: Leslie Copeland, Fred McKelvey and Marshall Hebner, of the Cooks' and Waiters' union.

B. L. Brown and Ole Ness, from the Building Laborers' union.

Joseph Schmitz and R. Meyers, from the Brewery Workers' union.

A communication was sent to the assembly from the Carpenters' union in regard to the resignation from and re-election to the assembly of Delegate Keilley, who with two others did not take the recent constitutional obligation to purchase only union made goods and patronize only union stores. It was decided to defer action in this matter until the next meeting and in the meantime the Carpenters' union will be forwarded a written statement of exactly what occurred when Mr. Kielley resigned and advise a further investigation of the affair.

The Team Drivers' union having a grievance against the Kelly-How-Thomsom company, a committee has been appointed by the assembly to make a full investigation and endeavor to adjust the matter. This committee consists of: J. W. Richardson, Fred McKelvey, A. McPherson.

Having endorsed the boycott against the Clyde Iron works on account of the machinists and molders' strike, the assembly has decided to carry on an active campaign against this plant.

Last Sunday afternoon the Typographical union elected the following officers:

President—John A. Barron.
Vice president—R. Rutheford.
Secretary-treasurer—C. E. Brown.
Recording secretary—A. Murphy.
Sergt.-at-arms—G. Anderson.
Board of trustees—Messrs. Carlson, Richardson, Boerner.
Delegate to I. T. U.—C. E. Brown.
Trades and Labor delegates—Messrs. Dworschak, Barron and Ewald.
Auditing committee—Messrs. Murphy, Anderson, Boerner.

The Building Laborers' union will hold its election of officers on June 25, and it is urged that all members attend this meeting as several matters of vital importance are to be passed upon.

CRIPPLE CREEK DISTRICT.

Re-Survey of the District to Be Made.

Colorado Springs, June 13.—The $3500 necessary to insure the survey of the Cripple Creek district by the United States Geological Survey, has been deposited in the bank, and Dr. W. Lindgren, who is to have charge of the work is now on his way to Cripple Creek. The result of this survey is awaited with a great deal of interest by mining men in this section.

Plans have been drawn and contracts let for a 100-ton addition to the roasters of the Portland mill at Colorado City. The contract for the structural iron work has been let in the east and the manufacturer of these parts will be rushed. The addition will give the Portland mill a roasting capacity of 350 tons a day. It is reliably reported today that a very rich find has been made in the lower level of the Portland mine.

An officer of the Moon Anchor company is the authority for the statement that the big three-compartment shaft on that property will be sunk an additional 250 feet, 1060 feet in all, in an effort to locate the lost ore shoot, which, prior to 188, produced a million dollars in gold. The shoot was lost at the 500 foot point, but it is thought that it will again appear when bed rock is reached.

The Golden Cycle mine is making a splendid record for itself at this time, and is outputting 130 tons of ore a day. The management of this property is doing considerable exploratory work, which is thought will result in opening up new and important ore bodies.

Work is being vigorously pushed on the Hoosier and Tenderfoot hill. A number of Chicago capitalists have a long lease on the property and now have a large force of men employed. There has been shipped from this mine in the neighborhood of $400,000.

Good ore is now being mined from the 400-foot level of the Blue Bird property, by lessees, who are making a handsome thing from their operations.

THE STAGE

"Zig-Zag Alley" attracted a large audience to the Lyceum last evening, members of the U. C. T. and their wives being much in evidence.

The play has faults, chief of which is the predominance of "horse-play" but it is mirth-provoking and carried through with a vigor that will cover a multitude of sins.

Zeb and Zarrow as Dr. Slick and Dr. Slack kept the audience in a continual state of merriment by their songs, jokes and acrobatic feats. Ben Dillon as Michael Morlarty ably assisted them in the comedy roles and Marty Moore as Isaac Goldstein was a jolly old Hebrew, who kept the audience in roars of laughter.

Harry La Marr, as Cleopatra Puffy, Queen of the Alley, was excellent in his impersonation of a female role and his specialty in the last act made one of the hits of the show.

Maude Wood, as Sally and Milt Wood as Johnny Wise, made a hit with their acrobatic feats and song and dance specialty.

The girls in the show are pretty and the minor roles are in good hands.

Several new songs were introduced among them being the catchy jingle "Hinky Dee" which contained a number of local hits much appreciated by the audience. "The Girl With the Banjo Eyes" as sung by a quartet consisting of Winnie Greenwood, Lillie Siegler, Zeb and Zarrow made one of the hits of the evening.

THE WESTERN COAL MARKET

Demand For Anthracite as Active as at Any Time.

Chicago, June 13.—The Black Diamond, reviewing the Western coal market, says:

The anthracite market of the West reflects little change from last week. There continues to be a pronounced pressure to procure coal from all the important territories supplied from the leading distributing points, and far Western business is increasing in volume, which is making the demand fully as active as at any time. Retailers in some quarters say that the business coming in from consumers is not as heavy as it was, although most dealers are willing to concede that they still have all the business that they care to handle.

In the Western soft coal markets there continues to be a firm tone on most Eastern bituminous coals, with Western still ragged and suffering in price from the pressure to sell before demurrage charges become too heavy. In other words, demurrage coals from Western fields are dominating the market, and until the movement shows a slight improvement, it is probable that prices will not recover to the full circular basis.

Leading selling agencies in the anthracite trade at Chicago and at other points say that there is no curtailment of orders this week. As a matter of fact, the volume of business is as large as it has been at any time this year, and the pressure to secure more prompt deliveries is fully as great as at any time this spring. This is especially true in reference to egg size, which continues in short supply at all points, and which is only sold in some instances by shippers when accompanied by an order for chestnut or stove size, the latter not moving quite as readily as the larger sizes.

Orders this week, constituting a considerable portion of the new business coming forward, have reflected a large tonnage from Nebraska, Western Iowa, Kansas, Missouri and other states which ordinarily do not buy until two months later. In some instances it is believed that this business was placed earlier than usual owing to the newspaper dispatches last week to the effect that there was a possibility of the strike in the anthracite region, which might tie up the mines. The same influence has also been at work in trade nearer to the principal distributing centers, with the result that the latter part of last week and the early part of the present week many inquiries were made as to when coal ordered some time since would be shipped.

The new price circular on anthracite coals, which became effective the first of the month, is being well maintained. It continues to be a matter of obtaining the coal and not a question of price. Dealers do not even inquire or designate the prices when sending in orders. They are after the coal, and while no premiums are being charged in Western territory, it is probable that in some instances they might be obtained on egg and the larger furnace sizes.

In the retail trade dealers report this week that there is something of a lull in the situation at most points. Those consumers who usually buy coal at this time of the year have already placed their orders and have, in many instances, received their tonnage. Of course, there is some business all the time, but it is not as heavy as it was a few weeks ago. Concerning the future, dealers anticipate that the very active fall demand will commence as early as the middle of July. Those who always buy late are already making inquiries as to the likelihood of securing coal during the next two or three months, and when assured that there will probably be less difficulty to obtain it later than at present, they very frequently say that they will order it next month in order that hey may be sure of it.

If the July business proves as large as is expected in some quarters, it will make the summer fairly active, both in the retal and shipping trade, and will distribute it in good shape during months that are ordinarily very quiet as to the tonnage of coal moved to dealers and the consuming public.

In the bituminous trade, while the leading western markets such as Chicago, St. Louis and other points are suffering from demurrage coal, there are indications of a slight movement towards better conditions. Travelers, who have returned from the road during the week report that the dealer trade is taking a more active interest in bituminous than it has heretofore, while mail inquiries as to prices are the rule rather than the exception. In some instances it is probable that low prices have attracted the attention of the dealers, but in others the better interest has been stimulated by the approach of the season when they will begin to stock coal in anticipation of the fall demand.

Generally prices on eastern bituminous coals are well maintained, due to the fact that the dock interests are taking all the coal that can be forwarded. All-rail coal, and especially that from the western fields, is still suffering through the stringency of demurrage conditions. As one dealer expressed it, the present is a demurrage market and prices are occasionally sacrificed in order to force a sale before the coal is taken by the railroads for charges. Demurrage conditions are making the prevailing prices on spot coals, but these are not a fair indication of the true value of the coal and should hardly be taken as an index to the prices at which it can be purchased.

In Indiana and Illinois there are indications of an improvement through lessening the quantity of coal coming forward. The railroads are adding operators, too, to bring about better conditions. Where railroad contracts have been signed, the latter are taking more coal than is called for at the present time and are stocking it in anticipation of their needs later in the year. They are following a wise course. It is believed that if they can secure this coal during the summer and stock it at convenient points they will be able to give much better service next winter. Cars which would then be in their own service hauling coal for the use of locomotives can be diverted and can be used entirely for the movement of fuel to meet the demand of domestic and other steam users. This should be of considerable benefit to the trade, and it doubtless will be.

The Tyfold Collar

The picture shows how the collar is cut out on each side to allow for adjusting a neck tie without springing the collar open. The collar comes close together in front, it keeps the tie in place and you don't see the cut-out part. Besides the tie is retained just over the button, which is also kept out of sight. Your summer comfort will be increased if you wear one, and you'll thank us for the style. Dealers sell them.

VIRGINIA BONDS.

In today's issue of The Herald will be found the notice of sale of bonds of school district No. 22, which is the Virginia district. The amount of the issue is $60,000 and bids will be received until noon of June 30. The valuation of the property in the school district is $3,666,000 and the bonded indebtedness only $2700, and that will be paid before the new bonds are issued. The perfect security of the bonds will therefore be apparent to all investors, in fact they will undoubtedly be regarded as gilt edged, and as they draw interest at the rate of 5 per cent should bring a good premium. The bonds are issued for the purpose of erecting a new school building, a handsome structure of brick and stone.

CONVENES HERE

Annual Convocation of Episcopal Church In Duluth Next Week.

Woman's Auxiliary to Hold Annual Meeting at Same Time.

The annual meeting of the convocation of the district of Duluth of the Episcopal church will be held in St. Paul's Episcopal church, Wednesday and Thursday of next week. The opening service will be on Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock and a business session will follow and will continue through the morning and afternoon.

In the evening a missionary service will be held at which addresses will be made by clergymen appointed by the bishop for the purpose.

Thursday the closing services will be held, and the Woman's Auxiliary society will hold its annual meeting. At 10 o'clock there will be a celebration of the holy communion, with a sermon by the bishop of the diocese, Right Rev. J. D. Morrison. A business meeting will be held at 11 o'clock for the election of officers and the reading of the reports of the present officers.

A luncheon will be served at 1 o'clock by the Guild of St. Paul's church for those attending the meeting. At 2 o'clock in the afternoon the president of the auxiliary will give her annual address and this will be followed by a paper on the work among the Americanized negroes, an address by Mrs. Manypenny, wife of one of the Indian deacons, an address from Sister Ellen, an account of the late Indian convocation at White Earth, and a discussion of plans for future work.

Thursday evening Bishop and Mrs. Morrison will give a reception at their home to the visiting clergy and members of the auxiliary, and the families of those who are entertaining them, the choir of St. Paul's and the graduating class of the nurses of St. Luke's hospital, and their friends.

Celebrates a Feast.

The feast of St. Anthony de Padua, patron saint of the German Catholic parish of this city, will be observed tomorrow at the church, corner of Third avenue east and Second street. The children will receive their first communion at the high mass at 10 o'clock and Rev. Father E. Wendel, of New York, will deliver the sermon. The class numbers nineteen, twelve boys and seven girls.

In the evening there will be a procession. The first mass will be at 5:30 o'clock. The feast of Corpus Christi will also be celebrated.

Superior vs. Fargo.

The Superior and Fargo baseball teams will play an exhibition game tomorrow afternoon at West Superior. The game will be called at 3 o'clock. A large number of the fans are expected to go over from here.

Big Excursion From Morris to Leave For Home Then.

The big excursion from Morris, Minn., upon which there were over 1000 people, will leave on the Northern Pacific tomorrow afternoon at 4:15 o'clock.

The crowd did not get the best of accommodations, on account of the crowded condition of Duluth by the traveling men, and many of the visitors walked around the streets all last night, though accommodations of some kind could have been had.

There were a large number of the visitors who were taken over to Superior, also, and secured accommodations there.

DECIDING ON SITE.

Northern Pacific Surveyors Here Again This Week.

A party of surveyors from the Northern Pacific general offices made another trip here this week and looked over the site for the new addition to the freight house. It is still a matter of conjecture, so far as the local officials go, as to what is to be the property upon which the station is to be built.

The surveyors went over the land on the north side of the present station, and also surveyed down into the yards at the eastern end of the freight house. They have returned to St. Paul and it is likely their recommendation will be made next week.

The local officials are inclined to believe that the choice will be for an extension of the present building the long way and toward Lake avenue, with a reconstruction of the yards at that point.

A FINNISH SCHOOL

Duluth May Be Site of Handsome and Important Institution.

Lakeside Favorably Impresses Those In Charge as a Location.

Duluth may become the seat of a Finnish university.

The Northwest has an immense population of Finnish-Americans and it has been decided to establish a university.

Men prominent in this movement have been looking up sites at the head of the lakes and are very favorably impressed with a location offered at Lakeside.

The institution would have an attendance of from 250 to 300 to begin with, according to a person prominently identified with the movement.

In St. Louis county alone there are several thousand Finnish-American citizens and there are many more throughout northern Wisconsin, Minnesota and North Dakota. There are many in Upper Michigan but these send their children to a Finnish school at Hancock. It is understood that the proposed school here would be similar to the Hancock institution, only on a much larger scale.

Although non-sectarian, it is understood that a department in theology will be a feature. Plans as to the building and equipment are partially prepared, but await the final selection of a site. It is understood that there is strong financial aid promised the proposed institution, not only insuring a first-class course of instruction but also buildings that would be an honor to any city.

ELABORATE PRODUCTION.

"The Charity Ball" to Be Beautifully Staged.

The coming production of the beautiful society drama, "The Charity Ball," next Friday afternoon at the Lyceum theater, and at West Superior the same evening, with Gus A. Forbes, will be one of the most elaborate seen in Duluth for a long time. The entire stage furnishings, couches, chairs, tables, bric-a-brac, rugs, draperies, lamps and art goods will all, by special arrangement, come from Silberstein & Bondy Co.'s, and immediately after the matinee they will all be taken to West Superior for the evening performance. The presentation of "The Charity Ball" next Friday afternoon and evening promises to be the event of the week.

Proctorknott is to have a new Y. M. C. A. building.

Emil Zauft, of West Duluth, has closed a contract with the Duluth, Missabe & Northern road for the erection of a $10,000 structure to be used for Y. M. C. A. purposes by the employes of the road at Proctorknott.

The building will be of brick and will be equipped with baths, a reading room where the latest magazines will be kept, a gymnasium and an assembly room for meetings of the members.

The Duluth, Missabe and Northern company is following the plan adopted by many roads of furnishing its employes with Y. M. C. A. facilities and the new building will be a modern one in every detail.

The school building at Proctorknott is also to be remodeled during the summer months and finished throughout. Mr. Zauf has the contract for this work also.

COMPLETE COURSE

Five Nurses Graduate From St. Luke's Hospital Next Week.

Address By Bishop J. D. Morrison and Presentation of Badges.

The commencement exercises of St. Luke's hospital training school for nurses will be held at St. Paul's church Thursday evening, June 18, beginning at 7:45 o'clock. The graduating class of 1903 is comprised of five members.

Miss Laura M. Moffatt, of Lindsay, Ont.
Margaret T. Dunlap, of Kingston, Ont.
Emma F. Boyd, of Eden, Ont.
Gertrude E. Adams, of Duluth.
Jane Callahan, of West Superior, Wis.

The motto of the class of 1903 is "Semper Fidelis." A very interesting program has been prepared for the exercises this year with an address by the Right Rev. J. D. Morrison, bishop of Duluth.

The address will be followed by the presentation of diplomas to the graduates by Rev. A. W. Ryan, president of the board and pastor of the St. Paul's church of this city.

Following out the usual custom of the training school for nurses there will be a presentation of badges to the graduates by the superintendent of the hospital, Miss A. C. Thornton.

Invitations to the commencement exercises have just been issued by the board of managers of the hospital training school.

WEST END MEN MEET.

Consider Subjects of Importance to Men.

The West End Business Men's club held a meeting last evening and discussed to some extent improvements for that portion of the city. Among the subjects to receive consideration were the Superior street paving, the fight against the sale of the terminal system to the Northern Pacific company, and the construction of a cross line of street railway from West Superior street to West Third street with a service by double truck cars.

Another meeting will be called by President C. O. Nelson next week, when discussion on the various subjects will be had at further length.

FORMALLY GOES OUT.

King Victor Emmanuel Has Resignation of Cabinet.

Rome, June 3.—Premier Zanardelli today formally announced in the chamber of deputies that the cabinet had resigned.

Signor Zanardelli said the cabinet had this day presented its resignation to King Victor Emmanuel and that the latter had reserved his decision. The ministers will temporarily continue the discharge of important affairs. The premier then asked the chamber to adjourn to permit a consideration of the matter and the session was adjourned subject to the call of the president of the house.

Paris, June 13.—A telegram from Rome to the Temps says the deputies closely allied to Signor Zanardelli are urging him, in case King Victor Emmanuel requests him to form a new cabinet, not to decline the task. Personally, Signor Zanardelli is greatly fatigued by official cares and wishes to retire.

RESPONSES ARE LIGHT

More Competitors Should Enter The Good Lawn Competition.

The people of Duluth have not responded as generally as the committee would like in regard to sending in their names for the competition for the prizes to be given by the Commercial club and the Jewel nursery of Lake City, Minnesota, for the best kept lawns.

The only rules governing the contest are, that however small or large the lawns may be they must be cared for by members of the household and without hired assistance—that the lawn and yard consist of the entire grounds, front, side and back of the dwelling—that originality of arrangement and ingenuity in adapting the natural conditions to enhance the beauty of the premises shall be taken into consideration.

The prizes will be $20 as first prize given by the Commercial club of Duluth in each of the eight wards of the town, and $10 worth of plants, shrubs, etc., given as second prize in each ward by the Jewel Nursery of Lake City, Minn. To be sure we gain a prize of little intrinsic value, but should it not be a pleasure to show our interest in civic improvements and our pride in making our homes more beautiful. Besides, if we work for and show our appreciation for this prize the Commercial club may next year increase the amount already offered and make it well worth while.

In the west end of our town there are many homes built on the sides of the hills and surrounded by boulders and rocks, that might be made more attractive and at little small expense. These boulders might be made very attractive by covering them with vines and climbing plants, while the smaller rocks may be built into piles or rockeries with ferns and flowers planted in their crevices or pockets.

The natural conditions of our surroundings should be preserved intact as far as possible, such as trees already growing on the land, rocks, streams and ponds. Trees and shrubbery in clusters as nature places them are by far more beautiful and attractive to the eye than those dotted about at regular intervals. Of course attention should be paid to clearing the underbrush and weeds and to keeping the open lawns well mown. Where lots are small little can be done in the way of planting trees and shrubbery, but a smooth green lawn might be relieved here and there by beds of flowers.

The insiduous enemy to grass, the ever-increasing dandelion, should be weeded out. To be sure it takes time and trouble to do it, but it will prove wise in the end. Now is the time to cut the blooms so that they may not go to seed and scatter over space. It might be well for several persons in a neighborhood to work together over the vacant lots and thus exterminate them. A suggestion was made to me a few days ago that is not bad, "that it might be well to hire help to clean the vacant lots and send the bill to the real estate agent, since the city laws require that the vacant lots shall be kept in a cleanly and sightly condition by their owners or agents."

All competitors for the above prizes are urged to send in their names and addresses to H. V. Eva, secretary of the Commercial club, before July 1. Mr. Eva will also gladly give any information on this subject. Yours very truly,

MARY B. STATHAM,
Press Committee.

New Trial Asked.

The Martin Tie and Timber company, which was defendant in an action on a contract brought against it by O. A. Mattson, has filed a notice for a motion for a new trial, in district court. The case was tried some months ago and the plaintiff was given a verdict. The defendant will ask that the verdict be set aside and that a new trial be granted on the grounds that the damages were excessive and appear to have been given under influence of passion and prejudice; that the verdict was not justified by the evidence, is contrary to law, and because of errors in law occurring at their trial and excepted by the defendant. I. Grettum represents the plaintiff and John Jenswold, Jr., the defendant.

THE GRAIN MARKETS

Wheat Started Easier But Became Stronger and Advanced.

Flax Trading Fairly Active and the Market Weaker.

Duluth Board of Trade, June 13.—The wheat market started easier this morning owing to the fine weather in the wheat districts and the light demand, but turned stronger and recovered the opening loss. The close in the Chicago and St. Louis markets was practically the same, relatively. Chicago July advanced ½@¾c and St. Louis July ½c and September ⅝c. In the Northwestern markets Minneapolis July went a shade stronger and September ⅝@¾c up, and in Duluth the July and September were both up ½c. New York July was a shade lower and September ½@⅝c higher, but the close here was, of course, an hour earlier than in other markets.

Receipts of wheat at Duluth and Minneapolis, 280 cars, and at Chicago 15, a total of 300 cars, against 245 last week and 239 last year.

The Liverpool market was closed, it being a holiday there. Paris was ½c lower.

Primary receipts of wheat were 296,000 bus, last year 357,000 bus. Shipments 501,000 bus, last year 289,000 bus. Clearances of wheat and flour were 273,000 bus.

July corn in Chicago closed unchanged and July oats ⅝@⅞c up. Primary receipts of corn were 983,000 bus., last year 507,000 bus. Shipments 287,000 bus., last year 264,000 bus. Clearances were 39,000 bus.

Trading in wheat in the Duluth market was dull. July opened ⅝c off at 79⅜c but turned stronger from that point and sold up to 79⅞c at 11:15 and closed at 79⅝c. This was an advance of ⅛c and September had the same advance.

Flax was fairly active and weaker, July selling 1¾c off to $1.10⅜ and closing at $1.10½. This was a decline of 1¼c and September and October closed with the same losses. The feature of the flax market was the sale of four loads for export from this market. Prices have been getting closer to an export basis for some time, however. This sale was made practically on the basis of Argentine flax in the foreign markets and Argentine seed is practically at its low point on the crop.

Oats made an advance of ⅛c.

Following were the closing prices on the Duluth board:

Wheat—To arrive, No. 1 hard, 81¼c; No. 1 northern, 79⅝c; No. 2 northern, 78¼c; July, 79⅝c; September, 72¼c; December, 71c. Flax—In store, $1.10½ to arrive, $1.10½; on track, $1.10½; July, $1.10½; September, $1.12; October, $1.12; November, $1.12½. Oats—To arrive, 36½-37c; on track, 36½-37c. Rye—To arrive, 50c; on track, 50c. Barley—35-37c. Cars inspected: Wheat, 49, last year 11; oats, 4; rye, 1; barley, 1; flax 19, last year 1. Receipts: Wheat, 27,964; oats, 5910; flax, 5486. Shipments: Oats, 1465.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Trading In Wheat Quiet and Prices Easier.

Chicago, June 13.—Trading in wheat was extremely quiet early in the day and opening prices were easier, July being off ¼c at 75¾c. The favorable weather brought out selling orders from commission houses which was mainly responsible for the lower tone, although the light cash demand had some influence. Minneapolis and Duluth reported receipts of 285 cars, which, with local receipts of 15 cars, none of contract grade, made total receipts for the three points of 300 cars, against 245 cars last week and 239 cars a year ago.

Trading continued dull throughout the entire session but more firmness was manifested the latter part of the day on a fair demand from a prominent operator. July closed at the top at 75¾@75⅞c a gain of 1@1¼c.

Favorable weather caused an easier opening in corn, July being ½c to ¾c lower at 48¾c to 48⅝c, and with only a light trade the market held steady the first hour. Local receipts were 338 cars, with 18 of contract grade.

Oats were easier in sympathy with wheat and corn, but July opened unchanged at 38c and selling off early in the session to 37¾@37⅝c. The volume of trading was small and the market lacked any features. Local receipts were 169 cars.

Trading in provisions was almost at a standstill the first half of the session and prices showed little change after opening steady. September pork was off 5c at $16.85; September lard and ribs were unchanged at $8.87½ and $9.27½.

Close: Wheat—July, 75¾@75¾c; old, 75¾@75¾c; September, 72¾@73c; old, 75@75c; December, 72¾c; old, 73⅞@73⅝c. Corn—June, 48¼c; July, 48½c; September, 47⅝c; December, 39⅝c. Oats—June, 38¼c; July, 38⅝@38¾c; September, 33⅜c; December, 33⅜@33½c. May, 35c. Pork—July $17.07½; September, $16.82½. Lard—July, $8.80; September, $8.92½; October, $8.75. Ribs—July, $9.30; September, $9.27½. Rye—July 51½@52c; September, 50c. Flax—Cash, N. W., $1.11, S. W., $1.10½; September, $1.13. Timothy—June, $3.75. Clover—June, $11.50. Barley—Cash, 47@56c. Cash wheat—2 red, 77c; 3 red, 72@76c; 2 hard winter, 76c; 3 hard winter, 74@76c; 1 northern spring, 76½@80c; 2 northern spring, 77c; 3 spring, 72@76c. Corn—2, 48½@49¼c; 3, 48¼@48¾c. Oats—2, 35c; 3, 34@34½c.

GRAIN GOSSIP.

Logan & Bryan, Chicago: Wheat—Liverpool, holiday; market very dull; Weak feature is the poor cash demand and small speculative trade. Notwithstanding this we are inclined to think wheat should be bought. Our reasons are that the dullness does not make lower prices, that stocks of wheat are small, and notwithstanding the large world's shipments, visible European supplies do not increase, which rather indicates that consumption is exceeding production at the moment, also that our advices from the best-informed sources lead us to expect that threshing returns from the winter wheat fields will be disappointing and will insure a further reduction both in the government and commercial estimates of the crop. Conditions of spring wheat in the Northwest are about perfect. So were the conditions of winter wheat supposed to be three months ago. The bullishness of this is that perfect conditions can get no better and are hard to maintain. Any impairment of the spring wheat prospects would certainly occasion a bull market. In the meantime future deliveries would certainly occasion a bull market. In the meantime future deliveries can be bought at a small discount and the market is without any pressure except from short selling. Estimated cars, 20.

Corn—The market is steady. Cash situation is not urgent, receipts and demand both moderate. Conditions of growing crop somewhat unfavorable both as to condition and acreage. Any improvement in the crop position should tend to increase country offerings, but so far there is no indication of this. Current prices for corn are high and we do not feel like advising its purchase. Estimated cars, 525.

Oats—Cash oats strong, and the demand exceeds the supply at the moment. The futures are steady. Much the same conditions exist in oats as in corn. Think oats should be sold. Estimated cars, 180.

Logan & Bryan, Chicago: A well-informed correspondent at St. Louis wires us as follows: "Our advices in red wheat show a steady and continued decline in condition. Reliable people in Missouri gave us very unfavorable reports today, many of them claiming they will not raise over a half crop. From personal observation and the reports from sections that we regard as trustworthy, we fell quite confident the next government report will show a materially further reduction in condition. Nearly all of the damage to wheat in Missouri and Mississippi bottoms has occurred since the first. This covers a very large territory which contained the most promising wheat in Illinois, Missouri and Kansas."

Broomhall predicts world shipments Monday about 11,200 bushels, of which Europe will take about 10,400,000 bushels. He expects some decrease in the quantity of breadstuffs on passage and that the breadstuffs into the United Kingdom during past week were about 4,400,000 bushels, against the same the previous week and 4,700,000 a year ago.

HAS STRANGE USES.

"Speaking of words that have undergone curious changes, here is this word 'funny,' that we use so much, and in so many different and contradictory senses," said the observant man, according to the New Orleans Times-Demorat. "The word 'funny' in its purer significance means something droll, comical, amusing or laughable. Fun means sport, merriment, frolicsome amusement. Goldsmith gave somewhat of the modern latitude of meaning to the word when he used the combination 'oddity, frolic and fun.' Oddity here gives a suggestion of the later significance of the word 'funny.' 'Funny' is now variously used. We will speak of a play, or an act, or an incident of our daily intercourse, as being awfully funny, by which we mean that it was comical, amusing, laughable. But note the new significance of the word in the following: We expect to hear of something in a certain way, or to a certain effect; or we expect to find something in a certain place, failing in which we are wont to exclaim: 'That's funny.' We do not mean it is comical. It may mean serious loss or a serious misunderstading. When we say that's funny,' we mean simply to express our surprise. We mean the thing, the fact, or the situation is different from what we expected under the circumstance. Frequently we will use the word 'gunny' in speaking of things of a tragic kind. The expression 'one of the funniest tragedies' is by no means unknown. When 'funny' or 'funiest' is used in connection with a tragic occurrence it is used as a synonym for strange, remarkable, extraordinary, and so on. So we say, too, in speaking of estrangements of a serious nature that it is 'funny' that he or she should have acted in this or that way. We mean simply that the person's conduct is surprising, strange or extraordinary. It is a rather striking fact that the wealthier we grow in words the more marked is the departure of old words from their original meaning. It is one of the pronounced linguistic idiosyncrasies of the age.

ADVANCE IS HELD

Stocks Started Irregular But Firmed and Recovered Loss.

Bank Statement Regarded as Strong and Caused Strength.

New York, June 13.—The opening of the stock market was rather irregular, but the speculative favorites of yesterday were generally a fraction lower. Reading ran off ½ and rallied ⅝, and Southern Pacific lost ⅝. The declines otherwise were restricted to small fractions. Canadian Pacific, with a decline of a point, measured the extreme loss in the active stocks before the list turned upwards. The recovery carried Baltimore & Ohio up 1⅞ and other leaders a shade above yesterday's close, and there were also substantial gains elsewhere. New York Air Brake advanced 6½, Westinghouse 4, Minneapolis, St. Paul & Soo 2¾, the preferred 3¾, Kansas City Southern prefered and Des Moines & Fort Dodge 2, and Duluth, South Shore & Atlantic, Iowa Central, Chicago Terminal preferred, Colorado Southern first preferred, Texas & Pacific, Hocking Valley, Metropolitan Street Railway, Brooklyn, Reading second preferred, Wabash, the St. Louis Southwestern stocks, Tennessee Coal, Sloss-Sheffield Steel, Wetern Union and Twin City Rapid Transit 1 to 1½.

Baltimore & Ohio rose an extreme 1⅞ and Reading got a point over last night. The market came to a pause to await the appearance of the bank statement which was regarded as strong. Efforts to take profits found a light demand and prices ran off. The reaction reached a point or more for leaders. St. Paul and Southern Pacific were carried a point under last night and the general list a fraction. Leather preferred lost a point. There were slight rallies at the last, but the closing was irregular.

STOCK GOSSIP.

Logan & Bryan to Paine, Webber & Co.: The market practically holds the advance of the past few days. The bank statement was favorable. There was a good deal of banking as is usually the case at an advance on Saturday. The outlook, in our judgment, is a much steadier one. The bear element has received a check to the confidence of their operations, which we think will require something new in the situation to restore. The market may lapse into a summer dullness, but stocks are selling on a fair basis and nothing in the general situation threatens very much, and we are inclined to think that for the time being, we would buy good stocks on breaks and buy them on the way down.

J. S. Bache to Paine, Webber & Co.: Speculators for a turn who bought on the extreme weakness of Wednesday took profits this morning because of the fractional lower market from London, expecting a fair reaction, but they were doomed to disappointment as the bears, who had sold so freely a few days ago had no need of stocks at their prices. The bank statement was remarkable as reflecting the liquidation in the market. With money ruling low the bank statements have merely a sentimental effect upon values and the permanent future of the market should depend largely on crop conditions in the next sixty days.

Walker Brothers to Paine, Webber & Co.: The market today opened steady and although London prices came in lower, there was some good buying and traders covered. The bank statement did not seem to be as good as expected and caused a good deal of selling. The close was barely steady and with the belief that the market had gone up too fast. We look for a traders' market next week and while we do not expect to see any such liquidation as took place we do not expect to see any such liquidation as took place last week, we do not look for any great bull movement.

THE COTTON MARKET.

New York, June 14.—The Liverpool cotton market again reported firmness with prices 10 to 16 points up whereas, a slight decline had been expeted. Not only were the cables favorable to prices, but the weather in the belt was unsettled and these factors with the decreasing movement and the admitted presence in the market of a powerful long interest, caused the bears no little anxiety. The market opened firm here at a gain of 6 to 17 points and advanced still further in the first half hour, the new crop months reaching new high records under active bull support and covering.

Cotton futures closed firm; June, $12.17; July, 12.25; August, 11.82; September, 10.98; October, 10.17; November, 10.07; December, 9.98; January, 9.98. Spot closed quiet, 15 points higher; middling uplands, 12.55; middling gulf, 12.75. Sales nohe.

NEW YORK MONEY.

New York, June 13.—Time money, firm; 60 days, 4 per cent; 90 days, 4½; 6 months, 5½. Money on call nominal. Prime mercantile paper, 5@5½ per cent. Sterling exchange steady with actual business in bankers' bills at $4.87.45 for demand and $4.84.70 for 60 days; posted rates, $4.85½ and $4.88½; commercial bills, $4.84@4¾. Bar silver 52¾c; Mexican dollars, 41¼c. Government bonds steady; railroad bonds, strong.

BANK STATEMENT.

New York, June 13.—The statement of averages of the clearing house banks of this city for the week show: Loans, 1903, $722,604,4 decrease, $11,776,100; deposits, $886,829,760; decrease, $11,795,300; circulation, $44,606,100; decrease, $96,100; legar tenders, $75,039,200; increase, $2,387,100; specie, $156,145,400; decrease, $584,400; reserve, $231,184,600; increase, $1,752,700; reserve required, $221,707,400; decrease, $2,948,825; surplus, $9,477,175; increase, $4,701,525; ex-United States deposits, $18,778,175; increase, $4,099,025.

COPPER GOSSIP.

Boston to Paine, Webber & Co.: There was continued good buying of stocks all along the line today and prices had further advances. Coppers acted especially well. The bank statement was considered favorable, but after its appearance there was considerable realizing and prices ran off from the highest. We expect market to continue active and have only slight fluctuations. On rallies profits should be taken as there are pretty sure to be good reactions on which to buy. The copper market is said to be very firm around 14¾c.

TREASURY BALANCES.

HOBO MOS QUITOES.

"The foxy mosquito is now traveling in the palatial sleeping coach, I thank you," said the observant man, "all of which goes to show that the misquito is nothing if not progressive and up-to-date. You simply can't get ahead of the mosquito, says the New Orleans Times-Democrat. This thing of finding this pestiferous insect in the sleeping coach is a new thing on me. He may have found the way to the cozy berth some time ago, but if he did, I failed to know anything about it. But I know about it now. A few days ago I went to St. Louis, taking a sleeper at New Orleans in the evening. It never occurred to me that I would need a portable bar to protect myself from the sweet singers of the swamp. As soon as I had coiled up in my berth they began to attack me, and before the night was over they had simply carved right wonderful. The bed element have received a check to the confidence of their operations, which we think will require something new in the situation to restore. The market may lapse into a summer dullness, but stocks are selling on a fair basis and nothing in the general situation threatens very much, and we are inclined to think that for the time being, we would buy good stocks on breaks and buy them on the way down.

J. S. Bache to Paine, Webber & Co.: Speculators for a turn who bought on the extreme weakness of Wednesday took profits this morning because of the fractional lower market from London, expecting a fair reaction, but they were doomed to disappointment as the bears, who had sold so freely a few days ago had no need of stocks at their prices. The bank statement was remarkable as reflecting the liquidation in the market. With money ruling low the bank statements have merely a sentimental effect upon values and the permanent future of the market should depend largely on crop conditions in the next sixty days.

Walker Brothers to Paine, Webber & Co.: The market today opened steady and although London prices came in lower, there was some good buying and traders covered. The bank statement did not seem to be as good as expected and caused a good deal of selling. The close was barely steady and with the belief that the market had gone up too fast. We look for a traders' market next week and while we do not expect to see any such liquidation as took place we do not expect to see any such liquidation as took place last week, we do not look for any great bull movement.

THE COTTON MARKET.

New York, June 14.—The Liverpool cotton market again reported firmness with prices 10 to 16 points up whereas, a slight decline had been expeted. Not only were the cables favorable to prices, but the weather in the belt was unsettled and these factors with the decreasing movement and the admitted presence in the market of a powerful long interest, caused the bears no little anxiety. The market opened firm here at a gain of 6 to 17 points and advanced still further in the first half hour, the new crop months reaching new high records under active bull support and covering.

Cotton futures closed firm; June, $12.17; July, 12.25; August, 11.82; September, 10.98; October, 10.17; November, 10.07; December, 9.98; January, 9.98. Spot closed quiet, 15 points higher; middling uplands, 12.55; middling gulf, 12.75. Sales nohe.

NEW YORK MONEY.

New York, June 13.—Time money, firm; 60 days, 4 per cent; 90 days, 4½; 6 months, 5½. Money on call nominal. Prime mercantile paper, 5@5½ per cent. Sterling exchange steady with actual business in bankers' bills at $4.87.45 for demand and $4.84.70 for 60 days; posted rates, $4.85½ and $4.88½; commercial bills, $4.84@4¾. Bar silver 52¾c; Mexican dollars, 41¼c. Government bonds steady; railroad bonds, strong.

BANK STATEMENT.

New York, June 13.—The statement of averages of the clearing house banks of this city for the week show: Loans, 1903, $722,604,4 decrease, $11,776,100; deposits, $886,829,760; decrease, $11,795,300; circulation,

IN MARINE CIRCLES

Capt. Monaghan Says Large Ore Cargoes Are Not Dangerous.

"There is not the slightest danger of accidents due to overloading in the record-breaking cargoes which the big boats of the Pittsburg Steamship company are taking down the lakes," said Capt. Monaghan, of the United States steamboat inspection service in answer to a question as to whether the desire of shippers to load their vessels to the fullest capacity were not jeopardizing the lives of the crew and the safety of the ship.

"These big freighters of the Pittsburg Steamship company, the Hill, Gates, Edenborn and Ellwood were built to be loaded to twenty feet. The greatest depth of water at the lime kiln crossing in the Detroit river, the shallowest part of the channel down the lakes. Their cargo then hitherto has been regulated only by the depth of water and not by their capacity. Had they a sufficient depth of water they could easily load several hundred tons more than the record and yet not be overloaded. These cargoes of 7500 tons are not much more than good ballast for the big vessels.

"There is far more overloading among the smaller vessels built to carry about 3000 tons. These boats which are meant to be loaded only to 14 or 16 feet often clear with a cargo which forces them to draw 16 or 18 feet. The advantage which the big freighter has over the smaller one has forced the owner of the latter to load his boat to the utmost capacity in order to compete with the big steel carrier."

LAUNCHING OF SHARPLESS

Takes Place at Superior—Named After Quebec Man.

The new freighter Sharpless which has been built for the Great Lakes and St. Lawrence Transportation company at the Superior shipyards will be launched this afternoon. The Sharpless is named after a prominent capitalist of Quebec.

Five other new boats built by the same line have been launched this season. They were the Parent, Keefe, Lambert, Howe, and Wallace.

Four other boats for the same line are being built, one at Superior, one at Chicago and two at Detroit.

THE WEEK QUIET ONE IN REALTY MARKET

Summer Season Open But Not Much Doing as Yet —Awakening of Interest In All of the Fine Residence Suburbs of Duluth.

The fact that the summer season is now well open, that bad weather prevailed during the first of the week and that the latter part of the week is given over to the celebration attendant on the annual convention of the traveling men is claimed to be responsible in part for a quiet realty market. Some of the real estate brokers attribute the quiet period more to the effect on small speculators of the demoralization of stocks within the past few days.

Inquiry is being made right along for improved properties and there is some selling, but even those who appear to be doing business do not claim that the market is lively. The realty men are pleased to welcome visitors here this week, for they claim that traveling men are of the greatest aid in spreading to the world outside the advantages of the Zenith City, and that the good things they can say of a city often reaches the ears of the investors. As a class of men the commercial travelers are credited with sizing up a city or a town as to its business and industrial possibilities better than anybody else actually not a resident. Every traveling man knows whether the cities he makes are good places in which to live.

Still, with the summer quiet period on, the realty dealers are feeling pretty well encouraged over the outlook for the fall season. The local realty was very good last fall and the expectations are for even better business the coming fall.

With the summer season at the head of the lakes, attention is now being turned to a large extent to the outlying residence districts of the city for homes. Park Point is, of course, as popular, if not more so, than ever, as a place to spend the summer, and there is a larger demand at the present time for rental properties on the Point than there is supply. Very few of the houses building this past spring remain unfinished, while in some cases the owners have moved in without waiting for the finishing touches. The Park Point settlement is astonishingly large this year, and what is more, it is likely to be permanent.

Lakeside and Lester Park localities are proving very attractive to home-seekers, and especially so during this time of the year, when nature adds her appeal as a coaxer on the financial propositions involved. It is claimed that there are few if any vacant houses at Lakeside, and that there is a daily demand for homes in that part of the city.

This condition is just as true of Woodland, another of the city's beauty spots. This is just the time of year that the suburbanites take delight in telling of the beautles of the outlying residence districts.

The new train service to New Duluth and Fond du Lac has opened a new field for summer homes, the train schedule being arranged so that splendid facilities are being offered to Duluthians who already have, or contemplate, building summer home at up-river points. That district certainly bids fair to become popular as a summer residence district.

Scarcity of houses is the constant complaint at West Duluth. The surprisingly large increase in industrial activity in that part of the city the past year has caused an equally large spurt in the population in that district, and every rentable property has again been put up on a paying basis. The West Duluth district needs certain improvements to meet the growing demands, and is believed that these things will work themselves out in good time. A good demand is being noted by all local offices dealing with West Duluth lots.

Even Duluth Heights, that hill settlement so seriously handicapped a year or more ago by inadequate street car service, under the more favorable existing circumstances, has taken a long stride ahead as a desirable place for a home. The sale of properties on the Heights for occupancy has been steady ever since last winter, and the aggregate amount of property that has changed hands would reach a large figure. The general tendency is steadily toward improvement, and the Heights is far livelier as a residence district than it has been for years previous. While there are still some vacant properties to be found, they are fast passing into hands of prospective householders, who will make a permanent home back of the hill.

Building activity is almost as noticeable in the West End this season as a year ago. A large number of small homes have gone up in the district this spring, and many others are nearing completion for summer occupancy. The West End is eminently the home of the workingmen, and this class are doing much in the way of home building.

The question is being frequently asked what will be doing the coming year in the way of new wholesale, jobbing or new manufactory building? Last year was an especially good one in the way of new building and improvement of old buildings in the wholesale district. Not so much is heard this season of building in the immediate center of the city, but it is known that there are any number of new enterprises awaiting the completion of the water power project on the St. Louis river. As one of the parties interested put it the other day, all they are waiting for is for the water power company to start the procession. Local people who have been in correspondence with prospective new industrial concerns, and who have an inside knowledge of the situation do not care to make public, as yet, all the things that are pending, but they are enthusiastic over the outlook, and if their optimistic predictions all turn out true, Duluth will make tremendous strides in the industrial world within the next two years.

Mr. Lyons of William Prindle & Co., reports a very fair week's business considering all the handicaps. Among the sales of the firm are the following: A house and lot on East Fourth street between Fourth and Fifth avenues, for $3100; a house and lot on Fifty-seventh avenue west and Grand avenue, $1500; a house and lot on Seventeenth avenue west, for $2500; a lot on West Fourth street near Lake avenue, for $2500.

The Howard Investment company has sold the past week the property at 1802 Jefferson street, to Gustav Bjorkland for $3575. Among other sales were four lots on the lake side near the canal, for $4550, and a lot on East Third street.

Samuel Loeb & Company has sold to M. Z. Kassmir the old business property at the corner of First avenue east and First street, the consideration being $4000.

George H. Crosby says:—"We have had a very successful week in spite of the unfavorable weather Monday and Tuesday, and the diversion from business on account of the U. C. T. convention and other visitors. Have closed several deals previously reported and sold two properties in the East End and one on the hillside, none of which is ready for publication. The demand for loans for building purposes seems to be very good. I have no fear of any inactivity in real estate during the summer season.

The deed conveying to Rev. J. E. Grotheim from Mary Blake the residence property at 1021 East Second street, was filed this week. The purchaser, until recently a resident of Virginia, has bought the property for a home. The sale was made through the office of George Crosby & Company. Among other sales of the same firm are the following: A vacant lot in Helm's edition to Arthur Beatty, for $535; Rufus E. Thayer, residence on Sixteenth avenue west, for $1700; I. N. Sodahl lot 58, block 51, Duluth proper, Third division, for $2000; Edward C. Thurston the west half of lot 6, block 39, Endion division for $2950.

Work at the offices of the local architects is confined largely to the work at hand rather than any new prospective building operations. Young & Myshrall are getting out plans this week for a modern 14-room residence at Hibbing for George E. Scott that will cost about $7000, and for a priest's residence at Eveleth.

Plans are now on file and bids are being received for the erection of a new building for the weather bureau, 2-story, 30 by 50 feet of brick or stone.

YELLOWSTONE TOURISTS

Able to See Hundreds of Wild Animals.

Yellowstone Park, June 13.—Tourists, who have been touring Yellowstone Park this season, confirm the reports of government scouts that game was never more plentiful in the park than at present. Large bands of elk and deer were encountered at different points along the route. Near the Grand Canyon a band of fully 500 elk were seen grazing along the hillsides, undisturbed by the coach loads of tourists passing in the valley below. At the canyon the bears are most numerous, from ten to twenty coming down at dusk to feed at the garbage pile a few rods back of the hotel. The mountain sheep are more timid and not often seen from the main traveled roads, though there are a great many to be seen by taking the back trails into the mountain valleys. President Roosevelt followed this course, and was fortunate in seeing a great many. "When we sighted our first mountain sheep," said a member of the president's party, "the president was shaving in his tent. Dropping his razor he grabbed his binoculars and the next minute with one of the scouts was climbing a slippery mountain trail to gain a better view. There was a fine band of twenty of them, and the president, half shaved, and with the lather drying to his face, watched them for nearly an hour.

In every city there is one paper favored by local advertisers. In Duluth it is The Herald.

HISTORICAL SOCIETY

HIGH SCHOOL GRADUATION | UNITED NORWEGIAN CHURCH

DIPLOMAS GIVEN

To Sixty-Five Seniors at Duluth Central High School.

Large Audience Present at the Commencement Exercises.

Five scholarly essays read by honor pupils of the graduating class comprised the main part of the program given in the high school assembly hall last evening when the class of 1903, sixty-five strong, was graduated. The hall was filled with relatives and friends of the graduates.

The stage was prettily decorated with potted plants and flowers. The young women of the class were dressed in white gowns and wore no flowers, except one or two, who had placed a single rose in their hair. The young men appeared neatly attired in black and white.

Rev. S. P. Long, of the First Methodist church, gave the invocation, which was followed by "Alma Mater," sung by the class.

"Dialect in Literature" was the subject which Miss Gertrude May Schiller had chosen for her very able essy. She said in substance:

Life was well epitomized in the old allegory of a swallow flitting through a hall in which a group was gathered about a fireside. A little we may see and feel, and then we must forth again into the eternities. But the moments of life, like the swallow's flight, are not quite voiceless. As he may twitter in the ears of men, so men themselves may give sign to one another of what they know and feel. Men have learned to record these signs so that others long after may know what their lives meant. Most of these records have been set forth in the terms of language which all men have learned to use. Many of them are soon forgotten, but others, like the story of the swallow, linger through the ages. It is to these that the name "literature" is given. Literature is the lasting expression in words of the meaning of life.

In order to give expression to these feelings, as they are peculiar to certain types and classes, dialect is used. Dialects are but the pigments which are used in producing life-like portraits. In America, with its mixed population, dialect literature has extraordinary richness and variety. In the East is the Inland or longshore Yankee; in the South, the negro; in the West, the cowboy; in Kentucky, the mountaineer, and in Pennsylvania, the Pennsylvania Dutchman. Each type has its own particular dialect, and it is through these that we receive the true record of their lives. Dialect should have as full justice done it as perfect English, for it is then worthy and welcome in literature. Its writer must enter upon its use as studiously and observingly as upon pure English. He must know each carrying shade of expression and the inner character of the people minutely. Otherwise his produce is simply a pretense.

"Without dialect our literature would be robbed of many of its choicest characters. We should still have the treasures of Hawthorne, Poe and Emerson, but the various types of the country would be left without their most able exponents. What would become of Hosea Biglow, Tom Sawyer, Uncle Remus and many of the other native immortals? The abolition of dialect would be the extinction of a large part of our literature. To object to dialect is to deny our man classes the right to speak in their natural tongue. It is not the verbal and literal niceties of dialect that give it value; it is the picturesque and engaging figures passed to our expanding realm of humor, the homely and humanizing touches of pathos and the real form of crude purity and unrestrained sweetness. Last of all its uses, dialect enables the satirist of public affairs to dramatize his criticism in a Biglow or a Nasby.

"The master in literature is the man who can put himself aside and let his humble characters do the thinking and talking. It is worthy of the high attention of the greatest master because it enables him to reproduce life as he has known it. James Russell Lowell first brought American dialect to perfection, being the first to raise it to the dignity of true poetry. Riley is perhaps the typical American dialect author, as he represents the average of humanity throughout the country. Col. Richard Malcolm Johnston, who wrote the 'Dukesborough Tales,' is another true dialect writer. Joel Chandler Harris should be regarded with equal esteem, and Miss Murfree's Tennessee mountain stories charm us.

"These are the interpreters of our American life, who bring these voices to us in their natural sweetness and rugged strength, who print in bold and stern outlines but soften all with tender sympathy for the homely life. Such writers are immortal, because each in his own particular field is the exponent of our diverse American life, of its joys and sorrows, its aspirations and shortcomings, its wisdom and its folly, the confident of its soul."

A masterly oration on "John Marshall" was next on the program. It was given by Henry Davis.

"The framers of the constitution little knew how excellent was their work," he said. "Men have differed as to the interpretation of the instrument; great debates and struggles, which only served to heighten respect for the document grew out of these differences. It is very doubtful whether the framers of the constitution ever imagined that it would extend its protection over a land so broad and powerful.

"The supreme court is a body originated by the constitution which has included among its number some of the greatest minds the nation has produced. John Marshall is easily first. He was possessed of a primitive and elemental mind, with a great store of strong common sense. Patient in investigation and able to keep his judgment in suspense, he could look at a subject from all sides.

"When he come to the office of chief justice, constitutions were new and untried. France had experimented, but as a general thing Anglo-Saxons were distrustful of them. He strengthened the central government by his rulings. The two most important classes of cases with which he had to deal were those which specified the reach of the constitution and those which dealt with the extent of the powers of the states."

In conclusion Mr. Davis said:

"The stamp of Marshall's mind was on nearly every case tried during the thirty-five years during which he was a member of the court. There is in the decisions a cogency of reasoning, a depth of remark, a persuasiveness of argument, a clearness and elaboration of conclusion which is unparalleled. Marshall in his own field, the judicial department, stands pre-eminent."

"Toreador," from "Carmen," was sung by Charles Applehagen. He was given an enthusiastic encore.

"Myths in English Literature" was the title of the essay which Miss Irene Reau read.

Mythical stories were cleverly analyzed in her paper and she found them to be the results of the primitive imagination, crude answers to the ever-present questions suggested by nature. They were the means by which the ancients satisfied themselves on the questions of "What is the world? What is man? What is death?" etc.

They observed physical phenomena, saw great oaks grow from tiny acorns, and mighty rivers from little streams. They knew nothing of the law of cause and effect, or the laws of nature. The only force known to them was the force of will. They imagined that each of the great figures in nature possessed this power and so in their imaginations made them into mythical personalities.

As the ancients inquired into the causes of existence, said Miss Reau, everything tended to show them the existence of some superior being, and so the religious element was introduced. They endowed every force with volition, and so began to deify the personalities which in their crude philosophy represented that force. So each of the many gods and goddesses came into existence. Every change in nature showed some feeling on the part of the gods. A thunderstorm was the sign of anger. Neptune sent a calm or ruffled sea. This was the foundation of the religion of the present day.

The study of mythical literature, she continued, has led men to appreciate native conditions and the beauties of fanciful literature. It heightens the aesthetic judgment and is necessary to the most enjoyment of much of our best literature.

Besides enriching our store of fiction and poetic conceptions, myths stimulate imaginative emotional faculties. Many a man of creative ability has been awakened to the fact that he possessed such a faculty after reading some of the best mythical stories.

One great good which the myths do, she declared, is to lift us for the moment from the sordid world immediately about us into a world where everything exists for the sole purpose of delighting us. It furnishes information which, while not practical, is delightful.

"Surely the age of myths is not passed," she concluded," surely the wonder and beauties of nature are still but a mystery not yet fully unveiled; surely this new republic of ours, no less than her prototypes, in her queenly form and flowing robes, utters a truth, a beauty, a grace of which we Americans, for lack of imaginative training, sympathy and awe have not yet valued, have yet to enjoy and apprehend."

"The Women of the French Revolution" was the title of a scholarly essay by Miss Mary Richards.

It is hard for us to realize in these days of peace, said Miss Richards, a period of comparatively recent history when neither life or property were of value, when men attained fame in the morning and died at night.

Ideas of equality were brought to France from the American colonies. Nobility and peasantry discussed the novel idea that all men are born free and equal. The peasantry was inflamed by great orators and leaders who sprang forth to lead them on. Parties were formed whose principal actors were men crazed with patriotism and willing to give their lives for the cause.

"Men, did, I say, yes, and women, too, grand in their devotion, patriotism and self sacrifice!" said Miss Richards. "Among these noble characters were Madame Roland, glorious in the fire of her conviction; Charlotte Corday, a young, beautiful, but misguided girl; and Marie Antoinette, that magnificent but ill-starred queen."

Treating of the character of the queen Miss Richards told of her peerless beauty, her dignified yet gracious manner but the fatal lack of tact, that fatal disregard of public sentiment which ultimately brought her to the block and caused untold suffering to her family.

The trouble broke and the king weak and vacillating could do nothing. The haughty queen scorned the rabble still in one night after her attempted escape and recapture her beautiful, blond hair turned white. They cast her in prison, decapitated her husband, robbed her of her children, during her own trial they asked her if she had anything to say. She answered:

"I was a queen, and you took away my crown; a wife, and you killed my husband; a mother, and you deprived me of my children; my blood alone remains, take it but do not make me suffer long."

Thus this queen faded and worn with the troubles of life went calmly, nay, gladly to her only earthly hope—the guillotine. The path was rough and harsh but it led to peace.

The speaker next took up Charlotte Corday. France little thought, she said, that while bloodshed and riot were every where that a young girl would extinguish the beacon light of the people, and arouse the mob in its frenzy by killing Marat their idol. Charlotte Corday came from Caen, where her education had led her to believe that Marat was the devil incarnate who was the cause of France's ruin. She gained admittance to the leader while he was ill and writing a letter in his bath.

"Frenzied by his blood-thirsty words, 'before a week they shall have perished at the guillotine,' she drew a dagger from the folds of her dress and plunged it up to the hilt into his breast. Marat friend of the people fell back dead, "yes, your blow was true, oh! Charlotte Corday," said Miss Richards, "you struck down your hated Marat, but alas, France could not be saved by the deed of one unselfish woman. No, it drank the blood of thousands before there was peace in the land." Never was vision more beautiful than the sight which the executors beheld when the beautiful girl was brought to the guillotine in the red robe of the condemned.

Madame Roland was one of the great leaders of the Girond, the political party which urged on the mob. Though she lived mostly in the provinces she kept in touch with the situation in every detail and when her husband became a Girondist she believeing in the principles lent her energies and became the leader of the party. It was a bitter disappointment to her, said the speaker, when she found that instead of gaining liberty, anarchy had been her prize. Her party failed and their opponents as usual had the leaders executed.

"As in olden times, 'All roads lead to Rome,' so in the French revolution all roads led to the guillotine," declared Miss Richards.

In conclusion the speaker declared in regard to the three women whom she had treated: "Let us remember that such types exist today, and while bowing in reverence to the heroines of history, we may take opportunity to lay our humble laurel wreath upon the shrine of the womenly women."

"Spring Has Come," delightfully rendered by Mrs. Mark Baldwin, was applauded by the big audience.

Alfred Moe gave an oration on "Ireland's Dream of Nationality." Both from point of construction and delivery the essay was among the best.

Fourteen hundred years ago there walked through Ireland a simple yet sublime young man whose mission was to preach the gospel and baptise the people into the Holy church. When his footsteps had ended forever, the Pagan land had become Christian and was destined for centuries to shed light and learning throughout the north of Europe.

Seven hundred years after St. Patrick went into Ireland to preach the gospel an English king sen tover missionaries, but they were missionaries whose mission was to conquer and enslave. But this Gaelic race, with its love of freedom, refused to be enslaved. The work of Henry II has never been completed, and never will, as long as a Celt exists

WEST DULUTH DEGREE TEAM, MODERN WOODMEN.

A large delegation of Modern Woodmen left the head of the lakes this afternoon for Indianapolis, where the annual convention will be held next week.

The degree team of the West Duluth lodge is the only Duluth organization that will enter the prize competition in national degree work, and members of the order are confident that this team will be a great credit to the city. Superior lodges are sending two teams.

IS GROWING FAST

United Norwegian Lutheran Church Rapidly Increasing In Strength.

Fourteenth Annual Meeting Begins In Duluth Next Week.

The United Norwegian Lutheran church, which is to hold its fourteenth annual meeting in Duluth from June 17 to June 25, is still sustaining its reputation as an exceedingly rapid-growing association. It is already the largest Scandinavian organization outside the kingdoms of the North, and it seems natural for men and means to drift into it from all other Norwegian church organizations in the United States, the main contributors being the Free church, the Hauge synod and the Norwegian synod. Several pastors from each of these associations have applied for admission into the United church during the past twelve months, and their applications will be acted upon in Duluth.

Half a dozen new ministers have been added since the last annual meeting, and fifteen young men have just completed a theological course at the United church seminary, St. Anthony Park, Minn., all of whom have already accepted calls from congregations in different parts of the country. But the supply is far short of the demand. Formand Dahl, of Minenapolis, the head of the United church, in speaking of this matter to a representative of this paper, used the following language:

"We have supplied about twenty charges within a short time. But this does not seem to afford much of a relief. Congregations in different parts of the country are clamoring for ministers as loudly and as presistnly as ever. Congregations in the far West tell us that they are anxious to get ministers from us, but they often add that if we have none to spare they shall be bound to look elsewhere for help. As a matter of faet the United church is overwhelmed with work while hit seems unable to take care of."

Forhand Dahl expressed himself to the same effect on the home and foreign missions. The fields are large and receptive, and the necessary means are forthcoming, but the men engaged in that work are too few to be able to take proper advantage of the opportunities offered to them.

The two largest Norwegian church associations in America, the Norwegian synod and the United church which have a combined membership of about 400,000, are holding their annual meetings about the same time this year. They are both strictly Lutheran and attempts have been made to unite them by means of negotiations between their presidents and theological faculties. But these negotiations are no longer pushed as they were about two years ago, o naccount of difficulties of a peculiar nature. The negotiations naturally covered some of the most delicate doctrines of the Lutheran church, and by some of the negotiators secrecy was considered one of the necessary features of the "collognia," or discussions. But one of the negotiators, Professor F. A. Schmidt, D. D., of the United church seminary, reported part of the proceedings at the annual meeting of the United church in 1901. This was strongly resented by the representatives of the Norwegian synod, and the annual meeting of this body made an appeal to the United church to elect another negotiator in place of Professor Schmidt. No such thing was done, for the United church did not see anything morally wrong in the course of Professor Schmidt.

For a few months past matters have been going from bad to worse with regar dto this question. Last winter the church council of the Norwegian synod published and distributed free of charge, a pamphlet in which attempts are made to prove that Professor Schmidt has been culpably inconsistent in his teachings. This pamphlet gave rise to a general campaign in which Professor Schmidt is the central figure, but he can afford to take things coolly, for the leading men of his church are defending his course. For the time being, Professor Schmidt is really the most discussed man among the Norwegian church people of this country.

It is not the first time, however, that Professor Schmidt has been in the fire. He, more than any other man, was responsible for the schism which rent the Norwegian synod in twain almost twenty years ago and which has since brought into the United church something like 125,000 persons who, it seems, would otherwise have remained in the Norewegian synod. This bit of church history may throw some light on the fact that the leading men of the Norwegian synod do not love Professor Schmidt very dearly.

There still remains a bad gap in this discussion. Why do those parties disagree? No attempt will be made to state the positive doctrines held by each of the two parties. But something may be said, without fear of contradiction, about the charges made. The Norwegian synod holds that Professor Schmidt and his party are "syguergists," that they lay too great stress on man's work i nthe plan of salvation, and the main countercharge is, that the Norwegian synod, like the Calvinists, minimize man's work and responsibility.

As Professor Schmidt's name indicates, he is a German, but he has been connected with the Norwegian church since 1862. He speaks and writes Norwegian like a native, and he feels perfectly at home among the Norwegians.

Among the local members of the churches affiliated with the body that is to meet here next week a great amount of interest is being taken. It is considered quite an honor to have a national body of this sort choose Duluth as its meeting place, and there is therefore a feeling that the distinction should be recognized by making the gathering as great a success as possible.

So no efforts are being spared by the local people to do all in their power to make is a success.

Rev. N. B. Thvedt, pastor of the First Norwegian Lutheran church, has practical supervision of the preparations, and he is being assisted by the members of his congregation and by the two other churches of this faith in the West End and West Duluth. Interest in the meeting is not, by any means, confined to these churches nor to the Norwegians of the city. Native-born citizens as well as those of foreign birth are anxious to give the visitors a good impression of the city, and they are doing what they can to bring this about.

At present the principal efforts of the local committees are directed toward securing rooms for the visitors during their week's stay here. Three committees are working on this, one in each of the three churches of the city, and they are securing large lists of vacant rooms which the owners are willing to rent for the occasion. Responses are coming not only from members of the three churches but from members of other churches and from Americans as well as Norwegians. The lists are not yet as full as could be desired, however, and Rev. N. B. Thvedt will be thankful to anybody having such rooms that will write to him about it.

The number of visitors that will be in the city is largely a matter of conjecture as yet. There are over 1200 congregations in the country, and each of them is allowed to send three delegates, one clerical delegate and two lay delegates. The idea is to give the lay members the majority. If each congregation responded there would be over 3600 delegates, but of course not all of them will. It is confidently expected that there will be at least 1000 delegates in the city during the week from June 17 to June 25.

While the church is all over the United States, the delegates will mostly come from Minnesota, the Dakotas, Iowa, Kansas, Illinois, Wisconsin, Nebraska and Michigan, though delegates are expected from the far South and from the two coasts as well.

Besides the three Duluth churches there are two charges in Superior composed of one large church and two small ones.

Business sessions will be held daily during the convention, morning and afternoon. There will be evening sessions, which will be mostly sermons and religious gatherings. The High School Assembly hall has been secured, and it will be used for all of the meetings except a church concert which will be given in the First Norwegian Lutheran church at the corner of First avenue east and Third street.

Besides the regular program for the convention there will be some special meetings. On the morning of Sunday, June 21, there will be ordinaltion services, at which fifteen candidates for the ministry will be ordained. Sunday evening there will be a service in English in the assembly hall.

Sunday morning visiting pastors will occupy two of the local pulpits. Rev. E. G. Lund, D.D., a professor at the theological seminary of the church, will speak at the First Presbyterian church. Professor J. N. Kildahl, president of St. Olaf college, of Northfield, will speak at the First Methodist church Sunday morning.

Sunday afternoon two of the visitors will address the Scandinavian Temperance committee at Lincoln park. Rev. Jens C. Roseland, secretary of the body, will speak in English, and Rev. A. J. Hulteng, of Grand Forks, will speak in Norwegian.

No program for the meetings has yet been received here, as that is in the hands of the national presiding officer of the church. However, matters of moment to the church generally will be discussed, partticularly the missionary work. The Norwegian Lutheran church of America carries on missionary work in Madagascar, Africa and in the new Scandinavian settlements of this country, and this branch of the work will be an important feature of the program.

The women of the Sewing society of the First Norwegian Lutheran church are arranging to serve meals to as many of the guests as possible in the basement of the church.

MAGPIE GOWN FOR WOMEN OF JUNE

Feminine Taste Turning Toward Black and White —New Designs In the Combination That Are Bright and Attractive.

New York, June 13.—Although it is the merriest month of spring, when colors bloom freely in nature and upon the gowns of the ladies fair, yet it is a fact that the feminine taste is turning toward black and white. By a strange bit of contrariness woman discards color when it is most plentiful.

The magpie dress is the most popular of the week and everywhere one sees new designs for the judicious combination of black and white, that it shall be bright and attractive.

There used to be a rule that a black gown looked very nice with a little white trimming upon it, but there was also a rule that a white gown became a mourning dress, not pretty, but somber, as soon as it was trimmed with black. This meant that a black gown trimmed with white was an entirely different matter from a white gown trimmed with black.

But latterly it is decided that black and white look well together, no matter how they be combined, and that to be chic you must own at least one handsome black and white dress.

The French make a great specialty of white, but more often of a brilliant coral red, trimmed with black, or of a bright blue with white plumes. The idea is that all suggestion of somberness is removed by the brilliancy of the hat, which sets off the costume as nothing else under the sun could do.

Yet there is nothing somber about the magpie. It is a gown that is always in good taste, and there is no social occasion at which one could not wear the black and white with perfect propriety. Moreover, there is usually a great deal of distinction about such a gown if it be a good one.

If the materials are well selected, if the gown be well fitted, if there be taste in the way it is made up, and if it be becoming there is a certain something about it which makes it entirely superior to any other gown that could be worn.

A certain very well-dressed woman once said that to be distinctive she always wore white on great occasions. Or, if she did not wear all white, she wore all black. On one occasion she appeared in a magnificent assemblage in a gown of black crepe de chine, trimmed with black filet lace, with whiking ornaments of jet upon the corsage. Her gown set off the brilliant coloring of her face and hair, and she was pronounced the most elegantly gowned of all the women in that room full of undeniably beautiful women.

A great summer belle who attracts a great deal of attention wherever she goes because of her beauty, her social position and the dignity of her carriage, wore recently a magpie dress which was made of cream-colored veiling, so pale in tone as to be almost white.

The waist and skirt were made separately in what is now known as a shirt waist suit. The trimming of this gown consisted entirely of lace flowers and lace leaves scattered over the waist and the skirt. To stripe the waist and skirt with black there were some very narrow strips of black lace no wider than an eighth of an inch put on as insertion strips.

A beautiful magpie sash of the year is made by tying a strip of satin ribbon around the waist and knotting it at one side. The knot must be large and intricate, as though it were knotted and re-knotted.

The ends of the ribbon now hang to the ground, where they are knotted again, this time the knot being as large as a big apple, and done in the same way, by tying and retying until the end looks as though it supported one huge tassel.

For evening the magpie dress is charming, for it can be made up in so many different ways and its form can be varied by the selection of one of so many different materials. An evening gown of white voile trimmed with black and white lace looks entirely different from an evening gown of white chiffon, veiled with black lace, though both gowns are in black and white.

As lovely an evening dress as you could wish to see was made up with a white chiffon foundation. The very low-cut corsage was in side-plaited chiffon, all white and with a silvery thread in the chiffon which made it look like silver. Over this there was worn a little black lace bolero, tight fitting, open in the front to show the chiffon vest, and provided with sleeves that ended in big wing shapes at the elbow.

The skirt, which was all accordion-plaited chiffon, was covered with a black lace skirt, which was trimmed with large black lace butterflies, all jetted and applied to the lace with outstretched wings.

But the magpie is not necessarily an expensive gown, for there are the simplest yet most becoming creations in black and white without one touch of extravagance in their make-up. A dress of this description is made of black linen with narrow bands of white linen for its only trimming. These are set in at the head of the flounce, at the hips and in the vest and cuffs.

When a black gown is made up very plainly with a touch of white in its trimming there is a certain elegance about it which is undeniable. You can see at a glance that the dress is no ordinary one and that it is designed to show the taste of the dressmaker as well as the taste of the wearer.

The tailored black and white dresses are magnificent in their simplicity and usually in their price, for the modistes insist upon using the very best of materials and in making up the gown with very fine linings and with the handsomest of finishings, but by substituting cheap goods for expensive materials and making them up, really you get almost as good results.

the black and white dress, or the magpie dress, as it is called. They do not confine it to mourning costumes by any means, but they make it up for the gayest and most brilliant of society dames. Indeed, there are a great many black and white materials that would be wholly out of place on mourning garments, but which are just the thing for the magpie dress.

An exquisitely neat magpie is made of black taffeta, princess shape, buttoned down the back and beautifully fitted to the waist and hips. The sleeves, which are coat-fitting, are trimmed from the wrist to the elbow with bands of white satin running around the arm. The upper part of the princess is trimmed with bands of white satin put on around the figure to simulate a bolero, while the lower part is striped in white stripes that run from the bolero downward nearly to the knees, being longer in the front than in the back.

With the magpie costumes the most brilliant hats are worn, sometimes black and

In the parasol line, to go with the magpie dresses, there are parasols trimmed with bands of black going around them; and again there are black parasols with bands of white, the two colors being combined in so many ways that it is impossible to begin to mention them all.

In recommending the white laces one does not know either where to begin or where to draw the line from Dame Fashion's standpoint, for the reason that white laces have now departed so far from their original tone. The most popular of the white laces are so deep in color that one hesitates about calling them white at all. There are the cream laces, and there is the very popular shade of lace known as Paris tint. This is the color of very old lace and is liked by every one, because it is so soft and pretty and because it does not show the dust, being already a dust color. The oyster-gray laces are the same in durability, and the ecru and pale tan laces.

White laces, on the contrary, are far from durable used on street gowns. On a gown of black or blue cream laces are a mockery, for they soil so soon that they are limited at best to two or three wearings. But when the lace shade is a Paris tint, or an antique color, or the color of old lace, or an ecru, tan or oyster, the case is entirely different, for the lace will wear a long time and be capable of a hard brushing from time to time without injury.

The furniture laces are used a great deal. The term furniture lace is applied to the coarse filet and other laces that, previous to this season, were used on window curtains, shades and chair coverings. Now these same laces are freely used for dress trimmings, and so great is their vogue that dealers have been obliged to impress some of their old lace curtain stock into the manufacture of the coarsest of the lace waists. And it is asserted, moreover, that many a prudent woman has taken her old lace curtains and made herself a shirtwaist out of the best parts of the lace, thinking it cheaper to buy fresh curtains for her windows than fresh lace for her waists.

One of the very new styles of the week shows a tailor-made gown trimmed with narrow ruffles of cloth put on almost plain. The edge of the ruffles are scalloped, being cut with big, circular cut edges. These scallops, instead of being bound with silk or cloth, are stitched so as to give them a tailor-made edge.

The return of the scalloped flounce about as wide as your finger for a dress trimming is predicted, and there are those who do not see it very far off. It is a pretty and cheap way to trim a skirt, and one can be pardoned for taking to it so quickly.

The great lace-like bow is made by applying the lace to the front of the skirt in bow fashion and spreading out the loops and the ends in great sprawls, with the ends far extended to each side of the front. No other trimming is needed upon the skirt that is trimmed with this bow knot.

A fad of the season, with the magpie dress, as well as with other gowns, is the lace collar. This is a very deep affair, so deep as to form a shoulder cape, and it is worn around the neck and shoulders and fastened under the chin with a smart brooch.

The best of these collars are made of guipure, point Marquise, antique, Russian and novelty laces. They are cut very deep and are gracefully full, though not full enough to be voluminous or bulky around the shoulders.

The lace cape may be finished round, the same length front and back, with a pretty pointed edge, or there may be long stole ends in the front 6 inches wide and reaching to the belt, or far below it, as the style of the cape may be.

The taste of the woman of artistic instincts comes well to the fore where these collars are concerned, for she decorates them prettily with the needle, using embroidery stitches. One of the most fashionable trimmings is found in the crocheted ring which is sewed into the lace at frequent intervals. These rings come in all sizes covered with silk, all ready to be set into the lace.

A really elegant lace cape can be made by applying lace figures to a cape of very cheap lace. Some of these are so exquisitely made as to be worthy a place in the ranks of lace works of art.

The foundation of a collar of very modern and quite heavy lace cost something less than $5. It was shoulder deep and finished with points. Little rings covered with cream silk were appliqued upon it at intervals and between the rings there were small lace figures cut apparently from an odd bit of lace insertion. These were outlined with heavy white silk to make the figures stand out.

A cape that was as delicately pretty as could be imagined had its flowers outlined with shirred satin ribbon no wider than a lead pencil and shirred on both edges. Still another collar had narrow black velvet used as a tracery of the neck, the fronts and the larger of the figures of the lace.

The woman who does not want to dress in staid colors can come out in fashion's latest fancy which calls for a grape-colored gown with grape-colored trimmings and a grape trimmed hat.

The color of the grape gown is a deep rich purple, the color of the grape of country memory. Its material is etamine and it is trimmed with narrow bands of grape-colored silk. The buttons are concealed under a double fold of the grape-colored silk, which is overlaid with lace and embroidery, while the belt is velvet, a deep, beautiful, grape-colored velvet.

The sweetest of the grape-colored gowns are made in green purple cloth, with trimmings of green grape silk, thus combining grape in two colors, purple and green. A deep lace shoulder cape is embroidered with great bunches of purple grapes and grapes to match the embroidery lie upon the hair.

A lovely little bolero coat is made of grape-colored taffeta and is cut so open in the front that the vest shows plainly. The bolero is short and the sleeves are elbow length. Around the edges there is an embroidery of raised green grapes. The hat, which is a toque, turned up all the way around, is trimmed with grapes that fall down upon the hair.

It has been urged that the conventional woman, the home woman, the woman of modest tastes, will not go in for these novelties, and that the grape gown is, therefore, an impossibility. But it has come to such a pass that the home woman likes novelties as well as does any other woman, and the woman of domestic tastes likes to be able, when she leaves the fireside and sitting room, to look as modish and up-to-date as her sister across the street.

It is also a fact that the merchants are introducing novelties all the time; and that the woman of hitherto very quiet tastes is becoming more and more accustomed to the delight of new things, and eventually to the wearing of them.

There is another color that is gaining in popularity every day, though the modistes predict that its vogue will be a short-lived one. The color, instead of being a new one, is an old one brought to town afresh, and in it you will recognize nothing other than the old familiar cherry color of long ago. Everybody remembers when baby blue and cherry color were all the rage for the summer girl, and here there is cherry color again, as vivid as ever and enjoying a greater vogue than formerly.

Akin to cherry—though not resembling it in tone at all, but brightness and in popularity—is coral, for it is a coral season all the way from the coral jewelry to the coral color of one's hat, gown and trimmings. Coral red is used a great deal to trim brown and tan, and coral red is seen on black dresses, dashes of it here and there giving it chic.

Another popular shade is pistache green, and this, with spinach, makes the two most popular green shades of the beginning of the hot season. Both have the great advantage of looking cool and being nice in any material.

And another color that is gaining ground is cigar brown, which is not quite as deep as tobacco brown, and which has a little more red in its depths. This is used in suits in combination with tomato red, or cherry, or coral, and very cheerful it looks made up for afternoon or for traveling or for calling. This is distinctively a combination of color for a tailored cloth or silk gown rather than a fluffy summer dress.

Another combination for a tailor-made gown for those who are looking for something tailored in the navy blue, now so much worn, with trimmings of Persian embroidery, or Persian canvas or mixed Persian stuff or some kind, no matter what, for it now comes in so many stuffs.

Let the navy blue gown be an etamine, a viole, a canvas, a taffeta or a light weight cheviot or summer serge, and trim it as to revers, cuffs and facings with the Persian goods. So shall you have a pretty tailored suit.

PARISIAN LEGHORN HAT.

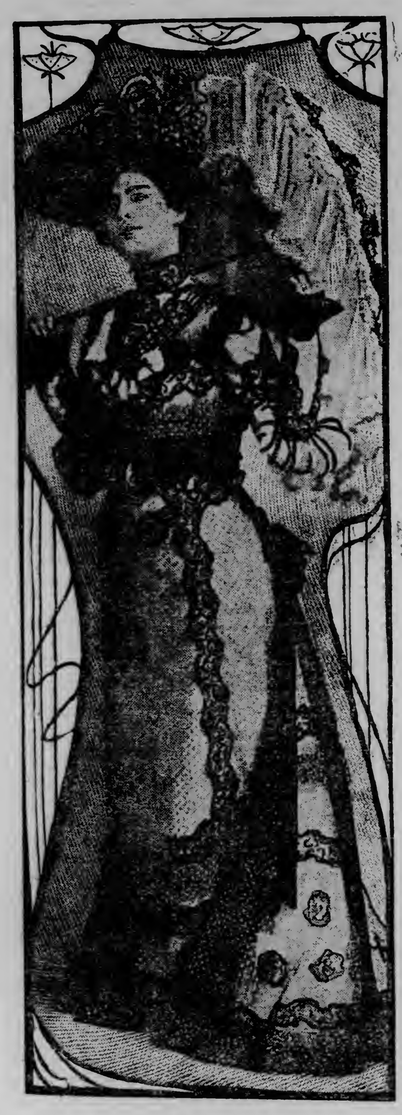
OF WHITE PERSIAN LAWN.

Charming costume of soft white lawn with Point de Paris in delicate yellow shade. Trimmings of black thin taffeta ribbon, with very odd arrangement in front. The skirt is made with little tucks over hips, and sets of three heading the circular "handkerchief" flounces. Three berthas in handkerchief form trim the bodice, the same idea appearing on the elbow sleeves.

BLACK NET GOWN.



Elegant gown for the races. Black net, dotted with white, applications of black Escurial lace in bands and medallions. Blouse waist made in bolero effect by three deep tucks all round net, overlaid with black ribbon velvet below the tucks, and in lattice on yoke of white chiffon. Under sleeves of white chiffon and velvet with deep cuts of net and lace. Sash of black velvet. Hat of white crinoline straw, with narrow velvet, trimmed with grapes.

NEW SICILIENNE GOWN.

Dainty costume of creame Sicilienne, embroidered with garlands of white in silk, and having bow knots of black lace applied at intervals over the dress. Cordings of black silk finish and head the circular flounce, and outline the hip yoke, sleeves and yoke. The edge of waist round yoke is scalloped out and embroidered. Back of the cording on foot of skirt is a narrow band of cream hair-cloth, faced with silk, to set out the flare.

The Latest Fashion Fancies

Paris Fashions:

Fichus & Boleros a Feature

So much is said about long coats being fashionable, and so many long coats are seen all the time, that the uninitiated in the clothes question may be given a false impression as to the prevailing fashions of this season. Long coats worn as wraps, and the long three-quarter coat, with short skirt are certainly very smart and immensely popular, but, as was the case last winter with many of the smartest gowns and in the newest models are to be seen short coats of every style imaginable. Tight fitting, loose, on simple lines and most elaborate lines, untrimmed and very much overtrimmed coats are seen, and, in fact, in many instances they are rather on the fantastic order. Then there are short jackets not made to match the skirts but to be worn with any gown, and these are classed under the head of wraps and are worn on cool days with gowns of either thin or heavy materials. In fact, never before this year has there been known such an accumulation of materials, there being apparently no fixed rule as to any two materials that can be combined in the same costume, and the rule holds good as regards colors as well as materials.

Eton and bolero jackets bearing, however, very little resemblance to the original designs of that name are greatly in demand and are made up for the smartest kind of wear. Apparently their principal aim is to disguise as much as possible the lines of the figure, but by a very clever manipulation of the lines of the coat the figure is made often suggested, and a slight woman can look even slighter; while a stout woman is able to disguise the fact that she may have too short a waist, too high hips and too large a bust to meet the requirements of the fashionable figure of today. Many of these short jackets are a cross between the bolero and the Eton, but have one or two points in common with both. They are not apparently difficult to make, but in reality are rather intricate. They are made almost and collarless in lace, with the thinnest kind of India silk lining, or with no lining at all, and sometimes so small that they really seem like the trimming more than the garment.

The bolero effect is certainly fashionable again, and after all, there are few more becoming fashions. A waist trimmed with bolero effect in front can be made soft and graceful looking with very little difficulty, and the bolero can be round or square, have long, pointed fronts or be quite short, with revers and collar, or collarless and without any revers. The sleeves may be slashed and show the full sleeve of the waist worn beneath, or in themselves may be large below the elbow and above the elbow the fulness held down in box plaits or side plaits.

The plaited jacket, made with the fitted shoulder yoke of last season, is again fashionable, with, of course, a modification so that it need not look like a last year's jacket made over. The long shoulder seam helps very much in making these jackets look different, for one of the favorite fads is to have the shoulder line so long by means of the cape effect that at first glance it seems perfectly inappropriate to so short a coat. Fanciful in the extreme are many of these effects, and yet, as a rule, they are becoming, for they give additional breadth to the shoulders, and, consequently, the waist looks smaller. But it is as a rule much more becoming when in connection with these long shoulder effects there are flat, long pieces in front of the trimmings or else of the same material, for the long lines in front prevent the figure being cut, as it were, and made to look too short and stout. The long shoulder capes, with the flat stole pieces in front, are one of the vagaries of this fashion, and a last year's jacket is often made possible by trimming it with this style of cape and stole combined.

Summer weather in any climate at the present time is so changeable that there are many days when a coat or wrap is necessary, and consequently the smartest gowns are now made with a jacket to match the skirt. With these there may or may not be a waist to match, for although fashion has decreed very positively that a waist to match the skirt is necessary in every smart costume with light clothes or any material at all heavy, a waist of the material is very warm and too heavy to be comfortable, so that the thin waists are as fashionable as ever, but with them are worn a short jacket or wrap to match the skirt.

Fichus are again fashionable and the fichu effect is often given in quite heavy materials as well as in the thin wash fabrics. When this fashion is becoming it is exceedingly so, and there is something very soft and graceful about a fichu that is properly adjusted with not too much fulness around the shoulders and with the long ends in front tied in a soft knot and then allowed to fall to the hem of the skirt, or, if more becoming, part way down. Lace or embroidered ruffles are necessary if thin materials are used, but on many of the heavier coats there is nothing at all excepting the flat bands, and only the folds are used to give the soft appearance that is becoming. Great care must be taken that a fichu is not tied too high on the front of the waist. That gives a very ugly line, except for an exceedingly thin gown, where it is desired to add as much breadth as possible to the shoulders and bust. Then the ends should be tied in a bow in front or in one loop.

A charming fad is the using of light cloths or silks for fichus and trimming them with broad bands of entre-deux either in the heavy or the light lace. The effect is a little severe and always good, and is so markedly different from the ruffled fichus as to make the fashion an exceedingly smart one.

The taffeta and chiffon wraps are the novelties of the season, quite unlike any wraps of last year and possessing a most delightful individuality. On the picturesque order, of course, but then that is in keeping with the fashions of the year, and, oddly enough, these can be worn with gowns of any kind. Pinked ruchings and ruffles trim the taffeta wraps, which at first glance seem to be merely straight wide scarfs, and which in most instances are shaped so that they are wider in the middle than at the end. In black, white or green, old fashioned colors, they are made, but all are on the same scarf order.

In chiffon they are much more elaborate, with rows of shirrings and puffings and bordered with lace ruffles over chiffon. White is the smart color for the chiffon, but there are some made of pale blue or pink that are most attractive and trimmed with yellowish lace. In marabout or ostrich feathers and in narrow ruffles of lace edged, but sewed on a broad, flat scarf, are many most becoming wraps. The feather ones in white or all the lighter shades of color have quite a little warmth about them, and yet are far lighter and cooler than the ostrich or cock's feather boas.

One of the very latest fancies is the lace scarf made on the same model as the flat marabout or ostrich feather scarf, but composed of myriads of narrow lace ruffles put so close together that they overlap each other and sewed on to a foundation of net. The lace need not be real, but if imitation be used it must be of the finest quality of an open pattern and decidedly cream in color. Another style of lace wrap is the long lace scarf, not shaped, but made of one width and long. This is of necessity costly, as exquisitely fine old lace shows to the greatest advantage, and lace lovers have greeted the fashion with enthusiasm, finding at last an opportunity to wear real lace, so that its beauty will show to the best possible advantage.

A. T. ASHMORE.

PICTURESQUE MOURNING.

To mourn becomingly is extremely fashionable at the present moment, and to mourn picturesquely is the very height of every woman's ambition, apparently, so that now, even in the deepest grief, clothes are chosen with some regard as to what is becoming to the style of each individual mourner, and at the same time the different degrees of woe are marked in quite a novel fashion, not, as was formerly the case, by so many additional yards or feet of crape veil or by the lack of all trimmings. Clothes are frivolous at the present moment, there is no question of that, and consequently the frivolous tone has extended to black and sombre garments of all kinds, and if a widow were dangerous in the olden time she is infinitely more so at the present moment, with the modern faithfulness of woe.

The very conservative, old-fashioned mourning forbade the wearing of any trimmings whatever on the first gowns that were worn. These were made of some lusterless fabric, as ugly as could be chosen, and unrelieved by any white at throat or wrist, and without even a narrow fold of crape. Now when the widow, we shall say, makes her first appearance in public her gown may be of a lusterless fabric, but it is heavily trimmed with crape, with sheer white collar and cuffs that are exceedingly becoming and and at the same time mark the fact that she is a widow.

At one time—and not so long ago—only widows were permitted to wear the transparent collar and cuffs, but now these becoming little touches are permitted to any mourner, only they must not be nearly so wide when one is mourning merely for a relative, and not for a relative by marriage, as it were. If a combination of the old and new style be permitted—that is, a gown without any trimmings of crape—it must fit to perfection, and can have bias folds of some material; but just as soon as possible the crape gown is put on. It is made entirely of crape, or with half the skirt in crape, and the jacket so heavily trimmed with it that it is impossible to tell which is the material and which is the trimming. With wide flowing sleeves and everything as graceful as possible, small wonder is it that so clad the mourner is the object of deepest sympathy, not to say admiration.

One of the newest fads in regard to becoming mourning is the white crape that is used instead of black. The old-fashioned idea that even in the height of summer a woman should garb herself in dead black, not even a thin material being allowed, has been entirely done away with, and now all white is considered just as deep mourning as all black, and for a summer outfit for a young widow gowns trimmed with white crape, made of white crape, hat with a long white crape veil, a white crape parasol and everything to match, is immensely smart, and, be it added, very becoming. No black and white are allowed. All black or all white. Anything else is considered incongruous and as not exhibiting proper feeling. The slightest touch of black on a white gown implies a lack of respect for the dead, and the same rule applies vice versa. It might be thought that a white dress trimmed with bands of black crape would indicate deep grief. On the contrary, it would simply indicate that the wearer is not acquainted with the outward expression of sorrow, and the same gown all white or all black would denote much greater grief and a more bitter loss.

In the matter of headgear there is more change than in anything else. The close-fitting Marie Stuart bonnet, over which was pinned a crape or sewing silk or nun's-veiling veil, as the case might be or the means allowed, with only a tiny ruching of white denoting the widow's cap, or all black, if mourning for any relative, was to some women immensely becoming, but to the majority was most trying. Now no woman need dread putting on mourning—that is, so far as her personal appearance is concerned—for it would take an ugly woman, indeed, to look plain with the pretty hats that are worn over which the long veil is thrown back covering the hat and falling to the hem of the skirt, if in intense sorrow. This veil can be thrown forward over the face if desired, but, as a rule, is arranged to form weepers at the back, while the face veil of sheer net edged with crape is all sufficient. At first the veil is very long, and is gradually shortened according to how becoming it is, until finally it is merely a large face veil with streamers, but it is very smart and frames the face most becomingly.

When all white is worn white hats with white crepe veils follow out this same fancy. When the flat hat is not becoming bows or loops of crepe are allowed, and, strangely incongruous though it may seem, mourning flowers are put on crape bonnets and hats, or on crape hats, for, to speak correctly, there are no mourning bonnets, and even when the close fitting ones are worn they are so enlivened with bows and loops and cockades of ribbon that there is little of the old fashioned bonnet about them.

To carry out in complete detail a mourning costume considerable attention must be paid to such matters as gloves, shoes, ornaments, and, not speaking with any sarcasm, dogs. A widow, or any one in deep grief, attired in black crape seen with a brown dog, is considered to be inappropriately turned out. The dog must be black, or, if white be worn, be white. However, white dogs with black bows are possible, and, speaking seriously again, this carrying out of the color scheme is most effective. The wearing of black gloves with a white gown is bad style. They must be white. Nor should colored jewels be allowed. Diamonds are permissible even in deepest woe, and pearls are also allowed as first mourning, as well as with all gradations of it. Even the chatelaine watch must be black. Some of the smartest costumes have been entirely ruined by the wearing of a chatelaine watch of violet enamel.

Jet is now so fashionable that it has helped immensely in making a variety as to watch chains, lorgnette chains, &c., but only dull jet should be worn with the first mourning. The dull jet spangled gowns of crape gowns trimmed with jet for dinner wear are about the most becoming that a woman puts on. Now that white jet has been introduced, the white crape dinner gown, trimmed with white jet, is charmingly effective, and it seems a great blessing that it should have been allowed to indicate mourning, for at first glance, to the uninitiated, it would hardly do so.

Other innovations that are becoming are the clear mesh and fancy mesh face veils. Time was, and not so long ago, that even with a transparent face veil it was considered requisite to have it of some unbecoming mesh that would darken the skin. Now whatever mesh is becoming is allowed, and some women wear dotted veils. These last, however, have not received the sanction of smart people, and the fashion may be said to be on trial. The only black allowed with white mourning is the black stocking. This, it is contended, is permitted on account of the fact that it makes the ankles look so much smaller, but white stockings with black are of course not to be thought of, any more than the white gloves with a black gown, or vice versa.

THE ABSENT MINDED HUSBAND.

BY MARIE RUE.

"Your coffee is getting cold, dear," she said gently. A wistful note in her voice struck him, and he looked at her over his spectacles, as he put down his newspaper and turned his attention to his breakfast. "What are you thinking about?" he queried presently. "A penny for your thoughts."

His wife colored a little and the far away expression left her eyes. "I was wishing," she answered, "that you were less busy, so that you could take me places, as you used when we were engaged." This was the truth, but not the whole truth, for of course she could not tell him what she would hardly own to herself, that she was sometimes a little jealous of his love for his first wife.

Mr. Pemberton was twenty years her senior, and essentially a man's man, who had never understood women. The first Mrs. Pemberton had had a positive talent for managing men, and had always had everything she wanted. Indifferent, unreasonable and selfish, she made her husband a slave to her every whim, and it was not until after her death that he realized her tyranny. A few years later he married Alice Lee, a sweet, unselfish, inexperienced girl, to whom he gave a sort of fatherly affection in return for her ardent love.

"If only Alice could have the income without the encumbrance," sighed her aunt, who opposed the match until she found that wide-eyed Alice really was in love. There never was a more simple hearted girl in society, and her elderly suitor had completely won her heart. Alice was stylish and pretty, and bewitching in a girlish way, but she did not realize this, and it was a source of wonder to her that Mr. J. Prescott Pemberton, handsome, middle aged and rich, should wish to marry her. The consequence was that, while he took for granted her charm and sweetness, she hung a halo on his bald old head.

Alice's aunt had withdrawn her opposition, and the wedding had taken place after a short engagement. Now it was almost a year since they were married, and Alice wondered wistfully if her husband would celebrate the anniversary. This morning was the first time that she had ever let him guess that she noticed his lack of devotion.

Mr. Pemberton spied across the table in a fatherly way. "You must remember," he said, "that I am a very busy man, Alice. Haven't you everything that you want?"

"That isn't it," she replied. "It isn't the money, but I miss the flowers and things that you used to send—not so much for themselves, but because they showed that you were thinking of me."

Her husband looked at her tenderly. "I am sorry," he said, "that it is impossible for me to find time to pay you the little attentions that you miss, but later on, perhaps, I may be less busy. Now," he went on, "there is a check for $50, and I want you to spend it for violets, matinee tickets and all kinds of things of that sort," and he patted her cheek as he handed the check to her. She smiled up at him, and, because she had a very happy disposition, for the time being she almost forgot her little woes in planning how to spend the $50.

After breakfast she telephoned to Laura Graham to meet her and go to the bank to have the check cashed. Then for a day of frivolity.

"What a generous old dear your husband is," said Laura, "and so devoted. Every one says that your life together is a perfect idyl." This was pleasant to hear, and young Mrs. Pemberton thought to herself that she had been foolish to have felt even a moment's discontent.

"I always forget which window to go to," she said to Laura as they entered the bank. "I think, though, that it is this one. Will you please cash this for me?" she said to the paying teller. The man looked at the check and then hesitated. "I am sorry," he said, "that I cannot."

"Oh, is this the wrong window?" Mrs. Pemberton asked.

"No," he replied, coloring, "but your husband made a mistake in writing the check."

She stepped at it, and her lips closed so firmly that they lost forever their girlish curves.

The check was made out in Mr. Pemberton's first wife's name.

The most talked of event for the coming week in society is the presentation of the beautiful society drama, "The Charity Ball," with Gus A. Forbes as John Van Buren, rector of St. John's Episcopal church, New York, assisted by a number of professionals and several of the most prominent young society people in town. The production will be one of the most elaborate ever put on the Lyceum stage in the way of handsome furnishings, costumes, etc.

"The Charity Ball," which is the most beautiful of the great society plays, calls for elaborate staging and costuming, and in the second act, which is The Charity Ball, given at the Metropolitan Opera house, New York, the ladies will display some handsome gowns. One beautiful dress for this act is a Worth creation, which recently arrived from Paris.

The story of "The Charity Ball" is laid in and about the rectory of St. John's church, and it has been called a poem by all of the greatest critics. The pathos and comedy are so harmoniously blended that one finds themselves laughing and crying at almost the same moment. The plot of the play is of intense interest, and affords some great dramatic situations, and also the most delightful comedy. This will be the last opportunity the many friends and admirers will have to see Mr. Forbes for some time, and they will turn out in large numbers to give him a royal welcome at his last appearance next Friday afternoon and evening. The cast is made up of the following well-known people:

Miss Elizabeth Frazer..Mrs. De Peyster
Miss Laura Frankenfield....AnnCruger
Miss Edita Harcourt-Lee.....
.....Mrs. Van Buren or "Angel"
Miss Mae Wylie.....Phillis Lee
Mrs. J. L. Evans.....Bess Robinson
Mr. Forbes.....John Van Buren
W. S. McCormick.....Dick Van Buren
Leslie Hubbell.....Judge Knox
Joseph Cook.....Mr. Cruger
James H. Morrison.....Alex Robinson
Richard Close.....Mr. Creighton
Bruno Eyforth.....Mr. Betts

Special cars will leave the Spalding hotel corner from 7:30 until 8 o'clock. The curtain will not be rung up until 8:30 o'clock in Superior, which will give Duluth people plenty of time to see the opening of the play. A large number of parties are being arranged for the evening performance by people who will be unable to attend the matinee.

Thursday afternoon the faculty of the high school had a spread on their own account in honor of Miss Helen Bigelow, who will not be a member of the faculty next year. Miss Bigelow's engagement has been announced at her home in St. Paul to Robert P. Galloway, of Texas, and the wedding will occur at St. Paul early in the fall.

The school people have been happy and busy during the week and the annual junior-senior reception, Tuesday evening, was as happy an affair as it usually proves to be. It was held at the Spaldign and the room was prettily decorated in flowers and greens and the colors of the two classes, black and orange for the graduates and blue and white for the juniors. Flaaten plyed a program of delightful dance music, and the gowns of the young women, embellished with flowers, for the school board neglected to say anything about the number to be given or received for the junior-senior, were charming. This yearly dance is one of the happiest affairs of the year in any set for the school folks are not surfeited with too many gayeties, and this big affair is looked forward to fall year. There was a large attendance of the school folks.

Golf is receiving much attention these days, and the links have some few on them all the time. Many improvements have been made this year and the enthusiasm seems to have dagged not a bit, and during this last week or so of such delightful June weather a nicer spot than the golf clubhouse and grounds can not be discovered. All sorts of jolly informal affairs are going on out there, and as there is nothing else much in the way of large affairs, the interest is great.

One of the most delightful affairs of the week was the launching of Guy A. Eaton's pretty little launch, the "Jessie B." The launching occurred Thursday at 1 o'clock at Pearson's boat house and was named by W. A. Barrows III. After the launching a party of friends of Mr. and Mrs. Eaton went through the canal over to the Superior entry and came home by the bay. The launch is beautifuly fitted out with kitchen and cabin and sleeping rooms for seven. The decorations are entirely in red. Those in the party were:

Messrs. and Mesdames—
G. A. Eaton, E. S. Upham,
Fred Engels, J. G. Howard.
S. H. Rothermel,

Mesdames—
Grace Upham Spear.

Mrs. Fairbanks tells how neglect of warning symptoms will soon prostrate a woman. She thinks woman's safeguard is Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"Ignorance and neglect are the cause of untold female suffering, not only with the laws of health but with the chance of a cure. I did not heed the warnings of headaches, organic pains and general weariness, until I was well nigh prostrated. I knew I had to do something. Happily I did the right thing. I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound faithfully according to directions, and was rewarded in a few weeks to find that my aches and pains disappeared, and I again felt the glow of health through my body. Since I have been well I have been more careful. I have also advised a number of my sick friends to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and they have never had reason to be sorry. Yours very truly, MRS. MAY FAIRBANKS, 216 South 7th St., Minneapolis, Minn." QUALITY
FIRST!
QUANTITY SECOND!

Characterizes Our Great Success in satisfying the long felt want of piano buyers in Duluth and vicinity. The large stock of over 20 different makes of the cream of the manufacturers' art is seldom found clustered together under one roof as you will find them in our warerooms.

Quality is our first consideration; to give the music-loving people the best piano on earth at a moderate price. It is the refined quality of tone that delights the amateur and satisfies the artist.

Quantity is our next consideration for by buying in quantities we get the inside price—we save freight—we get big discounts for cash. A saving to us is a saving to our customers.

The Duluth Music Co. is superior in all subtle qualities over small dealers to more than pay you to identify yourself with us when you buy your piano.

A. O. U. W. OFFICERS.

Supreme Lodge Elects For the Ensuing Year.

St. Paul, Minn., June 13.—The supreme lodge A. O. U. W. held its election of oficers at the capitol yesterday afternoon, but as rotation in office is a rule of the order, the balloting caused but slight interest.

William H. Miller of St. Louis, supreme foreman of the A. O. U. W., was advanced to the position of supreme workman. He takes the place of Will McNall of Kansas.

Will M. Narvis of Iowa was elected supreme foreman. M. W. Sackett of Pennsylvania was elected for the thirty-first time to the office of supreme recorder. H. B. Dickinson of New York, was elected supreme receiver.

Constitutional amendments and the "good of the order," were the things discussed yesterday. No radical change was made in any of the order's laws. The committee which is preparing the report on assessments will come before the convention Monday.

Miles Dawson of New York, actuary of the A. O. U. W., is in daily conference with the assessment committee, and a formidable array of statistics will be offered to the delegates for their consideration next week. The next supreme lodge meeting will be held in St. Louis.

Week End Excursions.

The Great Northern will sell on every Friday and Saturday up to Sept. 26, tickets to Grand Rapids, Deer River, Cass Lake, etc., at one fare for the rond trip, good to return on the following Monday. These week-end excursions give fishermen an excellent opportunity of having a fine day's fishing at these notable resorts. Ticket office, Spalding hotel corner, 432 West Superior street.

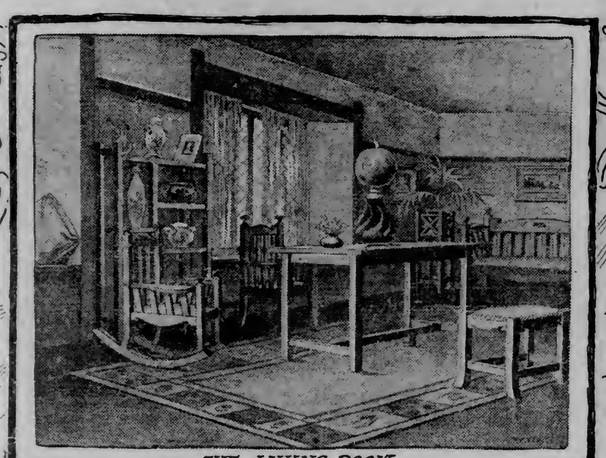
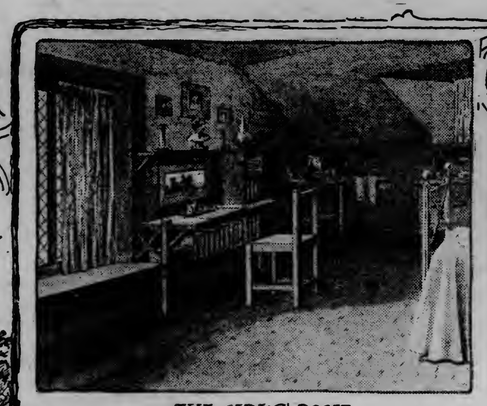
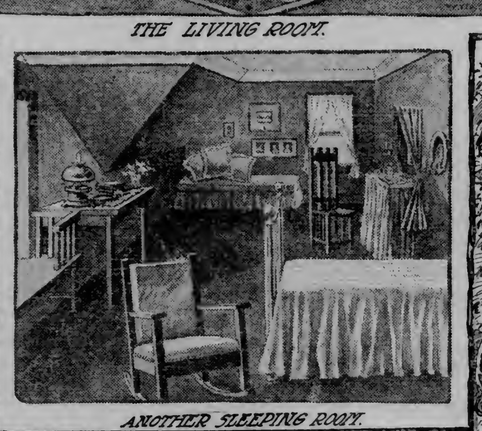
SUMMER HOMES.---Plans For An English Cottage.---II.



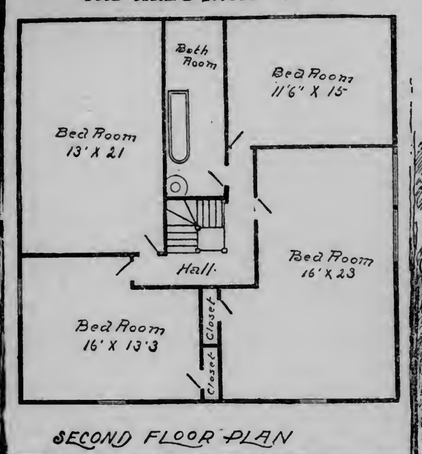
THE LIVING ROOM.



THE GIRL'S ROOM.



ANOTHER SLEEPING ROOM.



SECOND FLOOR PLAN

Great excitement reigned in the Brown household. The whole family had gone forth that day in quest of information in regard to the construction of the new house. Mother and daughters had been down town shop storming, hither and thither they had flown, gathering a bit of hoarded information at every lurking spot. Technical terms used to distinguish the various articles that might be used in furnishing the house formed a confused jumble in the mind of the mother, while volumes of memoranda had been written by the girls, who had set out in the morning with pencil and pad, prepared for the commercial interviews. Mr. Brown had busied himself in the investigation of freight rates, commutation and other important data, and was laden with information upon these matters that would have surprised the railroad officials had he been called upon to unload it before them. Tom, wearing the expression of professional benignity befitting the countenance of the successful architect, displayed four new drawings.

The women had been told by those well informed in the matter of furnishings that the refined taste of the day, which demands plainer types of architecture sets that same standard for the furniture that goes into the house, and that furniture should be selected with a view (1) to its simplicity of design, (2) to its strength of construction, (3) to its beauty, depending on harmony of outline and elegance of proportions, (4) with reference to what is comfortable and practical, and (5) it should be furnished to show the natural grain of the wood, so that it shall be pleasing to the eye and not easily marred. All of this was exactly in line with the drawings and recommendations of the family architect.

Fumed oak, it was decided, should be used in the living room—that being the newest finish for this sort of furniture. Forest green could be used in the hall and in some of the bedrooms, while weathered oak must be used in the dining room by all means. The cost of furnishing the house would come safely within the $500 limit if certain economies were used. Six dining chairs, an extension table and a crystal cabaret would cost from $65 to $80; the table in the hall, the Morris chair, settee and bookcase from $72 to $90, while the four piece parlor suit, table, cabinet and palm stand would cost from $75 to $100. If the lower figure, and the furniture which that represented, would be sufficiently good in every particular, the aggregate cost for furniture for the lower floor would be $213, allowing for a chair and table in the kitchen. Four Japanese cotton rugs—one for the dining room, one for the hall and two for the living room, would cost $72, at $18 each. The material for the hangings at the doors and windows would not cost more than $8 and could be hemmed by Clara. A cotton stair strip could be had for $2, making the total cost, outside of pictures, bric-a-brac, books, dishes, &c., $295.

When the hall and dining room had been decided upon and the cost of furnishing the first floor approximately determined, Tom showed the drawing which he had prepared for the living room. In the first place, he called attention to the purposes of the summer house. It was, first of all, intended as a retreat where the warm days could be spent, secluded from the scorching rays of the sun, and it should present, as far as possible, the cooling influence of a quiet and deeply shaded nook in the forest, where no glaring contrasts of color or form are found. It should be the first thought of the builder to create this atmosphere and to maintain it in the laying out and furnishing of therooms. In the design presented as a suggestion for furnishing the living room every detail was carefully prepared to meet the requirements of the summer home. The furniture was to be fumed oak and the floor and woodwork would be stained the same way. The lower walls would be covered with a brownish-red cartridge paper, while the upper walls and ceiling would be tinted a deep ecru, which would be the shade for the curtains at the windows. Red should predominate in the upholstery, rugs and hangings at the doors. It would in that case be necessary to have two pairs of portieres, as the hall scheme calls for blue. A plain colored demin would be the best material for the portieres upon this floor. It costs from eighteen to twenty cents a yard and is effective without beads or fringe. The few ornaments in the room should, to preserve the low tone or quiet scheme, be of a brownish or reddish cast. White would be very noticeable, and for that reason should be avoided. Plain colored porcelain would be effective, and would help to lighten the rich appearance of the room.

Second Floor Plan.

Tom next called attention to the floor plan of the upstairs rooms. A hall, bathroom and four bedrooms were shown. The sizes of the rooms and the position of doors and windows were indicated. Two of the four had been laid out, giving suggestions for built-in furniture, as well as a scheme for the arrangement of the other furniture. Mabel had already presented a plan of what she called a pink room, in which the walls were hung with cotton chintz. Great pink roses climbing upon a pink trellis with a pale yellow background formed the motif. Then there was to be a cosey corner, with a great Japanese umbrella as the apex of glory. She also planned to put up a hundred or more photographs arranged in groups. She had created, "right out of her own head," a cute little dressing table made from an old box and covered with the chintz of the pattern upon the walls, while the sofa that was to be the bed of luxury in the cosey corner was a wonderful creation. It was also made upon an "old box" foundation—that is, it would be if a box of suitable size could be found. While this plan had at first seemed admirable to her she began to doubt whether she would like to spend 12 hours out of 24 in the presence of so much grandeur. She felt a little uncertain whether she could sleep well with so many roses nodding at her from the wall. Those photographs, too, were confusing, and the dusty, stuffy cosey corner would hardly do for a place in which to pass so much of one's summer. Confessing herself unable to cope with the situation, she decided to leave it to Tom.

Clara held that while a sleeping room could undoubtedly be overfurnished, yet it was not necessary that all of the knicknacks usually displayed there and indicative of the owner's personality be removed. The first thing to be considered was the sanitary features of the room. Anything that would tend to harbor germs or dust must not be allowed. Physicians agree that figured paper is annoying to the sick and it has a more or less injurious effect upon the well and should undoubtedly not be used in the bed room. At any rate, she was sure that the walls should be smoothly finished and painted. Matting should not be tacked to the floor, for it should frequently be removed and beaten in the open air, and if this or grass carpet were used it should be in the form of a mat. Furthermore, all draperies should be of a washable kind.

Bedroom Furnishings.

Tom's plan of the "girls' room" was in keeping with Clara's opinion of the properly furnished sleeping apartment. It showed "personality" in the cotton-covered sofa and dressing table. Both coverings were washable and so were the slips for the sofa cushions. All were plain in color. The walls were hard finished, a plain pale-blue color below the molding, while the wall above and the ceiling were light cream. The woodwork and the furniture were to be a pale green, the draperies being of the same shade as the lower walls. The frames for sofa and dressing table could be in construction as rough as the most bizarre taste could desire, yet they could be made by the house carpenter, and therefore be of the size wanted; or they could be built in, like the table shown at the side window, and stained the same color as the rest of the woodwork. The rug shown would be of grass or matting. The picture frames and molding should be of the same color as the woodwork. The rug, of course, should correspond with the rest of the room in design and color. Four beds would cost $40, the mattresses $32 and the springs $32; four crex grass rugs, $32, while the chairs, draperies, tables and bureaus would take all of the remaining $80 of the $300 allowance. As the figures given were for the single articles and at retail, a liberal discount could be obtained upon the price of the articles mentioned if bought all together. The possibilities for inexpensive built-in furniture were also great in this sort of a house, and if taken advantage of would bring the expense much lower than the figure mentioned without increasing the building expense materially.

Strawberry Syrup.

To prepare a syrup of strawberries, to be used in making cooling drinks for the summer, take rich but not over ripe berries. If at all sandy put in a colander and run water through them, hull and put in a stone jar with an equal quantity of fine granulated sugar. Stand the jar in a large pan of boiling water for half an hour or until the juice is well extracted, then strain through a jelly bag. Put the strained juice in a clean granite kettle and set on the back of the range, where it will just simmer but not boil for another half hour. Have glass cans thoroughly sterilized by immersing cover and all in boiling water for twenty minutes. This can be done without breaking the can by setting the jars on a wet, hot towel laid in the dripping pan and putting a silver spoon in each can when filling with hot water, not allowing the spoon to touch the sides. Put the covers on the cans and screw tight. At the end of twenty minutes or half an hour empty out the water and fill the cans with the scalding syrup. Put on the rubbers and screw tight. As the cans cool tighten the covers until perfectly air tight and set in a cool place until needed. In making soda water allow one-third glass of the syrup to two-thirds soda water.

Secrets Of The Summer Girl In Town.

RELEASED BY THIS UNMISCHIEVOUS PANDORA.

The summer girl in town—and her name is legion—is just now busily engaged in putting the finishing touches on her plans for a social campaign not to be scorned by her more or less fortunate sisters who are fleeing the city for the heated term.

Once upon a time the real summer girl was to be found only on the ocean-washed sands, in water-lapped canoes or on mountain paths. Now she has raised unto herself a new kingdom in the heart of the city, and has gathered around her more loyal subjects of the masculine persuasion than the average belle of the average summer resort dreams of in her most triumphant hour.

Where one man puts in the entire summer doing the out-of-town resorts or traveling abroad, a hundred take off one month for pleasuring and thousands take off two weeks. Therefore it is a wise girl who reads these figures aright, and, without stopping to quarrel with the fate which holds her in town, proceeds to garner in the very desirable loaves and fishes which are ready to roll and tumble into her social basket.

Environments.—The first thought of the summer girl in town is to make herself hygienically comfortable. And she starts with her own particular room or "den." As summer is the time for relaxation, she aims at simple living. The room is stripped of its luxurious furnishings, the trinkets and gewgaws collected during the winter season. Away with draperies and mountains of pillows. Enter sweet simplicity in wicker furniture and mattings. Exit hangings. Enter awnings and Venetian blinds. If draperies of any sort are employed they are the tinkling bead portiere, or cool crepes from Japan. Spartan severity at least obviates the daily problem of dusting.

SHORT SKIRTS ARE NECESSARY.

Dress.—Next she overhauls her wardrobe, planning a very different outfit from that arranged by the summer girl out of town. First, she has several pedestrian skirts, not too short, but just the length to clear the ground neatly. One will be of excellent material that sheds both dust and rain, and she will use this for her trips to the beaches close to town. By this means she saves herself the strain of lifting a skirt and the annoyance of having it trodden upon by the throng on boat and train, and incidentally she pleases her escort, who, if he be a man of good judgment, rejoices in a trimly dressed companion on his jaunt.

Another short skirt of lighter weight she will use on her morning walks and for marketing, for be it known that the summer girl in town becomes a famous caterer, especially to the masculine taste. The third short skirt will be of linen, pique or madras, perhaps forming part of the regulation shirt-waist suit. This is invaluable for the morning shopping tour, for the summer girl in town has innumerable opportunities to follow up bargain sales.

A smartly trimmed linen suit, with lace or embroidery, will serve for trips to the country club, and for evenings at home she will have dimities, lawns or organdies with collarless or low bodices and half sleeves, which give her the real summer girl appearance. Something filmy and dainty, like all lace or net, made after the pattern of the restaurant dinner gown seen at smart restaurants during the winter season, with a high necked bodice, will be used for the summer night dinner at riverside or park cafes. In all these frocks she carefully avoids the appearance of being overdressed, and remembers that she will not wear them on a boardwalk or dress parade or at a hotel hop.

Her underwear is selected with great care and in liberal quantities. Batiste or fine cambric she wears next to her skin, instead of gauze, as it clings less and is cooling to irritable skins. A tiny corset cover, worn under the corset; drawers with full, deep flounces and the drop skirt which comes with her dress furnish all the essentials in underwear, the ruffles on the drawers taking the place of a short skirt.

The Restful Bath.

Another hint offered by the professional woman is the use of witch hazel in the bath water. This is an invaluable remedy for prickly heat and all skin irritations peculiar to hot weather, and acts as a tonic to flesh and nerves. Lemon juice is infinitely better for the skin in summer than complexion lotions, and soap should be used advisedly. The skin is particularly sensitive in summer, and highly colored perfumed soaps are more than ordinarily dangerous at this time. Swollen feet are relieved by a bath in salt water.

The Hair.—The hair should be given much attention in summer, as heat, perspiration and the fine dust which fills the air in hot weather all conspire against woman's crown of glory. Hair culturists—and be it known that a hair culturist is not a hair dresser—claim that summer is their best friend, sending them innumerable patients when cool weather betrays the ravages which heat and perspiration have worked in once fluffy locks.

The hair should be shampooed at least once a week in summer and dried thoroughly in the sunlight. The practice followed by some ill-advised women of washing their hair at night and letting it hang over the pillow to dry is reprehensible. Sunlight is a wonderful tonic for the hair, as for the entire human system. If the hair is oily, borax may be used to cut the oil. A shampoo prepared by boiling together borax, pure soap and rain water is excellent. Soap should never be rubbed on the hair, and it should be dried at first by patting it with soft towels. Turkish towelling literally tears the wet hair from the scalp.

Diet.—Her diet is completely revised with the coming of hot weather. Meat appears on the table but once a day, and then in the lightest form. Chicken, fish and beef she may use, but she avoids veal, mutton and pork. Fruit, vegetables and salads appeal to the girl who is willing to sacrifice the grosser appetite to a good complexion. Chocolate is stricken from her morning meal, also heating cereals.

Ice-cream in limited quantities is healthful, and temperance in soft drinks is enjoined. Excess in soda water and kindred mixtures is absolutely dangerous. A limited use of lemonade is healthful; ginger ale with lemon is very good, and claret cup is harmless. Cold, but not iced, milk is also an important article of the summer girl's diet.

For the Busy Woman.—The young woman who is detained in town by business may so modify these suggestions for hygienic comfort as to make her existence far more endurable. The two baths a day rule should be followed, and directly on returning home at night she should change her clothing. The extra exertion entailed before sitting down to dinner will be more than compensated by the sense of relaxation which follows the evening meal if a thin, summerlike gown is worn. If the work followed during the day is sedentary, a walk in the evening or a trolley ride into the suburbs is advisable. The girl who has been on her feet during the day should take more quiet pleasure at night; but the secret of the evening's rest is relaxation. At no time is it so important for a woman to lay aside business cares when she leaves the counter or desk as in summer.

With the world's market unloaded at her very feet, the summer girl in town may eat what she will. With the summer bargain sales at their height, there is no reason why she should not dress hygienically and sensibly. With trolley rides in every direction for a mere song, and with beach trips and river rides to be had for trifling sums, there is no reason why she should not find pleasures to compensate her for the all-summer vacation. The girl in town who is happy and healthy is the one who puts thought of her sister lounging on the beach or tramping over mountain roads far behind her and grasps the opportunities and comforts within reach. There are some women who would starve with a Roman feast spread before them. There are others who would find a frappe in the heart of a desert. The girl who means to have a good time in town all summer long belongs to this class.

Arabian Delicacies.

Speaking of the favorite dishes of the Arabians of that epoch, he says that they considered the flesh of young dogs a great delicacy and also ate grasshoppers and scorpions with much relish. Moreover, they esteemed the flesh of black cats highly, since they maintained that any one who ate it could not be injured, either by sorcery or by the evil one.

Al Djahez also says that he was disappointed when he found that the Arabian tribes of Bassorah did not eat grasshoppers, but, on the other hand, was highly delighted to find his friend, the famous poet Roobah, feasting royally on roast rats and lizards. The Arabians, he says, in conclusion, also ate serpents and horses, but took the utmost care only to serve at table horses which had been harnessed, as they did not consider it right to eat those which had been ridden.

Love Of A Lover.

Once upon a time there was a young man who was, quite naturally, in love with a young woman, and flattered himself not only that she reciprocated but that he had the affection of her father and mother, and also of her little brother.

To use his own expression, he believed that he was "solid with the entire family," even including the aunts. But, alas! he found that he was wrong in his conclusion, for though he was a lover he had not the love of the father, for the old gentleman greatly surprised him early one evening by demanding that his attentions to the daughter cease and that he leave the house not to return.

Moral:—All the world does not love a lover.

PINNACLE A MISFIT.

Mrs. A. D. Vance—Woman will climb to her place, if man will only let her.

Mr. Sinnick—That's so. The Treasury Department let her climb to steamship decks. The trouble was, she didn't know what to do when she got there.

LATEST BOOKS AND MAGAZINES

"The Spoils of Empire," by Francis Newton Thorpe, is a story of pomp and magnificence and blood shedding. It is a tale of Cortez and the conquest of Mexico. The hero is Juan Fonseca Estevil, Cortez's trusted lieutenant. His adventures are thrilling in the extreme, though they follow religiously in the path of history. He escapes the knives of Montezuma's priests, and finally gets away from Mexico by the efforts of and with Dorothea, Montezuma's daughter. With them go vast stores of Montezuma's wealth, and Estevil returns to Spain to find himself in the toils of the Inquisition. They break his body on the rack, and the curtain rings down upon the persecuted pair living in exile in Holland under the Dutch translation of his patronymic. As Jan Van Esterveit he is the illustrious scholar and founder of the house that won its glory fighting under the banners of William the Silent. The narrative keeps close to the annals of the Mexican invasion, and reflects the downfall of Montezuma's empire almost as faithfully as history's true page. It is a glorious record, and as long as Cortez remains in history the recitation of his splendid conquest will be read with unfailing, eager interest. This author has a thorough knowledge of his matter, and a manner as spirited as his subject demands. Published by Little, Brown Co., Boston.

"The Danger Line," by Lawrence L. Lynch, is a story of murder and mystery. A wealthy young man and his wife are found weltering in their own blood not two hours past the time that the last guest had left their house after a large and brilliant ball at which the ill-fated pair had been host and hostess. One of the guests, returning to find some lost keys, discovers the tragedy, and the trail of mystery is at once set. It is a most baffling affair, apparently. The scent tracks numbers of persons, including society people, a member of the family and some of the servants. There is a weak replica of Sherlock Holmes, who is hot on the trail of a number of clues, but the true solution is carefully concealed until the end. The whole thing—plot and story—is a trumpery bit of melodrama. The characters are the third-rate stage variety, and the romance is commensurate with that class of fiction. Published by Laird & Lee, Chicago.

Interesting comment on "The Log of a Cowboy," by Andy Adams, published last month, comes from a Westerner who is now a prominent member of the Massachusetts bar. He says: "The book deals with a period of history with which I was intimately associated, having spent twenty years of my life on the plains amidst the scenes and circumstances so faithfully described by the author. Most of the places mentioned by him I know well, and many of them I visited during the year mentioned by him. The book is well written, has the true flavor, and on the whole is the best description of that portion of the West I have seen. It is the product of a 'thoroughbred' and carries me back to scenes and circumstances I am glad to have thus recalled." E. Hough, author of "The Story of the Cowboy," says: "Andy Adams is the real thing, and the first time the real thing has appeared in print." The book was on its fourth edition on publication.

A novelty in the making of books is a kind of cinematograph edition of "How to Play Golf," by H. J. Whigham, which Messrs. Herbert S. Stone & Co. have just issued. By the printing of small photographs in the margin a kind of moving picture is obtained which shows more accurately than anything else can do the correct positions in driving. It is an ingenious device which will appeal to beginners and to the expert, for Mr. Whigham's opinion is authority.

Channing's "Discourses on War" is the third volume of the International Library, published for the International Union by Ginn & Co., Boston, the earlier volumes being Bloch's "Future of War" and Charles Sumner's "Addresses on War." Channing's services in the cause of peace and better international relations were conspicuous. He was one of the founders of the Massachusetts Peace society, which was the first influential peace society in the world, and an earnest worker for the cause during his whole life. Among all men in the American pulpit, perhaps none ever waged such strenuous war against war and the military spirit among nations. Six of these noble discourses, touching various and distinct aspects of the broad subject, are included in the present volume; and as in the two earlier volumes of this series, there is a careful introduction by Edwin D. Mead. The present volume is one which commands especially the attention of Christian ministers and churches having to confront the military spirit of the time and its temptations. It will have a specially warm welcome from all lovers of peace within and without the church. The volumes in this International Library are furnished at a nominal cost, as part of an important campaign of education in this important field.

William Dean Howells, who is pretty generally recognized as the dean of living American novelists, has just published through the Harpers another volume of delightful fiction. This work, which is entitled "Questionable Shapes," has been called "Mr. Howell's Ghost Stories." The book is written in that exquisite literary style which has given to Mr. Howell's work the first place in American letters.

The accompanying photograph is a very faithful portrait of the author as he appears today. Mr. Howells is an exceedingly native man. He is frequently to be seen at the Harper establishment in New York, where he is a great favorite with not only the heads of the house, but with the younger editors. His eye is very clear and steady; his voice quiet and well modulated; is decisive and distinct. He is an indefatigable worker, and usually has on hand as much as he possibly can accomplish. Besides his book and magazine writing he has charge of an editorial department in Harper's Magazine and frequently contributes to Harper's Weekly.

It is not generally known that Mr. Howells' first literary work was in the field of poetry. Poetry came naturally to him, and it was the author's intention to be a poet. However, some critical notices of books which he wrote, and which proved successful, led him to prose work. Then he wrote his "Life of Lincoln" and his delightful "Venetian Life," and, then, quite without realizing that he was entering the field of his greatest production, he wrote "Their Wedding Journey."

Mr. Howells has written in all sixty published books—most of which have been novels. His latest addition, "Questionable Shapes," differs from any of the books that he has published recently, in that it relates the psychic experiences of a small circle of people. It is a peculiar study of supernatural phenomena, as well as a delightful volume of fiction. For those persons who love a tale of mystery the book holds an especial charm.

The all-American character of Meredith Nicholson's new novel, "The Main Chance," is emphasized by the names of places which occur in the story. Among the towns which received at least a passing mention are: Denver, Chicago, St. Louis, Kansas City, Keokuk, Boston, Worcester, Massachusetts, Piqua, Ohio, and Richmond, Va. The scene of the story is Clarkson, a large city on the Missouri river, which is understood to be Omaha.

Those who have read Jack London's new story, which the Macmillan company are to publish within a few weeks, speak of it as belonging in the category of such books as Ernest Thompson Seton's "Biography of a Grizzly," Mr. Joseph Conrad's famous story, "Youth," and other brief, striking, brilliant pieces of literature which endure. "The Call of the Wild" promises to be something more than merely an exceedingly strong and vigorous story, thrilling from beginning to end; it seems likely to prove a class of its kind.

With the late Miss Yonge, according to her biographer, Miss Christabel Coleridge, "the rules of childhood became the habits, not to say the principles, of future life, and before the point when she declares that her childhood ended, we have all the elements of her future life—deep conscientiousness, loyal love for authority, warm friendship and kinship, industry, eager interest in school children and in nature, and though by no means precociously developed, the beginning of the story-weaving, the character-creation, which was the main occupation of her after life. We also see easily accepted limitations, social, intellectual and practical, regarding them a safeguards rather than hindrances." Miss Yonge's faults in early youth, it seems, were those of nerves and temper. "She was very vehement and eager, and probably never realized that an interesting subject could bore any one. She began life with an amount of enthusiasm and fun inconceivable to most of us. As a girl she laughed and cried, loved and hated, admired and despised with all her might, and it was mighty."

Mrs. Pendleton, beautiful, dashing, wealthy, a widow at 23, finds herself one summer morning in Newport in receipt of four proposals of marriage. The fact that they arrive by the same mail from four men with whom she coquetted desperately before her husband's death, six months earlier, makes her suspect collusion. No matter! She will play them a trick worth two of theirs. She accepts all four proposals, sending the letters to the men at their New York club. All four promptly repair, in divergent states of riotous joy, to Newport, each armed with determination and an engagement ring. Before starting they make up their long-standing feud. They call seriatim, and each contrives to leave his engagement ring before the fair Jessica is called away to see another fiance and receive another ring. Later they all call at once; whereupon imaginable complications ensue. This is the beginning of Gertrude Atherton's story, "Mrs. Pendleton's Four-in-Hand," which forms a forthcoming issue in the Macmillan series of Little Novels by Favorite Authors. Like "Philosophy Four" and "Mr. Keegan's Elopement," it runs over with humorous situations and amusing dialogue; for the rest, it is characteristic of Mrs. Atherton in its personages and its progress.

"The Siege of Youth," by Frances Charles, author of "In the Country God Forgot," is a story of the present day, and its scene is San Francisco, the author's home. It deals with art, with journalism, and with human nature, and its love episodes are charming and true to life. The three women characters of the book are finely drawn and contrasted, there is much local color in the story, and a great deal of bright and epigrammatic writing. The author's previous book, "In the Country God Forgot," has been received with the utmost favor. The Boston Daily Advertiser says it "discloses a new writer of uncommon power." Published by Little, Brown & Co., Boston.

The question of scarcity of titles is suggested again by "The Autobiography of a Thief" (Fox, Duffield & Co.). Mr. Hapgood, the "editor," has a prior claimant in no less a person than Charles Reade, whose novel of that name was popular in its day. Many alternatives, such as "Am I Thy Brother?" "In Prison and Out," "The Rocky Path," "The Caste and the Outcast," were suggested, but in the end it was decided that the original title was generic rather than particular and might remain. In any case Reade's "Thief" was a work of fiction, a sequel to "It is Never Too Late to Mend," and a narrative of convict life in Australia, where Reade had never been; whereas Mr. Hapgood's is a transcript from the real life of the New York East Side.

Miss Josephine Daskam, whose "Memoirs of a Baby," in Harper's Bazar, has made such a hit, is described by an acquaintance as follows: "She is tall, slender and chic. Her dusky crown of hair, her black eyes set far apart, denoting the reflective temperament; her olive, colorless complexion, hint that she might have been born in one of the peninsulas jutting into the Mediterranean. But this is only a misleading, accidental resemblance. She was born in the Nutmeg state, in the town of Stamford, and has lived there all her life. She talks as she writes—crisply, often bitingly; and her vivacity and dark coloring, as well as the name, that is a corruption of D'Ascoyn, are proof of the strong Huguenot strain in her blood."

Wilshire's Magazine for June has a tempting array of good things: purely literary discussions, profound economic and historical articles, exquisite poems, numerous illustrations and philosophic and popular comment on current events. Some of the titles are: "Poetry and the Sonet," "The Evolution of Tools," "A Guess on the Merger Decision," "The Malls of the Gods," "The People of the Abyss," "The Higher Catechism," "Child Labor vs. Education," "The Social Trend," "Prosperity in California," "Current Events," "New Books."

Manufacturers, merchants and general advertisers will find a well arranged and generous supply of helpful articles in volume 2, No. 2, of Mahlin's Magazine. The June number, which is just off the press, contains a lot of matter pertaining to the science of advertising. The magazine will prove of great value to any business man who reads it, digests its wholesome contents and utilizes its practical ideas. Professor Walter Dill Scott, of the Northwestern university, gives the result of his experiment in testing advertisements. The second instalment of his article, "Relation Between Attention, Value and Amount of Space Filled," is most interesting and proves the relative value of advertising space as regards size. It is well illustrated.

Edwin A. Abbey's superb painting and pen-and-ink drawings for "Romeo and Juliet," made exclusively for Harper's Magazine, are reproduced in the July number, in color and tint. They represent "The Death of Mercutio," in full colors, which is the frontispiece, and "A Hall in Capulet's House," "Friar Lawrence's Cell," and "A Churchyard," the last being particularly beautiful. The pictures are accompanied by a fine commentary by Arthur Symons.

Among the notable features of the Argonaut for June 8, are "The Romance of Quibb's Saloon; A Salvation Army Lassie's Triumph," by Charles Fleming Embree; "The True Abranam Lincoln," being an extended review, with copious extracts, of William Eleroy Curtis's new biography of the great statesman; an article, entitled "New York's Ten New Theaters"; and a criticism of E. H. Sothern in "If I Were King," by Josephine Hart Phelps.

Goldwin Smith, the dean of living historical writers, contributes to the June number of the Atlantic Monthly an important paper on "The Cult of Napoleon." After surveying the recent flood of Napoleonic literature, and the growing disposition of many to consider that "Man of Fate" as perhaps the greatest genius of the world, Mr. Smith assumes the role of devil's advocate, and makes a vigorous arraignment of Napoleon's ability, as well as of his morality. Mr. Smith's examination of what he calls Napoleon's insanities affords much suggestive reading, as he says: "Napoleon's sanguine temperament, sustained by his marvelous physique, led him to dare immense risks. So long as the resistance was senile and spiritless the results of his adventures were immense and splendid: an Austerlitz or a Jena. But when the spirit of nations had been aroused by insufferable oppression and insult, the results were no longer the same."

WOMAN'S GENTLE NATURE
CALLS FOR GENTLE TREATMENT
Delicately formed and gently reared, women will find, in all the seasons of their lives, as maidens, wives, or mothers, that the one simple, wholesome remedy which acts gently and pleasantly and naturally, and which may be used with truly beneficial effects, under any conditions, when the system needs a laxative, is—Syrup of Figs. It is well known to be a simple combination of the laxative and carminative principles of plants with pleasant, aromatic liquids, which are agreeable and refreshing to the taste and acceptable to the system when its gentle cleansing is desired.
Many of the ills from which women suffer are of a transient nature and do not come from any organic trouble and it is pleasant to know that they yield so promptly to the beneficial effects of Syrup of Figs, but when anything more than a laxative is needed it is best to consult the family physician and to avoid the old-time cathartics and loudly advertised nostrums of the present day. When one needs only to remove the strain, the torpor, the congestion, or similar ills, which attend upon a constipated condition of the system, use the true and gentle remedy—Syrup of Figs—and enjoy freedom from the depression, the aches and pains, colds and headaches, which are due to inactivity of the bowels.
Only those who buy the genuine Syrup of Figs can hope to get its beneficial effects and as a guarantee of the excellence of the remedy the full name of the company—California Fig Syrup Co.—is printed on the front of every package and without it any preparation offered as Syrup of Figs is fraudulent and should be declined. To those who know the quality of this excellent laxative, the offer of any substitute, when Syrup of Figs is called for, is always resented by a transfer of patronage to some first-class drug establishment, where they do not recommend, nor sell false brands, nor imitation remedies. The genuine article may be bought of all reliable druggists everywhere at 50 cents per bottle.

MODERN FABLES BY GEORGE ADE

The Modern Fable of the Honest Effort To Go the Distance and Then the Melancholy Fluke.

(Copyright, 1903, by R. H. Russell).

Once there was a Rhinestone Sport who had an Ambition to be called a Good Fellow.

He had a Cousin Jim who was known in Ponies. Ever and anon he would carelessly fish out of the Side-Pocket a large Wad of the Green Kind with a Fifty for a Wrapper and tell about sitting in with a couple of Horsemen and a Wine Agent the Night before. He loved to speak of Hotels where a Swell Room with Bath came to only $9 per Day and explain that he was getting a Rate.

Jim felt that he was wasting his Conversation any time that he mentioned any Picayune Sum under a Thousand. He had nothing but Sporting Corpsules of the Crimson Variety moving about in his Arteries. He was ready to lay a Small Bet on any Proposition, give or take, and when he put up his End he never batted an Eye-Lash. He had the Confidence of many of our most celebrated Barkeeps and could give the Hurry-Up to any well-known Gam.

No wonder that pale-faced Herbert, the would-be High Roller, looked with Awe upon Cousin Jim and inwardly longed to butt into his Class.

For he perceived that he never could stand Ace with the sure-enough Fellows until he had demonstrated that he was a Good Fellow.

Jim slipped him a Tow-Line and took him out into the Night-Air to pick up a few Pointers.

Herbert learned that the first rule for being a Good Fellow was to move rapidly up to the Poison Counter every time an Order went in. Herbert weighed about 100 Pounds and the Doctors had told him to try a Milk Diet, but he did not dare to resig, otherwise some one might have suspected that he was a cheap Varnish and a low-down Quitter. He was a Feather-Weight and an Invalid, but he wanted to be Game.

So he stood in line with the copper-lined Rounders who had Bull Necks and weighed about 220 on the Hoof and made an awful Bluff at going along with them. He knew that to take Vichy would be a Misdemeanor and to duck altogether would be a crime and might block him out of the Good Fellow Division for all time to come.

Consequently he would Stick, with his Breast-Bone against the Railing and continue to hoist until he was Pie-Eyed. Then some one would take him out and boost him into a four-oared Hack and send him Home.

Next morning he would awake with the Head spread out over two Pillows and his only Joy in Life would be the proud Remembrance that he had demonstrated his Desire to be a Good Fellow.

He learned, also, that in order to be the genuine It, he must go to the Track and get on friendly Terms with Whispering Ike, the Boy who holds the Watch on the Morning Gallops and gets a Commission from all the Poor-Houses.

In a Short Time he had a lot of Good Stories about being nosed out and was sleeping with the Dope-Sheet under his Pillow. Although he went $200 to the Bad on the Meetings he made the Personal Acquaintance of at least a dozen Celebrities who wore Red Vests, carried Field-Glasses and bet nothing but Markers, therefore he had the glad knowledge that slowly, but surely he was absorbing some of the Attributes which distinguish the Good Fellow from other Members of the Brute Creation.

After all, the only cinch Method for becoming a steam-heated Gazabe is to exhibit a tall Nerve in a cut-throat Session of the Game that made Congress famous. Cousin Jim knew a lot of Gentlemen Players who were devoting their Attention to Poker because they were getting too Fat to climb Porches. As a Special Favor he fixed it so Herbert could get a Place at the Table.

It was a Proud Moment for the Amateur when he sat in that Distinguished Company and began to pick up Hands and then put them down again. The Sheep that walked into Armour's Packing House had the same kind of a Chance that Herbert had when he put his Elbows on the Green Cloth and tried to keep from trembling.

He had been against the one-call two Boarding House Game where they hand back everything over $2, but he was not accustomed to dallying with Friends who took out Pencils and began to figure how much they could get on his Clothes.

They were the kind that started in to play just about where he left off. The only Reason they didn't kill him with the Ante was because he looked so Good to them that they wanted to keep him in. It was one of the games that begin to get ripe about the time the Church Bells are ringing.

The Trimmers' Union had no way of knowing that they would ever get to him again so they decided to make one Job of it.

After Herbert had signed up all the Checks and put a Cold Towel on his head, he began to Roar somewhat and talk about chopping on the all-night Seances.

"You must not Beef," said Cousin Jim. "A True Sport never lets on, even when they unbutton his Shoes."

"Do you know, I sometimes suspect that I am not qualified to be a Hot Dog," said Herbert. "I find that I begin to pass away about 2 a. m. Perhaps it is owing to some Oversight in my Early Training, but I notice that after I have taken a thousand Drinks, I cannot put the Red Ball into the Corner Pockets. I have a Timid Nature and somehow I cannot learn to whoop the Edge on a Pair of Nines. I'm afraid that I drank too much Rainwater in my Youth. And besides, I got into the Habit of going to Bed. It's a great Blow to my Pride, but I don't think I am gaited to keep up with the Bell-Cows. Me back to the Cheap Push at the Boarding House."

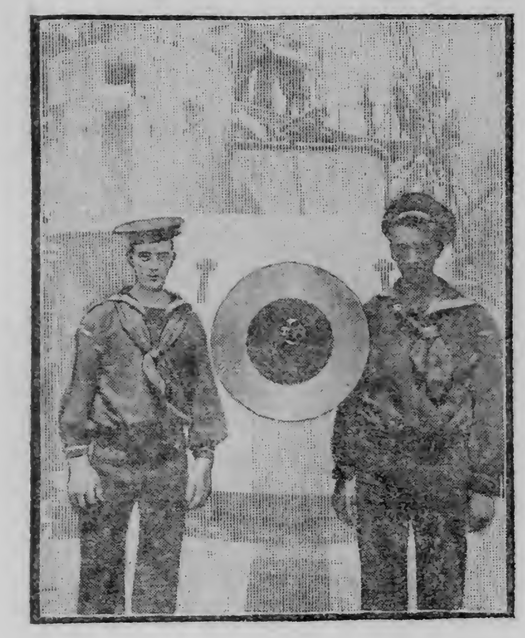
CANNON "SHOTTED" WITH FACES.



This snap shot with the photographer's "gun" has scored a bull's-eye to an exact calculation, and is just as effective in its small way as a shot from the big gun might have been in target practice. There is a man behind the gun, and a rather pretty woman, too.

The weapon is an 8-inch rifle, twenty two feet long, part of the armament of the United States ship Boston, and the photograph was taken while the ship was lying off Long Beach, Cal. Mr. E. O. Sawyer, of Los Angeles, was the man who made the camera shot and conceived the idea of taking the picture while looking at the interior of the rifle at the same time another person was looking in at the other end.

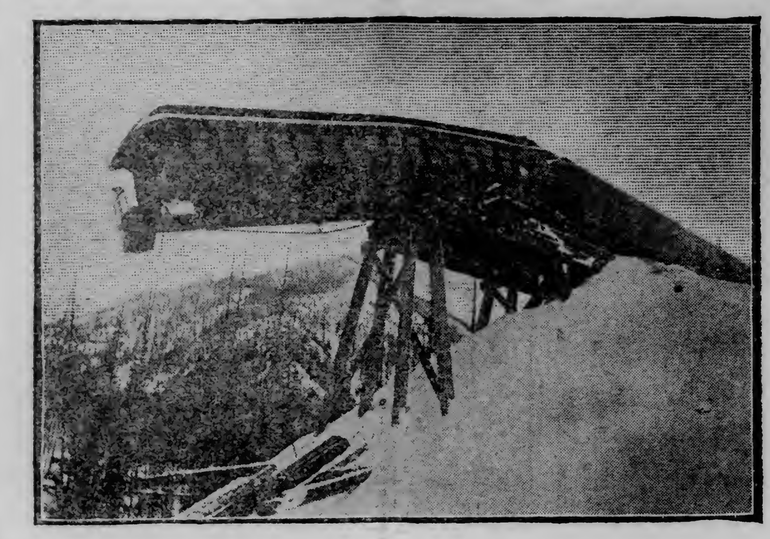
His photograph shows a sailor and his sweetheart looking in through the breech. The twisted appearance in the cannon is caused by the rifling."

REMARKABLE RAILROAD CATASTROPHE.

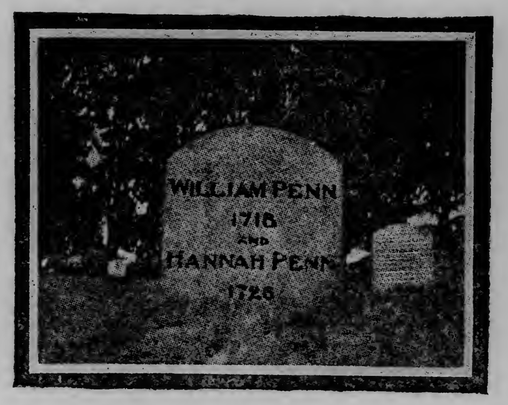
What might have been a very serious wreck, and turned out to be one of the most remarkable catastrophes of its kind, happened during the early spring at the "S" bridge on the Northern Pacific Railroad, in Idaho.

The "S" bridge gets its name from its construction. It is 300 feet high, and spans a chasm eighty feet wide where the road climbs over the summit of the Bitter Root Mountains. A snowslide starting up the mountain side went tearing down through the narrow gorge with such terrific force that when it struck the bridge it carried away one end of the trestle, on which at the time stood an engine, caboose and one passenger coach. The force of the snowslide separated the engine and caboose from the rest of the train and the two were plunged into the snow filled creek, eighty feet below. The engine, on which there were no persons, buried itself in thirty feet of snow, while the caboose, with eight occupants, fell headlong, as it were, into the snow bank, which served to break the fall so that not one of the eight was killed.

The passenger coach was held to the track by the coupling to the car ahead, though one end of it hung over the chasm at an angle of forty-five degrees. By clinging to the sides of the car and carefully edging their way to the forward end these few persons inside the car were able to leave the perilous death cage, which might have at any minute wrenched itself away and dropped upon the caboose, eighty feet below.



WILLIAM PENN'S TOMB.



Under a simple tomb in the Quaker burial ground at Jordans, near Chalfont St. Giles, in Buckinghamshire, England, is the dust of the famous William Penn. An English writer, who recently visited it, says:—"At one time this tomb was carefully watched, as it was feared that the remains of the great Quaker would be stolen and transported to America. Americans may well come to see this simple grave—noble in its very simplicity—although something should surely be done to keep the grass-grown mound in better condition."

He also points out that "there are few parts of England more abounding in a fine and exhilarating tradition than this Quaker country, of which Jordans was, as it were, the centre, for not only Penn, of the 'Holy Experiment,' but Milton, who wrote 'Paradise Regained' at Chalfont, and Ellwood, whose 'History' is also a classic in its way, are names forever to be associated with the place and with the struggle for liberty of conscience that went on there at a very critical period of our history."

A photograph was recently taken of the tomb, and from it the accompanying picture was copied.

SCULPTURED "TOSTER" OF ANCIENT CIRCUS.

Some remarkable relics were recently unearthed on the site of the ancient city of Arles, and among them was the piece of sculpture which is shown in the accompanying picture.

During the Roman era there was a splendid circus at Arles, and this fragment formed a part of its decorations. A chariot race is represented in the beautifully carved stone, and though so many centuries have elapsed since the sculptor did the work the features of the men and horses stand out as clearly and as boldly as on the day when they were first fashioned.

From an archaeological point of view the relic is of exceptional interest and value, as it contains a clear picture of the manner in which chariot races were run. A search is now being made for other fragments, which might throw further light on the subject, and as the circus was profusely decorated with pictorial work of this kind, there is good reason for believing that they will be found.

Curious Trick.

If you want to amuse some young persons get a decanter, a plate, a ladle and a skimmer and then tell them that you intend to balance the ladle and the skimmer in the manner shown in the accompanying picture. Of course, they will be incredulous, but if your hand is reasonably steady you will be able to do the trick.

First, hang the skimmer by its handle from the edge of the plate and keep it in position by means of a small wedge made of cork. Next, take the skimmer and plate in one hand and lay the edge of the plate on the edge of the decanter, and then with the other hand connect the ladle with the skimmer and hold them until you find the exact position in which they will balance each other. The first time you try to do this trick it is quite probable that you will fail, and in that case your audience will be much amused at seeing skimmer, ladle and plate come down with a rush on the innocent decanter. After a few trials, however, you will become an adept at the trick and it will then be your turn to laugh at those who doubted your ability to perform it.

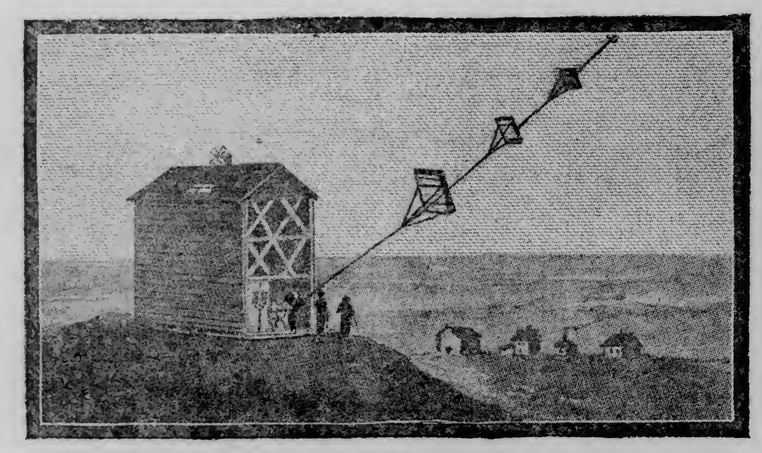
The common measure of road distance in Greece is the pike, which equals three quarters of an English yard.

NEW KITE STATION IN JUTLAND.

In May, 1902, a meteorological congress was held in Berlin, and while it was in progress Professor Mascart, a French scientist, suggested that Sweden and Denmark unite with France for the purpose of erecting a station in Jutland from which experiments with kites could be made. His suggestion was at once adopted, and as a result the station shown in the accompanying picture was erected.

It is by far the greatest undertaking of the kind which has ever been attempted, and the experiments which have been made from it within the last few months show that it is admirably suited for such a purpose. It is situated near Wiborg, which is one of the most interesting places in Europe from a meteorological standpoint, since it is constantly beset by storms and winds and is surrounded by level ground, so that the kites are in no way impeded when they make their upward flight.

The university at Foura Bay, Sierra Leone, is said to be the smallest in the world. A few years ago it had but 12 students and five professors.



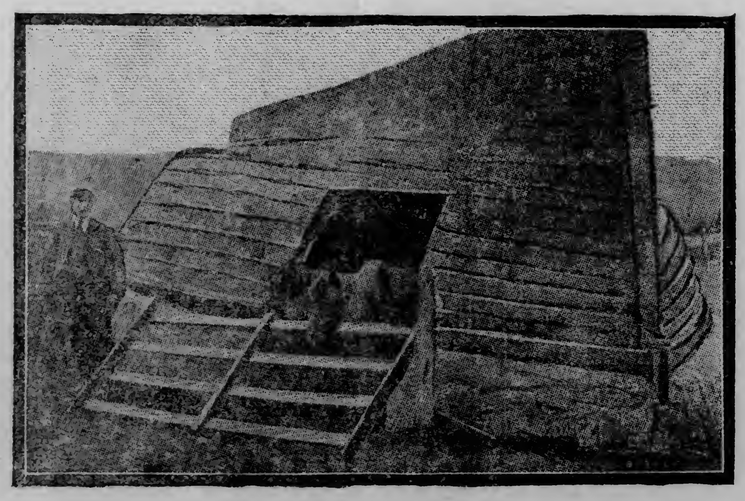
HIS STABLE AN INVERTED BOAT.

Houses built of inverted boats are comparatively common both in fact and fiction. It has remained, however, for an ingenious Scotchman to make a barn of a boat and use it, besides, for years. The boat barn, or rather the boat stable, provides comfortable stabling for a half dozen ponies.

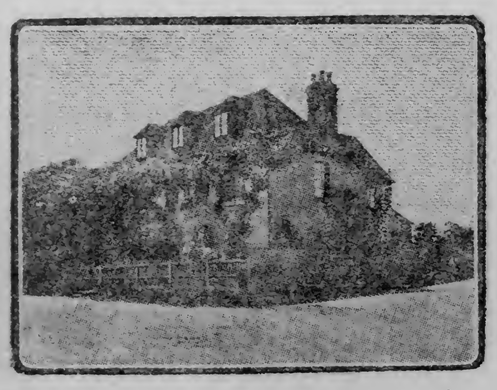
The stable measures forty-eight feet in length, with a beam of eighteen feet. It draws five feet of water when inverted. The boat stable rests upon a very substantial foundation of masonry. It has been raised about two feet from the ground. The main entrance is on the port side, a large square hole, while a couple of ports on the starboard side and in the stern give sufficient light and ventilation.

Since the boat was perfectly watertight in its native element, it continues to be sufficiently weather proof in its new position of providing ample protection for its unusual crew.

The London Times' leading article on Queen Victoria's Jubilee, in 1887, was of the record length of 11 columns. It extended over 236 inches of column space.



WHERE DICKENS PASSED HIS HONEYMOON.



Amateur photographers in search of novelties in the pictorial line and scenes once the environment of historical or otherwise famous personages have discovered the cottage wherein Charles Dickens passed his honeymoon. It is a quaint, picturesque old dwelling, inhumed in foliage, in the ancient village of Chalk, between Gravesend and Rochester, England, and not far from Gad's Hill Place, the novelist's famous residence.

An aged resident, who knew Dickens when the author was a tenant at Gad's Hill Place, states that he and Dickens would often meet at the same spot during their daily walk.

"This was on the outskirts of Chalk," says he, "where a beautiful lane branches off toward the villages of Shorne and Cobham. Here the brisk walk of Charles Dickens was always quickened, and he never failed to gaze meditatively for a few moments at the windows of a corner house on the southern side of the road, advantageously situated for commanding views of the river and the far stretching landscape beyond. It was in that house he had lived immediately after his marriage.

GUARANTEEING EGGS.

J. I. Brittain, the United States consul at Kiel, says that a unique method for insuring the freshness of eggs has been adopted by the Dairymen's Association of that city. "The agents of this association," he explains, "go among the farmers each day and purchase eggs, the farmer guaranteeing that these have been laid within the previous 24 hours. In consequence of this guarantee the association pays the farmer three pfennigs, or about half a cent, above the regular market price for each egg.

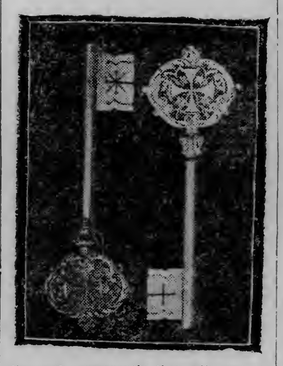
"The Dairymen's Association then makes a record of each purchase by giving the farmer a registered number and numbering each egg in a corresponding manner. When a consumer finds a stale egg he returns it to the dealer, who in turn charges it to the association, which reports the matter to the farmer. The method is a protection to all parties concerned, and is said to meet with much success. The eggs are delivered to the dealer in cases containing five dozen each."

Eight hundred and twenty-five foreign joint stock companies are at present doing business in Russia.

Jubilee Symbols.

During the recent celebration of the Papal Jubilee many costly gifts were presented to Pope Leo XIII., but it is doubtful if he sets a higher value on any of them than on the keys which were wrought for him as symbols of the great event of which a picture accompanies this story.

To those who are versed in the doctrines and history of the Roman Catholic Church the significance of these keys will be at once apparent. Symbols they are not only of Christianity, but also of the stability and immutability of the Church, and, in a lesser degree, of the recent jubilee. Compared with some of the other gifts which Pope Leo XIII. has received from time to time, they are of small intrinsic value, but they are, so to speak, hallowed by tradition and consequently they will ever remain an object of interest to Roman Catholics.



Gambetta's Skull.

When Gambetta died the medical authorities requested Dr. Laborde, the distinguished physician, to examine his brain, and, going to Ville d'Avray, where the body lay, he began work as soon as possible. First he opened the skull and then, removing the brain, laid it on a napkin and took it to his own house, where, for the purpose of preserving it, he placed it in a solution of sulphate of zinc.

Unfortunately, before doing so he had forgotten to weigh it, and when he took it out of the solution next day he found that a portion of it had been dissolved, and that what remained of the brain of the famous statesman weighed only 700 grammes, which is about the weight of an idiot's brain.

Dr. Laborde, it is said, never forgave himself for making this blunder.

Plague Cross.

This quaint old stone erection in the city of York, England, is called the "plague cross," although it does not bear much resemblance to a cross. It was put up to mark the boundary of the temporary market place established in the outskirts of York during the prevalence of a terrible plague which raged in the year 1604. Several "crosses" of this description were erected in the neighborhood in the main roads, about a mile outside the city, to mark the spots where the country folk were to come with their produce, and from which the citizens were to fetch necessary articles of food.

On each "cross" there was a small pool of water, in which the citizens placed their money, in order to purify it from contagion before the country folk handled it.

The "cross" shown in the illustration is the only one left, and it remains in a fairly good state of preservation. Recently an American in search of curios offered to purchase it, but his tender of a generous sum of money was promptly refused by the York municipal authorities.

Sounding Rock.

At Kingston Lisle, near Wantage, in England, is one of the most curious rocks in the world. No one, looking at the accompanying picture, would imagine that it differs in any respect from any ordinary rock, yet it does; indeed, it is so unlike any ordinary rock that its fame has spread far and wide.

A very ancient lump of sandstone it is, and its peculiarity lies in the fact that it can be blown through and made to emit a booming sound like a horn. Very often has it been tested in this way, and never has it failed to give forth the expected sound.

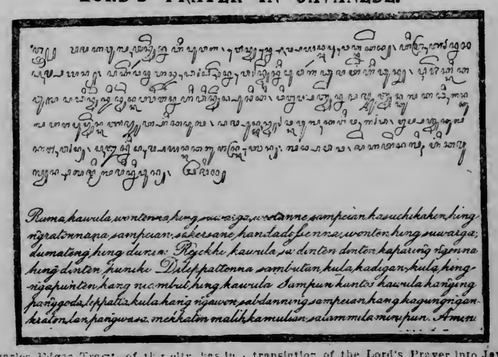
The exact age of this rock no one knows, but that it is very old is evident. Within a short distance of it on the Downs, near Wantage, may be seen the remains of earthworks which were constructed many centuries ago.

LORD'S PRAYER IN JAVANESE.



Charles Edgar Trowt, of this city, has in his possession a number of curious documents connected with the Christianizing of Java, in which work his great grandfather, the Rev. Mr. Trowt, a missionary of the Baptist Society, was most prominent. One of the most interesting of the curios is a translation of the Lord's Prayer into Javanese, made by the missionary, a reproduction of which is here shown.

Anstey's "Mad Dog"

BY GEORGE ETHELBERT WALSH.

"I don't want to sell him," said Anstey stoutly, the tears almost in his eyes. "But I'm going to the city to work, and I can't take him along."

"I should think not; dogs ain't much use in the city; they're always homesick for the country."

"Then if I sell him you'll give him a good home and see that he doesn't fall into cruel hands?"

"Of course I will, my boy. I'm not cruel to animals. You say he's a gentle and affectionate dog?"

The lady stepped down from her carriage and patted Carlo. The dog licked her hand, and then looked up at Anstey to see if it was all right. Anstey stooped to hide a blinding tear, and said:

"Yes, Carlo, she'll be good to you and you must be good to her."

As if he understood this command, the dog wagged his tail and licked the hand which patted him with renewed fervor.

"Well, I suppose I'll take him. Will he follow me home?"

Anstey gulped back something hard in his throat and asked:

"Did you want to take him today?"

"Why, certainly. I can't call again."

A half hour later, when Anstey walked up to the house, he tried to look brave and unconcerned. Meeting his mother at the door, he said:

"Well, Carlo's gone. That Mrs. Brown took him."

Mrs. Bellows tried to answer cheerfully, but her own voice had a little catch in it. "I'm sure Carlo will have a good home with her," she said, taking Anstey by the arm and leading him to the supper table.

"Yes, I suppose so, but doesn't a dog want something besides a home? I mean—that is"——

"Yes, dear; he needs love, the same as a boy," was the quick answer.

Anstey was 14, and he was about to begin his lifework in the town where his future home would be. He and his mother would board with her sister in an apartment where dogs were decidedly out of place. Mrs. Bellows had dreaded to speak to Anstey about selling Carlo, but there seemed no way out of the difficulty. Carlo could not be taken to the city, and as he was a valuable dog they had decided they needed the money he would bring if sold.

Anstey found his uncle's store in one of the best business streets of the city, but his home was in a less pretentious neighborhood, surrounded on all sides by great, towering apartment houses. During the first few weeks Anstey and his mother were homesick for the country and their old homestead. In the evening they consoled each other and thus made it easier for both.

"If I only had Carlo once in a while to take a romp with I'd feel better," the boy said. "I wonder how he is."

"Probably having a better time than my boy," replied his mother, with a smile. "He's in the country and therefore cannot be so homesick as you are."

Anstey was a bright boy, and he had determined to learn his uncle's business so that he would be of greater help to him. He worked hard in the store through the day-time, and at night he would often forget his homesickness by adding up the columns in the books which his uncle gave to him. In this way he made himself valuable in the evening as well as in the daytime.

One day his uncle ordered the cellar of the store to be cleaned out. There were boxes, barrels and papers piled in tiers to the ceiling. Anstey helped the others to clean out the cellar. While they were working a dozen rats scurried across the cellar.

"I wish I had Carlo here," Anstey said. "He'd make short work of these rats."

"Who is Carlo?" asked his uncle.

"My dog, or at least the one I had."

"Then you haven't him any more? I'm sorry for it, if he's a good ratter. I've been bothered to death with rats, and I'd like to have a good dog here. He could run loose in the cellar at night time and live out in the yard back of the store in the day."

Anstey stopped in his work. If he had only known this earlier Carlo need never have been sold. That night when he walked home he kept asking himself if there could be any possible chance of buying Carlo back.

Mrs. Bellows was as much interested in Carlo's future as Anstey, and she immediately helped him to prepare a letter to send to Mrs. Brown. She even offered to pay more for Carlo than they had received for him. It would seem so much more like their old home to have Carlo to take walks with, and on holidays they could go out into the country with him.

It was a feverish, anxious five days that Anstey waited for a reply to his letter. Then when he opened it his face fell with disappointment. The letter said, in part:

"Carlo is no longer with me. If he was I would gladly sell him to you, for he ran away every chance he had. The last time he disappeared I did not try to find him. I think you got the better of the bargain, for the most worthless of dogs is a runaway."

Anstey's cheeks flushed with anger. He was not sure whether to write back an answer and return Mrs. Brown her money, or to make further inquiries about Carlo and then reply to the letter.

"They must have been cruel to him," he said to his mother. "Carlo was too well bred to run away unless he was ill-treated. Probably Mrs. Brown didn't treat him badly, but somebody on her place did."

Anstey was positive that Carlo had some good reason for leaving his home. It did not occur to him that Carlo would return to his old home, and after a few days he tried to forget all about his lost pet.

It was a fortnight after this when Anstey was leaving his uncle's store to go home for dinner that he heard a strange commotion down the street. There was a crowd of people running, and many were wildly shouting and crying. Like any other boy Anstey was immediately interested, and he started on a run to see what had caused the disturbance.

Half way down the street he could distinguish the cry of "Mad dog! Mad dog!"

There was a queer sensation in Anstey's breast at hearing this shout. He had never seen a mad dog, and he increased his pace. When he reached the crowd he saw that they were chasing and pelting a dog covered with foam and lather. Stones, sticks and other missiles were being thrown at the dog.

The animal was vainly trying to escape the crowd, but whenever he stopped to face the pursuers they all turned and fled. They were as much afraid of him as the animal was of them. Finally, the animal was cornered in one end of the street where it had to turn on the crowd or be pelted to death.

But it chose neither of these courses. It jumped over one of the high iron fences and landed in a yard where a small child was playing. The dog was unmistakably a dangerous animal, and the position of the girl was critical. There was a groan from the crowd and a loud call for a pistol.

But it was not a pistol which saved the little girl. Over the high fence climbed a boy, and before the girl could pick herself up to run Anstey was upon the dog. Instead of beating him he said:

"Carlo! Carlo! I don't believe you are mad! Come here!"

Then, to the astonishment of the crowd, the boy walked up to the "mad dog" and took him in his arms, while the dog nearly suffocated him with kisses. Dumbfounded at this, the crowd stood still for some moments. Then somebody broke the tension by cheering. Carlo growled, but Anstey soothed him. A policeman who had hurried up with a pistol said: "I guess we won't have to shoot the mad dog yet."

"No, he isn't as mad as these people," Anstey said. "It's my dog, and he wouldn't bite a baby."

Anstey led him forth by a string, amid the cheers of the crowd and the protestations of thankfulness from the mother of the little girl.

"I don't know why they should act so," Anstey said. "I didn't do anything except save Carlo. Well, I won't sell him again—not to any one."

Cadet Stories—At Point Of The Sword.

BY WILLIAM WALLACE WHITELOCK.

The new cadets were new cadets no longer—they had been admitted into the battalion, and, as "Monkey" Sam said, were now high privates in the rear rank. But even this was a welcome change from the monotony of the setting up drill.

"Eleventh exercise, down! Up! Heels together, touch the ground, Mr. Carson!"

"I—I can't!" panted "Shorty," nearly breaking in two in the effort to bring his finger tips into contact with the earth. "I—I'm too fat!"

"Shorty" felt strongly tempted to leave his position in the squad and to "continue the motion" on the body of his instructor. "Lanky" Loomis, who seemed to find particular enjoyment in making him miserable. "Lanky," or, as he was sometimes styled, "the Bill Poster," was a first classman and the "peanut," or lowest ranking lieutenant; but, despite the handicap of his sixty-four inches of height and the lack of flesh on his bones, he was the strongest cadet in the Academy and one of the best athletes. He and "Shorty," however, did not seem drawn to each other, and their experience as instructor and pupil hardly tended to increase the friendliness of their feelings.

"I'll take the young upstart down a peg or two before I'm through with him," was "Lanky's" mental vow when he found "Shorty" in his squad, which he considered it beneath the dignity of a first classman to instruct.

"The big, overgrown giraffe!" muttered the former sailor to himself. "I'll show him who he's dealing with if he comes foolin' around me."

The battalion was divided into six companies, to which captains were distributed by the adjutant in the following order: First, sixth; third, second; fifth, fourth. Having accomplished this duty, the adjutant would turn and salute Lieutenant Deagan, the United States Army detail, with the words: "Sir, the battalion is formed."

As among the shortest members of the corps, Carson found himself in the sixth company, under command of the second captain, a sharp, soldier-like cadet by the name of Edgar. As file-closers to the various companies, besides the sergeants and an occasional corporal, were assigned the lieutenants left over after the distribution of company captaincies. Thus only through the absence of a number of higher ranking lieutenants could Loomis be sent to the sixth company. One day, however, soon after the discontinuance of squad drill, this contingency occurred, and Carson found himself under the watchful eye of his former instructor.

"Fourth exercise! Shoulder, front, rear! Head up, stomach in, Mr. Carson," murmured "Shorty," in imitation of Loomis' sepulchral tones, loud enough for the neighboring cadets to hear, and a ripple of laughter passed through the ranks.

For a while everything went smoothly. The new cadets were still a little slow in grasping commands, but not enough so to cause confusion. "Shorty" was the right rear file of the next to the last set of fours and directly next to a quiet, inoffensive boy by the name of Parsons, who later proved so valuable a member of Henry Haswell's tug of war team. Military life was foreign to the temperament of Parsons, despite his desire to be a good soldier, and in consequence he not infrequently made mistakes and was behind hand in obeying orders.

"Close up, Mr. Parsons!"

"Be quicker with that gun, Mr. Parsons!"

Such were the admonitions constantly being given by Loomis, who had evidently made it his special calling in life to watch for the boy's mistakes. Not a word did the culprit venture in reply, keeping his eyes immovably fixed on the collar of the cadet in front of him, as he had been taught to do.

"Close up, sir!" and to accentuate his words, Loomis gave a sharp prick with his sword to the fleshy part of the offender's leg.

"Ouch!" cried Parsons, in suppressed pain, and he sprang forward so sharply that he trod on the heels of the next cadet.

"Get off my heels, you chump," growled the boy he had trod on, and poor Parsons fell back into place with the feeling that the world was against him. Five minutes later he again came under the ban of Loomis' displeasure, and again he received a reminder from the ever-ready swordpoint.

"Shorty's" blood began to boil. He knew that it was against regulations for an officer to touch an inferior, and that Loomis would not have dared to abuse an old cadet in this manner. In an instant the boy's determination was formed to give Loomis a lesson such as he would not easily forget. Deliberately, therefore, he began to leg behind the line, inviting a reprimand from the enemy.

"Shorty" might have been a block of stone so far as regards the heed he gave to Loomis' words.

"If you don't close up there, I'll find a way to make you!" cried Loomis, beside himself with anger.

"How?" asked the offender, tauntingly.

"How?—I'll show you!" said the "peanut" lieutenant between his teeth, and a moment after a quick, sharp pain in his right leg told "Shorty" that he had at last provoked his enemy to the point desired. The prick, however, was deeper than Loomis had intended or "Shorty" had expected, and instantly the boy's plan of protest was forgotten, and springing from the ranks, he swung his gun over his shoulder and swept it fiercely in a circle toward Loomis' shins, which, had it struck them, it would undoubtedly have splintered them like a twig. As it was, a quick backward spring saved the legs, but the gun coming into contact with Loomis' sword, it was sent flying 30 feet in the air almost directly to the feet of Lieutenant Deagan.

"You dare stick me again!" cried "Shorty," now forgetful of everything but the insult which had been offered him, "and I'll—"

Ten minutes later drill was over, and "Shorty" mounted to his room to put away his gun.

"Well, I guess I'm in for the 'jug' this time, sure," he remarked philosophically to his roommate, as he took off his belt. "Let me have that paper-backed novel, will you, you were reading yesterday, and I'll stuff it under my shirt so as to have something to read, anyhow. Keep my memory green."

But to "Shorty's" astonishment, "Observant" Oscar, as the cadets had styled the factotum and quasi-policeman of the academy, did not come that evening to request his presence below stairs, nor the following morning, and nothing further was heard of the incident. Nor did "Shorty" ever learn what transpired between Lieutenant Deagan and Loomis during the latter's visit to the army officer's room after the study hour.

Punishment Of Tantalus

Put an ordinary chair, front downward, on the ground. Now ask some one to kneel on the lower back bar and to recover with his mouth a piece of candy or small article placed on the back of the uppermost part of the chair.

It seems very simple at first, but if the person attempting the experiment is not very careful to crouch in such a way that the center of gravity falls back of the chair seat the chair will give him an unpleasant tumble.

This is the way the checked dress should have been put on the pickaninny in last week's puzzle.

Sticks and stones were thrown at him.

HOW TO FLOAT CORKS VERTICALLY.

A wash basin or a bathtub and seven corks are all the apparatus needed for this experiment, and it will, I hope, be none the less interesting on account of its simplicity.

The problem is, then, how to cause these corks to float vertically.

Everybody knows that an ordinary cork, being considerably longer than it is broad, is forced to float, when put in water, upon its long side. How can we make it float upon its head?

Place one of the corks on end on the table; surround it with the other six, all upon end; take these seven corks compactly in one hand and plunge them under water, so as to moisten them completely.

Remove your hand and let them take their own position in the water.

The water that has penetrated the corks will cause them to cling together, because their united width is greater than their length.

This effect of capillary cohesion amusingly demonstrates that "In union there is strength."

PREDICTING THE WEATHER

Some of the Odd Proverbs and Signs Followed Before the Days of the Weather Service—The Cat as a Prophet.

The receipt of the plans and specifications for the new weather bureau at Duluth caused Mr. Richardson, the local official, to fall into a historical mood the other day, and tell of the progress made in weather forecasting during the past few years. He told of the attempts of our forefathers to predict the weather by studying the clouds and the sky and the movements of animals and birds, and then described the modern methods and instruments by which the weather is made.

He then produced a volume of the old weather proverbs by which the early members of the race in America were guided in their forecasts. Some of them are given below. Many of them are put in the form of rhyme.

Cats had the reputation of being weather-wise, which gave rise to a number of sayings based upon different actions of the feline race. It was almost universally believed that good weather might be expected when a cat washed herself, but bad weather when she licked her coat against the grain.

The cats were supposed not only to have a knowledge of the weather, but a share in the arrangement of it. When a cat is more frisky than usual, sailors claimed that she had a gale of wind in her tail, and a charm which was often resorted to in order to raise a breeze was to throw a cat overboard. But according to the Hungarian proverb, a cat does not die in the water, and hence the disturbances on the surface of the water are called "cat's paws."

Cattle were also the subjects of many predictions. It was said by New Englanders that, when a storm threatened, if the cattle went under the trees it would be just a shower, but if they continued feeding, the rain would be continuous.

"When cows refuse to go to the pasture in the morning it will rain before night," and "Expect rain when cattle low and gaze at the sky," were two other proverbs.

Horses were said to assemble in the corner of a field and turn their heads to the leeward when rain was coming.

Probably the best known proverb is the saying that when dogs eat grass it will rain before night.

Geese gave rise to more weather sayings than any other birds. Among them are the following:

"If the November goose bone be thick,
So will the winter weather be;
If the November goose bone be thin,
So will the winter weather be."

"A heavy plumage on geese in the fall indicates a heavy winter."

"Everything is lovely and the goose hawks high" (not hangs high, as is generally quoted.

"Geese wash and sparrows fly in flocks before rain."

"When geese and ducks stand on one leg, expect cold weather."

The appearance of clouds has given rise to a lengthy list of weather predictions suited to their various shapes and colors. Many of them are based upon meteorological conditions and have been proven more or less correct by modern science.

"Anvil-shaped clouds are apt to be followed by a gale of wind."

"Black clouds in the north in winter indicate approaching snow."

"Small black scuds drifting from the southwest is a sign of rain."

"If clouds be bright,
'Twill rain tonight;
If clouds be dark,
'Twill rain, do you hark?"

"Enough clear blue sky in the northwest to make a Scotchman a jacket is a sign of approaching blue weather."

"If you see clouds flying across wind there is a storm in the air."

"If a fair day with cumulus clouds, expect rain before night."

"When clouds after a rain disperse during the night, the weather will not remain clear."

"Dark clouds in the West at sunrise indicate rain before night."

"If rain falls during an east wind it will continue a full day."

"Clouds in the east obscuring the sun indicate fair weather."

"If the sky beyond the clouds be blue, Be glad there is a picnic for you."

"If high dark clouds are seen in spring, winter or fall expect cold weather."

"When it is evening, ye say it will be fair weather, for the sky is red; and in the morning it will be foul weather today for the sky is red and lowering." (Matthew, xvi, 2, 3.)

"If clouds fly to the west at sunrise, expect fine weather."

"Two different kinds of clouds indicate rain."

Anglers will be interested in the proverbs relating to fish which have been prevocative of many sayings about the weather.

"Fish bite the least
With the wind in the east."

"If eels are very lively, it is a sign of rain."

"When fish jump up after flies, expect rain."

"Fish bite the least when the moon is in the tail.

"When pike lie quietly on the bed of a stream, expect win or rain."

"Trout bite voraciously before rain."

"Fishermen in anger froth
When the wind is in the north
For the fish bite the best
When the wind is in the west."

The moon was a favorite object to the proverb makers and there is a long list of weather sayings based upon different conditions of the moon.

"When the horns of the moon are sharp it indicates dry weather."

"The fifth day of the new moon indicates the general character of the weather until the full of the moon."

"The full moon eats clouds."

"Two full moons in a calendar month bring on a flood."

"If the full moon rises clear expect fine weather."

"A lunar halo indicates rain and the number of stars enclosed the number of days of rain."

"If the new moon appears with the points of the crescent turned up the month will be dry. If the points are turned down it will be wet."

"The old moon seen in the new moon's arms is a sign of fair weather."

The volume owned by Mr. Richardson also contains some special local indications of approaching storms for different cities of the United States, among which are found the following apply to Duluth:

Northeast storms, preceded by hazy atmosphere and fog over the lake, the former turning to stratus and the latter to nimbus cloud as storm approaches. Falling barometer, increasing humidity and falling temperature.

Northwest storms by low and falling barometer, rising temperature, high and increasing humidity with cumulus and culo stratus clouds. This class of storms most frequent in winter and spring.

Northern storms by failling barometer and falling temperature increasing humidity and cumulus clouds. Most frequent in winter and accompanied by snow.

Eastern storms by high and rising barometer, rising temperature, increasing humidity with stratus clouds.

Western storms by falling barometer, high or rising temperature and humidity, with heavy banks of stratus clouds in the western sky. Occur at all seasons of the year.

Fogs are usually followed by rain within twenty-four hours.

"These sayings are many of them very old," said Mr. Richardson, "and many of them proven false while others are based upon a keen observation of meteorological conditions. Before the days of the weather bureau every man had to be his own weather prophet and the weather conditions and the results were watched very closely by sailors, farmers and others who had personal interests depending upon the weather. In this way many of the old sayings originated."

Flag Day Celebration.

An effort is being made to establish June 14 of each year as flag day, because it was on this date that the thirteen stars and stripes were adopted as the national emblem. Another important day in the history of the country was the one on which the famous family medicine, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, was first introduced to the public, fifty years ago. Today it is recognized a sour national remedy for stomach, liver and kidney complaints, because it has always proven reliable, often effecting a cure when other remedies have failed. If your stomach is out of order and you suffer from loss of appetite, belching, heartburn, insomnia, dyspepsia, indigestion or constipation, you will find a few doses of the Bitters will set the stomach right and cure these disorders. Try it and see.

MAKING CITY LIFE MORE ATTRACTIVE

The Health of the People the Beginning of Happiness—Flowers, Sheltering Trees, Flowering Shrubs, Add to the Beauty of Homes.

Changed conditions have made it almost an imperative business necessity that something be done, and that quickly, to make cities and city life more attractive. Efforts are made by many cities to draw factories and business enterprises to settle within its limits. The advantages of railroad and steamer communication, the nearness of markets of raw material, thee xcellence of labor—all are arguments frequently used with manufactures and investors to prove a city's opportunities. But in recent days it has been recognized that another element must be named—attractiveness of the home life, the beauty and healthfulness of the city, the excellence of its schools—all these are now seen to be essential to the growing town. In view of this the improvement and beautifying of the city streets, parks, boulevards, and even of its yards and houses, become matters not simply of individual preference, but of public concern.

Neatly kept yards, well trimmed sidewalks and clean streets are now regarded as high evidence of the city's prosperity, as much as large factories, and are one of its best means of attracting desirable citizens. The city must advertise as well as the business man today if it would attract capital, good men and women and law-abiding citizens.

As a people, we Americans have been very busy making money. There are many thousands of very rich people among us, and as a nation we are now demanding luxury and beauty to an extent heretofore unknown to the modern world.

The higher the culture the more harmony and beauty demanded by all senses, and we are well into the century which will see the beautifying of home and villages with flowers brought to marvelous perfection. Flowers are within the reach of the poorest. A rich man may buy beautiful objects of art, and hide them away in his house, but his flowers must grow in the sunshine, where all can see them. They grow as finely for the cottage as the mansion. Nothing tells more quickly of refinement within the house than flowers outside it. Will it pay you to allow your property to deteriorate for the lack of a little exertion on your part? Not in this age. If people only realized that by beautifying their property they are increasing its value, what lovely homes we would have. What is the condition of your back yard and alley? Is the latter an impassable mire in winter and a weedy lane in summer, or is it a well-graded, rolled and drained passageway? Is your back yard "green with grass" and "gay with flowers," making it a "beautiful" and "safe" place in which your children may play? Or is it a death-trap, adorned with a fragrant swill barrel, heaps of ashes and garbage piles of old boards, and untidy fence, while the bare ground is soaked with greasy dishwater, making it a place abhorrent to your children as a playground and unsafe from a sanitary point of view as a sewer? Can you wonder why "Johnny" and "Willie" prefer to play in the street instead of the yard? I think their preference for the street shows a proper instinct and good judgment.

Our efforts should not cease until we have a lovely, lovely city, such as our city can be, and the help of every citizen is needed to bring about this grand result. Let us continue on this line until our city is in such a condition that when a man comes here he will say, "This is a nice place to live," and will stay with us.

There are very few houses of the city, town or farm that could not be made more comfortable and less expensive in heating by a few sheltering trees planted on the sides of the houses that catch the prevailing winds. Windbreaks of trees, more especially if they are evergreens, make the dwelling house warmer, give comfort to its inmates, dimmishing, to no inconsiderable extent, the consumption of fuel; they make the outbuilding warmer for stock by night, and the yard by day, dumb animals comfortable, and thereby saving a large amount of food. For houses in comparatively small grounds evergreens are the best adapted as they take up less room than Deciduous trees, and will not crowd. As they also retain their ornamental appearance in winter, they are very desirable where both utility and landscape effects are sought. Another advantage of evergreens on small grounds is that they can be planted very near the house, if necessary.

While most people appreciate well arranged and kept grounds, large or small, many fail to realize that "they" can have equally fine grounds. We frequently observe a few roses growing in the thick turf, with no attention given to pruning or cultivation. Under such circumstances good results cannot be expected. Aside from the pleasure of having fine trees, shrubs, vines and flowers in the grounds surrounding a home, few realize how much "these" add to the commercial value of the place. A purchaser having to decide between a house with bare and unkempt grounds and one surrounded by fine ornamentals invariably chooses the latter at a marked advance in price, because he sees that he will at once enjoy what it would otherwise take some years to secure. Sagacious men are led by a knowledge of these facts to plant vacant lots they are intending to put upon the market. Lots thus planted readily secure purchasers at good prices, when bare ground go begging for buyers.

Although still greatly neglected in many places the people of all sections in the city, town and country are awakening to the fact that the town lot and farmyard, as well as the country villa, is of greater value when attractively planted with a judicious selection of ornamentals; that an investment in hard trees, shrubs, roses and plants in beautifying the home grounds and street returns a greater interest in actual cash value than is possible with the outlay of similar amount in almost any other way, to say nothing of the added beauty, the increased comfort and health of the occupants.

"Hardy trees" and "shrubs" can now be obtained at moderate cost that will stand the extremes of temperatures and soils of nearly all sections; judicious selection will obtain deciduous and evergreen trees that make beautiful specimens the year through, deciduous trees and shrubs giving constant succession of bloom through the season, while the purple, variegated leaves and weeping forms are always ready for variety and contrast.

"Hedges," neatly trimmed, are not only useful, but decidedly ornamental. Nothing can be more beautiful than hedges of evergreens or shrubs, well kept and pruned, to serve as boundary lines between neighbors, or as divisions between the lawn and garden, or to hide unsightly places. By using medium size plants, a hedge can be made as cheaply as a good board fence can be built, and then, with a little care, it is becoming every year more and more a "thing of beauty." We all know that such hedges continue a principal attraction in our best kept places.

It would be well to recommend the more extended use of "flowering shrubs" for large and small grounds, combining, as they do, so wide a range of foliage and flower, habit of growth and season of bloom, as they require small space for perfect development, the monotony of entirely blank lawns of even small size can be most advantageously broken and the ornamental effect highly increased by a judicious selection and arrangement into single specimen plants, small groups or masses, in proportion to the size of the grounds. Once planted they require but little further care and increase in size and beauty from year to year.

In the extreme north, it may not be advisable to set out young trees and plants in the fall, but the practice of procuring them in the fall and planting them in the spring is becoming more and more popular, as the experience has demonstrated its advantages. Some of the reasons why fall delivery is preferable to spring is: First, you have the stock on hand ready to plant as soon as the ground is in suitable condition; second, stock obtained and delivered in the fall arrives in better order, because nurserymen have more time to handle it; third, the weather is usually more favorable for handling and shipping trees in the fall than in the spring; fourth, even if you are not able to plant until spring, or the climate is too cold, it is wise to have the stock delivered in the fall, so that he can trench it in carefully, and seize the earliest moment in the spring to set out, instead of losing valuable time in the spring waiting for the overworked nurserymen and railroads to get the stock around.

in the land. For country and for liberty have Ireland's sons fought during all her troublous history. The passion of Irish patriotism is blended with all that is ennobling and inspiring, and the wrongs which the race has suffered have only intensified this feeling.

Nothing is more dear to a country than its feeling, and the long history of oppression and intoleration has not only failed to extinguish the flame of Irish patriotism, but has served to kindle it. The Irish race has survived the black deluge of suffering and plunder and emerges from the struggle with redoubled strength and renewed energy. The race has lived to see a day of release dawning, a day of release from the bonds of servitude and of emancipation from the slavery of unrequited toil.

But through all the centuries of plots and insurrections, of famine and repression, the peasantry of Ireland have clung fast to the faith that the land belong to them, and now this hope and desire is about to be realized. England has come to see that her Irish experiment is and ever will be a failure, and that the Irish spirit is unconquerable. Now an end is to be put to the centuries-old story of repression, and the tiller of the soil is to become its owner. The Irish peasantry is commencing to vaguely realize that the landlord has not the power of a Jehovah, and that it is now possible for them to improve their little plots of ground and have a cosy cabin without a fear of a raise in the rent. The fear of the unbridled power of the landlord is passing away, and the Irishman looks out upon a future filled with new hopes and promises.

The idea of nationality lies deep in the hearts of all mankind. It is an inward craving of the heart, which does not rest until it is satisfied. The work of the staunch champions of home rule for Ireland has not been in vain, and the present generation of Irishmen may yet live to see the re-establishment of an Irish parliament at College Green.

In his great rajoicing, however, let not the Irishmen forget that he falls but as heir to the fruits of the work of those champions who have fought with pen and sword during all the changages of Ireland's history. And may the Irishmen of today continue to emulate those true disciples of liberty and ennoble himself with their example.

Principal C. A. Smith spoke a few words to the class before presenting them to Superintendent R. E. Denfeld, with a recommendation that they be given the diplomas of the school.

"It will be four years next September since I first looked in your bright, upturned faces," he said. "It is only four years, but things move rapidly and a great change has taken place in that time. In the pictures printed in your publication an even greater change is recorded, but I must confess that I do not remember you in the stage in which you are there depicted.

"Instead of giving you one of my usual little talks, I should perhaps congratulate you on this occasion. And yet I cannot forbear a few words of advice. I want to impress on your minds the importance in seeking after the best things in life when you go out into the world.

"They are the only things which are of lasting worth or pleasure to you. During your four years here you have worked faithfully and well.

Turning to Superintendent Denfeld, he said: "Mr. Superintendent, let me present these sixty-five young people to you with the recommendation that they be given the diplomas of the institution."

"Young men and young women," said the superintendent, "you have completed your four years in the high school and have had the advantages of all the educational opportunities that the city of Duluth, grand as it is, gives you.

"Nearly 300 years ago two ships landed at about the same time in the Western hemisphere, one on the rocky coast of New England and one on a warm and sandy shore. The civilization brought by those two barks differed, a sthe civilization of the Ethiopian and Caucassian races differ.

"The civilization which you enjoy sprung from the ship which landed on the stony shores of New England. The true ideals and high purposes of the Pilgrims are well known, but I know no reason why your ideals should not be as high, your ideals as true as those which came in the Puritanic bark.

"There is just one thing that I want to say to you which has not already been said in the excellent baccalaureate sermon which you heard last Sunday, or in the words which your principal has spoken:

"No one can foretell the future. It cannot even be guessed at. What it may develop may at present seem impossible. Just as the telegraph, telephone, railroads, which now traverse this broad land, would have been impossibilities to the Puritans who landed in New England.

"You cannot prepare definitely for what the future may bring, but the point I want to impress upon you is that general preparation and opportunity are the great factors of success. If you are prepared to accept your opportunity you are sure to win.

"There are two great classes in this world—the lifters and the leaders. It lies with you to choose—will you be a mere burden bearer, or will you be a leader?

"Think: put your thought into muscular action, and the world moves. And the world needs movers."

Each member of the class was called by name by Principal Smith, and Mr. Denfeld presented the diplomas, which were tied with black and orange ribbon, the colors of the graduating class.

The class joined in the singing of "Triumphales," gave its old yell for the last time, and the class of 1903 passed away.

THE FINAL MEETING.

Seniors Gather In Chapel For the Last Time.

The last chapel exercises were held at the high school yesterday at noon, when the seniors attended to give the school their final parting word, through President Frank Kane.

The seniors were sad. Principal Smith made his talk to them as light and happy as possible to counteract their feelings over the last time they should ever be in the assembly hall for chapel.

President Kane's sorrowful little talk touched every one with its pathos, and it was with difficulty that the young women of the senior class restrained their tears. Every one was wished a happy vocation.

Other presidents rose in order and expressed their regret at losing the seniors, and their hopes that the faculty would thoroughly enjoy itself during the summer months.

The report cards of the students were given to them, and except for graduation exercises the school year closed.

PRISONER MISSING.

Joliet, Ill., June 13.—It transpired today that officers and guards at the Illinois prison have been searching for James W. Wilson, a forger, sent to prison from Chicago, March 1, 1902, for passing worthless express money orders. Wilson disappeared Wednesday but the officers of the prison believe that he is hiding within the walls Others say he has escaped. Wilson broke jail at Minneapolis in 1900 while awaiting trial for forgery.

Worse Every Day

That's the trouble—you think it is only a little backache—but it gets worse every day.

It doesn't do to neglect it; it isn't safe. Backache is really kidney ache—To cure it you must cure the kidneys—Help them to do the work nature intended them to do. If you don't other kidney ills will follow — Urinary troubles, Diabetes, Bright's Disease—

Doan's Kidney Pills

Help the kidneys to do their work—make them strong and active—the backacke is cured because the cause is removed.

Hundreds of Duluth people will tell you so—They have used Doan's Kidney Pills and they know. Here is one instance—

Mrs. M. McGillivray, of 1228 Superior street, says: "I was troubled a good deal for a year or two and had heavy dull pains through my loins. My back tired easily and especially if I reclined or sat long in one position. In the morning I felt tired and worn out. The kidney secretions were unnatural and I was advised to try Doan's Kidney Pills, procured a box from W. A. Abbett's drug store and began to use the preparation. I received wonderful benefit from the treatment and since using Doan's Kidney Pills I have felt splendid."

DULUTH'S NEIGHBORS

Walker.

Walker, June 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—In the presence of a large number of friends and relatives Miss Bessie Scott, daughter of Major G. L. Scott, Leech Lake Indian agent, and George Erward Marshall, of Cass Lake, were Wednesday evening united in the holy bonds of matrimony in the chapel at Origum, Rev. Kah-o-sed reading the service of the Episcopal church. The wedding was one of the prettiest ever witnessed by any of those present. The interior of the chapel was charmingly decorated with flowers and ferns and as the wedding party entered a few minutes after eight o'clock the wedding march was played by Miss Maud Brackney. Miss Scott entered on the arm of her father, who wore the full dress uniform of his rank in the army. She was attired in white brocaded satin trimmed with real old Duchess lace, with veil and court train. Peculiar interest attached to the wedding gown, as it was that worn by the bride's grandmother at her own wedding. Miss Ada H. Clark, of Minneapolis, was bridesmaid. She wore pink crepe de chene with chiffon roses. Miss Irma Erickson was flower girl and added a very pretty effect to the ceremony, preceding the party as it come into the church and scattering rose before the newly-married couple as they walked down the aisle on their way out. Mr. Marshall's brother, Marry Marshall, of Fond du Lac, Wis., officiated as best man, and Howell Morgan was usher and master of ceremonies. An interesting feature was the presence of the eighty or more children from the Indian school, in whose eyes the ceremony was particularly attractive, though they watched it with the stoical calmness of the Indian.

After leaving the chapel the party proceeded to the residence of Major Scott, where a reception was held from 9 to 11 p. m., and the bride was the recipient of the hearty good wishes of her numerous friends while Mr. Marshall came in for his share of congratulations on having won so charming a bride. Among those present were Mrs. Clark, of Minneapolis; Mr. and Mrs. Henry Warren, of Bona; Mrs. E. L. Warren, Dr. J. F. Bodwell and George W. Beckett, of Cass Lake, and Judge and Mrs. McGarry, Mr. and Mrs. L. W. Chase, John King, Harry Drummond and Albert B. B. Wood, of Walker. The Cass Lake and Walker guests went over to the agency and back on the "Hello, Bill" Scott for the purpose.

Thursday morning Mr. and Mrs. Marshall left for Minneapolis and Fond du Lac for a brief visit, after which Mr. Marshall will go to Beaudette, accompanied by his bride, to resume his duties on the pine land estimating corps. Mrs. E. L. Warren also goes at Beaudette to join her husband, chief of the corps, now operating in that district.

Walker is to be the mecca of excursionists and picnic parties during the next few weeks, and the citizens will undoubtedly exert themselves to see that the visitors have a good time and go away pleased and determined to return another season.

First come the Brainerd Elks. These "Best People on Earth" will be here June 18 in large numbers accompanied by their wives, sisters and sweethearts and the local members of the fraternity are leaving nothing undone to give them a good entertainment. One of the features of the day will be a hotly contested game of base ball between the Brainerd Elks and the high school team from the same city for the championship of the central league. There is great excitement in Brainerd over the coming game and the partisans of both teams will be present to root for their respective favorites. In addition to the ball game there will be fishing parties, steamboat excursions, etc.

Then on Tuesday, June 23, the Northwestern Editorial association will rendezvous in Walker for its annual outing. The night will be spent here and on the following day a complimentary trip to Sugar Point and Bear Island, with a lunch accompaniment, will be given to the editorial party, and on Wednesday evening they will leave for Brainerd, going thence to Blackduck and returning to Cass Lake. It is expected there will be about two hundred in the party and it behooves us to see that they carry away good impressions of Walker.

Last but not least is the annual outing of the Northern Pacific Picnic association of Brainerd. This is to be on a mammoth scale. The train will arrive here early in the forenoon on Saturday, June 27. It will be in two sections of ten coaches each and a baggage car. It is estimated that the party will number close upon 2500.

Mr. McGee, manager of C. M. Taylor & Co.'s Walker store, left Monday for Grand Rapids, having been subpoenaed as a witness in the case of the state against C. W. Robinson on a charge of grand larceny. Robinson was treasurer of a school district and was also in business for himself, and his official and personal accounts are said to have become mixed. The only connection Mr. McGee has with the case is to testify as to some orders that passed through the Taylor branch store at Grand Rapids while he was manager here.

Deputy Marshal Frank Tufts left on Monday for Duluth, having in charge a bootlegger named Fatulson, who is charged with introducing liquor on the reservation and obtaining liquor from saloonkeepers for an Indian. He does not deny the charge, but complains that the Indian who testified against him did him an injustice by swearing that he got two bottles of booze for him when, as a matter of fact, he asserts, he furnished six bottles to the Indian. He wants the whole truth told.

Baseball enthusiasm is booming in Walker these days and the kids now propose to show their seniors a thing or two about the game. They have organized under the name of "Kin hele's Juniors" and have been putting in some good practice work. As indicated by the name Mayor Kinkele is the patron of the club and his lively interest in the boys is shown by the fact that he has rigged them out in handsome uniforms at a cost of $50 and is encouraging them to get into the game in good earnest and show some of the neighboring towns that Walker has a winning team. The team is made up as follows: R. La Vinge, c; W. Yates, p; F. Hollenbeck, ss; J. Schneider 1b; R. Croff, 2b; C. Palmer, 3b; G. Hardy, rf; W. Spencer, cf; F. Kinkele, lf. W. Sutton and T. Kinkele, subs.

F. C. Berry, who is a frequent visitor in Walker, was handsomely entertained by the Masons of Wadena a few evenings ago, prior to his departure from that town to make his home in Duluth. A reception was held in the Masonic lodge rooms and there was a large attendance not only from Wadena, but from other points as well.

B. F. Hartshorn has been spending a few days in Walker and reports things booming at his town, Philbrook. A number of new business places have been opened and building operations are active. Mr. Hartshorn says there has been quite a demand for town lots. He will spend most of his time during the summer at Philbrook.

Charles Kinkele, chief of the Walker fire department, left Tuesday for Brainerd to attend the annual meeting of the State Firemen's association. On the same train were Chief Leeman and Rev. J. T. B. Smith, secretary, of the Cass Lake fire brigade.

The family of the Indian who was killed by an engine while walking on the Great Northern track near Cass Lake last April, are talking of instituting proceedings against the company for damages.

Mrs. Hollenbeck and daughter have returned from a visit to Duluth, where Mrs. Hollenbeck was called a few days ago by the serious illness of a married daughter. It is gratifying to learn that the invalid is on the road to recovery.

Miss Mae Griffith is confined to the house by an attack of measles.

Mrs. A. Simmons left Monday for Princeton, Ontario.

About twelve hundred acres were disposed of at the auction sale of state grant lands conducted by George A. Flinn, of St. Paul, in Walker last Friday. They did not come up to Mr. Flinn's expectations and he takes a pessimistic view of the land outlook in this part of the state, as he says results at other points were no better.

An aggregation of baseball players came down from Ely last Sunday on the excursion and gave the Tunish Tumperance society. They came to play base ball with a picked-up nine of this place, but to all appearances when they got on the diamond, Ely players they were there for. The Towerites had no practice, and the Ely boys were an organized team, but notwithstanding the fact, our boys secured 13 runs while the visitors rattled themselves with 8. This is the first game played here this season.

"Stub" Schubmehl, formerly employed at C. H. Oppel & Son's store here, was in town last week. He is a member of the Lake Vermilion Outing club and was one of the party who spent last week on Gold island.

Rev. Refsdal was made the victim of a very pleasant surprise last Wednesday afternoon. While the reverend gentleman and his wife were attending the exercises incidental to the laying of the corner stone of the new M. E. church, unbeknown to them, a large number of the members of the Brandsvald congregation assembled at their home, and after taking possession of the premises proceeded to spread the table with a choice collection of eatables, and when Mr. and Mrs. Refsdal appeared on the scene they were somewhat taken aback to find their domicile inhabited by a crowd of smiling friends. When all were seated at the table Rev. Refsdal lifted his plate and snugly tucked thereunder was an envelope, which on being opened was found to contain $21.35, a gift to the worthy pastor from his flock. The dominie was greatly surprised, but finally managed to thank those present for their generosity. At the conclusion of the dinner devotional services were held.

Virginia.

Virginia, June 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Fourth of July celebration in this city this year promises to eclipse all previous events in that line ever attempted, and those who have attended former ones declare Virginia people royal entertainers and a class who put up an interesting day for all. The committee this year is composed of Mayor Eaton, City Clerk Bickford, Aldermen Cohen and Holmer, Ed Finch, Dick Bailey, H. J. Siegl and Capt. Roskilly. A committee meeting was held at the council chambers last Saturday and the various committees given their share of the work to do. The sports committee is practically the same as the arrangement. Judge John M. Martin, a prominent attorney here, and who is well known at Duluth and the range towns, will deliver the oration and the committee is very fortunate in securing his services. O. Harold Griggs, who has just returned from his law studies at the State university, and who is their high school graduate here, has consented to read the independence declaration, while at the morning exercises at the grand stand, Rev. E. McCatheart, of the M. E. church, will offer prayer. The Virginia City band has been engaged for the day and this band can certainly make music. Early in the morning, at sunrise, the Franklin hill battery will salute the new day with 127 guns, this being the 127th anniversary of our independence. Other arrangements are being made in regard to new and novel races, which will be given later. The fire department will give their annual ball at the Opera house after the costly display of fireworks has been touched off. Those who celebrate the 1903 Fourth of July here will know that there was such a day on the calendar.

The Eveleth baseball team landed on a picked nine of our city Sunday and defeated the home boys by a score of 5 to 2. A return game will be played at Eveleth Sunday, tomorrow. "Buster" Dolan is twirling for Eveleth this year and is throwing better ball than for years.

At the meeting of the city council Tuesday evening, the matter of vacating certain portions of streets, alleys and public grounds, and granting the petition in the matter to the Virginia Improvement company, the same was taken up and favorably passed upon. The lands in question lay across Silver lake and are those to be used by the Duluth, Virginia & Rainy Lake road, and the new Plummer & Ash sawmill for shops and piling grounds. These grounds are of no benefit to the city, as they have no salable vale and are low and swampy. It was deemed by the councilmen to be better to encourage a large institution like that which now graces the western border of Silver lake than to have weeds and grass growing up. The benefit of the new mill has already been evidenced in the industrial circles here.

Mrs. Richard Baker died of consumption Sunday morning at the Baker home on Spruce street, the funeral being held Tuesday. Her health had been failing very rapidly the past two years and it was for the warding off of the final termination that she spent a portion of the winter at Phoenix, Ariz., but the change did not help her so she returned home. Besides her husband, deceased leaves two children. Despite the inclement weather the funeral was very largely attended.

Frank Nirchan, who has been so closely identified with the Virginia City band as trombone soloist, left here Thursday for Minneapolis, to join the famous Cosgrove's orchestra, which soon enters upon its annual tour. The orchestra appears at the Opera house here, July 1.

Judge Prince was over from Eveleth Tuesday.

James and P. Dowling were in the city Thursday.

A lacrosse team has been organized here and regular practice meetings are being held daily; some very clever players are members of the team. They are anxious to get a game with the Duluth team for the Fourth of July.

Col. Robert J. Bates was up from the Soo the early part of the week looking after the business affairs of his late brother, Dr. Stuart Bates. He went to Duluth Monday to be on hand at the hearing in the probate court, but Judge Middlecoff was out of the city and adjournment was taken until the 25th.

H. S. Clark and family spent the week at Duluth.

E. F. Sweeney and son, Ed, were up from Duluth, Tuesday.

O. Harold Griggs, the law student at the State university, has returned for the summer vacation.

A son has been born to Mr. and Mrs. A. R. Coates, on Walnut street.

The owners of lands in 5, 58-15, near the Stephens mine, and located in the immediate vicinity of the ore find recently sold to the Pitt company, have incorporated into a townsite company and will soon offer lots for sale. Just what the name of the new mining location is to be is not known as yet. Surveyors will soon be on the ground to lay out the lots. There are a half a dozen good iron properties within a radius of the proposed village, and there is nothing to stop the building up of a flourishing town there. The company headquarters will be in this city.

Fire entirely destroyed the Ollila restaurant at 4 o'clock yesterday morning. The origin is supposed to have been from an overheated chimney.

Street Commissioner Gannon and crew have been busy most of the week in burning up the animals and refuse matter at the city dumping ground.

A telephone has been installed in the home of City Clerk Bickford.

The local Woodsmen will enjoy a "smoker" and debate at their camp hall on Wednesday evening, June 24. The topic for discussion will be, "Resolved, it is better to marry before the age of 30." Three of the married members will take the armative and three single members will support the negative side of the weighty question, and some very interesting moments are in store for those who attend the meeting.

Mrs. S. A. Hendricks, of Chicago, is visiting at the home of her son, City Clerk Bickford, on Maple street. Mrs. Hendricks will join her husband at Leavenworth, Kas., after a two weeks' stay here.

Frank Archambault, the delivery man for Joseph Karl, suffered very painful injuries at the Karl stable yesterday morning at about 7 o'clock. He was hitching up for the forenoon meat delivery and in reaching down behind the horse for a strap, the animal kicked him in the right side, breaking his rib bone. His fellow workmen soon reached him, finding him hardly able to stand up, but assisted by Alfred Staff and Otto Koepp, he was taken to the Central hospital for a dressing. He is now resting fairly well at the Central hotel, where he boards.

LIGHT OPERA AT DULUTH HOUSES

"The Mikado" and "The Bohemian Girl" at the Lyceum, and "La Mascotte" and "The Chimes of Normandy" at the Metropolitan Next Week.

Widely diversified in character will be the operas to be presented by the Northwestern Opera company at the Lyceum theater next week—"Mikado" and "The Bohemian Girl." The "Mikado" will be presented the first three days with bargain matinee.

Two surprises are in store for the theater-goers. One is the professional debut of Miss Rena Smith, Duluth's clever singer, who takes the part of Peep Bo in "Mikado," and the appearance of Harriet Packard, who will be the gypsy queen with the "Bohemian Girl."

The "Mikado" will be offered in a great deal of splendor, with costumes and scenery new and elaborate, and the sentimental, tuneful "Bohemian Girl" is to have a rendition that will show the long and hard work put on it. Manager Walle believes the operas next week will leave a better impression than the opening piece, "The Black Hussar."

The "Mikado" is always a delight to see, and especially when well sung and acted, as it will be in this case. Really good productions of this entertaining and billowy opera are few and far between, and the rising generation seldom has a chance to see it as it should be, and the older folks will be brought back to the days when the Gilbert & Sullivan opera was receiving closest attention.

The Northwestern Opera company will present it with the following cast:

Mikado of Japan.....Dan Young
Nanki-Poo, his son, in love with
Yum Yum.....George Lyding
Ko-Ko, lord high executioner of Titipo ....Stanley Felch
Poo Bah, lord high everything else,
....Sylvain Langlois
Pish Tush, a noble lord.....Carl Kent
Nee Ban, umbrella carrier to the mikado ....Phil Watson
Yum Yum, Pitti Sing, Peep Bo, sisters, wards of Ko-Ko.....
Eleanor Jenkins, Bertha Hayden,
Rena Smith.
Katisha, an elderly lady in love with Nanki-Poo...Sylvester Cornish
Mr. Felch as Ko-Ko and Sylvain Langlois as Poo Bah are certain to make big hits, and Dan Young as the mikado and George Lyding, the handsome tenor, in the guise of Nanki Poo, will be prominent funmakers. Miss Cornish and the three little maids, of whom Miss Smith, the Duluth girl, will be especially admired, indicate the style of the production. The costumes are new and fresh and the scenery will be the proper variety and quality.

Beginning Thursday night the company will move into a contrast when it starts the four performances of "The Bohemian Girl," one of the tenderest and most sentimental of the standard operas commonly produced, with a fine chance for the display of the voices of the company. New members of the company will be introduced in this production, and the cast will be as follows:

Count Arnheim, governor of Presberg .....Sylvain Langlois
Thaddeus, a proscribed Pole.....
.....George Lyding
Florestein, a nephew of the count..
....Dan Young
Devilshoof, chief of the gypsies...
....Stanley Felch
Captain of the guard....Harry Keough
Arline, daughter of the count.....
.....Eleanor Jenkins
Buda, her attendant.....Marie Connell
Queen of the gypsies...Harriet Packard

The production of "The Bohemian Girl" will be another pretentious effort of the management of the Northwestern Opera company, and Musical Director Hoffman and Stage Director Drew are all wrapped up in the work. The singing numbers are as beautiful as in any of the operatic compositions, and the voices of the company will show up in fine style.

The story of the play opens with the peasantry of Arnheim making preparations for the chase when Thaddeus, a Polish exile, arrives in search of a safe concealment. He encounters gypsies headed by Devilshoof, who gives him a disguise and puts the pursuing troops off the track. Shouts of distress are heard, and Florestine appears, surrounded by huntsmen. The count's child and her attendant have been attacked by an infuriated stag. Thaddeus seizes a rifle and kills the animal. The count overwhelms Thaddeus with thanks. They seat themselves at a table and the count proposes a toast to the emperor, but Thaddeus dashes his wine to the ground. The guests threaten his life, but Devilshoof takes his part, and they escape, taking the count's infant girl.

Twelve years elapse before the gypsies are seen in camp in the second act near Presberg. In the tent of their queen dwells Arline, the count's daughter. Florestine, of the count's retinue, is met and relieved of valuables by Devilshoof and men, and in the booty is a medallion. Thaddeus, who joins the band, becomes enamored of Arline and tells her of his saving her, and she returns his affection, but he conceals the secret of her birth from her. A fair is in progress in the city. Florestein appears and falls in love with Arline. On looking at her he sees his medallion and claims it, charging her with having stolen it, and she is arrested and brought before Count Arnheim, who perceives the marks of the injuries made by the deer when she was a child, and though Florestein presses his charges, recognizes his child.

In the third act Arline is restored to her rank and home, and her love for Thaddeus continues. The count, upon hearing of the story of their love and Thaddeus' bravery, bestows her upon him. The queen of the gypsies attempts to separate them, and at last tries to kill Thaddeus, but Devilshoof's prompt action turns her bullet into her own heart, and the young couple is made happy.

The chorus, costuming and all details of the performance will be as near perfect as it is possible to have, and a performance of a great deal of merit may be looked for.

THE WILBUR COMPANY.

Third Week of Engagement at the Metropolitan.

Comic opera is a form of amusement that never palls on the taste of the theater-going public, and for this reason the Wilbur Opera company has always been welcome. It is one of the oldest organizations in the country playing light opera, and has carefully maintained its standard of excellence.

CHARLES VAN DYNE.
Comedian With Wilbur Opera Company.

The company has always been a favorite with Duluth theater-goers, who have witnessed its productions for many years past, and during the past two weeks good houses have been the rule at the Metropolitan. Manager W. H. Fullwood has been connected with the Wilburs in all their successes, and it is his aim to secure the best singers possible, and a chorus of pretty girls with good voices.

Of the twenty or more in the company's extensive repertoire, thus far four have been sung, "Said Pasha," "The Bohemian Girl," "Fra Diavolo" and "The Two Vagabonds," the last of which will finish the week tonight—and all have been well received.

The third week of the ten-weeks' engagement will be opened Monday night with Andrau's funny "Mascotte," an opera at all times a favorite with the lovers of the comic. The music is catchy and pleasing and some of the situations are extremely ludicrous. Miss Hattie Richardson, the prima donna, is said to be particularly good in the character of Bettina; Gus Vaughan will appear as Pippo, Miss Ethel Hunt as Freddie, Miss Marion Langdon as The Princess, Charles Van Dyne as Prince Lorenzo, W. A. McGraw as Rocco, William Flavalle as The Doctor, and Charles Vaughan as Matteo.

"Mascotte" will be sung during the first three days of the week and at the Wednesday matinee, and the bill for the last half of the week and the Saturday matinee will be Planquette's "Chimes of Normandy." This opera has been sung for many years and is always pleasing to both old and young. Henry C. Peakes, basso, is the original Gaspard in America, as no other actor has ever been able to do. Miss Richardson sings Serpolette, Gus Vaughan appears as the Marquis, Martin Pache as the Fisherman, Miss Langdon as Germaine, and Mr. Van Dyne as the Notary. The opera affords excellent opportunity for clever acting and good vocal work, and its bold effects and original harmonies are always thoroughly appreciated.

The vaudeville features will undergo complete changes the coming week. Miss Ethel Hunt, leader of the Amazon march, has made a hit and has been applauded enthusiastically.

The three little Gardner children continue to win their way into the hearts of the patrons of the theater—the hearts of men, women and children. They are a decidedly clever trio, and their acts show careful study and long training. Katherine Goodrich and Relck and Lamar also present clever specialties.

Among the operas to be produced in the near future by the Wilbur company will be "The Fencing Master," an elaborate production, which is now being arranged by Manager Fullwood. It is one of the most successful of De Koven's operas and has met with success wherever it has been presented.

A GOOD COMPANY.

Moon Bros.' big stock company, which has been presenting a series of very pleasing performances at the pavilion theater, corner of Fourth avenue west and First street, will remain next week and on Monday evening will offer the four-act comedy drama, "A Vagabond's Honor." The specialties that are put on between the acts are up-to-date, the plays are rendered in a competent manned and all in all, the company is well worthy of the large patronage it is receiving.

GOSSIP OF THE RIALTO.

Eben Plympton Leaves the All-Star Cast.

New York, June 13.—James O'Neill's sudden determination to play Mercutio in the all-star cast of "Romeo and Juliet" may settle that actor's fate for next season. He has been very fond of Shakesperean roles, and has long wanted to appear in a revival, but until this time no proper opportunity presented itself. Years ago O'Neil played Mercutio to the Juliet of Adelaide Neilson, and he has often expressed the desire to take up that part again. When, at the close of the New York engagement on last Saturday night, Miss Eleanor Robson broke down to such a degree that her physician ordered a complete rest for several days, word was at once given to all the other members of the company that the tour would be suspended, but not for more than three or four days. The only member of the cast to take exception to this was Eben Plympton, who promptly hied himself to Silver Lake, in Massachusetts, and sent word to Liebler & Co. that he did not approve of their conduct. He added that when they had anything further to say to him they would find him at his summer resort, but no further communication will take place between him and that firm. George C. Tyler said yesterday: "Plympton's action amounts to sheer ingratitude. For four years he has been drawing a fat salary from us, and we have put up with a good deal of his nonsense simply for the sake of peace. He had a fat part in 'In the Palace of the King,' and after the long engagement in this city it was booked for five weeks of one-night stands. Plympton at once declared that he would not go on the road under such conditions, and withdrew from the cast. Last spring he was with Miss Viola Allen in 'The Hunchback,' and the day after the season ended at the Garrick, Miss Allen wanted some scene pictures taken, and asked Plympton to come to the theater and pose. He would not, saying: 'My contract closed last evening, and I will not appear again.'" When Plympton's present refusal was received O'Neill was in Manager Tyler's office, and, in expressing his sympathy, referred again to the old days when he played Mercutio himself. Tyler proposed that O'Neill should take the part now, but he declared that he didn't remember the lines in the first place, and that anyhow, he meant to sail for Europe next week. Tyler coaxed, and finally O'Neill called up by telephone and said he would be ready to go to Providence with the company without fail.

As a result of this, one of the objects of Tyler's visit to London next week will be to secure, if possible, a woman whom he can star with O'Neill in a Shakesperean revival in the fall. There is no play available for the veteran actor, and he is more than axious to try his hand at Shakespeare if the proper arrangements can be made. Tyler will spend but five weeks on the other side, being forced to return here by Aug. 1, when rehearsals for his seven new productions will begin. One week of his time abroad will be spent in Florence, in discussing the possibilities of another American tour with Signora Duse. The rest of the time will be given to London and Paris, where final arrangements are to be made with Vesta Tilly and Rejane.

No young actor of recent years is making more remarkable strides in his profession than has Harry Woodruff. It seems only a couple of years ago that he was playing small parts in society plays of the old Madison Square type, and these were followed by a temporary retirement from the stage, which was spent at Yale under the patronage, it was understood, of the Gould family. On his return to the footlights, he tried his hand at several things, vaudeville included, and finally scored the biggest hit in supporting Mrs. Fiske in "Mary of Magdala." Now he is to be seen in the title role of "Ben-Hur," when that comes back to town next season for a long run.

Friends of Mrs. Edna Wallace Hopper are enjoying some quiet fun at that young lady's expense, for her visiting cards are now addressed "The Rectory, Forty-seventh street, West." Early this season, it seems, Mrs. Hooper made a fruitless search among the available apartment houses for summer quarters. She met with no success, finding to her dismay that all the fashionable houses were locked and barred against actresses. Finally, she heard that the rector of a very fashionable Episcopal church was anxious to lease the rectory, which adjoins the church building, as he preferred to live further up town. The house, upon inspection, proved to be such an ideal dwelling place that Mrs. Hopper took a three years' lease of it, and promptly added the dignified address to her card.

Fay Templeton is, I understand to appear on Broadway much sooner than she expected. Her contract with the Weber & Fields management being near an end, she will soon pass under the control of the Shuberts, who are to supply her with a new musical comedy, the book of which is to be written by Clyde Fitch. This will not, however, be available until October, and her new managers approached her with a proposition to take the leading part in "The Runaways," which is now playing at the Casino. Miss Templeton, who is not fond of inactivity, listened willingly, and will appear as soon as the part can be made ready for her. Ray Hubbell and Fred Rankin, who are responsible for the play, joined Miss Templeton in Buffalo on Monday and are daily rehearsing her. She will have the role now played by Dorothy Dow. John D. Gilbert, who is well known in the West, will shortly replace All Fields in the cast.

Grant Allen's novel, "The African Millionaire," has just been successfully produced in dramatized form at Manchester, Eng., with H. Reeves Smith in the leading role. The part requires Mr. Smith to assume no less than five disguises in the course of the play. The play is called "Col. Clay," and owing to the success of the Manchester Production it is to be seen in London before the end of the present season.

John W. Ransome, who plays the part of the Cincinnati brewer in "The Prince of Pilsen," at the Broadway theater, has given up violent exercise. He has declined to catch for the Prince of Pilsen baseball team in its match against the Sultan of Sulu team. "I'll tell you why I am through with athletics," Mr. Ransome remarked last night. "Soon after 'The Prince of Pilsen' settled down for a run at the Broadway theater, I became interested in those advertisements in the back of the 10-cent magazines showing young men with long hair and folded arms gazing defiantly out from the pages, incidently remarking that Professor Slamson's physical culture system brought them to their present state of perfection. I figured out that I was about 7 ounces overweight, and I looked up Professor Slamson. Yes, one course, $5, would fix me all right. At the end of that time the professor said Apollo would look like a selling plater alongside of me. Of course, I fell. For three weeks I nearly broke my back putting up dumb-bells. Professor said that at the end of a month the 25-pound dumb-bell would be child's play for me. I asked the druggist on the ground floor for his opinion. He allowed that physical culture was great, but that I ought to take a couple of bottles of old Dr. Ballard's Blood Bitters along with it. I did. The day when the test with the 25-pound dumb-bell was to be made came around I had steeled myself to the task, and at the first attempt got the iron monster about two inches from the floor. Another effort and it went up a foot and a half. A final strain, and slowly but surely up it went. The blood rushed to my head, the room swam around. Now the massive iron weight was opposite my ear, now higher, higher yet, and then poised above my head. Crash! Down came the weight, carrying me with it. The floor shook. The professor rushed to my side. I was still breathing. A little water—on the side—and I was able to make myself understood. While I was explaining to the professor that I ought to be able to do the trick without a neck fall next time, in rushed an infuriated druggist. 'So you've done it!' he exclaimed. 'I—what?' I feebly protested. 'What!' he replied. 'Oh, nothing, except that you and your dumb d—n bells or d—n dumb-bells have broken every glass in my store, and you'll have to pay for it!' The bill was $137. The next day I permanently retired from active athletics, and have since devoted my entire time to "The Prince of Pilsen."

The "Kitchen Cabinet" of the Kirke La Shelle forces, comprising the executive staff of the various business interests of this popular manager, held an important session a few days ago during the absence of the gentleman from his office, he having gone to his country home at Bellport for a vacation of a week or so. When Mr. La Shelle arrived at his office yesterday morning he found that the desk at which he had sat for many moons had disappeared; in its stead was an elegant quartered oak cabinet desk, with heavy brass ornaments and all the latest improvements. In front of it stood the latest style of revolving chair, upholstered in leather and surmounted by a very unique head rest. On the desk was a card bearing the compliments of the staff.

A realistic and startling bit of stage business decidedly "not down on the bills," was recently introduced in "The Wizard of Oz" by Arthur Hill, the young English pantomimist who impersonates the comic lion in the extravaganza. Mr. Hill was standing in the first entrance chatting with his wife, who held in her arms their eight-months-old daughter, an infant blessed with the euphonious name of Hilda Helena Hill. Just as the lion received the cue for the entrance Hill snatched the baby from his wife's arms and bounded upon the stage. He carried it down to the center of the stage and danced it up and down in full view of the audience. The baby was not in the least disconcerted by the glare of the footlights or the myriad of faces gazing in open-mouthed astonishment at her. Little Hilda crowed and chuckled as if she enjoyed her stage debut immenself. It did not take the audience long to realize that a new and impromptu scene was being enacted and that a real live flesh-and-blood baby, and not a "property" article, was sporting with the pseudo king of beasts. Somebody in the gallery took the initiative for a hearty reception for the little actress and the house re-echoed with applause. When the regular business of the scene was begun Hill bounded back to the entrance, where mater familias was waiting to resume charge of her offspring. Mrs. Hill was almost on the verge of nervous prostration, but her daughter was still enjoying the situation when she snuggled up against her mother's breast.

PREVALENCE OF CATARRH.

Growing Use of Hyomei Will Soon Show a Decrease of This Disease.

Statistics show that at least 97 out of every 100 persons in this state are suffering from catarrh in some form. While the disease is one of the most common with which the medical profession has to contend, it also is one of the most dangerous. This is owing to its tendency to affect the bronchial tubes, causing consumption and other diseases of the respiratory organs.

Prior to the discovery of Hyomei, every method of treatment for the cure of catarrh had been found worthless. This can be clearly proven by the weekly statements published in every large city by the Board of Health, showing a great increase in the death rate from diseases of the respiratory organs, and the startling growth in the number of persons afflicted with such troubles.

The discovery of Hyomei and its increased use has already reduced the percentage of persons suffering from catarrh. This wonderful remedy is the simplest and most pleasant of all treatments. Just put a little Hyomei in the pocket inhaler that comes with every outfit, breathe through the inhaler for ten minutes four times a day. Relief will be seen from the first treatment; cure will soon follow. It is the true treatment for diseases of the respiratory organs.

Scientific and medical men recommend it. Leading druggists have so much faith in it that they guarantee a cure or they will refund the money. In this city S. F. Boyce is selling it upon that plan, so that any of our readers can use Hyomei without its costing them a cent unless it cures. Can there be a fairer way?

KARAGEORGEVITCH IS ELECTED KING

Unanimously Chosen to Rule Over Servians.

Partisans of King Peter and of Milan Fight.

Belgrade, Servia, June 15.—Prince Karageorgevitch, at 12:15 p. m., was unanimously elected king of Servia by the senate and skupshtina in joint session.

The senate and skupshtina assembled today and then proceeded to church. Upon reassembling in joint session they passed a resolution of general amnesty and then proceeded to the election of a king of Servia. Complete tranquility prevails.

The presiding officer of the joint session of the Servian parliament proposed the election of Prince Peter as king. Loud cheers greeted the proposal which was unanimous. The minister of justice hastened to the balcony and announced the fact to the waiting crowd. The people received the notification with salvos of cheers, and a royal salute of a hundred and one guns was fired.

Lieutenant Lazar Jovanovics, of the Sixth infantry, shot and killed himself yesterday evening because his fellow officers did not permit him to participate in carrying out the plot against the late king and queen. The provisional government has refused the necessary permission to several Belgrade families who wanted to emigrate, saying that until normal conditions are restored such permits will not be granted.

Geneva, June 15.—Prince Peter Karageorgevitch has telegraphed his acceptance of the Servian throne. Prince Peter also telegraphed to the emperors of Russia and Austria and to the king of Italy, announcing his election and adding that he hoped to work for the good of Servia.

Geneva, Switzerland, June 14.—King Peter received at 2 o'clock this afternoon a telegram from Belgrade announcing that a sharp fight had taken place in the streets between the partisans of the new king and those of Milan, the legitimitized son of the former king, Milan, father of the murdered King Alexander. Young Milan had recently been living in Constantinople. His partisans posted a proclamation on the walls of Belgrade, and it was torn down by King Peter's supporters after a free fight.

Prince Peter Karageorgevitch and his cousin, M. Nevadovics, remained in close consultation until 4 o'clock this morning. Late last night Prince Peter Karageorgevitch telegraphed to a friend at Vienna, asking him if it would be wiser to traverse Vienna secretly, or to announce his arrival.

Paris, June 15.—It is said in official quarters that official action between the powers regarding their attitude towards Servia have now eventuated in an agreement that the ministers of the various powers shall remain at Belgrade in order to look after the current interests of their governments each minister receiving practically identical instructions to recognize the decisionsion of the Servian parliament, if the latter has full liberty of action during the choice of king.

The agreement to retain the ministers at Belgrade appears to have met with strong objection on the part of some of the powers.

The British government first made known its desire to withdraw the British minister from Belgrade, but later concurred with the other powers. The ministers, however, will not be considred to have relations with the present Servian regime until the parliament at Belgrade freely expresses its will.

The French foreign office considers that the skupshtina's selection of Prince Peter Karageorgevitch as king was practically certain, so the agreement of the powers to accept the decision of the skupshtina appears to assure in advance the powers' recognition of King Peter. The officials say the agreement did not include any conditions relating to the punishment of the parties responsible for the assassinations.

London, June 15.—Premier Balfour announced in the house of commons today that the future diplomatic relations between Great Britain and Servia were under consideration. The subject was brought up by a question of Gibson Bowles, Conservative, who inquired if the government proposed to continue diplomatic relations with those concerned in the assassination of the king and queen of Servia, who had now assumed the government of Servia: what attitude the government intended to assume in consequence of recent events, and whether any communications were passing between the powers with a view to concerted action.

Mr. Balfour replied that he could only say at present that the matter was under consideration. So far as diplomatic relations were concerned, these came to an end with the death of King Alexander, because the British representative was only accredited to the late king. The premier added that his answer would probably be considered inadequate, and intimated that if Mr. Bowles placed his question on paper, in the regular way, he might be able to give additional information tomorrow.

The Servian minister in London this afternoon received official notification of the election of King Peter. The telegram was signed by M. Kallevics, foreign minister in the provisional cabinet, and said:

The telegram instructed the minister to announce the fact to the British foreign office. The British foreign office received the first news of the election of King Peter from the Associated Press. The officials said that before taking definite action, they would await King Peter's assumption of the throne and the constitution of the new cabinet. It was frankly added that if the new king's cabinet included those who were in the assassinations, it would be impossible for Great Britain to continue diplomatic relations with it. The question of King Peter's enforcement of the punishment of the murders was left in abeyance.

THE PEOPLE TO CONGRESS: "HADN'T YOU BETTER GIVE THIS BOY A FLAG ALSO?"

A FIERCE CLOUDBURST WIPES OUT TOWN OF HEPPNER, ORE.

Hundreds of Lives Lost In the Great Flood.

Only Meager Reports of Disaster Obtained.

Spokane, Wash., June 15.—Special news by telegraphic and telephonic advices from Arlington, Ore., state that the town of Heppner, Ore., was destroyed by a great flood of water that rushed down Willow creek between 6 o'clock and 7 o'clock last evening.

Reports from Ione state that from 350 to 500 people are believed to have been drowned. At 5 o'clock this morning it was reported that 105 bodies had been found.

Wires are down and only meager reports of the disaster have been obtained, which are brought out by messengers.

Heppner is a town of about 1250 inhabitants, the seat of Morrow county, Ore., at the terminus of a branch of the Oregon Railway & Navigation company. Farming and stock raising are the chief industries.

Willow creek, which is given as the cause of the disaster, is ordinarily a small stream, and early reports indicate the flood was caused by either one or two cloudbursts.

Portland, Ore., June 15.—Heppner is situated in a gulch, and a cloudburst would cover a part of the town.

The general offices of the Oregon Railway & Navigation company received a dispatch this morning that the company's depot at Heppner was washed away by a cloudburst last night and that many people of the town were drowned.

It is generally believed here that the reports of loss of life are exaggerated, as the entire population of the town is only 1200. The messenger from Ione says that among the drowned are Dr. McSwards and the family of C. A. Roy.

It is also reported that the village of Lexington has been swept away. The Oregon Railway & Navigation company has sent a relief train from the Dalles.

ARMOURDALE IS THE WORST WRECKED CITY EVER SEEN

Condition of Unfortunate Suburb of Kansas City Is Much Worse Than That Following the Floods at Johnstown and Galveston.

Kansas City, June 15.—Edward T. Devine, general secretary of the Charity Organization society, of New York, left today for Denver, after having made a critical inspection of the flooded district around Kansas City. He described the conditions at Armouldale, the Kansas City, Kan., suburb, as worse than those following the floods at Johnstown and Galveston. He said:

"Armourdale is the worst wrecked city I have ever seen. The newspapers could not exaggerate the conditions there. In fact, it cannot be described so a person who has not seen the ruin can realize the awful devastation by the waters. I had read about the flood and thought, of course, that the condition of Armourdale was serious, but I was not prepared for what I saw.

"I was at the Johnstown flood and I also made a study of the terrible disaster that visited the city of Galveston, but the condition of Armourdale is much more serious than at either of those cities. East St. Louis is suffering and 10,000 people are homeless, but the loss there will not begin to compare with that in Armourdale. Mr. Devine has wired Mayor Low at New York that immediate aid in the largest quantities possible will be required to alleviate the distress of the sufferers now quartered in Kansas City, Kan.

ANGRY MOB SEEKS TO LYNCH MURDERER WHO IS SURROUNDED

Sheriff's Posse Is Also After Him and Will Try to Prevent the Citizens' Mob From Taking Matters Into Their Own Hands.

Chicago, June 15.—A dispatch to the Tribune from Pittsfield, Ill., says: As the result of a double killing committed here yesterday, Fred Mink, 21 years old, is besieged in a deserted house on the edge of the town, while a mob and a sheriff's posse are seeking to effect his capture. The members of the mob declare that they will lynch him, and the sheriff and his deputies are trying to make him prisoner and take him to jail. Mink shot and killed Newton Harris, a farmer, living near town, and then killed his stepmother, Roge over the refusal of Harris to allow him to pay attentions to his daughter is thought to have inspired one killing, but the death of Mrs. Mink is not explained. Mink, who is 21 years old, recently returned from Washington. Before leaving home for the West, he paid attentions to Beulah, the daughter of Mr. Harris, and his suit had been discouraged by the father. Since his return Mink has declared that he intended to even up scores.

Mr. Harris was in his pasture lot yesterday when Mink crept up behind him. He was armed with a rifle, and from the shelter of a fence he fired on the unsuspecting man, who fell. Mink then ran to the prostrate man and shot him four times in the back and side as he lay on the ground.

Alarmed by the firing, Mrs. Harris ran from the house, a short distance away, and started toward her husband. Mink drew a revolver as she approached and fired one shot, missing her. Then he ran from the field and disappeared in the woods nearby. A search was instituted for Mink, and a number of people went to his home. Forcing an entrance, they discovered the body of Mrs. Mink lying on the floor. She had been shot a number of times and was dead when found.

The citizens organized a strong posse, fully armed, to search for Mink, and at length he was found hiding in a deserted house on the edge of the town. As the crowd approached he showed himself at a window and told his pursuers that he would kill the first man that approached the house. He showed his rifle and revolver and fired a shot at one man who tried to run around a corner of the house to get at him from behind.

The sheriff insists that he will make every effort to prevent a lynching.

CITIZENS OF JACKSON PASS A NIGHT OF EXTREME TERROR

After Burning of Ewen's Hotel, the Torch of the Incendiaries Was Feared By Many Others.

Jackson, Ky., June 15.—Interest in the trial of Curtis Jett and Thomas White for the murder of J. B. Marcum, attorney for the contestants for county offices, was secondary today to the preliminary hearing of the teamsters of Hargis Bros., arrested by the soldiers on the charge of burning the hotel yesterday morning of B. L. Ewen, the principal witness of the commonwealth against Jett and White. Although this place has become accustomed to assassinations and to incendiary fires, during the fued of the past three years, it never had such a night of terror as that of last night. Many spent a sleepless night of vigilance, not as members of any vigilance committee patrolling the streets but within their own doors as many are expecting the torch to be applied to their houses next. Fourteen residences and stores owned by those known as Cardwell-Cockrill sympathizers have burned in Jackson since 1900 and the number of lives lost greatly exceeds that number. One week ago today the trial of Jett and White began. Many witnesses fled and the commonwealth had to close its case because witnesses could not be secured. The fate of Ewen and of the witnesses who did not run away shows that the apprehensions of other witnesses were well grounded.

This feud-ridden town is today the same timid place as before the state militia arrived. When the troops were first sent here there was a feeling of relief, and the people said that some of the wrongs would be righted, because the intimidated citizens would not talk out. Since the burning yesterday of the large new hotel of B. J. Ewen, the principal witness against Jett and White, and the rally of the Hargis faction to the aid of the men suspected with having burned it, the hopeful citizens say the state can render no relief.

The Ewen family, including seven children in the military camp, presented a pitiable spectacle today. Ewen tried to console his heart-broken wife and daughters, but their distress was too great. The two daughters had escaped in their wrappers and the small children in their night clothes. Kind-hearted citizens, although feeling that in doing so they are risking their lives and property, have sent them clothing and bedding. They were breakfasted by the soldiers, Quartermaster Casey making them a special bill of fare. Scores of people gathered early to look at them.

Maj. Allen, in charge of the troops, ordered the crowds dispersed and the guard lines set back so that the distressed family might not be so annoyed. The jail last night was under a heavy guard and the prisoners suspected with burning Ewen's house were detained in the camp. They were kept in the camp guard house manacled so they would have no chance to escape. They were greatly frightened during the night, fearing a mob would come to release them and that the soldiers would shoot them. Crawford cried during the night and repeated, "what a fool, what a fool I am."

It is believed that these men will be released because the grand jurors are residents of Breathitt county and will fear consequences similar to that wreaked upon Ewen if they indict the men. The people of the town are completely intimidated and are awaiting the results at the court house with greater fear than ever.

Joe Crawford and Edward Tharp were brought before Judge Redwine this morning and testimony heard on the writ of habeas corpus sued out for their release by the Hargis people yesterday. Grany and Henry Lunsford identified Crawford as one of the men seen coming from the Ewen hotel just before the fire was discovered, and A. H. Short said he saw Crawford and Tharp crossing the bridge going in the direction of the hotel before the fire. Judge Redwine decided to hold them to the grand jury, which was reconvened this morning.

GREAT NORTHERN SURVEY.

North From Pelican Rapids to Canadian Border.

Fosston, Minn., June 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—There is considerable speculation being indulged in here at present as to the intentions of a crew of Great Northern surveyors, who are again at work in the town of Sletton, about ten miles southwest of Fosston. This same crew were at work south of McIntosh about a month ago, having made a survey from the White Earth reservation through McIntosh and several miles to the northwest of that place, when they left and went to Thief River Falls, going about ten miles east of there and doing considerable surveying, it being said that the men were at work on the surveying of the line which the Great Northern railway intended to build north from Pelican Rapids to the Canadian border. What are the intentions of the railway company regarding this line no one seems to know, and the surveyors are mute when questioned concerning the matter, but the fact that Mr. Taft, chief engineer of the Great Northern, arrived on the scene the latter part of last week and is at present out on the line, as surveyed, lends some color to the rumor that the company intends to build and that work on the line from Pelican Rapids north will be commenced this season.

MILITIA SENT TO PROTECT NEGROES

Cincinnati, June 15.—Sheriff Robertson of Maysville, Ky., arrived in Covington, Ky., today to take the three negroes, Mann, Norris and Sanders, back to that city to answer to charges of having robbed and shot with intent to kill, John B. Farrow, an aged and respected farmer of Maysville. The people of Maysville are highly enraged and lynching is feared. To prevent this two companies of Kentucky state militia have been ordered to Maysville. Sheriff Robertson refuses to state when he will start with the prisoners and military escort for Maysville. The feeling has been intensified by Farrow being in such a condition that he could no longer be held for the trial but had to be taken to Lexington asylum yesterday.

MINE WORKERS ARE IN CONVENTION

Scranton, Pa., June 15.—The United Mine Workers convention, called for the purpose of taking action on the refusal of operators to recognize District Presidents Fahey, Nichols and Dettrey as the miners representatives on the conciliation board, was called to order at 10:20 o'clock today. President Mitchell was unanimously chosen chairman and George Harrlein, of district 9, secretary. There were only 450 delegates present. Shortly after the convention met President Mitchell left the hall and had a conference with Louis Hammerling, who acted as emissary for Quay's representative during the last strike. Commissioner Charles Neil and R. A. Phillips, general superintendent of the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western railroad held a lengthy conference with William L. Connell, one of the operator representatives on the board on conciliation. Mr. Neil had previously been inconference with Mr. Mitchell. It is the general opinion that these conferences are being held for the purpose of bringing about an amicable adjustment of the present differences, but none of the gentlemen who conferred today would discuss the meetings.

ARMED MEN HUNTING FOR FIREBUG

New York, June 15.—Armed with shotguns and rifles, the farmers and summer residents of Mount Kisco and New Castle, N. Y., are looking for the incendiary who has set fire to more than a dozen houses and barns and poisoned almost every dog in two townships since the first of the year. It will go hard with the firebug if they catch him. The town board has offered a reward of $1000 for his capture and conviction. No one can positively identify the man, nor even describe him with any degree of accuracy, although he has been seen on several occasions leaving the house or barn which shortly afterward burst into flames. It is generally believed he is a lunatic. Many valuable dogs belonging to wealthy New York business men have fallen victims to the poisoner.

INSANE OVER A BASEBALL GAME

New York, June 15.—Thomas Donahue, a native of Harrison, N. J., has become insane through excitement over a baseball game. Donahue was an inveterate "fan." The other day he witnessed a game between Newark and Buffalo teams, which resulted in a score of one to nothing. He became greatly excited and his friends, who say he has been acting strangely ever since, finally had him taken into custody by the authorities.

NEW MEXICO TOWNS UNDER WATER

Albuquerque, N. M., June 15.—This section has just been visited by the heaviest rain of the year, accompanied by what almost amounts to a cloudburst in the Jenez mountains, onrth of this city. A sudden rise came in the Rio Grande, and Albuquerque is again in eminent danger of being submerged. Los Cerrilos, eight miles up the river is completely under water and the people have fled to the hills taking such household goods as they could load into wagons. Alameda, where the lake that protects Albuquerque is located, is also under water and the people have fled, abandoning their homes. A break forty feet wide is reported in the levee near the trucks of the Santa Fe railroad and directly above the city. It is reported here that the bridge at Gallsteo on the main line of the Santa Fe has been washed away. This will again cut Albuquerque off from communication with the east and will tie up the Santa Fe for several days.

WILL TAKE A TRIP

Northwestern Editors Will Visit the Cass Lake Country.

Are Entertained By Bemidji, Cass Lake and Walker.

The Northwestern Editorial association, which made Duluth and the copper country last year, is making preparations for its seventh annual outing, which will take the editors to Walker, Bemidji and Cass Lake.

At Walker there will be a steamboat ride on beautiful Leech lake, with stops at Sugar point and Bear island, which are interesting because of the battle with Pillager Chippewas fought there several years ago.

From Bemidji a stride trip into the lumber camps will be taken, and probably the editors will get a square meal, such as the lumber camp cooks know how to put up. A banquet and ball given by the people of Bemidji will be part of the program.

Cass lake will give the visitors a steamboat ride on Cass lake, visiting Star island, which contains an inland lake with good fishing in it. Another banquet and ball will here test the stomach and heels of the editors.

E. A. Nelson, of the Hillock News, is president of the association; W. M. James, of the Breckenridge Telegram, is treasurer, and A. G. Barnard, of the Cass Lake Valley, is secretary.

SHE CLAIMS HE CHEATED

Sophia Miller Alleges Martin Roske Tried to Defraud Her.

The suit in law brought by Sophia Miller against Martin Roske and others is on trial today before Judge Dibell, in district court. The plaintiff seeks to recover a judgment of $75 with interest alleged to be due on a promissory note of her husband, the defendants to Frederick Miller in February, 1900, and by him assigned to the plaintiff.

Plaintiff claims that the note was given for a loan of the principal amount and was secured by a mortgage deed on certain real estate owned by the defendants on St. Croix avenue.

The defendants claim that in February, 1900, Martin Roske paid the plaintiff $120 to be applied to the principal and interest, that the amount was indorsed on the back of the note and that there is now due but $30 with interest. Defendant Miller has offered this amount to the plaintiff in full payment of the note but that was refused to accept it.

Plaintiff claims that on the date mentioned the defendant Roske paid her but $30, that she could not write very well and trusted to him to indorse the amount on the note, but discovering until the next day that he wrote the indorsement $120 instead of $30.

Martin Roske, the defendant is employed as a clerk at the Northern Pacific freight depot and has been with the company and the old St. Paul & Duluth company since 1881.

The divorce action of Lucinda Wood against Joseph Wood was argued to Judge Dibell this morning. The defendant did not appear. The court reserved his decision.

FUNERAL OF GEN. McCOOK.

Dayton, O., June 15.—According to the wishes of the deceased, extreme simplicity marked the funeral services over the remains of the late Gen. Alex. McDowell McCook, at the residence of his daughter, Mrs. Charles A. Craighead, this morning. There were present only members of the family, close friends and members of the Loyal Legion. The remains were taken to Spring Grove cemetery, Cincinnati, for interment.

STEAMER CAPSIZED.

Christiansand, June 15.—The Belgian steamer Rubens, bound from Sunderland, England, for Pillau, East Prussia, capsized and sank June 10. The captain, mate and six men were drowned. Seven other members of the crew drifted in a small boat for twenty-two hours, during which time three of them died from exposure. The others were picked up.

It's a mistake to imagine that itching piles can't be cured; a mistake to suffer a day longer than you can help. Doan's Ointment brings instant relief and permanent cure. At any drug store, 50 cents.

SECRECY IS KEPT

Nothing Heard From Drill Work on Highland Range.

Drills Are Still at Work and People Still Hopeful.

Not a word has been heard from the range in a couple of weeks as to whether anything had happened there, and only rumor is authority for the story that they are still working.

Of course the aim that was in view when the drills were put at work was silence, and that is being beautifully maintained. At the same time there were a lot of people around when the drills started that stated that if anything was found silence would be immediately broken so badly that it would never fully realize how its undoing came about. There having been no such silence-shattering, these same people are now intimating that it is because nothing had been found up to date.

Those associated with the workings, however, wink mysteriously and put up a smiling front, evidently to give out the impression that they are still happy and are still hurrahing for the Highland range.

The opinion that nothing has yet been developed to warrant a stir seems to be the most generally adopted belief, however, and it has considerable show of reason. The Highland enthusiasts have been such enthusiastic enthusiasts that if a big body of ore had been struck it would not be consistent with their previous actions to keep still about it.

Still, while the drills must be pretty well down by this time, if they have been working regularly, the fact that they had found no continuous ore bodies does not prove that they will not strike them yet.

W. F. King, who is interested in Highland lands, this morning received word from Nels Lindquist, who is working on section 28, 55-14, to the effect that exceedingly favorable indications had been struck. Some of the ore that had been taken out, he said, had been assayed and showed up a very high percentage of iron, though he did not give the figures. Lindquist has eight men at work test-pitting.

The mystery that is being preserved can hardly be kept up much longer, for the drills will soon be at a point where they must strike something or stop.

HONOR THE FLAG

Flag Day Is Duly Celebrated at the City Hall.

Colors Are Unfurled to the Music of National Airs.

Though the United States is the youngest of the great nations our flag is older than any of the others.

On June 14, 1777, the continental congress passed its memorable resolutions "that the flag of the United States be thirteen stripes, alternate red and white; that the Union be thirteen white stars in a blue field, representing a new constellation."

The flag of England in its distinctive to 1801. The French tri-color was adopted form of the Union Jack dates back only in 1795; the German and Italian banners are no older than the existing regimes of those countries. The Spanish first established theirs in 1785.

In celebrating the anniversary of the oldest of national colors by the youngest of nations, many public-spirited citizens assembled at the city hall and in various fire halls at 9:30 this morning.

At the city hall Lanner's band struck up the inspiring music of national anthems as the colors were unfurled from the flag staff by Thomas Brian and Capt. J. W. Miller. Chief Troyer had the police force out almost to a man, the officers saluting the flag as it broke to the breeze.

The meeting then adjourned to the council chamber, where Mayor Hugo gave a brief historical address on the flag's meaning in a general way in war and in commercial and industrial progress, and in the cause of freedom and justice.

City Comptroller McCormick recited Joseph Rodman Drake's poem "Hang Out the Flag."

After this brief ceremony the meeting adjourned, the band playing patriotic music.

At the various fire halls the flag raising ceremonies were less formal than at the city hall, but fully as interesting. Judge White spoke at fire headquarters; Dr. J. M. O. Tufty, at No. 2; C. O. Baldwin, at No. 3; Clarence Miller, at No. 4; L. A. Barnes, at West Duluth, and John Norton at Lakeside.

The occasion was not as universally observed by the raising of flags as had been anticipated. Many of the leading business houses in the down-town district displayed nothing but a bare flag staff.

Many homes throughout the city displayed the national colors and the interest shown was sufficient to indicate a much more general and enthusiastic celebration of the flag's birthday next year.

GRADUATION EXERCISES

Are External, Says President James to Outgoing Class.

Chicago, June 15.—"I have known hundreds of college graduates and not more than five or six of this number ever regretted going to college," said President James of Northwestern university, in a farewell address to the graduating class yesterday afternoon. "We Americans are more and more inclined to poke fun at the college graduate at the serious way in which he takes his college course and his graduation. We have been advised to give these graduation exercises up. But I have no patience with those people. I have always felt that these college graduation exercises are external.

College men of the present day have been accused of not having the lofty aims of the college men of twenty-five years ago. It is time to say that they now view everything from a money standpoint. I wish to take exceptions to this. "The spirit of America is commercialism and the college shares in the spirit, but I believe we are gradually slipping from the commercial idea."

PLUMBERS STRIKE.

Over a Hundred St. Paul Men Go Out.

St. Paul, June 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—Because the boss plumbers refused to grant the ultimatum presented by the men Saturday, asking for an increase from $4 to $4.50 for an eight-hour day, 120 members of the craft quit work this morning.

The boss plumbers are holding a meeting to consider the situation.

HAD STRIKE ENOUGH.

Chicago, June 15.—The Laundry Workers' union, by a referendum vote just taken, has decided against another strike. Less than one-third of the members voted and the majority against another walkout was small.

KURDS TAKING UP ARMS.

Cologne, Rhenish Prussia, June 15.—The Kurds are taking up arms in Kurdistan, according to a dispatch to the Cologne Gazette from Constantinople. The dispatch adds that the United State's minister, British ambassador and German charge d'affaires have made representations to the porte regarding recent occurrences at Kharput, where the arrest of Armenian teachers and domiciliary visits to the houses of Armenians have caused a panic.

WORST OF EXPERIENCES.

Can anything be worse than to feel that every minute will be your last? Such was the experience of Mrs. S. E. Newson, Decatur, Ala. "For three years" she writes, "I endured insufferable pain from indigestion, stomach and bowel trouble. Death seemed inevitable when doctors and all remedies failed. At length I was induced to try Electric Bitters and the result was miraculous. I improved at once and now I'm completely recovered." For liver, kidney, stomach and bowel troubles Electric Bitters is the only medicine. Only 50c. It's guaranteed by all druggists.

THE RAILROADS ARE RAPIDLY RESUMING SERVICE AT ST. LOUIS

Several Eastern Roads Which Have Been Cut Off From the City Are Now Entering and Departing From the Union Depot.

St. Louis, June 15.—The river has so far receded that several of the Eastern roads that have been cut off from St. Louis since Monday last, are today entering the Union depot and it is expected that the others will also be enabled to do so, either over their own tracks or the rails of competitors, by tomorrow or Wednesday. This morning's reading of the official gauge showed a stage of 35.5 feet, a decline of 1.3 feet during the past twenty-four hours.

Continued dry weather and falling rivers above lead the weather officials to predict a steady decline from now on until normal conditions are reached. The Baltimore & Ohio, Southwestern, Vandalia, and Louisville & Nashville are the roads that have resumed passenger service from the Union station. The Vandalia was the first to do so, its first New York train departing over Eads bridge yesterday. The Illinois Central attempted yesterday to run a train from this side, but it was stalled at the relay station, East St. Louis, by high water. Service to the West and over the other Eastern roads is about the same as for several days past.

It is expected that the railroads will be able to resume shipments to the National stockyards, East St. Louis, by Wednesday, when the transaction of business there will go on as heretofore.

BRIGHT PROSPECTS FOR MANITOBA

Winnipeg, June 15.—The governments official bulletin reports crops in all sections o fthe province of Manitoba sown under the most favorable conditions and the outlook for a large crop most promising. The season is two weeks earlier than heretofore. The Manitoba wheat acreage is increased about 20 per cent. More cattle were introduced during the winter and dairying is rapidly becoming an important industry. The dairy season opened well, the factories commending operations early in May. The increased acreage in Manitoba is ely to be exceeded in the Northwest territories as a large portion of the immigration of last year went to that section of the country.

SUBWAY STRIKE ENDED.

Twenty Thousand Men to Go Back to Work.

New York, June 15.—Official announcement has been made at the weekly meeting of the Central Federated union of the abandoning of the strike in the subway by the excavators. This means that over 20,000 men will apply for work unconditionally.

The latter stated that the union would be built up, and intimated that at some future time its demands, which it failed to enforce this time, will be submitted again.

The strike has been in force several weeks, and greatly delayed work in the uncompleted portions of the rapid transit tunnel.

KILLED BY NEGRO.

Anti-Policy Society Man Shot In Courthouse.

New York, June 15.—Charles F. McFarland, of the anti-policy society, was shot and killed today on the general sessions floor of the criminal court building, by William Spencer, a negro, who was to have been placed on trial today on a charge of violating the anti-policy law. A detective who witnessed the shooting knocked the revolver from Spencer's hand and placed him under arrest.

SHOULD BETTER

Conditions In This Country Before Protesting to Czar.

New York, June 15.—At the end of a sermon praising the Jew and condemning his detractors, the Rev. Dr. Minot J. Savage, at the Unitarian Church of the Messiah, has commented on the numerous lynchings in this country. He declared that, before a delegation is sent to Russia to lay a protest against the Kishineff massacre before the czar, a better condition of affairs should be established in this country.

ALLEGED MURDERER

Blows Off the Top of His Head.

La Crosse, Wis., June 15.—William E. Tippetts, charged with the murder of Ira Shrake, about six weeks ago and released on $5000 bail, last night shot the top of his head off with a shotgun.

Tippetts was bound over to circuit court under the charge of murder, and his trial was to have been held in September.

CAIN WAS DROWNED.

Body of Missing Man Found In a Slough.

La Crosse, Wis., June 15.—The remains of Thomas E. Cain, a well-known farmer, residing near Brownsville, Minn., who disappeared about four weeks ago, were found near his home at the bottom of a slough, which was under ten feet of water, during the recent rise in the river. His boat was found nearby and it is supposed that he was capsized and drowned while returning to his home from this city on the night in which he disappeared.

Low Rates to New England and Canadian Points.

The North-Western Line will sell excursion tickets, June 15 to 26th inclusive, to all points in New England states, and to points in Canada, at one fare for the round trip. Tickets good for return up to Sept. 1st, 1903. City Ticket Office, 405 West Superior street.

AT WEST DULUTH

The marriage laws of Minnesota proved to be the cause of a bitter disappointment to a young couple who visited Justice Stone to have the happy knot tied this morning.

The young people came from Michigan to West Duluth intending to be married here as the bride had relations in this city. At their native town in Michigan they were told that it was necessary to live in Minnesota five days before they could be married after securing a license. This is not the law here although such is the case in the adjoining state of Wisconsin. Being unwilling to wait such an endless time before the happy event could be pulled off the young man secured a Michigan license.

He showed up in the justice's court this morning while the young lady shyly waited outside the door. Presenting the license he blushingly signified his intention of entering into the holy bonds of matrimony.

"I am sorry" said the judge, "but that ticket isn't good." He then introduced the young man into the mysteries of the Minnesota marriage laws and directed him to the county court house where he could secure a proper license.

The young couple left without leaving their names.

PIKE BITING WELL.

Good Catches Made In the St. Louis River.

West Duluth fishermen are getting out their rods and putting their tackle into shape. Wall-eyed pike are reported to be biting in good shape in the St. Louis river. For the past two or three weeks they have been caught with trolling lines but they will take a worm now and the fishermen report good sport.

Yesterday a large number of Duluth citizens and their wives and families took advantage of the fine weather to put in a day up the river and several good catches of pike are reported.

A party composed of Henry Gifford, Dr. Oleon and O. Gafvert reported a catch of about 50 pounds of wall eyed pike as the result of a few hours fishing. None oif the fish weighed less than two pounds. They were caught in the neighborhood of Fond du Lac.

J. Schuler and I. Deatheridge left Saturday night for a trip up the river and returned last evening with a nice string.

Others who went from West Duluth and report various kinds of luck, good, bad and indifferent were Mr. and Mrs. Stewart, Miss Janet Stewart, Mrs. Malcolm, Fred Malcolm, Robert Weddell, Miss Burner, and a number of others.

Spirit lake was a favorite resort of the fishing parties and nearly all who visited that spot report a good catch.

FLAG DAY OBSERVED.

Exercises Are Held and Participated In By Many.

Flag day was observed with appropriate ceremonies this morning in West Duluth.

The police force, the fire department and the school children took an active part in the ceremonies, together with a number of patriotic citizens.

Alderman Barnes made a very eloquent and patriotic speech, and Rev. W. J. Lowrie, of the Westminster Presbyterian church, offeed a brief prayer.

The children of the public schools were out in force and repeated the oath of allegiance. "America" and "The Star Spangled Banner" were sung by those assembled, and the flag was raised amid a burst of cheering.

Private citizens are showing their patriotism today by a display of flags, and a number of the business blocks have the star spangled banner floating from the roof.

WEST DULUTH BRIEFS.

The West Duluth lodge, No. 168, I. O. O. F., celebrated its annual memorial day yesterday. Memorial services for the members of the lodge who have died were held in the hall in the Wieland & Wade building, after which the members marched to the Oneota cemetery and decorated the graves of deceased members there.

Lawn mowers only $3.50, at Wieland & Wade's.

Miss Emandorfer, who has been teaching in the West Duluth schools for the past year, left today for her home in Michigan.

The ladies of the relief corps will hold a thimble bee at the home of Mrs. Sidney Hanchette on Fifty-second avenue tomorrow afternoon.

Screen doors complete, only $1, at Wieland & Wade's.

Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Robinson leave today for a trip through Southern Illinois and Indiana. Mr. Robinson is recovering from a recent illness, and they are going in the hope of hastening his recovery.

H. R. Patterson, undertaker. Both 'phones, 3050.

The West Duluth baseball team played a practice game yesterday with the "scrubs," defeating them 17 to 5. Young and Larson pitched for the winners.

John Christianson, of Fifty-seventh avenue north and Norton avenue, is the proud possessor of a four-legged chicken. Two of the legs on this freak are in the usual position, one is placed on one of its wings and the other just behind the two legs which it is licensed to carry.

The building occupied by the Merchants' bank of West Duluth is being entirely remodeled. A new front is being placed in the building and it is being redecorated throughout.

Fred L. Robinson, who has been visiting in West Duluth for the past month, will leave today for Elkhart, Ind. He expects to return to West Duluth and make this city his home.

Miss Vaughn, who has been teaching during the winter in the West Duluth schools, will leave today for her home in the southern part of the state. Miss Martin, of West Duluth, will accompany her for a short visit.

Four drunks were arrested by the West Duluth police Saturday night and lodged in the station.

Two small fires were extinguished by the West Duluth department yesterday. They were the result of children playing with matches, and but little damage was caused. The first occurred in a vacant house at 228 South Sixty-first avenue, and the other at the old Hazelwood depot at Thirty-ninth avenue west.

No. 1 Drill on Hyde Forty Will Soon Be Taken Up.

Not a Single Large New Property on the Market.

The Oliver Iron Mining company has about finished work with the No. 1 drill on the Hyde forty in section 30, and will probably take it up in a short time. It is reported that the drill has been in ore some time.

The drill is dipped to the north line of the property, which is the broader line between the Section Thirty company's property and the Hyde forty, and it is believed that the dip has carried it about to the line of the boundary, under the surface.

No reports as to the quality or quantity of the ore are being made, and the exploration is being made by the Oliver company, with no outside concern contracting for the work.

It is stated by mining men that there is not one single large new property on the market for sale in ore lands which have been explored.

At least a score of exploration expeditions are being carried on at present on both the Vermillion and Mesaba ranges, but just at present there is not one of the properties which is in shape for selling.

Several large quantities of ore have been shown up within the past few weeks, or at least the information of the showing has been made public within that time, but most of them are being explored further, and it may be several weeks before any of the big ventures are in shape to discuss publicly for purposes of securing sales.

WILL PLAY FOR SWEET CHARITY

"The Mikado" Is to Be Given For Children's Home.

Two performances of "The Mikado" have been tendered the Children's home governing board by Manager Al. Walle of the Northwestern Opera company and Manager Charles Marshall of the Lyceum theater, and the entire net proceeds will go toward a fund to be used to build a new institution for the homeless little ones in Duluth.

The matinee and evening performances Wednesday have been set aside for this charitable enterprise, and the women who are interested in the work are making strong efforts to pack the house for those two presentations of "The Mikado."

Manager Walle has turned over the company, costumes and all of the scenic and other effects to be used in the production being made by the company, and the performances for the Children's home will be complete in every detail.

The members of the governing board of the institution, which is endeavoring to raise the funds necessary for a new home, have long recognized the necessity of such a home, and some time ago secured rough plans for a new building, which it was estimated would cost $25,000. The demands on the home are growing daily, and the work of securing subscriptions has gone slowly along. At the time subscription lists were put into circulation it was agreed that no collections should be made until the necessary amount was subscribed.

It is now believed that with the results of the two performances, and the amounts already subscribed, there will be enough in the fund to start the collections and the work at once.

The site of the new home at Fifteenth avenue east and Fifth street, facing Garfield park, is a bountiful one, and if the women interested in the work are fortunate in securing the attendance and sale as is expected they will, they will be about ready to talk contracts.

The merits of the Northwestern Opera company are so well established in Duluth by this time that it will need little urging on the part of the women to secure a phenomenal sale. They are at work now, and will call on the population of Duluth between now and Wednesday night.

HAVE ANOTHER TRY.

Reform School Boy to Be Given Chance.

Chester Seymour, a Duluth boy who broke his parole from a reform school sentence and disappeared last March, is back after some remarkable experiences. He is 16 years old. He left Duluth early in March for the Pacific coast with another boy, and were arrested in Olympia for petty theft, where they escaped through a hole made by a man prisoner, who was not able to get through himself. The man afterwards killed his jailer and escaped, but was recaptured. Humane Officer Withrow will detain young Seymour until he hears from the Olympia officers, but if they do not want him as a witness, he will be given a chance to go to work and do something for himself.

Has Long Calendar.

Tomorrow morning the municipal court will enter upon one of the longest criminal and civil calendars that has been called in that court for several years.

There are two criminal cases and moned are: Alexander McDonald, Jr., jury trials and it is thought that it will require at least two weeks to clear this calendar up. The jurymen summoned are seven civil suits making a total of nine. Jonas Straus, B. N. Wheeler, H. A. Kitchli, Fred DiMarco, P. H. Grotheim, E. R. Jefferson, John Ford, William Getty, R. J. McLeod, John Gordon, R. D. Debon, Peter Gilley, J. A. Grakowski, Willis L. Eaton, Andrew B. Thompson, Richard Stevens, Robert Simpson, William Schunckle, William Bernard, Charles H. Stevens, D. H. NEW YORK, May 25th, 1903.

Silberstein & Bondy Co., Duluth, Minn.

Gentlemen:—Referring to the Organdie Suit No. 1881, of which you had a little lot from us, we would state, that outside of those we anticipated on and have ready for delivery, we will discontinue making any more for this season. And in view of the fact, that we have kept them out of other houses and given you the exclusive sale of same in your city, we will, in order to close the matter and give you an inducement, in order to dispose of them quickly, make you a special price on a large lot at, say———. At this price you ought to make a tremendous hit, as they are extraordinary value; we prefer to do this rather than to offer them to anyone else in Duluth.

As we would like to know as soon as possible if you think you can use them, we would appreciate an answer by wire at our expense.

Very truly yours,

———.

We telegraphed the order in and they have arrived—

READY TO TRY THE DEWEYS

Many People Gather But No Trouble Is Feared.

St. Francis, Kan., June 15.—Attorney General Coleman of Kansas, who is to assist the local authorities at the preliminary trial tomorrow of Chauncey Dewey and the others charged with killing Daniel Berry and his two sons, reached here at noon, together with State Senator Hess, the leading attorney for the defense. Other attorneys will arrive tonight. Witnesses who have been summoned by both sides reached here this afternoon, and with them a large number of settlers, and others from all over this region. No trouble is expected at the camp, where the prisoners are held, but it is feared that in the town trouble may occur between the factions. All strangers will be scrutinized carefully before being permitted to pass the camp guards; no one will be allowed to carry a weapon, and tonight the sentry lines will be doubled.

The feeling is intense, and any unusual incident serves to start wild rumors. Last night a sentry accidentally discharged his gun, and soon various exaggerated stories were being circulated.

The manner of the prisoners has changed within the last twenty-four hours. McBride alone retains the cheerfulness that had distinguished all the prisoners up to yesterday. Chauncey Dewey remains in his tent most of the time, answering his correspondence.

FRED AMES' APPEAL.

Argued Before The Supreme Court at St. Paul.

St. Paul, June 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—The appeal of ex-chief of police Fred Ames of Minneapolis was argued in the supreme court today. Victor Welch represented the defense and County Attorney F. H. Boardman spoke for the state.

Fred Ames, the defendant, was in court throughout the proceedings and seemed interested in the arguments of his attorneys.

COAL MINE BURNING.

New Castle, Pa., June 15.—The Thompson Run Coal company's mine, 3 miles from Elwood Junction, caught fire today and there was an explosion of gasoline. It is reported that all the miners escaped without injury. The mine is still burning.

NOT DRUGS

Food Did It.

After using laxative and cathartic medicines from childhood a case of chronic and apparently incurable constipation yielded to the scientific food Grape-Nuts in a few days. "From early childhood I suffered with such terrible constipation that I had to use laxatives continuously going from one drug to another and suffering more or less all the time.

"A prominent physician whom I consulted told me the muscles of the digestive organs were partially paralyzed and could not perform their work without help of some kind, so I have tried at different times about every laxative and cathartic known, but found no help that was at all permanent. I had finally become discouraged and had given my case up as hopeless, when I began to use the pre-digested food Grape-Nuts.

"Although I had not expected this food to help my trouble to my great suprise Grape-Nuts digested immediately from the first and in a few days I was convinced that this was just what my system needed.

"The bowels performed their functions regularly and I am now completely and permanently cured of this awful trouble.

"Truly the power of scientific food must be unlimited." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

There is a reason.

Healthful desserts are just as easy as the bad kind. For further particulars, see the little recipe book in each package of Grape-Nuts.

KILLORAN SAYS

He Was Square and Claims He Never Wronged Anyone.

Famous Bank Robber Proud of Long Career of Crime.

Springfield, Ill., June 15.—Proud of his career of crime, but insisting that he never really wronged a man, "Joe" Killoran, soon to answer to a charge of post-office robbery here eight years ago, is contentedly resting in the local jail.

Captured in New York with his two associates in the $25,000 robbery at Springfield in 1895, Killoran was the hero of a remarkable escape from the same prison where he recently was confined. Since that time he has traveled the world over, ever living by his wits and preying on those who had money.

Now that his hair has become silvery and his health broken, this professional crook decides that he has been a modern Robin Hood, taking only from those who could spare it. He justifies himself by the idea that, while the burglar or sneak-thief is hounded down, the robber he considers worse, the defrauter, is usually given the sympathy of a large part of the public.

In his cell at the Springfield jail Killoran gave his views on morality and the ethics of his profession and told some incidents of his career.

"Joe" seemed pleased as he told how in the Ludlow street jail in New York eight years ago he had the happy inspiration to take the jail keys away from the keepers and lock those officials in limbo as hostages for his friends, "Charlie" Allen and "Harry" Russell, and himself. He had been telling with rare candor how he and Allen had made the capitals of Europe pay tribute to their nimble genius after they had shaken from their feet the dust of Ludlow street. With much wealth of detail he had described the several methods of "making a touch and of "turning a sucker;" of removing $40,000 worth of government bonds from a bank or a safe deposit vault at one stroke, or of "holding up" a miserable bank messenger and lightening his burden.

After all this the "gentleman thief's" face lighted up with something like true pride as he said: "No, I don't think I have ever really wronged another man."

"Joe" Killoran's guest probably betrayed his astonishment. Here was a rare opportunity to gain some insight into that strangely anomalous thing—a thief's moral and ethical code. So "Joe's" visitor said: "And, pray, what would you call those little diversions you have been describing? Did you wrong none of those persons on whom you preyed so successfully?"

Killoran looked frankly disgusted. "Why no; I don't think so. They were strangers to me. I regarded them as fair game. You ought to know what I mean. When I say I never wronged a man, I mean that I never betrayed a man who had trusted me and that I never was faithless with a friend. To do that I should call a sin. The kind of work Allen and I did in Paris, Brussels and London was simply in the line of our business. It involved deception, of course, but not treachery, nor betrayal. We had to set out wits against the wits of the police and the bank officials every time we made a strike. To us their personality was nothing. They were mere obstacles to be surmounted in a crafty game. We played for high stakes and we took desperate chances.

"Now, I never could understand why it is that nearly everybody loathes an out and out professional 'crook,' such as I have been, while the same persons will habitually lavish maudlin sympathy upon the trusted bank cashier who defaults or misappropriates funds intrusted to his care, deliberately betraying his trust and betraying his employer who has befriended him. According to my code, I am a better man than that man. I may prey upon the public, but those whom I deceive are at least strangers to me—men to whom I owe nothing personally.

"No sympathy is squandered upon fellows like us when the 'cops' or the 'Pinks' take us, and we don't look for any. But for the detected bank cashier there are sympathy and excuses. 'Poor old chap, he was tempted and he fell,' they say. Bah! Tempted? Yes, but they always do it deliberately. They weigh the chances of discovery. I have talked to such fellows behind the bars when they have been doing time. More than one of them has told me how long he hesitated before he made the first 'touch,' planning how he could cover his tracks, how he could fool the people he was paid to serve. The second time it was not so hard for him, and after that it became easy.

"Now, that kind of thing I call a sin, as well as a crime. I never did anything in my life so bad as that, and, God knows, crippled and broken down, and 61 years old, as I am now, I am not trying to assume any false virtues at this late day. I haven't been any missionary, but I never yet betrayed a trust."

Killoran says that the good old days in this country are gone, that a crook would better not try the same game twice in the one city. But in Paris it is different, and a thief may continue his play for months.

"Joe," who was of a good New York family, devoted his talents to the "bank sneak" line, and he admits having stolen and squandered as many as five fortunes, most of the money at Monte Carlo and in the gay life of Paris.

Killoran was arrested in Philadelphia on Sunday, Feb. 8, 1885, for the robbery of the First National bank at Coldwater, Mich., of $10,000 on Aug. 1, 1883, this closing for a number of years to come the career of a man who, as a pickpocket, bank sneak thief and bank safe burglar, has operated successfully in one of these three lines of thieving with nearly all of the great professional criminals.

He was afterward associated with George Bliss, alias Miller, alias Miles, alias White, the noted bank burglar, who was the partner of Mark Shinbone, probably the most expert bank safe burglar in this country. "Joe" was finally convicted for the robbery of the Watertord, N. Y., bank and was sentenced to Auburn prison. He escaped in company with "Jimmy" Hope, who was concerned in the Manhattan bank robbery, and was next arrested in New York with George Miles, alias Bliss, for the Barre, Vt., bank burglary. The Auburn prison authorities, being informed of his arrest, claimed him as a prisoner who had escaped from them, and he was taken back to Auburn to serve out his unexpired term. Miles was taken to Vermont and sentenced to fourteen years' imprisonment.

He was arrested in New York city on Nov. 18, 1891, and delivered to the police authorities of Philadelphia, Pa., charged with robbing a bank at Lewisburg, Pa., on May 1, 1891, in company of Thomas Mullins, alias "Wonly" O'Conner. For the offense he was sentenced to two years two months and twenty days' imprisonment in the Eastern penitentiary at Philadelphia on Dec. 26, 1891. He was discharged from there on Sept. 12, 1894.

Killoran was arrested again in New York city on May 31, 1895, in company of "Charley" Allen, "Harry" Russell and "Johnnie" Moore, by the postoffice authorities, charged with a number of postoffice robberies throughout the country. The principal complaint against them was the robbery of the postoffice at Springfield, Ill., of $25,000 in stamps and money on March 26, 1895. Killoran, Allen and Russell escaped from the Ludlow street jail in New York city on July 4, 1895. Postmaster General Wilson offered $1000 reward for the arrest of each of them on July 5.

ARCHITECTS ARE INVITED

To Enter the Competition For the Superior Public Building.

Washington, June 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—Supervising Architect J. Knox Taylor today announced that the following named architects have been invited to enter the competition to draw plans for the new public buildings at Superior, Wis: C. Wirth and H. Thomas, Barber & Barber, of Superior; Palmer, Hall & Hunt, Radcliffe & Willoughby, of Duluth; W. Channon Whitney, of Minneapolis; J. W. Stevens and C. H. Johnston, of St. Paul, and Ferry & Clus, of Milwaukee.

Cass Gilbert, of New York, and J. Hornblower, of Washington, have been designated as judges. These architects are to compete under what is known as the Tarsney act. There is $251,000 in the trusted bank cashier who defaults or misappropriates funds intrusted to his care, deliberately betraying his trust and betraying his employer who has befriended him. According to my code, I am a better man than that man. I may prey upon the public, but those whom I deceive are at least strangers to me—men to whom I owe nothing personally.

SCANDAL EXPECTED

Through Investigation of the New York Postoffice.

New York, June 15.—Developments of great interest in the investigation of the postoffice scandal are expected here this week. The many inspectors sent out from Washington pursued their inquiries with evident haste all day yesterday, and the signs are many that the crisis is soon to come. Rumors of action by the grand jury and of impending arrests were discussed yesterday in the hotel corridors and wherever politicians gathered and talked of postoffice matters, the political moment of which they recognize fully. The federal grand jury for the June term is to meet on Friday, and rumor has it that various charges affecting postoffice officials will be presented to it then.

Washington, June 15.—The chief postoffice inspector, Cochran, today returned from New York, where he went in connection with the investigation of postoffice affairs. The investigating officials refuse to disclose the nature of his mission, but says that the public statements of his trip are not correct. Inspectors were busy today in the office of the assistant attorney general for the postoffice, continuing overhauling of records.

ANOTHER MURDER.

Body of Man Found Between Garbage Boxes.

Chicago, June 15.—The body of a man the skull crushed and face covered with bruises, was found between two garbage boxes, in the rear of a Dearborn avenue residence early today.

Three men and a woman found sleeping in a nearby barn are under arrest, charged with the murder.

The prisoners tell conflicting stories, but all admit having seen the dead man, whose name they say is William M. Brown. They deny all knowledge of the crime, however.

"The Charity Ball."

The sale of seats for "The Charity Ball," to be given at the Lyceum theater Friday afternoon, and at the Grand Opera house, Superior, the same evening, opened at the Lyceum this morning, and from the number of people in line, the beautiful play will undoubtedly be greeted by a large and fashionable audience. Mr. Forbes' friends and admirers were much in evidence, as were the many friends of the well-known people in the cast.

It is many years since the famous "Charity Ball" has been seen in Duluth, and this, as well as the prominence of the people in the cast, makes the forthcoming production one of unusual interest. The piece is to be magnificently mounted and costumed. Special cars will leave the Spalding hotel corner from 7:30 o'clock until 8, arriving in time for the evening performance in Superior.

The second act of the play takes place at the Metropolitan Opera house, New York, the night of the great society event of the year, the charity ball, and in the scene a beautiful minuet will be danced by Miss Elizabeth Frazer, Miss Laura Fankenfield, Miss Mae Wylie, Miss Amy Evans and W. S. McCormick, Richard Close, Leslie Dubbell and James Morrison.

The music is to be made a special feature, the music from the opera "Jocylin" to be played by harp and 'cello.

A GOOD PLACE TO DIE.

Dayton, O., June 15.—Frank Kiefer, a member of one of Dayton's leading families, stepped into an undertaker's office this morning and shot himself in the right temple. He will probably die. Reed Kiefer, a son, suicided several years ago. This preyed on the father's mind and was presumably responsible for the father's attempted self-destruction.

BELL GOING TO BOSTON.

Philadelphia, June 15.—The Liberty bell was today started on its journey to Boston, where it will be a feature of the celebration in the battle of Bunker Hill. The bell was escorted from Independence hall to West Philadelphia station of the Pennsylvania road by the first troop, Philadelphia cavalry and the first regiment national guard.

BOILERMAKERS STRIKE.

Cincinnati, June 15.—Over 100 boilermakers, the entire membership of the Cincinnati union, struck today, and it affects many others at the works of the Tudor company, the McIlvaine and Spiegel company, the Robert Jones company and the Norton company. The union presented demands Friday that employers accepted only those declared competent by the union for an increase of 10 per cent. The employers on Saturday asked for arbitration and continuation of work pending the arbitration. This was refused.

DROWNED FROM RAFT.

St. Louis, June 15.—Arthur Gibbs, aged 18, and Annie Reardon, 15 years old, were drowned today near the McCausliln Opera house, in East St. Louis, by falling from a raft on which they were playing. Their bodies were recovered, making the known dead from drowning in East St. Louis since the flood began number eleven.

CALLS ON EMPRESS.

Pekin, June 15.—The dowager empress today received Rear Admiral Rohthe United States Asiatic fleet, and his staff. All the far Eastern newspapers infer that the assembling of an American fleet at Chee Foo is for the purpose of impressing Russia.

NEWSPAPERS CONSOLIDATE.

La Crosse, Wis., June 15.—Roland B. Gelatt, proprietor of the Daily Press, has purchased of William R. Finch, the Republican and Leader, the oldest daily newspaper in the city, and will consolidate the two under the name of the Press and Leader. Mr. Finch retired from active management of his paper six years ago upon his appointment by President McKinley to the position of minister to Uruguay and Paraguay.

DEFECTIVE PAGE

TROUBLE IS FOUND

In Selecting Chairman For House Committee on Postoffices.

Will Rank Next In Importance to Appropriations Committee.

FROM THE HERALD WASHINGTON BUREAU

Washington, June 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—Representative Cannon of Illinois, who will be speaker of the next house of representatives, is devoting a great deal of time to the selection of committees. In the Fifty-eighth congress the committee on postoffices and post roads of the house will rank next to the committee on appropriations in importance. It is unquestionably the intention of the leaders of the house to bring about a thorough revision of the entire postal service. The scandals which have been unearthed seem to have conclusively demonstrated that Representative Loud of California was absolutely right in the position which he took in demanding changes throughout the whole service. Mr. Loud will not be in the Fifty-eighth congress, and Mr. Cannon is having difficulty in picking out a man for the chairmanship of the postoffice committee so well qualified to fill that place as was the gentleman from California who was defeated for reelection largely through the instrumentality of postal employes throughout the country.

In addition to providing for the revision of the rural free delivery service and of the methods obtaining in the salaries and allowances division, it is almost certain that the committee on postoffices and post roads will report a bill for the reorganization of the railway mail service, not in its personnel, but in the matter of contracts with the railroads for carrying the mails. The investigation which Mr. Bristow is pushing so vigorously has not yet taken up the mail carrying contracts, but it is intended to do this in time to be able to report intelligently to congress when that body shall meet in the fall.

The fact that the investigation thus far has developed a state of affairs which might be expected to have a decided effect upon the next presidential campaign, President Roosevelt is determined that the inquiries shall proceed until every bureau of the postal service and every large postoffice throughout the country shall have been thoroughly purged from anything like a scandal. No one regrets more than the president the revelations which have been made, and yet he would not for a moment consider any proposition looking to the covering up of the guilty employes. If the investigation shall result, as it is believed it will, in heavy reductions in the postal expenses of the country, it will not have been without benefit.

For several years past railway mail clerks, letter carriers and clerks in postoffices have been forming organizations for the purpose of moving on congress for more pay. Even the carriers on the rural free delivery routes have effected an organization with this object in view, and it was the general belief among all these employes of the federal service that the defeat of Congressman Loud would result in securing for them the consideration which they have so persistently demanded. It is admitted now, however, that the chances for them in the next congress at least are reduced to the minimum because of the revelations which have been made within the past few weeks. Instead of providing for increased salaries, congress will be far more apt to swing in the other direction; certainly the first session of the Fifty-eighth congress will not look with favor upon the petition of the clerks and carriers for larger compensation.

The vastness of the business done by the government of the United States is beyond comprehension unless brought home to the people through the medium of a tabulated statement. Auditor William E. Andrews of the treasury department, who has seen the business of the government grow such as no other man has seen it increase who occupied a similar position, has prepared for your correspondent a statement of the number of accounts and amounts involved in the settlements made by the various divisions of the auditor's office for eleven months of the present fiscal year. While the figures are approximated, they will not, it is believed, differ very materially when the auditor comes to make up his account at the close of the present fiscal year June 30. The following table shows the enormous extent of the business of the government:

Accounts.	Approximate.
Customs	10,675	$ 432,000,000
Public debt	2,215	517,000,000
Miscellaneous . .	8,967	2,879,000,000
Inter'l revenues.	81,389	815,000,000
Total	105,221	$4,643,000,000

During the year 1902 the number of accounts settled by Auditor Andrews were 96,483 accounts, the total amount involved being $5,378,110,584.61. The reason for the falling off in the total amount of the several accounts is due to the abolition of the war taxes. The number of accounts, however, will far exceed those of any previous year, the work for the last month of the present fiscal year, including the usual monthly average, as to the number of accounts settled and amount involved in such settlements.

The postoffice investigations now going on were lost sight of last week through the embezzlement of nearly $100,000 on the part of a $1400-a-year clerk in the auditor's office of the district government. The revelations that are now coming to light as to the manner in which Watson manipulated his accounts read like tales from the unreal. For four years almost Watson has been quietly filching money from the government, according to the indictment, and yet has been able by manipulation and by a system of checks to completely cover over his peculations until this week, when the loose, not to say criminal, methods in use in the auditor's office came to light. For four years Watson, who is not 25 years of age, had charge of the funds deposited by property owners who are willing to pay half or all costs of improvements abutting on their property, such as paving, sidewalks, alleys and streets. This embraces deposits by railroad companies, electric light and telephone companies, and is entirely separate from the other accounts. For some unexplainable reason this account is not subject to review by the treasury department, but is checked by the clerk in charge, and he reported it as correct as late as February, 1902. Auditor Petty, of the district government, has complete charge of the assessment and permit fund, depositing the money in bank to his own credit. Young Watson has been entrusted with making the deposits and has returned the passbook in apparently proper condition in each instance. The discovery of Watson's shortage came about through a check that had been misfiled and which called for an examination of Watson's books, the irregularities thereupon appearing. It is inconceivable how a $1400 clerk would have been permitted to go on living at the rate he was without having the matter made the subject of quiet inquiry by his superiors. Here was a young man who at 17 years of age was a self-confessed forger and who spent a period in the reform school. Later, through social and political influence, he obtained a position under the district government, and notwithstanding that his forgeries were known to one or two of the higher officials of the government, he was given the position of trust with the handling of thousands of dollars of the public money and without so much as a bond being required for faithful performance. This condition of affairs will in all probability never occur again, but that it should have ever occurred in a department of the government is incomprehensible.

MISSABE EXTENSION

To Be Built to Chisholm and Clark Mines.

The Duluth, Missabe & Northern has let contracts for the construction of about three miles of track extension to the Chisholm and Clark mines, which are reached by the Great Northern road at present. John Runquist, of Grasston, has the contracts for the work. The completion of the new spurs will bring the Missabe road within a half mile of the village of Chisholm, and the company will probably continue it to that place soon, as the citizens there desire a double service, and believe they can get better rates with two roads in.

Mr. Runquist is making an extension off the Iron Range yard tracks at Ely, and will have to excavate 4000 yards of stone to get the grade.

PRINTING PRESSMEN

Are Holding Fifteenth Annual Convention at Cincinnati.

Cincinnati, June 15.—There was a full attendance of the 300 delegates here today at the opening of the fifteenth annual convention of the International Printing and Pressmen and Assistants' unions, which continues all week. The opening session was devoted to addresses of welcome and responses and the receiving of credentials. An elaborate program of afternoon and evening entertainments begins with a game of baseball this afternoon, between Chicago and Cincinnati nines, followed by a banquet. No business will be done until the report of the committee on credentials is adopted tomorrow.

WALK THE TIES

Women on a Blocked Incline Car, Take to the Track.

Climb Out of Windows and Walk Half the Distance.

A half dozen women who were anxious to get home from church yesterday noon, walked the ties of the Incline railroad, from just below Fourth street to the summit of the hill.

The car stuck going up at that point and had a load of women who were just returning from the Sunday morning worship, and who were anxious to get home so that they could attend to dinner preparations and keep the family peaceable.

For an hour or so the car never budged, and before that time the women began getting anxious, until some of the more daring ones climbed out of the car window on the inside side, and started up the hill on the ties, which are quite close. The detachment created quite a stir among spectators, both at the foot and the top of the hill.

The cause of the car's stopping Manager Warren said this morning was through the untimely action of an automatic device put in place Saturday night.

The company has feared that fire or some malicious person might loosen the weight which counters with the cars and is left at the top of the hill at closing time each night. It was felt that if the weight ever got away something might happen at the lower end, so the safety measure was taken, and Saturday night the device was attached.

Sunday morning, when the cars were running, the device started to act without the presence of the situation that it was supposed would be necessary for it to work; namely, the running away of the weight. The apparatus caught the weight and wouldn't let go, and held the cable cars and tied up the line for an hour or two.

Manager Warren said this morning that he is satisfied now that the device will do its work, and the management is much relieved thereby, though the worth of it was determined through some difficulty on the part of the passengers.

"DON'T WORRY" HIS ADVICE

Remarkable Old Man Gives Experience of a Century.

New York, June 15.—Townsend Miller is the quaintest as well as the oldest person on Long Island. He will be 105 years old Tuesday, Aug. 4, if his memory regarding his age serves him well.

Even more remarkable than his age is the fact that last year, at the age of 104, he was married on his birthday, Mrs. Jane White Miller, his third wife, is much younger than her lord and considerably spryer, although no one at a distance would imagine Townsend Miller to be over 75. Near by, however, his face is seen to be a network of myriad wrinkles.

The old man is as cheerful and sprightly as a person of half his age might be, and can do considerable work. He is desperately poor, but he does not appear in any manner oppressed by the weight of years, and takes pride in telling his age to all interested. One of his chief pleasures each year, is working in the cemetery. He works on the soldiers' graves, and he is happy, he says, to work for old comrades. He was a member of the Eleventh Rhode Island artillery in the civil war, and his left foot was crushed by the wheel of an artillery caisson while endeavoring to hurry it to the front. He draws a few dollars monthly from the United States government on account of his deformity.

Townsend Miller was born in Newtown. He is the son of James Miller and Jane Jackson, both long deceased. He is commonly called a negro, but, as a matter of fact, he has more Indian and Spanish blood in his veins. He is a direct descendant of the Mohawks, he says, and his color is that of the halfbreed Indian. As a boy he played in the deep woods that have since given way to densely populated suburban settlements. He has many a story to tell of hunting adventures, of bears that were seen from his father's doorway, of deer that could be had for the trouble of killing them, and of rabbits and small game galore.

When he was 20 years of age he married Elsie Ballon, of Brooklyn. She lived but a few years. Later he married Nancy L. Seaman, who bided several years ago from old age. On his last birthday he married Jane White, of Jamaica. They live in a little cabin at 7 Catherine street, Jamaica, and are exceedingly happy together. The old man has had but three children, all of whom have long since died.

"Well, God bless your soul, did you come to see the old man?" he began, when the correspondent called at his home. "I'm an ole, ole man, and I got hair as white as the snow. Jes' look here," and he doffed his old ragged hat and displayed a thick head of pure white hair.

"I'm glad I'm alive and I ain't doing any worrying," the old man went on. "If you get to be as old as Townsend Miller you'll see that worrying ain't any good. Just take things as they come; that's my rule in life. Nobody can give me any lessons in philosophy. Want me to go have my picture took? Why, course I will. I had my picture took for a whisky man. I never had but one drink of the whisky he talks up, but I'd like more. They don't make any whisky now like the whisky I remember when I was young.

"Did I tell you about last year when I was married? I had snowed Jane White for a long time. We worked in the field together when she was young. But we didn't get spooney till jest a short time before we got married. I'd been married twice before, and it didn't take me long to ask if she'd have me, soon's I see she liked me and I found I liked her. We got married jest like same's young people and came to my cabin to live. We ain't had no children an' I hope we don't, cause we're so poor.

"I see in the papers things that'll cure the tobacco habit. Lord bless you, friend, I never want to have the tobacco habit cured. I've used tobacco well nigh 100 years, for I began when I was little, as all Injins do, and I always smoke or chew when there's anything handy that can be smoked or chawed."

Wesley's Biographical Chronology.

To the Editor of The Herald:

In Saturday's edition of The Herald among the Wesley memorial notices appeared this statement: "Wesley was not born on either day (June 14 nor 28), but these memorial services are held at this time for the convenience of the churches." This is the substance of the paragraph. This statement is not correct in two matters. The churches could have held the services as conveniently at any other date as on June 11. The truth is most likely that the speakers, Dr. Upham, Bishop Joyce and Governor Van Sant could not all have been here at any other date so conveniently. The churches could have held these services at any time. This correction is immaterial. But this one concerning Wesley's birth is of some importance. John Wesley was born on the seventeenth of June, (Old style.) The correction necessitated by the change from Old Style to New Style places the anniversary of his birth on the twenty-eight of June, 1903." Perhaps it would be interesting to many to have the following facts of his life, showing the development of the man, his preparation for and history of his great work. For to this man, more than any other since Luther's day, do we owe our modern institutions of liberty and hope. In the historic gallery of great reformers there are six who rank highest, measured by their influence on humanity. Abraham, Moses, Paul, Luther, Wesley and Booth. All other great lives owe their lustre, and their opportunity, largely to the influence of these six men, whose history links the ages in one grand development. And they owed, and owe, their life light to One with whom none can compare, for He only was and is the Light of the World. He needs no naming here.

Wesley was born on June 17, 1703, at the Epworth rectory. At eight years of age he was received into the communion of the church. This was in 1711. Both parents were cultured, and staunch in their religious and political faith. Owing to a political difference they lived apart one year. Had not the king died conveniently for them, John Wesley had never been born. His mother taught her children and prepared them for school, commencing when they were four years old. Of nineteen children thirteen died. Charles and John were the two famous ones of the family. She taught them among other sturdy things to—"cry softly." At 17 years of age Wesley entered Oxford university. This was in 1720. When 23 years old he graduated and his proud father exclaimed "Whatever I am, my Jack is a Fellow of Oxford." All great moral leaders have been eminent for early piety and distinguished culture. In 1725, when 24 years old, he was made a curate and assisted his father in his church. Two years after he returned to Oxford and took up his duties as Fellow, when he organized the famous band for scripture studies and evangelistic work. It was this band which was nicknamed Methodists, or "Holy club." John was the leader. For six years he and they, among whom was Whitfield, sustained these studies and parochial duties, thus perfecting their scholarship and preparing for the evangel to which they were to be called.

In 1735 Charles and John went to Georgia as missionaries to the Indians. They failed in this work and discovered that, while they were moral mystics and strict churchmen, they were not Christians. On the way back they fell in with some Moravian missionaries and from them learned their lack of the essential quality for evangelistic work—conversion to Christ. This was in 1737. Wesley was then 34 years old. A year later, May 24, 1738, at a Moravian meeting in Aldersgate street, London, Wesley was consciously converted while listening to the exposition of Luther's preface to the Romans. Romans v. 1-5 was the Scripture which converted Luther, and gave to the world the Reformation. Luther's exposition of the keynote of Paul's conversion, contained in the above passage, was the means of converting Wesley, and gave to Protestant England, and the world, the evangel which saved the Saxon civilization from atheism and anarchy. There is not a single modern institution now at work for the upbuilding and blessing of humanity which did not fruit from the work of Wesley. Men talk of evolution! Leave out of life the influences of the six men named and you have no explanation for the moral evolution of the race. And this, in spite of Carnegie's independence of Providence and preference for Shakespeare over Christ. In the month of open air sermon in Bristol. The churches were shut against him. He went to the people. For fifty years he ministered to the people. He had two great impulses—the passion for God's righteousness and the passion for humanity's redemption. He loved God and man. He was no sentimentalist, using soothing sophisms for popular applause and posing as a lover of men. He proved his love of and for men by merciless exposure of their sins and need of God's mercy. The conscience and reason of the masses responded to the man who proved his love by his daring to tell them their sins, while also telling them of their heritage in God. Thus at 35 years of age, fully equipped for his great work, he began the great evangel. Today about 20,000,000 people, in all lands, are called by his name and are pledged to carry on his work of saving the race by surrender to Christ and living His life of holiness. Voltaire, Rousseau, Renan and Robespierre gave France Napoleon and the revolution. Gardiner, Knox and Wesley gave England a stable government, prison reform, a representative parliament, popular education, cheap literature, hospitals and free dispensaries, the society for giving the Bible to the world and modern missions. Incidentally, he gave us a republic and Washington, emancipation and Lincoln. The Sunday school was born within his influence, and the rights of men and women to equal prize were originated by him. He was the founder of modern democracy and universal suffrage. He died March 2, 1791, and his last words were "The best of all is, God is with us." So passed, at 88 years of age, one of the greatest spirits of the age. As a Methodist, one may be forgiven for praying that modern Methodism may retain its birth spirit after the old style and not the new.

TRAVELERS LEAVE

Excursions, Boat Rides and Other Entertainment Close Convention.

Highly Pleased With Stay In Duluth—Gideon Camp Formed.

While the official program for the tenth annual convention of the United Commercial Travelers ended Saturday evening with the concert at the High School Assembly hall, most of the visitors remained over until yesterday, when they had another charming day.

After the parade Saturday afternoon there was a boat ride about the lake and harbor, and this was one of the most pleasant things about the two days' program. Saturday evening the concert at the high school attracted a large audience, and it was one of the daintiest musical entertainments that has been given here in a good while.

Saturday night, what with the people attending the convention and the excursion that came in, the down town streets were packed with people. There were no further formal entertainments, but those who remained in the city managed to have a good time.

The weather held out marvelously, and it was a large factor in making the convention a big success. It held over Sunday, also, and made it a day of delight.

As the guests departed for their homes, one and all expressed themselves as being delighted with the convention and the entertainment. Everything went off without a hitch, and the plans that had been so ingeniously devised for the entertainment of the city's guests were carried out to perfection.

Terry McCosker, of Grand Forks, past grand councillor of the grand council, was one of those most highly pleased and most outspoken in his appreciation.

"Duluth is a great convention city," he said, "and there is not a member of the order that will not want to come again at the first opportunity. We have been royally entertained, and we appreciate it."

One of the results of the convention was the organization of a Camp of Gideons at the Y. M. C. A. yesterday afternoon. The Gideons are commercial travelers who are avowed Christians, and there are several thousands of them in the country.

It has been planned for some time to organize a camp here, and this was done yesterday. It will meet weekly. W. A. Douglas is president, Mr. Taylor secretary and Mr. Van Valkenberg is chaplain. At the 4 o'clock meeting at the Y. M. C. A. these officers and John Herker, of Minneapolis, and W. H. Teetzel, of Chicago, spoke. Their talks were in refutation of a superstition that a man cannot be a consistent Christian and sell goods. All of the speakers are well known traveling men, and they gave it as their experience that Christianity has rather increased than diminished their sales. There was an excellent musical program and a large attendance.

PARKS DRAW THE CROWDS

Pleasure Resorts Thronged With People Throughout the Day.

Duluth's popular summer and picnic resorts were crowded yesterday. The fine weather drew out thousands of people from their homes in the city and these were pretty well distributed about at the various points of attraction.

An immense crowd heard the concert rendered by Flaaten's Third Regiment band at the Oatka beach pavilion. Among these were a large number of out-of-town visitors who were in the city over Sunday. The bay in front of the pavilion was covered with pleasure crafts of every description all day while not a few of the small boys were in swimming.

Lester park, as usual drew a crowd of people who started early in the morning to spend the entire day wandering about in search of the many beauty spots in the city's famous park.

Yesterday saw the opening, practically, of the season at Pond du Lac, and that delightful suburb of the city was visited by large crowds. A German picnic formed one excursion by the railway to Pond du Lac, the Northern Pacific company running ten full coaches from Duluth. West Superior and West Duluth. The Steamer Newsboy made two trips up the river and was crowded on each trip. In the evening the steamer made a trip about the harbor and lake.

The excursion business by lake to Two Harbors was also heavily patronized yesterday.

Freer-Paarman.

The marriage of Miss Clara Freer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. C. Freer, to William Paarman, took place Wednesday, June 10, at the home of the bride's parents, 314 East Fourth street. The ceremony was performed shortly after 1 o'clock in the afternoon by Rev. Mr. Knudsen, pastor of the Methodist church at South Superior, Wis. The ceremony was witnessed by about thirty of the friends of the young people. The groom is employed at Marshall-Wells. Mr. and Mrs. Paarman left Wednesday for a short wedding trip and will be at home after July 1 at 314 East Fourth street.

REAR END COLLISION.

Several People Hurt In Superior Street Car Accident.

Stephen Cusack, one of the Northern league umpires, Mr. and Mrs. John Morrisey and W. A. Chambers of West Superior, were injured yesterday afternoon in a rear end collision on the street railway line near Tower avenue and Eighteenth street.

The accident happened just after the ball game between Superior and the Fargo teams, the cars being crowded and running close after each other. The car bearing those who were hurt had stopped at Eighteenth street and the car following ran into it, the motorman being unable to check it in so short a distance. Umpire Cusack was hurled through the glass in the rear doorway and rendered unconscious. The others received injuries from flying glass. The rear vestibule of the car struck was nearly demolished.

ATTEMPTED SHOOTING.

Chester Morrison Brought From Ely Under That Charge.

Chester Morrison, who was bound over to the grand jury, from Ely, to answer to the charge of attempting to shoot a bartender of that place, was brought down from the range yesterday and lodged in the county jail.

It is alleged that Morrison, while intoxicated, went into the saloon of Anton Kolcheval and in a row that started, drew his revolver, aiming it at the head of the bartender. The weapon is said to have been discharged but the bullet went wide of its alleged mark.

Morrison was arrested and taken before Justice Cosgrove, who bound him over. Morrison refuses to discuss the affair, neither admitting or denying the shooting. His friends are expected to make application in district court today to bail him out until next term of court.

TAKEN TO THE JAIL.

Sam Berg Will Be Held For Second Degree Murder.

Sam Berg, who a week ago shot Marshall McLaughlin at Mountain Iron, has so far recovered from his own wound that he is to be removed from St. Luke's hospital to the county jail. Berg was shot through the top of one lung, the bullet being taken out of his back. It was expected at first that he could not survive the wound, but his recovery has been very rapid. It is likely that a charge of murder in the second degree will be lodged against Berg, as the authorities have no idea that the shooting of McLaughlin was premeditated. Frank Emerson, Berg's companion on the evening of the shooting, has not been apprehended.

Child Is Killed.

The 4-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Anderson, of Connors' Point, West Superior, was struck and fatally injured by an interstate car yesterday morning while playing on the street in front of her home. The accident is said to have been similar to that which happened on Connors' Point three weeks ago when a child was killed nearly in front of the school house on the Point. In the accident yesterday the little girl's head was crushed.

JEROME CHARGES

Judge With Incompetency, Corruption and Dishonesty.

New York, June 15.—Justice Herman Bolte of the Second district municipal court must appear before the appellate division of the supreme court on June 23 to answer charges of general incompetence, corruption and dishonesty made against him by District Attorney Jerome, and to show cause why he should not be removed from the bench. There are eighteen charges. The least serious is this:

"That in the year 1903 Justice Bolte did, in the presence of suitors, counsel and witness, repeatedly deport himself in a manner unseemly and indecorously use language coarse and insulting and treated counsel and witnesses in a manner coarse, vulgar, arbitrary and tyrannical, calculated to intimidate and oppress said counsel and parties and in other ways was guilty of conduct unbecoming the position of a justice of the municipal court of the city of New York."

From this the allegations run through a list of alleged corrupt acts in the conduct of this court to a charge of personal dishonesty. In this, Justice Bolte is accused of feloniously appropriating to his own use money belonging to an estate of which he was the executor.

CHILDREN'S DAY.

Interesting Exercises Held At Lakeside Church.

Children's day is essentially one of brightness—flags, flowers and birds—and the exercises yesterday morning at the Lakeside Presbyterian church were very successful. The church was beautifully decorated with flowers, and on the platform, where the primary class was seated, there was a large banking of plants, ferns and cut flowers. Besides this, the Stars and Stripes were very much in evidence, on the windows and on the chandeliers the national emblem was floating. Twelve little boys and girls graduated from the primary class to the school proper. The scholars acquitted themselves creditably, and $36 was collected for the board of Sunday school missions.

OLD SWEETHEARTS

Embrace and Chicago Policeman Arrests Them.

Chicago, June 15.—Because he embraced Mrs. Marie Mosser in Lincoln Park Jacob Jung, 67 years old, was taken into custody with the woman, and the couple were arraigned before Justice Hamburgher on charges of disorderly conduct. In telling his story to the magistrate Jung said he had known Mrs. Mosser many years ago in Germany and their meeting in Lincoln Park was an accident.

"I was so glad to see her that, of course, I embraced her, and she did the same to me," said Jung.

Justice Hamburgher questioned the man and learned that the couple had been sweethearts in the old country. Mrs. Mosser, who gives her age as 63 years, became indignant when telling her story to the court.

"We did not do anything that was wrong," said she. "This officer did not have the right to arrest us and I am going to sue him."

Justice Hamburgher took the matter under advisement.

RICH WOMAN

To Marry Former Secretary of Cornelius Vanderbilt.

New York, June 15.—Mrs. Joseph R. De La Mar, who was the second wife of a man who made millions in the West, and who, before their divorce lived in this city for many years, is to become the wife of James R. Hatmaker, who was for many years the secretary of Cornelius Vanderbilt. He is considered an expert in railroad matters and finance. Under Vanderbilt's will he received a special bequest of $10,000. For the last four years he has made his home in London. When they are to become husband and wife has not been told.

Mrs. De La Mar was acclaimed one of the prettiest women born in this country. She was Miss Nellie Virginia Sands when, a decade or more ago, she was married to Joseph R De La Mar, who was then more than fifty years old. It was said at that time that his wealth was nearly $25,000,000 and there was much surprise when he took as his bride the daughter of a druggist of this city, he himself being a widower.

SOME LUMBER SALES MADE

Market Shows Some Signs of Reaching Better Conditions.

A few lumber sales have been made during the past few days and now that the end of the struggle between the Eastern lumbermen and the building trades is in sight the outlook for a better market is considered very good. The total sales of the past ten days run up to about 3,500,000 feet. The sales were mostly of No. 3, and beter boards, and were made by Merrill & Ring, Richardson & Avery and others.

Lumber shipments are said to be more continuous and a little heavier, in fact it is said that the lumber movement of recent date has been about 18,000,000 feet. Lumber shipments from the head of the lakes and from Two Harbors have totalled about 100,000,000 feet up to date.

The Rainy Lake company has not yet decided on the definite location of the two mills to be built on the new line of railroad to the Canadian boundary. It is claimed that the mills, when they are constructed, will be of large capacity.

One of the examples of fast mill construction work is said to be found at Grand Marais, on the south shore, where the sawmill belonging to Alger, Smith & Co. interests was burned last February. Exactly fifty-six days from the date of the contract with the owners of the Pelton & Reed mill, at Cheyboygan, Mich., the mill was removed, reconstructed and was cutting imber. The plant is equipped with two band saws and is modern in all its departments.

TWO ARE DEAD

As Result of Pouring Kerosene In Lighted Stove.

Milwaukee, Wis., June 15.—An explosion caused by pouring kerosene in a lighted stove at the store and residence of John Brozokowski, 1464 Mitchell street, yesterday, resulted in the death of two persons, the probable fatal injury of one other, and the burning of six more to such a degree as to require the attention of physicians. So great was the force of the explosion that the entire side was blown from the house and two rooms were filled with flames, causing the fire department to work for an hour before the fire was extinguished. The casualties are:

Dead:
ANNA BROZOKOWSKI, aged 19.
TONY BROZOKOWSKI, aged 2 years.

Seriously injured: Miss Gusta Wolf, 20 years, 641 American street, left side, arm and leg burned; John Brozokowski, shoemaker, 49 years; Mrs. Annie Brozokowski, 47 years; Lena Brozokowski, 30 years; Nellie Brozokowski, 7 years; John Brozokowski, 3 years; Martha Brozokowski, 11 years.

All the injured will probably, with on exception, Mrs. Wolfe, will recover.

SHORT COURTSHIP.

Captain of Ward Liner Marries a Fair Passenger.

New York, June 15.—Miss Pauline Schroeder, of Omaha, Neb., who was a passenger on the Ward liner Seneca, has become the bride of Capt. Frank W. Irvine, of the Seneca. Miss Schroeder was a passenger on the liner, having come aboard at Tampico, Mexico, where she had been a visitor to her father. She and the captain met for the first time on the voyage to New York, and were married when the ship reached port.

DIFFERENCE OF OPINION

Finlanders Not All Favorable to the New Organization.

A federation of Finnish workingmen, to be, in a way, affiliated with the Socialist Labor party, was the result of mass meetings at Braeutigan's park yesterday afternoon and Odd Fellows' hall last evening.

It was the first anniversary of the Ystava society, of this city, and a large number of delegates were present from various range towns and from Superior. A band composed of Finnish musicians from Duluth and Superior furnished the music, and during the afternoon there was a program of sports.

The evening meeting was addressed by Dr. A. F. Tanner, of Tower, and Edward Kriz and K. Osterberg, of this city.

A special trainload of sympathizers of the proposed socialistic federation was expected from the range towns, but did not materialize, it being claimed that, while they were in favor of organizing for the purpose of promoting better working conditions among the Finnish laboringmen of St. Louis county, they were not overly interested in pledging themselves politically, and regarded an affiliation with the Socialists as such a pledge.

Speaking of this, one of the Finlanders in attendance said:

"We supposed that the meeting was called for the purpose of organizing our countrymen in a federation of labor unions such as the local Federated Trades' assembly, but it seems that it was for the purpose of bettering our conditions by affiliating with the Socialist Labor party, and some of us were not so sure that would help us to any great extent in getting jobs or an increase in wages."

HAPPENINGS IN DAKOTAS

Officials Unable to Locate Relatives of William Knight.

NORTH DAKOTA.

Fargo—Officials have been unable to locate the relatives of William Knight, who was accidentally killed by the Northern Pacific here. The different addresses in the notebook on the person of Knight have been wired, but there has been no reply. The father of the dead man seems to have some wealth from the tenor of the letter on Knight's body. Mention was made of a recent cattle deal in which a large sum was involved and an offer was made to advance the son $500 to carry out a purchase referred to in the letter.

Kensal—While temporarily deranged, Nels Erickson, a plasterer, stabbed himself with a pocket knife in his stomach. He had just finished a job of work and feared he would not be able to get another. He will recover.

Jamestown—On complaint of Alex. Esler, Officer Enoch Russell and M. Northrup and Peter Sider, dogcatchers have been arrested, charged with the crime of larceny in taking Esler's dog from his premises.

Grand Forks—Very pronounced need of rain is beginning to be felt through this section. For the past week there has been practically no growth. The situation is not yet considered serious, but should the drouth continue much longer there will be a feeling of general alarm. The cool weather helped the situation, but a high wind yesterday and today with a hot sun makes things look dubious.

Bismarck—The jury in the case of A. Rolling, a reporter for the Bismarck Palladium, charged with illegal voting at last fall's election, failed to agree after being out thirty hours.

Minot—The preliminary hearing of E. B. Pinney, the defaulting United States commissioner at Kenmare, resulted in his being bound over to the district court in $1000. He failed to furnish this amount and was remanded to the county jail.

Dr. Moses J. Bushervill, brought here from Bowbells several days ago, died at the Windell hospital this morning of typhoid pneumonia, aged 35 years. He had no known relatives here and little is known about him although he had been practicing medicine at Bowbells several years.

Valley City—Several weeks ago S. L. Davis, who had been selling certain school supplies to school districts, was arrested on a charge of obtaining the signatures of school officers under false pretenses. It was asserted at the time that Davis had represented himself as state superintendent of public instruction. It was also alleged that he had successfully "worked" other sections of the state and much interest was taken in the matter by school officers generally.

At the time of his arrest he was placed under $500 bond to appear at the district court. State's Attorney Burke has investigated the evidence and the law and on his motion the case was dismissed. The evidence tended to show that Mr. Davis had been doing a legitimate business and that the school officers who ordered his goods knew what they were doing.

He charged the districts $47.50 for books which he admits cost him but $16.30, but it does not appear that there is any law against this. He did an extensive business in Richland county before he came here.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

Evarts—The town has voted bonds to build a $5000 schoolhouse. Operations will begin at once, and the building will be ready by fall.

Alex. Laundrie, a wealthy ranchman from the west side, is building a $2500 house here in town. Lou Davidson from Pedro, S. D., is building a house here, and others are coming over this fall to send their children to school.

Evarts will celebrate the Fourth in elaborate style. About $1000 has been raised to meet incidentals.

General S. E. Gifford and Senator Patterson, of New Ulm, spent a few days here the first of the week, looking over their real estate west of Glenham.

Wessington Springs—E. B. Hunnes, one of the prisoners held to bail on the charge of selling liquors, was liberated on his own recognizance, it being established that he was only a teamster hired to haul the stock of liquors which belonged to Ruggles, the other man arrested at the same time, and who will remain in the county jail for want of bail.

Pierre—The wool growers of the range are beginning to get their year's crop to market, and are much pleased to find that prices have advanced several points. Several have received as high as 16c a pound, which is about 3c ahead of last year. Over a million pounds of wool came to this market last season and the indications are that fully as much if not more will be brought in this year.

Mayor Ewart has received notification that the Carnegie fund for the library at this city is available, and can be drawn upon as needed for purposes of construction. The local commission is considering plans and materials for the building and as soon as they decide upon these matters will advertise for bids for the construction. The commission is strongly in favor of the use of native granite boulders.

Regardless of the fact that the excursion of land seekers for last week was limited on account of high waters in Northwest Iowa, making travel uncertain, the filings of homesteads in the land office in this city for the first ten days in June reached fifty-seven.

The state school fund has secured the late issue of municipal bonds of Springfield, amounting to $4500.

DOINGS IN MICHIGAN

Some Fine Prehistoric Tools Are Found Near Rockland.

Houghton—A valuable find of prehistoric tools was made several days ago by men excavating near shaft A of the Michigan Copper Mining company's mine near Rockland in Ontonagon county. The place of the find was the side of a steep bluff fifteen feet high, against which was a large rock, placed there thirty or forty years ago during early operations at the Minnesota mine.

In making an excavation in the alluvial overburden it was found the earth was stained black at a depth of ten feet, with increased depth the earth became black as tar, and chips and chunks of charcoal were found. Finally a large pile of charcoal logs was taken out. Nearby large stone hammers, the largest weighing thirty pounds, were found, some of them being the finest specimens ever uncovered in the copper country.

Evidently the relics were used by ancient miners in separating the gangue rock from the copper. The process of these miners, it is believed, was to build a fire around the masses of copper rock and heat the material to a high temperature, dashing water upon them to splinter them by the sudden cooling, and afterward pounding out the copper with the stone hammers from the gangue.

The Michigan mine office at Rockland has a valuable collection of mining tools and utensils used by the prehistoric mound builders who are believed to have inhabited this region.

Iron has been discovered about fourteen miles below Sidnaw in Houghton county by George Heineman. The surface showing yields what is known as bog ore, a low grade ore running about 45 per cent in metallic iron. Assays show the highest values to be 48.2 per cent and the lowest 24 per cent. Heineman has secured an option on the land and has closed a deal for exploratory work.

Hancock—The ninth annual tournament of the Upper Peninsula Firemen's association will be held Aug. 5, 6 and 7, instead of Aug. 19, 20 and 21, as originally planned. The change was made so that there should be no clash with the annual encampment of the state national guard.

Calumet—Edward J. Hall has been selected as principal of the Calumet high school to succeed Miss Florence Sanborn. He is a graduate of Harvard university and formerly lived in Keweenaw county. Miss Laura A. Stovell of Peoria, Ill., has been selected as domestic science teacher for the next year. The alumni at the high school have effected an organization. John J. Ellis, Jr., is president; Pierce Roberts, secretary, and Miss Minnie Hinsliff, treasurer.

Menominee—While W. E. Collette, of Menominee, was giving Charles Johannes of Green Bay pointers on playing golf, his stick struck the young man on the jaw and neck, fracturing the jaw and badly cutting his neck. Mr. Johannes was unconscious for some time and his injuries are severe.

Professor Reynolds, of the United States geological survey, is in Menominee conducting tests of artesian well water and ascertaining the depth of the wells and the strata of the rock, which data will be included in a geological report of the district.

Active work has been begun toward the construction of the electric railway to connect Wakefield, Bessemer, Ironwood and intermediate points. The dams along Black river are being rebuilt for the electric plant that will furnish power. These dams were used for flooding purposes, but since lumbering operations ceased they have been washed out.

LIVING DOWN REPUTATION.

The larger part of the traveling men who attended the U. C. T. convention here last week, left the city Saturday night or yesterday afternoon, and a signally successful meeting terminated. It was successful in more ways than one, and the visitors went away with a good taste in their mouths.

The meeting was characterized especially by the excellent behavior of the large crowd of men who came here to take part and look on. The officials of the U. C. T., as well as the Duluth people who had a hand in their entertainment, were loud in their expressions of praise for the drummers. It used to be, a long time ago, the traveling men say, that the typical drummers were sporty high-fliers, and general all-round rowdy-dowdy boys. But today it is far different. The men of the road today are gentle, kind and meek and are not of the boisterous class. The traveling men resent the imputation that the profession is still as it was, when the "cold bottle and hot bird" game was apparently the sole object of life for them. The business conditions have changed, they say, until the profession demands strictly sober and steady men to transact the representative business that they do.

This observation was borne out by the department and conduct of the men who came to the Duluth gathering. With several hundred men turned loose from the cares of business, and with a holiday, away from home, among congenial company, with no restraint whatever, they attended to the business and social duties presented with a will that was admirable. The traveling men in this country are for the most part young, and if there was any restless blood in the profession, it was strange it did not crop out.

At few gatherings of this kind in cities, is there a complete escape from disgraceful exhibitions of depravity among the visitors, and stories of women insulted by strangers and many kinds of contemptible acts are commonplace. It is the general rule for the police department to be instructed to give the visitors a wide-open, free-for-all, "good" time. In Duluth last week, this condition was notably not present. The result is that the commercial travelers, their families and friends have gone away much pleased with the meeting, and the virtues of Duluth will be spread by those who experienced the real pleasure of a decently conducted gathering of this kind.

The people of Duluth are also extending congratulations to their guests, for the courtesy. The wild, wooly "good" time has been the curse of the American convention system, and the step taken at the traveling men's meeting, which was a gratification in every way, may result in an extending of a movement toward this desired end.

The traveling men more than purged themselves of an undesirable reputation, which they are fully aware exists, but which they strongly desire to be rid of.

THE SCARCITY OF SERVANTS.

The claim that one important reason for the scarcity of servant girls is due to the greatly changed character of immigration, seems to have considerable foundation. It is not the only reason for the cause of so much domestic woe, which the lack of household help has created, but from a study of the figures bearing on the matter, it is one of the principal causes. Twenty years ago the great bulk of aliens coming to the United States were Germans, Irish and Norwegians. For instance, in 1882, over 100,000 immigrants came from Norway and Sweden, against 54,000 for last year; in 1882, we got 699,000 Germans, against 28,000 last year; while from Great Britain and Ireland in 1882 we received 153,000, and last year only 46,000. In those good old days a housewife could go down to the steamship docks and without difficulty pick out a dozen bright, healthy and industrious, rosy-cheeked lassies, who were glad to take positions as servant girls. They made good servants, too, and the best that we have nowadays are girls who came over fifteen and twenty years ago. But a tremendous change has come over the character of immigration to our shores. It is a comparatively rare thing to find desirable and prepossessing German, Irish and Swedish girls who are looking for places as domestics. Instead there are hordes of Italians, Austria-Hungarians and Russian Jews. The conditions are almost reversed from what they were twenty years ago. For instance, last year we admitted 178,000 Italians, against 32,000 in 1882; we received 171,000 Austria-Hungarians, against 20,000 in 1882, while of Russians—mostly Jews—we got 107,000 last year, against only 3500 in 1882. .

It would seem to be a good idea for the immigration agents who are working so hard in the old country to secure emigrants, to make a specialty of sending over good girls for house servants. There is certainly an excellent opportunity for them, and the suffering housewives would be greatly benefited.

DEVERY'S CAMPAIGN.

New York politicians are beginning to realize that the campaign of Former Chief Devery for mayor is no joke and that he is certain to endanger Tammany's prospects at the next election. He intends, and will doubtless be successful, to get 10,000 signatures to his nominating petition, although only 2000 are required to place his name on the official ballot as an independent candidate for mayor. Devery has many earnest followers—men who admire his bluff talk and ways, and who will work for him and vote for him. The discontented element in Tammany Hall is strongly inclined to vote for Devery or any other anti-Tammany candidate in order to bring about the downfall of the new Tammany leader, Charles F. Murphy, who is trying to build up a personal machine by throwing out every man who opposed his election to the leadership. It is estimated that Devery will poll from 20,000 to 25,000 votes. Devery himself will not give any figures, but says he will get enough votes to defeat the Tammany ticket.

Devery's campaign methods so far have been novel. He never lacks a crowd. His first speech of the campaign was delivered at a hall in a Queen's county suburb. When he finished his address he joined the dancers. He next appeared at a variety theater in Brooklyn and spoke between the acts. Then he went to a Rockaway Beach theater and was introduced by a soubrette, who announced in a song that Devery was "in it every minute." He has made arrangements to appear in several New York city theaters and roof gardens in the same way, and he has seriously proposed to appear in a pulpit, if he can find one, and tell the people about the evils of Tammany rule. Later, he will advertise his candidacy on all of the dead walls in town and hire trucks to go about at night with transparencies bearing invitations to vote for Devery.

Devery seems to have an inexhaustible campaign fund. He has meetings every night which end in "drinks for all" and his regular announcement is: "Devery, he pays the freight." He has rented and fitted up a clubhouse at a cost of $30,000. He maintains a headquarters, a press agent and about forty regular workers, all at his own expense, and he practically supports dozens of poor families in his district. And this is only the beginning of his expenses. He intends to supply ice to all the poor of the Ninth district during the summer and has arranged for a half-dozen big excursions. Tammany men who know all about this style of campaigning, say that he cannot carry out his plans at a cost less than $100,000.

There is some satisfaction in knowing that such a man as Devery cannot be elected mayor of the great metropolis, even though he is able to practically control the election. His record shows that he is a dangerous man to hold public office. His money making abilities are too strong. He is said to be worth considerably more than $500,000. He "earned" all of it while he was chief of police under Mayor Van Wyck. When he was appointed to that office, his friends say, he was "broke," having spent all the money he had in defending himself at the trial which resulted in his expulsion from the police force. During his four years service as chief of police and deputy police commissioner under Van Wyck, he received a salary of $23,000. Yet, within a month after he was legislated out of office in 1901, he bought real estate valued at $250,000, and boldly announced that he "could buy as much more if he wanted to." His followers now say that he "can spend $100,000 on his mayoralty campaign and not miss it." Such a man is "Big Chief" Devery.

MIGHT PREVENT FLOODS.

How can any storage reservoir which the government might build at the head waters of the Mississippi or the Missouri play any part in the diminution of such floods as the recent one, is a question frequently asked. The high-water mark at St. Louis reached over seven feet above the danger line, which means an enormous volume of water going by every minute and it may well be questioned whether in 100 years the government could build reservoirs with sufficient capacity to appreciably mitigate this evil.

A feature of this flood storage, Guy E. Mitchell secretary of the National Irrigation association said recently, which may not be generally understood, but which would undoubtedly accomplish the desired result may be termed a "secondary storage." The water storage proposition applied to the Missouri and its great tributaries involves the question of the irrigation of the vast arid domain through which these rivers flow. If irrigation storage reservoirs were constructed on these rivers it is estimated that as much as 35,000,000 acres of present desert land would be reclaimed. The principal season of growing crops for this area would be April, May, June, July and August, and the reason that the lands are not irrigated at present is that while there is plenty of water in the first three months, during July and August, when water is absolutely necessary to mature the crops, these streams are reduced to mere threads. If the storage reservoirs were built they would supply water for this land during July and August, during the three preceding months the water for this great area of land would be drawn directly from the streams themselves. By means of canals and ditches almost incalculable quantities of the flood waters coming down during April, May and June, which cannot be stored in the reservoirs, would be taken out of the rivers and spread upon this land which would take it up like a sponge, water which would go down the Missouri river and down the Platte river, and down the Arkansas river into the Mississippi and thus add to the flow of the torrent there.

Under such a system of irrigation, the effect would be the same as though it had been possible this month to spread out the great flood of the Missouri, the Arkansas and the Platte and flood millions of acres of farming land in Wyoming, Colorado, Kansas, Nebraska and the Dakotas, thus reducing the flow of the lower reaches of the Missouri to below the danger point.

The combined volume of the water impounded in storage reservoirs at the headwaters of these great rivers and their tributaries, and that contained in a network of hundreds of miles of irrigation canals and ditches, coupled with that absorbed by millions of acres of arid land, would have gone a long way toward palliating or preventing what will be known as the great flood of 1903.

HOTEL GOSSIP.

The members of the traveling profession who swarmed the hotels here last week, left a lot of good stories behind them, and among them were one or two which it is alleged are now.

"Billy" Weed had one or two, and of them, one is claimed as original by W. A. Shannon, who told the yarn.

There was once a Methodist minister who was transferred from one charge to another, and who was the subject of a reception at a dinner given by the leading male members of the church, the week before his first service.

After the dinner was finished, and the gentlemen were sitting around talking, one of the guests took the clergyman aside and said:

"I would like to give you a little advice. When you preach your opening sermon, I wouldn't say anything about liars. The congregation is full of them. They lie and lie, and everybody knows it, so it doesn't do any harm, but if any reference was made to it they would become offended. They make up quite a valuable portion of the congregation, and it would mean their loss."

The preacher appeared doubtful, but finally acquiesced.

He was thinking it over when another took him aside and said:

"Excuse me, for appearing as an advisor, but I wanted to give you a pointer. When you preach next Sunday, if you can, just as well, I wouldn't say anything about thieves. You see the richest members of the congregations are politicians and have been for years, and they will die off pretty soon now, and if you said anything about thieves, it would probably mean the loss of lots of money when they died."

It was pretty hard, but he finally consented. He was arguing whether he had done properly or not, when he was called aside again.

"Now, minister, don't think me officious, but I wanted to warn you against remarking about wives who do the church-going for the family. There are a lot of fellows here who come in with a subscription every month, but who won't attend church, and their wives go every Sunday. If you said anything about it it would offend the wives who are there and the husbands would back out, and it would hurt the finances of the church."

The minister began wondering what he could talk about. He argued that he must have some material, and he wanted to do himself proud, for the impression would arise from the first sermon. But he finally agreed. A young fellow, who had been waiting around, stepped in and desired a private talk, and said:

"I am wholly disinterested, excepting for the good of the church, but there are a great many young persons in the church who belong to a dancing club. The two sisters, one of whom plays the organ and the other the best voice in the choir are members, and if you said anything about that they might become offended, and would leave you. I would leave that out if I were you."

The minister became bewildered. He saw a quiet man in one corner and asked him what he had better do.

"Whatever you do," said the man, "don't say anything about poker playing. The leading men members, who are active in the church work, have a poker club. The church gets the takeoff, and the men subscribe besides. If anything were said about gambling the strongest element of the church might leave it."

The minister was nonplussed and dumbfounded. Someone noticed it and guessed it, and came over to see him. He pulled the reverend gentleman aside and said:

"Minister, I see what you're up against, and I'll give you a little suggestion. You just roast the Jews. There's only one in town and it won't hurt the church if he does get sore."

That was what the minister did.

Rudolph Zweifel, the photographer who makes the swell pictures and incidentally has secured a large number of artistic poses from members of the Northwestern Opera company's chorus and principals, has lost all faith in his appearance.

It seems at the Spalding there is an order that the elevator boys shall let no suspicious or rough-looking character ride in the elevators unless his identification is established, and he has legitimate business in the hotel upstairs.

Yesterday morning Mr. Zweifel, who is a comely young man, went into the hotel to call on a friend, preparatory to going up the river on a yacht. He was attired in a sweater and old clothing.

He went to the elevator as usual and attempted to enter, but was repulsed by the conductor.

"Rude" enjoyed the situation for a minute and insisted on his going in an exaggerated German dialect, with long rolls of his "r's."

The boy refused to let him go. Just then several fancifully dressed and handsome young women came along and wanted to get aboard. They stuck their noses at him, and looked in disdain, and caught their dainty skirts about them, as if afraid of contamination.

It began to be embarrassing, so he retired, and had to call the management before he could get on to the car.

Mr. Zweifel has changed his views about the man making the clothes. He is going to carry a card of identification, sworn to, and a photograph on it taken with him in his best clothes after this.

LAUGH AND LOOK PLEASANT

New York Sun: "Shall I wrap the sandwich up?"

"No, I've got something to put around it."

"What?"

"Me."

Somerville Journal: Nell—What is Cholly good for, anyway?

Kate—Well, he serves very well for a cigarette holder.

Philadelphia Catholic Standard: "Have a wee nip, friend?" asked the hospitable passenger with the flask.

"No; I thank you," replied his neighbor. "I don't drink whiskey, eh?"

"No, I make it."

Somerville Journal: When a man gets into trouble the first thing he does is to sit down and think if there isn't some way for him to blame it on a woman.

Chicago Record-Herald: English—"That's rather a sizable hoss you're drivin'," said the man from Tennessee.

"Yes, he is right smart of a critter," replied the man from Georgia.

Town Topics: "But what is your real objection to polygamy?" insisted the argumentative bore.

"Oh, give us a rest," said the other. 'Don't you know that a man can't serve two masters?"

Philadelphia Press: "Shave," said the crusty patron, laconically.

"Close?" inquired the barber.

"No, I'm not close, but I'm not in the habit of giving tips, if that's what you're driving at."

Chicago Tribune: "Children, don't go into that room. Your father told me not to let anybody disturb him for the rest of the day."

"What's he doing?"

"He is trying to invent a name for a new breakfast food."

Cleveland Plain Dealer: "Sir, you look like an optimist. You have a happy countenance. Lend me a dollar."

"My friend, do you know why I look happy? It's because I haven't any wealth to bother me."

ADVICE FOR HOT WEATHER.

When the mercury is doing just a little more each day
Toward the breaking of its record while the summer's holding sway,
Under certain circumstances it is unwise to get gay
And before you do so you had best think twice, man.
As the days are getting hotter you will need a good supply
Of a thing that just a little takes a lot of cash to buy,
As it's put upon the market by an independent guy—
If you want it you must take it at his price, man.

When at times you hear his raucous cry
come from the alley gate
It will send a feeling through you that's unpleasantly irate,
But before you get aggressive and attempt to buck at fate
'Twould be wise to ponder over this advice, man.
For although what's called a hundred pounds may seem a little light,
It were wiser not to say so than be bringing on a fight,
As a jolly and cigar will make you solid and all right.
And you'll get more for your money from the iceman.

Chinese Thrift.

Indianapolis News: No doubt the Chinese are conferring a great honor on us by letting us house our legation in one of their sacred temples. Still, it has its drawbacks when it involves $3000 worth of repairs.

Pathos in the Silence.

Washington Post: The former congressman who achieved fame by coining the query "Where am I at?" is dead, and we cannot answer his question now any more accurately than when he first asked it.

Reflections of a Bachelor.

New York Press: Penitence lies most heavily on an empty stomach.

Before she is married a girl's ambition is to own jewels; afterward babies.

A maid always worries for fear she won't have a good time; a matron for fear somebody else won't.

When a woman sets out to save a man usually the first thing she plans is to tie a stone around her own neck by marrying him.

It is impossible for a mother to convince herself that a child stealer in South Africa might not happen to walk into her front yeard any minute.

No Elbow Room at Sea.

New York Herald: There is too little elbow room on modern United States warships, especially in the general mess, and this is one reason for the discontent which causes many recruits to desert. Desertions during the last month numbered more than 200. The general mess system has resulted in a very well cooked and plentiful ration of considerable variety, but the space for the mess table is so small that the men have to sit very close together and all their food is placed on the table before mess call is sounded. This detracts from the neatness which could be obtained by more roomy mess quarters. The extremely large batteries now being placed on shipboard necessitates larger compartments on battleships and cruisers, while large amounts of auxiliary machinery take up a great deal of deck space.

AT THE END OF THE TRAIL

By J. W. Hunt.

(Copyright, 1903, by Daily Story Pub. Co.)

"Quick, Uncle Amos, somebody's killed Marjory!"

The spead with which she had come left scant breath to deliver her message, and she jerked it out in short gasps to the old man sitting so peacefully in a rocking chair on the little porch, bringing him to his feet with something of the vigor of 20 years before, while a motherly little old woman hurried out for her task in the kitchen, her flour-smeared hands raised to Heaven in shocked surprise.

Horror was on the faces of her auditors as the girl sobbed her tale. They had been gathered about the piano, she, Marjory and two girl friends. Marjory was playing. The windows were open. In the midst of the music there was a shot and Marjory, clasping her side, tumbled from her seat and died, almost without a word. Who had done it? They had not stopped to inquire. While a servant had run for the nearest doctor she had hurried for Uncle Amos.

As he listened there were reflected in the old man's eyes the qualities which had made him the recognized power that he was in the little community, the shrewd common sense, the unfaltering resolution, the undaunted courage of a born leader of men. A few rapidly spoken orders set busy hands at work on strap and buckle, and almost before the messenger had finished her tale a buggy, drawn by a fast-stepping horse, was brought around from the stable and Uncle Amos had taken his seat and turned the animal's head into the shady lane that led toward the scene of the tragedy.

It was a setting fitter for a pastoral than a tale of blood, that rambling house, hiding its gable ends in clambering rose vines and crouched in the shade of noble elms. Always one of the picturesque spots of the neighborhood, it had lost nothing of its attractiveness in the hands of its new tenants, Mrs. Dennison, who two years before had come into the community and made her home at Rose Gable. As she made no secret of the fact that she was unhappily married and had separated from her husband, the good people regarded her rather askance, until won by the charming simplicity and blamelessness of her life, they had reconstructed their code of ethics on a broader scale and had ended by loving her. And now she was dead, murdered! Who could have done it? What did it mean?

Uncle Amos asked himself these questions time and time again while his trotter drew him swiftly to the scene of the tragedy, but he was far from imagining an answer when he drew rein in the drive before the house and confronted the tear-stained faces of the household. Silently he listened to their recital of the occurrence, which added nothing to what he had already learned from Lucy.

"The shot was fired through this window; the position of the wound proves as much, and the assassin probably fired from that clump of lilacs. See, it is a perfect line from there to the piano."

It was the doctor who spoke.

"And has search been made that way?" asked Uncle Amos, waving his hand in the direction of the lilacs.

"Every foot of the ground has been gone over clear to the road."

"And you have found—"

"Nothing. Absolutely nothing, except a broken stalk of the lilac bush."

"Broken, how?"

"With the hand, apparently. It is at about the height of a man and looks as though it might have been twisted aside and broken by some one hiding there who wished a clearer view of the house."

"And has any one touched it since?"

"Touched it? No."

"Then there is a way," Uncle Amos exclaimed. "See to it that no one disturbs the place until I return."

"But what are you going to do?"

"Get the bloodhound from the people at the old quarry and put him on the scent; arouse the neighborhood and run the scoundrel to earth."

Without further words he clambered into his buggy and, gathering up the lines, was whirled away into the lengthening shadows of the afternoon.

The sun had almost set when the buggy followed by men, women and children, all who were able to walk, again drew up before the door of Rose Gable. The great brute was lifted out and stretching its gaunt, powerful form after the cramping ride, rolled on the sofe, cool grass, like a puppy. And the crowd watched it in silence, awed by the thing they had come to do, standing in the shadow of this house of death. Guided by the doctor and Uncle Amos, the foreman, grasping the nail-studded leather collar of the dog, led him to the clump of lilacs, raised his heavy muzzle and laid it along the broken stalk. Mute surprise in the beast's eyes only. Further along, above the trace ture. An eager sniffing told that it understood, that it had the scent.

Dropped to all fours, the dog sniffed the ground eagerly, ran hither and thither, circled around the lilac bush, then, tossing its head high, with a long deep-chested bay, it laid its muzzle once more to the ground, and, dragging the quarryman who held it with a stout leathern thong, it set off across the lawn. It was on the trial.

And those who heard, thrilled with the savage music of that bay which awoke in their own breasts the latent savagery of the human beast. Their pulses beat to a faster measure, the righteous indignation of an outraged neighborhood, for the moment gave place to the fierce exultation of the hunters of wild beasts. Primeval man awoke in them and, scorning the chastening effects of centuries, rejoiced in the chase.

Eagerly the dog tugged at his collar, as eagerly the crowd of young and old pressed in its wake. Yes, here was where he got through the hedge. It could be seen plainly, the gap, now that the dog pointed the way. To the right along the lane as far as the stile; over this and across the fields by the footpath to the parsonage, straight on into the village. What stranger had passed through that day? Eagerly they asked each other the question. None could answer it. And the wonder grew as step by step the keen-scented dog tracked the footsteps of this unknown fugitive, followed them into the various familiar places in the village, the store, the blacksmith shop, the post office. Men looked at each other with wonder and suspicion. What did it mean? Eagerly the dog strained at his leash; quicker and ever quicker he dragged his keeper along. Again into the fields, back again into the village, then along the road, back to the house of death. Unerringly, without a moment's hesitation, the great beast tugged along, waking the echoes of the coming night with his deep-throated bay, which announced that he still held the trail and it was growing warm. Tense with the eagerness of the quest, they followed the hurrying dog, shrinking each from the other in the nameless suspicion fast growing in every breast.

Arrived at the lawn before the house, the hound turned promptly toward the lilic bush. But it did not go quite to it. At a point some dozen feet short of the shrub it turned off and headed again across the lawn toward the gap in the hedge. Again to the right, along the lane, over the style, across the fields. The dog was tricking the tracking party. Among those who followed this hunt for a man was the hunted man himself. Life-long friends eyed each other askance; in each face was a look writ by horror and trepidation, which to the superficial might appear the look of guilt itself. Each suspected his neighbor and felt himself suspected. Vain in the first universal uneasiness to seek to read the really guilty one. Nothing to do but to follow on this overriding trial, around and around until the end.

Back a third time to Rose Gable, the attendant followers now lengthened to a trailing que, as the dog pressed more eagerly forward, and the more infirm among the followers, lost ground, unable to keep up, though none dreamed of dropping out. Panting, nearly overcome, a little group brought up the rear, entering the grounds just as the head of the party, led by the indomitable hound, was emerging from the gap in the hedge. The man holding the leash stumbled and the dog, thrown forward by his own weight, overran the scent and for a moment was at fait. He had it again in a second, however, and with a bay of rejoicing resumed the tracking, but in the other direction. Back again to the gate of Rose Gable, back across the lawn, and with a snarl of rage the great beast tore itself free from the restraining hand that held him and sprang at the throat of Jasper Downes.

"And the sentence of the court is that you be taken back to the place where you have been confined and be kept there until the 28th of March, when you shall be hanged by the neck until you be dead. And may God have mercy on your soul."

The famous trial was over at last, and the villagers filed out of the courtroom, silent and awed; still under the influence of the impressive scene in which they had just played a part.

"Who'd 've thought it? Jasper Downes, of all men! Why, I'd 'most as soon 've believed it of myself."

It was Homer Gough who spoke to Uncle Amos, but he voiced the thought of the country-side, which had not yet recovered from the amazement into which the unexpected climax of the Rose Gable tragedy had thrown them. For Jasper Downes had lived all his life amongst them, beloved for his gentle nature.

"The human heart is a curious puzzle," said Uncle Amos. "There's never any telling what anybody'll do. You all know how Jasper loved his half-brother, and how he took that brother's going to the bad to heart. Of course he thought it was the wife's fault, and when he saw her living respected by the community, happy apparently, while his mother's son, the man he loved better than he loved his life, was an outcast and drunkard, he lost his head."

HELP THE GRADE SCHOOLS.

Minneapolis Tribune: The superintendent of the St. Paul public schools, who is in serious trouble because his teachers declare that they cannot teach the new fads pitchforked on to them without neglecting what little rational instruction they are able to give now, turns for help to the legislature. He calls attention to the new law providing for a special aid of $750 for high schools that offer courses in reading, writing, arithmetic, penmanship, literature, geography, American history, grammar and civil government. This aid, he says, should be given to the grade schools, where most of these things ought to be taught.

Of course he is right as to the fact. The new law represents a blind groping of an outraged public opinion for relief from the outrageous inefficiency of primary school teaching. Money is voted to the high schools in ignorance alike of their proper function and that they have usurped. High schools have no business to teach the elements of reading, writing, arithmetic, geography and grammar. What they ought to do is to give a kind of finishing course in practical education to students who have time to complete it. What they really do is to try to prepare students for college, thus sacrificing the real interest of all but a small percentage of their attendance. These elementary branches should no more be taught in high schools than in colleges.

But we doubt if it would do any good to take this $750 away from high schools and give it to grade schools, as Superintendent Smith suggests. The connection in which he makes the suggestion shows plainly that the law would only be feeding so much more money into the insatiate maw of faddery. He wants the money to pay for the industrial teaching from which his regular teachers recoil.

On general principles, we should be glad to see money diverted from the high schools to the grade schools; but this will do no great good until the grade schools learn to make better use of it. They are honeycombed now, not only with industrial and ornamental fads, but with fad methods in teaching serious and rational things. The way to help the grade schools is to teach them to use the money they have better instead of giving them more.

FIGHT FOR ORE LAND

State Claims Tract Adjoining Oliver Mine Is Swamp Land.

Scrip Location Made By Bradshaw and Smith of Superior.

St. Paul, June 15.—Before the United States surveyor general, E. S. Warner, Saturday afternoon was initiated proceedings by which the state of Minnesota is interested, and the state, through Assistant Attorney General C. W. Somerby took the first step in a controversy which, so the state's attorney declares, will, if necessary, be carried to the United States supreme court.

The matter at issue is the ownership of a very desirable tract of iron land on the Mesaba range, immediately adjacent to the Oliver mine, the state's most valuable iron property. This tract which is legally described at lot No. 1 of section 2, township 58 north, of range 19 west of the fourth principal meridian, Duluth land district, is claimed by the state as swamp land under the act of congress of March 12, 1860, and it has been selected and set apart by the general land office as indemnity for the state's grant of lands for charitable, educational and correctional institutions of the state.

It is estimated that if the state's claim is ultimately affirmed title will be vested in the state institutions fund will be enriched by not less than $1,000,000, as the tract is supposed to contain from four to five million tons of high grade ore, on which the state will receive 25 cents a ton in royalties.

Fully appreciating the importance of getting the land for the state, State Auditor S. G. Iverson and Attorney General Douglas have determined to use their best efforts to combat the efforts of the persons who are seeking to secure the title from Minnesota, and Saturday marked the first step in what promises to become a celebrated case.

The history of the peculiar tract of land briefly stated is as follows: Owing to irregularities in the government surveys of the north line of township 58, range 17, and the south line of township 59, range 17, in the year 1896, it was definitely ascertained that a narrow strip of unsurveyed land existed between these two townships. This strip was surveyed and platted, and when it was found the survey was corrected as to some minor particulars of a technical character in 1901, and the strip, containing approximately 320 acres and extending east and west for five miles, was officially designated fractional township 59½ north of range 17 west 4th P. M.

In the meantime several persons attempted to obtain the tract under homestead entry and scrip locations, the different claimants being finally reduced to the scrip location made by individuals represented by two residents of Wisconsin named Bradshaw and Smith.

When the plat of survey was filed in the state land office last year the fact was ascertained that lot No. 1 in section 6 in this fractional township, containing about thirty-six acres, was shown in the most unmistakable manner to be swamp land, and the first notes of the survey bearing out the evidence of the plot, Surveyor General Warner in the usual course of his duties selected the lot in question as swamp, and so certified it to the general land office at Washington.

This act stirred up the animals. The Wisconsin claimants succeeded in interesting United States Senator Foraker of Ohio in their case, and engaged J. R. Forsker, Jr., as their counsel to push their claim in the department at Washington. They succeeded in persuading the acting commissioner of the general land office to issue instructions to Surveyor General Warner directing him in effect to rescind his action in the swamp land tract and to either cancel or affirm his former selection—an unprecedented and unusual proceeding in the history of the state's swamp land affairs.

In accordance with these instructions, Mr. Warner gave the state and its opponents thirty days from May 15 last in which to submit briefs and evidence as to the character of the land in question.

State Auditor S. G. Iverson, on receipt of this notice, took the position that if the tract was really and truly swamp, the state is entitled to it and must have it, and if it is not swampy the state does not want it. He at once conferred with the legal department of the state, and on learning the facts, Attorney General Douglas emphatically agreed with the state auditor.

To satisfy themselves on this point, Mr. Iverson, accompanied by Assistant General Douglas and two competent surveyors, recently made a thorough and careful personal examination of the tract, and in the language of one of the state's surveyors, found it to be "one of the swampiest pieces of land in Minnesota." A description of which the state auditor fully confirms for he had the discomfort of falling into a boghole to his waist while making the inspection.

The results of this investigation were laid before Surveyor General Warner in the shape of a complete record of the facts containing a large number of exhibits, by Assistant Attorney General Somerby, who has given the case his exclusive attention, together with a brief and an oral argument in which he sets forth the state's case and claim in an expansive manner. C. S. Wilson, of Duluth, appeared for Mabel Evans, intervenor, who holds a mineral lease, from and under the state of Minnesota on the tract. Attorney General Douglas, by permission of the commissioner of the general land office, got five days additional in which to present the main argument for the state, the extra time being requested owing to the pressure of state legal business and prior engagements.

A brief for the contestants of the state's claim was filed with the surveyor general by John J. Skuse, an attorney of Duluth.

THE STAGE

The second week of summer opera at the Lyceum theater will open this evening, when the Northwestern opera company will present "Mikado" in its full glory of gorgeous chorus and charming principals.

The performance of this evening will be an event of some importance to the musically inclined people of Duluth, for at this time Miss Rena Smith, who has been a popular young singer here for some years, will make her professional debut on the operatic stage, and will probably take the result of this evening's performance, when she sings Peep Bo, one of the three little maids, as her guide for the future. The performance of "Mikado" at Superior Saturday night went off smoothly and enjoyably, and the opening performance tonight is expected to be a most entertaining one.

"The Mikado" is one of the most ideal summer operas, for it is such pretty and light entertainment, and with the chorus the Northwestern company possesses a performance of fine quality may be expected, as well as on account of the excellent voices among the principals.

The Lyceum has proved to be an ideal house for summer opera, for it is cool and fresh, even with crowded houses, and couldn't have been better if it had been built for the summer season, with its wide and roomy proscenium arch.

The performances are being chosen by Manager Walle in time for persons residing in the suburbs to get street car service, and also in time for cars for Superior. The bargain matinee will be given Wednesday.

Two weeks of summer opera have been concluded at the Metropolitan and tonight will mark the opening of the third week, when the funny "Mascotte," one of those popular comic operas of which one never tires, will be presented by the Wilburs. Miss Juliette Richardson will appear as "Bettina," Gus Vaughan as "Pippo," Miss Ethel Hunt as "Freddie," Charles Van Dyne as "Lorenzo," and W. A. McGraw as "Rocco." The play will be presented the first three nights and at the Wednesday matinee, at which performance all children under twelve years of age will be admitted to the playhouse free of charge and will be given an opportunity at the close of the performance to meet the three little Gardner children, the clever vaudeville artists. In all the specialties there will be complete changes of acts.

PURIFIES BY OZONE.

New Plan to Make Good Water Demonstrated.

Niagara Falls, N. Y., June 15.—Professor Otto of France on Saturday made a successful demonstration of the ozone process of purifying water. It was witnessed by fifty officials of this city and Lockport. An electric current of 50,000 volts was sent through a cylinder ozonizer through which air passed, and as the air met the electrical discharges the oxygen was burned, creating ozone. This ozone was carried to the sterilizing tower by two pipes. The unpurified water entered the tower at the top, and there, in spray form, met the ozone. As it flowed downward through the granite it again met the ozone, completing the process. It is stated that from thirty to forty electrical horse power will treat 6000 tons of water a day. Later Professor Otto will demonstrate the process before the leading scientists of the country.

LOWRY NOT A CANDIDATE.

Pays a High Compliment to Senator Clapp.

Washington, June 15.—The candidacy of Thomas Lowry for the United States senate, which has been considerably talked of recently, received a body blow in Washington Saturday from Mr. Lowry himself. He practically declared that he would not be a candidate. Furthermore, he paid a high compliment to Senator Clapp and said: "He is an able senator, has made a good record and performed his duty well since holding the office."

EXPLOSION OF OIL STOVE

Caused Fatal Burning of Brother and Sister.

New York, June 15.—Enveloped in flames from head to foot, Josephine Alonde, 19 years old, and her brother, Alphonse, 17 years old, were rescued from their blazing apartments in Brooklyn. Josephine died a few hours later at a hospital and the brother cannot recover. The accident was caused by the explosion of an oil stove which Young Alonde tried to fill while it was burning. The blazing oil instantly enveloped the brother and sister.

FOUR WERE DROWNED.

Montreal, June 15.—Pierre Suay, a caterer, took his wife and family of three children and a neighbor's child to Routiste for an outing yesterday. While rowing in a flat-bottomed boat, the craft capsized. Suay, his wife and two children were drowned. One of his children and the neighbors child were saved.

HONOR TO WESLEY

Methodist Churches Observe Second Centennial Anniversary.

Dr. Samuel F. Upham Delivers Interesting Address on Wesley.

The 200th anniversary of the birth of John Wesley, the founder of the Methodist faith, was commemorated yesterday in the eleven Methodist churches of the city, special services being held in honor of the event.

In the morning there were sermons at several of the churches on John Wesley, although as yesterday was also "children's day" the majority of the churches devoted the morning to children's day services.

At the First Methodist church in the morning, however, there was a Wesley class meeting led by H. M. Bradley, which was followed by the usual morning services with a sermon by Rev. Dr. Forbes.

At the First Swedish Methodist church the Emilon Methodist church, Lester Park and Asbury Methodist churches, special sermons on John Wesley and the growth of Methodism since his time were preached by the various pastors.

In the evening all the churches united in a union service at the First Methodist church. The seating capacity of the big auditorium was taxed to its utmost by those desirous of listening to the sermon by Rev. Samuel F. Upham, D. D., of Drew Theological seminary, Madison, N. J.

The pastors of the different Methodist churches of the city were present, occupying seats in the choir gallery. The following is the list of the congregations participating in the ceremony, together with the names of the different pastors: African Methodist church, G. B. Pipp; German Methodist, John F. Steiner; Norwegian-Danish, Olaf H. Wilson; Swedish Methodist, J. A. Anderson; Asbury Methodist, J. C. Hartley; Endion Methodist, J. W. Powell; First Methodist, Samuel P. Long; Grace Methodist, H. W. Knowles; Lester Park Methodist, C. F. Davis; Oneota Methodist, E. K. Copper; Proctor-knott Methodist, E. R. Stevenson.

The program was opened by the playing of Mendelssohn's beautiful "Andante Tranquillo" by Mrs. McKindley, the organist. This was followed by the singing of Wesley's well-known hymn, "Father of all whose Powerful Voice——."

Rev. Henry Westen, D. D., L. L. D., president of the Crozier Theological seminary of Chester, Pa., and one of the most noted Baptist divines in America offered a brief prayer. Rev. Mr. Weston is the father of Dr. John H. Weston, of this city, and is in Duluth for a short visit with his son.

The response followed, after which Miss Mary Bradshaw rendered the solo, "In the Night All by Some Shrill Bee of Hive."

The lesson, which was taken from Psalm cii, was read by Rev. Dr. Robert Forbes, assistant secretary to the board of church extension.

After the offertory, "Pastorale," by Durand, Rev. Samuel F. Upham rose to deliver the anniversary address.

Dr. Upham is a very fluent and eloquent speaker and not lacking in wit. He spoke for nearly an hour on the life and character of John Wesley, during which time the vast congregation sat silent, enthralled by the eloquent and masterly address of the speaker.

"At this date we have no conception of the work created in England by the preaching of Wesley," said Dr. Upham. "Who is Wesley?" and 'What claim has he upon the world today?' are two questions which we must answer. In order to portray the character and life of a man a noted writer has told us that we must go back one hundred years before his birth.

"What were the conditions in England, socially, religiously and politically one hundred years before the birth of John Wesley? What were the conditions at the time Wesley was born in 1703? At least I may say they were peculiar and critical.

"Oliver Cromwell died in 1658. There has been the widest diversity of opinion regarding the great Commoner. He has been most extravagantly praised and most severely censured. He has been called a mean, canting hypocrite who used his religion as a mantle to cover deep political schemes for his own personal aggrandizement. But later researches into his history by Carlyle and even our own President Roosevelt have brought his own words true which were uttered on his death bed, 'I know God has been over and above all evil reports concerning me and He will in his own time, vindicate me.'

"Cromwell died and Charles ascended the throne of England. Never had a monarch higher prospects for a glorious reign. The commonwealth had been broken up at the death of Cromwell and the people were anxious for a settled condition of affairs. Charles was popular and the people welcomed him with open arms. But he immediately began to plot for the overthrow of the liberties, religious and political, of his people. Two thousand preachers were given the choice between a comfortable home and a comfortable living or freedom of conscience and one-seventh, a stranger. But the news that the strange rider was John Wesley caused intense excitement in the little village. His advanced ideas were well known in the little town.

"He went to the parsonage and asked permission to preach the following day. It was indignantly refused him, but he attended the church only to listen to a fierce denunciation of enthusiasm in re-

The Tyfold Collar

The picture shows how the collar is cut out on each side to allow for adjusting a neck tie without springing the collar open. The collar comes close together in front, it keeps the tie in place and you don't see the cut-out part. Besides the tie is retained just over the button, which is also kept out of sight. nounced that John Wesley would preach that afternoon at 2 o'clock from his father's tombstone in the little cemetery building. Crowds came from miles around to hear him. This sermon from the grave of his father marked the real beginning of Methodism. He started out on the path he had chosen and he never turned back.

"He was persecuted, but his courage never faltered. He was misrepresented, rumors being spread about that he was a Spanish agent, that he was a thief and an embezzler, but he paid the same attention to these rumors that the moon does to the farmers' dogs which bark at it.

"He was generous. When his income was £30 a year he lived on £28 and gave the remainder to the poor. Later it was increased to £90. He still lived on £28 and gave the remainder to the poor. Such continued to be the case when his salary was increased to £250. Shortly before his death in answer to an accusation that he was hoarding up money received from his followers, he made the statement that he had never put one penny out at interest in his lifetime.

"He was a great scholar. A noted German once said: 'Give me eighty years of life, and I will read every book that is worth reading.' John Wesley did not say this. He did it. When he grew old and a carriage was furnished him by his friends, he had a bookcase and writing desk placed in it and occupied the time spent in driving from place to place in study.

"He was a great preacher. Many there are who will dispute this statement. But let me tell you that those dry, prosy sermons which he wrote were intended for the education of his followers. They were not the stirring appeals made to the people.

"He was an autocrat, some say. He was and it had to be so. Otherwise the great body which he organized would have gone to pieces. He said come to a man and he came. He said go and he went. Wesley had the brain and will of a leader and an organizer. He called his preachers together for a conference, heard their opinions and then did exactly as he pleased. It was his deep sagacity, amounting almost to prescience, that organized Methodism and brought it through the feeble years of its early life.

"England is as much interested in Wesley as it is in Shakespeare.

"Wesley was instrumental in bringing England through one of the most critical periods in her history. He introduced Methodism at one of the greatest crisis in her history and saved the country from the horrors of revolution."

The services, commemorative of anniversary of Wesley's birth, will be continued this evening. A number of prominent speakers will be present and address the audience, Governor Van Sant will present an address on "Methodism and the Growth of the Nation."

Rev. Dr. Forbes will speak on "The Methodist Pioneer," and Rev. E. C. Clemans on "Evangelistic Work of Methodism." Rev. Samuel F. Upham will speak again this evening, taking for his subject "Methodism and Education." Rev. W. Case will present an address on "The Methodist Church in Heathen Lands."

Neither yesterday nor today is the exact anniversary of Wesley's birth, but the various cities throughout the country are celebrating the event at different dates in the month of June. Wesley was born on June 29, 1703, but the exercises are being held at times which best suit the convenience of the various churches.

DESTRUCTION OF TREES

The Cause of Desolation In Many Countries.

New York, June 15.—Rev. Dr. Frank Oliver Hall, preaching in the Church of the Divine Paternity upon "God's Revelation Through the Trees," has declared that the desolation now apparent everywhere in Palestine, Asia Minor, and other countries, is due to the destruction of the trees. He said:

"There is the same story all the way around the Mediterranean, and we may trace the path of civilization by the desolation it has left. If we could know the full truth about the garden of Eden, suspect we should find that a man was cast out of the garden not because he ate of the fruit of the tree, but because he cut the tree down. And here in America we are doing the same thing. We send out portable sawmills and each year a territory equal to that of Maryland is stripped clean of trees. We can already see the barrenness in New England, and now we are carrying out the same policy in Michigan, Wisconsin and elsewhere. The evils of flood and drought follow."

SEIZED FLOTILLA.

Gen. Sylveras Took Possession of Revolutionary Boats.

New York, June 15.—Gen. Sylveras has seized the revolutionary flotilla at Acre and used one of the boats to send his ill soldiers to Manos, says a Herald dispatch from Rio Janeiro. Several officers and men died during the voyage.

Gen. Placido Castro will soon sail for Rio Janeiro to explain his actions. The government ministers of war and foreign relations recently held a conference on this subject. Word has been received from Amatu, the territory in dispute between France and England, that the inhabitants of the Brazilian region attempted to cause a revolution and proclaim their independence as a state. The authorities frustrated the plot.

Duluth Defeats Crookston In Saturday and Sunday's Games.

More Disappointments as to the Acquirement of New Players.

Superior	4	17	.190

Great things happened at Bemidji yesterday when Duluth beat Crookston in a postponed league game, taking the series and getting a running start for third place.

Gehring's pitching was wonderful, keeping Crookston down to four scattered hits. Had he been given good support Crookston would not have scored.

Freeman was not hit hard but the Cardinals managed to accumulate their hits when most needed.

"Szimsey" Girard, the old-time Duluth catcher, wore the Cardinal uniform in the place of Doar, who was injured in Saturday's game. He caught a fine game and just to show that he was still a ball player in the way-up class he rapped out a triple. Not a base was stolen on him. The score by innings.

It was the opening of a new ball park at Bemidji and fully 2000 people enjoyed the fine exhibition. The infield is far better than the Duluth infield.

Another disappointment. After accepting Duluth terms, Disch and Hubbard, the famous Racine battery, say they prefer playing independent professional baseball to being tied up in any league, and Manager Van Praagh has notified the national association of their action in accepting terms and then turning the home team down, which means that this battery will either play here or remain in slow company at small salaries.

Duluth and Superior are to play each other all week. Today, tomorrow and Wednesday they are across the bay. Thursday, Friday and Saturday over here. The Cardinals are in hard luck. Mumsy and Doar are crippled and the failure of Disch and Hubbard to report here puts the team in poor condition. Gehring, Shaw and Merkle were depended on to do the pitching and a new catcher from Iowa is on his way here.

* * *

Little Breyette's playing at second base for Crookston comes pretty near being fast enough for the big league. On Saturday he had one error in eleven chances and his unassisted double play this inning was a fielding feature of the game.

* * *

The ground rule permitting only two bases on certain hits over the left field fence at Athletic park deprives Kennally of about four home runs a week. On Saturday he had three doubles in this direction.

* * *

Duluth won and lost Saturday's game several times, finally winning it for keeps in the last half of the tenth inning.

Shaw pitched a good game, but was given poor support. In the fifth inning Doar had his hand split by a foul tip and Kennally caught the game out. The big first baseman worked nicely behind the bat, but was not much stuck on the new job.

Crookston tied the score in the ninth. In the tenth with one man out, Quillan drove out a double and Lyon brought him in with the winning tally by a scorching single. The score:

It took twelve innings to do it, but Grand Forks beat the Champions at Winnipeg in a nice game Saturday. The attendance was 3400 and Winnipeg is certainly the banner city of the league. The score by innings:

Yesterday afternoon a large crowd of Duluthians saw Superior and Fargo play an exhibition game at West Superior. It was a fierce performance and the local fans were expressing the hope that Superior would perform as badly as in the games with the crippled Cardinals this week. The score by innings:

Beebe, who pitched Saturday for Crookston, was the star twirler of the university of Illinois team. Higgins was also from Illinois.

The Mueller-Burns deal is off. Manager Lycan agreed to give Outfielder Burns and another player for Mueller, but when asked to deliver the goods, Manager Lycan said he would if Duluth would take Burns alone and permit him to play with Crookston in yesterday's game. This proposition was turned down cold.

* * *

Mueller will probably pitch for the Cardinals in today's game at West Superior and either Daniels or Morrison for Superior.

President Laxdahl has ruled on the portests before him as follows:

Game played May 21 between Grand Forks and Crookston, at Grand Forks, and protested by Manager Lycan, of the Crookston team. Protest overruled.

Game played between Winnipeg and Superior, at Winnipeg, May 22, protest filed by Manager Keefe, of the Superior team, protest sustained and game to be played over the first time Superior is next in Winnipeg.

Game played between Superior and Crookston, at Crookston, on May 29 and won by Crookston, 6 to 2. Protest filed by Manager Keefe, of the Superior team. Protest overruled.

Game played between Duluth and Grand Forks, at Duluth June 4. Protest filed by President Bryan, of the Duluth club. Overruled.

Game played between Winnipeg and Superior, at Superior on June 4. Protest filed by Superior Baseball club. Protest overruled.

Game played between Crookston and Fargo, at Fargo on June 5. Protest filed by Fargo Baseball association. Protest overruled.

Game played between Grand Forks and Duluth, at Duluth, June 5. Protest filed by Grand Forks Baseball association. Protest overruled.

AMONG THE AMATEURS

Oliver Team Victorious Over Pittsburg Men—Universal Millers Win.

The ball-tossers from the offices of the Oliver Iron Mining company demonstrated their superiority over the "crew" from the Pittsburg Steamship company Saturday afternoon, defeating the marine men by the score of 13 to 4. The game was played on the old driving park and a large number of rooters for both teams were present. The miners succeeded in defeating the Duluth, Missabe & Northern aggregation a week ago, and they now claim the championship of the steel corporation building.

Oswald and Curley were in the points for the winners, and Allen and Porter for the losers. Oswald for the miners pitched a very pretty game, and the victory was largely due to his good twirling, although he was given strong support by the field and the receiving end of the battery.

The Marshall-Wells baseball nine received a terrific drubbing at the hands of the Universal millers yesterday afternoon on the grounds at Thirty-second avenue west. The score was 11 to 1 in favor of the millers. Stockman was easy for the millers and he was touched up for twenty safe hits, while the hardware men could only secure eight off Schueler. The third innings was the Waterloo for the Lake avenue men. Twelve men came to bat for the millers in this innings and eight of them scored. The score by innings is as follows:

PREFERRED TO MOVE

Sterling Tailors Considered It Cheaper Than to Pay Rent.

Landlord McKay Objected and a Hot Session Was the Result.

A farce comedy was enacted at the corner of First street and Fifth avenue west, late Saturday night that several times threatened to develop into a tragedy of no mean proportions. There was one long act which lasted from about 10 o'clock until 3 o'clock and there were several spasms of varying intensity, which greatly heightened the interest in the event.

The affair grew out of an attempt of a concern known as the Sterling Tailors to move out of the westerly store in the McKay building, between two days without the usual formality of paying the rent. Landlord McKay objected to this unceremonious departure and concluded that the tailoring concern ought to leave sufficient of their goods to satisfy the modest claims which he had for rent.

It appears that the head of the Sterling Tailors is a Mrs. Miller, whose residence is Superior, where the concern has another store, and the manager for her on this side of the bay was a Mr. Berry. Associated to a greater or less extent with the tailors is the husband of Mrs. Miller, and it was Mr. Miller who on Saturday night concluded that it was time to move. He secured a large van sufficient in size to carry away the stock and fixtures in the establishment, from Superior, and proceeded to pack up.

About this time Landlord McKay became cognizant of what was going on and acted promptly. While Miller was packing up his goods, Mr. McKay slipped an extra key in the lock of the store from the outside and turning it held the tailor a prisoner as far as any means of exit from the front was concerned.

Mr. Miller was naturally angry and he informed the landlord that if he would let him out he would promptly proceed to punch his head. The genial hotel man was obdurate however and refused to accept the invitation, in the meantime keeping a firm hold on the key in the outside that it might not be pushed through.

This was the situation from about 10 to 11 o'clock. The tailor on the inside continued to pack his goods, the Superior teamster patiently awaited orders and Mr. McKay held on to the key, which was in the lock. Shortly after 11 o'clock, the landlord placed a trusted man in charge of the key and proceeded to take legal action in the matter. Securing the services of an attorney papers were drawn up and under the conditions of the lease, which provided, it is understood, that possession of the premises could be taken for non-payment of rent, and an officer was sent up from the police station to serve them. Mr. Officer did not seem to enter very heartily into his work, but after a consultation with the attorney proceeded with the service of the papers.

He notified Mr. Miller that he was there as the representative of Mr. McKay and would hold shop and goods. During all these proceedings there was a crowd of interested spectators hovering around the outside of the building, and among them was one Joseph Ryan, a former detective, and who considered himself well versed in the law. After the officer had served the papers on Mr. Miller, for some reason or other he left the store for a few moments. This was Mr. Ryan's opportunity, and stepping inside he told Mr. Miller that the papers were not legal, in fact they were worthless. Quicker than a flash Mr. Miller had the front door open, and with the assistance of said Ryan, began rapidly piling his stock on the sidewalk. The stock was not large, and it was moved fast.

Just as the sewing machine and the last piece of goods were deposited on the bricks, Mr. McKay, attorney and policeman appeared. In the meantime the Superior teamster had backed his van up to the sidewalk, and loading was about to commence.

Landlord McKay stationed himself between the goods and the van and declared that not as much as a thread should be placed in the vehicle. Mr. Miller, on the other side of the goods and with a three-foot club in his hands, insisted that the stuff was going over to Superior forthwith. Mr. McKay wanted the goods taken back to the store and demanded the officer to take care of the property placed in his charge. The valiant guardian of the peace was not sure of his authority in the matter and stood undecided. Miller said that if the goods went back into the store they would go over his dead body, and there was every indication of a lively rumpus.

For a few minutes things remained in statu quo, and then suddenly cloth and clothing began to fly back through the doorway into the store. Miller rushed back to the door and as fast as the stuff came in he threw it out. The landlord forced the issue, and in a second, auto proprietor and tailor were mixed up in a rough and tumble squabble on the floor. The gallant officer looked on.

Fortunately no blood was spilled, and Miller, the tailor, took possession of the door and declared that anybody that closed it must first make him a subject for the undertaker.

A funny thing happened at this time. While the tailor was guarding the door to prevent any more goods coming in, the landlord and a corps of faithful assistants were picking up the goods from the sidewalk and rushing them into the store by way of the First street entrance of the hotel. The climax was capped when a bonfiance seized the top of the sewing machine and quickly had it back into the store via the side entrance.

The situation was becoming strained. Repeated telephone calls were sent to Chief of Police Troyer by the officer who was there and did not know what to do. The chief, however, was not forthcoming, realizing, evidently, that the whole thing was a civil matter, and it was not proper for him to "butt in."

There were many amusing incidens and several clinches. One of the funniest was over a pair of trousers. Landlord McKay secured one leg and Legal Adviser Ryan the other, and there was a regular tug-of-war to see whether the pants should go into the store or stay out. They went into the store.

Finally Miller was forced from his position and the door was closed with the tailor, as pugnacious as ever, on the inside and also the landlord and the attorney. The policeman was walking around helplessly and frequently telephoning for guidance. The adviser of the tailor, Mr. Ryan, was considerably in evidence and rendered himself rather obnoxious to the hotel man, who cast him from the corridors of the hostelry or two or three occasions. This did not suit Mr. Ryan, who bobbed up again, and he was promptly taken in charge by the officer, who was doubtful about his duty, and the last seen of the twain was their disappearance down Fifth avenue on the way to the patrol box.

Time passed and Mr. Miller, the tailor, remained in the store, and also a representative of the landlord. The goods were still there and the Superior teamster remained outside with his big van charging up a dollar an hour for his services. A young man, who had been more or less officious during the proceedings, was inside the store, and Miller took him to be the representative of the sheriff. He said he wanted to get out for a minute or two, and asked if he could get back. The young man assured him that he would not stop him, and out the tailor went. He never got back. When he returned the door was locked against him. Things remained that way over Sunday, the keys of the establishment remaining in possession of the landlord.

This morning steps were taken toward carrying the matter into the civil court and it will next be heard from there.

Joseph Ryan was arraigned this morning in municipal court for disorderly conduct and pleaded not guilty. His hearing was set for Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock and he was held with bail fixed at $25.

BRIEF TELEGRAMS.

John Zelenka and wife, an aged couple, living at Montgomery, Minn., were instantly killed by being struck by the North Star limited on the Minneapolis & St. Louis railroad. They were struck as they attempted to cross the tracks.

Alfred Buele, of Beaver Dam, a prominent student at the state university and a member of the senior law class, was drowned while sailing on Lake Mendota Sunday. Arthur Curtis, the football player, and Wallace Benedict, of the Delta Upsilon fraternity, to which Buele belonged, nearly lost their lives in attempting to rescue him. Buele went over from a sudden lurch of the boat.

The entire business portion of the town of Hustler, Wis., a village on the Omaha railway, was destroyed by fire Sunday. The total loss is estimated at $30,000, partly covered by insurance.

A San Jose, Cal., representative of Porter Bros., is authority for the statement that an examination of the firm's affairs had been so satisfactory that the receiver will be withdrawn and business will be resumed.

A cloudburst between Columbus and Park City, Mont., sent a solid wall of water twenty feet high down Valley creek, which carried everything before it. A Northern Pacific bridge was wrecked and several thousand feet of roadbed rendered useless. Another cloudburst near Reed Point has flooded several miles of country along the Northern Pacific. Trains are tied up.

Newton Harris, a farmer who lived four miles from Pittsfield, Ill., was assassinated in the presence of his wife Sunday morning by an unknown man. The assassin escaped. No motive for the deed has been learned. Mrs. Harris describes the assassin as a short, stout man, with a big, black mustache. No trace of him has been found.

A CONSTANT WARFARE

Marked the Wedded Life of Alexander and Draga.

All the Elements of Brutality and Scandal Present.

The lives of King Alexander of Servia and the peasant Queen Draga read like a work of fiction. Ambition, intrigue, unbridled passions, coarseness almost brutal in its nature and an almost continual disregard or open violation of the commonest decencies were their chief traits, and ever since their ill-mated union their domestic relations were a scandal.

King Alexander was born on Aug. 14, 1876. His father, King Milan Obranowitz, so-called because he was the adopted son of Prince Michael Obranowitz, whom he succeeded on the Servian throne, was never anything more than an opera-bouffe ruler. He was the grandson of a swineherd, and in his mental make-up or conduct while on the throne, or off it, showed not a single redeeming quality.

Malodorous exploits, broken promises, shameless treatment of his wife and systematic political and social intrigues were the chief features of his character, and his conscience being never educated, he was distinguished above every other reprehensible trait for an utter lack of moral sense.

In 1872, when only 18 years old, Milan was crowned prince of Servia and promptly launched upon the life of dissolute gaiety which finally wrecked him. Two years later he married the beautiful Natalie Keenko, daughter of a Russian general, and his subsequent brutal treatment of her was, perhaps, the chief reason for the general execration with which he was regarded, both by his subjects and abroad.

Not long after his marriage, Milan changed his title from prince to king and made his palace at Belgrade one of the most notoriously malodorous in Europe. He squandered his wife's fortune upon his favorites, mostly women, and surrounded himself with a multitude of political adventurers, social outcasts, mountebanks and demi-mondaines.

His liaisons soon became the byword and reproach of Europe. First there was a scandal over his relations with Madame Alexiejavitch, Queen Natalie's chief lady-in-waiting. Following this were scandalous reports connecting his name with other women of the court, including the wife of the Greek envoy and the wife of his own private secretary.

These liaisons and others completely prostrated the queen, who was not only treated with brutal coarseness by her husband, but with indifference and insolence by the king's favorites. She naturally rebelled against such outrageous treatment, and the result was that Milan, exercising his royal prerogative, obtained a divorce and drove Natalie from his kingdom.

After vainly attempting to regain the good will of his subjects, which he had forfeited by his glaring excesses, Milan in 1889 abdicated in favor of his only child, who was proclaimed King Alexander I.

Milan next went to Paris, where he continued his career of depravity for two years. Then he came back to Servia, unless but determined to make himself as disagreeable as possible. The regency appointed during the minority of his son gave him $200,000, and he left, promising never to return. This promise, like hundreds of others, he broke, and, exacting $400,000 from the Servian government, he renounced all claim to the throne, not only as a member of the royal house, but also as a Servian subject.

In 1898 he patched up a reconciliation with Natalie, and a year later his son permitted him to return to Belgrade, where he behaved so badly that he was exiled once more. He then went to Vienna, where he tried to incite a revolt against his son, but was prevented by the czar. He died in the Austrian capital on Feb. 11, 1901.

It was in August, 1901, that King Alexander was married to Madame Draga Maschin at Belgrade. This woman, who had been an attendant on Queen Natalie, and who was thirteen years older than the young king, was of most obscure origin. Her father was a simple policeman, and she was then the widow of Svetoza Maschin, a mining engineer, by whom she had three children.

Her first marriage was a most unhappy one, her husband ending it all by committing suicide. After his death she was reduced to very straitened circumstances. Later she became a protege of the court and entertained lavishly. The members of the diplomatic corps and others flocking to her receptions and soirees.

Whether she exercised the spell of her undoubted beauty upon the king or not, the young monarch became infatuated with her and, despite the opposition of his mother and the almost open hostility of his subjects, made her his queen.

For a short time the ill-mated couple lived happily together. Then the true character of each developed itself, and until the terrible the palace at Belgrade was a pandemonium of passions. Quarrels between the royal pair became the normal order of things and scandals became so thick that at length they ceased to be regarded other than as a mere matter of course—an almost necessary adjunct of the daily lives of king and queen.

Many times the king was reported to have slapped Draga's face, and more than once it was said, she had attempted suicide, by poison and the knife, owing to the brutal treatment of her husband. Once it was said that Alexander had discovered a court chamberlain in the private apartments of his wife, but the palace scandals had, as a rule, less to chronicle of marital infidelity on either side than of pure and inherent brutality on the part of the king, or intrigues, overweening vanity and an ever-absorbing ambition and a constant display of vulgar insolence on that of the obscurely-born queen.

Like the czar and the king of Italy, it was Alexander's ambition to have an heir to the throne and perpetuate the dynasty. The Queen also felt the want of an heir keenly and, it is alleged, concocted the plan to palm off the child of another woman as her own.

Whether this be true or not will probably never be known, but one day the Servian parliament was astounded by the attendance of the king and the announcement he made from the throne, that he expected, with God's help, that his wife would shortly present the kingdom with an heir.

Just at this time the sister of the queen, who resided some distance from the capital, looked forward to the coming of the stork. To this woman Queen Draga went and permitted the impression to go abroad that she was to become a mother.

The greatest secrecy had been observed, but a few persons necessarily were in the queen's confidence. They were those persons she could trust implicitly.

It was a fateful moment for her majesty as well as for the nation. The accouchement was watched for eagerly all over the kingdom, for news of that sort spreads rapidly. The nervous condition of the two sisters was pitiful, and in the case of one may account for the sad climax.

The infant, a boy, did not live. The plot—if such it was—failed.

The disappointment to King Alexander and his people was intense. The former had looked forward to the advent of an heir with anxious expectancy, and the latter were prepared to condone many objectionable phases of his character in view of the succession being removed from the realms of doubt.

If Queen Draga had not deliberately planned to palm off her sister's child as her own, and was guiltless of any offense in this respect, she was probably as much disappointed as her husband, as it is said that the physicians she consulted, including one sent by the czar, had informed her that some physical conditions antecedent to maternity were indicated in her case.

The queen's reputation, however, was such that the Servian people had no faith in her protestations of innocence of a plot. Of the commonest of the common people she was detested because no royal blood flowed in her veins, and though the same reproach, if reproach it be, applied to Queen Natalie, the sufferings and the unimpeachable virtues of the latter had endeared her to her husband's subjects.

That the married life of Alexander and Draga should have been a continual tempest of passion was, perhaps, not only natural in the circumstances but almost inevitable.

Alexander was, if not actually a degenerate, little short of it. His appearance was actually repulsive. With prominent black eyebrows, scarcely any forehead and a mass of black hair, always unkempt, he presented somewhat of the appearance of the typical savage. In addition his eyes were weak and deep sunk, his nose small and hooked, he was round shouldered and knock-kneed and in many other respects displayed symptoms of moral and physical degeneracy.

His mental deficiency brought him to somewhat of the level of the imbecile type, but he was not without a large degree of low cunning, often mistaken for intelligence.

The queen, on the other hand, was in some respects a masterful woman. She had the advantage over her husband of age and experience, and there is much reason to believe that when she married him she was determined to reign as ruler of the Servians.

There is no record to prove that she set her wiles to captivate the young and presumably impressionable king. But that she did Natalie, her mother-in-law and former mistress, had no doubt.

She knew something of Mme. Maschin, as she was called then. She knew that if she set about winning her young son she would succeed.

And so she did, and so their fitful and waning life has ended in their tragic death.

Of the erstwhile Madame Maschin's ambition there can be no doubt. She first had the ambition to sit as consort on the throne of Servia and, failing in giving an heir to Alexander, developed the ambition of securing for her brother, as lieutenant in the Servian army, the succession to the throne. For this she intrigued with ministers and other influential dignitaries, and possibly might have succeeded although the proposal was most distasteful to the Servian people—had not the Russian government interfered.

One of the greatest slights ever put upon Queen Draga, and the one she felt most bitterly, was that of the czarina. Notwithstanding that King Alexander and his father were recognized by the sovereigns of Europe as the legitimate rulers of Servia, they were never regarded on an equality, and many overtures made by King Milan, and repeated by his successor, to visit the courts of the czar, the kaiser or the Austrian emperor were invariably futile.

Some months ago, however, the Russian foreign minister passed through Belgrade, en route to Vienna. As it was necessary to Russian diplomacy to cultivate better relations with Servia, in view of a probable outbreak in the Balkans, the minister visited the Servian court.

While there the subject of a visit of Alexander and Draga to St. Petersburg was broached, and the minister was said to have given the assurance that both would be cordially received by the czar and czarina.

This assurance threw king and queen, the latter especially, into an ecstacy. To be received by the czar of Russia on terms of equality was more than the former peasant woman had ever dared hope, and immediately the wires from Belgrade flashed the intelligence to the world that the king and queen of Servia intended, on the invitation of the czar, to visit the Russian capital.

But Alexander and Draga were doomed to a bitter and ever-stinging disappointment. The czar shortly after intimated to the Servian minister that a postponement of the visit was desirable, and subsequently it was found necessary to abandon it.

Queen Draga had made elaborate preparations for the journey and had purchased in Paris some gowns that cost a fortune. When she was told officially that the visit was "off" and that the czarina had positively refused to meet her her rage knew no bounds, and it is said that, bursting into a flood of tears, she tore to rags her newly imported gowns.

CAPTAIN'S WIFE WAS DROWNED

One Fatality In Wreck of the Schooner Thomas.

Portland, Me., June 15.—One life was lost by the wrecking of the five-masted schooner Washington B. Thomas, of Thomastown, Me., on Stratton's island, four miles off Old Orchard, in the gale of Friday night while bound with 4000 tons of soft coal from Norfolk, Va., for Portland. The wife of Capt. W. J. Lermond, to whom he was married a year ago, was killed by the immense waves breaking in the cabin. Her body was washed away in the darkness and has not been recovered. Capt. Lermond and the crew of thirteen men were rescued yesterday by a volunteer life-saving crew. One seaman had a leg broken and the captain, engineer and four seamen were badly bruised. The Thomas was broken up and practically is a total loss. Tons of wreckage were washed ashore at Old Orchard.

The Thomas was anchored Friday night off Stratton's island and at midnight drifted from her anchorage onto the island. Without a moment's warning there came a crash as the schooner went on the rocks. Mrs. Lermond, her stepson, and the first mate's son were in the cabin, but took refuge on the roof of the deckhouse. Her husband and the crew protected her as well as they could, but nothing could withstand the fearful seas and she was forced to return to the cabin. The rushing waters broke the bulkhead separating the state room from the saloon partition, knocking Mrs. Lermond senseless. Capt. Lermond tried to drag his wife to the companion way, but the inrushing flood swept her from his grasp and she was lost in the darkness. The captain and the two boys worked their way to the forecastle, expecting that everybody forward had been lost, but found all safely sheltered there, although badly bruised and injured in their struggle for life.

The men were all taken off after midnight yesterday morning by a crew from the Cape Elizabeth life-saving station and a number of volunteers, the work being most hazardous.

ASSAULT ON SHIPBOARD.

South Haven, Mich., June 15.—Three young men, it is alleged, attempted to rob and murder Benjamin Franklin, of Chicago, while on board the steamer Kalamazoo in the midle of Lake Michigan Saturday night. Franklin says he was walking outside the cabin when he was assaulted by the men, who attempted to rob and throw his body into the lake. He fought himself free and notified the steamship officers, who accompanied him back to where the fight took place. Upon the arrival of the boat at this harbor the men were arrested and turned over to the sheriff, who took them to the county jail at Paw Paw.

HOLDS ITS PLACE

Cotton Still King In Export Records of United States.

Value of Raw Cotton Exported This Year Exceeds Record.

FROM THE HERALD WASHINGTON BUREAU.

Washington, June 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—Cotton is still king in the export records of the United States and its record in the present year is likely to surpass that of any preceding year. The value of raw cotton exported in the 11 months ending with May is, according to the preliminary figures of the treasury bureau of statistics, $368,747,095, which is $5,000,000 in excess of the highest 11 months' record ever heretofore made. The highest 11 months' figures recorded by this preliminary statement in earlier years were for the 11 months ending with May, 1901, when the total stood at $363,-747,017. Should the June figures equal those of June in the immediately preceding years the total for the fiscal year would be $377,000,000, or $4,000,-000 in excess of the banner year 1901. The quantity exported this year is not as great as that of the years 1898 and 1899, but owing to the higher prices received the value is very much greater than that of those years, and, as already indicated, larger than that of the corresponding months of any preceding year. The total quantity exported in the 11 months ending with May, according to the preliminary statement, is 3,481,353,287 pounds, against 3,208,-621,478 pounds in the corresponding months of 1901, when the value was but $5,000,000 less than at the present time, and 3,721,316,000 pounds in 11 months of 1898, when the value was but $22,414,150. Thus the total quantity at the present time is 240,000,000 pounds less than that of the corresponding 11 months of 1898, but the value is $86,000,000 in excess of the value for the corresponding period of that year. The average price per pound of the cotton exported, determined by dividing the number of pounds into the value stated by the bureau of statistics records, is, for the 11 months ending with May, 1903, 8.87 cents, and for the 11 months ending with May, 1898, 5.27 cents.

Comparing the total values of the cotton exported with those of preceding years, it may be said that 1903 seems likely to show the largest total value in raw cotton exports of any year in the history of our commerce. In 1848 the total value of raw cotton exported was, in round terms, $62,000,000; in 1859, $192,000,000; in 1870, $227,000,000 in paper but $164,000,000 stated in gold; in 1880, $211,000,000; in 1890, $226,000,000; in 1900, $242,000,000; in 1901, $313,000,000; and, as already indicated, seems likely to be for 1903, $317,000,000.

Meantime the value of cotton exported in manufactured form has also increased and will make its highest record in the present fiscal year. The total value of cotton manufactures exported in the 10 months ending with April, is $27,832,559, indicating that the total for the full fiscal year will probably be about $34,000,000, against $32,-000,000 in 1902, $24,000,000 in 1899, $10,000-000 in 1890, $16,000,000 in 1880, and $4,-000,0000 in 187-.

At the same time the cotton manufactures of the United States have increased and are still increasing their consumption of cotton both from our own fields and from abroad. The total number of bales taken by the mills of the United States last year for the first time passed the 4,000,000,000 line, the figures being 4,083,000 bales, against 3,644,000 in 1900; 3,325,000 bales in 1890, 1,795,000 bales in 1880; and 857,000 bales in 1870.

Meanwhile the importations of foreign cotton, chiefly Egyptian, are growing with remarkable rapidity, the importations in the present year being likely to reach 80,000,000 pounds, to which may be added 20,000,000 pounds of "flocks," or cotton waste, with a total valuation of about $12,000,000, against 43,000,000 pounds of raw cotton and 78,000 pounds of waste imported in 1893, valued at less than $5,000,000.

SHOCK BY TESLA

To the Earth That Will Carry Wireless Messages.

Delay Due to Vastness of the Inventor's Purpose.

New York, June 15.—Is the secret of Tesla's "mystery tower," down on Long Island, at last out?

The authoritative announcement from Telsa last week that before the year is out he will "send wireless telegrams to the other side of the world" is believed to explain the purpose of this queer structure, which has been baffling the curiosity not merely of the natives, but of all the scientific world.

For more than a year this odd steel structure going up on the lonely beach far down on the island, has kept scientists guessing. Regarding it Tesla maintained the profoundest air of mystery. Now comes the announcement, authorized by Mr. Tesla himself, that he is soon to send wireless messages across the ocean.

That his undertaking is on a much vaster scale than that of Marconi is indicated by the authorized announcement which states that the failure of Mr. Tesla to perform the feat before now is that "progress toward fulfillment revealed possibilities so much greater that it was determined to aim at a higher mark." It is stated that the "Tesla oscillator" is to deliver to the earth the shock that will be felt and recorded at its uttermost confines."

Concerning this and the use to which his mysterious tower is to be put, Mr. Tesla still maintains secrecy. He was asked if the tower he is building at Warden Cliff is to be used for this purpose, and he smiled mysteriously and said:

"I have nothing to say. There is not one word to say about it, and I very much hope you will not mention it in the newspaper. Yes, it is quite a mystery, but it will come out in time. There is nothing whatever to say about the tower at present."

No questions would draw him out as to the probable time it will be finished. He refused to discuss that or the plans he has under way. The announcement referred to, while made, as it was said, on his authority editorially in a New York newspaper, was not given in his own language.

The Tesla tower stands on the loneliest section of the shore of Long Island, at Warden Cliff, near Wading river, at the northern end of the island. It is remote from towns, and if the inventor was seeking retirement from the inquisitive public he could not have hit upon a happier spot.

There he has purchased 200 acres and has constructed his laboratory, a long shed-like building. Standing near the western end of the laboratory is the tower. It is cone-shaped and 150 feet high, with round ball-like top. It is a network of steel girders fastened to four upright girders running up from the ground. The steel work was completed in January, and then the finer work of fitting it out with the necessary electrical appliances began.

The tower stands nearly opposite New Haven. The island is very narrow at this point, and from the top of the tower a fine view of the ocean is commanded across the flat neck of the island. No obstruction need be encountered in the transmission of electrical currents from the other side of the ocean to Tesla's tower. It is understood that when the tower is completed the laboratory, which is already in use, will do service as an operating room in sending messages.

The Tesla method of sending messages can only be inferred from the statement that the Tesla oscillator is to be used. That this is to be done in a radically different manner from that used by Sig. Marconi is understood by all the inventor's friends.

It has been known for some time that Mr. Tesla was at work on the problem of wireless telegraphy. It was expected before this that he would have announced definite results from his experiments. It is now explained that the delay is due to his launching his experiments on a much vaster scale.

In the many reports which have been circulated as to the purpose for which the tower is to be used, it has been stated that the tower was for signalling to Mars. This caused amusement among professional scientists.

THE SHAMROCKS ARRIVE SAFELY

Are Now Lying at Anchor Off Staten Island.

New York, June 15.—Safe and sound after a rough passage from Gourock, Scotland, of sixteen days and twenty-two hours, Sir Thomas Lipton's last challenger for the America's cup, the Shamrock III, is now lying at anchor off Tompkinsville, Staten Island, where she arrived at 10:20 yesterday morning in company with the steam yacht Erin, that had towed her most of the way across the Atlantic, and by the Shamrock I, towed by the British tug Cruiser. The 156 men which manned the yachts and their convoys are all well, and there were no accidents to mar the passage.

Between Gourock and Fayal, Azores, where the steamers stopped for coal, calms and squally weather was encountered. The Erin and her tow became separated from the Cruiser and the Shamrock I before reaching Fayal, but they never lost sight of each other after leaving there. On June 12 the yachts were caught in a gale from the southeast, and while it blew very hard and a heavy sea was running, very little water was shipped and no damage was done.

The tug Charles E. Matthews, in charge of H. H. Davies, met the yachts at daylight twenty miles east of Sandy Hook lightship. Pilots were put on board the Erin at sea and the Matthews towed the Shamrock III to quarantine, the Shamrock I being towed by the Cruiser.

The yachts passed Sandy Hook lightship soon after 6 o'clock yesterday morning. They were saluted by every vessel that passed them, all the way to quarantine. When they arrived the crews of the yachts gave three cheers for each other as they stood lined up on deck. Both yachts flew the pennant of the Royal Ulster Yacht club.

The new challenger is a far handsomer craft than either the Shamrock I or II. She looks not unlike the Columbia above the waterline, and her beam seems greater than either of these yachts. She tows easily, making very little broken water at the bow and leaving a clean wake. Her captain, Robert Wringe, says she behaved splendidly under all conditions of weather during the passage across the Atlantic. She is rigged as a sloop with a short bowsprit and a topmast over a short, stout lower mast. The Shamrock I has the same rig with the addition of a jigger mast aft. The latter steers with a tiller and the former with a small wheel.

DRIVEN TO DESPERATION.

Living at an out of the way place, remote from civilization, a family is often driven to desperation in case of accident, resulting in Burns, Cuts, Wounds, Ulcers, etc. Lay in a supply of Bucklen's Arnica Salve. It's the best on earth. 25 cents, at all druggists.

Rheumatism
"THE PAIN KING."

Those who have ever felt its keen, cutting pains, or witnessed the intense suffering of others, know that Rheumatism is torture, and that it is rightly called "The King of Pain."

All do not suffer alike. Some are suddenly seized with the most excruciating pains, and it seems every muscle and joint in the body was being torn asunder. Others feel only occasional slight pains for weeks or months, when a sudden change in the weather or exposure to damp, chilly winds or night air brings on a fierce attack, lasting for days perhaps, and leaving the patient with a weakened constitution or crippled and deformed for all time.

An acid, polluted condition of the blood is the cause of every form and variety of Rheumatism, Muscular, Articular, Acute, Chronic, Inflammatory and Sciatic, and the blood must be purged and purified before there is an end to your aches and pains. External applications, the use of liniments and plasters, do much toward temporary relief, but such treatment does not reach the real cause or cleanse the diseased blood; but S. S. S., the greatest of all blood purifiers and tonics, does cure Rheumatism by antidoting and neutralizing the poisonous acids and building up the weak and sluggish blood. It is safe and reliable in all forms of Rheumatism. It makes the old acid blood rich, and the pain-tortured muscles and joints are relieved, the shattered nerves are made strong, and the entire system is invigorated and toned up by the use of this great vegetable remedy.

HOTEL IS FIRED

Incendiaries Apply Torch to Ewen's House at Jackson.

Evidently In Revenge For His Testimony Against Jett.

Jackson, Ky., June 15.—At 6 o'clock yesterday morning, Joe Redman, a watchman at the lumber yards of Swann & Day, discovered flames issuing from the roof of Ewen's hotel, situated on the mountain side, 300 yards from the depot. The alarm was given and Lieut. Kinard, with a provost guard, turned out to render assistance. Soon hundreds of people were in the scene.

Heroic work on the part of the soldiers and citizens saved, possibly, the entire south side of the town.

The Ewen hotel is at the end of a long row of miners' cottages, all of which were in grave danger. When those in the hotel were notified the fire was under such headway that the guests who had not arisen had only time to save part of their clothing. The two grown daughters and Mrs. Ewen had been up late, having visited Capt. Ewen in the military camp.

John Carey, of Louisville, a telegraph operator, who was sent by the Postal company to Jackson to handle the matter sent to the newspapers during the feud trials, was asleep on the second floor. In the excitement, he was not awakened until the flames had shut off escape from the front stairway and he was almost suffocated while coming out of the rear stairway and fell unconscious and half dressed on the ground, when he finally freed himself from the danger. Mrs. Ewen and her children are poorly clad and lost everything. The hotel and furniture had been insured but only a week ago. Capt. Ewen was notified that on account of threatening conditions, the company had decided to cancel his policy. The house and fixtures were valued at about $10,000. They were the savings of a lifetime and Ewen and family the homeless and dependent on the hospitality of the troops in camp.

Gray and Jim Haddicks and Jerry Lantz, workmen at the Swann & Day lumber yard, reported having seen Joe Crawford and Ed. Thap, waggoners for the Hargis Bros., come across the bridge and return just before the blaze was discovered, and Maj. Allen ordered these men arrested. They were taken into the military camp by the soldiers and manacled in the guard house.

Gray Haddicks was retained by the provost guard as a witness. Soon the Hargis people were very active. They sent Attorneys John O'Neill, of Covington, and B. B. Golden, of Barberville, defending Jett and White, and swore out writs of habeas corpus before Judge Redwine, making them returnable at once.

The writs were served on Major Allen and he sent the prisoners to the courthouse under a heavy guard commanded by Captain Maddock. Commonwealth's attorney, Byrd, asked Judge Redwine for time for Major Allen to file a response. He asked that he be given until Monday morning, but Judge Redwine demanded that it be filed at once.

This was done and the attorneys argued the case before Judge Redwine. Two of the most interested spectators were County Judge Hargis and Sheriff Ed Callahan. The attorneys argued that the men were being unlawfully held by Major Allen as they were witnesses in the Jett and White cases for the defense. Attorney Byrd argued the case for the commonwealth and Major Allen against whom the habeas corpus proceedings were brought. Judge Redwine finally decided to admit the men to bail in $500 each. County Judge Hargis and Sheriff Callahan had bonds drawn up, but after a consultation between them and the lawyers they refused to sign the bonds and the men were taken by the soldiers inside their lines and are tonight manacled in the military guardhouse with a heavy guard on watch and strong outposts.

The grand jury meets Monday and Judge Redwine says these cases could be taken before that body. The Haddicks boys and Lantz fully identified the men and it is claimed that some members of the Ewen family saw them come out of the house. It is supposed they watched their opportunity and while the family were in the dining room rushed up the back stairs and threw a torch or a ball of rags saturated in oil into the garret and then made their escape. The men evidently knew the construction of the house. There was no fire in any of the flues in that section of the building. Howard Fulkz, a boarder, heard persons come up stairs hurriedly and run down again.

Crawford and Thap have both stopped at Ewen's hotel and were familiar with the building and the habits of the family.

The burning of Ewen's house fulfills in part the threat made by the man whom Ewen says called at his home last Sunday week ago, and offered to bribe him by giving him $5000 if he would alter his testimony.

Jackson, Ky., June 15.—The burning of Ewen's hotel is considered not only as incendiary, but also as necessary to other acts of intimidation, in connection with the pending trial of those accused of the murder of J. B. Marcum, who was an attorney for the contestants for the county offices, now held by leaders of the faction with which the defendants were identified. It had been openly predicted that arson would go along with assassination, as disciplinary measures might be needed in Breathitt county. It is now stated that other witnesses of the commonwealth were not propertyowners, but jurors who are farmers, and witnesses who could not be found when detachments of troops were trying to bring them into court are property owners.

The burning of Ewen's property not only has caused renewed fear for both life and property, but also has increased the general doubt of conviction of either of the prisoners.

Capt. H. J. Ewen was the chief witness for the prosecution in the pending trial of Curtis Jett and Tom White. He testified that he shot into Marcum's prostrate body as it lay in the court house doorway. Though fears for his own safety he testified that he did not dare to allow Sheriff Callahan and County Judge Hargis to know what he had seen. When it did become known he was first a prisoner in his home and then he fled to the country until he could have the protection of troops. His house had been under the guard of a detail of soldiers for several weeks as a more stringent precaution against assassination, he slept in camp at the provost marshal's headquarters.

Several days ago a man visited him at his home and made a proposition that if he would repudiate what he had testified on the witness stand, stating he testified to what was not true, because of the excitement he was under, he would be given $5000 by a certain prominent citizen, and if he did not accept this offer he would be assassinated. He encouraged his caller to return in the afternoon and stationed two witnesses in a closet, who overheard the repetition of the offer and threat, which was accompanied by five $1000 notes. No one has doubted that Ewen was in actual danger, but few were prepared for a step as desperate as that which came and it is generally believed that the incendiary fire was due to the statement made to State Inspector Hines about the attempted bribery as well as to Ewen's testimony.

STARTLING RESULT

Fake Safe-Blowing at the Lyceum Injures a Dozen People.

Coal Blown Into the Faces of Those In Front Row.

A startling incident "not down on the program" enlivened the proceedings at the performance of "Zig Zag Alley" at the Lyceum theater Saturday night.

A too-realistic safe-blowing act resulted in the painful, if not serious, injury of about fifteen spectators. While none of those hurt were in dangerous extremity, many of them bled profusely, and as they were all up toward the front of the parquet, where everybody could see them, consternation prevailed, and a panic was narrowly averted.

The safe-blowing incident is one of the funny things about the performance, only it is not usually quite so difficult to appreciate as it was to the fifteen victims Saturday night.

There is a safe on the stage, R. U. E., which is to be opened by a gang of robbers. The way it is done is that the property man shoots off a gun containing a blank cartridge behind the scenes, and blows the door of the safe open. The safe has no back.

The safe contains coal, which the robbers bear off in high glee. Saturday night the coal was blown out through the audience and some of the spectators bore it off in their skin.

The aspect of the situation immediately after the accident was horrifying in the extreme. Some of the people were cut very badly about the face and head and they bled copiously. Several of them turned gory faces to the remainder of the audience as they were led out, and the spectacle was terrifying. None knew just how badly they were injured, and the first thought was that some of the explosive had gone off in the audience. The victims looked badly hurt enough to be pretty nearly killed.

Many in the audience became frightened and sped out of the hall, while the injured people were conducted out to the Lyceum drug store and to physicians' offices upstairs in the Lyceum building. There their wounds were dressed and their faces cleaned, after which they went home.

The greater danger was of a panic. One was excusable, then if one ever was, for the sight of the injured people and the sound of the explosion was sufficiently terrifying. However, a few cool-headed ones who kept their wits about them quickly restored order. The show proceeded without stopping, almost as though nothing had happened and this had something to do with averting the threatened panic.

The accident was not unenlivened by amusing incidents. One woman who was badly cut about the head was carried out, covered with blood. Her hat was drenched with it, and when she recovered consciousness and discovered her damaged headgear she forgot her wounded head and exclaimed in misery:

"Oh, my poor, poor hat!"

Miss Maria McMillen, who was with George Vincent, suffered exceedingly from the shock. She fainted, and when revived and taken to the McKay hotel she fainted again. Medical attendance was summoned, and she was finally able to proceed home.

Most of the injured were sent home in carriages by the Lyceum management. Half a dozen were taken to the offices of Dr. S. H. Boyer, Dr. F. J. Patton and Dr. Linneman in the Lyceum building.

Manager W. E. Flack of the Zig Zag Alley company, thought the injuries were from flying splinters from the safe, which was made of wood, but there seemed little doubt that they were from flying particles of coal.

Today all the injured were getting along nicely, and so far as could be learned none of them were likely to be seriously affected. Those who suffered the worst were as follows:

George Vincent, cut on forehead.

L. Sinott, badly cut over left eye and lip.

Henry Schultz, cut on forehead and lip.

Oy Huggins, cut below right eye.

H. A. Outcalt, department manager of F. A. Patrick & Co., cut on forehead and right eye.

Miss Lena Young, cuts and contusions on lip and cheek.

Miss Ida Neumacher, severely bruised about head.

Rose Nolan, two cuts on forehead.

Samuel Poirer, cut about nose and cheeks.

Several others, more or less hurt, were unlearned.

WHEAT IS STRONG

All Markets Advance, Duluth Most, and St. Louis Trailing.

Flax Is Very Active and Market Has a Severe Slump.

Duluth Board of Trade, June 15.—All markets advanced today and Duluth led in the amount of the increase made in price, the September and July options being up 3c. Minneapolis September was up 2½-2⅝c, and July, 1⅝-2c. Chicago July was up 1⅝c and September 2c. St. Louis was trailing, the advance in both options there being only ½c. New York July had an advance of 1½c and September ¾c.

The opening in all markets was bearish, fine weather for crops having a bearish effect. The cables were higher, however, and the Hungarian crop report which estimated the lowest yield in six years had a strengthening effect. Then came a larger decrease in the visible than had been looked for and this added to the firmer feeling.

The cash demand was not very good, New York reporting only six loads of wheat worked for shipment.

The Liverpool market closed 3d higher, Paris 1@1½ higher, and Antwerp and Berlin unchanged.

The weekly grain rate to the lower lakes was advanced to 1¼c this morning, but there is little being chartered, there being not much to go out. Shipments last week were about 480,000 bushels of wheat and less than 80,000 bus of flax.

The world's shipments of wheat last week were 11,936,000 bus, against 12,228,000 bus the previous week and 7,400,000 bus last year. Of the shipments last week America furnished 4,184,000 bus; Russia, 2,880,000 bus; Danube, 560,000; Argentine, 2,008,000 bus and India, 1,760,000 bus. The amount on passage decreased 696,000 bus.

The visible supply of wheat decreased 2,767,000 bus, and is now 20,034,000 bus, against 23,570,000 bus a year ago.

Primary receipts of wheat were 460,800 bus; last year 685,967 bus. Shipments, 175,-267 bus; last year, 456,442 bus. Clearances were 100,800 bus.

Corn in the Liverpool market closed ½@⅝d higher. New York reported only five loads of corn worked for export, but Bartlett, Frazier & Co., of Chicago, reported accelerations of the loads. July oats continued firm closing a shade stronger.

Trading in wheat on the Duluth board was light, July opened 8c off at 75½c, and sold up to 80¼c at 10:50. It reacted to 80c at 11:03 and sold at 80¼c at 11:18. It held steady at that until near the close when it had another turn upward and closed at 80¾c. This was an advance of 5c. September closed with the same advance at 75¾c.

Cash sales were 25,000 bus at July price for No. 1 northern and 1½c under for No. 2.

Flax trading was very active and the market was again very weak. July sold largely at $1.10½, which was Saturday's close and then shunned off to $1.08, and closed at $1.08¼. This was a decline of 2¾c. The September and October options were not quite so weak declining 2c.

Following are the closing prices:

No. 1 northern, July, 80¾c; No. 1 northern, July, 80¾c; September, 75¾c; December, 71¾c. Flax in store, $1.07⅞; to arrive, $1.07⅞; on track, $1.08⅞; July, $1.08¼; September, $1.10; October, $1.10; November, $1.10. Oats to arrive, 34½c; on track, 34½@37c. Rye to arrive, 50c; on track, 50c. Barley, 35@57c.

Cars inspected: Wheat, 69; last year, 8; oats, 57; rye, 2; barley, 3; flax, 20; last year, 1.

Receipts: Wheat, 29,563; oats, 3254; flax 17,567.

Shipments: Wheat, 114,660; oats, 1206.

STOCK GOSSIP.

Logan & Bryan to Paine, Webber & Co.: The market is lower. It is a natural reaction after the sharp advance of last Thursday and Friday. The market has lost about half of its gain. No change in general condition and money continues easy. We do not look for anything like the semi-panicky conditions of a week ago. Good dividend paying railroads are selling on a fair basis. On any further weakness we think they should be bought. We do not look for anything in the way of a big bull market. Buy them on the breaks and the short interest will do the rest.

Dick to B. E. Baker: Market looks to me a buy. It has had a two to three point reaction and ought to be bought for a turn.

Waldorf to Coe Commission Co.: Profittaking by men who bought heavily on the recent break is in progress in the stock market and it is good opinion tonight that the reaction which this selling brought out at the close will go somewhat further. It is argued that the recovery from the mid-week has been somewhat rapid, the large interests are not in favor of an excited speculation, but sentiment is bullish for the pull and representative houses generally concur in the view that if the market goes off a point or two it will be a purchase. In the opinion of these observers one of the strongest points in favor of improvement is furnished by the commercial agendes weekly summary of trade developments. The latter show no indication of a serious industrial set-back. In fact the way business has withstood the effects of the bad weather, floods and strikes is a matter of comment in financial circles. Bank clearangs show that in spite of these draw-backs the volume of trade is greater than a year ago. Now operators for a decline in securities values have banked very confidently on a shrinkage in general business, none of their arguments having been more insistent of late than that Wall Street discounts bad times six months or more ahead of their actual developments. Professional speculaters beared stocks during the summer of 1898 and in the autumn tight money came to their rescue, resulting in a money panic in December, but the expected let up in business activity did not materialize. On the contrary every branch of industry continued to prosper, iron and steel more than any other. There is a growing opinion in high financial circles that reactionists may be as much mistaken in their diagnosis now as they were four years ago. Among the immediate influences at work marketwise are easier money, the favorable bank statement, the better outlook for the harvest of the big winter wheat crop and reports that at a conference of Pennsylvania, Western Union interests progress toward to a settlement was made.

McIntyre & Marshall to Paine, Webber & Co.: The action of the stock market in falling off so sharply this afternoon was a general disappointment, but it should not have been surprising in view of the fact that the sharp rally at the close of the week was mostly due to covering of shorts and the taking back of stocks which have been thrown over by commission houses and traders. The rally had been entirely too rapid. There was no substantial support of any importance and there was no news. We do not look for much further break at present but rather think speculation will become dull and drift into a traders' market for short quick turns, and we would favor purchases on any further decline for a moderate profit.

Dow, Jones & Co. to W. H. Laidley & Co.: We look for an irregular market today. The bears have promised to do a few things this week. The market has now reached a critical point. Outlook seems to favor a traders' market. We do not believe that large interests are prepared as yet to inaugurate a bull campaign, but all indications seem to agree that the lowest prices have been seen. We would, therefore, for present, buy only on weak spots and sell on strong ones. We are bullish on the Southern Pacific and Baltimore & Ohio, but almost any of the standard stocks may be bought for a turn in the event of any drives. London early market for Americans was heavy.

Ridgley to W. H. Laidley & Co.: After such a market as last Wednesday, the usual thing happens, a violent rebound, marked by heavy inside purchases and appearance of bargain hunters and covering of little shorts and buying by tardy outsiders, who are determined to have some of the good things before it is too late. After these come the real test the market takes its bearings. The interesting point is what comes after. If we could be sure that the force which has crushed the bear element was nothing more than manipulation then it would be quite evident that a good-sized bull campaign will follow. This, however, is not entirely clear. Protracted bull campaigns do not begin with advances of 5 to 10 points in two days without setbacks. If we are to have a bull market we ought therefore to get a reaction of about 3 points as indicated in Saturday's letter. Many big speculators who bought Wednesday were undoubtedly taking profits Friday and Saturday. Probably would be safe to buy until prices react about half of what they have advanced the last three days certainly before Tuesday. If such a reaction comes, it would be quite safe to buy freely. To sell anything short, however, would be unwise, because, all things considered, it is exceptionally strong and the market's gradual trend will be upward until July 3 at least, even if the grand swing is downward. I expect a good reaction today and tomorrow.

Walker Brothers to Paine, Webber & Co.: The market today was weak and there was quite a heavy selling. Traders caught many stops and bears seemed to have it all their own way. During the middle of the day the market was very dull, but before the close there was further selling and prices broke all around. There was no news of importance, but there was a general feeling that the market had recovered too quickly. The close was very weak, the lowest of the day and the undertone was very weak.

Clark, Dodge & Co. to Paine, Webber & Co.: The market was weak on selling by Chicago houses and hammering by the aggressive bear element. No heavy liquidation, although some stocks have been thrown over today by disappointed holders. Think short interest has been materially increased today. The market closed weak under the pressure from the bears.

Wortley to B. E. Baker: The feeling on the floor is that the market will probably rally, and if it does, I think it a sale.

Dick Bros. to Paine, Webber & Co.: The market was dull and weak. The bear party worked against the list and had no opposition. There was no liquidation, but the lack of support allowed prices to go down without much pressure. News unimportant. Most of the selling was attributed to bearish operators, whose lines of shorts have not yet been covered.

COPPER GOSSIP.

Boston to Paine, Webber & Co.: There was profit-taking by traders and general liquidation all along the line today and prices declined from 1 to 3 per cent. There is no bad news to explain the change in sentiment. It is hardly to be expected that prices will go very much lower on this reaction, but it should serve to demonstrate the fact that it is not good judgment to buy stocks or to hold them too long on good rallies. We think we are running into a traders' market in which opportunities will offer for good turns for both sides. Copper was fairly firm in London. We think coppers the best stocks to buy on the day of greatest weakness.

THE COTTON MARKET.

New York, June 15.—The opening of the cotton market today was again marked by extreme excitement owing to another show of strength at Liverpool, where prices at 12:30 were 18½ to 23½ points higher. Private cables from the other side indicate that the situation there is practically identical with that here and at New Orleans with the bulls apparently in full control. Prices here started from 11 to 22 points higher and at new high records for the season. July selling at 12:35; August at 12.12; September at 11.25; October at 10.45 and January at 10.22 on the call. Later cables from Liverpool reported a considerable reaction and the local market became irregular under feverish covering on the one hand and realizing on the other.

Cotton spot closed quiet, 10 points up; middling uplands, 12.60; middling gulf, 12.85; sales, 1700 bales. Cotton futures closed steady: June, 12.17; July, 12.25; August, 11.96; September, 11.35; October, 10.45; November, 10.40; December, 10.29; January, 10.28.

TREASURY BALANCES.

DECLINE IN STOCKS

Natural Reaction After the Sharp Advance of Last Week.

No Change In General Conditions and Money Still Easy.

New York, June 15.—Sales of stocks at opening were large and blocks of 1000 to 3000 shares of most of the leaders were thrown upon the market at declines running from a large fraction to over a point. There were 3000 shares of Atchison sold at 68¾ and 69¼, compared with 69¾ on Saturday and losses of Reading, the Erie, the Pacifics, Brooklyn Transit, Norfolk & Western and People's Gas were a point. Depression in London was reflected in the opening dealings here.

Opening losses were well extended in some cases before there was any apparent check to the selling. Not much of a recovery was made when the buying orders appeared and before 11 o'clock many stocks were ruling below their opening prices. Sugar, Tennessee Coal, Pennsylvania, New York Central, Erie, Texas & Pacific and Kansas & Texas stocks and U. S. Steel were lower. Louisville & Nashville, Illinois Central and Norfolk & Western fell about 2 points, Atchison, Baltimore & Ohio, Reading, Union Pacific, Southern Pacific, Wabash, Missouri Pacific and Amalgamated, 1½ or over, and a number of less active stocks lost fractions and more.

A rally of a fraction met renewed selling orders and prices fell back to about the lowest. St. Paul, Rock Island, Ontario & Western, Chesapeake & Ohio, Hocking Valley, Southern Railway, Chicago-Great Western and Northwestern lost 1 to 1⅝. Losses of 2¾ to 3 were forced by Minneapolis, St. Paul & Sault Ste. Marie pfd., Cleveland, Columbus, Cincinnati & St. Louis, Metropolitan Street Railway, Consolidated Gas, Sloss-Sheffield Steel and Colorado Fuel. Before noon Atchison got more than 2 points under Saturday and Reading and Missouri Pacific fell 1⅞. Bonds were irregular.

Pressure was more concentrated against a few leaders, notably Union Pacific, Baltimore & Ohio and Amalgamated, which declined 2 points and more and some of the other speculative favorites also sold lower than in the morning. Substantial declines on small offerings were made against the dominant stocks. Westinghouse declined 5, Railway Steel Spring preferred 3¾, Sloss-Sheffield Steel 3½, General Electric and North American 2½ and Tennessee Steel Car 2. The market was steadier in tone by 1 o'clock but the demand was light.

The market was intensely dull during the greater part of the afternoon and there was a shading of prices for the less active stocks. Kanawha & Michigan gave way 1½, Wheeling & Lake Erie first preferred, Lake Erie & Western and Rail-road Steel Spring first and Kansas & Texas preferred and Delaware & Hudson 2¼, St. Paul sagged to 151 and Atchison's loss reached 2½.

Prices ran off to the lowest of the day in the last hour. Amalgamated lost 3¾ and Atchison, St. Paul, Wabash preferred, all the Pacifics, Erie, Reading, Norfolk & Western, Chesapeake & Ohio, Baltimore & Ohio and Tennessee Coal extended their losses, which ranged from 2 to 3. American Telephone dropped 5, Minneapolis, St. Paul & Soo, 3½, the preferred 4½. Metropolitan Securities, 3½ and Consolidated Gas 3¼. The close was heavy at the lowest.

RAISE THE RATES

Line Boats Advance Minimum Rate For Wheat Carrying.

Vessels Drawing Fifteen Feet Can Make Port Wing.

The line boats advanced the minimum rate of 1¼ cents which they made on grain to the lower lakes at the beginning of June to 1½c. Hereafter they will take no grain at a lower figure than that.

The amount of grain to charter is very small and the liners are finding it hard to get enough to fill out cargoes. The total shipments of wheat last week were 482,000 bushels, and of flax less than 90,000 bushels. There is still some grain to go out, but none of it is pressing for shipment.

There is no disposition apparent among the grain men to fight the advance. They take it rather indifferently, there being so little to ship.

PORT WING HARBOR.

Vessels Drawing Fifteen Feet May Now Enter.

J. H. Darling, the assistant United States engineer, who has been looking after the harbor improvement work at Port Wing under the direction of the local engineer's office, reports that vessels drawing 15 feet of water may pass the entrance to the harbor. The channel has been dredged to a width of 75 feet and lies a little east of the vessel range established by private parties some years ago.

Hugo & Tims, of this city, have the contract for the new pier at Port Wing and will commence work on their contract today. The old pier, which was built by private enterprise, has been removed.

It is claimed that the harbor improvement will mean much for the Port Wing interests. This is the first time that the government has applied an appropriation in improvement of that harbor.

HERO OF MANILA.

McCullough's Commander Is Here In Marigold.

Capt. D. B. Hodgson, U. S. N., who is the member of the lighthouse district board at Detroit, is in the city and spent the day looking over the harbor entrances at the head of the lakes.

Capt. Hodgson was in the Dewey fleet during the expedition of the Pacific squadron to the East Indies in 1898, and was commander of the McCullough at the battle of Manila on July 4, 1898.

The captain is here with the lighthouse tender Marigold, and will remain a day or two. The trip is one purely of inspection. The Marigold arrived Saturday evening.

LEAVES THE TRUST.

Dispatcher Bennett Goes Into Laundry Business.

William P. Bennett, who for several years has filled the position of day dispatcher for the Great Lakes Towing company at Duluth, has resigned to take charge of the marine trade for Harry Bloom, the laundryman. J. A. McMillan, formerly day dispatcher for the Independent Towing company, who filled the position of night dispatcher for the Great Lakes company last year, has succeeded Mr. Bennett. Mr. Bennett has been with the Great Lakes company since the combination was formed and preceding that was with Captain Inman in the old Inman Towing company.

CAPT. SINCLAIR DYING.

Chicago, June 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—All hope for Capt. James R. Sinclair, manager of the Dunham Towing company, was given up this morning, and his death is but the matter of a few hours. He was stricken with heart failure early yesterday at his home in Austin. He had been troubled with heart disease for a year or more, but was thought to have fully recovered. Capt. Sinclair has been the manager of the Dunham company for many years, and when that concern was taken over by the tug trust, he became the local manager. He has been long considered the best operating tugman on the great lakes.

NO CHANGE IN FREIGHT RATES.

Chicago, June 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—It was "ditto" all around, vessel agents said today, in describing the situation in grain freights. Receipts still continue light, and hopes for a big movement of corn have been put off until next week.

CLUB WILL MEET

Commercial Club to Hear Reports From Several Committees.

Several Excursions This Week Will Require Club's Attention.

The next regular meeting of the Commercial club will take place Wednesday evening of this week. A number of important matters for the attention of the club are scheduled to come up for discussion and action.

Among the various committee reports will be one relative to the progress being made by the committee appointed to act with the Minnesota commission in connection with the state exhibit at the Louisiana Purchase expostion at St. Louis. This committee has been doing a great deal of work in connection with the proposed exhibit from St. Louis county and Northern Minnesota. Capt. Alexander McDougall is chairman.

It is expected that the committee appointed to investigate the feasibility of having observation cars on the local lines of the street railway company will report progress. This feature finds much favor among commercial organizations of cities that have loss to show and fewer tourists than Duluth. It will be urged that if anything is to be done in the way of starting observation car service steps be taken right away, as the tourist season is now opening, and Duluth, within the next few weeks will have thousands of visitors.

Several matters of local importance were referred to the public affairs committee of the club at the last meeting, and reports of progress will be made.

Secretary Eva has already received a number of answers to the request of the prize phrase committee, but the response has not yet been as ready as expected. Any person who has in mind a phrase which will be adaptable for advertising the city should send the same to Mr. Eva. The committee will accept the best phrase and the originator will receive the $5 prize offered by the club. Contestants are not limited to one phrase, but may send as many as they choose.

The commercial club will be very active this week in connection with the large number of excursions which will be run into the city from various points in the Northwest. Among the excursions scheduled are those in connection with the Norwegian Lutheran convention, one from Sioux City, Ia., one from North Dakota, one from Litchfield and Benson, Minn., one from Fergus Falls and Wahepton and intermediate points and the Wisconsin Merchants and Manufacturers' association excursion over the Wisconsin Central lines.

Secretary Eva has received word from the Southwestern Lumbermens' association in answer to the invitation extended the organization to visit Duluth, stating that the excursion has been indefinitely postponed because of the conditions in the flooded districts of the southwest that will keep the lumbermen at home for some time to come. The hope is expressed that the association may at some future date accept the hospitality of the Duluth people.

A meeting of the directors of the Commercial club was to be held this afternoon at 1 o'clock.

GUARDSMEN ARE IN CAMP

Begin Their Annual Camp Duty at Lake City Grounds.

Headed by the Third Regiment band, Companies A and C marched from the Armory to the Union depot last evening for camp in special cars attached to the 11:15 Great Northern train for St. Paul.

All day yesterday the Armory was the scene of much activity, the members of the band and companies getting their equipment in readiness and saying good-bye to friends.

The traveling accommodations were better than usual—good sleepers being furnished, and in many ways the company commanders provided for the comfort of their men.

The companies arrived in camp early this morning without incident and everything was found ready for immediate work. A detail of men was sent from each company on Saturday to make all necessary preliminary arrangements for the companies. But seven preliminaries are a mere matter of form at Lake City, for the camp is permanently established and everything kept in good condition the year around.

Officers of both companies expect to make a fine showing for Duluth at the annual inspection, general camp work and on the rifle range. Both companies have several men that qualified as sharpshooters last year, and who will not only endeavor to repeat the trick this year, but, if possible, make the state rifle team.

A blessing alike to young and old. Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry; nature's specific for dysentery, diarrhoea and summer complaint.

TWO SEND REGRETS.

Governor Van Sant and Bishop Joyce Not Coming.

Governor Van Sant will be unable to attend the service which will be held in the First Methodist church this evening, in celebration of the birth of John Wesley. The governor had been assigned the subject "Methodism and the Growth of the Nation," but he has wired Dr. Long that he will not be able to come to Duluth at this time.

Another telegram received this afternoon stated that Bishop Joyce would be unable to come.

Never expect much from small advertisements, unless they are reinforced by plenty of auxiliary advertising and occasional large ones.—The Advisor.

THE THIRD TIME

Bids Again Opened For Paving Michigan Street With Sandstone.

This Time Lowest Bid Not Far From Engineer's Estimate.

For the third time bids were opened this morning for the paving of East Michigan street with sandstone.

Twice before the bids for this improvement were so much in excess of the engineering estimate that all bids were rejected and the contract readvertised.

This morning J. W. Preston was the lowest bidder and his figures were only $232 in excess of the engineer's figures, and the contract is likely to go through this time.

The lowest bid was also about $800 lower than the lowest bid before, and the contractors explain this by saying that it is the first instance where the city has not required a maintenance guarantee, hence the contractors are enabled to cut off a certain percentage of the cost.

The bids were as follows: J. W. Preston, $9232; P. McDonnell, $9495; Alex Sang, $9668; Fitzgerald & Norris, $11,259. Engineer's estimate, $8996.

The board also held the first hearing on the assessment for improving Nineteenth avenue east with bituminous macadam. This assessment will be for about $30,000 in a lump sum and will come up for final hearing and confirmation about July 1.

BRIEF CITY NEWS

Union label shoes, Elite, Torrey Bldg.

Amos Hilfrills, an employe at the Meloux ore dock, fell a distance of twelve feet into the hold of a vessel, Saturday evening and was killed. Disadis was crossing the timbers half way down in the hatchway when he lost his balance and fell. The decedent left a wife and two children.

W. C. Gray, undertaker, 26 E. Sup. St.

The Yale baseball team defeated the Garfield avenue team yesterday by a score of 21 to 15. The winning team, through its captain, Fred Teske, has issued a challenge to any team in the city having players whose ages range between fifteen and seventeen years.

Wet grounds and threatening weather caused the Duluth-Superior ball game to be postponed this afternoon. Manager Lagger of the Superior team came over here after it had been decided to call the contest off and arranged to have the game played at West Superior next Sunday.

Parlor theater tonight. New vaudeville.

Puszczyszyn is the name of a man that claims Frank D. Bean, a well known blacksmith, assaulted him with a bar of iron. Mr. Puszczyszyn cannot tell much about the incident, but Mr. Bean says they got into some sort of an altercation in a blacksmith shop on Garfield avenue Saturday and he struck the other man with his fist in self-defense. The case will be heard in the municipal court on Wednesday morning.

Smith's mosquito dope has become so famous that an order was today received from Revelstoke, British Columbia, for one gross.

Parlor theater this evening, for fun.

Big dance at Lincoln Park pavilion Tuesday evening, June 16. Everybody invited.

PURELY PERSONAL

Mrs. S. W. Hanchett, of Fifty-second avenue West, will entertain the woman's auxiliary of the J. B. Culver post, tomorrow afternoon.

F. H. Guthrie, manager of the Duluth Music company, who with his wife and father have been outing at Deerwood for the past two weeks, returned this morning.

S. D. Allen, the well-known attorney, has left Duluth and will locate in Eugene, Ore. He is now visiting in Winona with his family and they will go from there to their new home.

Mrs. J. L. Tremps, accompanied by Misses Belle and Florence Jacques, left Saturday evening for a trip down the lakes.

The following were guests of the Commercial club today: L. C. Shattuck, Bisbee, Ariz.; W. S. Scott, Sandstone; W. A. McMullen, St. Cloud; Ezra Van Camp, St. Thomas, N. D.; Charles Ainsworth, W. M. Mahon, Algoma, Mich.; M. H. Clark, E. D. Chilson, George S. White, Cleveland.

S. J. Bigelow will leave this evening over the Duluth, South Shore & Atlantic for Sault Ste. Marie.

Mrs. W. Dean and son will leave for Ashland, Ore., this evening over the Northern Pacific.

C. S. Pollock will leave for Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., over the Duluth, South Shore & Atlantic this evening.

W. J. Olcott, president of the Duluth, Missabe & Northern road, and family have gone to Ann Arbor, Mich., to attend the reunion of the class of '83, of which Mr. Olcott was a member.

Mrs. M. E. Mathews and Mrs. Genevieve Cushing, of Denver, mother and sister of Mrs. D. G. Penney, are in the city, visiting the latter. They will remain for several weeks.

ADJOURNED ONE WEEK.

Hearing On Freight Handlers Injunction Is Postponed.

The hearing before Judge Lochren upon the application of Knudsen & Eden for a permanent injunction restraining the striking freight handlers from interfering with their business was to have been held this morning at 10 o'clock at St. Paul. An adjournment of one week was arranged for by Messrs. Adams & Miller, who represent the freight handlers.

Ore Cars Damaged.

The throwing of a wrong switch on the Missabe ore dock approach caused the upsetting of a number of cars this afternoon at the crossing on Third street. Two of the cars were badly broken up. No one was hurt.

CARRIED OUT TO SEA.

Marseilles, June 15.—A balloon with four aeronauts was carried out to sea yesterday afternoon. Their fate is not known.

OFFICIALLY NOTIFIED

Change In Land District Published—Good Land Returned.

The official notice, signed by order of the president, of the latest changes in the boundaries of the Duluth and Cass Lake land office districts has been received at the local land office.

It provides for the transfer of about fifty-three townships, which had been given to the Cass Lake office back to Duluth district.

"The land that is thus re-transferred to this district," said Register Culkin in discussing the notice, "is about half of what was originally taken from the Duluth district. It is the north half of what was taken away and there is considerably more vacant government land in this north half than in the south half, where the country is much more thickly settled. Each of the townships consists of about 22,000 acres, but from this it is necessary to take the state school lands and state swamp lands in order to arrive at an estimate of the federal lands contained in the district.

"The land is some of the most fertile in the state and it is from this district that a large portion of our homestead entries have been coming during the past few months.

"The business of the local office will not be greatly affected by the change which will take place June 30. This date as the original transfer on same date as the original transfer and it is simply a partial revision of the former order. The principal loss of business to the local office will be in contest cases. The southern half of this district which is affected and which by this last order goes to the Crookston district, has been the subject of much litigation and the land office attorneys and speculators in the city will now be the chief losers by the change."

INQUIRIES COMING IN Much Interest Shown By Outside People In the Coming Carnival.

That attention all over the Northwest is being attracted to the approaching big fair and carnival in Duluth, from July 6 to 11 inclusive, is evidenced by the hundreds of inquiries received daily at the headquarters of the Duluth Carnival and Amusement company. Every mail brings letters inquiring about the length and nature of the carnival, and the rates that will be made on the various railway lines. In some cases persons representing the business interests of whole communities have written for all the advertising matter available about the carnival, and promising a large attendance from their respective localities.

The carnival management has thus far been able to obtain a one and a third fare for the round trip from all places within a radius of 300 miles of Duluth, but it is expected that even better rates will be procurable before the big fair starts up. This does not take into consideration the numerous excursions that are being arranged to run into the city from distant points, and for which the fare will be placed at a small figure.

Up to today 1200 votes have been cast for carnival queen and several of the local organizations have notified the carnival company that they will, at their next meeting, endorse a candidate for queen.

Arrangements are being perfected by the carnival management for starting a bureau of information for the benefit of the visitors that will be here during the week. A list will be prepared of all the rooms, lodging houses and hotels where visitors can find accommodations.

Some idea of the immensity of Ferari Bros.' shows can be gathered from the fact that the shows will cover three blocks of ground. The lion show alone will require a space 150 by 300 feet. Over 200,000 feet of lumber will be required in the shows and 5000 incandescent and 40 arc lights will be used to illuminate the various shows and the Midway.

The carnival committee is endeavoring to get the business interests to put strings of incandescent lights across Superior street from store to store during the carnival week.

BIG YACHTS DID NOT RACE

Evidently Did Not Want To Wet Their Sails.

New York, June 15.—After the somewhat unsatisfactory attempts at racing off Sandy Hook last week, with only one finished race in four trials, the crews of the three cup yachts, Reliance, Constitution and Columbia, did not review the resumption of the contests today in a driving rain storm with any great degree of complacency. It was hoped last night that the thunder shower which swept the sound would clear the air and give the big yachts as well as several schooners and small sloops which had entered for today's event, the annual Glencove regatta of the New York club, a chance to try conclusions in good weather. But early in the morning the wind shifted over to northeast, and by the time the crews had finished breakfast the rain was coming down in sheets.

Shortly before noon the committee hoisted a signal announcing the postponement of the start until later in the day.

The rain ceased about 10 o'clock and the breeze increased until it was blowing eighteen or twenty knots an hour creating quite a sea in the sound.

At the time of the postponement the wind was still holding strong.

When the committee finally decided to start the race, none of the cup yachts, Reliance, Constitution and Columbia, was on hand. No reason was given for their non-appearance, but it was supposed they did not care to wet their sails or to risk an accident in the stiff northeaster.

The starting signal for small sloops was fired at 12:55 and four of them crossed the line; ten minutes later the schooner yachts were sent away and in this class there were two starters. These six yachts were all that were in the race.

BANK CLOSES DOORS.

St. Thomas, Ont., June 15.—The Elgin Loan & Savings company has closed its doors for a few days, pending an investigation according to a notice posted on the door today. The total amount of permanent capital stock acording to the last statement was $625,000. The liabilities to the shareholders on Dec. 31, 1902, were $469,686. George Rowley, the manager, left the city last night, and this action, it is said, precipitated the suspension. The amount on deposit at present is about $184,000.

ELECTION OF KING PETER

The Senate and Skupshtina Occupied But Fifteen Minutes.

Semlin, Hungary, June 15.—The skupshtina and senate met in joint session at precisely noon today and within fifteen minutes had elected Prince Peter as king of Servia.

Long conferences were held between ministers and deputies on Sunday night and all this morning. These resulted in a cut-and-dried program which went through without a hitch.

The parliamentary gathering was held in the white and gold ball room in the new wing of the palace, within a few yards of the spot where King Alexander and Queen Draga's bodies were thrown from the window. Not the slightest reference was made to Wednesday's tragedy. The ministers of the provisional government sat at a table at the top of the hall, the prominent figure among them being the chief of the conspirators, Col. Maschin, Queen Draga's brother-in-law, who was resplendent in his full army uniform. The members of the skupshtina and senate entered the hall and took their seats informally.

President Vellmirovitch rose immediately and began speaking amid breathless silence. He said the national assembly had met to elect a king of the fatherland, having already agreed on the principles of the new constitution. Immediately the whole assemblage arose and shouted: "Long live Karageorgevitch." This roll call followed, each member rising quietly in his place and saying, "Peter Karageorgevitch." There was no dissenting vote, and the proceedings closed with brief speeches delivered by the president and premier, congratulating the assembly upon its day's work, which it was hoped foreboded better days for Servia. Directly afterwards the soldiers outside took the oath of allegiance to the new king, the late Queen Draga's regiment being the first to do so.

The inhabitants of Belgrade are remarkably quiet and apparently unconcerned. The cafes are filled with people reading the newspapers and playing cards or chess, the shops are open and there is little to indicate that the nation has been engaged in the election of a new sovereign.

The new constitution closely follows that of 1888, and is even more democratic. It is described as making Servia virtually a republic, with the king as its head.

Geneva, June 15.—As King Peter received congratulations on his election he became more excited, laughed hysterically, marched vigorously up and down the room and finally flung himself into a chair, trembling with excitement. His acceptance of the throne is stated to be subject to four conditions:

First—That the action of the skupshtina is exempt from bribery or force.

Second—That those directly implicated in the assassinations should be exiled.

Third—That the civil list be increased.

Fourth—That an official delegation come to Geneva to confer with him.

King Peter, in an interview, announced that he had accepted the crown of Servia and would assume the title of Peter the first.

"I am profoundly touched," he said, "at the confidence shown me."

The king has addressed a proclamation to the people of Servia, which will be placarded and read throughout the country.

Vienna, June 15.—King Alexander's former private secretary, M. Petronivics, who was regarded as being one of the most faithful of the late king's adherents, has caused a sensation by telegraphing to King Peter in the name of the entire Petronivics family their desire to render homage to King Peter, assuring him that they will serve him as faithfully as they served King Alexander.

Paris, June 15.—The Temps in a dispatch from Belgrade prints an interview with the new minister for foreign affairs, M. Kallevics, in which he is quoted as saying: "The powers at first hesitated concerning their attitude, but on receiving fuller official information no intention of interfering in Servia's affairs. Vienna and St. Petersburg give satisfactory assurances. Berlin is more reserved, because Germany is less directly concerned, but I am sure she will not oppose us. Servia is tranquil and now resumes her normal conditions."

The minister also gave a detailed version of the tragedies, declaring that King Alexander's course was responsible and adding:

"The postmortem examination of the king's remains revealed the secret of his incompetency. I mention only one detail. The doctors found that the bones of his skull were three times the thickness of those of an ordinary man."

The minister further asserted that history would record that the sufferings of Servia under recent reigns was chiefly due to the intrigues of women.

COOKS AND WAITERS

Have Failed In Strike, Say Hotel Proprietors.

Chicago, June 15.—Cooks, waiters and bartenders began to troop back to work today in some of the strike-ridden hotels. At the Auditorium Annex twelve union waiters appeared for duty. At the Metropole two cooks and a number of waiters asked to be reinstated. Some of the union waiters also returned to the Chicago Beach hotel. Similar reports come from various other hotels and the situation, according to Secretary Blatchford, of the Hotel Keepers' association, looks brighter for a return of normal conditions than at any time since the strike began. In spite of the renewed threat this morning that every restaurant and hotel in the city whose proprietor has not signed the union scale would be tied up, the hotel proprietors say the unions have already exhausted their resources and have failed.

MINISTER RECEIVED.

Liang Chen Formally Presented to the President.

Washington, June 15.—Sir Chentung Liang Chen, the new Chinese minister, was received formally by the president at the White House this afternoon at 2:30. The presentation was made by Secretary Hay. The exchanges between the president and the minister were cordial and felicitous.

The minister was accompanied by the official staff of the Chinese legation. Soon afterwards Signor Mayor Des Planches, the Italian ambassador, called upon the president and presented to him a personal gift from the king of Italy, consisting of 20 volumes of war reports of Prince Eugene of Savoy and a copy of Dante's Divine Comedy. The president expressed to the ambassador his deep appreciation of the gift and desired him to extend to the king his thanks and cordial wishes.

Later in the afternoon, M. Jusserand, the French ambassador, presented to the president a gift from President Loubet. It was a handsomely printed and bound volume containing the records of all Frenchmen who came to America to fight in Washington's army.

DEATH COMES VERY SUDDENLY

Immence Wall of Water Carried Heppner People Away.

Spokane, June 15.—A mighty wall of water rushed down the valley of Willows creek about 5:30 p. m. yesterday and swept through the town of Heppner, Ore., leaving death and destruction in its path. The dead are estimated to number from 350 to 500. The property loss is estimated at $1,000,000.

The flood subsided quickly.

At Lexington, Ore., some houses were wrecked, but no one was drowned. At Ione, Ore., one house was wrecked.

At Heppner, the residence district suffered most, though the business section was flooded.

The people were caught in their houses with no chance of escape. Heavy rains had been falling all the afternoon and the residents were in their houses. Without warning a terrific wall of water came tearing down the creek and the next moment the houses were wrecked and carried away on the crest of the immense wave. Many persons were killed outright, others were drowned after heroic efforts to save themselves.

Bridges were swept away like so many matches and all means of communication by wire were destroyed.

Messengers arrived at this place report the scene the most awful imaginable.

The fact that the accident occurred just before nightfall made it the more distressing, as little relief could be carried on during the cover of darkness.

As soon as the first excitement had partly subsided, the survivors went to work and messengers were sent out to neighboring towns and relief parties organized as rapidly as possible.

WAS INCITING STRIKE

When Flood Suffers Were In Need of Freight.

Kansas City, June 15.—A man who claims to be T. M. Hager, a union carpenter from Hannibal, Mo., narrowly escaped violence at the hands of the West Bottoms flood sufferers while he was trying to induce the freight handlers of the Missouri Pacific railroad to go on a strike for the full recognition of their union. People who had lost their all and who are depending on freight shipments for relief, were bitter in their denunciation of Hager's action and only the prompt action of the police in arresting him saved him from their wrath. At the police station Hager tried to commit suicide.

SEALSKINS DOUBLE.

Sitka Indians Profit By Increase In Price.

Tacoma, June 15.—The Sitka Indians have gained an additional $6000, by the active competition of fur dealers to secure their catch of sealskins amounting to 500 skins. By active bidding prices were raised from $10 to $22.50 a skin, with little regard to the average quality of skins. When the pelts began to arrive this year a Portland buyer took the field against the firm in Sitka, which for years had control of the trade. As a result of the rivalry in the bidding, the price was jumped to $22.50 per skin to the advantage of the Indians.

FIRES RAGING

In the East End of the Upper Peninsula.

Marquette, Mich., June 15.—Forest fires have been raging for three days near Eckerman and other points in the east end of the Upper Peninsula. Much standing timber as well as logs, cordwood and tanbark has been burned, and several lumber camps have been saved only after a hard fight. Unless rains falls soon, the loss will be great.

MURDER AND SUICIDE.

Philadelphia, June 15.—Henry Shayhorn, aged 50, today shot and killed his wife and then committed suicide at the home of his daughter in this city. The couple separated about four years ago.

DEGENERATE BEARS.

"The tameness and impudence of the bears in Yellowstone Park have been commented on a great deal of late by the newspapers," said a native Adirondack dweller, according to the New York Sun, "but I doubt if those bears can beat our Adirondack bears much in that respect.

"There was a time when the Adirondack bear was as wild and shy and fierce as his Pennsylvania or Sullivan county brethren are reported to be, but, as a rule, he has got over it and degenerated into a thieving camp follower and hanger-on around clubhouse and hotel and camp grounds, a pensioner on the garbage pail and the refuse supplies.

"At camps or clubhouses where they have not been disturbed, bears have in many instances forgotten their shyness and fear of danger to such a degree that they come swaggering to the very kitchen doors, and, if not chased from there, do not hesitate to enter the camp itself and nose around for choicer morsels than the garbage pail contains. Bears became such a nuisance in this way at Garry Benson's place in the Peseco lake region last season that he pitched into one impudent old chap one day with a horsewhip. The bear went back to the woods, stopping every few steps to rub himself, looking back at Garry each time in evident surprise at the reception he had received.

"Nobody at Benson's camp would think of killing one of these shaggy intruders any more than he would think of killing a woodchuck. Garry Benson says that kicking them off the premises and stoning them is only a temporary relief, but the horsewhip once laid well over a bear, he finds, causes that bear to give that place a wide berth thereafter.

"At the district school at Sander's Mill, on the Mad river, a big bear came slouching out of the woods one day a week or so ago, and advanced directly on the school house. Some of the children had eaten their luncheon in the grass in front of the building.

"The bear stopped and licked up the crumbs and remnants of the repast, and then stuck his head in at the school house door. The screams of the pupils and the school ma'am frightened brain, and he hurried back into the woods.

"The next day the bear came to the school house at about the same hour, and ate the crumbs and crusts he found on the grass. He didn't venture to the school house door again, though, and after he had cleaned up the remnants of the school lunch he went slowly back to the woods.

"His visits became of daily regularity, and it being evident that he came with no evil intent, the teacher, and now and then a pupil, took to tossing him an apple or other bit of luncheon, and finally to feeding him out of hand, until now, so it is reported, that bear has almost quartered himself in that school district and lunches regularly with the Sander's Mill school children and teacher."

DEATHS.

FIELD—Mrs. C. A. Field died Sunday morning at the home of her daughter, Mrs. C. W. Scott, of Durham, N. H., where she went some weeks ago in the hope of regaining her health. Her husband and two daughters, Misses Elizabeth and Alice Field, were with her at the last. Beside these, she leaves one son, Edwin D. Field, and two daughters, Mrs. J. B. Vail and Miss Helen Field, of Duluth. The burial will be at Hanover, N. H.

Mr. and Mrs. Field celebrated their fiftieth wedding anniversary on Jan. 20, of this year. They have been residents of Duluth for seventeen years, coming here from Hanover, where the greater part of their married life was spent. Mrs. Field was a woman of unusual strength of character, and her loss will be deeply felt by those who have been privileged to know her intimately.

MITCHELL PREVAILS ON MINERS NOT TO STRIKE

Districts Vote Separately For Members of Conciliation Board.

Representatives Chosen Will Doubtless Be Accepted By Operators.

No Advance In Wages Is Yet Due the Miners.

Scranton, Pa., June 16.—President Mitchell's advice has prevailed and all talk of strike has been silenced. The convention of anthracite mine workers today adopted resolutions providing that each district should vote separately on the election of the representatives on the conciliation board. The resolutions were adopted without a dissenting vote.

Following this, the delegates in the different districts voted separately, after which the convention by arising vote ratified the action.

Another resolution was adopted, providing that all grievances instead of being thrashed out in debate should be given to the conciliation board for consideration.

The convention adjourned at 11:50 o'clock to meet again at 2 p. m. Adjournment was taken for the purpose of giving operators an opportunity to either accept or reject the action of the convention in endorsing the action of the executive board in appointing the members of the board of conciliation. There is no doubt that the operators will accept the action of the convention.

President Mitchell told the convention there was no advance in wages yet due to the miners. The average price of coal has not been higher than $4.62. By the end of June the average price will have reached $4.62, which will entitle the miners a two per cent increase. President Mitchell said he had seen these figures and had reason to believe they were correct. The operators members of the conciliation board are in Scranton and it is almost certain they will accept this morning's action of the convention. It is probable the convention will adjourn finally before 3 o'clock and that everything will be settled so as to avert all possibility of a strike.

WOODMEN IN SESSION

Thirteenth Annual Meeting of Head Camp at Indianapolis.

Indianapolis, June 16.—The thirteenth session of the head camp of the Modern Woodmen of America was opened in Tomlinson hall this morning at 10 o'clock. Mayor Bookwalter and Auditor of State Herrick welcomed the delegates. The response was made by Lieutenant Governor Northcott, of Illinois, head counsel of the order. The convention then got down to business.

The following is a synopsis of the law committee's report:

At the last national convention an effort was made to secure the admission to the society's jurisdiction of cities like Chicago, Milwaukee, Pittsburg, Greater New York, San Francisco, etc. The society's law bars all cities having 200,000 or more population. The law committee submits an amendment providing that the executive council may, in its discretion, establish and maintain local camps in any part of the excepted cities, if upon investigation, it finds it safe and desirable territory in which to do business.

The law committee recommends that the basis of representation be left as at present—one delegate for each 1500 members or major fraction.

The report of Major C. W. Hawes head clerk, shows that the Woodmen had 664,166 beneficiary members carrying a total insurance of $1,161,285,000. The net gain was 126,308 and he net gain in insurance $348,087,500. There was a net gain of 1059 local camps, the total being 10,654 local comps. On January 1, 1903, there was a balance of $03,487.10 in the benefit fund and a balance of $345,853 in the general or expense fund.

FAREWELL DINNER

Given to Newly Appointed Presbyterian Missionaries.

New York, June 16.—More than 150 persons attended a farewell dinner given to newly appointed missionaries by the Presbyterian union of New York. The guests included the forty-nine missionaries who are about to sail to foreign lands, officers and secretaries of the foreign board of missions and missionarie in this city on furlough. Most of the missionaries will go to their fields by way of San Francisco.

THE CANAL TREATY.

New York, June 16.—The canal treaty will not be passed by the Colombian congress called to meet on June 26, says a Herald dispatch from Bogota, Colombia. This is the concensus of the best informed opinion in the republic. Notwithstanding many rumors that have been sent from the capital, the fact remains that congress does not dare defy the wishes of a majority of the people in the matter. Should it be left to a public vote the test would show an overwhelming majority antagonistic to the proposition. Public opinion is unanimously against the canal.

DEPUTATION GOES TO BRING NEW KING

Leaves Belgrade on a Special Train to Notify Prince Peter.

Will Return With Their Ruler and Escort Him to the Throne.

Belgrade, Servia, June 16.—A deputation of the two chambers composed of four senators and twenty deputies, headed by the presidents of the two houses, left Belgrade by special train last night to inform King Peter of his election to the throne. The officers who have been appointed to attend the king left on the same train. The deputation is expected to return here with the king on Monday or Tuesday next.

The chamber met at 10 o'clock this morning and adjourned for the purpose of going to the cathedral, where a great thanksgiving service, including a Te Deum, was celebrated.

Extraordinary lack of interest is shown by the majority of the people in the events arising from the revolution. The notice issued by the municipal authorities yesterday calling on the inhabitants to decorate their houses in honor of the new king has met with scant attention, and the town by no means has a festive appearance. The illuminations last night were not brilliant. A military band marched through the town playing lively airs, but a heavy rain soon cleared the streets.

Cettinje, Montenegro, June 16.—The proclamation of Prince Peter Karageorgevitch as king of Servia was received with the greatest satisfaction by Prince Nicholas, King Peter's father-in-law, and the Montenegrins generally. Salutes were fired, bells were rung and bands paraded the streets, which were beautifully decorated. Prince Nicholas made a speech to an immense crowd, extolling the virtues and bravery of the illustrious ancestors of King Peter, and at the same time condemning the manner in which King Alexander was assassinated.

London, June 16.—The Times correspondent at Belgrade says there seems to be no probability of the change in the Servian dynasty leading to international complications, or aggravating the existing situation in the Balkans. So far as is known none of the adherents of the late government has been molested or arrested, except Col. Nikolaivitch, the late court martial, who has been detained in the Belgrade fortress, and the late prefect of the city, who has also been arrested.

PRINCE PETER KARAGEORGEVITCH, The New King of Servia.

London, June 16.—The Brussels correspondent of the Daily Telegraph learns that the late king and queen of Servia were insured for $400,000 with a Belgian-Dutch company. Half of this sum will go to Queen Draga's sisters and the remainder to ex-Queen Natalie.

MAN WHO WANTED TO DIVIDE IS CHARGED WITH BRIBERY

Corning, N. Y., Citizen, Who Had Lot Suitable For Postoffice, Is Arrested For Offering to Share Profits of Sale to the Government.

Washington, June 16.—George Eaton, cashier of a private banking house at Corning, N. Y., has been arrested on a charge of attempted bribery according to advices received by the treasury department secret service. He was taken before a United States commissioner, where he gave bond for his appearance in court. A decoy letter sent from the treasury department and a registry receipt for a letter sent Assistant Secretary Taylor were found on Eaton. Chief Wilkie, who caused the arrest, said that in May Mr. Tayler received a letter from Eaton saying he had a piece of property in Corning which would prove an admirable site for the proposed postoffice building that he was not familiar with the method of placing his proposition before the government, but he was willing to make "it right." Mr. Taylor referred the letter to the solicitor, the supervising architect and Chief Wilkie of the secret service. A decoy letter was sent Eaton stating that the portion of the letter referring to making it "right" was interesting. Within a few days Mr. Taylor received a second letter from Eaton in which he stated the property cost him $13,666, and he was willing to sell it to the government for $15,600 and further, that he was willing to accept $1000 as his share of the profit and give the assistant secretary the remainder. This letter led to the arrest. Eaton insisted that he was innocent in the matter and did not intend to violate the law.

BLIND BOYS ENJOY FIELD SPORTS

Chicago, June 16.—A dispatch to the Tribune from Janesville, Wis., says: The eighty-eight inmates of the state institute for the blind have held their field day sports here.

Of the fifteen boys who competed for the prizes offered, thirteen were totally blind and the other two could see only moving objects. The hurdles, pole vault and hammer throwing were left out, but in their place the standing high jump, the standing broad jumb, the football kick and the 35-yard dash were contested. A boy named Gonla, totally blind, was first in the 35-yard dash, in :04 flat. The distance for the running broad jump was 17 feet 8 inches, and the standing high jump was 4 feet 6 inches. The football was kicked 108 feet.

Catastrophe at Heppner Was Most Appalling.

Many Bodies Are Hurriedly Buried In Crates.

Spokane, June 16.—Direct advices to the Chronicle from Heppner, Ore., at 10 o'clock this morning, state that thus far the bodies of 200 victims of Sunday night's disaster have been found. Two hundred more are supposed to be hidden in the ruins or to have been swept down the valley by the torrent. An estimate this morning places the total number dead at 400. Nearly all of these were in Heppner, it being thought few perished in the valley below the town. Today's reports indicate that the number of injured is comparatively small.

"More provisions are needed" is the report from Heppner this morning. Other help seems fairly well supplied. Men have been coming into assist in clearing away the wreckage and searching for bodies.

Portland, Ore., June 16.—A special to the Oregonian from Ione, Ore., says: David McAtee, a business man of Heppner, whose residence is on a bench above Heppner, was an eye-witness of the disaster. In company with Frank Spaulding, he left Heppner about 10:30 o'clock Sunday night on horseback.

"On Sunday afternoon," said Mr. McAtee, "there had been a very severe rain storm, accompanied with much wind and lightning. I was standing in front of the house and noticed that a cloud of remarkable dimensions approached the top of the hill on the east side of the canyon. I turned for a moment, when a roar caused me to look again at the hill. I saw a wall of water, whose height I would be afraid to gauge, rushing down the mountain, carrying immense trees and timbers on its crest and tearing the very rocks from their foundations. The terrific storm struck the upper part of the town first. The residence of Thomas Howard was the first to fall, and his entire family were drowned. In the Krug home also every person was drowned, as was the case in the Hale and Saling residences. All of these houses were about four or five blocks above the residence center. The house of Abram Hamsick was entirely demolished. The Palace hotel was the first building to stem the tide, and all the guests were saved, but the houses below the Palace hotel were blown out into the street, overturned and wrecked. The residence of G. A. Rhea was carried away and the entire family, consisting of both wife and three daughters and Miss Adkins, a cousin, were lost.

Mr. Rhea himself was absent in Portland attending the Masonic convention. C. E. Redfield, whose residence was completely destroyed, was also absent with Mr. Rhea in Portland, and his wife and baby were drowned.

The body of Mrs. Redfield is among the recovered. A. C. Gieger's house was carried away and Mrs. Gieger was drowned. His family is in the East.

George Consor's house was next, but the family succeeded in saving their lives by rushing to the upper stories, the house being carried down the creek three-quarters of a mile. When reached by the rescuers they found that the house had been cut in two and Mr. Consor was standing in water up to his neck, holding his wife upon the roof and keeping her from slipping with his outstretched arms. Dr. McSwatt and J. Ayers, who were living in the same residence, were drowned.

Oscar Miner's house was next demolished and Mrs. Miner drowned. The rest of the family succeeded in saving their lives by clinging to the roof. All of the Wells family but two were lost and the house carried away. With the Wells residence went the house of George Swaggert. Mr. Swaggert's two married daughters were drowned with their five children. The Mallory house was carried 150 yards and was found lodged against a store, and Mr. Mallory, a crippled old man, was found safe, holding a baby. Jim Matlock's house was next. Mr. Matlock was drowned, but his family were saved. Dr. Higgs' house also went.

Here one child was drowned, but the rest of the family escaped. Mrs. Elder was drowned in her home. The house of Mr. Boyr and Mr. Walton was also destroyed and both families lost.

Mr. Barton succeeded in saving all persons in his home, although they were badly bruised. The house itself was washed away.

Perhaps the greatest loss of life occurred at the Heppner hotel. This house, which was run under the management of Jones & Ashbaugh, was carried away. It is supposed that there were about fifty guests in this hotel, all of whom are reported to be lost. The proprietors themselves were saved, but their families are among the dead.

The houses of Ben Patterson, Mr. Dunn and Mr. Noble were entirely demolished and all persons in these three families drowned, as were the families of James Jones and Henry Blair. The barn of Dr. Swineburn and the big livery stable of Whittier & Meadows were entirely destroyed. E. J. Farnsworth and Phillip Cohn was destroyed, but the business houses being on higher ground, and being generally built of brick and stone, were not so badly damaged. The school house and court house, which stood on a hill, were saved, but two churches, the Methodist and Presbyterian, were completely wrecked.

Around the depot the rising water left great heaps of driftwood piled higher than the roof of the station, and the rescuing parties were forced to demolish these pyramids of timber in order to extricate the corpses which were tangled in the brush. Undoubtedly many of the drowned bodies were carried by the rushing waters down the valley.

No systematic effort has as yet been made to find the dead, who are undoubtedly strewn along the canyon. Every available man from a radius of sixty-five miles has been pressed into service at Heppner itself. Gangs of men are at work clearing away the piles of debris, rocks and timbers which he piled in heaps in Heppner's streets, and taking out the corpses.

About one hundred and fifty people have been buried in the graveyard today. Owing to the entire absence of proper facilities for caring for the dead, the victims of the flood were for the most part interred in common crates.

A relief train sent from the Dalles reached Ione last night and will proceed to Peppner as soon as possible. A wrecking train with gangs of men to repair both the tracks and telegraph wires left Ione last night. It is expected that communication with Lexington, fifteen miles from Heppner, will be restored early today. On board the Dalles train are five doctors, six trained nurses, a committee of twenty Elks, and another of six Eagles, with all necessary drugs and supplies to care for the sick and wounded. There is also a car of provisions.

Spokane, Wash., June 16.—A special to the Spokesman Review from Echo, Ore., quotes N. T. Tooker, of Portland, who witnessed the Heppner disaster, as follows: "It is estimated that the damage done to property alone was $500,000. Some of the stone and brick buildings were not torn away, but there were some of them moved from their foundations.

"The goods in several buildings were saved. When these merchants opened for business they sent word to the relief committee to come and take what goods were wanted. People were coming in from all directions to the assistance of the suffering and dead. They could not come by rail, for nine miles of the track below town was washed away. All wire communication was prostrated.

"Leslie Matlock, a young man, was the hero of the day. When the flood first came he mounted a horse and rode at breakneck speed down the canyon in front of the rushing water to notify the people of Lexington, a small town nine miles below. He had to go over a rough and stony road, and the night was dark and stormy. He arrived at Lexington just a few minutes ahead of the flood. The people were warned and immediately left for the hillside. When the flood had passed only two houses were left standing."

GREENE SELECTED BY THE PRESIDENT

Henry F. Greene to Be Civil Service Commissioner.

Good Authority at Washing Says He Will Be Named.

FROM THE HERALD WASHINGTON BUREAU.

Washington, June 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—Henry F. Greene, of Duluth, Minn., has been selected by President Roosevelt to be civil service commissioner, to fill the vacancy created by the appointment of James R. Garfield, who resigned some time ago to become chief of the bureau of corporations of the department of commerce. The appointment has not been officially announced, but it is stated here on excellent authority that the position has been tendered by the president to Mr. Greene, and that he has accepted.

With the appointment of Mr. Greene, the commission will consist of the following members:

John R. Proctor, of Kentucky.
Alvin W. Cooley, of New York.
Henry F. Greene, of Minnesota.

The position of civil service commissioner is one of great importance and involves a large amount of work. The salary is $3500 a year, and the tenure of office is at the pleasure of the president.

No official confirmation of Mr. Greene's selection could be obtained today about the White House, as the president is absent, having left Washington this morning to attend the graduating exercises of the university of Virginia at Charlotteville. Congressman J. Adam Bede has been urging the appointment, and Mr. Greene has some very strong endorsements from men prominent in civil and public life. While the official announcement has not yet been made from the White House it seems to be pretty generally understood that Mr. Greene will be named. The fact that Commissioner Foulke had resigned and the vacancy caused by the appointment of James R. Garfield to the head of the bureau of corporations still remained open gave Minnesota the desired opportunity, and although Mr. Greene has not received the endorsement of the two senators his appointment is nevertheless looked for as soon as the president returns to Washington.

HENRY F. GREENE.

Mr. Greene has had very strong backing for the position. Prominent among his supporters was Woodrow Wilson, president of Princeton university. Dr. Wilson was a schoolmate of Mr. Greene's, and they lived in Baltimore at the same time. Dr. Wilson is also a strong personal friend of President Roosevelt, and his influence cut a large figure.

Mr. Greene is considered to be highly competent to fill the place. He is a scholarly man of high attainments, and he has made a special study of sociological and political science, particularly of civil service. He has been a leading attorney of Duluth for a number of years and at one time was city attorney. He was at the head of the charter commission that drafted the present charter of the city of Duluth.

Mr. Greene was seen at his office, but declined to confirm or deny the report from Washington.

THE HUNGARIAN CABINET RESIGNS

Buapest, June 16.—Premier De Szell announced today in the lower house of the Hungarian diet that he had tendered his resignation to King Francis Joseph on Sunday last, and that his majesty has accepted it. Reports that the cabinet intended resigning had been in circulation prior to the assembling of parliament, so there was considerable tension in the house when it assembled. The entrance of the premier was the signal for an outburst of cheers from his supporters, while the opposition retorted with scoffing shouts of, "What a happy funeral."

The premier, rising, said: "I have repeatedly set forth the principles and views which have guided my policy in regard to the opposition manifested by obstructionists to the army bill. On those occasions I said my policy, could only be followed so long as full harmony of views prevailed among all the factors concerned. As such harmony no longer exists I tendered my resignation to the king on Sunday and his majesty has been pleased to accept it. I beg the house to adjourn pending the formation of a new cabinet."

PLEASURE PARTY HAS NARROW ESCAPE ON TUG IN TORCH LAKE

Houghton, Mich., June 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—Nineteen persons narrowly escaped death yesterday in a collision between the tug Nellie Cotton and the propeller Rochester, in Torch lake. The Cotton, which is owned by Joseph Gauthier, had a picnic party aboard when it tried to turn around in the channel with the Rochester bearing down on it at a good speed. The tug backed across the Rochester's bows and instead of continuing to back, according to the signal given by the seamer's captain, started at full speed ahead. The Rochester caught the Cotton full on stern, the tug careening till her bulwarks were under water from the impact. Engineer Charles Gulvert was thrown overboard Miss Roberts, a sister to the captain of the tug saved herself only by catching a fender rope, and the other passengers were hurled about and slight injured. Thinking the tug badly damaged and sinking, the captain sent her full speed for the beach, where she ran so hard aground that it took tugs several hours to pull her off. The Rochester was not damaged. Had the tug been of wood instead of steel he would have been cut in two.

NEW YORK BANKER ENDS HIS LIFE

New York, June 16.—Frank Dean, a vice-president of the Seaboard National bank at 18 Broadway, committed suicide early today at his home in East Orange, N. J. He rose at his usual hour and went into the cellar where he shot himself in the head. Mr. Dean's family advance no reason for his act, but at the bank the officers said Mr. Dean was despondent over domestic afflictions. Mrs. Dean has been an invalid for years, and an only son about twelve years old was recently stricken with pneumonia. It was emphatically stated at the bank that Mr. Dean's death was not influenced by financial matters, as he was involved in no investments. Up to a few months ago Mr. Dean was cashier of the Fifth avenue bank, this city. He was about 40 years old.

DOCTOR ENSOR SUPT. SOUTH CAROLINA STATE INSTITUTION.

Endorses the Catarrhal Tonic Pe-ru-na---A Congressman's Letter.

Dr. J. F. Ensor, Postmaster of Columbia, S. C., late Superintendent and Physician in charge of State Insane Asylum at Columbia, S. C., writes:

"After using your Peruna myself for a short period, and my family having used and are now using the same with good results, and upon the information of others who have been benefited by it as a cure for catarrh and an invigorating tonic, I can cheerfully recommend it to all persons requiring so effective a remedy."—Dr. J. F. Ensor.

Hon. C. W. Butts, ex-Member of Congress from North Dakota, in a letter from Washington, D. C., says:

"That Peruna is not only a vigorous, as well as an effective tonic, but also a cure of catarrh is beyond controversy. It is already established by its use by the thousands who have been benefited by it. I cannot too highly express my appreciation of its excellence.—C. W. Butts.

Dr. R. Robbins, Muskogee, I. T., writes:

"Peruna is the best medicine I know of for coughs and to strengthen a weak stomach and to give appetite. Besides prescribing it for catarrh, I have ordered it for weak debilitated people, and have not had a patient but said it helped him. It is an excellent medicine and it fits so many cases.

"I have a large practice, and have a chance to prescribe your Peruna. I hope you may live long to do good to the sick and suffering."

Only the weak need a tonic. People are never weak except from some good cause. One of the favorite causes of weakness and the one oftenest overlooked is catarrh.

Catarrh inflames the mucous membrane and causes the blood plasma to escape through the mucous membrane in the form of mucus. This discharge of mucus is the same as the loss of blood. It produces weakness.

Peruna stops the catarrh and prevents the discharge of mucus. This is why Peruna is called a tonic. Peruna does not give strength by stimulating the nervous system a little.

It gives strength by preserving the mucous membranes against leakage.

It gives strength by converting the blood fluids and preventing their draining away in mucous discharges.

Constant spitting and blowing the nose will finally produce extreme weakness from the loss of mucus.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advise gratis.

Address Dr. Hartman, President of The Hartman Sanitarium, Columbus, Ohio.

COOPER'S AERIAL CYCLE SENSATION!

Four Fearless Riders, Circling a Bottomless Whirl Suspended 20 Feet in the Air While Riding at Breakneck Speed

The great Cooper sensation, one of the feature free acts of the Duluth July Fair and Carnival, July 8 to 11 inclusive, has proven itself to be the most phenomenal act of aerial cycleism ever attempted in the world. The magnitude of effort displayed in this exhibition so far outstrips all other cycle acts that the comparison is as a candle to an arc light. On a cycle "whirl" of regulation size and decree the dare-devils of wheeldom ride like mad around the thin boards of fame, which are held together by wire, and dangerous even when made secure. At a speed of ninety miles an hour Cooper and his colleagues ride around this frail-constructed apparatus, and before your very eyes the entire apparatus begins to ascend heavenward, the power used being electricity, and generated through a dynamo at the base of the construction. Slow but sure the entire wheel is raised to a height of thirty feet, and during the entire time of the uplifting, round and round like mad the riders race, with no protection but their own nerve and balancing power. One misguide and they would fall through the coverless bottom to the ground below, and one inch higher than the barricade and they would fly over the top and drop down to death—an awful death. After a ten-minute exhibition in mid-air, the "whirl" is lowered and the riders finish their exhibition on terra firma—a relief to them, and no doubt to the bewildered crowd, who have seen the greatest act now before the American public.

HENS TO LAY BY ELECTRIC LIGHT

Novel Scheme to Supply Eggs to the Klondike People.

Tacoma, Wash., June 16.—W. E. Dickman, who is a citizen of Nome between the runs of the earliest boats in the spring and the latest boats in the fall, has returned from New York, and will sail for the north in a few days. He expects to remain an indefinite length of time, and to return with some good Nome gold. His plan for getting rich is rather unique for a land where the nuggets hang as plentiful as in Nome. The basis of his business will be 1000 Plymouth Rock hens. With these he expects to supply the epicures of Nome with fresh eggs, to take the place of the packed variety, with which they have heretofore regaled their palates. The fabulous goose that laid the golden eggs was not in the running with the hens that will lay eggs in Nome. Eggs are steady up there at a dollar per dozen, and the man who can supply the market with fresh fruit right off the nest can command almost any price he may choose to ask.

A hennery on the bleak shores of Alaska is not an experiment with Mr. Dickman. He proved the business last year with 250 good hens and true. These hens laid jubilantly all summer, and when they themselves went to the restaurant table they brought $2.50 apiece.

There is one lesson, however, that the tenderfoot hen has to learn in Nome. She can't rely on the time-honored custom of regulating her laying by the sun, for the sun shines for weeks at a time. The hen has to be watched or she will overtax her energies in this constant flood of sunshine. Mr. Dickman's hens were like Old Grimes' old blue hen; that laid two eggs every weekday and three on Sunday. In order to prevent a call from a walking delegate, Mr. Dickman had to put his hens in a black tent, which did not admit the rays of the sun for several hours out of every twenty-four.

Next winter Mr. Dickman intends to keep his hens laying instead of slaughtering them for the fall markets, and, instead of a black tent, he will have electric lights to announce to the hens that it is morning, or at least time for business. By providing warm houses he expects to keep them laying all winter.

The expense of keeping chickens in Nome is not so great as it would seem, Mr. Dickman used no grain last winter, but fed his hens altogether upon stale bread and meat scraps from the restaurants. This year, having a larger number of hens, he will take some grain.

Mr. Dickerman tried for several days to get the 1000 chickens in the vicinity of Tacoma, but was unsuccessful, and departed for Petaluma, Cal., which is the largest poultry center in the world, with the possible exception of a place in Belgium.

ELECTION IN GERMANY.

Polling on Members of Reichstag Proceeding Quietly.

Berlin, June 16.—The polling in the reichstag elections began at 10 o'clock this morning and proceeded quickly under the new modified Australian ballot law, the electors rarely staying in the booth longer than a quarter of a minute. In Berlin the balloting was not accompanied by the least disorder, even in the so-called slum precincts. All the political parties resorted to the election tactics, often practiced in Germany, of sending voters from the strong districts, where they are not needed, to the smaller ones. The law permits this.

RAFTS TOO LARGE

Complaints That Lumbermen Are Crowding Canal With Rafts.

This Is Against Rules of Government Engineer's Office.

Complaint is being made that some of the lumbermen engaged in log towing from north shore points to Duluth are violating the rules made by the government engineer's office about a year ago relative to the size of rafts that are brought into the harbor through the Duluth canal. It is claimed that there have been two infractions of the rule recently.

The regulations provide that all rafts which enter or leave the harbor by the Duluth canal shall be made up into pockets, by connecting the outside boomsticks at distances apart not exceeding 200 feet. The cross-booms must be of such length and the pockets so filled that the maximum width of any pocket shall not exceed 125 feet while passing through the canal. The total length of the raft must not exceed 1100 feet. It is claimed that the infraction of the rule has been in towing through rafts that were more than 125 feet wide.

The Duluth canal is 300 feet wide, and the rule for the width of the raft was made so as to give a vessel passing it in the canal about 175 feet.

The idea has been to send as many rafts as possible through the Wisconsin entry, which is 50 feet wider than the Duluth canal, and for that reason the regulation size of a raft through the former entry may be 200 feet with cross-booms not more than 275 feet apart, and the raft not more than 2000 feet long.

The government provides a penalty for infractions of the rules and regulations of the rules and regulations, and any person or corporation wilfully violating the same shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and on conviction in any district court of the United States, shall be punished by a fine not exceeding $500, or by imprisonment, in the case of a natural person, not exceeding six months, at the discretion of the court.

Another of the rules provides that rafts must be handled by a sufficient number of tugs to enable them to avoid obstructing the channels and give half the channel to passing vessels, or in passing dredges.

IS WANDERING ABOUT.

Police Asked to Find Gen. Gordon's Son.

Chicago, June 16.—A dispatch to the Tribune from Atlanta, Ga. says: Gen. John B. Gordon, commander of the United Confederate veterans, has sent out a notice requesting the police to locate his son, Capt. Frank Gordon, and return him to his home. Capt. Gordon left home last week with his nerves greatly overwrought and since then nothing has been heard of him.

Gen. Gordon thinks that his son is wandering about the country.

PRICE OF OIL RAISED.

Company's Profits Will Increase In South Dakota.

Sioux City, Iowa, June 16.—The Standard Oil company has raised the price of oil in South Dakota 1 cent a gallon in order to counteract the effect of the law passed by the South Dakota legislature, securing a test for kerosene. It is estimated that this will greatly increase the profits of the company over and above the value of the oil which may be rejected under the test.

RAILROAD CONFISCATED.

Chicago, June 16.—A dispatch to the Record-Herald from New Orleans says: The steamer Breakwater has brought news from Puerto Cortez, Honduras, that the Honduras government had confiscated the railroad running from Puerto Cortez to San Pedro, a distance of 58 miles, which is owned by the Honduras syndicate, an American corporation of which Senator Chauncey M. Depew of New York is president and Henry L. Sprague is vice-president.

EWEN FEARS A SHARPSHOOTER

May Pick Him Off While In the Soldiers' Camp.

Jackson, Ky., June 16.—B. L. Ewen and wife are still in the military camp here, his daughters having been sent away. There are apprehensions that Ewen will be picked at long range by some sharpshooter while he is in camp and arrangements are being made for his removal to Lexington.

When court convened this morning the defense placed Dr. J. M. Kash on the stand. Dr. Kash was the first man to reach Marcum after he had been shot. Dr. Kash testified that he saw Jett on the walk at the corner of the court house yard ten seconds before the shots were fired. He testified as to Marcum's death. Dr. John Taley, the Hargis family physician was called and he corroborated the testimony of Dr. Kash and other defense witnesses.

AUTOMATIC CAT

Serves to Clear Neighborhood of Nocturnal Prowlers.

London, June 16.—Probably nowhere is a peace-loving community more annoyed by nightly, unpleasant cats on every roof and back wall than is the population of London. Just now, for the first time, a genius has arisen with what appears to be a successful remedy for the evil. It consists of nothing less than the invention of a fearsome automaton tom cat made up of a tin frame and covered with fur coat.

"Tom" is as black as the darkest night, with a stiff black tail standing up defiantly in the air, and a ghostly look in his sightless eyes. This baneful glare is produced by a four-volt electric battery stowed away in that portion of Tom's anatomy generally occupied by the digestive organs.

The general principle of construction, according to the British inventor, is based upon powerful clockwork, released by a lever when the tail of the animal is moved. The clock works a pair of bellows, with two loud screeching reeds, at the same time forming contact to light the lamps in the eyes and forcing outwards a dozen long needle points, which come up through the skin of the back. The tail also acts as a trigger and releases a hammer formed of the lower jaw of the cat, which explodes two percussion caps in the mouth.

One night recently an experiment was made. The clockwork was wound up and the beast placed in the back garden. In due course of time a ferocious tom-cat, with chips off its ears, walked up to the stranger to give battle, while a dozen of his lady friends sat around to see the fun.

Without the slightest provocation the flew at the automatic cat, removed a lump of loose hair from his back and broke his tail in half. That ended the first round, but it was only the signal for the tin tom-cat to get into action.

The tail exploded the percussion caps in the cat's mouth with a sound resembling that of a small cannon, the electric eyes blazed out like searchlights, while heartrending shrieks rent the air from the bellows inside, and the needle points got their business ends into the tom-cat.

Within a few seconds the garden was clear and pale-faced pussies were tearing off through the quiet streets in search of home comforts. It was more than a month before they ventured to peep over the wall to see if the "black terror" was still in possession of the place.

Royal Arcanum Reunion.

Duluth council Royal Arcanum will have its annual reunion and banquet Tuesday evening, June 23, at the Commercial club rooms and the affair is to be made an elaborate one by the committee on arrangements. There will be a bounteous dinner and addresses by members of the order, among them one by G. P. Backus, of Minneapolis, past grand regent for Minnesota. For the entertainment of the guests there will also be music by Flaaten's orchestra, and various contributions by C. O. Applehagen, John Doran, Frank B. Beaupre and others well known as entertainers.

$100 Reward $100.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages and that is catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers, that they offer one hundred dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials. Address

MUST PAY SOON

Penalties For Superior Street Paving Assessments on Wednesday.

Rolls Call For Collection of $27,625 From Property Owners.

Tomorrow is the last day for paying assessments without penalty for the paving of Superior street, between Third and Eighth avenues East.

The assessment roll calls for the collection of $27,625 from the property owners and up to noon today the sum of $17,486 had been paid in, leaving a balance of $10,139 to be paid before the closing of the city treasurer's office tomorrow evening.

It is expected that fully $9000 of the $10,000 will be in before the 10 per cent penalty is added.

This improvement is the next in order and the board of public works is advertising for bids on vitrified brick, bitulithic macadam, sandstone and asphalt. The choice of material will be made by the council, and until quite recently there was a general sentiment in favor of vitrified brick.

However, the friends of bitulithic paving have some proselytes in the council and it would seem that the choice of material is between these two.

It is reported that the asphalt company is very anxious for this job and may put in a bid as low as $1.85 a square yard, whereas the asphalt paving immediately east of Eighth avenue is costing the property owners as high as $2.45 a square yard.

Even if the asphalt company should condescend to give Duluth the advantage of such low prices as has been given St. Paul and other cities of the Northwest it is not likely to be seriously considered for the reason that asphalt in this climate is not favorably thought of by those that have made a thorough investigation of various street paving materials.

DIVIDES THE MONEY.

Judge Dibell Decides a Suit In Partition.

Judge Dibell this morning filed his findings in the case of J. D. Zein against William Hessian and others relative to the division of the money to be received for the sale of certain lands in 31, 51-15, so far as certain parties owning buildings on the land are concerned. In the original action brought for the partition of the property the referees' report was not confirmed by the court. A stipulation was then made for the sale of the property for not less than $2200, the court to determine the value of certain buildings on it. The court finds that after the sale is made and after the pay of the referees and cost of partition are taken out of the proceeds, Margaret Sullivan is to receive $800 for her building and Ida M. Farrell is to receive $75 for her structure.

VISITS HIS CHARGES.

Maj. Campbell Looking Over His Indians.

Major S. W. Campbell, in charge of the Crown Point Indian agency, will arrive in Duluth this evening from Ashland with a party. He will remain at the St. Louis hotel tonight and possibly part of tomorrow and will then take a boat and continue on his visiting trip to the Indians of Northern Minnesota along the north shore of lake Superior.

The trip of Mr. Campbell will be a regular visit, it is believed, and he will simply make an inspection. So far as is known there are to be no powwows this time.

R. G. Rodman, private secretary to the agent, will be in the party.

ELECTION JUDGES GUILTY.

Judge Sentences Them To Three Months In Jail.

Chicago, June 16.—Three judges of election who officiated in the eighteenth ward during the recent judicial election were today found guilty of contempt of court and sentenced by Judge Carter to three months' imprisonment in the county jail. The guilty men are John J. Kelly, Harry O'Donovan and Hiram B. Sherman. They were charged with having permitted men registered from lodging houses to vote repeatedly and to impersonate deceased persons whose names appeared on the registration lists.

CENTRAL CUT RATES.

St. Paul, June 16.—The Wisconsin Central road today announced a one-way rate of $8 to Chicago. This is a cut of $3.50 over the usual fare, which is $11.50 and was done to meet the cut in time made by competing lines.

MONEY FOR EWEN.

Lexington, Ky., June 16.—Lexington newspapers have raised three hundred dollars by subscription for Capt. Ewen, whose property was burned Sunday at Jackson. Citizens indicate a desire to make it two thousand dollars by the end of the week.

AT WEST DULUTH

A charivari last evening concluded a wedding celebration which has lasted since last Saturday in West Duluth. The occasion was the marriage of Miss Eva Shores to Myra Kane, both of West Duluth.

The Jewish ceremonies were observed and guests were present from St. Paul, Minneapolis and Chicago. Preparations for the feast began Saturday evening, over eighty fowls being killed and dressed and a large number of white fish were also provided. The impressive Jewish wedding ceremony was performed Sunday evening, about 7 o'clock, Rabbi Samuel Snitzer officiating.

During the ceremony there was a narrow escape from what might have proved a serious accident. One of the candles carried by those assisting in the service caught the edge of the delicate white veil worn by the bride, and only the prompt action of one of the bystanders saved the bride from serious injuries.

Lanners' orchestra played the wedding march and supplied the music for the dance which followed later in the evening.

Immediately after the wedding ceremony, which was performed in Great Eastern hall, the guests, who numbered between 200 and 300, sat down to a sumptuous banquet. After the banquet the floor was cleared and the guests indulged in dancing until early Monday morning.

During Monday the feasting continued, and the celebration was brought to an end last evening by a grand charivari of the newly married couple.

Both of the young people are well known in West Duluth, the bride being a daughter of M. S. Shores, part owner of the West Duluth shirt factory. Mr. Kane holds a responsible position with the firm.

The young couple will make their home in West Duluth.

ACTION PLEASES THEM.

West Duluthians Gratified By the Council's Stand.

Two decisions reached by the city council last evening are a source of much gratification to the property holders and business men of West Duluth.

The action of the council, on a motion of Alderman Sang, in joining hands with the citizens of West Duluth in their fight for the restoration of the Northern Pacific service to this end of the city was a source of much rejoicing among the property owners today, and they hope for a complete restoration of the service by the railroad and warehouse commissioners, who now have charge of the matter.

The order to pave Central avenue was also passed last night, after many lengthy delays. It is now thought that the contract will be let by Sept. 1, and the pavement completed before winter sets in. This has been the aim of the citizens since the petition was first started last fall, and the sucessful termination of their agitation for street improvements will be heartily welcomed in this portion of the city.

PEDDLING WITHOUT LICENSES.

Failure to recognize Patrolman Butchart when attired in street clothes landed Frank O'Brien, Joseph Dempsey and W. E. Dwyer in the West Duluth police station yesterday afternoon on a charge of peddling without a license.

The three, who are well known to the West Duluth police as well as the up town department, struck town yesterday morning with a supply of cheap jewelry, which they endeavored to sell to the loungers about the barrooms. One of the men approached Patrolman Butchart, who was off duty and happened to be walking down Central avenue, and began to expound to him the merits of his jewelry above all others. Mr. Butchart showed his star and told the man to come along. Later the officer returned and secured the other two.

Dempsey is a cripple and carried in his pocket a number of printed appeals for charity, which are supposed to have accounted him in good stead when there was nothing doing in the jewelry business.

The men were taken to headquarters and will be arraigned in the municipal court this morning.

SULLIVAN—KEEFE.

Miss Nellie T. Sullivan of 331 North Sixtieth avenue west and Thomas Keefe of Ashland will be married tomorrow morning at 9 o'clock at the St. James' Catholic church.

Miss Sullivan is well known in West Duluth having for the past year been engaged as a teacher in the Irving school. Mr. Keefe is a prominent business man in Ashland, being district manager of the Wisconsin Telephone company for that city. Rev. Father Fechely will perform the ceremony after which the young couple will go to Ashland to take up their residence.

OMAHA PUTS ON TWO SLEEPERS

To Have Two Instead of One to Chicago Hereafter.

The Omaha road has at last put on two sleepers between Chicago and Duluth. The service started yesterday, and the cars were filled.

There has been a demand by the traveling public for this service for many months, as frequently it is impossible to get lowers at a reasonable period in advance, and sometimes it has been impossible to secure even upper berths.

The Omaha company was told by the Pullman company that the service could hardly be given, as the business in and out of Duluth and Superior was not sufficient about five nights in the week to pay for the service, and on that ground the extra car was not put on.

It finally became necessary for the Omaha company to take some action in the matter, as it was hurting business between here and Chicago, people coming to the conclusion they would rather go via St. Paul than to sit up all night. The arrangement was made last week and the service began yesterday.

The train up this morning carried two sleepers full of people, and the business men who are after quick service between here and Chicago, are rejoicing over the new service.

Railroad Men Fish.

Superintendent G. E. Vanbrelice and General Agent T. E. Blanche of the Northern Pacific road, G. L. Douglass, of the Western Transit company, and H. B. Knudsen, of the Knudsen-Ferguson company, have returned from a fishing trip to Rapid lake. The hams were mostly bass, and Mr. Knudsen is under a cloud. His veracity has been questioned.

When the party reached the lake he hired a half-breed and left the balance of the party, returning in the evening with a boatload of squirming, lively bass. He avers he caught them.

All the members of the party are badly mosquito-bitten, and are slowly recuperating from the poisoning.

FOUR MEN KILLED.

WASHBURN OBJECTS

To Normal School Presidents Going to Outside Conventions.

Will Try to Dissuade President Bohannon From Going.

St. Paul, June 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—The state normal board held its annual meeting today, heard the reports of the presidents of the schools, re-elected the presidents and appointed the faculties for next year. A resolution to pay the expenses of each of the normal school presidents to the National Educational association meeting was adopted, but later on when it was being discussed, J. L. Washburn, the Duluth member expressed disapproval and said he would try to dissuade President Bohannon from going.

"I do not believe much in running around to educational meetings outside of the state," he said. These trips are more in the nature of a junket than of an educational nature. Let the presidents stay at home and attend to business. If they attend the educational meetings in the state, they will get just as much good.

"But you believe in these professional meetings yourself and as a lawyer attend your bar association meetings?" suggested Supt. Olsen.

"Not on your life, I don't, and I can beat any of these theoretical lawyers who put in their time running to bar association meetings. It don't get them anything worth while."

The club women of Duluth petitioned the board to institute a department of domestic economy at the Duluth school, offering to equip the department. The board granted the request. The board re-elected the following presidents: J. F. Millspaugh, Winona; E. H. Cooper, Mankato; W. A. Shoemaker, St. Cloud; Frank A. Weld, Moorhead; E. W. Bohannon, Duluth.

There were a number of changes in the faculties at the different schools.

HAY MEN MEET.

National Association Holds Convention at Chicago.

Chicago, June 16.—The National Hay association opened its tenth annual convention here today with a large representation of hay interests from all parts of the country. After an invocation by the Rev. Willard B. Thorp, of Chicago, Mayor Harrison delivered an address of welcome on behalf of the city. The courtesies of the board of trade were extended to the delegates by Reuben G. Chandler, its president, and after a response by John R. Daish, Washington, D. C., the entire body proceeded to the exchange room of the board of trade, where they were entertained until lunch time. The afternoon session was consumed by the reading of reports of the various officers and committees of the association.

RECEIVER APPOINTED.

New York, June 16.—A receiver has been appointed in the supreme court, in supplementary proceedings for C. P. Judson, on a judgment for $3195. Three other judgments aggregating $45,000 were entered by various creditors. Judson, who is a well known figure here, was a director in the International Power company and president of the General Carriage company in the spring of 1902, when the shares of the former scored sensational advances on the stock exchange, followed by more sensational declines.

UNIVERSITY OF CHICAGO

In Receipt of New Gifts Amounting to $621,155.

Chicago, June 16.—With the announcement by President Harper of $621,155 in new gifts, the largest convocation in the history of the university of Chicago was held on the campus today. Three hundred and forty-nine degrees were conferred upon the students who had completed the various courses in the university, and in addition the honorary degree of LL.D. was conferred by the university upon Nicholas Murray Butler "for distinctive service as college administrator, first as dean and now as president of Columbia university." Of the new gifts, although no donors were mentioned, it is understood $343,000 given for books, press equipment and extension and modification of buildings came from John D. Rockefeller. Of the remainder $130,000 for the manual training school building and $6200 for the university college are thought to be given by Mrs. Emmons Blaine. President Daniel Coit Gilliman of the Carnegie institute, Washington, delivered the convocation address. A touching feature of the convocation service was the formal release from official duties of Dr. Galusha Anderson, who has been connected with the university since its inception and who is well known to every student and alumnus. Dr. Anderson retains an honorary place in the faculty of the divinity school and a seat in the senate of the university.

JEWS WERE TO BLAME

Father John of Cronstadt Changes Opinion Regarding Massacre.

St. Petersburg, June 16.—Father John, of Cronstadt, whose fiery condemnation of the Kishineff massacre was published in the St. Petersburg liberal newspapers, has published the following in the anti-semitic Quamin, the new organ in St. Petersburg:

"To my beloved Christian brethren in Christ of Kischineff:

"From the newspaper accounts succeeding the first published reports concerning the Kischineff catastrophe, I have concluded that the Jews themselves were the cause of the recent disorders, that it is the Christians who suffered in the end, and that the Jews have been doubly repaid for their losses and injuries by their own brethren and others. I know this from private letters, also, which I have received from people who lived a long time in Kischineff, who are well acquainted with affairs there and who are most trustworthy. Therefore, I say to the Kischineff Christians, to forgive the reproach on account of the horrors that were committed, which I cast upon you alone. From the letters of eye-witnesses I am convinced now that one cannot lay all the blame upon the Christians who were provoked to the disorders by the Jews and that the Jews were mainly responsible for catastrophe.

No Russian newspaper of any weight except the Novoe Vremsya, has attempted to palliate the massacre or lay the blame on the Jews.

Judge Dibell Decides Dispute Over a Note.

In the action brought by Sophia Miller against Martin Roske and others to recover on a promissory note made by the defendants to secure a loan of $400, Judge Dibell yesterday afternoon decided in favor of the defendants.

The plaintiff claimed that there was due on the note $275 and interest and that on one occasion the defendant Martin Roske paid the plaintiff but $20 and indorsed the note by $120. The defendants claimed that the plaintiff was paid $120 at the time mentioned and that there was due but $180 and interest, which was tendered the plaintiff as payment in full and which she refused to accept.

The court held that the defendants owed the last named amount with interest and that the tender of the amount as payment in full on the note should be accepted.

SOMEWHAT ANCIENT

Echo of Deer Hunting Season Heard In Municipal Court.

J. W. Roscoe, Charged With Assault For Clipping Another's Nose.

An echo of a shot fired last November was heard in the municipal court this morning.

As the shades of night were falling fast out in Solway township on Nov. 19, 1902, J. W. Roscoe saw something moving in the bushes and shot.

The bullet cut most of J. Van Glasser's mustache off and chipped a piece out of his nose. For a time it could not be decided whether it would be better to prosecute Mr. Roscoe for barbering without a license, or shooting with intent to kill.

It was finally decided to prosecute him for assault, and the case was taken up before a jury in the municipal court this morning. At a late hour it was still on.

According to the testimony submitted this morning the plaintiff must have had the narrowest kind of a thrilling escape. It was in the gloaming of a crisp November evening, and the two men were hunting deer in the same clump of pine, and had no thought each of the other's being, and no heed; and these escaping wreck, defying death, unconsciously shaped every act and bent each wandering step to this one end—that all at once they should meet and one should be mistaken for a deer.

The plaintiff still showed the marks of the bullet's course across his face, and the chip that was taken out of the nose is still missing. His mustache has partially grown in covering that portion of the lip that was carried away with the bullet.

At a late hour this afternoon the case was still on.

STARTLING SUM

Mentioned as Cost of Machen's Rural Free Delivery Plans.

Former Inquiries Into Postal Department Corruption Recalled.

FROM THE HERALD WASHINGTON BUREAU.

Washington, June 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—"To continue the rural free delivery service upon the lines laid down by former Superintendent A. W. Machen would cost the government one hundred millions of dollars annually," was the startling statement made by Fourth Assistant Postmaster General Bristow to the writer today. "The rural free delivery service, with its army of carriers, reminds me of the old Roman way by which ambitious soldiers and statesmen were elevated to place and power. Conquering soldiers returning from the wars now and then distributed corn to the Roman people, and by that means rode into power. This rural free delivery business reminds me very much of the distribution of corn practised in the days when the Roman empire ruled the world." Mr. Bristow is not an enthusiastic exponent of the rural free delivery system. He frankly states that it was a mistake to establish it upon the lines adopted. He admits, however, that undoubtedly it has come to stay, that the people, having had a taste of luxury in the way of having their mail delivered at their own gateway, will insist upon retaining it. Gen. Bristow frankly says that it would be foolish to fight public sentiment, but he believes that the wholesale establishment of rural routes to please some senator or member of congress should be curtailed, and that when a rural route is hereafter established it should have merit behind it. Just as soon as the investigation which he has in charge is at an end, and it is generally predicted that there will be a complete reorganization of the rural free delivery service, and a number of heads are confidently looked for to fall into the basket. As the headsman of the administration, Gen. Bristow has won large praise, but as the "Old Sleuth" of the government, he will be known hereafter to the people of the United States, who are sticklers for honesty and uprightness in their service.

The charges of corruption against some of the officials of the postoffice department, and the investigation which is now in progress, recall to the minds of some of the oldest government employes various inquiries of similar character which have been carried on in the past. One of the oldest men connected with the postoffice department was in a reminiscent mood today, and he told the story of the charge of corruption which resulted in the death of one congressman, shot on the field of Bladensburg, and the permanent retirement of another from public life.

In the office of the chief of the equipment division of the postoffice department there are stored away samples of all sorts of devices which have been used to facilitate the transportation of mails since the establishment of the postoffice department by Benjamin Franklin. In this room, which is a sort of a museum of relics, are carefully preserved samples of every decice ever used in the service. There are mail bags more than 100 years old, locks that were patented in the beginning of the last century, tie straps which were used at one time and subsequently discarded, and in fact samples of every contrivance used by the postal authorities.

According to the old employe above referred to, it was one of those sacks which was the cause of the Graves-Cilley duel, which was one of the most causeless ever fought between two men in the congress of the United States. It seems that an inventor of a mail bag appeared in Washington and haunted the postoffice department week after week in the hope of getting his device adopted. The chief of the equipment division told this inventor that there was absolutely no chance for him, for the reason that the bag which he offered was similar in all respects to one which had been discarded years before and a sample of which was exhibited to him. But, like all disappointed inventors, he believed that there was someone against him in the department, and he did not hesitate to express this opinion in the lobby of the old National hotel, where he was stopping. One of the men who heard him remarked casually, "Oh, you should go and see the chairman of the committee on postoffices and post roads in the Senate." The inventor took the hint and saw the chairman, who politely told him that the subject was one over which congress had no jurisdiction whatever, and that the postoffice department's dictum in such matters was absolute.

The disappointed man returned to his hotel and continued his tirade against the department and the congressional committees. Whereupon someone who heard him inconsiderately said, "Perhaps if you would offer the chairman $500 you might have better luck." This was enough for the inventor, and for days afterwards he told his troubles to all who would listen to him, adding that there was no show for a poor man, and that the fact that he had no $500 with him to bribe a congressman was the cause of his ill success.

At that time one of the leading papers of New York city was the Courier and Inquirer, edited by James Watson Webb. The correspondent of this paper heard the conversation and over the signature of "The Spy in Washington" he wrote a scathing attack upon the chairman of the committee on postoffices and post-roads, who happened to be politically opposed to Mr. Webb. That gentleman supplemented the article of his correspondent with an editorial in which he backed up the charges. The result was that Jonathan Cilley, a member of congress from Maine and a warm personal friend of the chairman, denounced Webb on the floor of the house as a liar and a scoundrel.

Such an attack in the halls of the national legislature today would attract a very little attention, but in 1837-8 the code duello was the code of gentlemen, and Webb, who happened to be in Washington, promptly sent a challenge to Cilley through his friend, William George Graves, member of congress from Kentucky. This challenge he declined to accept on the ground that Webb was no gentleman and that he, Cilley, could not therefore meet him on equal terms. Under the code there was nothing for Graves to do but to take up the quarrel of Webb himself, and to send a challenge in his own name. This was accepted and the two met on the field of Bladensburg, a few miles out of the city of Washington where many similar encounters had occurred and a duel was fought with rifles on the 24th of February, 1838, which resulted in the instantaneous death of Cilley at the third fire.

There was a congressional investigation and the committee appointed declared that Graves deserved the decided censure of the house and that he should be censured accordingly. He was not re-elected to congress, but subsequently held office in his own state of Kentucky.

GUEST OF U. OF V.

President Roosevelt Visits This Historic Seat of Learning.

It Was the Occasion of Its Seventy-Ninth Commencement.

Charlottesville, Va., June 16.—The university of Virginia today entertained the president of the United States, and right royally the students of this historic seat of learning performed their duties as hosts. The occasion of the president's visit was to attend the seventy-ninth commencement of the university, which occurs today. Mr. Roosevelt is the third president to visit the university of which Thomas Jefferson, whose remains lie near by it, was the founder. President Hayes and President Cleveland have enjoyed the hospitality of this truly Southern institution. The president's special train arrived here from Washington at 11:20 o'clock this forenoon. The Monticello guards were on duty at the depot and kept back the crowd that had assembled to see the president. Visitors have been pouring into the city since yesterday. The president was cheered as he stepped from his car. The party was driven direct to the university where the exercises were held in the public hall. The address before the Alumni association which was first on the program had been prepared by Judgge W. Gordon Robertson, of Roanoke. He was detained at home by illness and his address was read by R. Walton Moore, of Fairfax, a member of the board of visitors of the university. Judge Morris then, in a short speech of welcome, introduced the president. After the applause which greeted his appearance had subsided, the president said in part:

"It is a double pleasure for me to be here today. In the first place, because the university of Virginia is one among the limited number of institutions of learning to which, because of its historical association, every American proud of his country and his country's history must turn. In the next place, because I have just finished a trip across the continent which, at almost every step, reminded me of some great deed done by a Virginian or a descendant of a Virginian in that wonderful formative period which has occupied more than half of this republic's work."

The president said he would have considered his trip incomplete if it had not ended with a pilgrimage to the university of Virginia. The president spoke in high terms of the university and the work it had done, and said that when the White House was restored to its original design the architects came to Charlottesville and studied the architecture of the old buildings in the university grounds, to get the right idea. He said he had called upon a number of university of Virginia men to fill his public offices and that they had never failed him.

The president closed his address with a few remarks on the duties of good citizenship.

At the conclusion of the president's address the various medals were delivered to the fortunate students, and then luncheon was served in the gymnasium. Judge R. T. W. Duke, of Charlottesville, presided as toastmaster and introduced the president, who responded to the toast "The United States." After luncheon the party visited Monticello, the home of Jefferson, where they were entertained by Jefferson M. Levy, of New York, who now owns the place. President and Mrs. Roosevelt rode there on horseback and other members of the party went in carriages. The president will leave here at 7 o'clock this evening for Washington.

Gold watches now on sale at $7.50, $9.50, $12.00, $18.00, $20.00, and upward, everyone strictly guaranteed.

Has Home at Deerwood.

Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Johnson have returned from a ten days' outing at Deerwood. While there Mr. Johnson met Professor Francis E. Woodward, of Minneapolis, formerly of this city. Mr. Woodward has purchased a summer home on Clearwater lake near Deerwood and has been spending several weeks there. He will be joined shortly by Mrs. Woodward and they will remain for the summer. Mr. Woodward is in the best of health.

GOVERNOR OF BESSARABIA.

St. Petersburg, June 16.—Prince Urosoff, lieutenant governor of the government of Tambof, has been appointed provisional governor of Bessarabia, in succession to Governer Von Ranben, who was dismissed as a result of the Kishineff massacre.

FIND LAW RIGID

Important Changes In Licensing of Engineers Are Found.

Law Is Much More Stringent Than Was First Supposed.

The amendments to the law governing the licensing of engineers, passed by the late legislature, are turning out to be more important than was dreamed of at the time.

The law is now so much more stringent than it was that a number of men holding second engineers' licenses now find that the jobs they are filling require first engineers' licenses, and many first engineers find that they need a chief engineer's license.

Some of them are unable to comply with the provisions of the law, and being unable to pass examinations for the licenses they need are necessarily compelled to lose their positions.

There are no changes in the requirements of the law, but the only change is that a penalty has been provided for failure to comply with them, and this makes the law effective. Before the amendment was adopted by the legislature the law was almost nill because nothing could be done to those that violated it.

The law requires applicants for second engineers' licenses to have had at least one year's experience, and to be competent to take charge of engines under 100-horse power. Parties taking charge of an engine of greater horsepower than that for which he is licensed is guilty of a misdemeanor and can be punished for it by imprisonment for twenty to ninety days or a fine of $10 to $50.

R. E. Patterson of Duluth, who was president of the state board of boiler inspectors, last year, has called a meeting of the board to be held in St. Paul Saturday.

Last year there were seven members of the board, composed of the inspector for each congressional district. Now there is an inspector for each senatorial district except where one county has more than one district, when there is but one inspector. This means that there will be fifty-three inspectors on the board this year instead of only seven, and the meeting will partake something of the nature of a convention.

The business of the meeting will be the election of a president and secretary for the next two years, and the preparation and adoption of a set of rules governing the work of the inspectors for that term. These will be based on the new laws.

NEW REFINING METHOD.

Discovery Expected to Revolutionize Copper Business.

Ithaca, N. Y., June 16.—Isaac Baum, of Uniontown, Pa., and Florence Joseph Schwab, of New Orleans, students in the engineering department at Cornell have made discoveries which they expect will revolutionize the copper refining industry. They explain their discoveries in a thesis on which they collaborated. Baum and Schwab received a mark of 98 per cent on their thesis, the highest in the history of Cornell.

For some time these young men have been experimenting day and night. In their thesis they describe a process for refining coper which professors here say will stand any test and will save copper refiners millions of dollars annually. They demonstrate that the temperature at which coper is now refined and the current which is passed through the refining vats is not high enough. By using the temperature and the current density which these inventors have calculated, the original cost of a refinery will be reduced more than one-half.

"All that I will say at present," declared Baum, "is that I believe all the refiners in this country will soon use our method."

Professor Wilder D. Bancroft, under whose supervision Baum and Schwab have been working, will translate the thesis into German and it will be read before the Electro-Chemical society of Berlin. At this meeting the details of discovery will be explained in full.

About $80,000,000 worth of copper is refined in this country annually and $2,000,000 worth of silver and $4,000,000 worth of gold are recovered therefrom. The present cost of refining is $5 a ton.

Go Right at It.

Friends and Neighbors in Duluth will show you how.

Get at the root of the trouble.

Rubbing an aching back may relieve it.

But it won't cure it.

You must reach the rot of it—the kidneys.

Doan's Kidney Pills go right at it;

Reach the cause; relieve the pain.

They cure, too, so Duluth people say.

Mr. B. Barr, of 306 Garfield avenue, conductor on the Duluth street railroad, says: "I had constant heavy pains through the small of my back and up under the shoulder blades. It was painful for me to stoop or lift anything heavy. I became stiff and sore from sitting or lying in any one position, and in the morning I rose feeling more tired than when I went to bed. The kidney secretions were irregular, frequently highly colored, and deposited a heavy sediment. I felt all run down and seemed to have no energy or ambition. I was also troubled a great deal with attacks of headache. I saw Doan's Kidney Pills highly recommended and thought I would try them; procured a box at W. A. Abbett's drug store and used it. They helped me right away, and in a short time I was entirely cured of the trouble."

HAPPENINGS IN DAKOTAS

Two Women Tied Would-Be Murderer to a Tree.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

Mitchell—William Mayhew, of Milltown, Hutchinson county, had some disagreement with his wife and father-in-law, and in an instant whipped out a revolver and commenced shooting, one bullet passing through the hand of the latter and one entering the foot of his wife. Mayhew made his escape but a few hours later returned to finish the job of shooting both. The mother-in-law and wife took the matter in charge and before Mayhew knew what had happened to him they had disarmed him and marched him to a tree. There they bound him securely and he was left all night and until officers came out from the county seat and took him in charge.

Armour—will remember the 127th birthday of the nation with the most elaborate celebration ever held here. Among the features will be a grand street parade and a balloon ascension by Professor Winterringer of Harrington, Neb.

Fort Meade—A report has been received that Hospital Steward John Byrnes recently committed suicide in the Philippines. He was formerly of this post.

Spearfish—A careful investigation has been made by Col. W. H. Parker state's attorney for Lawrence county, of the facts relating to the death of Edward Wilson, who was found with a bullet hole in his head several days ago, and in connection with whose death David Bennett and Mrs. Ella Lathrop have been held. The state's attorney is said to have satisfied himself that it was a clear case of suicide, and it is not likely that a hearing will be held. Bennett and Mrs. Lathrop are in the county jail at Deadwood, but will probably be discharged in a short time. From the facts as gathered, Bennett and Wilson had a quarrel in front of Mrs. Lathrop's house. Wilson had been drinking, and during the quarrel a shot was fired. A neighbor named Gillette heard the men quarreling. He say Wilson turn after the shot was fired and enter the house, staggering as he walked, as if intoxicated. Bennett started to follow him into Mrs. Lathrop's house, but the woman and her small son struggled to keep him outside. He drew a revolver from his coat pocket, declaring he would kill Wilson, but finally turned away and started down town. Mrs. Lathrop then entered the house and coming out immediately shouted to her son to run for a doctor, that Wilson had killed himself or was killing himself. Wilson was found on the bed with a bullet hole in the head an inch above and a little in front of the right ear. Wilson's remains have been sent to his parents in Indiana for interment.

Sioux Falls—The commencement of a suit for divorce in the local courts by Della Whitman, wife of Joseph H. Whitman, a capitalist and heavy land owner of Chicago, who is a resident of Sioux Falls, adds another chapter to a case which seems to develop more than the usual number of sensations. One of the features was the kidnaping by the mother a few days ago of the 8-year-old son of the couple, who has been living with his father in this city. The wife played a neat trick on her husband by putting in an appearance in Sioux Falls and commencing a suit for divorce herself before he could do so. By instituting the suit Mrs. Whitman has tied up all his property, so he will be unable to transfer such of his property as is within the jurisdiction of the South Dakota courts until a decree is granted or rejected in the divorce suit. A few days ago Mrs. Whitman, who lives on one of the aristocratic boulevards of Chicago, arrived in Sioux Falls. She was accompanied by a sister. They proceeded to the home of Mr. Whitman where they were kindly received. When it was suggested by the mother and her sister that they take the boy down town, consent was readily forthcoming from the father. As hour after hour rolled around and they did not return, he realized that he had been duped and instituted a search for the missing trio.

NORTH DAKOTA.

Jamestown—Clyde Crandall, a 16-year-old Medina boy, was brought to this city for treatment. While handling a shotgun he was accidentally shot in the right foot, and may lose the memiser.

The cases against Officer Russell and Dogcatchers Peter Sider and M. Northrup have been dismissed. They were brought by Alex Esler, who resisted payment of his dog tax, and when his dog was taken up had the three men arrested for stealing it. The judge held that there was not sufficient evidence to show that the dog was stolen.

Recently Mrs. Theresa Weston had William and Bessie Thompson arrested on a charge of having stolen fifty-four cattle from her. While the defendants were being tried the cattle were spirited away, and Thompson can find no trace of them. He says he bought the cattle under a contract, and his arrest was made for the purpose of getting him out of the way so that the cattle could be disposed of.

DOINGS IN MICHIGAN

Ironwood Will Issue Bonds For School of Domestic Science.

Ironwood—At a special meeting Ironwood taxpayers voted to issue bonds for $11,000 to erect a building and establish a school of domestic science. A site will be purchased opposite the L. L. Wright school at a cost of $2500, and a building put up costing $8000. Work will commence at once.

It is said that E. D. Nelson, the Ironwood promoter and banker, is planning to extend the city street railway to Bessemer and Wakefield, a distance of fifteen miles. The plan to divert the water of Island lake to the west branch of the Montreal river is still under consideration, and if this is done the company will obtain a large portion of its power from the river.

The Ironwood High school will graduate a class of fourteen this week. St. Ambrose parochial school will graduate a class of seven.

The contract for the construction of a new sewer from Suffolk and Ayer streets to the Montreal river was awarded to Messrs. Oxnam and Pierce for $10,618.50. The total assessed valuation of Ironwood this year is $5,347,027, which amount the board of review will slightly lower. Of this, $4,156,000 is assessed to the mines, divided as follows: Oliver Iron Mining company, $3,183,561; Cleveland Cliffs company, $723,891; Newport company, $247,638.

The new Davis mine is again shut down. Orders were received last Saturday to pull all pumps and flood the mine. Some 100 men are out of work.

Bessemer—The sum of $1000 has been raised for the celebration of the nation's birthday. The city's new athletic park will be formally dedicated on that day and athletic sports of all kinds will be in order.

Company I, Third regiment, M. N. G., is having its annual encampment in the new park.

Houghton—C. B. Saxby, a wellknown Hancock horseman, who is taking an interest in the efforts of the Houghton County Agricultural society to encourage farming as an industry in this region, intends to introduce the raising of Angora goats on the farms hereabouts and with this end in view he has sent for a carload of the animals.

Norway—At a recent meeting of the board of public works of Norway it was decided to do away with a set minimum rate for the use of electric lights and hereafter the user will pay for the actual amount consumed—plus twenty cents per month for meter rental. Heretofore the minimum rate was $1.20 per month, whether light was used or not. It is thought that the new rule will give much greater satisfaction.

TENNIS TOURNAMENT.

First Round of Games to Come Off This Week.

The first round in the tennis tournament of the Endion Tennis club will commence tomorrow afternoon. All of the games must be played before Saturday evening or they will be declared forfeited.

The following is the result of the drawing for the first round: Hubbell vs. Hopkins; Bagley vs. Agatin; Frezeau vs. Stone; Beek vs. O'Brien; Palmer vs. Gail; Bunn vs. Hickman; Grady vs. Close; Trott vs. Martin; Ingalls vs. Drake; Dash vs. Smith; Graff vs. MacKenzie; Wright vs. White; Ames vs. Tenry; Kitchll vs. MacBean; Sheldon vs. Strong; Aitkins vs. Gridley.

Two sets out of three shall decide each match and after the first round has been completed winners will play off after the usual fashion. The rules of the National Lawn Tennis association are to govern the play.

The committee in charge of the tournament consists of Messrs. W. H. Kitchll, R. T. Close and H. C. Dash. Rev. Harry White has been appointed referee.

A handsome racquet will be the prize of the winner.

Klondike Gold Decreasing.

Although thousands of prospectors have been exploring the Klondike region for over a year, no new mines have been discovered, and the government expert reports that this year's production will be $10,000,000 less than last year. In this respect the Klondike resembles the majority of new mediches that spring up from time to time. They seem to flourish for a season, but because of lack of merit soon play out. Not so, however, with Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, which has been before the public continuously for fifty years, and is today more in demand than ever. Its wonderful success is attributed to the fact that it positively cures indigestion, dyspepsia, flatulency, headache, constipation, billousness and malaria, fever and ague. Try a bottle and see for yourself.

SECRET BAND OF RUSTLERS

Oath-Bound Organization Uncovered By Confessions of Indians.

Oacoma, S.D., June 16.—n confessions of Claude Eagle Pipe, Henry Pipe, William Black Bull and Moses Goodvoice, Indians charged with rustling horses and cattle, the officers of Lyman county have secured evidence telling the story of an oathbound secret organization of rustlers known as the "Circle society." The confessions were secured by Detective C. H. Wilkie, a special officer of the South Dakota Stockmen's association, who, disguised as a rustler, learned the secrets of the society. The Indians confessed separately, but their stories are entirely consistent.

In the Circle society men were required to take an oath of secrecy and loyalty, and in many instances respectable stockmen were compelled to join for self-protection, some having been threatened with assassination if they did not.

The headquarters of the circle were at the ranch of a prominent stockman eighty-five miles west of here. A member of the society stealing a bunch of animals would hurry them to the nearest "point" in the circle, where the brand was worked over. The stock would then be hurried to the next in the chain, the first giving a bill of sale. The stock would probably change hands in this way several times and at last would be sold to an innocent purchaser for their real value. The money was always divided porportionately among the members of the society.

An officer on the trail of a theft would be referred along the line till he came to the real thief, who would say he got the stock from an Indian giving his name. This Indian would refer the officer to another Indian, and he to a third, and so on till the trail was lost.

Frequently, when hard pressed, the thieves would shoot stock, cut off the ears and destroy the brands. Frank McCluskey, a ranchman near Battle Creek, has lost seven horses during the past few weeks. his race horse, "Slim Neck," was recently stolen, and Detective Wilkie found the carcass of the animal in a creek bed. The animal had been put in mourning as a special warning to McCluskey, for whom the gang entertained the most bitter hatred.

Ranchman Richardson has lost twenty-four horses, six having been shot and the ears and brands cut off when the rustlers were hard pressed. Col. C. P. Jordan, Indian trader at Rosebud agency, has lost 150 cattle the past year, and recently thirty-five horses owned by Postmaster Custer, of Rosebud, were poisoned.

The thieves have lately put a bounty of $500 on the head of one of the Hanson Bros., who have defied the organization. The information in possession of the officials has not all been given out, as it is expected several rustlers will be arrested. Many of these, however, hearing of the confessions, are fleeing.

"The Charity Ball."

A large and brilliant audience will greet Gus A. Forbes, and the well-known local people in the cast of "The Charity Ball," which will be presented Friday afternoon at the Lyceum theater, and at Superior the same evening. There was a continal line of people all day yesterday, in spite of the inclemency of the weather, and there has been a large demand for seats throughout today.

A number of well known young men have arranged theater parties for the evening performance at Superior. The sale of seats for the evening performance, opened this morning at Draper's drug store, Superior, and there were a large number of reservations made, both by Duluth people and Superior people. The incidental music during the performance will be played by Signor Valenza, the harpist, and Signor Roberto Sonsani, the well known Chicago 'cellist.

DEFECTIVE PAGE

CITY WILL TRY IT

Will Strive to Have Northern Pacific Trains Make West Duluth.

Plumbing Bids For East End Fire Hall Again Refused.

The council last night:

Authorized the city attorney to use efforts to have all Twin City short line trains run through West Duluth exclusively.

Refused plumbing bids for No. 4 fire hall work for fourth time and asked for an expert estimate of cost.

Refused to interfere with board of public works' orders for removal of sidewalk advertising signs.

Received a verbal report from city attorney advising against loss of time in making Lake avenue improvement.

Passed an ordinance prohibiting heavy chains on wagons going down newly improved avenues.

Authorized the advertising of bids for paving Central avenue at West Duluth.

Extended the patrol light ordinance in order that legitimate saloons may compete with blind pigs up the river.

Claiming that the road owes its existence to a land grant of the state of Minnesota, the council has instructed City Attorney Mitchell to appear before the state railway and warehouse commission to have trains running over the former St. Paul & Duluth branch of the Northern Pacific run through Minnesota exclusively.

This means that an effort will be made to have the road abandon its traffic to West Superior and turn the tide of passenger and freight service through West Duluth once more.

The supreme court of Minnesota has held that the railway and warehouse commission has it in its power to regulate the train service to the West End and West Duluth, which is restored by order of the courts after about two years of discrimination against the western part of this city and in favor of West Superior.

In brief, the people of the West End and West Duluth proposed for Superior just what they have had to contend with for about two years while the Northern Pacific trains over the old short line have been crossing over into Wisconsin above West Duluth and returning to Minnesota at Rice's Point.

Aldermen Sang, Barnes and Kern made the fight for the resolution which was adopted last evening calling on the city attorney to appear and argue the case before the state railway and warehouse commission.

Mr. Sang said that despite the fact that the road was built by a land grant from this state, the policy recently seemed to be more in favor of Wisconsin than Minnesota, and more in favor of West Superior than Duluth. He thought such a tendency should be discouraged, and held that the merchants and citizens of West Duluth and the West End had at least an equity in the matter that the courts had not overlooked, and he did not see how it would be possible for the railway and warehouse commissioners to remain obvious of that fact when, where and when the trains should be run in accordance with the supreme court's recent order.

And still the council refused to accept the plumbing bids for No. 4 fire hall. It is claimed that the city is being held on this contract by a local plumbing combine, and there is still serious talk of asking plumbers of St. Paul, Minneapolis and Superior to come in and compete with the local firms.

Alderman Krumsieg and Alderman Sang explained that it was the council's duty to insist on proper treatment and bids from the local plumbers, and Alderman Krumsieg said that he knew of one job on in the city where a property owner considered the bids of the combine excessive and purchased his plumbing supplies outside and is having the work done by day labor, saving in the neighborhood of $700.

Alderman Haven suggested that in view of the fact that the city has an expert plumbing inspector, he should be instructed to prepare an estimate in detail of the work for No. 4 hall before the council should proceed further in the fight against the local combine. This suggestion appealed favorably to the other aldermen and a resolution was adopted asking Inspector Rigdon to prepare an estimate as quickly as possible.

The council declines very positively to interfere with the board of public works in its crusade against sidewalk advertising signs.

The decision was made last evening as the result of a petition from a local jeweler to be allowed to keep a clock sign up despite the orders of the board of public works for its removal.

The department has been going easy with the anti-sign campaign, pending this decision, and it is probable now that all signs will be ordered off again, and if not removed by the owners they will be removed by the city.

* * *

In a verbal report City Attorney Mitchell notified the aldermen that it was quite probable that the Northern Pacific Railway company would have to pay for the paving of the Lake avenue viaduct and its approaches, as contended recently by a number of property owners. In order not to delay the improvement, however, he suggested that the assessment for the paving be levied against the property owners, with the stipulation that they should be reimbursed if the courts held that the railway company should pay for the work.

* * *

An ordinance was passed prohibiting the use of chains and blocks for breaking purposes on heavily loaded wagons passing down streets and avenues newly improved. It is maintained that this sort of breaks does great damage to the street surfaces.

* * *

The department of public works was instructed to advertise for bids for the paving of Central avenue in West Duluth, from Cody to Main streets, and to hasten this improvement as fast as possible in order that it may be accomplished during the current season.

* * *

The contract awarding the paving of East Michigan street to J. W. Preston for $9232 was approved.

* * *

The patrol limit ordinance was so amended as to provide a new district, permitting a saloon at New Duluth.

* * *

It was decided to cut the width of the proposed new city dock at Fond du Lac to forty-eight feet, thus reducing the cost to about $750, instead of $1160.

FOUR ARE TO BE ELECTED

School Directors to Be Chosen By People of Duluth.

The annual election of the board of directors of the independent school district of Duluth will be held Saturday, July 18, which is the third Saturday in the month, as the law prescribes.

Four directors are to be elected, one to fill a vacancy and three to fill expired terms. The vacancy was caused by the resignation of H. J. Pierson, the labor member of the board.

The three directors whose terms expire are Dr. Charles L. Codding, J. O. Milne and Dr. W. H. Salter. None of these three have publicly expressed their intentions in the matter, but it has been reported that Dr. Salter would decline a re-election and that Dr. Codding and Mr. Milne, while perhaps not active candidates, would accept re-election.

It is likely that the labor forces of the city will make another effort to secure representation on the board, and that they will have a candidate to succeed Mr. Pierson. No new candidates have been mentioned as yet. Some of the friends of Dr. F. C. Bowman, who was a valuable member of the board for a number of years and who retired a year ago, are said to intend to put up a fight to get him back on the board again.

The school elections have lacked interest and variety since the last of the fights on the Denfeld and anti-Denfeld order. When that was the basis of the fight there were some active struggles, in which the Denfeld forces latterly came out on top.

CIVIL ACTION BEGUN.

Another Development to Sterling Tailoring Outfit.

William L. Berry has begun action in district court against C. M. Miller to recover $105 alleged to be due from the defendant for rental. With the complaint filed yesterday afternoon by R. J. Dowdall, attorney for the plaintiff was an affidavit of attachment.

The starting of the above action is another chapter in the McKay hotel building incident that happened Saturday evening. The defendant, running a tailoring establishment in the First street and Fifth avenue corner of the hotel block, under the name of Sterling Bros., tailors, is alleged to have attempted to remove his goods in the night time to avoid having them attached for rent.

JUNE DEMAND GOOD.

Much Labor Being Used In Railroad Work.

The June demand for labor in the Northwest is an excellent one. Orders are being received daily by the employment agencies from Wisconsin and Northern and Western Minnesota for men to work in camps or for railroad construction work. The demand for railroad work is especially heavy at the present time as there is a great deal of new trackage being built this summer.

Besides the Richard-Sundeen contract for 100 miles of new track in the Western part of the state, the Runquist contracts on the range, which have just been closed will afford a new field for employment. The wages run from $1.75 to $2 per day for common labor and these figures are considered good for this season of the year. In the summer logging camp wages range from $28 to $35 per month.

ADVERTISING CARNIVAL.

Interest of Neighboring Towns and Cities Aroused.

During the next few weeks leading up to the big carnival and fair to be given in this city in July, the Duluth Carnival and Amusement company will adopt a number of novel methods of advertising the event among the neighboring towns and cities. Personal letters will be sent out to presidents of those pacles which are expected to create interest as well as amusement. Following is the form of one of the letters that the committee is sending to prospective visitors:

"Dear Sir—Come to town and be a real live one with us for once in your life! The biggest and best things that ever happened in Duluth—something doing every minute, day and night and you wont have to carry water for the elephant to see it, either. IT IS FREE. The keys of the city will be turned over to the visitors and they will be allowed the freedom of the city. Red lemonade will flow like water and there will be tons of peanuts and ice cream for all. The mayor and the city dads will take a vacation converting the city bastile into a beautiful summer garden where those afflicted with that tired feeling can find rest. The police force will be deaf, dumb and blind so long as you behave yourself. Should any of our citizens fail to extend the glad hand report them to his Royal Highness, the Grand High Inka Dinka, the Lord of Walla Walla, High Mucky Muck and Chief Mogul, and they will be thrown into the depths of old lake Superior, weighed down with 500 pounds of crackerjack, just as the sun goes down. If you have any troubles bring them along and they will melt away like ice cream before a pretty girl. Don't forget to wear your glad togs. It will be warm enough. Bring your best girl. If you haven't one, come anyway, you can find one here. Don't forget to come and be a live one with us. Come and see the smoke."

APPOINTMENTS HELD UP

Washington, June 16.—President Roosevelt has agreed on the appointment of Bert Oakley and J. D. Jones as register and receiver in the new Minnesota land district, but their commissions have not been signed because the question of the location of the office has not been decided. Land Commissioner Richards will return in a few days when it will be decided whether the office is to remain at Cass Lake, as fixed in the original order, or be removed to Bemidji.

The reappointment of the officers at St. Cloud is also held up to be announced with those for the new district.

The hat sale, skirt sale, suit sale, wash goods sale, silk sale, white goods sale, are all going on as advertised. Big crowds every day are doing full justice to these wondrous bargains.

6000 NEW SHIRT WAISTS

White waists, black waists, colored waists—Every waist this season's correct style in every way. Made for this season's elite wear by one of the biggest Eastern waist makers who caters only to elite trade. We gathered in his entire samples, surpluses and odd lots, as bright, fresh and desirable as the day they were finished. His entire force is now working on fall waists. Had to have the room and the money tied up in this collection. The price he made to us was less than half what we paid him for waists earlier in the season. Do you wonder that we never hesitated a moment, but snapped up this purchase before he could change his mind?

The lot was so big it has taken all our available force several days and nights to sort and ticket them. But they will be ready without fail Wednesday morning. ALL 3 BARGAIN COUNTERS ON THE MAIN FLOOR will be piled with them, and the waist department on the second floor will display the balance.

INCREASE IN RAILROADS

For Last Year Greater Than Any Year Since 1890.

Washington, June 16.—The interstate commerce commission has prepared a summary of its report on the railroads of the United States for the fiscal year which closed June 30, 1902. It shows that the total single track railway mileage on June 29 in the United States was 202,471 miles, having increased during the year 5,34 miles. This increase was greater than that for any other year since 1893. Among the states for which an increase in mileage in excess of 100 miles is shown are: Minnesota, Wisconsin, North Dakota, Iowa.

Including side tracks, double tracks, etc., the total trackage is 274,195 miles, there were 41,228 locomotives and 1,640,220 cars, not including private cars used during the year. The total number of employes was 1,189,315. The amount paid in salaries and wages was $676,028,592.

The amount of railway capital outstanding on June 30, 1902, was $12,134,182,-954, or $62,301 per mile of line.

The number of passengers carried was 649,878,506, and the number of tons of freight 111,089,547. The gross earnings of all roads for the year was $1,726,380,267, the total dividends declared $185,421,239.

The total number of casualties to persons on account of railway accidents was 73,245, including 8588 killed and 64,662 injured.

Of railway employes 2969 were killed and 50,524 were injured.

The number of passengers killed was 345 and the number injured 6,683.

TREASON TO LABOR.

President Roosevelt Guilty, Say Miners' Resolutions.

Denver, Colo., June 16.—In a set of resolutions adopted by the executive committee of the Western Federation of Miners, President Roosevelt is taken to task for ordering federal troops to quell the disturbances at Morenci, Ariz. The resolutions charge that as a member of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen, the president, by his action has been guilty of treason to the principles of organized labor. The resolutions appeal to the toilers of the nation, "To array themselves on the political battleground in 1904 and to use the franchise of citizenship to overthrow at the ballot box a system that demands for its maintenance and perpetuation the murderous implement of barbarism."

GLACIERS ARE DETERIORATING

Famous Muir Has Not Recovered Expanse and Beauty.

Tacoma, Wash., June 16.—Persons who have recently returned from Alaska say it is possible that within a few years the coast glaciers, which are such an attraction for tourists going north each year, will be greatly reduced in size and beauty. The Muir glacier, which is the greatest on the continent, does not present the solid face to the ocean that it did two years ago, and there is reason to suppose it will never again do so.

Last year the face of this glacier was considerably broken up and Glacier bay was filled with great floating icebergs broken from it. It was thought then that the breaking away had been the result of an earthquake and that the vast expanse and beauty of the ice slide would be restored by this season. Passengers who went north on an excursion steamer which has just returned say that such is not the case. The bay is still filled with huge ice floes, so that it was impossible for the steamer to get closer than some six miles from the face of the glacier.

The steamer passed within a mile of the Patterson and the Baird glaciers. It went within a quarter of a mile of the Taku glacier, giving those on board a magnificent view of it. While they were watching it a huge mass of ice fell from the great ice slide, dropping with a splash into the bay. There were large masses of floating ice in front of this glacier also.

SAY IT IS NONSENSE.

Story of Northern Securities Dissolution Is Scouted.

St. Paul, June 16.—Louis W. Hill, son and assistant of President James J. Hill of the Great Northern, says of the telegraphic story of the imminent dissolution of the Northern Securities company: "The Northern Securities company will not be dissolved, even if the United States supreme court upholds every contention made in the cases that have been brought against the company.

"I have heard nothing about any movement to dissolve the Northern Securities company," said Mr. Hill, "and I would certainly know if such a thing were contemplated. Such a movement would scarcely be undertaken while my father was away on a six months' fishing trip.

"The story may be picked up by some papers because it is sensational, but it is not true. There is no need of a dissolution, even if the cases now being tried should go against the company."

DEATH SENTENCE GIVEN

For Hiring Others to Commit Murders.

Chattanooga, Tenn., June 16.—The conviction of W. E. Cattlett for murder is believed to mean the end of the White Capping and feud troubles that have terrorized the people of Sevier county, Tennessee, for years. The trial of Cattlett has just been concluded at Loudon, Tenn., on a change of venue from Sevier county.

The jury returned a verdict to the effect that he was guilty of murder in the first degree with mitigating circumstances in hiring persons to kill Laura Wesley. When he was brought into court for sentence Judge Burke said that he was unable to find any mitigating circumstances and therefore sentenced Cattlett to be hanged. The latter at once took an appeal to the supreme court of Tenessee.

Ples Winn and Cattlett Tipton were arraigned, convicted and hanged for killing Laura Wesley. They confessed that they were hired by Cattlett. Sevier county has been the scene of many feuds.

THIRTY BULGARIANS KILLED.

Salonica, June 16.—Several conflicts have recently occurred in Macedonia between insurgent bands and Turkish troops. Some thirty Bulgarians have been killed and many wounded.

SERVIA'S NEW KING.

Whether the Servians have made a change for the better by placing Peter Karageorgevitch on the throne is doubtful. Certainly the record of his family does not hold out much promise, when it is recalled that the first Karageorgevitch floated the flag of cowardice and deserted his country in its hour of need, and the second proved a ruler of doubtful wisdom and courage and was the most unpopular ruler Servia ever had. Possibly the third member of that family to ascend the throne may make a better record, and thus the decision of the Servian leaders be justified. Certainly King Peter must be a great improvement over the monarch who has just been assassinated, even if he should fail to measure up to the standard set by his admirers and supporters.

The new king is about 45 years old and a widower and his personal reputation is good. It is safe to predict that the disgraceful scandals which surrounded the Servian court under Alexander and Milan will not be perpetuated by Peter. He has resided in Geneva for several years, from which he conducted the propaganda in favor of his claims to the throne, and has lived quietly and respectably. As the grandson of Kara George (Black George) who, in 1804, raised the first insurrection against the Turks, Prince Peter has been the principal pretender to the throne. His father, now dead, was convicted "in contumaciam" of being the principal instigator of the murder of the reigning Prince Michael of Servia in 1868, and was, as such, forbidden to set foot in Hungary. Prince Peter married the eldest daughter of the reigning prince of Montenegro, who died leaving him a couple of boys, George and Alexander, who are being educated at St. Petersburg, under the direction of their father's brother, Alexis, who is in the Russian service and married one of the Demidoffs. There are, all told, at the present moment, four adult princes Karageorgevitch, two of whom, namely, Peter and Arsene, are second or third cousins of Bozidar and Alexis. Peter and Arsene are sons of that Alexander Karageorgevitch who reigned over Servia from 1842 to 1858. As the widower of the Princess Zorka, he is a brother-in-law of the queen of Italy, as well as of the Grand Duchess Peter of Russia and of the duchess of Leuchtenberg. His younger brother, Arsene, married to the enormously wealthy Aurora Demidoff, is an officer of the Russian guards and makes his home in St. Petersburg. With these powerful connections, it is not surprising that the new king meets the approval of the great powers, especially of Russia, and he has given evidence of good sense in demanding as a condition precedent to accepting the throne that all those directly concerned in the conspiracy and assassination of the late king and queen shall be banished from the country.

IS THE WORST TO COME?

The report of Civil Service Commissioner Proctor on the postoffice department, criticizing the brazen disregard of civil service regulations in the Washington office, is being widely commented on, more particularly because it sustains the charges made by Seymour W. Tulloch. When the ex-cashier filed his charges, Postmaster General Payne made sport of them. He called them "hot air" and denounced Tulloch, but later, as the investigation progressed, his attitude underwent a change. It is now an accepted fact that the Washington postoffice has been a mere bureau of the department; that it has been a dumping ground upon which politicians unloaded numerous constituents who were clamoring for jobs and that irregularities in the matter of paying salaries to persons who did no work, etc., were frequent. The report of Fourth Assistant Bristow upon the subject, which Mr. Payne has promised to make public this week, it is believed, will be decidedly unfavorable to the methods pursued in the office.

The Washington correspondent of the Chicago Chronicle says that little doubt exists that the present week will witness interesting developments in the department investigation. Rumors of laxity among high officials have been circulated so freely and backed by such high authority that the belief is general that there will be something doing of an extraordinary character before many days. Investigation of the charges against George W. Beavers, former chief of the division of salaries and allowances, has been thorough and is expected to culminate shortly. The charge of collusion in the purchase of time checks for use in the department at an exorbitant price, also of cash registers and stamp cancelling machines, will, it is said, prove disastrous in its denouement to Beavers. Much evidence of extravagance and irregularities, not to use stronger terms, has been gathered and the time to strike almost has arrived. When it does come the sensation caused by the arrest of August W. Machen probably will be eclipsed.

It is an awful mess and it is not going to do the Republican party any good in the next campaign. These scandals will form the subject of many speeches at the next session of congress, and the Democrats will not neglect the opportunity to effectively use such valuable ammunition. The cry of "drive the rascals out" has proven effective in many a campaign and it may supply the Democrats with an issue that may prove powerful in the campaign of 1904.

One of the handsomest special editions ever issued by a newspaper in this country—and, of course, that means in the world—is the "house-warming edition" of the Memphis, Tenn., Evening Scimitar. The art supplement is an elaborate production, and its excellence in general and in detail reflects the highest credit upon the enterprise and artistic skill of those who assisted in its publication. The Scimitar has good reason to take special pride in the fact that all of the engraving, type-setting and make-up was done in its own office by its regular force, and that this beautiful example of printing and engraving was produced by Memphis men and Memphis machinery. The edition was promoted primarily to celebrate the removal of the Scimitar into its new home, which is regarded as the most complete newspaper building south of Mason and Dixon's line, and the superior of any office building in Memphis. The Scimitar is a splendid newspaper and under the able and enterprising management of A. B. Pickett has prospered greatly.

GEN. MATOS' RETIREMENT.

The retirement of Gen. Manuel A. Matos from the leadership of the revolutionary forces of Venezuela, with the admission that the rebellion is a failure, will cause a pang of regret to many. Gen. Matos was a brilliant leader and an intensely patriotic man, who believed that he could rescue Venezuela from the deplorable state into which she had been plunged under the Castro administration. Matos is essentially a civic leader and not a soldier, although he is now known as Gen. Matos. In Venezuela every leader of a revolutionary movement becomes a general at once, no matter whether he has had military experience or not. Matos did have some military experience in the army, however, when Guzman Blanco was president. Matos is said to have amassed his wealth in legitimate enterprises. He made much money out of contracts during the Blanco administration. In Caracas he conducted a lucrative commission house, and was interested in a New York business firm. Matos was also a large stockholder in the Bank of Venezuela and the Bank of Caracas. During recent years he has also had several lucrative European connections. Not a small part of his fortune was represented in cocoa and coffee plantations in Venezuela, which Castro confiscated. It is such a man, with large resources and plenty of experience and friends, who tried to force Castro to the wall. He had the additional prestige of family, which Castro has not. Castro is of humble birth and so is his wife. Before he became dictator it is said that he and his wife separated and that she intended to live apart from him. When Castro got into power and needed his wife to keep up the social end of his presidency he sent for her and partial reconciliation followed. The dictator decided to live in the palace of Mira Flores, which Crespo had built at great expense, because some of Castro's Indian followers, with their women warriors, had been allowed to establish themselves in an unconventional manner in the Yellow House, which corresponds to the White House in Washington.

Matos has a personal grievance against Castro, who in the early part of 1900 cast the multi-millionaire into prison on the charge of conspiring against the government. Castro had demanded $50,000 of Matos, and the latter refused to give it. Other business men of Caracas were also being similarly levied upon for monetary assistance. Matos obtained his liberty upon the payment of $20,000. The Venezuelan president has obtained large sums of money from business men of Caracas by similar tactics since 1900. About six weeks ago he is reported to have demanded $150,000. Whether he got the whole sum is not positively known, but the belief is that he obtained the larger part.

There is no doubt that Matos is a better man than Castro in many ways, but Castro is a shrewder and better leader. Matos has always been opposed to the Castro administration, which he believes to be corrupt, and which he thinks is plunging Venezuela into ruin. Matos is related by marriage to the Guzman Blanco family, and there are few persons in Venezuela who are as wealthy as he. His estate was valued some time ago at about $6,000,000, but he has lost much of this in his schemes. In the revolution now ended he paid the rebel army out of his own purse. This is the difference between the two leaders. Castro, however, has triumphed and Matos must be relegated to the rear for the present at least.

FOURTH OF JULY TETANUS.

The approach of the Fourth of July and its attendant celebrations is bringing out warnings by the medical journals against the indulgence in the use of explosives, causing injuries and not infrequently death. The bursting cannon, the premature explosion, the burning building and the bulleted cartridge supposed to have been a blank, each claim victims and lost eyes and fingers, burns and injuries are almost numberless. But these do not complete the record, and the medical journals are now drawing special attention to the necessity of action that will stop or decrease the annual epidemic due to the tetanus-infected blank cartridge wound.

This epidemic is accounted as certain as the Fourth itself, and in the large cities like New York and Chicago it amounts to about one-third of the total annual death rate from tetanus. In Chicago there are usually fifteen to thirty deaths from blank cartridge tetanus each year, while the entire number of deaths from tetanus each year is about fifty. Although there are plenty of other wounds received at this time each year, still the blank cartridge causes nearly all the tetanus infections. It is rare, indeed, that the lacerations from the exploding giant cracker are followed by tetanus. That this is not due to any infectious nature of the blank cartridge itself has been abundantly shown; repeated examinations have demonstrated that they are free from virulent tetanus germs. There can be no doubt that their danger lies in the nature of the wound they produce, and the circumstances under which the wound is received. Street dirt is a favorite habitat of the tetanus bacilli or their spores, and the hand that receives the wound is usually well covered with dirt at the time of the accident. The wad carries this dirt, with its contained organisms, deep into the hand, where the ideal anaerobic conditions exist, even excelling those of the famous nail wound of the foot. In proportion to the number of wounds received there can be no doubt that the blank cartridge wounds are far more deadly than the nail wounds, for they are certainly less common, yet they cause about as many deaths. It is claimed that most of these deaths are preventable if the blank cartridge wounds are properly treated as soon as they are received, but it frequently happens that they are superficially cleaned and dressed, instead of being given a thorough surgical treatment, supplemented by prophylactic injection of tetanus antitoxin.

Two things are necessary to accomplish the extinction of Fourth of July tetanus. The first is the enforcement of proper regulations of the sale of firearms and ammunition to minors. In cities where adequate precautions are taken, as in Washington, Fourth of July tetanus is practically absent. After this comes the education of the laity to an appreciation of the danger of this particular sort of injury. If the boy and his parent understand that an extremely large proportion of blank cartridge wounds cause lockjaw they will not be satisfied with anything less than the most thorough treatment, for the ordinary individual has a proper appreciation of the seriousness of this disease.

HOTEL GOSSIP.

D. J. Arpin, of Grand Rapids, Wis., arrived at the Spalding this morning, after a visit to the timber lands and property in Cook county, which belong to the Wisconsin corporation of which he is a member. He was a passenger on the Huronic from Grand Marais.

Mr. Arpin is one of the incorporators and large shareholders in the Gunflint & Lake Superior railroad project, and in speaking of it this morning said:

"The object of the incorporation was to put the company in such shape that it could continue its logging roads. All that has been built under the incorporation has been a couple of miles of spur track which is being used in hauling out the logs.

"Some day the road will reach Lake Superior, and will make a direct line from the lake shore to the Canadian border. At present, however, the road is being built in sections as the logging operations advance. The road is being built from the north."

There has been a good deal of talk about this proposed road, as the incorporation papers stated that it was the intention to build from the border to the lake, but it was understood at that time the work would go right ahead.

Several lumber companies with holdings in Cook county are anxious to secure railroad service into the center of the country, and it is possible that overtures from them will cause the Arpin people to hurry things. There are also a number of property owners on the lake who are desirous of some connection which would cause a stimulation of shipping in that part of the lake frontage.

Mr. Arpin will go to his home today or tomorrow, and will make a report to the company on conditions as he found them on his trip of inspection to the timber country.

Charles Gahrowsky, of Ely, who is chief clerk in the steel corporation's division at that place, was in town with his little daughter yesterday, and registered at the Spalding hotel.

The little girl was very anxious most of the time to crawl out of an upper story window, though her father objected occasionally.

"We had one of the men fall Saturday at the Pioneer mine," he said, "and he is up again. He fell eighty feet and while the fall doesn't hurt much, it being the air at the sudden stop, it isn't at all pleasant. This man dropped the eighty feet and alighted on some shavings and timber ends at the bottom.

"It didn't seem to hurt him much, and he got up and didn't seem to mind it. His left arm was broken by the fall, and he was dazed and a little shaken up, but he received no serious injury.

"But they all don't get off as easily as that."

George Tvedt takes his meals at the Spalding hotel's American dining room.

It takes an elevator to reach that place, and sometimes one doesn't reach it then.

It is five or six stories from the office floor to the dining room, but it took Mr. Tvedt an hour and a half to make it the other morning.

The circumstance was particularly farce comedy.

Mr. Tvedt was coming down the street on a dead run. He had an engagement with a business man in twenty-five minutes, and had to be there or not sell a mine or a few hundred thousand acres of Highland property.

They only run one elevator of the battery of elevators at the hotel, and into the active one the hurried young man rushed.

"Quick, to ye top," he shouted to the elevator man.

The elevator shot up.

But the upshot wasn't what was looked for.

The machine struck a snag. It was between the floors 199 and 200.

The cage would not budge, though the boy pulled all the levers and looked wise. The workmen trooped along and went up in the rigging and spilled oil down.

Still no move.

Mr. Tvedt fumed and fretted and it is alleged on information and belief that he swore, though that circumstance is not supported by direct evidence.

"Friends" of the imprisoned men called down the shaft asking him what style of service he preferred for breakfast.

Shortly after 10 o'clock the cage was moved as far as a floor and Mr. Tvedt was let out. He was late for the meal, but the management felt sorry for him and held breakfast, while the man with the iron mine or he who was looking for one, got away entirely.

Moral: Never make a business engagement before 3 in the afternoon.

L. C. Shattuck, who is interested in mines and mining, is up from Chicago and will make a trip up on the range today with the Merritts to look over the iron mines and see how they secure ore here.

Reflections of a Bachelor.

New York Press: The best thing for a girl's complexion is for a man to catch her climbing an apple tree.

Some people seem to think that just because a man is a bachelor he is deaf, dumb and blind.

Nearly always you can tell when a man is married by the way he acts as if he weren't when he is away from home.

A woman has an idea that it is better for her not to balance her check book monthly so the cashier won't know how little money she has.

Women are so conscientious that when they are in a bath tub and a servant tells them that some man has called to see them they blush.

Almost a Native Son.

Philadelphia Ledger: After the indorsement given his candidacy in 1904 by Ohio the president no doubt finds that the White House feels "homelike" since his return.

He Might Prefer Protection.

Chicago News: Southern newspapers are respectfully requested to make no mention of the lynching bee at Belleville, Ill. Comments upon such an affair could only have the effect of embarrassing Northern people greatly in their work of pointing out and reproving similar sins of the South.

THE WEATHER.

United States Agricultural Department Weather Bureau, Duluth. Synopsis of weather conditions for the twenty-four hours ending at 7 a. m., (central time), June 16.—Showers fell over New England states, the western lake region, South Dakota, Colorado, Kansas, New Mexico, Louisiana and Oregon. It is cooler in the upper lake region and warmer in Western Canada and the far South. Barometric pressures are high over the Dakotas, and low off the New England coast and over British Columbia. The winds in the lake region are mostly northerly and fresh. Fair weather is the rule in the Northwest this morning.

The Upper Lakes: Fresh to brisk northerly winds. Generally fair Wednesday, preceded by showers on Michigan and Huron this afternoon and possibly tonight.

THE STAGE

The Northwestern Opera company presented last evening as their second opera at the Lyceum the popular "Mikado," and the production met with much success. The particular feature was the appearance of Miss Rena Smith, the well known local singer, for the first time with a professional company, and the audience was filled with friends who were keenly interested in the event and enthusiastically appreciative of the success she scored. Miss Smith appeared as Peep Bo, one of the three little Japanese maidens. The part was not a trying one and Miss Smith played it easily and with confidence. A pretty Japanese love song was interpolated for her benefit and she sang it excellently.

The production of the opera increased the friends the company made last week. George Lyding was a fine Nanki-Poo and his voice was heard more than in the previous opera, which was very gratifying for he is excellently gifted vocally. He also acts pleasingly. Stanley Felch was a fine Ko Ko, making much fun. Sylvan Langlois was a good Poo-Bah.

Miss Jenkins sang the role of Yum Yum; very prettily, and Miss Bertha Hayden was a delightful Pitti-Sing. Sylvester Cornish, as Katisha, was very good and sang well.

The same opera will be sung tonight and tomorrow afternoon and evening.

"Mascotte," that immensely funny opera, composed by Andrau, was given its first presentation by the Wilbur company at the Metropolitan last evening and was witnessed by a large audience. The piece gives ample opportunity for the individual members of tunity for the individual members of the cast to display their talents, and they were not found wanting. Miss Hattie Richardson, the prima donna, made an admirable Bettina, and her efforts were warmly applauded. Gus Vaughan sang Pippo in his usual pleasing voice, and Miss Ethel Hunt, as Freddie, made a decided hit. Miss Marion Langdon as the Princess, W. A. McGraw as Rocco, Charles Van Dyne as Prince Lorenzo, William Flavelle as the Doctor and Charles Vaughan as Matteo were especially pleasing.

A notable change in the vaudeville features was witnessed and the three little Gardner children received their usual warm welcome. The success of last Wednesday's matinee when these infantile performers entertained the little folks of Duluth was so great that Manager Fullwood has decided to repeat the idea. All children under 12 years of age will be admitted to tomorrow's matinee free of charge, and at the conclusion of the afternoon's entertainment the three little Gardners will hold a reception on the stage. "Mascotte" will be presented tonight, tomorrow night and at Wednesday's matinee.

If Folks Were Always Good.

This world would be a pleasant place
if folks were always good,
And all the people, young and old,
Did always as they should;
But what would the policemen do,
If nobody did wrong?
They'd surely have to go to work,
For they are well and strong.

And all the judges in the courts,
They'd lose their places, sure,
And all the ministers would find
Their jobs would not endure;
For all their preaching would be thought
Unnecessary, quite,
If no one in the world did wrong,
And everyone did right.

And countless other people, too,
Would find that they must change
Their daily occupations, and
Their new lives would be strange.
The lawyers, watchmen, locksmiths—yes,
And hosts of others would
Most certainly be out of date,
If folks were always good!

AN ARTIST'S MODEL

By Walter Browne.

(Copyright, 1903, by Daily Story Pub. Co.)

Look at her face! Is it not horrible? Yet those are the features found on the canvas of a famous painter's ideal pictures of feminine loveliness. They are altered now. They are distorted and disfigured as if the paint had been blistered by scorching fire, or had rotted away until the thread-bare canvass showed through."

It was a well-known artist who spoke thus to a friend, as they passed a tall and stately woman whose face was thickly veiled.

"You don't mean to tell me that hideous creature was once an artist's model?" replied the other man.

"Listen," said the artist. "I will tell you her history. Few know it. It was kept quiet, for it makes a certain society woman seem even uglier in some people's eyes than this poor disfigured wretch, and it is apt to make men say very ugly things of one who holds a position at the head of our honored profession.

"Do not for a moment imagine, however, that this poor disfigured girl is unhappy. She is the wife, the dearly loved wife of one of the kindest and best fellows in the world."

"Why, you don't mean to tell me that any man—ugh!" said the other man with a shudder.

"Hush! He is stone blind," continued the artist. "Listen! Clarice Derblay was not only one of the most beautiful girls that ever dazzled the eye of an artist, but she was the sweetest and most gentle creature ever dignified with the often misapplied title of lady. She was a lady in the best, indeed in every sense of the word.

"Her father was a broken-down English nobleman who had been sent to this country to quietly drink himself to death on the meagre residue of a dissipated estate. He fulfilled his mission and left Clarice totally unprovided for.

"The girl had previously met Jack Heartly, a handsome young artist who was rapidly making a reputation and had a big future before him. They loved each other.

Jack painted the face of the girl he loved, and all we fellows were crazy to know where he had found such a wonderfully beautiful model. Poor fellow! He often used to tell us that God made that face for him alone. He would sooner have died than let her become a model for other men to paint, but she—she was too proud to let him know that she was penniless. She had heard that models were well paid, she knew that she was beautiful, and she went to sit for—well, for a man whom you will call an ugly name when my tale is done, so we will just call him 'Mr. Ugly' now.

"'Ugly' had an ugly reputation. This had reached his wife's ears. She was a southern woman, with all a southern woman's ideas of vengeance. She knew that a certain shameless creature regularly visited her husband's studio for purposes wholly unconnected with art. She had heard that her husband had dared to declare this woman more beautiful than her, and she made a terrible resolve that such beauty should tempt him no longer.

"One morning Clarice started to mount the dark stairway which led to 'Ugly's' studio. She was thinking of Jack who had started that day on a sketching expedition. The skies were lowering for a storm, and she was fearful that the careless boy had not taken his rain coat, when—

"Ha! Full in her fair young face, out of the darkness came a torrent of water.

"No. Not water. It smarted. It burned. What was it?

"She cried aloud, but a woman's mocking laugh which greeted her wail of agony, only made the pain worse to bear.

"When 'Ugly' opened his studio door and found her there, he merely muttered: 'This is my wife's work. Damn the shecat. Lucky escape for Tootsie.'

"As they carried Clarice out to the ambulance, a terrific clap of thunder followed fast upon the lightning bolt which fell somewhere on Long Island, and, in spite of the pain, she again wondered if Jack had taken his mackintosh.

"A strange blank followed. Then she knew that she was in a hospital. That she had been hurt. But it seemed so strange that Jack was not near her, that he had not called to see her.

"One day they let her get up awhile. She wandered to the place where the young nurses trimmed their hair before the young doctors came their rounds. She looked in the glass, and then she knew how hideous she had become. She prayed for death that night.

"At length a letter came, but it was not in Jack's handwriting. She could see that, although her scarred eyelids made vision very difficult. They read it to her.

"He had just heard, the letter said, that she was ill and in the hospital. Come to me,' it continued, 'for I love you, although I shall never see your lovely face again. I was blinded by a thunder bolt on Long Island.'

"'A bolt from Heaven!' Thank God he cannot see me,' said the girl.

"He never knew of her terrible misfortune. They were married and he still worships her beauty, as it lives in his memory, but which, to others, is forever dead."

One Rare Advantage.

Chicago News: Mr. Roosevelt has one advantage not enjoyed by many of his predecessors. He is so certain of renomination that he can run the presidency as he pleases without pausing to consider how some one or other of the factions in the party is going to feel about it.

Extraordinary Extremes.

Philadelphia Record: It required many days of rain to raise the great flood which has wrought such destruction down the Kansas, Missouri and Des Moines rivers, and which, still on its way to the sea, is overflowing town and country southward from where the Missouri joins the Mississippi. But less than one night of rain caused the flood that has destroyed, in and around Spartanburg, S. C., about as many lives and nearly as much property as did the Kansas or Kaw river flood at Topeka. More destructive of life than either flood was the tornado which leveled a part of Gainesville, Ga., last week in shorter time than it takes to tell. It has already proved a year marked by extraordinary extremes in the manifestations of atmospheric forces. The northeastern states, with their drouth now passing beyond all recorded precedent for this season of the year, are not worse afflicted than some other parts of the country are in other ways.

The Aftermath of War.

Chicago Chronicle: Patriotic citizens who whooped vociferously for war with Spain are likely to scratch their heads at the information that 57,646 "invalids" of that conflict have already made application for pensions along with 8390 "widows and orphans." As more people are killed and wounded every Fourth of July than succumbed in the whole Spanish war, it may puzzle the ordinary taxpaying citizen to account for this extraordinary—and expensive—pension list.

LAUGHING REMARKS.

Chicago Tribune: "He's forever complaining of his hard luck. I wonder what's his idea of hard luck, anyway?"

"It's merely the inability to fall into a soft snap."

New York Weekly:—Winkers—Why is it that women always dislike a prominent man who is an old bachelor?

Binkers—Because they can't say that he would never have amounted to anything if it had not been for his wife.

Washington Star: "Are you going to take a vacation this summer?"

"I suppose I'll have to," answered Mr. Cumrox, "although I must say I'd like to put in one summer simply attending to business and resting up."

Chicago Post: "Are you going to take a vacation trip of any sort this summer?"

"We expect to."

"Where are you going?"

"Can't say yet, but we're expecting a tornado to come along and take us somewhere."

New York Sun: Belshazzar beheld the writing on the wall.

"Maybe it's only the name of a new breakfast food," he faltered, trying to be brave.

Later interpretations, however, justified his worst fears.

Philadelphia Press: "You have only twenty-five boys at your school, I'm told, professor."

"Yes, ordinarily, but they were doubled last week."

"You don't say?"

"Yes. They raided a neighboring truck patch and stole a lot of cucumbers."

Brooklyn Life: "You do not inject enough contempt, spite and venom into that word."

"I can do no better."

"Nonsense. Speak it just as you say 'plush' when you meet a rival in a seal-skin sacque."

Philadelphia Press: "I'm sorry that I brought you to the shore at all," exclaimed her mother. "The idea of your being engaged to two young men. It's shameful."

"Oh, I don't know, ma," protested the summer girl. "Give me time; I've only been here three days."

Washington Star: "That political rival of yours went so far as to intimate that you would sell your influence for money."

"Professional jealousy, my friend," replied Senator Sorghum, soothingly. "He's cross because he hasn't any influence to sell."

THE PATH OF POWER.

Soul and body, follow me;
Cold and free the mountains gleam.
Leave the vale of languing ease
Where the trees o'erhang the stream.

Come, my body, joy of sense
Shall not henceforth be thy spoil.
Leave, my soul, thy fellow-fires;
Who aspires alone must toil.

Festal riot, lure of love,
Un above ye shall not find.
Pine trees toss their spears of black
O'er our track beneath the wind.

Whispering their music dies
As we rise, and now I seek
Lonely wastes of silent snow
Spread below the windy peak.

Mote-like in the vale one stands
Lifting hands to wave me back,
Sighs that kindle, eyes that burn
Shall not turn me from my track.

On the ridge the mounded stones
Hide his bones who tried the height.
Though the daylight wane and fail,
I must scale the peak tonight.

Soul and body, can ye fear
When sc near my battle ground?
Fear the darkness?—ye would flee
Could ye see where I am bound.

—Spectator.

He Must Be Getting Lonely.

Denver Republican: George Fred Williams should follow Mr. Cleveland's advice about using plenty of patience and good humor. Maybe he will be able to add another member or two to his party.

He Is the Boss Man This Time.

Washington Star: Senator Foraker does not think that the Ohio indorsement of President Roosevelt requires any comment. This may be another point of disagreement with Senator Hanna.

Even the Water Is Dangerous.

New York World: Buttermilk is accused of making a man drunk in Boston. No wonder the good Dr. Holmes did not dare to be as funny as he could in the old town.

Crookston Loses to Winnipeg, Bringing Duluth Nearer Third Place.

Duluth and Superior Meet With Mueller Twirling For Duluth.

NORTHERN LEAGUE.

Duluth got a little nearer third place yesterday without winning a game. Winnipeg gave the Cardinals a boost in pulling down Crookston by a score of 11 to 1. Martin was hit hard and given ragged support. The champions played fast ball and supported Bartos well at critical moments. The score by innings:

										R.	H.	E.
Crookston	0	0	0	0	0	0	1	0	—1	5	6
Winnipeg	2	3	0	1	1	2	0	0	—11	12	2

Pitchers—Martin, Shiels; Bartos.

Fargo continued the losing streak, going down before Grand Forks in an exhibition that was marked by hard hitting and brilliant fielding. The score:

										R.	H.	E.
Fargo	0	0	0	0	0	0	1	0	0—1	4	4
Grand Forks	1	0	0	0	2	1	1	0	x—5	8	0

Pitchers—Mehl and Harris.

This afternoon Duluth and Superior are playing the first league game of the season at West Superior. The game scheduled for yesterday will be played across the bay next Sunday. The line-up for today's contest was given out this morning as follows:

Duluth—		Superior—
Clarke	catcher	Spellizy
Mueller	pitcher	Morrison
Kennedy	first base	Abbott
Quinlan	second	Cassidaye
Shugart	short	Blair
Munday	third	Olmstead
Glendon	left	Nehr
Lambert	center	Foster
Lyon	right	Lagger

"Chesty" Cox, the youngster that pitched such good ball for Duluth's fast independent team a few years ago will be given a trial by the Cardinals. He will probably pitch one of the Superior games at Athletic park the latter part of the week.

* * *

Clarke, who is scheduled to catch for Duluth this afternoon is a member of the Red Cloud team. He was signed for yesterday when it became apparent that Doar's injury would keep him out of the game for some time.

* * *

Doar knew Saturday morning that he was going to get hurt in the game that afternoon. He felt it in his bones and was not surprised when he was spiked on the plate and later when a foul tip split his hand open.

* * *

Wheelon, who played second base for the Duluth team during the last trip away is now playing with the Knox team.

* * *

Newt Randall is hitting the ball again. In the Grand Forks series just closed the Duluth boy did the best stick work of any member of the Winnipeg team.

* * *

Grand Forks Herald: It seems to be an almost universal habit to criticize the umpire, and generally in no very gentle tones. The average spectator feels himself entirely competent to judge balls and strikes, and it usually amounts to every ball being a strike when their own side is in the field and every ball a ball when the opposing nine is in the field. Umpires are always in a better position to judge a play than the spectator, their eye is trained to note all points of a play [illegible] and impartial, nine times out of ten he will be right, and the spectator wrong.

It is claimed that not more than two of the stockholders of the Fargo baseball association are able to agree at one time. There is not a stockholder who has more than one share of stock—$25, and it will be at once evident that there are a lot of opinions as to the best way to run a ball team and make it win.

The Marshall-Wells players deny that the Universal Millers made twenty hits off Stockman in Sunday's game and challenge the Millers to another game to be played in the near future.

YOUR MONEY RETURNED

If Hyomei Does Not Cure You of Catarrh, Says S. F. Boyce.

In advising that he will refund the money to any one purchasing a Hyomei outfit who can say that it has done them no good in the treatment of catarrh, S. F. Boyce means exactly what this guarantee says.

Of course the percentage of cures by Hyomei is nearly one hundred or else he could not afford to make this unusual offer. But if the treatment should not be adapted to your case there will be no questions or quibblings when you go to get your money.

That the beginning of catarrh is due to the presence of germs in the air passages is now admitted by every physician. It stands to reason that catarrh cannot be cured unless these germs are first destroyed. The Hyomei treatment kills the catarrh germs even in the minutest air cells, soothes and heals the irritated mucous membrane and makes complete and lasting cures in cases that have resisted the usual methods of treatment.

Catarrh cannot be cured by medicines administered through the stomach. Hyomei is the only natural method and it has made cures that seem miraculous. An outfit costs but $1.00 and consists of an inhaler, which will last a lifetime and sufficient Hyomei for more than a month's treatment. Additional bottles of Hyomei can be procured for 50c.

S. F. Boyce gives his personal guarantee with every Hyomei outfit he sells to refund the money if it does not cure. There is no risk whatever to the purchaser of Hyomei.

THE EPWORTH LEAGUE

Convention of Crookston District Brought to Close.

Crookston, Minn., June 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Epworth League convention of the Crookston district was concluded last evening. The reception given by the Crookston league in the church to the delegates was elaborate and well attended. The special features of the convention were the presentation of beautiful badges to the officers of the Crookston league by Rev. Satterlee. Mrs. Wilkinson of Crookston welcomed the delegates in a choice speech and Mrs. McKee of Ada responded. The opening service was in charge of Rev. Brabner Smith, Cass Lake, and was followed by a sermon by Rev. U. A. Foster of Bemidji. The addresses by Revs. Watson, Wadena, and Huntinspillar were fine. Dr. Dodd's sermon on Sunday was a splendid effort. The debate was decided in the affirmative, that the Puritan served his day and generation better than the Epworth Leaguer does his.

The election of delegates to the internation convention resulted in Mrs. Welter of Crookston, Miss Hanson of Detroit and Dr. Dodds of Crookston being chosen as delegates with Mrs. Harbin and Mrs. U. A. Foster of Bemidji as alternates. The officers for the coming year are: President, C. W. Russell, Crookston; 1st vice-president, Miss F. Dennison, Moorhead; 2nd vice-president, Mrs. Hennefin, Wadena; 3rd vice-president, Miss Effie Stevenson, Breckenridge; 4th vice-president, Miss Ada Miller, Ada; 5th vice-president, Miss Slea, Warren; secretary, Otto Bracket, Crookston; treasurer, Lars Erickson, Wadena; juvenile superintendent, Mrs. U. A. Foster, Bemidji.

The convention will meet at Detroit, Minn., June 17, 18, and 19, 1904. Rev. Stevens of Grand Forks preached the closing sermon. There were about one hundred delegates present.

AT CASS LAKE.

Bids For Timber to Be Opened In December.

Cass Lake, Minn., June 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—The bids for timber on the following lands are officially posted and will be opened at Cass Lake land office December 5, next:

Townships 141 north, ranges 27, 28, 29, 30, 31 west.
Township 142 north, ranges 27, 28, 29, 30, 31, 32 west.
Township 143 north, ranges 27, 28, 31, 32 west.
Township 144 north, ranges 25, 26 west.
Township 146 north, ranges 25, 26 west.
Township 147 north, ranges 25, 26 west.
Township 148 north, ranges 2226, 27, 28 west.

A change in the selection of the forest reserve gives Cass Lake about 8000 acres of agricultural land for settlement. This change makes it impossible to advertise the pine on the forest reserve until later, but these bids will be on the market in a few days.

Mrs. Charles Bryant, wife of Conductor Bryant, died at their residence on section 16, last evening. The remains were taken on the midnight train to Larimore, the home of her parents, for interment. The deceased was a member of the local Eastern Star and the members of the lodge and the local Masonic lodge were in attendance at the home and held a brief service, prayers being offered by the chaplain, Rev. J. T. B. Smith. The remains were escorted by the members of the lodges to the train. Mrs. Moore and Mrs. Carlson, mother and sister were present at the death and at the service. Mrs. Bryant was the subject of an operation on Friday and it was thought she would recover but the shock was too severe and she died peacefully. She was for some time a music teacher here and was possessed of rare musical qualities. She was very highly respected and her death is greatly mourned. The body was accompanied to Larimore by her relatives and some of the members of the Eastern Star and Masonic lodge.

EULOGIZE WESLEY

Methodists Do Honor to the Founder of Their Church.

W. S. Moore, Dr. Forbes, Dr. Upham and Dr. Clemans Speak.

In spite of the absence of Governor Van Sant and Bishop Joyce, the auditorium of the First Methodist church was filled last evening on the occasion of the bi-centennial anniversary of the birth of John Wesley.

The services were a continuation of those held Sunday, and as before, the eleven Methodist churches of the city participated.

Rev. Jesse D. Searles, of Superior, offered a brief prayer, after which Watson S. Moore, the chairman of the evening, gave a brief address telling of the work of the Methodist churches of the city.

"We have in Duluth," said Mr. Moore, "eleven Methodist churches owning about $200,000 worth of property on which there is a debt of about 2 per cent. The eleven churches have a total of 2000 members."

Dr. Robert Forbes, of the board of church extension, was the first speaker, addressing the audience on "The Methodist Pioneer."

"Members of other congregations who are present will pardon us," said Dr. Forbes, "if we glory a little in the name of John Wesley and the principles of Methodism. We have never had a schism on the question of doctrine. Our body is held together rather by enthusiasm than by emphasis on some theological doctrine.

"In the days before the arrival of Methodism there used to be some ideas concerning religion which are best embodied in the following sayings:

"'If you seek it you can't find it.' 'If you find it you don't know it.' 'If you know it you haven't got it.' 'If you have it you can't lose it.' 'If you lose it you never had it.'

"Methodism has reversed these sayings and they now read about as follows:

"'If you seek it you will find it.' 'If you find it you will know it.' 'If you know it you have it.' 'If you have it you can lose it.' 'If you lose it you must have had it.'

"Mr. Wesley was a pioneer, one of the greatest of them. The pioneers in the field of Methodism have done much for the cause, and we can't afford to lose sight of this fact. The golden age is still before us, but we can't afford to throw away the wisdom of the past and do away with old customs that have done so much for the church. Congregational singing is an absolute necessity. Give us the trained singer who charms us with her voice, but do not let the trained sinner deprive the people of a rare opportunity of joining in those old hymns. The Methodist church has taught the world to sing, and it can't afford to forget how.

"Methodism is at home as much in the hut in the forest as in the great cathedral with its long-drawn aisle. It is at home wherever it has a mission and a people to preach to. There are some great men at work among the little missions in the pioneer district of this state. I am glad that I have had an opportunity of associating with them. I am glad that I have had an experience in pioneer work in Northern Minnesota and have helped to lay the foundations of true religion."

Rev. E. C. Clemans, the presiding elder of the Duluth district, followed Dr. Forbes.

"As Dr. Upham told you yesterday" said Mr. Clemans, "the clergy at the time John Wesley was born was a fox-hunting, carousing, drunken set of dissolute men. Like pastor, like people. The conditions of religion were deplorable when John Wesley commenced to preach Methodism. Between this time and the time of his death in 1791 a great change took place in the condition of England. There was a great religious awakening in England, Ireland and Scotland. Today there are in America alone in the Methodist Episcopal church 3,000,000 members with 17,000 or more preachers. United Methodism has 48,000 preachers and over 8,000,000 members.

"To what is the enormous gift due? It is partly due to the doctrine taught by the Methodists which says that every man has a fair chance for Heaven. It came at the time Calvinism was preached with its horrible doctrine of fore-ordination. The Methodists preached freedom and taught that every man had a will of his own and was free to choose the way he should go.

"Methodism taught the doctrine of communion which says that every man may hold direct communion with God.

"The earnestness of the preachers was another factor in the growth. The preachers taught what they believed and not something they had read or been told.

"The splendid organization was another factor. Wesley was a tremendous organizer. The lay preachers were organized and went out to work. Wherever a band of converts was formed it was organized and somone placed at its heid. These factors together with the splendid heroism and energy of the preachers were responsible for the rapid spread of Methodism.

"But all the heroism was not in the past. We have the same spirit today. The colleges and seminaries have not robbed the ministers of the spirit of self-sarifice. The men have the same spirit today that existed in Wesley's time and the progress of the church should be as great in the future as it has been in the past."

Rev. Samuel F. Upham of Drew Theological seminary followed Mr. Clemans addressing the audience on "Methodism and Education."

His address consisted of interesting sketches of the prominent leaders in the history of Methodism. Phillip Embray, who was converted in Ireland by Wesley and later came to this country to preach the first Methodist sermon here, Francis Asbury, the "American Wesley," Jesse Lee and Elijah Hadding were all eulogized by the speaker and short sktches of their lives and their hardships given by the speaker.

"All of these men faced persecution and social ostracism" said Dr. Upham. "It sometimes takes more courage to face social ostracism than it does to stand at the mouth of a cannon."

During the course of the evening, Miss Mary Syer Bradshaw rendered two beautiful solos.

The services last evening complete the anniversary services in commemoration of the 200th anniversary of Wesley's birth, in Duluth.

Young Groom's Response at a Church Wedding.

A certain young man in Duluth is undergoing much good-natured raillery from his friends because of an incident which occurred at his wedding recently. The ceremony was performed in one of the local churches, before a number of the friends of the bride and groom. It was one of those long and impressive ceremonies, where the officiating clergyman asks the groom to make his answers emphatic.

When the groom was asked if he would take the young lady to be his lawful wedded wife and cherish her until death, he remembered the admonition to speak emphatically, and responded with a hearty "yes" that rang out so loud it could be heard across the street. The sound of his voice startled him and he dodged involuntarily, throwing up his arms as if warding off the sound of his voice.

The action broke up the solemnity of the occasion and caused a ripple of laughter among the invited guests. Even the minister could not repress a smile.

WANTS TOWN DIVISION.

Kelsey Would Make Five Towns of One.

The board of county commissioners will meet Thursday afternoon of this week. It is expected that Assistant County Attorney Crosby, to whom was referred the proposed division of Kelsey township into five town organizations, will make a report and this will determine the board's course of action.

The claim is made that Kelsey is comprised of five regulation townships of thirty-six sections each, and is so divided up by swamps that one township organization can cover the whole area only with great difficulty. There is a strong sentiment among the settlers in the township for a division.

The board will also consider the petitions asking that the townships of Joyce, Savannah and Sturgeon be organized into districts.

BERG HAS RELAPSE.

Cannot Be Moved From the Hospital as Yet.

Sam Berg, who is acused of the murder of Marshal McLaughlin of Mountain Iron cannot be removed from the hospital to the county jail for some days. Yesterday he suffeerd a relapse and now has a high fever. It is thought that his condition will improve so that he can be removed the latter part of this week. Berg is suffering from a bullet wound inflicted by McLaughlin before the latter was killed.

Mrs. Wood Divorced.

Judge Dibell, yesetrday afternoon, granted a decree of divorce to Lucinda Wood from Joseph Wood. The action was brought on charges of brutal treatment and desertion. The defendant, who is believed to be somewhere in Michigan, after drawing his pay, amounting to $75 went on a drunk. He refused to pay the funeral expenses of his 3-days-old child, and left his wife sick and penniless. Under the former state law, which makes wife-desertion a felony, Wood could have been apprehended and brought back here to stand trial, but he cannot be extradited under the new law.

Hopes For Pardon.

John Steele, of West Superior, who was sentenced to the Wisconsin state prison at Waupun for a term of twenty years for the murder of Lulu Knight, last February, is said to have hope that the clemency may be extended to him. He expects his relatives in Flint, Mich., to work in his behalf. Steele tried to commit suicide while on the way to prison by throwing himself in front of a locomotive, but was saved by the deputy sheriff who had him in charge. He claims that the Knight woman hypnotized him, and that he was crazed with jealousy when the deed was committed.

A PATHETIC STORY

By Little Girl Victim of the Mount Pelee Disaster.

Saw Her Mother and Small Sister Roasted to Death.

New York, June 16.—Marguerita Stokes, a child who barely escaped the fate of her mother and brother in the Mont Pelee disaster, has been operated upon at a hospital in this city. Ugly scars on her chin, caused by her injuries in the volcanic outburst in Martinique, were covered by skin from other parts of her body, and the third finger of the right hand was sacrificed in order that the adjoining ones would be made useful for the rest of her life. The flesh of the amputated finger was utilized in the grafting operation.

Margaret was terribly burned about the face and body and by inhaling gases and flame was injured internally. Her mind is a vivid mirror which reflects every phase of the flaming tragedy witnessed from the dack of the ill-fated Roraima, which was burned in the harbor of St. Pierre.

Pathetic in the extreme is the story of this little survivor. Only a short time before the eruption her father died in this city and she accompanied her mother, sister and nurse to the West Indies on the Roraima. It was the dying request of her father that the family return to the Barbadoes where her mother was born. Her father had been unsuccessful in business and was a victim of pneumonia.

This is her own story of the Martinique disaster as she told it:

"First of all, I want to thank the people in this country for all they did for me and the poor people on Martinique. I do not think the kind American people know how much their assistance was appreciated and how many men, women and children they saved from starving during the awful days that followed the eruption.

"Hundreds down there are still praying for those who sent them money and clothing and food. Mamma, nurse and my little sister and myself were at breakfast on the Roraima early on the morning of the eruption. We were on our way to the Barbadoes, where mamma was born.

"I was looking out of the cabin window at the sailors who were lowering a boat when suddenly away off in the distance a pillar of fire and smoke seemed to be propping up the sky.

"I called to mamma to look at the pretty fireworks, when there was an awful roar which shook the ship and threw us across the room. My head struck against the wall and mamma carried me on deck. Fire and ashes were falling all about us, and in five minutes the ashes were a foot deep on the deck. Clara, our nurse, brought my sister on deck, but was overcome by the terrible gas and compelled to lay baby down. Mamma also fainted, and before anyone could come to us she was half covered by burning cinders and ashes. Her dress caught fire and she screamed for help. But the sailors and other passengers could only attend to themselves. Mamma was burned up and so was little sister. Our nurse took me in her arms and staggered to the side of the deck away from the fire, and covered me with her apron.

"The heat was awful—the sailors were groaning and burning to death all around us. But finally they made a raft and put us on it. We drifted about half dead for several hours before the Korona picked us up at the mouth of the harbor. Poor mamma and sister were dead, and so they were not taken from the Roraima at all.

"They took me to the hospital at Fort de France and said I was dying. But you see they made a mistake. Mamma told me in her arms when she carried me on deck but it hurt terribly to be scorched inside and out. Uncle Edward has brought me here to be cured by the great American doctors. I wish the other little girls on Martinique could come also, but they are all poor and must stay at home."

FILIPINO TAKES DEGREE.

Youngest Man Thus Honored By Georgetown University.

Washington, June 16.—Georgetown University has conferred the degree of doctor of philosophy on Ramson Jose Lacson, a Filipino, who was born in Manila in 1883. He is the youngest Georgetown student who ever received the degree.

Just before the war with Spain Lacson graduated from the Spanish academy at Manilla with the degree of bachelor of arts. In 1899 he came to this country to complete his education. After two years of study at a college at Santa Clara, California, he graduated with class honors and won the prize for general proficiency. Last year he entered Georgetown university and began to study for the degree he has won.

Lacson has completed the second year of the course in the Georgetown law school and next year he will receive the degree of bachelor at law. He will then return to Manila and engage in newspaper work. He believes that in that way he can most quickly teach his countrymen American methods and principles.

BLACK OR POLAR BEAR?

Strange Combination Roaming Northern Minnesota Woods.

Ripple, Minn., June 16.—A big black bear, with a white head, is a freak that is startling the settlers along the Big Fork river. It has visited a dozen homes, two in daylight, and in each case appeared where there was no man at home. It seems to have a fondness for the fair sex and is a great rambler. Mrs. James Brady, wife of the village teacher of Ripple, opened the front door of her dwelling in the morning, and Mr. Bruin-with-a-white-face was found lying on the porch. He trotted away, and a hunting party of village people could find no trace of him. Another woman saw him the same night at her cabin, eight miles away. Mrs. Jester Shy and daughter, during the absence of Mr. Shy, had a visit from him at night. He scratched at the door, then opened a keg of salted fish, and of this took one bite, but the salty taste did not please him. He went away growling. They say this bear differs only from the common black bear by being very large and having a small head covered with long, snow-white hair.

STANDIFER'S SHOOTING

By Wife Seems to Have Been Assassination.

Miles City, Mont., June 16.—Further details of the tragedy at Powderville, in which Mrs. Brown shot and killed her former husband, Dick Standifer, give it the coloring of an assassination. Mrs. Standifer, under examination at the inquest, declares that during the difficulty between Standifer and her sister in the barn at the Standifer ranch, her husband did not knock Mrs. Brown down, as alleged, but merely slapped her face, alleging she had been spreading reports about the neighborhood injurious to his character.

Mrs. Standifer also says that her sister attempted to waylay them on their way to Powderville, but they stopped at the W. L. ranch and induced Miles Robinson to accompany them for protection.

At the W. L. ranch gate, near the Powder river crossing, Mrs. Brown waited for them and followed the buggy after Robinson had jumped out. They had some conversation, Mrs. Brown riding with her horse's breast close to the end of the buggy, when without warning Mrs. Standifer alleges, Mrs. Brown shot Standifer in the back.

The ball pierced the right lung of the man, passed on through his body and lodged in the back of the right leg of the horse. Mrs. Standifer jumped from the carriage and the horses left the road, Standifer's body falling from the vehicle.

The inquest bore out the assertion of Mrs. Standifer that her husband had been shot in the back.

BRIEF TELEGRAMS.

Bishop McCloskey, of the Catholic diocese of Louisville, Ky., has issued an order against dancing and the use of intoxicants at picnics. As a result of the ruling the picnic of the Catholic Knights of America, set for June 20, has been called off.

John McNairy, a street car motorman, of Terre Haute, Ind., discovered his wife with Elmer Field, a railway brakeman, and shot both of them. Field's wounds are fatal, but the woman will probably recover.

A. K. Taylor of Houston, Texas, a delekate to the supreme lodge A. O. U. W., now in session at St. Paul, was taken suddenly ill Monday night while on a steamboat excursion. He was removed at once to the hospital, but died before reaching there. Heart failure is believed to have been the cause of his death.

The historic home of Buchanan Reed, in which the famous poem, "Sheridan's Ride," was written, was sold Monday afternoon at auction for $12.00. John Havlin, the theatrical man, was a bidder. The house has a plate on the wall with an inscription as to the former ownership by Reed. The property was offered for the purpose of paying off bequests of its late owner.

Billy Stift, of Chicago, and Charley Burns, of Cincinnati fought four rounds in private Monday at Chicago on a wager that Stift could not put Burns out in four rounds. Stift had all the better of the fight and knocked Burns down a number of times but Burns lasted the four rounds by clinching.

AT CLOQUET.

Cloquet, Minn., June 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Lockwood, of Ortonville, visited this week with Miss Pearl Bisson.

C. L. Dixon transacted business in Duluth Monday.

Mrs. Ellen Fourance is visiting with Mrs. William McKinnon, of Carlton, this week.

Miss Eva Cookson returned on Saturday from Chippewa Falls.

J. H. Bisson has been under the weather for the past week.

Dr. A. E. Johnson returned on Monday from an extended trip to the Pacific coast.

Herbert Jarvis left yesterday for Idaho where he will spend the summer.

Mrs. Ole Johnson, of Mansfield, Wis., is the guest of her sister, Mrs. Michael Dockery, of this city.

Miss Eva Williams, who has been the guest of Miss Pearl Bisson for a few days, was called home on Saturday by the sudden illness of her father.

Mr. and Mrs. William Robins left yesterday for Coeur d'Alene, Idaho, where they will make their future homes.

Will Allen, Paul Rousse, John Don and William Garrett were among the number who left on Monday to seek their fortune in the far West.

John Wise was brought to the city yesterday suffering from injuries received while performing his duty as brakeman on the Great Northern railway between Stony Brook and this city. He was taken to Dr. Allen's and later removed to St. Mary's hospital, Duluth.

The ball game which was played Sunday between the Duluth Millers and the locals ended in a victory for Cloquet by a score of 13 to 5. Quite a number of rooters for both teams witnessed the game, which was an interesting one.

THE WHEAT AND FLOUR TRADE

At Malta Discussed In the United States Consul's Report.

Washington, June 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—John H. Grout, United States consul at Valletta, sends the following to the state department relative to the wheat and flour trade at Malta:

The annual report of the local chamber of commerce for 1902 says in part: "The importation of wheat in 1901 amounted to only 491,925 bushels, as against an annual average of 852,072 bushels for the previous fifteen years. The diminution in the importation of wheat in 1902 is much more marked and necessarily has been covered by increased importations of flour. The importation of manufactured wheat, which includes flour, is acquiring importance. In 1901, 39,652,125 pounds were imported, showing an increase of 28,613,725 pounds over 1900."

For the past two or three years very little American wheat has arrived at Malta. The customs authorities have just published a statement of the wheat, Indian corn, and barley imported, consumed and exported from April 1, 1902, to March 31, 1903. The report also states that during the same period 27,468 quarters of wheat and 963 quarters of barley. The importations during the period amounted to 36,926 quarters of wheat, 336 quarters of corn, and 6724 quarters of barley. A large proportion of American exports to Malta consists of flour.

Consul General O. J. D. Hughes sends the following to the state department a brief report from Coburg regarding a new Swiss button-hole machine recently brought to his attention. He says:

The usual type of buttonhole machines has been operated so that first one side of the buttonhole has been worked and then the needle mechanism or the fabric is readjusted to work the other side. A Swiss make works both sides of the buttonhole simultaneously, which not only has the advantage of greater rapidity, but also of a simplified construction. The machine is provided with two needles, each of which, during the reciprocating motion of the fabric or of the needle mechanism, works one side of the buttonhole. In order to fasten the ends of the button hole, the distance between the needles is reduced, so that the stitches of one side emerge over those of the other side.

Supreme Lodge Removes One Source of Dissatisfaction.

St. Paul, Minn., June 16.—The supreme lodge of the A. O. U. W. at yesterday's session decided, after a long debate, to permit candidates for admission to the order to be balloted for before undergoing a medical examination. This action removes a long-standing source of dissatisfaction, for it frequently happened that after a candidate had paid his fee for the medical test he was rejected on the ballot, and then there was no provision for a refund of the medical fee.

The proposed admission of district grand masters to membership in the grand lodge was rejected by a large vote. All reports from grand lodges to the supreme lodge will hereafter be required to be filed within ninety days after Jan. 1.

STRENUOUS TIME

Had President's Guards While Protecting Him From Crowds.

Thirty Hand-to-Hand Encounters With Unruly Mobs Occurred.

Washington, June 16.—The four secret service men who formed President Roosevelt's personal guard on his recent trip through the West had a strenuous time of it on the road. They received no end of knocks, bruises and scratches in performing their duty of protecting the president against the crushing mobs, of keeping enthusiastic but reckless admirers at a proper distance, and knocking out obstreperous individuals who refused to heed warnings to keep back.

The members of the president's guard had no less than thirty hand-to-hand encounters with unruly mobs, and it became necessary for them to deliver knock-out blows to about fifteen or twenty different persons. They are old hands at the business, and when the president's safety demanded it they thought no more of putting an aggressive and suspicious-looking character to sleep than Jim Jeffries does of knocking out an ambitious amateur.

The men are the pick of the secret service, and each is a splendid athlete and a superb boxer. They always accompany the president on trips out of Washington and know their business thoroughly. The men operate on a regular system and each has a specific duty to perform. They are charged with a great responsibility, and beyond a certain point will take no chances. They do not hesitate to resort to violence if necessary, and many a pushing individual who ignored the commands of the secret service men missed seeing the president altogether through being temporarily out of commission.

At many of the cities visited by the president on the recent trip the local arrangements for keeping the crowd in check and providing for the comfort of the visitors were very poor. In certain instances there were practically no regulations for maintaining order whatever. When this condition was met, the secret service men had their work cut out for them. It was their custom to form a cordon about the president as best they could with their limited numbers, locking arms with each other when necessary in order to form a human encircling will. The most trouble usually occurred when the president was getting in or out of a carriage. At such times he was brought into close contact with the crowd, and it was almost certain that someone would make a break for the carriage in order to force the president to shake hands. This seemed to be the purpose of most of the people who insisted on shoving themselves to the front.

The secret service men had their faces scratched and bruised repeatedly by the flying arms of persons reaching out to shake the president's hand. When a person would rush out of the line and up to the president there was never any hesitation on the part of the guard as to how he should be treated. Without any warning whatever the stranger would be grabbed and pushed back in the direction from which he came. The work of the secret service men in the crowd was harder, and if anything required more vigorous action. It was always their rule to first ask the people to keep back and provide enough room for the president to move along comfortably. When this warning was disregarded the offenders would be grabbed and pushed back. Many of those anxious to catch a glimpse of the president did not understand by what authority the four men in citizens' clothing acted, and invariably wanted to argue the matter. The secret service men had no time for conversation. When a husky stranger resisted being kept back he was promptly "slugged." It was vital for the guards to drop their man at a single blow, so that every time a fist was drawn back it was aimed with the purpose of putting he victim out of business. The instant the unruly one was hit the guard moved on, so that it frequently happened that people two feet distant away never knew what had happened. The secret service men knew that it would be fatal to allow an opponent to engage them in anything like a struggle, so they made it a rule to get in the first blow and make it a good one.

President Roosevelt took a keen interest in the operations of his guard, and observed them in many a fist fight in his behalf. Whenever necessary he always interfered to protect his men. It occasionally happened that the local authorities were unwilling to acknowledge the right of the four strangers to run things, and sometimes this misunderstanding led to trouble. A case of this kind occurred at Los Angeles. A mounted policeman of that city rode too close to the president's carriage, and he was asked by one of the guard to move off a little. The officer replied roughly that he would take orders from no one but his captain. Thereupon the secret service man grabbed the horse's bridle with the intention of leading the animal to one side. The officer made a vicious crack at him with his billy. At this point the president interfered. He had watched the whole proceedings. Leaning out of his carriage and pointing his finger at the mounted policeman, he shouted:

"Will you take orders?"

The officer said he would. "Then," returned the president vigorously, "take orders from my guard. What that man says goes."

Probably the worst encounter the guard had was at Minneapolis. There the arrangements for keeping the crowd in control were miserable. The ropes were broken down and a rush made for the president. For ten minutes the four protectors of the president had their hands more than full, and for the first time on the trip all of them had to draw their black-jacks. Several men were felled and several of the guard sustained severe knocks, but the president was kept out of danger.

At the conclusion of the trip the president thanked each member of his guard in person for the splendid work performed on the journey.

KISHINEFF AFFAIR

Discussed With Leading Jews By President and Secretary.

It Is Not Advisable to Interfere With the Czar.

Washington, June 16.—Last night a statement was given out at the White House concerning the conference on the Kishineff affair. The statement consisted of a memorandum submitted by the B'Nai Brith on the massacre in April, a tentative draft of a petition to the czar, which it was desired this government should officially or semi-officially assist in delivering to the czar and procuring a reply thereto, and copies of the replies of Secretary Hay and President Roosevelt to his callers. The memorandum says the facts concerning the Kishineff massacre as officially reported by the Russian government, have appalled and horrified not only the Jews in Russia and elsewhere, but the whole American people, who want something done and whose hostility to Russia, if nothing is done, will become intensified and fired. The Jews, it says, likewise are fearful of the future. It is recognized that the situation plainly is different from that in Roumania inasmuch as in Russia the Jews are fleeing from mobs operating in contravention of Russian law, while in Roumania it is the laws that make it impossible for them to live there. Denunciation of the Jews by Russian diplomats, it says, cannot placate the public as a half million Russian Jews have come here during the past twenty-three years and have shown they are energetic, intelligent and ambitious and daily are growing more influential and popular. They are constant propagandists against Russia and the memorandum says the result is to undermine the traditional amity between Russia and the United States.

It is declared to be desirable to end this state of things, without breach of diplomatic etiquette or embarrassment to our government and one or both of the suggested methods therefore were submitted for consideration:

"A.—A petition to the czar to which the B'Nai Brith will get the signatures of the leading men in the various states. Our government to assist unofficially or semi-officially in securing the delivery of this petition to the czar and in procuring a favorable reply thereto, either by a direct communication or some other form of public expression. The manner in which the government can render such assistance is not suggested for obvious reasons, but the government's interest in the plan should be made known.

"B.—Taking the Kishineff and other recent incidents of more or less similar nature as grounds, an official invitation by the United States, addressed to all the powers, to an international conference, to consider persecution and oppressions growing out of radical and religious prejudices and hatred, and to protect civilization and international concord from the evil effects of such persecutions and oppressions."

The tentative draft of the petition to the czar which accompanied the memorandum called attention to the cruel outrages perpetuated on the Jews at Kishineff until his majesty's 'special and personal direction' made the local authorities suppress the rioting. It declared that the victims were Jews, assaulted because of race and religious prejudices in violation of Russian laws. It declared local officials derelict in the performance of their duty and that millions of Jews in Russia lived in constant dread of fresh outbreaks. It therefore petitioned that by a gracious and convincing expression your majesty will proclaim, not only for the government of your own subjects, but also for the guidance of all civilized men, that none shall suffer in person, or property, liberty, honor or life, because of his religious belief, that the humblest subject or citizen may worship according to the dictates of his own conscience and that government, whatever case, form or agencies, must safeguard these rights and immunities by the edicts of all its powers.

"Far removed from your majesty's dominions, living under different conditions and owing all allegiance to another government, your petitioners yet venture, in the name of civilization, to plea for religious liberty and tolerance; to plead that He who lead his own people and all others to the shrine of peace, will add new lustre to his reign and fame by leading a new movement that shall commit the whole world in opposition to religious persecutions."

In reply to Mr. Levi, who submitted the memorandum, Secretary Hay said:

"No person of ordinary humanity can have heard without deep emotion the story of the cruel outrages inflicted upon the Jews of Kishineff. These lamentable event have caused the profoundest impression throughout the world but most especially in this country where there are so many of your co-religionists who form a desirable element of our population in industry, thrift, public spirit and commercial morality. Nobody can ever make the American think ill of the Jews as a class or as a race. We know them too well. In the painful crisis through which we are now passing, the Jews of the United States have given evidence of the highest qualities—generosity, love of justice and power of self restraint.

"The government of the United States must exhibit the same qualities, I know you do not doubt the president. No one hates more energetically than he does such acts of cruelty and injustice as those we deplore. But the must carefully consider all the circumstances and then decide whether any official action can be taken in addition to the impressive and most effective expressions of public opinion in this country during the last month. You will have observed that no civilized government in the world has yet taken such action. This consideration alone would bid us to proceed with care. The emperor of Russia is entitled to our respect, not merely as the ruler of a great and friendly nation, but as a man whose personal character is even more elevated than his exalted station. We should not be justified in assuming that this enlightened sovereign, who has given such proofs of his devotion to peace and religious tolerance, has not done and is not doing all that lies in his power to put a stop to these atrocities, to punish the guilty, whether they belong to an ignorant populace, or to high official circles, and to prevent the recurrence of the outrages which have so shocked humanity. In fact all we know of the state of things in Russia tends to justify the hope even out of the present terrible situation some good results may come; that he who watches over Israel does not slumber, and that the wrath of man, now, as so often in the past, shall be made to praise him."

The call on the president at the White house followed and there President Roosevelt, after the memorandum was laid before him said:

"Mr. Chairman: I need not dwell upon a fact so patent as the widespread indignation with which the American people heard of the dreadful outrages upon the Jews in Kishineff. I have never in my experience in this country known of a more immediate or a deeper expression of sympathy for the victims or of horror over the appalling calamity that has occurred. It is natural that while the whole civilized world should express such feeling, it should yet be most intense and most widespread in the United States, for of all the great powers I think I may say that the United States is that country in which from the beginning of its national career, most has been done by the way of acknowledging the debt due to the Jewish race, and of endeavoring to do justice to those American citizens who are of Jewish ancestry and faith. One of the most touching poems of our own great poet, Longfellow, is that on the Jewish cemetery in Newport, and anyone who goes through any of the old cemeteries of the cities which preserve the records of colonial times will see the name of many an American or Jewish race who in war or in peace, did his full share in the founding of this nation. From that day to this, from the day when the Jews of Charleston, Philadelphia, or New York, supported the patriot cause and helped in every way, not only by money, but by arms, Washington and his colleagues who were founding this republic—from that day to the present we have had no struggle, military or civil, in which there have not been citizens of Jewish faith who played an eminent part for the honor and the credit of the nation. I remember once Gen. Howard mentioning to me the fact that two of his brigade commanders upon whom he had placed special reliance were Jews. Among the meetings of the Grand Army, which I have attended, one stands out with peculiar vividness—a meeting held under the auspices of the men of the Grand Army of Jewish creed—in the temple in Fortieth street, Temple Emanuel, to welcome the returned veterans of the Spanish-American war of Jewish faith.

"When in Santiago when I was myself in the army, one of the best colonels among the regular regiments who did so well on that day, and who fought beside me, was a Jew. One of the commanders of the ships, which in the blockade of the Cuban coast, did so well, was a Jew. In my own regiment I promoted five men from the ranks for valor and good conduct in battle. It happened by pure accident for I know nothing of the faith of any of them that this included two Protestants, two Catholics and one Jew, and while that, it was a pure accident it was not without its value as an illustration of the ethnic and religious make-up of our nation and of the fact that if a man is a good American that is all we ask, without thinking of his creed or his birthplace. In the same way when I was police commissioner in New York I had experience after experience of the excellent work done—an excellent work needing nerve and hardihood, excellent work of what I might call the Maccabbee type—in the police department under me by police officers of Jewish extraction."

I am confident that much good has already been done by the manifestations throughout this country, without any regard to creed whatsoever, of horror and sympathy over what has occurred. It is gratifying to know what we would of course assume, that the government of Russia knows the feelings of horror and indignation with which the American people look upon the outrages at Kishineff, and is proving vigorously not only to prevent their continuance, but to punish the perpetrators. That government takes the same view of those outrages that our own government takes of the riots and lynchings which sometimes occur in our country, but do not characterize either our government or our people.

I have been visited by the Russian ambassador on his own iniative, and in addition to what has been said to Secretary Hay, the Russian ambassador has notified me personally without any inquiry upon my part that the governor of Kishineff has been removed; that between three and four hundred of the participants in the outrages have been arrested, and he voluntarily stated that those men would be punished to the utmost that the law would permit. I will consider most carefully the suggestions that your have submitted to me, and whether the now existing conditions are such that any further official expression would be of advantage to the unfortunate survivors with whom we sympathize so deeply. Nothing that has occurred recently has had my more constant thought, and nothing will have my more constant thought than this subject. In any proper way by which beneficial action may be taken it will be taken, to show the sincerity of the historic American position of treating each man on his merits as a man without the least reference to his creed, his race, or his birthplace."

Chicago, June 15.—Palestine for persecuted Jews is the remedy suggested by Methodist preachers of Chicago, who yesterday adopted resolutions asking President Roosevelt to take up the problem along the lines suggested by a memorial presented to President Harrison in March, 1891. The memorial, which is appended to the resolutions passed by the Methodist preachers, was signed by nearly all the leading editors, business men, financiers, lawyers and preachers, including Jews in Chicago, Boston, New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore and Washington. The memorial was an urgent plea to all nations to give back to the Jews the Holy Land, after the fashion in which the European powers rendered Bulgaria to the Bulgarians and Servia to the Serbs.

HAD A REVOLVER.

Murderer Wilcox Gave Jailor a Great Surprise.

Elizabeth City, N. C., June 16.—James Wilcox, twice convicted of the murder of Nellie Cropsey, left yesterday in charge of Sheriff Winslow of Perquimans county to begin his thirty years' sentence in the penitentiary at Raleigh. Previously to the arrival of the officer at the jail, he offered to sell the jailor a pistol, and to his amazement took a 38-calibre revolver from his pocket, fired three shots, then gave the pistol to the jailor. He says that he carried this pistol during both trials. It was fastened to his leg with his garter. When the officers appeared he had to be carried from the jail by force. He cursed and sworo at them, refused to wear a suit of clothes provided by his father, and insisted on wearing old trousers and worn shoes. He said to the sheriff: "I shall not stay at the penitentiary. I shall be back here soon. A few embers, some houses there and a match will make a blaze. People will know when I get back."

Young women may avoid much sickness and pain, says Miss Alma Pratt, if they will only have faith in Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"I feel it my duty to tell all young women how much Lydia E. Pinkham's wonderful Vegetable Compound has done for me. I was completely run down, unable to attend school, and did not care for any kind of society, but now I feel like a new person, and have gained seven pounds of flesh in three months.

"I recommend it to all young women who suffer from female weakness."—MISS ALMA PRATT, Holly, Mich.—$5000 forfeit if original of above letter proving genuineness cannot be produced.

FREE MEDICAL ADVICE TO YOUNG WOMEN.

All young girls at this period of life are earnestly invited to write to Mrs. Pinkham for advice; she has guided in a motherly way hundreds of young women; her advice is freely and cheerfully given; her address is Lynn, Mass.

Judging from the letters she is receiving from so many young girls Mrs. Pinkham is inclined to the belief that our girls are pushed altogether too near the limit of their endurance nowadays in our public schools and seminaries; less learning and more health needed.

SERVIA NO GAINER

History of New King of Servia and His Ancestors.

House of Kara George as Bad as Its Rival.

London, June 16.—That a large number of the Servian people will look with complete equanimity upon the return of the Karageorgevitch family to power in that country is hard to conceive in view of the record of George and Alexander of that house who have occupied the Servian throne and the intense unpopularity into which they plunged themselves and their countrymen. For years it was the call of the vila on the summit of the Rudnik above Jasenitsa: "Kara George Petrovic, where are thou today? Wouldst thou were nowhere. If thou drinkest wine in the tavern, may it run out of thee in wounds. If thou are taking they ease with thy wife, may she be widowed. Accursed be thou and thine, for dost thou not see that the Turks have invaded thy fatherland?" Yet with this cry that told of the black thoughts of the Servians over Kara George's despicable treason, still a vivid memory Peter Georgevitch, a moody, bad-tempered old man, will go to Belgrade from Switzerland to take up the thread of his family's connection with the history of Servia, a threat that has been stained again and again and is obnoxious to many in the country.

Kara George was a fantastic and popular character when he first placed his bulk athwart the history of his country. A common peasant and swineherd in the forests of Shumadia, he was unable to read or write, but had attained a certain amount of popularity among his fellows because of his colossal stature and tremendous strength. He served as a private soldier among the Servians during the Austrian invasion in 1787, but grew restive of discipline, and when he was publicly punished for some petty act took revenge by slaying his colonel and then escaped to the mountains, where he became a bandit until the treaty of Sistova enabled him to return in peace to his pigs. On his way to join the Servians in their fight with Austria he was accompanied by his aged parents, but at the River Save his father expressed some fear at crossing the swift-running stream, whereupon Kara George drew his pistol from his pocket and shot the old man through the head. After his return to Shumadia he became reconciled to his mother, who had departed from him in horror at the murder of his father, but on the occasion when he had a dispute with her about the ownership of a beehive he became so incensed that he seized the hive and clapped it down on her head, walking coolly away whistling a merry tune, though his mother was nearly stung to death by the bees. Less than a week after this, on learning that his brother had been to see some girl in the village in whom he was interested, he dragged him from his bed one morning and hung him to the doorpost with his bridle. Always moody and taciturn, after these murders he became more morose than ever and would sit for hours biting his nails and staring in silence over the backs of his pigs toward the black forests of the hills. Never more than a mere keeper of swine, never the wealthy man that he has been pictured, he still controlled a certain number of followers in the vicinity of Shumadia owing to the general fear in which he was held, and for this reason, when the Turkish janissaries set out on their tour of massacre through Servia in February, 1804, he was one of those marked for assassination. He learned of the approach of the Turks, however, in time to flee to the mountains, where he soon gathered a band around him, and his experience as a bandit standing him in good stead, he led a guerrilla warfare against Servia's oppressors, and it was through this that the Georgevitch family rose to prominence among the Servians.

From a little band fighting the janissaries in ambush Kara George's following soon grew to formidable proportions, and he was led to adopt the bold tactics of fighting the janissaries in pitched battle, in which they were completely routed, falling back to the fortress of Shabats, closely pursued by the victorious George and his exultant followers, armed for the most part mercilessly with axes and pitchforks. The Turks put up a determined fight, but were defeated with awful slaughter, and the way to Belgrade was now open for the Servians. Before all this Serbdom there had been no thought of independence in the minds of the Servians. The rule of the sultan had been mild and conciliatory, the janissaries tactful and the emissaries had been adopted in defiance of express orders from the porte. When, therefore, the pasha of Bosnia appeared with 7000 men to help the Servians, Kara George readily accepted their assistance and on the combined force investing Belgrade the janissaries capitulated without fighting.

After the fall of Belgrade the sultan sent a decoration to Kara George and asked him to disband his troops. The redoubtable George had tasted of power, however, and instead of promptly heeding the request dispatched a mission to the porte, proposing arrogant conditions for its observance, but Selim clapped the delegates into jail and sent an army against him. The pasha of Bosnia fled and joined the invading army, but met with such unexpected resistance from the Servians' advance guard that when the news of Kara George's approach with 10,000 men reached the Turks, they turned tail and retreated in disorder. The sultan did not accept the defeat calmly, however, and dispatched 30,000 troops from the Kolubara district and 40,000 from Turkey proper against the Servians. The peasants of Servia in their martial array fled at the approach of these armies, but in the hour of trial Kara George rose like a giant. With 1500 tried and trusty followers he opposed these troops with a species of guerrilla warfare and wore them out to such an extent that when he finally matched his strength against them in the open on the plains of Mishar they were almost annihilated. For two years Servia remained a seat of war, with the star of Kara George always in the ascendant, until the end was reached in the capture of Belgrade, followed by the hideous massacre of the Turks, who had surrendered to Kara George under promise of safe conduct. A settled government was now called into existence, with George declared prince and a legislative body to assist him in the work of law-making, but Kara George heeded it little, and on several occasions forced it to comply with his wishes at the point of a bayonet.

Despite the aid he had received from Russia several times, not long after he assumed the reins of power, the peasant prince began to coquette with Austria, and caused such dissension among the people in consequence that a powerful Russian party arose in opposition to him, which he was only able to suppress by adopting the most drastic measures. The whole thing had a fatal issue for Kara George, however, as it was due to Russia's influence that under the treaty of Bucharest, Servia was again placed within the dominions of the sultan, though granted local self-government. The swineherd presented a somewhat belligerent attitude toward Turkey, though, and the grand vizier was sent at the head of an army to invade Servia. It was now that Kara George, after having performed prodigies of valor on her behalf in the past, brought himself into the contempt of his country. He sent a small force under Veljko to oppose the Turks, promising him re-enforcements, but the succor never came and Veljko was cut to pieces. The whole country was in despair and Kara George was urged to take the field, but in the night he gathered together all the treasures he could lay his hands on, fled to Austria and left his countrymen to their fate.

Servia would undoubtedly have relapsed into a condition of servitude to the Turks after Kara George's ignoble flight had it not been for one Michael Obrenovitch, the first of the family of which the dead Alexander was the last descendant, who gathered a band about him and fought the Turks so well that in the end he gained complete independence for his country. In 1817 Kara George, growing tired of the pleasures of Vienna and longing again for power, returned to Bassarabia to raise the standard of rebellion against Michael. The latter was inclined to be lenient, however, and sent a messenger named Vuitsa to ask George to retire peaceably, but when the returned exile began talking in an insolent and defiant manner to the messenger Vuitsa killed him and sent his head to Michael, who expressed intense horror over the deed and had the dead Kara buried with honors at Topola.

The Karageorgevitch family—they had dropped the original family name of Petrovic and adopted this in its stead—made several attempts to regain power in Servia during the years that followed, but without avail until the year 1842, when the rebellion of his mother, Ljubitsa, and one Vuchic drove Prince Michael III from the throne. In the disorder which followed, the national assembly finally sought a remedy for the state of semi-anarchy by electing Alexander Karageorgevitch as prince, the first to legally bear this title with the full consent of the people. Prince Alexander made a poor ruler, however, from the very beginning. He was cold, and attained but little popularity with the people. All of the chief posts of state he filled with members of his wife's family. Though his course on several important international matters was prudent, he was, as a rule, unpatriotic, and evinced but little sympathy for his country. Discontent against his rule steadily grew, and in 1857 a plot to unseat him, in which several senators were involved, was revealed. The unfortunate conspirators were terribly tortured and sentenced to death, but later this was commuted to exile. The wrath of the people now forced Alexander to more conciliatory measures, and he called the National assembly together for the first time in ten years, but the very first piece of business it transacted was to unanimously summon him to abdicate, whereupon he fled to a Turkish fortress, in deadly fear of assassination, and the national assembly deposed him, calling the former prince, Michael III, back to power.

Alexander did not rest easy in exile, though he knew he was loathed by the Servians, and contrived various plots against Michael, with the aid of his partisans, which finally culminated in Michael's murder at Topchider on June 10, 1868. The deed availed Alexander nothing, for those in authority at once called Milan to power, and Alexander, though he continued his conspiracies, died an exile, leaving two sons, Peter Georgevitch, who has just been acclaimed king, and Arsene, now an officer in the imperial household of Russia.

Peter Georgevitch, now a widower of 53 years of age, is known to have instigated or at least had cognizance of a number of plots against both Milan and Alexander, and it is a pretty sure thing that he was aware of the impending assassination of the degenerate Alexander and his notorious wife, Draga. He is a man of the most moody disposition, that characterized his grandfather, the swineherd, Kara George, and has on numerous instances exhibited a most fiery temper and ungovernable stubbornness of nature that bodes ill for bleeding Servia under his rule. He was married a little over twenty years ago to Princess Zorka, one of the daughters of the prince of Montenegro, who died in 1890, leaving him two sons and a daughter. The eldest is the daughter, Helen, a beautiful girl of 19, who has been carefully educated in Paris and St. Petersburg. The oldest boy and heir is Georgs, a lad of 16, who is at present in St. Petersburg, receiving his education under the direction of the Russian royal family. The third child, Alexander, a boy of 14, was until recently with his father at Geneva, though it is believed at present is with his brother in the capital of Russia.

In appearance, Peter Georgevitch is large and stout, with piercing black eyes, thick iron-gray hair and long military mustache, black in color though plentifully sprinkled with gray. His face is hard and stern, with something of a sinister expression about the eyes, and his carriage is erect and military. He has lived very simple at Geneva, owing to the somewhat meager conditions of his purse, and has generally denied himself all social pleasures except those of a public character. Horseback riding is his principal recreation, though his lack of funds has always prevented a frequent indulgence even in this.

The Georgevitch family is not popular in Servia and the reasons are good why it should not be, and it is open question whether Peter has an easy time on the throne. He will have the assistance of Russia, that is reasonably sure, for he is a pronounced friend of that country, but with his moody disposition and hasty temper will he ever become popular with his people? Only the future can answer that.

STATE FARMERS' INSTITUTE

To Be Held at Fosston Next Week.

Fosston, Minn., June 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—The first of the State Farmers' institutes for Polk county will be held in Fosston on Monday, June 22, and from the interest which is already being evinced in the affair, there will probably be the largest attendance of any of the institutes yet held here. Superintendent Hoversta, of the state Superintendent Hoversta, of the state experimental farm at Crookston, who has the active management of the institutes to be held throughout the Red River valley, announces a very interesting program, with a strong array of talented and experienced speakers. In addition to Superintendent Gregg of the state school of agriculture, John Gould, of Ohio, one of the best lecturers on farming in the United States, will be present, as will also A. V. Trow, of Glenville, Minn., a member of the state dairy and food commission and one of the expert creamery men of Minnesota. Mrs. Robbins, of St. Charles, who won the silver medal at the Paris exposition for the best dairy butter in the world, and Mrs. Wilcox, of Benson, Minn., an expert in making cheese on the farm, will be present and instruct the farmer's better half in the arts of making butter and cheese. There will also be several other speakers in addition to Superintendent Hoverstad. Institutes will be held at St. Hilaire on June 23; Halstead, June 24, and Crookston, June 25 and 26.

A New Baby.

A New Baby! What magic, what mystery, what charm these words have for us. Yet, how infinitely more they mean to the mother. A new life; short, to be sure, but full of possibilities. Some one must be patient, hopeful, watchful, proud and never discouraged. That "some one" is the mother. She has heard her baby's first cry, and whether it be her first or tenth, the feeling is the same. Her feeble arms are out-stretched; those arms that will never desert it as long as the mother shall live. And that hand which supports the head of the new-born babe, the mother's hand, supports the civilization of the world.

Is it any wonder, we ask you, mothers, that with all these responsibilities resting upon your all too weak shoulders, we urge upon you the necessity of selecting the babe's medicine with utmost care; the necessity of protecting your babe from worthless, unknown and narcotic drugs as you would protect it from the fire?

Hints To Advertisers

Jaes L. Stack, Chicago's millionaire advertising agent, in speaking on the general subject of advertising in San Francisco, recently, said:

Advertising is an infallible sign of enterprise and a progressive spirit. The great business geniuses are spending more and more on publicity.

There are now three mercantile houses in Chicago which use a full page every day of the year. The merchant that first goes in for advertising on that scale will get a long start on his competitors.

Advertising is the life of business. I took hold six years ago of the advertising of the Schlitz beer—"the beer that made Milkaukee famous." The Schlitz people have advertised continuosly ever since, each year increasing the appropriation for that purpose, and now their annual expenditure for newspaper advertising is $200,000.

Another example of the appreciation of advertising by shrewd men of business is the case of the Shoop Medicine company, of Racine, which is spending $450,000 a year for newspaper space. The Peruna Medical company's advertising bill for this year will be over $750,000. The company buys as many as 100,000 lines a year in a single newspaper.

The expenditure for advertising in the United States has increased by 42 per cent in five years. I can name ten of the leading advertisers, John Gondl, of Ohio, one of the best lecturers on farming in the United States, will be present, as will also A. V. Trow, of Glenville, Minn., a member of the state dairy and food commission and one of the expert creamery men of Minnesota. Mrs. Robbins, of St. Charles, who won the silver medal at the Paris exposition for the best dairy butter in the world, and Mrs. Wilcox, of Benson, Minn., an expert in making cheese on the farm, will be present and instruct the farmer's better half in the arts of making butter and cheese. There will also be several other speakers in addition to Superintendent Hoverstad. Institutes will be held at St. Hilaire on June 23; Halstead, June 24, and Crookston, June 25 and 26.

Vacation Trips to Seashore and Mountain Resorts.

Atlantic City, Cape May and principal resorts on New Jersey coast are seashore terminals of Pennsylvania system. Trains from Chicago connect at Philadelphia and New York with seashore trains. Resorts in New England through New York, to which six trains run daily from Chicago over Pennsylvania Short Lines. For details apply to H. R. Dering, A. G. P. Agt., No. 2 Sherman street, Chicago.

MARKET IS STEADY

Wheat Sells Both Up and Down and Closes Unchanged.

Liquidation In July Flax Again Heavy and Causes a Sharp Slump.

Duluth Board of Trade, June 16.—The wheat market today sold both above and below the closing prices of yesterday and the closing prices were generally unchanged from yesterday in Duluth, Chicago and Minneapolis. New York was somewhat higher and St. Louis was lower. There was strong selling all morning by St. Louis interests. The opening prices were barely steady and the market soon turned weaker. The decline was moderate, however, and claims of deterioration in soft winter wheat from the Southwest, cable advices from London claiming reduced crop estimates in Russia, France, England and Germany on account of recent floods, and moderate advances at Liverpool and Paris, give a firmer tone to the market. The Bradstreet report of the world's visible showing a decrease of 4,152,000 bushels was another favorable influence. Harvesting of winter wheat has progressed as far north as Kansas. The Illinois crop report was rather bullish. The cash demand was fair but not brisk. Foreigners are taking practically nothing. The Liverpool market closed unchanged to ½d higher.

Primary receipts of wheat were 245,000 bushels, last year 279,000 bushels. Shipments, 70,000 bushels; last year 477,000 bushels.

Receipts of wheat at Duluth and Minneapolis, 266 cars, and at Chicago 26, a total of 292 cars, against 364 last week and 146 last year.

The corn market was very strong, there being an advance in the July option at Chicago of 1½c. In Liverpool the market closed unchanged to ½d higher. July oats also advanced 3c. Primary receipts of corn were 129,000 bushels; last year 470,000 bushels. Shipments, 563,000 bushels, last year 2,000 bushels.

Trading in wheat on the Duluth board was very light. The market opened unchanged at 80½c sold at 80¾c at 9:35, rallied to 80⅞c at 9:42 and reacted again to 80¾c at 10:03. From that point it turned stronger and sold to 80⅞-¾c at 1 o'clock, falling back to 80¾c ten minutes later and closing at that price, unchanged from yesterday. September was also unchanged. Minneapolis and Chicago closed practically unchanged from yesterday on both options. New York was ⅛c higher for July and ⅛-¼c for September. St. Louis July was off ⅛c and September ⅛c.

Cash sales have been picking up steadily and this morning aggregated 50,000 bushels with the same prices paid July price for No 1 northern and 1½c under for No. 2. Flax was again dominated heavily today, the July price fell from $1.08, at which the first sales were made, to $1.06¾. It rallied from there to $1.06⅝ and closed at $1.06¾. This was in the line of Duluth. September and October fell 2c and November 1½c. There was an advance of 1c in oats.

Following are the closing prices:

Wheat—No 1 hard, 80¾c; No. 1 northern, 80¾c; No. 2 northern, 79c; July, 80¾c; September, 75¾c; December, 71¼c. Flax in store, $1.06¾; to arrive, $1.06¾; July, $1.06¾; September, $1.08; October, $1.08; November, $1.08½. Oats to arrive, 37½-38c; on track, 37½-37¾c. Rye—To arrive, 50c; on track, 50c. Barley, 36½-51c.

Cars inspected: Wheat, 96; last year, 18. Oats, 12. Rye, 3. Barley 2. Flax 35; last year 1.

Receipts: Wheat, 55,749 bus; oats, 7884 bus; rye, 1911 bus; barley, 947 bus; flax, 23,124 bus.

Shipments: Wheat, 35,000 bus; oats, 2166 bus; barley, 1989 bus, flax, 23,520 bus.

The farmers are not selling corn freely and the cash demand is good. A good deal of the buying today was covering shorts. The market held the advance and closed strong. Estimated cars 290.

Oats—The market was moderately active and firm. Continued good cash demand with small country offerings are the underlying features. The weather is favorable for the crop. Estimated cars 105.

COPPER GOSSIP.

Boston to Paine, Webber & Co.: Copper prices 1-16 to ⅛ lower in London, the big drop coming at the opening and only a slight recovery at the closing.

New York advises consumers are buying quite freely and quotes prices 14½@14¾c. After the middle of the day the buying demand for coppers grew very strong and prices had a good advance. Amalgamated and Copper Range were the leaders. The general market was much stronger. We think the market will work higher, especially the coppers, but for the present stocks should be sold on sharp rallies for a turn.

Boston to Paine, Webber & Co.: The visible supply of copper on June 15 was 15,575 tons, a decrease of 189 tons since June 1.

New York to Paine, Webber & Co.: John Stanton states that copper consumers are about to enter the market again, but on account of the labor troubles they are not allowing the buying bullish enthusiasm as they did earlier in the year. For immediate deliveries, however, the market is pretty well cleaned up.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Wheat Barely Steady Under Bearish Foreign News.

Chicago, June 16.—Opening prices in wheat were barely steady, under the influence of indifferent cables and bearish foreign news, reports from France and Russia going to the effect that the crop in those countries was in better shape than anticipated. July was a shade lower to a shade higher, at 75⅝c to 76c, while September was unchanged to ⅛c lower, at 73⅝@73⅞c. Trading was small but the market became somewhat firmer toward the end of the first hour on a fair demand from locals, September advancing to 73⅞@74c and July to 76¾c. Duluth and Minneapolis reported receipts of 300 cars, which with local receipts of 26 cars, one of contract grade, made total receipts for the three points of 326 cars, against 504 cars last week and 146 cars a year ago.

The market was helped by the large decrease in the world's visible and by the rumor that the Illinois crop report was quite bullish, but profit-taking caused a reaction and the close was steady, with July and September unchanged at 75⅝@76c and 73½@73¾c.

Large receipts and excellent weather, were bear factors in corn at the start, but the good cash demand of yesterday together with higher cables offset these depressing influences and opening prices were firm, July being unchanged to ⅛c up to 58¾c to 58⅞c and September a shade up at 59c. There was a good scattered demand early in the day and with light offerings the market became still firmer, July selling at 58¾c and September at 58½c. Local receipts were 705 cars with 31 of contract grade.

Covering by shorts together with a good cash demand caused a sharp advance in prices later in the day and the market continued strong throughout the session closing at the top with July 1½c higher at 59¾c and September up 1¾c at 59⅝@59¾c.

There was no feature in the early trading in oats, the market being quiet and steady. Commission houses were fair sellers but the offerings were readily absorbed by local traders. July opened unchanged to ¼c higher at 38¾ to 38⅞c, and September was a shade lower to a shade higher at 39¾c to 39¾c. Local receipts were 239 cars.

A light run of hogs with an advance of from 5c to 10 cents at the yards caused firmness in provisions at the start and with a good demand from brokers, the market held firm the early part of the session. September pork opened 2½c higher at $16.92½. September lard up 2½c at $8.07½, while ribs were up 2½ to 5c at $6.35 to $6.37½.

Close: Wheat—July, 75⅞@76c; old, 76¾@76¾c; September, 73¾@73¾c; old, 73¾@73¾c; December, 73¾@73¾c; old, 73¾c. Corn—June, 59¾c; July, 59¾c; September, 59¼@59⅝c; December, 57½c. GRAIN GOSSIP.

Chicago Record-Herald: There was no change in wheat prices last week. Saturday's close practically the same as the week previous, although the long-waited government report was issued. The official document confirmed the claims by the Southwest as to crop loss, and consequently the advance which the Southwestern men had accomplished was not lost. But the report, as all government reports do, broadened the crop survey and showed there was a large area still promising high. Oklahoma, Texas, Nebraska, Ohio, it drew attention to the high promise in the Northwest. So the effect of the June report was conservative. It confirmed a severe winter wheat loss in the Southwest, but at the same time made plain there was left as little reason for being radical as to losses as there was as to great yield.

There is now nothing in the crop prospect beyond the normal. The winter wheat condition, 99.7 in December, is down to 82.2, and any estimate of the present promise, no matter how favorable, is not 400,000 bushels less than when the winter wheat was first counted on. There is no way of figuring which longer permits the present crop to be talked of as a record-breaker, and it needs the presumption of perfect conditions to lead to an estimate of an unusual crop. The radicalism is out of the crop situation at present—but out of it from either standpoint, bearish or bullish.

Whether the market will move up or down during the next few weeks will be settled by the weather the harvester gets. The promise in Oklahoma and Texas is high, and, with the right kind of skies, there can easily be movement of wheat into St. Louis to make the July longs there regretful. Conceding all the losses, the harvest conditions will settle whether the yield is ample or unsatisfactory. The wheat raiser has probably been saved low prices; there is nothing in the situation to promise him very high, unless there is a further cut made West or Northwest in the promise.

The foreign markets have given no help to the bulls on this side this month. The advance of about 3c on this side since St. Louis began to bull prices at the end of last month has not been followed at all by the other side. Liverpool and Paris are just where they were when Chicago, Minneapolis, Duluth and New York were 3c to 3c lower, and when St. Louis was 4c to 8c lower. During the last fortnight crops abroad have been improving, and prices over there have been at a standstill. The foreigner has been reselling rather than buying on this side.

Harris, Gates & Co.: The following are the cable replies received from our various European friends about growing crops: Paris—Weather in France cold and wet. Wheat crop reported damaged but damage to crop exaggerated.

Marseilles—Wheat crop in North Africa expected to be an average one and of good quality.

Odessa—Prospects wheat crop favorable in Southern Russia.

Naples—Wheat crop accounts very favorable.

Germany—Prospects become more favorable.

Logan & Bryan, Chicago: Wheat—The market here was steady and quiet. There was fair milling demand and all grades of cash wheat are bringing relatively higher prices. The French crop report is a little below the average for the past three years. The Illinois state report is rather bullish. Indications are that the early movement of wheat in the Southwest will be small. There is no change in general speculative conditions. The market is without selling pressure, but there is not enough urgency in the immediate situation to stimulate speculative buying. We continue to feel, however, that we would stick to the long side of wheat for the present. The chances are in our judgment much greater on that side than the other. Estimated cars, 25.

Corn—Market active and strong. Cloudy weather throughout the corn belt may have something to do with it, but in the main conditions of immediate supply and demand are the cause of the strength.

A RALLY IN STOCK

Market Opened Weak and Declining But Prices Recovered.

Nearly All Losses Regained and Better Feeling Established.

New York, June 16.—London sent decidedly lower prices for Americans this morning and the opening here was to correspond. Blocks of 1000 shares and upward of the leading stocks were traded in, some of them at declines of a point and upwards. There were 6000 shares of Atchison sold at 65⅜ and 65¼ compared with 66⅞ last night. Norfolk & Western ran off 2½. Baltimore & Ohio 1¾, Reading 1½ and Canadian Pacific, Missouri Pacific, Rock Island, Sugar and Amalgamated a point or more.

Prices rallied a small fraction, but the efforts to hold the market were abandoned as soon as it was noticed that the rise was bringing out more offerings. All the leaders fell below their first prices and declines over night ran well over a point in a number of cases. Atchison lost 2⅜, bringing it within a fraction of last Wednesday's low figure. The decline reached about 2 points in Baltimore & Ohio, Norfolk & Western, Canadian Pacific, Missouri Pacific and Louisville & Nashville, Kansas City Southern preferred declined 5¼, Colorado Fuel 4, St. Paul preferred, Canadian Southern, Lackawanna and American Telephone and Telegraph 3, Metropolitan Securities 3½ and Realty preferred 2. Most of the active stocks were rolling up from about the lowest and the market was less active at 11 o'clock.

Pressure to sell continued into the second hour forcing declines of 2 to 2½ in Canadian Pacific, Des Moines & Fort Dodge, Consolidated Gas, and North American. The suicide of a bank official was given a sensational significance by the bulls, but prompt assurances that no financial irregularities were involved induced covering by shorts. Bulletins were published to the effect that probability of a coal miners' strike had been averted and helped the rally. Recoveries of 1 to 1½ were made by the active leaders including the coalers, St. Paul, Union Pacific, Missouri Pacific, Atchison, Nashville, Louisville, Amalgamated Copper and Colorado Fuel. American Woolen preferred rose 3. The market was strong and active at noon. Bonds were weak at noon.

The buying movement slackened considerably but no impairment of the market's strength and before 1 o'clock prices went somewhat higher in spots. Practically all of the forenoon's loss was recovered by the Pacifics, Southwestern, Eries, Reading, St. Paul and copper.

Prices made further recoveries, the level of prices quite generally rising a fraction over last night. Delaware & Hudson gained 1¼ and New York Dock preferred 2½. Buying was on a modest scale but well distributed and was sustained on advances.

Reading was rushed up with some violence to 3, but fell back immediately over a point, with no effect on the general list. The rise in Louisville & Nashville and Delaware & Hudson reached 2¾ and Erie's first preferred, Lake & Western preferred rose 4½ and Virginia-Carolina Chemical 1⅝. Reading first preferred dropped 2. On the reaction prices were held at or slightly above last night's level and the market became very dull. There was some late hardening again and the close was dull and firm.

STOCK GOSSIP.

Logan & Bryan to Paine, Webber & Co.: The market opened weak and is closing strong. The early losses were practically all regained. Most of the selling pressure has been from short stocks and it is usually a case of another bear panic gone wrong. When stocks were 10 to 40 points high there was not a bear in sight, now the woods are full of them. When stocks were selling on 3½@3¾ per cent basis there were no investors in sight. With first-class properties selling on a 5 per cent basis and better we think there is quite a little money looking for a job. Consequently we advise buying good dividend-paying stocks whenever the bears put them on the bargain counter.

Waldorf to Coe Commission Co.: Although speculative sentiment today is rather mixed, the consensus of opinion is that the market is a good trading one in which stocks are a purchase on recessions. The further reaction on the opening of the week was expected. Prices had been advanced too fast. The most urgent shorts had covered and while the volume of these contracts still outstanding is very extensive, the market on the opening was not in the solid condition which existed on the eve of the late rebound. For those reasons the set-back is considered natural. Moreover, the bear party, led by Well renewed its attack with the intention of breaking the general list with Atchison. The latter stocks has more than once of late proved so vulnerable as to casta much doubt on the statement of insiders that E. J. Berwend and other directors are buying it on a scale. In view of this conservative brokers are advising their customers to keep out of Atchison until certainty regarded the question of bond issues and the financial necessities of the company are removed. But these same observers take quite different views of the properties which as they put, have been more candid with their stockholders than has the Atchison, and among which they place St. Paul, Pennsylvania, New York Central, Missouri Pacific and Baltimore & Ohio. These stocks are finding their way on all declines into the hands of capitalists, who are buying them for the pull on what they believe to be accurate indications of a continuance of active general business instead of great reaction on which professional speculators are selling them on. It is admitted, of course, that a strike on such a great system as the Pennsylvania, whose employes are said to be dissatisfied would probably upset optimistic speculations.

Bache to Paine, Webber & Co.: We get it from good authority that Baltimore & Ohio is making a great deal of money and will be put on a 5 per cent basis inside of a year. This should be a decided purchase on any further break.

Ridgeley to W. H. Laidley & Co.: The market yesterday was made to look panicky. Friday it looked like a boom. Really one is as improbable as the other. Prices of many stocks are too low but conditions are not in shape for a boom. That the worst has been seen for some time to come, however, is probable. It is likewise probable that the rebound which started on June 11 will continue subject to moderate setbacks until early in July, with St. Paul getting somewhere near 100, Union Pacific 87, Atchison 75, Tennessee Coal and Iron 58, Steel 35, Southern Pacific 55, Louisville & Nashville 117, Rock Island 42, etc. But these advances will be gradual and ought to be preceded by further recessions from Saturday's price level and a period of dullness. The reaction should be a half of two-thirds of the rise as stated last Saturday. This would make Union Pacific a purchase below 80, Atchison below 67, St. Paul near 150, Brooklyn Rapid Transit 56, Amalgamated 53½, Baltimore & Ohio below 84, Southern Pacific 46, etc. The market should be a purchase this morning.

Walker Brothers to Paine, Webber & Co.: The market opened weak and with a good deal of stock for sale. The London market was lower and traders found some very soft spots. Prices after selling down quite sharply became dull and during the middle of the day there was little going on. In the afternoon there was a sharp rally and prices gained nearly all the early losses. There was good buying in the active stocks and this kept up until the close which was at best prices and with much better feeling.

Bache to Paine, Webber & Co.: The opening was weak in sympathy with lower prices from London. Bears are still in the field and ready to attack at least show of weakness. They were assisted by the ever changeful professional element and the first half hour saw prices from one to two points down from last night's close. Canadian Pacific showed signs of liquidation, indirectly due to the Toronto failure. The selling of Atchison was for London account and was attributed to rumors that directors passed the next dividend on the common stock. The market responded to good news and the coalers became active and advanced sharply. In the afternoon stocks showed a hardening and upon small covering of shorts advanced steadily, but with little excitement. The presence of a still large outside short interest will give the average trader every opportunity to buy stocks without climbing for them.

Except in Michigan and the Ohio valley and Middle Atlantic states, where a light yield of hay is indicated, the general outlook for this crop continues promising. In New York recent rains caused decided improvement, but they came too late to save the crop.

MANY COAL BOATS

One Boat Has Waited Since Friday to Unload.

Ten Vessels With Coal In During Twenty-four Hours.

The Gilchrist steamer A. A. Parker, which arrived in Duluth Friday afternoon with a load of coal has been lying at anchor off the Seventh avenue slip since that time awaiting an opportunity to unload her cargo.

This fact is indicative of the volume of the coal receipts at the port of Duluth during the past week. There are now six vessels lying at anchor in the lower bay waiting their turn at the coal docks.

During the past twenty-four hours ten coal-laden vessels have arrived in the harbor through the Duluth entry alone and there is a large fleet on the way up the lakes.

The coal fleet at anchor has been steadily growing since last Friday when one or two boats were compelled to anchor and wait for a place at the coal docks to be vacated.

The coal is principally of the bituminous variety although some anthracite is being received.

CANNOT LOCATE IT.

Much Difficulty In Finding the Tug Gillon.

Despite the many rumors current relative to the finding of the tug Gillon, which was sunk in a collision in the lake off the Wisconsin entry, some weeks ago, the government engineer's office states that the tug has not yet been located, although efforts to do so have been made both by that office and by the owners of the tug, the Duluth Contracting and Dredging company.

Two of the latter company's tugs with a chain are said to have dragged the bottom of the lake in the supposed locality of the accident for three days without locating the lost tug. The depth of water off the Wisconsin entry is from 45 to 50 feet and deepens rapidly lakeward so that the locating of any body on the lake bed is not an easy matter. Two buoys have been placed at different times over places where the tug is supposed to have gone down, but the boat was found at neither location.

F. B. DAUGHERTY HERE.

Working In Campaign Against Government Dredges.

Former State Senator F. B. Daugherty, president of the Tug and Dredge Owners' Protective association, who left Chicago some time ago on a trip about the lakes in the interests of the association, has arrived in Duluth.

The association is planning an active campaign to dissuade the government from the building of dredges to do the government improvement work on the great lakes. Such a move has been under consideration for some time past and of it were carried out it would deprive the dredge owners of the lakes of a greater part of their business. The property of the dredge owners is worth several million dollars and a large amount of this would be destroyed though disuse should the government decide to do its own work.

Last year three dredges were operated by the government and more are being planned.

Mr. Daugherty will make a tour of the lakes collecting information from the dredge owners at the various ports for use in presenting the case of the association to the government.

LITTLE DEMAND FOR BOATS.

Chicago, June 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—Two or three agents were around among shippers trying to place tonnage. They reported the demand was without improvement, but that by hard work, they expected to secure cargoes before night. Rates were unchanged.

THE CONFESSION OF A WIFE.

"I Would Have Been in My Grave Long Ago Had it Not Been for PAINE'S CELERY COMPOUND."

This the closing sentence of a thankful and grateful letter of testimony written by Mrs. P. Hoffman, of Kyiertown, Pa. A complication of liver trouble, kidney disease and stomach neuralgia resisted the best treatment of an able and experienced family physician. When all seemed dark and gloomy, a kind Providence directed an anxious husband to have his wife make use of the medicine that says even at the eleventh hour, Paine's Celery Compound gloriously triumphed; it removed waste and poisonous matters from the blood, toned every organ and nourished the weakened system. Mrs. Hoffman says:

"For about four years I suffered from liver and kidney troubles and neuralgia of the stomach. My doctor could do nothing for me. My husband read about Paine's Celery Compound, and bought some for me. After using one-half bottle I was able to be out of bed. I used two bottles and can now do my own housework. Paine's Celery Compound is the best medicine in the world, and I recommend it to all sufferers. Had it not been for Paine's Celery Compound, I would have been in my grave long ago."

RESTAURANTS ARE OPENING

Strike Of Waiters and Other Employes Completely Collapsed.

Chicago, June 16.—So many of the waiters and other striking hotel and restaurant employes have returned and asked to be reinstated that nearly all of the restaurants and cafes that have been closed for several days have either opened their doors again or have announced their intention of doing so tomorrow. Vogelsongs the first place in which a strike was called and which has made no effort to serve patrons of the restaurant, resumed business today. The conditions in all the hotels are reported satisfactory. Everyone of them in which strikes were called is running in some fashion and most of them are giving regular service.

The strike leaders held an early conference to decide what reply should be returned to the peace proposal of the committee from the steam power council. All parties to the controversy were asked yesterday to submit their grievances to arbitration. Answers from all are looked for at a series of conferences today.

The joint board of cooks and waiters, after their meeting would not admit that the influence brought to bear upon them had forced them to seek a peaceable settlement of the strike at the hands of the Hotel and Restaurant Keepers association, yet a representative of the steam power council appeared before the employers and sued for peace in behalf of the strikers, and on a settlement along the lines laid down yesterday is said to be assured.

THOSE WHO HAVE DIED

New York, June 16.—Charles Frederick Dunham, a large property owner, and interested in several mines in Mexico, where he lived for several years, is dead at Mont Clair, N. J.

Middletown, N. Y., June 16.—Harrison Bull, of Otisville, grandson of Samuel Bull who forged the chain across the Hudson to prevent the British fleet from ascending the river during the revolution, is dead. He was a leading merchant.

LOSS OVER ESTIMATED.

Alger-Smith Company Writes Concerning Forest Fire.

St. Paul, June 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—A letter from Vice President Millen of the Alger-Smith company to Gen. C. C. Andrews, state fire warden, received today, states that the loss in the fire at their lumber camp of June 7 had been much overestimated and that a personal investigation had satisfied him that the fire was not started by any person with malicious intentions, but was entirely accidental. The fire was principally over old cuttings.

THE FRAZER RISES.

High Water Causing Trouble In British Columbia.

Vancouver, B. C., June 16.—The gradual rise in the Frazer river still continues and the lowlands in several districts are under water. A break in the Pitt river dike resulted in the submerging of several hundred acres of land.

Navoman island, about forty miles up the river from New Minister, is under water. There are fifty farmers living on this island and a steamer was sent up from New Westminster today to take off the people and cattle. So far there has been but one drowning, that of William Melbourne.

THE ASCOT MEETING.

King and Queen Witness Events of the Day.

London, June 16.—At the Ascot meeting today the race for the gold vase, presented by the king (for three-year-olds and upwards; two miles) was won by Zinfandel. Florinda was second and Waverley's Pride was third.

The race for the Ascot Stake (of twenty sovereigns each, with 2000 sovereigns added; about two miles) was won by Genius. Scullion was second and Rightful was third.

King Edward's derby entry, Mead, won the Prince of Wales stakes.

The King and queen accompanied by the Prince of Wales and the Duke of Connaught attended the meeting today.

BROUGHT CONSUL'S BODY.

New York, June 16.—The steamer Saratoga, which arrived today from Colon, brought the body of J. C. Ingersoll, late United States consul at Cartagena, Columbia, who died of malaria and dysentery while on his way home.

TROUBLE FOLLOWS STRIKE.

Indianapolis, Ind., June 16.—The strike of the linemen, involving the employes of the Central Union and the new telephone companies and the Indianapolis Light and Power company, brought about a shooting scrape here today. Three union men approached George H. Deane was arrested. striker. followed. Deane shot A. C. Havens, a Deane, a non-union man and trouble

THE FRENCH BUDGET.

Paris, June 16.—Finance Minister Rouvelr presented the budget for 1904 in the chamber of deputies today and also a project for an income tax. The budget estimates the expense at $714,216,000 and the receipts at $702,740,000. In order to provide for the deficit of $1,162,000, the yield of certain taxes will be augmented.

TWO SUSPECTS ARE RELEASED

There Will Be No Indictment Against the Incendiaries.

Jackson, Ky., June 16.—Just before noon the grand jury filed into the court room and made its report to Judge Redwine. The foreman said no evidence was found against Joseph Crawford and Edward Tharp and it had been decided to order their release.

Judge Redwine sent an order to Maj. Allen in charge of the jail and to the prisoners, Crawford and Tharp, that they were liberated. It is believed that no one will be indicted for burning Ewen's home. Ewen has left the camp and gone some place up the Lexington & Eastern railroad. The grand jury was not dismissed.

COWBOYS ARE SENT TO JAIL

For Refusing to Testify In the Dewey Case.

St. Francis, Kas., June 16.—Surrounded by a strong guard of militia, Chauncey Dewey, W. J. McBride and Clyde Wilson faced Justice Hall in the county court house here today for their preliminary hearing on the charge of the murder of Daniel Berry and his two sons last week. The prisoners were brought into the court at 10 o'clock, surrounded by a guard of a dozen soldiers. Inside another guard of soldiers were on duty. Each man sat with his back to the court. Everybody was searched for weapons before being allowed to enter the court room. When the first witness, Edward Tucker, one of Dewey's cowboys, was called a sensation was caused by the witnesses refusing to answer all questions put by Attorney General Coleman for the state.

Attorney Coleman appealed to the court, and Justice Hall ordered Tucker sent to jail for contempt, as he did Al Winship, another of Dewey's cowboys, who followed Tucker on the stand and also declined to testify.

Beach D. Berry told the story of the killing, and when asked who fired the first shot, answered promptly: "Chauncey Dewey."

Berry said that he recognized Dewey, Wilson and McBride in the attacking party.

GETTING READY FOR KING PETER

Workmen Removing All Signs of Tragedy From Palace.

Belgrade, June 16.—The town is perfectly calm and quiet is apparently assured. Guns boomed frequently in honor of King Peter, the church bells rang merrily and simultaneously along the main streets marched a funeral procession, accompanied by all the panoply of the Greek church. A regiment of soldiers, with its band, was carrying to the grave the remains of a young lieutenant, to whom had been accorded the title of the "army's hero," a title which was gained as follows:

The commandant of a division encamped in the environs of Belgrade was surprised in the palace by the conspirators on the night of the assassinations and managed to escape. He found a mounted orderly, took his horse and galloped to the encampment of his division to summon some of the regiments to the assistance of the king. Just before reaching the camp, the lieutenant who was buried today, overtook the commandant and in the sanguinary fight which ensued, the commandant was killed and the lieutenant was mortally wounded. He died yesterday.

The new royal ciphers are reaching the military depots today and will be served out to the army before the arrival of King Peter.

The portraits of the late King Alexander are being removed from the walls of public offices and placed in lumber rooms.

Workmen are busy all day and night at the palace removing all signs of the tragedy and repairing the damages caused by flying bullets, preparatory to the installation of the new rulers.

It appears very unlikely that an official account of the crime will be published. The absence of all expression of regret among the educated class is most striking and leads to the conclusion that either the assassinations were extremely popular or the Servians are the most impassive people in the world. As a matter of fact, the whole country is governed by a few men and in many cases the peasantry are ignorant of the cause of the change.

ENGINEERS COMING

Government Officers Here June 29 to Consider Improvement Projects.

Harbor For Split Rock to Be Brought Before Them.

Notice was received at the local office of the government engineer of the Lake Superior district, this afternoon, that the board of engineers appointed by the United States board of chief engineers, under the provision of the law passed by the last congress, to examine lakes and harbors, will arrive in Duluth for the purpose of holding a public meeting in the local offices, June 29.

The board of engineers comes from Washington barracks, Washington, D. C., and while it is not stated how many there will be in the party, it is expected that it will include several persons.

Applications have been made for the establishment of a harbor at Split Rock, on the north shore and for the deepening of the St. Louis river from the foot of the rapids to New Duluth. At the public meeting to be held June 29, the board will listen to the arguments for or against the projected improvements that any interested citizen wishes to make.

This meeting will be held in addition to the written arguments for and against the improvements which have already been sent to the United States board of chief engineers.

A strong sentiment has developed in favor of a harbor at Split Rock, which is fast becoming an important lumber port. There is already a small natural harbor at that point, but the project contemplates the spending of a large sum, by the government to make a permanent harbor.

It is claimed that strong argument will be presented for the improvement of the St. Louis river by the deepening of the waterway from the foot of the falls to New Duluth right in line with the water power development of the river.

EPISCOPAL CONVOCATION

Of Duluth District to Be Held Here Wednesday and Thursday.

The annual meeting of the convocation of the district of Duluth of the Episcopal church will begin tomorrow morning in the St. Paul's church, lasting two days. The opening service will be held at 10 o'clock in the morning and will be followed by a business session that will continue through the morning and afternoon.

A missionary service will be held tomorrow evening at which clergymen appointed by the bishop for the purpose will deliver addresses.

Thursday the Women's Auxiliary society will hold its annual meeting. At the morning service, which begins at 10 o'clock there will be a celebration of holy communion, the sermon being delivered by the bishop of the diocese, Right Rev. J. D. Morrison.

The final business session will be held at 11 o'clock Thursday morning, when the officers will be elected for the ensuing year and reports will be read by the present officers.

Thursday afternoon at 1 o'clock the guild of St. Paul's church will serve a luncheon for those attending the meeting. At 2 o'clock, the president of the Women's Auxiliary will deliver her annual address. Mrs. Manypenny, wife of one of the bishop deacons will read a paper on her work among the Americanized negroes. Sister Ellen will give an account of the late convocation at the White Earth reservtion. The afternoon session will be closed with a general discussion of the plans of the society.

Thursday evening Bishop and Mrs. Morrison will tender a reception at their home to the visiting clergy and members of the auxiliary, the families of those who are entertaining them, the St. Paul's church choir and the graduating class of nurses from the St. Luke's hospital training school and their friends.

MAN AND HIS CLOTHES.

"There goes a suit of clothes that I'd give $150 for if it would fit me as well as it does the wearer," growled the unfortunate victim of tailors, according to the New York Press. "I pay any price they ask. I give them cart blanche as to styles and fashions. I am not deformed. I am not too girthy. I am not too slim. I have a good average shape. But, so help me, I cannot find a tailor to fit me. What can the trouble be? I'll wager a new suit that yonder paragon didn't pay more than $25 for his clothes, but they certainly ar eperfection. Wonder who his tailor is? I'd like to have our merchants adopt the English custom of being something to somebody in the advertisements, such as 'Hatter to His Majesty,' 'Glover to His Majesty,' 'Cutlers to His Majesty,' etc. It would give us a line to go by."

The best dressed men in New York are the Wall streeters. There is one young member of the stock exchange who is famous for his clothes. He has a wardrobe in his private office, and changes his suit three times a day—at 10, at noon and at 3 o'clock. A busy session on the floor will wreck any suit. Most of the brokers wear an old office coat in the shuffle and turmoil, and there is scarcely an active member but has an extra pair of trousers to put on after the close of business. Scores of little tailors in the financial district make a good living pressing trousers at fifty cents a pair.

A VENERABLE FIRE ENGINE.

"I read recently of an old hand tire engine in Alexandria, Va., as having been presented to the city and operated by George Washington. We have one of practically the same type in Lafayette, though, of course, it is not so old as the engine used by 'the father of his country.'" said T. A. Ogram, of the Indiana town, to the Washington Star. "Fortunately this old engine in Lafayette was saved from a scrap pile recently. It is of the 1809 model, and has been put in such repair that today it could be worked should the occasion require. Back in the '50s the names of the best citizens of the community were found upon the rolls of the company that used to fight fires with the ancient engine. Horses were not used in those days, and the machine was pulled by hand. Arriving at a fire the men would drop a suction hose into a well or cistern to draw the water, and then they would pump by hand as hard as they could go. The highest speed of the engine was the throwing of one hundred gallons per minute, while modern engines throw as much as 1500 or 2000 gallons a minute.

"Our old engine is made of handsome mahogany, is inlaid and the wood work is in an excellent state of preservation. There are probably few like it in the country. It was last in service in 1898, and few of the old members of the company are now living. Those few propose to have a celebration of the fixing up of the old machine."

A STRANGE STORY

Of Chancery Millions That In This Case Really Exist.

"Jarndyce vs. Jarndyce" Case to Be Reopened By Canadian.

London, June 16.—It is beginning to look as if David Jennings, the Montreal man who came to this country recently to prove himself the rightful heir to the famous "Jennings millions," was certain to get a hearing before the chancery court, and if he does some people in the United States will find themselves immensely interested in the remarkable proceedings which are likely to follow.

"The Jennings millions," of course, are those which were left by William Jennings, or Jenneus, the British iron founder, who died intestate in this country. The case, with its interminable history of claimants ruined by litigation, became world famous, especially after Charles Dickens had satirized it under the name of "Jarndyce vs. Jarndyce" in "Bleak House."

Meanwhile the original $10,000,000 left by Jennings, most of which was in gilt-edged stocks, had gone on increasing, until at the time that the struggle for its possession was supposed to be finally closed, the chancery court's return estimated the fortune at the amazing sum of $150,000,000, which amount David Jennings, who is in possession of a perfect mass of evidence to prove his claim thereto, has come to this country to "lift," as Sir Thomas Lipton would say.

It was just about thirty years ago that the Jennings suit ended, the court deciding that the contested millions should remain in chancery, while Earl Howe, who, by the way, is a direct descendant of Sir William Howe, who commanded the British forces in the American revolution, was left in possession of the rich Jennings property, which his lordship's aristocratic family might be said to have "jumped" immediately after William Jennings' death. The estate includes Gopsall hall, in Leicestershire, where Earl Howe recently entertained the king; Acton place, Ashton hall, the so-called "Penn estates," and a house in aristocratic Curzon street, London. This decision having been reached by the chancery court, every one supposed that the famous case had been settled for always.

Recently, however, there has been a significant activity among the Jennings claimants in this country, whose hopes were dashed temporarily by the chancery court's decision in Earl Howe's favor. One of them announced the discovery of documents throwing an entirely new light upon the case, and there have been other indications that the famous legal contest, upon which it is estimated more than $500,000 has been spent, soon would have to be opened again. Then came the appearance on the scene of David Jennings, the Canadian claimant, an elderly man, who has spent several years already in collecting documents to prove himself William Jennings' lineal heir, and whose claim is thought so well of by certain Montreal capitalists they are backing him financially in the attempt which he purposes to make to get the Jennings acres and guineas away from Earl Howe.

Soon after his arrival in England Jennings laid his case, so far as it had got then, before lawyers here, who encouraged him to go on after looking over the documents which he presented. Next Jennings, who, by the way, does not impress one either as a fanatic or a man likely to suffer from delusions, invaded the public record office—wherein the records of births, marriages and deaths since time out of mind are kept—and there for several weeks he has spent day after day in poring over the musty volumes in search for further evidence on which to base his claim. He has refused obstinately to have anything to do with professional "searchers," and the officials in the building, who do not generally sympathiez with folk engaged in such a search as his, say that they never have met any one of the species who pursued his object with more diligence than Jennings.

Whether the man who means to oust Earl Howe has discovered anything at the record office likely to assist him in doing so, he declined to state when questioned the other day, but it was significant that his solicitors now say that they hope to get him a hearing before the chancery court before July.

First, however, all the evidence upon which the claim is based—and this means thousands upon thousands of folios of closely written matter—must be read and discussed before a legal luminary called the master in chancery, who must decide whether the case is one that ought to occupy the attention of one or two of his majesty's judges for a time that might exceed that of the first Jennings suit itself.

Hard work and sleepless nights appear to have left their mark upon the old man, and when he was seen by the writer he was by no means inclined to straighten himself out to talk. "I am disgusted," he commenced, "with the way the English newspapers have distorted the facts of my case. They have tried to make fun out of what is a very serious matter both to me and Earl Howe. The earl does not take it so flippantly. I can assure you he understands the gravity of the situation.

"I am receiving shoals of letters daily from all parts of the world, many of them resting their claims on manifestly imaginary foundations. There are claimants from New York, San Francisco, Buffalo, Toronto, New Mexico, Melbourne, Adelaide, Burmah, Port Said, Paris, St. Petersburg and even Moscow."

"All claiming to be descedants of the celebrated William Jennings?"

"Yes; but I can, after years of hard work, trace the pedigree of only six out of a possible 300, and these, with two exceptions, live in America, two in San Francisco, one in Melbourne, one in New York, one in Toronto and one in Burmah."

"Are all those 300 contributing toward the cost of the present litigation?"

"Oh, dear, no; they are sending in claims anticipating a windfall."

"Who is furnishing the money, then?"

"That is a subject I can not discuss at present."

Here Mr. Jennings pulled himself up and appeared somewhat angry.

Further questioned as to his relations with the other claimants, he exclaimed, somewhat heatedly: "I am not going to concern myself with other people's troubles. I have enough of my own. The statement that there will be a general meeting of the whole body in London is an invention; such a thing is impossible. People can not conveniently come from all parts of the world to attend a conference of that sort."

"William Jennings dying intestate, leaving no sons, how have you succeeded to the name of Jennings?"

"A Jennings married into the family and so the name was restored," was the quick reply.

"Do you really expect to win your case?"

"I ought to if there is justice in England."

"You are rather skeptical as to the result?"

"The court of chancery is an institution which the lawyers themselves have never been able to understand."

"If you succeed to all this wealth, what do you propose to do with it?"

"I am not so much interested in the money as I am in establishing the claims of my family and ancestors. I am an old man and money can be of no great value to me."

Meanwhile, according to Mr. Jennings, Earl Howe is "laying low." The Canadian has communicated with his lordship, suggesting an interview by which litigation might be avoided, but the earl has not replied. As a matter of fact, Lord Howe has been threatened with eviction so many times before that he is probably getting a bit callous. His lordship, by the way, is rather a picturesque figure. He is one of the youngest of English peers and is treasurer in King Edward's household as well as lord-in-waiting. But perhaps the earl is best known as a musician. He plays the organ with real brilliancy and has a magnificent instrument at Gopsall hall, his principal seat.

The history of the "Jennings millions" is an extraordinary one from beginning to end, but no part of the tale is more remarkable than that which explains how it was that the English millionaire, to whose fortune there have been so many claimants, came to die intestate. William Jennings was an aristocrat as well as a man of great wealth. His father had been an aide-de-camp to the great duke of Marlborough, and he himself had William III. for a godfather, and as a boy had been page to King George I. But he was renowned most of all for his riches, a fortune of $10,000,000, such as his, being acounted a mighty one in these pre-Rockefeller days. Jennings had inherited part of his fortune, but he more than quadrupled his original heritage by fortunate speculation. He had a perfect genius for making investments. For instance, his shares in the Exchequer Voultres, for which he paid $500 each, brought him in $15,000 apiece for many years.

Strangely enough, it was the most trifling sort of an accident which led to Jennings dying without a will and, as a consequence, to one of the most lengthy and expensive law suits in history. Only a few days before his death, the old fellow, then 97, went down to his solicitor's office for the specific purpose of drawing up his last testament. When he came to sign it, however, he discovered that he had left his spectacles at home, so he put the will in his pocket and went off, saying that he would drop in again soon and close the matter up. A day or two afterward he was dead, and when his clothes were searched the "testament" worthless in law, was found in his pocket.

Up to the time of Jennings' death, few persons had begun to realize how wealthy he was. It was discovered that he had had property in almost every one of the existing funds, and it had been his habit to leave the dividends on most of his stock to accumulate year after year. He seems to have had money on all sides of him. In an iron chest which he used to keep under his bed they found bank notes worth $100,000 and $20,000 more in the shape of newly coined golden guineas.

It was in 1798 that old William Jennings died, and hardly was he laid in his grave before there began the battle in the chancery court for his estate, which was to drag on until people spoke of its conclusion as they did of the millennium. During the 100-odd years that the suit lasted, whole rooms full of evidence was submitted, and many and many a litigant beggared himself and his family in lawyer's fees. Of this side of the case there could be no better discription than Dickens gave when he held the controversy up to ridicule in "Bleak House," "Jarndyce and Jarndyce drone on. This scarecrow of a suit has, in course of time, become so complicated that no man alive knows what it means. The parties to it understand it least, but it has been observed that no two chancery lawyers can talk about it for five minutes without coming to a total disagreement as to all the premises. Innumerable children have been born into the cause; innumerable young persons have married into it; innumerable old people have died out of it. Scores of people have deliriously found themselves made parties in Jarndyce and Jarndyce without knowing how or why whole families have inherited legendary hatreds with the suit. The little plaintiff or defendant who was promised a new rocking horse when Jarndyce and Jarndyce should be settled has grown up, possessed himself of a real horse and trotted away. Fair wards of court have faded into mothers and grandmothers; a long procession of chancellors has come in and gone out; there are not three Jarndyces left upon the earth, perhaps, since old Tom Jarndyce in despair blew his brains out in a coffee house in Chancery lane; but Jarndyce and Jarndyce still drags its dreary length before the court, perennially hopeless."

As the suit went on the folk who were fighting it grew less and less scrupulous. Old parchment records were mutilated to make them lie, entries were erased or inserted in the registers of births, marriages and deaths. One claimant was accused of altering the original genealogical tree of the Jennings by grafting thereto an alien infant branch; others were believed to have changed inscriptions on the tombstones—there was even a report that the original name plates were removed from coffins and false ones substituted.

Earl Howe, whose position Mr. Jennings, of Montreal, is preparing to dispute, has received letters every few days since he came into the property from folk who believe they should be in his place. Enough "evidence" to fill a wheelbarrow has been sent to his lordship—all bearing on the senders' claims to his estate. Says the earl: "People all over the country seem to have an idea that they are entitled to nibble at my property."

However, it can be said to the nobleman's credit that, although he describes himself as being in no fear of being ousted by any of his rivals, he looks upon their pretentions as being pathetic rather than absurd, and not only reads all the letters sent him, but keeps them.

Before the arrival in this country of David Jennings, there were said to be about thirty-eight Jennings claimants, who not only were devoting all their spare time and money to "tracing their descent" back to the old iron founder, but who meant to have a tussle with Earl Howe in court just as soon as possible.

These claimants are mostly commonplace enough, with perhaps one exception. He is a railway "guard," and is one of those who, as Dickens says, "married into" the Jennings case. His wife, in fact, is a granddaughter of one of the chief claimants. For nine years now this railroad man has practically devoted his life to proving his wife entitled to the lion's share of old William Jennings' property, and that he really has the shadow of a case is shown by the fact that Earl Howe's attorney gave him an interview a while ago, and after seeing his laboriously gathered proofs, admitted that his wife was "a bit of a cousin," but advised him not to trouble the earl about it.

An exasperating part of the railway man's case is that the train on which he is a "guard" runs past Earl Howe's Leicestershire estate—a rich slice of the Jennings property—which, as this humble claimant ruefully says, "in a manner of speaking ought to belong to us."

THE SERVIANS ARE JUBILANT

Over the Czar's Telegram to King Peter.

Other Monarchs Express Congratulations.

St. Petersburg, June 17.—The czar's congratulations to King Peter are considered a public expression of the unqualified favor with which the proclamation of King Peter was received in official circles here. It is regarded as extremely unlikely in view of the attitude of the Servian people, that Russian will support the suggestion that the powers should demand the punishment of the assassins of King Alexander and Queen Draga.

Belgrade, June 17.—The cabinet ministers and other Servian officials here are jubilant over the czar's telegram to King Peter, demonstrating sympathy on the art of Russia. King Peter has telegraphed to the czar thanking him warmly for his message.

The army regards he czar's telegram as putting the seal of approval on the deeds of their officers.

Up to the present the diplomatic corps has officially ignored the provisional government, but the Servian officials express the conviction that the powers generally are bound to follow Russia's lead. The Austrian government has promised King Peter the free use of its railroads for his journey here.

The municipality of Belgrade has voted a large sum towards the reception of King Peter, which promises to be elaborate. About 3000 additional electric lights have been ordered for the illumination of the city.

Vienna, June 17.—The Servian military deputation sent by the war minister, Gen. Akanazkovics, to assure King Peter of the devotion of the army, passed through Vienna today. The officers expressed pleasure at the czar's message to King Peter, which they considered as having settled the attitude of the powers.

Vienna, June 17.—Cordially worded telegrams have been exchanged between Emperor Francis Joseph and King Peter, but the emperor in the midst of his congratulations to the new ruler seized the occasion to denounce the assassinations.

The text of the new king's message and the emperor's reply follows:

"Geneva, Switzerland, June 16.—His Majesty the Emperor of Austria: I hasten to inform your majesty of my call to the Servian throne, to which I have been elected by the unanimous vote of the senate and skupshtina. I intend to take up again my ancestral traditions and hope to bring freedom and happiness to my fatherland. I respectfully pray that your majesty continue to evince to me those feelings of sympathy which your majesty entertained for my father up to the time of his death. Should your majesty be pleased to show me the same sympathy in the fulfillment of my duties, it will make lighter the task for me. It is my intention and firm resolve to merit it.

"PETER."

"Vienna, June 17.—His Majesty the King of Servia: In acknowledgment of the friendly notification of your accession to the throne, I desire to assure you without delay of my complete sympathy and wishes that you may have a long and happy reign. May it be vouchsafed to your majesty to carry out successfully the noble mission devolved upon you, by restoring peace, quiet and esteem to your unhappy land, so sorely visited by a succession of internal storms, and by raising it again after the severe fall which it recently sustained in the eyes of the civilized world through the heinous and universally reprobated crime. Your majesty may rely upon my support and friendship in executing this task, and you may be convinced that it will always be my heartfelt desire, as it is your own, to maintain and strengthen the friendly and neighborly relations which have existed so long between our two countries. FRANCIS JOSEPH."

Rome, June 17.—King Victor Emmanuel has telegraphed his congratulations to his brother-in-law, King Peter of Servia, also expressing his wishes for the tranquility and prosperity of the country under the new regime.

Constantinople, June 17.—The sultan has warned Madame Christich, the mother of Milan, son of the late King Milan of Servia to carefully guard her son. She is advised to keep her son in the house and not to allow him to appear on the streets. It is presumed that this advice was the outcome of fears that an attempt was to be made to kill young Milan, although it is not believed that there will ever be any prospect of his succeeding to the throne of Servia.

ACQUITTAL IS ANTICIPATED

Jackson People Fear Result of Jett Trial.

Anxiety Is Felt For the Lives of Witnesses.

Jackson, Ky., June 17.—With the testimony closed, the jury charged by Judge Redwine and arguments of counsel proceeding today, there is a general belief that no decisive result will be reached in the present trial of Curtis Jett and Thomas White for the murder of Marcum. Although the jurors are not residents of Breathitt county, the most sanguine redict nothing more than a disagreement of the jury and others anticiate acquittal. Under these conditions the reign of terror continues. Fart of the Ewens family have gone to Lexington and others are arranging to become refugees from their homes. Following the action of the grand jury yesterday in releasing those held for arson and the alleged attempt last night to kill those who testified in the arson cases, there is increased anxiety as to what may happen to other witnesses in the murder cases, after the trial closes.

It has been decided that Capt. Ewen was not safe here even in camp with the soldiers, as sharpshooters might pick him out when he was not in the tent. B. J. Ewen, who was reported to have fled from camp here last night, as well as the previous night, did not leave until this morning. He took the 6 o'clock train, boarding it at a point across the river, which he reached by way of the foot bridge on the Fan Handle. A guard of soldiers accompanied him and saw him safely aboard the train. The camp is located on the river bank and he did not have to expose himself to the part of the town controlled by the dominant faction. He sent several of his children away yesterday to relatives and friends at different places and secured a place for his wife and younger children here until he can make other arrangements.

For the first time in eighteen months Police Judge Cardwell tried an offender this morning. Cardwell is a Cardwell-Cockrill partisan, and, like the late J. B. Marcum, up to the time the militia took possession of the town he had been a prisoner in his own home, having received repeated threats of assassination. The prisoners brought before him by the militia were Lee Gay and Lewis Johnson, known as henchmen from Perry county of the dominant faction. They were charged with assaulting Gray Haddicks, who had been a witness before the grand jury against Crawford and Tharp, charged with having set fire to Ewen's hotel. Judge Cardwell fined Gay $9 and costs and Johnson $25, and gave him ten days in jail for carrying concealed weapons.

When court convened this morning, Judge French, the noted leader of the French faction of the French-Eversole feud, who is the leading lawyer for the defense of Jett and White, began the opening argument for the defense before Judge Redwine. He declared that County Judge Blanton, who had said that Witness Crawford had been arrested, had lied. Judge Blanton sprang to his feet and approached Judge French, but Ellsor Jones threw himself between the men and Judge Redwine finally secured quiet in the court room. Judge Redwine then threatened to send Judge Blanton to jail for contempt of court and admonished Judge French to be more temperate in his language.

PROTECTION FROM STRIKES

An Employers' Insurance Association Will Be Organized.

Chicago, June 17.—A dispatch to the Record-Herald from Indianapolis, Ind., says: David M. Parry, president of the National Manufacturers' association, commenting on the proposed organization of a company to insure employers of labor against strikes, says the company will undoubtedly be formed. He said that it would necessarily be a mutual company, and that the membership would be kept secret, only the officers being known. "Organized labor will never know," he said, "when it orders a strike, whether it is really fighting combined capital or merely making an onslaught on one individual. The object of the company will be to protect its policy holders from losses resulting from strikes and also to protect independent workmen. The company will have a legal department and will prosecute any man who attempts any coercion or commits any violation of law."

HAY MEN

Discuss Needed Amendments and Other Matters.

Chicago, June 17.—A further needed amendment of the interstate commerce law was discussed by the delegates to the National Hay association convention here today, following an address on the subject by E. P. Bacon, of Milwaukee, "Hay, and Who Should Handle It," was the subject of another interesting paper by B. F. Tyler, of Kansas City. The exchange of ideas of a number topics, together with reports of a number of committees occupied the early part of the day, after which the delegates embarked for a steamboat ride to the Calumet river and visited the various grain elevators and steel plants located there.

NOT A CANDIDATE.

Senator Beveridge Does Not Want Vice Presidency.

Chicago, June 17.—"According to John C. New, of Indianapolis, who has for years been prominently associated with the Republican organization in Indiana," says the Tribune today, "Senator Beveridge is not a candidate for the vice presidency."

Said Mr. New: "Mr. Beveridge would not take the nomination for the vice presidency if it weer offered to him. He does not want it. He is not a presidential possibility and would receive no support in his own state."

FARGO COLLEGE

Confers the Degree of D. D. on Three.

Fargo, N. D., June 17.—At Fargo college, a Congregational institution, today the degree of doctor of divinity was conferred upon Rev. C. H. Dickinson, of Fargo, Rev. A. Cushing Dill, of Niagara Falls, and Rev. G. S. Rollins, of Minneapolis, in honor of the completion of the Pearsons endowment of $250,000. This year's graduating class was composed of twelve young men and women. Only one other doctor of divinity degree has been conferred by this college.

CHAMBERLAIN ENDORSED.

Capetown, June 17.—Premier Sprigg, in the course of a debate in parliament on the South African customs' convention, has taken occasion to refer in terms of warm approval to Colonial Secretary Chamberlain's preferential tariff proposals. He said although he had always been an ardent free trader he was bound to admit that there was something greater than free trade, namely, the consolidation of the empire. The premier's remarks were cheered on both sides of the house.

TO MEET AT LOUISVILLE.

New York, June 17.—The next annual congress of the National Prison association of the United States will be held in Louisville, Ky., Oct. 3 to 8.

REV. ROBERT HALL DROWNED.

Binghampton, June 7.—The body of Rev. Robert Emmett Hall, widely known on account of his literary talent, has been found in the Susquehanna river here. He was brought from Connecticut to the state hospital for insane here a year ago. He recently escaped and it is thought fell into the river.

MILLIONAIRE LOCKED UP ON ACCOUNT OF DIVORCE SUIT

Edwin Moores Was About to Sail For Europe When He Was Detained By Officers on the Complaint of His Wife.

Chicago, June 17.—A dispatch to the Tribune from East St. Louis, Ill., says: Locked up in cages with monkeys and other animals, his face and hands discolored to disguise him, and his clothing taken away to make him as near to an animal as possible, was the experience of John Layton, a 6-year-old boy, according to his story just told to the police. It was a training to be a "wild boy" with a circus the little fellow was given, and for a week after he was kidnaped from his parents he underwent the tortures that have driven him almost insane.

The face and hands of the boy are stained, and scratches and scars on his body bear evidence that the story of his treatment is true.

Sylvester Baker, a negro attache of the show, is under arrest and has been taken to Belleville to prevent a possible lynching.

SAGE MAKES EXPENSIVE MISTAKE

New York, June 17.—Because Russell Sage made a mistake in the date on which "swearing off" and corrections could be made in taxes, he will have to meet personal taxes this year on an assessment of $2,000,000. It was presumed when Mr. Sage did not appear at the tax office for the purpose of "swearing off" his assessment of $2,000,000 before March 1, that he was willing to allow the increase to go unprotested. In past years he has been assessed for only $600,000. The multimillionaire has sent a letter of protest to the tax commissioners, explaining the matter, but the books are finally closed.

SIR THOMAS STARTS FOR AMERICA

London, June 17.—There was a large gathering of people at the Euston railroad today to bid good-bye to Sir Thomas Lipton, who started for Liverpool to board the steamer Oceanic for New York. The crowd cheered him heartily, while Sir Thomas waved his farewell. On the same train was J. Pierpont Morgan, who was also cheered by the Linton contingent.

King Edward telegraphed to Sir Thomas as follows:

"As you are just about leaving for America, let me wish you a prosperous journey and all possible good luck for the great race in August.

"EDWARD, R. AND I."

BRANDED STUDENTS MAY NOT LIVE

New Bedford, Mass., June 17.—Clarence Mason, son of the chief of police, is suffering from an attack of blood poisoning as a result of being branded at an initiation of the secret society of the local high school. It is feared he may not recover. Joseph McIntyre, another student, is in a serious condition.

One of the principal features of the initiation was the burning of Greek letters on the foreheads of the candidates by means of a preparation of nitrate of silver and nitric acid. This solution has been used in all the initiations hitherto, with no ill result. If the boys recover, they will be marked for life.

APPOINTMENT OF GREENE ANNOUNCED BY PRESIDENT

He Succeeds Mr. Garfield on the Civil Service Commission—Is Regarded as a Distinct Victory For Congressman J. Adam Bede.

FROM THE HERALD WASHINGTON BUREAU.

Washington, June 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—The president this morning announced the appointment of Henry F. Greene, of Duluth, to be civil service commissioner, to succeed Mr. Garfield. This is a distinct victory for Congressman J. Adam Bede, who has engineered Mr. Greene's campaign from the start to a successful finish. Mr. Greene was endorsed by the entire congressional delegation from Minnesota, the chief justice and associate justices of the supreme court of Minnesota and by President Woodrow Wilson, of Princeton university. The appointment gives the greatest satisfaction among the Minnesota colony here, to many of whom Commissioner Greene is personally known.

PRESIDENT GOMPERS SAYS WAITERS' STRIKE MUST END

Chicago, June 17.—The settlement of the hotel and restaurant strike appears today to hinge upon technicalities. The exact construction to be put upon the term "union recognition" is the stumbling block to a speedy adjustment of the difficulties between the parties to the controversy. The joint board of the strikers' unions is inclined to hold out for an agreement to employ union men and women only while the hotel and restaurant owners declare they can do no more than promise not to discriminate. The joint board in conference early today was unable to agree upon the acceptance of the employers' terms and decided to submit the matter to President Gompers. The resumption of business by the large down-town restaurants precipitated several incipient fights, the pickets generally selecting women for their victims. On the whole, however, regular service with almost a full complement of help in the kitchens and dining rooms was effected by all the strike-bound establishments.

President Gompers is said to have declared that the strike must not go on in the face of the fair offers made by the hotel and restaurant owners. He is not in favor of continuing the fight for the exclusive employment of unionists, holding that the union idea is strong enough to maintain and promote the growth of the unions, even though some employers attempt to break the "no discrimination" clause which the employers' association is willing to incorporate into an agreement. The steam power council, comprising engineers, firemen and elevator men, and the teamsters, advise the joint board to meet the employers in conference and not to continue the strike a day longer than is necessary.

THE CHICAGO-ST. PAUL ROADS ARE PROMPTLY CALLED DOWN

Eastern Roads Will Not Stand For Unauthorized Rate Cutting and Insist on Their Full Apportionment on All Tickets Sold.

Chicago, June 17.—Central Passenger association lines are evidently determined to prevent the Chicago-St. Paul lines from demoralizing passenger rates in the territory east of Chicago. At the meeting of the Central Passenger association here, it was agreed that under no circumstances must any of the Central association lines accept tickets issued by Western roads at less than the agreed rate.

A resolution was adopted directing each road to send the following notice to the passenger traffic managers or general passenger agents of the various roads interested in passenger agents of the various roads interested in passenger business between Chicago and St. Paul

Whereas, we are advised that your company on or about June 11, 12 and 13, 1903, instituted from St. Paul and Minneapolis sales of round trip tickets to certain Eastern destinations via ——— railroad, without conference, authority or consent of this road, conversely in defiance of its protest entered on June 10 that such tickets should not issue by your company on account of this road.

You are hereby formally notified that this road will require and demand in apportionments of such ticket or tickets, sold without its sanction, consent or authority, its normal, regularly established legal selling rate fares from and to Chicago, in both directions, to and from the destination to which any such tickets were routed over this road.

You are further notified that the conditions and limitations of the foregoing notice will apply to any and all tickets issued by your company on or subsequent to the date hereof.

It was agreed also that a copy of the foregoing circular be sent to the president of each road between Chicago and the Atlantic seaboard with the request that they take the matter up with the presidents of the Western roads.

As the Eastern roads are now a unit on this matter it will be impossible for the Western roads to carry their rate war into Eastern territory.

TEN THOUSAND MEN DISCHARGED

New York, June 17.—Ten thousand employes of the George A. Fuller Construction company were thrown out of work today by order of the company, thus making the lockout in the building trades complete. While not joining the Employers' association in membership the Fuller company took this sympathetic action on the same grounds as those maintained by the members of the accosiation. Today the 150,000 laborers who are idle because they are members of Building Trades' unions have been served with the ultimatum of the combined contracting constructors with an ultimatum that they will remain idle as long as the individual unions refuse to sign the plan or agreement of arbitration and conciliation proposed by the Employers' association.

TRAINING HIM TO BE A "WILD BOY"

New York, June 17.—Edwin D. Mooers, reputed to be worth several million dollars, spent last night in a cell in Lulow street jail. He is booked to sail for Europe today, his name and that of his mother appearing on the list of the liner New York. Unless $10,000 is deposited as a bond for his appearance to answer a suit for divorce brought by his wife, whom he married at El Paso, Texas, March 1, 100, he will be unable to sail today. Mooers is a well-known figure in New York, Chicago and an Francisco.

In her affidavit, upon which Judge Clark issued the order of detention, Mrs. Mooers describes herself as being without property or income. She says that she appealed to her husband last month for a contribution to her maintenance, and that he refused it and told her he was going abroad for a long time to "get rid of the whole thing." She says she has lived apart from her husband since October, 1902.

Mr. Mooers, who is not yet 30 years old, declined to discuss the matter for publication.

NO GREAT CHANGE IN REICHSTAG

Berlin, June 17.—The Socialists victory at the reichstag elections yesterday was largely at the expense of the two radical parties, who voted as the Socialists did in the last reichstag on tariff, military and naval affairs. Hence, on these questions the new house is not distinctly diffeernt from the old one. The official returns from 30 constituencies are: Socialists, 53; Center party, 60; Conservatives, 21; Free Conservatives, 4; National Liberals, 6; Poles, 5; other factions, 12. Total of members elected, 161.

Second elections are required in 169 constituencies.

The failure of either of the radical parties to get a single seat does not mean that they will not get a number of members at the second elections, as then their candidates will be supported by all the anti-Socialist parties.

The socialists' gains, according to their figures are twenty-five seats, compared with the first ballotings of 1898. From ninety-eight second ballotings then they elected twenty-four members. The socialists now claim fifty-seven members elected and say they expect to reach eighty, through the re-ballots.

THREE MEN KILLED IN COLLISION

Cedar Rapids, Iowa, June 17.—Three men were killed and four injured as the result of a collision of a Rock Island passenger train and a gravel train at Elmira, twenty miles south of here, early this morning. The accident was caused by the failure of the gravel train to clear the main track before the passenger arrived.

The dead:

ELDON HERRING, Lisbon, and two unknown men, all stealing a ride on the platform of the baggage car.

The injured: T. A. Myers, passenger engineer, seriously; J. Barnes, baggageman, leg and arm and thigh broken, serious; —— Barnes, fireman, gravel train, jaw broken. A number of passengers sustained minor hurts.

THE TWENTIETH AVENUE CASE

C. O. Nelson Says It Is Practically Settled and Fight Ended.

To the Editor of The Herald:

I do not see as it is necessary to keep up this Twentieth avenue Northern Pacific fuss any longer. As I understand it, the case is practically settled, as it is only a question of a little time until our old train service is re-established here at Twentieth avenue and also at West Duluth. The Northern Pacific Railway company filed a petition for a re-hearing which was promptly denied by the supreme court, and the railroad and warehouse commissioners have already in unmistakable terms put themselves on record as stating and directing the Northern Pacific railway company how it shall run its passenger trains, and if the railroad and warehouse commissioners have changed their opinion in this respect, then that is news to me, and I certainly ought to know.

Even if the railroad commissioners had changed their minds it would do them no good, as the charter protects us in that respect, and therefore the railroad and warehouse commissioners have no choice in the matter. Our old service must be restored, and remain so as long as the charter is in force, and no one but our state legislature has the right to annul this.

But the comical part comes in at this late day, when individuals and our common council come swooping into the case after the fight is all over. When I desired help, I was informed by the city officials that the city was powerless to help me with the case, so I was thrown on my own resources, and have handled the case the best I knew how, and all I now ask of the good people of this part of the city and at West Duluth is to stretch out their patience a little while longer, as there is no doubt in my mind but what the outcome will be as I have stated above, and it cannot possibly be otherwise. Yours truly,

C. O. NELSON.

THE COMING CARNIVAL

Duluthians to Do Duty In Various Capacities on Grounds.

Hundreds of persons in Duluth have announced their intention to do anything and everything necessary to make the Duluth July fair and carnival a success.

"As a result of their declaration they will be doing all sorts of stunts at the grounds. Some of them will act as doorkeepers, some of them will be "ballyooing" in front of the various shows, some of them will be "spellers" for various attractions and exhibits, some of them will be acting as conductors on the great electric cars which have seats on their backs for eight people at a time. Others will float the ungainly camels through the crowds, taking ten-cent pieces therefrom with a bland smile of acknowledgement. Dignitaries will be stationed at all points on the grounds, doing police duty, acting as guides, walking information bureaus and general utility men. They have formed themselves into one great reception committee, the duties of each member of which will be to make visitors feel as much at home as possible, and make as much for their money as they possibly can.

"It has been arranged that some seventy-five Duluthians take turns about as doorkeepers for the various shows, working from noon until midnight. Some of these are men whose time is very valuable, both to themselves and to other people. With people like these doing this sort of work, the immense energy and push that has accomplished the feat of getteing together and in shape this really gigantic combination of shows and exhibits will readily be seen.

Preparations for the carnival are going forward with a rush, and the headquarters, at 107 Manhattan building is the busiest place in town. Numerous committees meet each day in order to dispose of the tremendous amount of business that has risen in connection with the event and the headquarters presents the appearance of a reunion of the prominent business men of the city.

Owing to the thousands of visitors that will come to Duluth to attend the carnival, the carnival management has established an information bureau. All parties having rooms to rent will kindly inform the Duluth Carnival and Amusement company in the Manhattan building.

Eczema

How it reddens the skin, itches, oozes, dries and scales!

Some people call it tetter, milk crust or salt rheum.

The suffering from it is sometimes intense; local applications are resorted to—they mitigate, but cannot cure.

It proceeds from humors inherited or acquired and persists until these have been removed.

Hood's Sarsaparilla

positively removes them, has radically and permanently cured the worst cases, and is without an equal for all cutaneous eruptions.

DISTRICT LARGE

Duluth Episcopal Missionary District Has 57,000 Square Miles.

Eighth Annual Convocation In Session In This City.

The eight annual convocation of the Episcopal missionary district of Duluth opened at St. Paul's Episcopal church this morning. It will continue through until tomorrow, when the Woman's auxiliary will also have a session.

The district of Duluth includes the northern two-thirds of the state. It runs from the tier of counties along the lower line of Stearns county projected to the Dakota and Wisconsin boundaries, north to the Canadian line, and includes 57,000 square acres of area.

This includes practically all of the wild and undeveloped or partially developed country in Minnesota. The Indians of the state are the principal objects of the mission work, and many of the native clergymen of the district are full-blooded Chippewas, a number of whom were in attendance this morning.

There are sixty-six parishes and missions in the district, every important community having one, and while not all of them were represented this morning, a number of other delegates were expected in during the day.

The call of the clergy this morning showed the following clerical delegates to be in attendance: Bishop Morrison, Archdeacon Appleby, Duluth; Francis E. Alleye, Little Falls; George W. Barnes, Alexandria; F. C. Coolbaugh, Cloquet; Frank Durant, Hibbing; F. M. Garland, Sauk Center; Henry M. Green, Crookston; Mark Hart, Beaulieu; Theodore C. Hudson, New Paynesville; E. C. Johnson, Lakeside; Lewis Manypenny, Twin Lakes; Albert R. Mitchell, Hallock; R. J. Mooney, Morris; George Morgan, Cass Lake; E. Spencer Murphy, Wadena, H. F. Parshall, St. Paul; James C. Munson, Detroit; Lewis Reitz, Duluth; George E. Renison, Two Harbors; Herbert E. Ryerson, Virginia; Frederick W. Smith, White Earth, George Smith, Pine Point; Joseph Wakazoo, Langby P. O.; William Watson, St. Vincent; Charles T. Wright, Leech; Herbert S. Webster, Moorhead; A. O. Worthing, Fergus Falls; Rev. John K. Burleson, East Grand Forks.

Only a few of the lay delegates appeared this morning, so the roll was not called. Among the lay delegates present this morning, however, was T. C. Hawley, of Lake Park, a member of the 1903 legislature.

The exercises this morning opened with a communion service, conducted by Bishop Morrison, assisted by Archdeacon Appleby and the visiting clergymen. Bishop Morrison read a memorial on the people eminent in the church who had died during the last year, including those of worldwide fame like the archbishop of Canterbury, and those of national fame like Bishop Whipple, as well as prominent members of the church in this district.

The business meeting was called to order at 11:20 o'clock by Bishop Morrison, who presided.

Dr. T. J. Bowers was re-elected as secretary by acclamation, and he appointed Rev. Henry M. Green as assistant secretary.

Bishop Morrison then announced the following standing committees:

Organization and incorporation of parishes—Rev. F. E. Alleyne, G. V. Quilliard, G. L. Hargraves.

Finance—Rev. E. S. Murphy, Rev. J. C. Munson, R. B. Knox, J. H. Dight.

Privilege—Archdeacon Appleby, Rev. Frederick W. Smith, Mr. Reed, Henry F. Greene.

Legislation—Rev. A. R. Mitchell, Rev. F. C. Coolbaugh, T. W. Mann, E. Barber.

State of the church—Rev. H. F. Parshall, Rev. R. J. Mooney, Rev. Lewis Rietz, Rev. John K. Burleson, G. L. Hargraves, G. V. Quilliard, T. W. Mann, John Larson, J. C. Small, Henry F. Greene.

Rules of order—Rev. F. C. Coolbaugh, Rev. F. M. Garland, W. S. Bishop.

Unfinished business—Rev. Theodore C. Hudson, Rev. F. Durant, R. B. Knox.

Board of equalization—Rev. Henry M. Green, Rev. H. F. Parshall, Archdeacon Appleby, Rev. G. W. Barnes, R. B. Knox, W. S. Bishop.

Swedish missions—Archdeacon Appleby, Rev. Lewis Rietz, Rev. Edward C. Johnson, T. C. Hawley, G. L. Hargraves.

Indian missions—Rev. William Watson, Archdeacon Appleby, Rev. Frederick W. Smith, Rev. Lewis Manypenny, Rev. J. C. Munson.

Missionary apportionment—Dean H. F. Parshall, Dean H. M. Green, Dean A. W. Ryan, Rev. A. O. Worthing, Rev. H. S. Webster, Rev. George Smith, Rev. George Morgan, Rev. Mark Hart, Rev. George E. Renison.

Memorials—Rev. John K. Burleson, Archdeacon Appleby, Rev. Herbert E. Ryerson.

Name of church—Rev. F. M. Garland, Rev. F. H. Parshall, Rev. R. J. Mooney, Rev. E. S. Murphy, Rev F. Durant, Henry F. Greene, T. W. Mann, William Kelly, Walter Johnson, G. V. Quilliard.

R. B. Knox and J. H. Dight were appointed to audit the treasurer's report when it is read this afternoon.

R. B. Knox, secretary of the trustees of the diocese, read the report of the board, showing what had been done in the matter of purchasing church sites, etc.

Archdeacon Appleby read his report, showing the work in the district and the state of the various churches and parishes. He protested against the desecration of the Sabbath common on the Indian reservations, where it has come to be a day for the transaction of secular business. The Indian missions he reported in the front rank and doing well, and he said that new missions were needed on Red Lake and on Bear Island. During the year he spoke 209 times, administered communion 100 times, and baptized sixteen people. He traveled 25,564 miles and was out of the district for a short time soliciting subscriptions. The result of this work was $5550.28.

This afternoon Bishop Morrison was to make his address, and further reports of officers and committees were to be heard. The business of the convocation may be finished by this afternoon's adjournment, and if not it will be finished tomorrow morning.

This evening there will be a missionary meeting at which different members of the convocation will speak. Among these will be Rev. George Smith, an Indian, of Pine Point. He will speak in the Indian language and the address will be interpreted by his brother, Rev. George W. Smith, of White Earth.

Tomorrow morning the Woman's auxiliary will open its annual session with holy communion at 10 o'clock and an address by Right Rev. J. D. Morrison. Following that the business session of the organization will begin at once and the reports of officers will be heard.

The afternoon session will convene at 2 o'clock and there will be an address by Mrs. J. D. Morrison, president. This will be followed by the singing of hymns and there will be addresses on missionary topics and discussions of plans for future work.

In the evening a reception will be held at the home of Bishop Morrison, on East Superior street, for the visiting clergymen, members of the Woman's auxiliary and their friends, people who are entering the clergy, adult members of the choir of St. Paul's church and the graduates of St. Luke's hospital training school and their friends.

In Better Health.

Miss Minnie E. Pleas, who, after some years work in local law offices as a stenographer, was compelled to leave the city about two years ago on account of her health, is now located in Los Angeles, Cal., and is enjoying good health. Probate Judge Middlecoff while passing through Los Angeles on his Western trip of recent date, saw Miss Pleas and had a short visit in which she told him of several Duluthians that are now located in Western states. Miss Pleas spent some time in Arizona.

ANARCHISTIC LITERATURE.

Columbia University Has the Finest Collection In World.

New York, June 17.—The library authorities of Columbia university announced today the acquisition of what is believed to be the most complete collection of anarchistic literature in the world. The collection was purchased for $100 from the administrators of the estate of a French anarchist, who died in London last winter. Including in the papers is what purports to be a death warrant forecasting the assassination of President Carnot of France.

DIRECTORS CANNOT BE HELD.

Chicago, June 17.—Judge Kohlsaat, in an opinion delivered today in the United States circuit court, decided that the directors of the defunct National bank of Illinois cannot be held liable by creditors for the balance of money due from the bank.

CRAZY MAN IN JAIL

Vernn Holmlund Makes Frantic Attempts at Self-Destruction.

Fellow Prisoners In City Jail Save Him From Killing Himself.

Vernn Holmlund, a Scandinavian blacksmith, apparently 30 years of age, is being held at the county jail pending an examination for insanity.

Holmlund was brought into the city on the Omaha train yesterday morning and turned over to the police department as being crazy. He was confined with the rest of the prisoners in the city jail last evening and not until he attempted suicide did they have any suspicion that he was wrong in his mind.

The afflicted man suddenly approached one of his own nationality in the city jail and asked for a knife. The man did not have one, but referred the request to his fellows. As their pockets had been searched by the police department before they were locked up, none of the prisoners had a knife of any description. Holmlund then walked up the stairs to the corridor and made motions as if to hurl himself headlong to the cement floor beneath. His companions shouted to him not to fall, but he declared that he intended to jump and kill himself. He evidently changed his mind about striking the floor head first, for when he struck he alighted on his feet. Before anybody could stop him Holmlund again ran up into the corridor and jumped a second time, sustaining slight injuries. By this time the rest of the prisoners knew something was wrong and they stopped him as he was going up the stairs to make the third attempt.

Thwarted in his jump, Holmlund declared that the devil was after him and he must get away. He tore himself loose and dashed into the corner where he began butting his head against the wall until it was cut open and bled profusely. He was caught and held by his fellow prisoners until the officers went in and took him in charge. This morning Holmlund tried to tear out the water pipes in the jail water closet and succeeded in breaking one piece of piping before he was stopped.

When questioned at the jail this morning his replies were incoherent, although he seemed to realize what was asked him. From what the authorities could gather from his speech he has been in this country about six months and makes his home in Duluth, coming here either from Chicago or from some place out West.

Holmlund's fellow prisoners say he is crazed from the results of a long spree and will probably be all right in a few days.

At the present time there are two other persons confined in the county jail who are believed to be insane. One keeps pleading for a rope with which to hang himself.

FAMOUS RELICS

In Procession In Bunker Hill Day Celebration.

Boston, June 17.—Philadelphia's famous relic of revolutionary days, the liberty bell, and the memento of the civil war, John Brown's bell, from Marlborough, Mass., as features of the annual celebration of the anniversary of the battle of Bunker hill, at Charlestown, assumed unusual interest today. Following the carnival and military parades there were literary exercises and speech making at Bunker hill monument.

WAS AFRAID OF HIS "DIP"

Superior Man Taken For King of Confidence Men.

Minneapolis, June 17.—The Journal says: P. H. Smith, the West Superior real estate man, who is at the West hotel, had the unpleasant experience at Schiek's restaurant the other day of being mistaken for a confidence man—the worst in the United States.

Mr. Smith is somewhat of a joker himself. Because fate tried to cheat him by naming him Smith, he is not averse occasionally to making enough of a stir to be heard. The spirit moved him on this particular occasion. When the waiter suggested, while Mr. Smith was waiting for his dinner, that the man behind the bar was gullible enough to believe that the former was a confidence man, Smith said, "I'm in, go ahead."

The next moment one of the waiters had quietly pointed Smith out to the barkeep," whose eyes were bulging with interest.

"Keep your eye on him," said the waiter, "or he'll do you. Tell you what, that fellow can actually stand in front of this bar, if he's a mind to, with his sleight of hand work, and get to every cent in the cash register. He carries a device in his cuffs which he can work like a flash, which will make the 'dip' and 'cop the coin,' while you're wondering if he'll come again. Ten to one you'd never know what happened.

Then Mr. Smith arose to his full height of something over six feet, and advanced upon the drink-mixer, who grabbed a belaying pin to be ready at a moment's notice.

"On guard," said Smith, fixing his hypnotic eye upon the man behind the apron. "I'll have a little lithia."

Then he elevated his wrists in significant fashion.

"No you don't" returned the bartender threateningly. "I'm onto you. You're the biggest con man in the country; you make one move for that coin and I'll have you pinched."

Detective Jim Howard came in at that moment. He knew Smith well and took in the situation at a glance.

"You sit down over here," he said, gruffly, laying a heavy hand on Smith's shoulder; "you're too near that bar. I know you."

The bartender still believes that a bold, sleight-o'-hand daylight robbery was narrowly averted and has had an eye single for cuffs since.

WINDOW GLASS MAKERS

Meet at Pittsburg to Discuss Business Conditions.

Pittsburg, June 17.—A joint meeting of the American Independent and Federation Window Glass companies is being held here to consider general trade conditions, which are said to be perplexing, owing largely to the cessation of building operations caused by labor disturbances in various parts of the country. Yesterday the National Jobbers' association rejected the manufacturers' proposition to sell 300,000 boxes of glass at 88 per cent off the old list. At today's meeting, it is said, the manufacturers may make a better proposition to the jobbers, and pending the result of the meeting the representative o fthe jobbers will remain in the city.

ENGLISH ATTITUDE TOWARD SERVIA

London, June 17.—In accordance with his promise, Premier Balfour in the house of commons today amplified the information regarding the attitude of the British government towards Servia. He said the diplomatic relations with Servia which ended with the death of King Alexander had not been renewed. The government had considered whether it should mark its reprehension of the crime which had disgraced the Servian capital by withdrawing the British minister. It, however, had been thought better that Sir George Bonham remain at his post and protect British interests. He would not be accredited to the new government until further information was received regarding the circumstances under which it had come into power. Those powers in regard to whose attitude the government had received information had instructed their representatives to accept the provisional government as the de facto authority with which current business should be transacted.

KANSAS LEGISLATURE IS CALLED

Topeka, Kan., June 17.—Governor Bailey today issued the following proclamation calling together the legislature in special session:

"Whereas, the recent floods have, in addition to the destruction of vast amounts of property, swept away numerous bridges, the rebuilding of which is imperative, but for which no adequate law exists, thereby bringing about an extraordinary occasion within the meaning of the constitution authorizing a special session of the legislature;

"Now I, therefore, W. J. Bailey, governor of the state of Kansas, by virtue of the authority vested in me by the constitution, do hereby convene the legislature of the state of Kansas in special session at the capitol in the city of Topeka on Wednesday, June 24, at 2 o'clock, for the purpose of enabling counties and other municipalities to rebuild necessary bridges."

COUNT ZBROSKI'S WILL.

Leaves $250,000 to Son; Balance to Wife.

New York, June 17.—The will of Elliot Zbrowski, sometimes known as Count Zbrowski, who was killed near Nice, France, in an automobile accident April 1, has been filed for probate here. It was executed in England March 31, one day before his death.

No amount of the estate is mentioned, but $250,000 is left to a son, Louis, for life. Upon his death it reverts to the widow, unless disposed of by will or children inherit it. In the event of neither, the money goes to the Woman's hospital of the state of New York. The residue of the estate is left to the widow for life and to the son at her death. Should the son die before his mother, the residue goes to the Woman's hospital.

FLAGLER IS IMPROVING.

New York, June 17.—Henry M. Flagler, the oil magnate, who has been ill at his country mansion at Orienta Point, on Long Island sound, is reported to be improving rapidly and is able to sit up. He suffered from lumbago. Mr. and Mrs. Flagler recently returned from Palm Beach, Fla. During the trip north he caught a severe cold which caused the attack.

DELIRIOUS PATIENT

Thought He Was Playing Ball as He Died.

New York, June 17.Overstudy and injury received by a kick in a football game are given as the causes of the death by spinal meningitis of George Gallagher, 23 years old, at his home in West New York, N. J. Gallagher was to have been graduated as a mechanical engineer with the class of 1903 at Cooper institute. He was a member of the Taritas Athletic club of Gutteuberg.

He became delirious on the subject of baseball shortly before his death. To humor him his friends placed an orange in his hand and told him it was a baseball. The orange was passed back and forth between Gallagher and his friends. "Throw it home," he would shout in his delirium, and he would deftly catch the orange as it was thrown to him. The game was kept up until a few minutes before he died.

COFFIN MAKERS STRIKE.

New York, June 7.—Because of the refusal of their employes to grant their demands for a 9½ hour work day and a 3 hours work day on Saturday, coffin makers have gone on strike in several of the leading factories in the city.

THE FATE OF THE NATION

Depends on Individual Character, Says Senator George F. Hoar.

Iowa City, Ia., June 17.—A feature of the commencement exercises of the University of Iowa today was an address by United States Senator George F. Hoar, of Massachusetts, who said in part:

"The fate of the nation depends in the last resort on individual character. Everything in human government, like everything in individual conduct, depends in the end, upon the sense of duty. Whatever safeguards may be established, however complicated or well adjusted the mechanism, you come to a place somewhere, where safety depends upon somebody having the will to do right when it is in his power and may seem to his interest to do wrong. When the people were considering the adoption of the constitution of the United States, one of our wisest statesmen said that the real and only security for a republic is when the rulers have the same interest as the people. If they have not, constitutional restraints will break down somewhere, except for the sense of duty of the rulers.

"All elections depend upon this principle. You may multiply election officers and returning boards; you may provide for an appeal to courts of first resort or last resort. But in the end you must somewhere come to a point where the sense of public duty is stronger than party spirit, or your election is but a sort of fighting, or if not that, a sort of cheating. The same thing is true of the individual voter, or of the legislater who is to elect the senator, or the governor who is to appoint the judge or the executive officer, or the judge who is to interpret the constitution or the statute and decide the cause, or the juror who is to find the fact. On these men depend life, liberty and property. And yet each of them has to make that choice. Each has to decide whether he will be influenced by ambition or by party spirit, or the desire for popular favor or the fear of popular disfavor or the love of money, on the one side, or by the sense of duty on the other.

"So, in the last resort, the destiny of the Republic like the destiny of the individual, and in the case of an individual, character and destiny are the same thing, depends upon individual will. Will the individual will choose what is right and not what is wrong? Now this choice is largely affected by what we call strength of will, by that habit of the soul which enables men to adhere to its deliberate purposes and principles, formed when reason is unaffected by passion or by desire, against the pressure and excitement of an immediate demand; that character of will which, as Wordsworth says in his 'Happy Warrior'—

"'In the heat of conflict keeps the law
In calmness made, and sees what is foreseen.'

"The great single purpose of moral education must be to induce the will to adhere to its general, permanent and deliberately conceived purpose, in spite of the motives which appeal to it with special strength at the time of the choice of action. In other words, it is to give strength to resolution which will overcome the strength of temptation.

"To teach this to the youth of the Republic is the great duty of the university. The final purpose of all scholarship, as of all life, is character. If the university be the handmaid of science, science herself is but the handmaid of the soul. The lover of truth is but a poor serf if he do not know that in the great feudal system this is the sovereign before whom all truth, all science, all knowledge, all art, are but the chief vassals and officers of the court.

"The university must choose what she will teach her children, and her sons must choose whether they will learn and practice her lesson. Whether we accept the doctrine of the old theology, that everything that comes to man by descent comes of evil, and that neither man nor nation can escape an inexorable doom by putting off and trampling under foot the old Adam with his deeds, we must at least believe that the great virtues, justice, veracity, unselfishness, courage, lie at the foundation of all national and individual greatness. There is no such thing as a title in any nation by inheritance to be called the chosen people of God, or as a race doomed by God to be the subjects or dependents of any other. To the larger and surer vision there is no such thing as fortune. Justice and freedom are the parents of fate. Where those are we have no need to concern ourselves with what the day may bring forth. The product of the ages will be secure. The cosmic result will be the same, whatever the daily event may be. It is to this that it is the office of the university to be a perpetual witness to the youth of America. It will be their fault if they do not make their country its perpetual witness to mankind.

BIG ONES BARRED

Cannon Fire Crackers to Be Cut Out This Fourth.

City Authorities Think They Are Too Dangerous For Use.

Cannon crackers are to be barred in Duluth's rapidly approaching Fourth of July celebration. Fires, runaways, accidents and general damage to life, happiness and property are assigned as the causes for the strenuous suppression of the big noise promoters.

It is probable that Mayor Hugo will issue a proclamation containing this injunction against the use of cannon crackers and the permits for the sale of fire works now being issued by the board of fire commissioners contain a provision prohibiting the sale of the big fellows.

This does not men that Duluth will have a quiet or inglorious Fourth, for the applications to sell fire works are heavier than in any former year and the various dealers throughout the city are getting in extra large stocks of noise makers and fire works.

The wholesale houses have had orders placed with them for the past five months by many local dealers and say that the present indications point to the sale of all supplies on hand.

The dealers approve of the mayor's stand against cannon crackers, saying they are dangerous to handle and an explosion from one of them would be likely to do untold damage.

Up to the present time there has been nothing proposed toward a general celebration of the Fourth, the chilly weather two years ago having seemingly killed the move for an annual and general celebration of the day.

MEETS AT ISHPEMING.

Lake Superior Mining Institute Gathers There.

Secretary A. J. Youngbluth, of the Lake Superior Mining Institute, has issued notices of the meeting of the institute to be held at Ishpeming and on the Marquette range, Tuesday, Aug. 18. The meeting was held here last year, and the members of the institute visited the mines of the Mesaba and Vermilion ranges and discussed questions of practical mining in session. There were over 200 present at the Duluth meeting.

The notices, which have arrived in Duluth and are in the hands of mining men, state that the people of Ishpeming are making elaborate preparations for the reception of the attendants at the institute.

Secretary Youngbluth asks for names of those who intend to read papers, and with the subjects, so they they may appear on the official program. Special trains will be employed in carrying the mining experts through their visits. It is likely there will be a large delegation from Duluth, and it is expected that even a larger attendance generally than there was here a year ago will mark the gathering on the Marquette range.

PRESIDENT OF BROWN

Gives Stinging Rebuke to Wealthy American Idlers.

Providence, R. I., June 17.—The Rev. Dr. W. H. P. Faunce, president of Brown university, former pastor of the Fifth avenue Baptist church, in New York city, which John D. Rockefeller and his son attended, delivered a scathing rebuke to the wealthy leisure class of this country in the baccalaureate sermon to the graduating class of Brown university.

Dr. Faunce said:

"The man who has no wish to serve his fellows, but only to use them, has no moral right to be here. He may shelter himself behind legal documents, behind the pride of birth o rthe insolence of office, but if he is not here as a willing, loyal servant, he is at odds with the universe, he is anti-social, anti-Christian and has no moral right to live.

"We see a rapidly growing leisure class in America who are tempted to interpret life as a series of rights without duties and pleasures without responsibilities. They conceal mental vacuity behind the arts of the caterer and upholsterer; contribute to society nothing more novel than a simian banquet and by lives of 'luxury and alimony' sow seeds of social revolt whose harvest their unwelcome children must surely reap."

FOR THE NORTH POLE.

Capt. Ammundsen's Expedition Starts From Norway.

Christiania, Norway, June 17.—The whaling ship Gjoa, with Capt. Amundsen's magnetic north pole expedition on board, sailed at midnight. It has been announced that the Amundsen expedition will first go to King William Land, on the east coast of Greenland, and will thence proceed for Bering strait. If Capt. Amundsen is able to follow the course projected it will take him almost across the pole.

MAY BREAK RECORD

Speedy Work Promised at Annual Fire Department Inspection.

Fire Board, City Officers and Insurance Men Witnesses.

On annual inspection tomorrow afternoon the Duluth fire department promises to make a great showing, and, possibly, establish new records.

The exercise will begin at No. 1 fire hall, on West First street, near Sixth avenue, shortly after 1 o'clock. All exhibitions will be under the personal direction of Chief Black. The board of fire commissioners and chief will have city officers and insurance men as their guests.

The quarters of the various companies will be inspected, and this inspection will be followed by the exhibition work. At headquarters there will be night and day hitches. In the night hitch all the firemen are in bed with clothing off and the horses are in their stalls.

The alarm is turned in and the time elapsing between the tap of the gong and the time the men are up, dressed, down the polls, have the horses hitched and apparatus moving, is the time that figures on the records. Last year several companies made the night hitch in about nine seconds.

Pompier work, which was almost a new feature last year, will be one of the most interesting exhibitions tomorrow. Men using only the pompier ladders will scale up five stories in height in remarkably short time.

An improvement that will be appreciated by those interested in the timekeeping of various events is a blank form program of the inspection, prepared by Secretary Nesbitt of the board of fire commissioners.

All fire halls will be inspected except Lakeside. The inspection will be first at headquarters. Then the party will go to No. 4 hall at Fourteenth avenue east and Third street. From there No. 4 hall, at Fourteenth avenue east and Second street, will be visited, and then the inspectors will return to No. 2 hall, at First street and Piedmont avenue. The West Duluth company will be visited last.

CROWD IS COMING

Two Big Excursions Will Reach Duluth on Thursday.

Will Be About 3000 Strangers In Town Till Sunday.

Two enormous excursions are due here tomorrow. The Omaha road will bring in the first of the excursionists from Mitchell, S. D., at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning, and about 500 are expected to be on the train.

The second trains will come over the Northern Pacific road from Wahpeton, Fergus Falls and intermediate cities, and will get in about 2:35 o'clock in the afternoon. It is expected that there will be 1700 people on the trains.

The third train will be an Omaha train at 9 o'clock tomorrow night which will bring pilgrims and sightseers from Nebraska points and Sioux City, Ia. It is estimated that there will be about 500 or 600 on that train.

The number of excursionists to come into Duluth and remain until Sunday night, will be in the neighborhood of 3000, and will swell the floating street population of Duluth and Superior to a noticeable degree.

A NEW POSITION.

Omaha Creates the Job of Tax Commissioner.

T. A. Polleys, assistant general attorney for the Great Western road, has resigned to take a position with the Omaha road as tax commissioner, and will take the position July 17.

The office of tax commissioner is a new one, and has been necessitated through the new laws in Wisconsin which provide for the taxation of railroad property on the ad valorem basis.

The Omaha road will feel the change in the methods of taxation in Wisconsin more than any other of the Minnesota roads, on account of the large amount of mileage it has in Wisconsin, and a new department was necessary to take care of this business.

No one would ever be bothered with constipation if everyone knew how naturally and quickly Burdock Blood Bitters regulates the stomach and bowels.

TO ESTABLISH HEADQUARTERS

Commercial Club to Open Bureau For the Excursionists.

The regular monthly meeting of the Commercial club will be held this evening beginning at 8 o'clock. It is urged that members make it a point to be on hand when the meeting opens so that the business to come before the club may be dispatched and an adjournment taken before a late hour.

At the last meeting of the club which was called to order by President McGonagle on time, a large number of important matters were discussed and the club adjourned shortly after 9 o'clock.

The Commercial club will establish excursion headquarters in the Cook building at 212 West Superior street Friday of this week, with a competent man in charge. This building was used as headquarters for the U. C. T. convention and is considered an excellent place on account of its central location. Besides directing the excursionists to places where they may find room and board the people in charge of the headquarters will be supplied with literature explanatory of the various points of interest about the city and the best means of reaching them. It will also be a circular of general information about the city.

SCENES OF CRIME

Associated Press Correspondent Allowed to Inspect Servian Palace.

Rooms Plainly Show Marks of the Awful Murder.

Belgrade, June 17.—The correspondent of the Associated Press today was allowed to inspect the palace in which King Alexander and Queen Draga were murdered.

The bedroom, which is finished in Empire style, remains in the same condition as when the king and queen fled from it on the approach of the assassins. French novels lie on the king's table, and the queen's toilet articles, perfumes and cosmetics, cover her dressing table. The costly silk bed coverings are full of bullet holes, the conspirators having shot wildly in all directions, through and under the bed, chairs and tables, in the efforts to find their victims. A simple wardrobe room leading directly from the bedroom was the scene of the final act in the drama. The apartment is lofty but scarcely seven feet wide and fifteen feet long and is furnished only with the great wardrobes.

The officers who attended the correspondent showed the latter the blood stained floor at one end of the room, where the king and queen fell, and the broken venetian shutter at the window through which their bodies were thrown to the ground below. A secret stairway leads through the floor to rooms in the south end of the palace. By this stairway the hapless couple might have attempted to escape but they were unable to do so, because the opening of this stairway was covered by a heavy chest. Escape, in any event would have been impossible as the soldiers who had surrounded the palace were so determined to kill the king and queen that they had even placed cannon in front of the palace and were prepared to destroy the building in the event of failing to find their prey.

Each of the three rooms between the vestibule and the bed chamber showed marks of the tragedy. Mirrors were shattered, pictures were shot through, the furniture was broken, there were bullet holes in the doors and in the oil portraits of the king, which were in every room, and most of the latter were otherwise mutilated. Contrary to the general understanding, but little effort had been made to renovate the apartments except where the carpenters were making two new doors to replace these which had been blown to pieces at the time the conspirators forced their way into the rooms occupied by the king and queen. The royal apartments were simply and tastefully furnished, chiefly in oriental style, and presented a homelike appearance. The interior of the palace might have been that belonging to a prosperous American.

The house of the king's adjutant, Lieut Petrovics, which was the first attacked, is even a greater wreck than the royal apartments in the palace. The entrance was completely destroyed by dynamite. The adjutant then escaped unhurt but he was killed later in the vestibule of the palace. A large bloodstain marks the spot where the officer died. It was in a bare, whitewashed room of the commandant's quarters, adjoining the palace in which Queen Draga's two brothers were shot while sitting on chairs, which bear marks of the bullets. The proceedings in the palace today showed the same absolute callousness which has characterized the actions and demeanor of everybody in Belgrade since the tragedy.

DETAILS OF MERGER

Of Western National Bank Into Bank of Commerce.

New York, June 17.—Details of the deal by which it is proposed to merge the Western National bank of the United States in New York into the National bank of Commerce, were made public today. Under the consolidation the capital stock of the Bank of Commerce will be increased from $10,000,000 to $25,000,000 by issuance of 150,000 additional shares, 125,000 of which will be used to acquire the Western National after that bank has increased its capital to $12,500,000. Following the acquisition of the Western national, a dividend of at least 50 per cent will be paid to holders of the bank of commerce stock, 25,000 shares of the new stock will be offered to the bank of commerce shareholders to the extent of 25 per cent of their holdings on the date named, at $140 per share.

The directors of the consolidated bank will be increased so as to embrace the directors now on the boards of both banks. It is understood that Valentine P. Snyder, president of the Western National, will be selected for the presidency of the consolidated bank.

HAS NOTHING TO WITHDRAW

Premier Balfour Will Stand By His Tariff Speech.

London, June 17.—In the course of questions regarding the new fiscal proposals in the house today, the liberal leader, Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman, obtained leave to move the adjournment of the house in order to discuss a point arising from the reply which the premier made to Sir Henry in the house June 11. The latter on that occasion called attention to the dispatch of Vice Admiral Rawson, governor of New South Wales, to Colonial Secretary Chamberlain supporting the secretary's preferential trade proposals.

The premier of New South Wales, Sir Henry, pointed out has since telegraphed that the declaration which he referred to in his dispatch was contained in the speeches of Mr. Balfour and Mr. Chamberlain and the Liberal leader invited the premier to telegraph to the government of New South Wales, "a correction of its misapprehension." Mr. Balfour replied that he had nothing to withdraw or to modify in the speech referred to. The debate on this matter will come up tonight.

Batteries—Pilinger and Moran; Garvin and Ahearn. Umpire—O'Day.

AMERICAN LEAGUE.

(Morning game.)—Cleveland won the Bunker Hill day forenoon game by bunching hits, aided by a wild throw to first by Gibson, who pitched well. Moore was invincible when hits meant runs. The batting of Parent and Hickman and the fielding of LaJoie were the features. Attendance 6344. Score:

Boston	0	0	1
Cleveland	3	8	3

Batteries—Gibson and Smith; Moore and Abbott. Umpire—Connolly.

MUST COME DOWN

Board Will Now Enforce Removal of Signs on Sidewalks.

Practice of Sweeping Into the Street to Be Stopped.

Advertising signs, that obstruct sidewalks, must go.

"A wicked and perverse generation shall look for a sign and shall not find one," after next week.

For several weeks there has been a lively fight on between the board of public works and a number of leading merchants that wish to retain their advertising signs on the outer edge of the Superior street sidewalk.

The board declined to modify an order for the removal of these signs and the merchants appealed to the council, saying that particularly those signs that carried clocks were a great benefit to the general public.

The council declines to interfere with the order of the board of public works and the matter is again up to the board. It was announced this morning that the offending signs would have to come off the curb space and intimated that if the owners of these advertising mediums did not take the initiative steps toward this it would be necessary for the city to cause their removal.

Another offense that is to be fought by the city is the sweeping of dust, dirt and filthy water from store buildings out onto Superior street. This is charged up to janitors and employes rather than proprietors of stores, but the matter will be taken up with the proprietors.

It is claimed that the janitors of some buildings evidently consider the main business street a public dumping ground and it is a constant practice morning and during the day to shoot the refuse from the store onto the streets.

HAD ENOUGH OF LAKE LIFE

Young University Man Jumps Job as Second Cook.

Wearied from days spent in washing dishes and nights spent in seasickness, a young sophomore of the university of Kentucky landed in Duluth yesterday from the steamer Rees on which he had shipped at Ashtabula as second cook. The young man is a son of a wealthy business man of Ashtabula, and shipped for the trip up the lakes for the sake of the experience. He intends to leave Duluth for the West within a few days.

He had some difficulty in securing his wages for the trip up the lakes, the captain claiming that the young man had shipped for the round trip, and refusing to pay the money until the boat had again reached Ashtabula. The federal authorities were appealed to, however, and the young man received his money.

"We have a number of similar cases each year," said Frank Howard, local agent of the Lake Seamen's union. "The boys ship at the lower lake ports for some position that requires no training, merely for the sake of a summer outing on the lakes and the novel experience it gives them. The vessels, of course, are required in most cases to carry union crews, but in such cases as this we often have no union men who have applied for the position, and the captains are compelled to take anyone they can get. After reaching Duluth the boys generally work their way to North Dakota in some manner, where they put in from a week to a month or two in the wheat fields during harvest time, earning some pocket money for the winter term at college. This is the first case I have heard of this year, however, and it is a little earlier in the season than we generally see them here."

TARIFF REFORM CLUB

Has Voted to Wind Up Its Social Affairs.

New York, June 17.—At a stormy meeting of the Reform club, Twenty-seventh street and Fifth avenue, it has been voted to wind up the affairs of the organization socially, and to revert to the original tariff reform basis. The club was founded about sixteen years ago to further "tariff reform." A social side also was planned and the club purchased a home. The membership became large, but lately fell off, and it was decided to sell the house. A balance of more than $50,000 was left, and the younger element fought hard for the continuance of the organization, maintaining that for the past five years not a single tariff discussion had been heard in the club house, and that it should be held together as a social club. The tariff question, they declared, is a "dead issue." The original resolution carried, however, and the money on hand will be devoted to the issuance of tariff literature, only nominal club quarters being maintained.

AT WEST DULUTH

The June weddings are reported in large numbers in West Duluth this year. Several have already occurred during the month, and two were solemnized during the past twenty-four hours.

Miss Nellie T. Sullivan, of West Duluth, was married this morning at 9 o'clock, at the St. James Catholic church to Thomas Keefe, of Ashland. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Father Feehely, who sang high mass.

Miss Katherine Sullivan, the sister of the bride, acted as bridesmaid, and Daniel Keefe, of Appleton, Wis., a brother of the groomsman, acted as best man.

The bride was a member of the Immaculate Conception of Sodality of St. James Catholic church, and the decorations were in charge of the sister members. This is the fourth time this year that the young ladies of this society have been called upon to attend the wedding of one of their member.

The decorations were of cream and white, the colors of the society, and were very prettily arranged.

The church was crowded with friends of the young couple, who will leave this afternoon for a wedding tour, after which they will make their home in Ashland, where the groomsman is the district manager of the Wisconsin Telephone company.

The bride is well known in West Duluth and will leave a host of friends behind her here.

Miss May Larson and Harvey Myer, both well known young people in West Duluth, were quietly married yesterday afternoon by Father Feehely at the parsonage. The young couple intend to make their future home in West Duluth.

DEATH BY DROWNING.

Abner Cameron Lost His Life Through Aiding His Friend.

Abner Cameron, an engineer, aged 26, who resided at 516 South Sixty-fourth avenue west, was drowned yesterday while bravely trying to rescue Humphrey Jones, Jr., from a similar death.

A party, composed of John and William Kellar, William Connelly, Humphrey Jones, Jr., and Cameron were fishing opposite West Duluth, about sixty feet from the Wisconsin shore. Jones and Kellar were together in one boat, while the other three members of the party had another skiff. The boat in which Jones and Kellar were seated struck a pile and capsized, sinking almost immediately. The two occupants jumped for the other boat, which was also capsized by the action, and the five men were struggling in the water. Connelly and Cameron, who were closest to Jones, noticed that he seemed to be in difficulty, and went to his aid. Connelly reached him first and succeeded in helping him to the shore. The Kellars had also reached the bank in safety, but when they turned they saw Cameron throw up his hands and sink.

The party immediately came to West Duluth and reported the matter to the police. A searching party, composed of M. J. Filiatrault, Lieut. Briggs, Patrolman Butchard and John Rowe, stepfather of the drowned man, was formed and the body was recovered after a few minutes' work with the grappling hooks.

Coroner Boyer last evening pronounced death to be due to accidental drowning.

A NOVEL RACE.

A novel race will be witnessed by West Duluthians on July 4. Three well known men in town, who have had the misfortune to suffer the loss of limbs by accidents, will be matched against each other in a race of 100 yards for a prize of $10. A consolation prize of $2 will be given the loser, while the second man will get nothing. The names of the men are: James Sullivan, Henry Butler and John Peterson. Mr. Butler and Mr. Peterson have cork legs, while Mr. Sullivan walks on crutches.

The race will be but one of many which are being arranged for July 4. The coming holiday promises to be a notable one if the weather man does what is expected of him. A good program of sports and fireworks is being arranged for and the usual procession will be held.

The barbers of West Duluth met last evening and decided to remain closed throughout the day in spite of the fact that it comes on Saturday. The merchants of the town will also observe the holiday.

Fourteenth Convention of United Norwegian Lutheran Church Begins.

Rev. P. G. Ostby, of Emmors, Minn., Preaches Opening Sermon.

The fourteenth annual meeting of the United Norwegian Lutheran church of America opened at the High School this morning, with a large attendance.

Delegates began to arrive on yesterday's trains, coming in all during the day and increasing in numbers when the evening trains came in. Many more arrived this morning, and they still continued to come during the day.

The local committees entered upon the work of entertaining them at once and with a heartiness that soon had them all placed at hotels or in private houses.

When the hour for opening of the convention came the delegates flocked to the High School building, where the opening session was held this morning.

Rev. P. G. Ostby, of Emmons, Minn., preached the opening sermon on 1 Cor. xiii, 1-8: "Though I speak with the tongues of men and of angels, and have not charity, I am become as sounding brass, or a tinkling cymbal," etc.

Rev. Ostby, whose age and appearance entitle him to be styled one of the patriarchs of his church, spoke with remarkable vigor and fervor, saying in part:

"The most important of God's attributes is love; it underlies and pervades all others. It is also the virtue of all virtues among men. Christ himself held that even the power to expel devils is inferior to the power of love.

"A tramp asks you for aid. You take pains to find out whether he is worthy of your aid. If you come to the conclusion that he is unworthy, that he spends his money in sin, you refuse him. And you consider yourself an eminently wise and good man. But even though you throw a quarter to him in a reluctant spirit, what virtue is there in your action? Suppose God had withheld his salvation from you because you were unworthy? This idea about aiding the worthy poor is unbiblical. I never read anything in the Bible about giving to the worthy and turning a cold shoulder to the unworthy and vicious.

FORMAND DAHL,
Head of United Norwegian Lutheran Church.

The speaker also inculcated the necessity of active charity, of a broad Christian sympathy, in all ordinary walks of life. Charity has this unique excellency, that it not only makes its possessor happy in all tribulations in this world, but that it shall also constitute the chief element of the bliss which is in store for those who inherit life everlasting beyond the grave.

Rev. I. T. Bursett, of Fort Dodge, Iowa, and Rev. M. Flnstad, of Stordal, Todd county, Minn., also participated in the services.

Immediately after the services Formand Dahl stepped to the front of the platform and announced the opening or the fourteenth annual meeting of the United church in the same of the Father, of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost. The formand also invoked God's blessing upon the proceedings of the meeting, and admonished its members to be in attendance as regularly as possible and to avoid needless disturbance during the sessions.

Rev. N. B. Thvedt, in behalf of the United Church congregations of this city, extended a hearty welcome to the annual meeting. He called attention to the splendid quarters which had been thrown open to the United Church and gave some practical hints as to the manner in which the high school building and the grounds ought to be used. Many a lover of the much-discussed weed was made happy by the announcement that smoking will be allowed in the basement of the building. Soft drinks are also sold in the building.

Formand Dahl appointed the following to serve as a committee on credentials: Rev. P. Tangjerd, of Eau Claire; Rev. O. H. Lee, Milwaukee; Rev. A. Ofstedal, Perlle, Minn.; Mr. Adolf Larson, Chicago, and C. Raugeland, Minneapolis.

This committee reported at 3 o'clock in the afternoon.

The Augsburg Publishing house, which is owned by the United Church, occupies a whole classroom, where thousands of books and pamphlets are on exhibition. This department is in charge of E. W. Waideland and A. J. Anderson.

Professor P. H. P. Rydning, of St. Paul, presides at the organ.

The accommodations at the high school are such as to elicit exclamations of admiration from all quarters and the members say that never in all its history did the United Church strike such a suitable assembly room for its annual meeting.

The members of the convention have already commenced to clamor for a steamboat excursion. Many of those who attend this meeting had that in mind when they decided to go so far away from home.

Some one suggested that this matter be taken up for discussion this afternoon and some definite arrangements are certain to be made for a steamboat excursion.

Justly or unjustly, Duluth is famous for its spells of Arctic climate even in the warmer season, and many are the strangers in town who made overcoats a regular part of their outfit when they left home.

When they found it as warm as summer this morning they thought their pains had been for nothing but when the northeast wind sprang up at noon, they congratulated themselves.

The Charity Ball.

The Lyceum theater promises to be packed Friday afternoon at the matinee of "The Charity Ball," and Duluth will be represented by hundreds at the evening performance at the Grand Opera house, Superior.

Society will be out in force at both performances. The gowns to be worn in the second act of the piece, the night of the charity ball at the Metropolitan theater, New York, will be a treat for the ladies. One of the ladies of the East will display over $50,000 worth of jewels in this act.

Master Harry Hayden, the little son of Mr. and Mrs. R. F. Hayden, will play Cain, the street urchin. Master Hayden is a wonderfully clever child-actor, and he will have two great scenes with Miss Frankenfield in the first act.

Leslie Hubbell, who has done so many good things here, in a dramatic way, has, in the part of Judge Knox, will afford the best opportunity he has had. Seats for the evening performance may be reserved by 'phone at Draper's drug store, Superior, and they will be held until called for before the performance.

FINED FOR CONTEMPT.

J. W. Roscoe's Tardiness Gets Him Into Trouble.

Although a bullet from his gun clipped the mustache off the face of J. Van Glasser while deer hunting last fall, a jury in the municipal court yesterday acquitted J. W. Roscoe of any criminal carelessness in the third degree.

The shooting occurred in Solway on Nov. 19 last, and the jurymen, after hearing the evidence, could not find that the defendant was any more guilty of contributory negligence than the plaintiff.

However, Roscoe was somewhat late in arriving in court for the afternoon session and he was fined $17 for contempt.

WIDOW GETS DOWER

Even After Sharing In Distribution of Estate.

Helena, Mont., June 17.—Chief Justice Brantley delivered the opinion of the supreme court in the case of Anna Dahlman against Emil Dahlman from a decision of the district court for Jefferson county. Suit was brought by the plaintiff as the widow of Henryl Dahlman for the purpose of having alloted to her her dower rights in the estate of her husband.

The estate consisted of a large amount of real and personal property, a portion of the real estate being in mines which at the time of Dahlman's death and since that time have been paying dividends. The funds accumulated from that source amount to $4664, and are now in the hands of the administrator.

In the lower court it was held that by virtue of her participation in the distribution of the estate as the heir of her husband she thereby waived her right of election to take one-half of the residue of the estate as dower under the provisions of the civil code. The lower court was reversed, thus establishing the unique precedent that a widow can claim her dower even after having shared in the distribution of the estate. Dahlman was one of the state's wealthiest mining men.

APPOINTMENTS

By President to Become Effective In Future.

Washington, June 17.—After a conference with the president today, Secretary Moody announced the following appointments, all of the appointees being from New York:

Capt. Charles W. Rae, to be chief of the bureau of steam engineering, upon the retirement of George M. Melville, in August next.

Pay Director Henry T. B. Harris, to be paymaster general, upon the retirement of Rear Admiral A. S. Kenny, this month.

Lieut. Col. George F. Elliot, to be commandant of the marine corps when Maj. Gen. Charles Heywood retires, next fall.

TROLLEY CAR MEN STRIKE.

Richmond, Va., June 17.—The long-expected strike of trolley car men for higher wages, was called a little after 3 o'clock this morning. It ties up the system in Richmond, Manchester and Petersburg. Not a car is running. The company expects to have men here by tomorrow to take out the cars. There has been no disorder.

TRAVELER A PRISONER.

Tangier, Morocco, June 17.—Walter B. Harris, the traveler and author, who was a member of Sir Arthur Nicolson's special British embassy to the sultan of Morocco last year, is a prisoner of the moutaineers at Zeenat, the headquarters of the bandit, Raisuli. Government troops attacked the place yesterday, burning many farms, but they did not succeed in rescuing Mr. Harris.

THE DULUTH JULY FAIR AND CARNIVAL

Purchases Nos. 6 and 7---the greatest of them all!

12,000 pieces (1000 dozen) Neckwear

Words, descriptions, all the talk we could crowd into an entire newspaper page, would fail to adequately portray the hundreds of varieties in this astounding purchase and sale. As to values, we are positively selling every day, have sold hundreds of dozens this season (and they were bargains at that) for 15c now going at 1c, for 25c now going at 5c, for 40c now going at 10c, for 85c now going at 15c.

Stocks, turnovers, automobiles, golf stocks and ties, Windsors, club ties, string ties, neck ruffs. Made of linens, silks, Jap. silks, chiffons, piques, velvets, laces. Exquisite embroidered pieces in contrasting colors. Art needle work in the daintiest effects. White, black, high colors, delicate tints. The entire range of this season's fashionable neckwear is to be found in this lot, and the highest price you can pay for the best pieces is only 15c.

Three bargain counters loaded with them. Extra space and extra salespeople in the regular neckwear section have been secured. We expect the biggest crowd the Glass Block has held since Christmas eve. And if the women of Duluth knew half what we know about the wonderful values, the entire six stories of this big store would fail to hold the crowds that would clamor for these neckwear values unheard of heretofore!

THE BRIDGE FELL

Several Persons Are Seriously Hurt at Eau Claire, Wis.

Bridge Approach Gave Way Precipitating Crowd Twenty-Five Feet.

Eau Claire, June 17.—A long section of the Madison bridge approach went down under the weight of between 150 and 200 people at 9:30 o'clock last night. Six persons were seriously, probably fatally injured. Twenty-five or thirty others were less seriously injured.

The accident occurred during an illumination of the street carnival booths along the main streets of the city and hundreds of people had gone to the bridge to watch the illumination from this vantage point. Suddenly, without a moment's warning, a section of the approach, forty feet in length, sank. Instantly all was confusion. Calls were sent in for doctors and policemen to help carry away the injured.

It was thought for a time that the entire bridge, with its load of humanity, had gone down, carrying hundreds to death in the waters of the Chippewa river.

The illumination was ended at once, and every aid that the city could give was extended to the suffering. The section of the bridge which collapsed had dropped its 200 sightseers twenty-five feet into a bank of sand and debris on the river bank.

For a half hour the bank was a confused heap of women, children and men. Some were moaning, with their arms or legs fractured or suffering with the pain of serious or possibly fatal injuries. Those who were less seriously injured and those who were so fortunate as to escape uninjured, helped the police carry away their unlucky friends.

The most seriously injured were: Miss Jennie Kramer, face cut and rib broken; Mrs. J. R. Wilson, bruised and cut; John Jacobson, bruised and internally injured; Hazel Roche, of Altoona, cut and bruised; Mrs. Frank Hawker, badly; Mrs. Wallace and two children, each internally injured and bruised; Miss Grace Smith, right wrist fractured; —— Everson, left arm broken; wife of Dr. Brooks, elbow fractured and dislocated, hip hurt and eyes injured; daughter of Dr. Brooks, knee hurt; woman at Lampher institute, leg broken and back hurt; Mrs. Adams, Mrs. G. P. Cild, Emil Rasmussen, aged 12, internally and Mrs. Frank Hanson.

DECIDE TO PAY FINES

Freight Handlers Will Not Languish In Jail—Clarke Taken Away.

Thomas Doran, T. Callahan, Michael Morrison and H. E. Pomeroy, four of the striking freight handlers, who were indicted for rioting and who pleaded guilty to unlawful assemblage, paid their fines yesterday and were released from the county jail. David Wright, the other freight handler, paid his fine when Judge Dibell passed sentence last week.

All of the men, except Pomeroy, were fined $100 or given the alternative of ninety days in the county jail. The defendant, Pomeroy, has a family and the court was disposed to be more lenient with him, fixing the penalty in his case at $25 or twenty-five days in the county jail. The court imposed the maximum penalty on four of the men.

Charles L. Clarke, formerly of Hibbing, who pleaded guilty to appropriating some of the funds of the water department of that town and who was sentenced last week to serve four years and nine months in the state penitentiary, was taken to that institution yesterday afternoon by Deputy Sheriff Randall. Clarke, who is still under thirty years of age, feels the disgrace of his position, but says that as soon as his term of imprisonment expires he will go to some new country and start life over again.

It is expected that the greater part of the other persons sentenced to the penitentiary or the state reformatory at St. Cloud, will be taken to those respective institutions some time before the end of this week.

FOR CARNIVAL QUEEN.

Contest Now Fairly Under Way With Three Candidates.

Interest is becoming keener in the result of the carnival queen contest as the time for the big July carnival and fair approaches. Although there are but three avowed candidates in the field at the present time, it is expected that after some of the local lodges meet this week and next other young ladies will be endorsed for the honors as carnival queen. The winner of the voting contest to receive a handsome $500 piano.

Not all the votes out have yet been turned in to the carnival management, where the vote up to last evening stood as follows:

Miss Margaret Campbell 680
Miss Mabel McDonald 540
Miss Minnie Schultz 20
Total 1240

Miss McDonald has the advantage of the endorsement of several of the local organizations, including the Trades and Labor assembly, the Plumbers' union, the Boss Horse Shoers' union, the Lithographers' union and the Cooks' and Waiters' unions.

Miss Schultz has already received the endorsement of the imperial council of the Modern Samaritans.

Miss Campbell, while not endorsed by any of the local organizations, has shown good evidence of he hustling abilities in vote getting and up to last evening had the lead in the contest.

WILL VISIT NORWAY.

J. J. Moe to Make Trip to His Old Home.

J. J. Moe, the prominent West End merchant, will leave tomorrow for a trip to his old home in Norway, which he has not visited in many years.

Mr. Moe will go via New York, spending several days there en route, making purchases for the coming season. He will take passage from New York to Hamburg, and will visit several of the more important German cities, including Berlin, where he will buy goods for the fall trade.

From Berlin Mr. Moe will go directly to Norway, where he expects to spend about a month and a half, returning via London and Paris and reaching New York about Sept. 1. He will spend a week or two in New York and other Eastern cities on his return, completing his purchases.

During Mr. Moe's absence the business will be left in charge of his two sons, Waldemar and Alfred, with the assistance of A. O. Anderson, the advertising manager, and a reliable force of department managers.

AN IMPORTANT CONVENTION.

A national convention is meeting in Duluth today. The United Norwegian Lutheran church of America opened its fourteenth annual convention at the High School building and the sessions will continue for eight days. Several hundred delegates are already in attendance and before the week is out the number is expected to reach 1000.

Among the Duluth members of the faith represented in the body which is convening here, there has been a lively interest for some weeks and plans for the entertainment of the guests have been made. They are anxious that the stay of the delegates in Duluth may be pleasant and profitable and in this they should find the co-operation of every Duluthian.

The conventions have always heretofore been held at points considered more central, and the selection of Duluth as the meeting place this year was a testimonial to the growing importance which the city at the head of Lake Superior is attaining, a recognition which should not be allowed to pass unnoticed by its citizens.

The United Norwegian Lutheran church of America is the largest Scandinavian organization outside the mother country. Its churches are spread all over the United States, but are more numerous in the Middle West and Northwest, and hence the delegates here are mostly from Minnesota, Wisconsin, the two Dakotas, Kansas, Nebraska, Michigan and Iowa, though the South and far West have sent a few. Had all the accredited delegates been able to come to Duluth the number would have reached 3000. The membership of the churches in the organization agregates more than 250,000. Within the state of Minnesota the church has two fine educational institutions, the United Church seminary at St. Anthony Park, and St. Olaf's college at Northfield. At Madison, Wis., the church also has a normal school. During the past three years, $200,000 has been raised for new buildings for these institutions. An endowment fund of $120,000 for the support of theological teachers has also been raised and the interest on it goes toward that end.

Other churches than the Lutheran are showing much interest in the meeting in Duluth. Next Sunday some of the pulpits in Duluth will be occupied by leading men of the convention.

The importance of the gathering and the interests represented by its delegates entitles them to receive the best that Duluth can give. The hospitality of the Zenith City should be extended in its fullest measure, and the guests made to feel that Duluth is an ideal convention city and be minded to come again.

COMMISSIONER GREENE.

The Herald extends congratulations to Henry F. Greene on his appointment by President Roosevelt as a member of the civil service commission. It is a high honor, especially in view of the importance which, it is well known, the president attaches to the work of the commission. That Mr. Greene is well qualified by training and study for this position will be generally acknowledged by all his friends. It is the first time that any Duluthian has been selected for an office of equal importance in the federal service at Washington. Congressman Bede is also deserving of congratulations for his success in landing the appointment for Mr Greene, without the endorsement of the Minnesota senators.

NO DOMINANT RELIGION.

The great diversity of religions in the United States and the rapid growth of new organizations which have sprung up in comparatively recent years, causes the natural query as to which will become dominant in the future. Mark Twain sees in Christian Science the force that is to rule and Bishop Quigley in a sermon preached recently in Chicago sees a like future for the Roman Catholic church. The New York Mail and Express places little faith in these predictions and makes a pertinent suggestion. "The trouble with the predictions of these gentlemen," the Mail and Express says, "is that neither one of them is founded on common sense and the teachings of history. People have changed their religions before now, but not radically, their changes being more a matter of form than of anything else; and no civilized modern people has ever learned to profess a faith which was not in close accordance with its essential character, its fixed predilections, its inheritance and its habits."

There have been several rapid rises of certain religious communions in the United States—those, for instance, of the Methodists, the Baptists, the Christians or the Adventists, the Disciples, Campbellites, the Latter Day Saints and the Christian Scientists; and the Roman Catholic church has grown to great numbers and influence. But the development of each of these Protestant sects has been more a change of name than anything else. As for the Roman Catholic church, that is absolutely an importation and nothing else. It does not quite keep up with the natural growth of the elements which have come from Catholic countries. If it should ever exceed that growth, it will cease to be Roman in at least an equal proportion to that in which it exceeds it.

There will always be a diversity of religions in America. Some sect will have the largest number of members, but it will never become dominant in a literal sense.

The statue of ex-Speaker Henderson to be erected in an Iowa town, represents the speaker with a gavel in his hand, bossing the house, and resting on a crutch. It will puzzle posterity why it was ever erected.

THE VETERANS OUT OF POLITICS.

The day of the old soldier as a political factor is fast passing, and the civil war veteran will not figure much longer in the calculations of the managers of any political party. This is largely because there are now but few offices or appointments that can be offered to the veterans in exchange for their votes. The civil service laws have largely killed the spoils system, and with but few of the old soldiers under the age of 60 who hanker for office, the opportunities for putting the G. A. R. men in office are rapidly growing less.

"Private" Dalzell, in a letter to the Washington Post, comments on these rapidly changing conditions. He admits that for forty years the soldiers have had their share of offices, but says that the tide has turned and the vets will cut but little figure even in the next presidential campaign. He writes: "I am not at all surprised, that, politically, this condition, which is a little hard on veterans, is good for the whole country, because of the fact that it has put the soldier element clear out of politics. For forty years we have been made the playthings of the politicians seeking office by our votes. They have been promising us almost everything and doing a little all these years to secure our votes. This they will do no more; that little game is played out, now that the soldiers know that civil offices are closed against them forever. They cannot expect an appointment, even as laborers or messengers until they pass the impossible civil service examination in competition with able-bodied young men fresh from school and college. Congress, little by little, has narrowed the circle down until now no soldier can possibly get into any department, no matter what the demagogues may preach to get our votes. Congress has closed the doors and bolted and barred them against all soldiers from now on. Of course, there may be an exception in the case of a soldier who was but a boy in 1865, and saw no service and is still sound in body and well up in his books. Such a one may yet gain admittance, but for one such there are a thousand whose ages, wounds, disabilities and lack of education shut them out. We may as well realize it, and not be blind to the laws congress has framed to exclude the soldiers especially."

"Private" Dalzell seems inclined to take a pessimistic view of present conditions although it must be admitted that many of his views are sound. But after all, is not the soldier much better off to be absolutely independent in the matter of politics? Undoubtedly he is, and, the majority of the veterans will so agree.

OUR WATER RESOURCES.

The water resources of the different sections of the country are a most important factor for many reasons. There are many things besides the value of water for drinking purposes that enter into its consideration and it is a sign of advancement that a more thorough analysis is being made in various directions to determine the value of the waters of the country. Taking the country as a whole the essential characteristics of the waters that are now, or at some time in the future may be used for domestic supply or in locomotive boilers, are very little known, except within limited areas. In the eastern part of the country, where the population per square mile is largest, chemical surveys have been made that have yielded information of great value. Many railroads in the United States maintain chemical laboratories. The results of the analyses of water found along the various rights-of-way furnish a clear conception of the character of the available waters along these narrow lines. The work involved in a chemical survey, however, as it has been carried on in the past, is necessarily expensive and exceedingly slow and there has been great need of rapid and practical field methods, whereby a large number of analyses can be made at small cost. The work of making all the determinations that are usually considered necessary in chemical analyses would, in the wide area covered by the United States, be so expensive as to be well nigh impracticable, but it is reasonable to believe that, out of the many determinations usually made in such analyses, a few important ones can be selected which shall bear such a relation to the whole that they will give a clear insight into the character of the waters tested.

The United States geological survey is now considering these points with especial reference to the possibility of devising methods of determining which can be carried on in the field and which shall be sufficiently accurate for most purposes. The experience of the survey thus far is that a large number of determinations of approximate accuracy are, in the aggregate, far more useful than a few determinations made according to the refined methods. Acting along these lines the survey has endeavored to interest the attention of various chemists in the country in this matter and a widespread discussion has been carried on concerning the most useful determination and the most advantageous means by which rapid and approximately accurate results can be reached. The opinions of these chemists are being collected, and from them there is in process of construction a scheme by which large areas can be chemically surveyed. These inquiries cover the organic as well as the inorganic determinations, and therefore the scope of the work will be such as to meet the needs of those interested in domestic water supply as well as of those who are seeking information concerning the best water for use in boilers.

Sooner or later a practical scheme for the work will be evolved and the results will be of almost incalculable value.

Minister Bowen is said to be after an ambassadorship. He feels that the prominence which he attained in the Venezuelan embroglio entitles him to something better than he has now. It is more than likely that he will get it, for it is understood that the president has a high regard for his ability. Mr. Bowen has a leave of absence for two months, and it is not thought that he will go back to Castro's capital. The mission to Mexico has been suggested as the one which Mr. Bowen may ultimately receive. There is one obstacle in the way of sending him to Mexico. Powell Clayton is the present ambassador to that country, and he shows no disposition to retire. All things considered, the Mexican post is the most lucrative one in the diplomatic service, for the pay is large and the expenses are small. At all events it is evident that Bowen stands well with the administration and that everything possible will be done for his advancement.

Perhaps Postmaster General Payne will secure another "reply" from Perry Heath, this time to the report by the civil service commission that "the department used the Washington postoffice for political and personal purposes."

Had Miss Swift, daughter of a Chicago packer, not jilted a penniless prince, she might be queen of Servia today.

Although Governor Odell and Senator Platt are both agreed on Low for the New York mayoralty, it is evident the neither of them wants him.

HOTEL GOSSIP.

Another party of home seekers came through Duluth this morning, of whom three were young women, the Misses Bickford, Kate S. Thayer and C. E. Palmer.

The members of the party, under the direction of the Minnesota Cruising company, will hie towards Koochiching, to take up property which they will have in their own names about the time the water power question is settled up there, and the town begins to boom.

There are ten or twelve in the present party, and they follow a party of nineteen, which went up into that country about a week or ten days ago. It is estimated that there will be in the neighborhood of 100 or 150 settlers guided to valuable homes in that country before the summer is over.

The folks who come up on this excursion left on the 10 o'clock boat for Grand Marais this morning, and will go from there to the International Falls country overland.

Indian Agent S. W. Campbell, accompanied by Mrs. Campbell and his secretary, R. G. Rodman, and the latter's mother, Mrs. Rodman, were at the St. Louis hotel last evening and this morning. They left on the 10 o'clock boat for Grand Marais, and will visit the Indians along the north shore of Lake Superior, on a regular inspection tour.

The night clerk sighed and looked excessively "tired." He had but one bell boy, and there had come a dozen calls for ice water from above.

Result—soliloquy:

"What in the name of (editorial censure prohibits) does a man want of ice water?

"The way people go after ice water will drive me to the nut factory. They don't know what they're up against. That ice business shows they must be full of foolish powders.

"The water out of the hydrants in Duluth is the purest in the world, and it is just the right temperature for a man to drink.

"That don't suit your wise gazabe. He has got to have a piece of dirty ice that they cut out on the bay where the sand blows on it, and gets it all dirty.

"If they keep on drinking it long enough they'll get sandmorbitis.

"My talk don't have any weight with a whole lot of these people, but if you put this in the paper, maybe a few of the live ones will get on to themselves and discover that the only difference between ice water and good old hydrant water, is that the hydrant water isn't adulterated Lake Superior water and the ice water is."

Isn't the night clerk the saucy thing?

"Mrs. B. LaVigne and Nap. LaVigne, Eveleth," is the way it appears on the St. Louis register.

Mrs. and Mr. LaVigne came last evening.

They are the shortest married couple in this part of the state.

Not short of money, nor is the time short since they have been married.

They are just short. Both look like school children, and the people who see them say:

"Goodness gracious, ain't they cute?"

They are.

Mrs. and Mr. LaVigne have been calling on some friends about the city, and expect to make a short stay in Duluth.

In fact Mrs. LaVigne and husband are on a little vacation tour, and they are just visiting around to kill time.

Superintendent O. H. Gates of the Indian school at Tower is in the city again and at the Hotel McKay. He says he has all the cooks he needs, and has enough written applications now to last him the rest of the tenure of his office, even if it's for life.

The members of the Norwegian Lutheran conference have begun to arrive, and many are at the hotels from the western part of the state and The Dakotas. After today the ministers will be taken care of by members of the local congregations, to a large extent.

Reflections of a Bachelor.

New York Press: Necessity is the mother of invention and the grandmother of damnation.

Love's young dream goes to sleep under a sun bath; it awakens under a cool shower.

A woman gets almost as much enjoyment going to a funeral as a man does going to a horse race.

When a girl falls in love she feels the way a man does who has a dream that he has fallen heir to $50,000,000.

No woman feels another is her real friend unless she will confide something to her that will justify her in talking about her.

Man's mark is silence; woman's a smile.

Even more than church pews bath tubs promote Christianity.

When a man's friends have only good things to say of him it is a sign that he is dead.

Very few girls would like to get engaged if a trousseau did not go with the affair.

A woman likes to have kisses stolen from her so she can fight to take them back again.

Novelty In Tax Kicking.

Baltimore American: Havana has a simple yet picturesque way of protesting against particular taxes. When the theater were taxed more than they thought they ought to pay they promptly shut up till the tax was reduced. Now the drug stores there, on being taxed, shut up also. Going out of business by way of dramatizing a protest is sufficiently striking in itself, but when it comes to theaters and drug stores the situation becomes tragic.

Haste to the Wedding.

London Express: A good story is told showing the rapidity with which things move nowadays. A certain servant went to her mistress and gave notice.

"I'm going to be married, ma'am."

"To whom?" asked her mistress.

"Do you remember the funeral you allowed me to go to three weeks ago, ma'am? Well, I'm going to marry the husband of the corpse."

It subsequently transpired that the widower took a fancy to his fiancee, as "she was the only cheerful party there."

A DANISH SQUADRON ALSO.

Berlin, June 17.—The Tageblatt prints a dispatch from Kiel saying that a Danish squadron of warships will be there at the same time as the American-European fleet.

THE WEATHER.

United States Agricultural Department Weather Bureau, Duluth. Synopsis of weather conditions for the twenty-four hours ending at 7 a. m., (central time), June 17.—Light showers fell over portions of the lake region, Ohio valley, New York, Louisiana, Kansas, Colorado, Oregon and British Columbia. No storm centers of importance appear on the weather map this morning. Pressures are high over central states and the Pacific coast, while the barometer is relatively low over Montana and Lake Ontario. It is warmer in the Northwest and cooler over the southern lake region, Ohio valley, and middle Mississippi valley states. he winds in the lake region are mostly westerly and light to fresh in force.

LAUGHING REMARKS.

Yonker's Statesman: Gildeck—What I told Hobbs is a close political secret. He won't give it away.

Swifter—Not he; he'll sell it to the opposition.

Somerville Journal: Ten billions of pins are made in this country every year and still the young men will not keep away.

Detroit Free Press: Mistress—I hope you'll suit. I've had eleven cooks in the last three months.

Cook—That's nothing. I have had twice as many places.

Chicago Post: "I tried the plan of thinking twice before speaking," he said, "but it didn't work."

"No?"

"Well, hardly. Why, by the time I'd thought twice my wife had me roasted to a finish.

Chicago Tribune: "It ain't no figger of speech," commented the livery stable philosopher, "that justice is blind. Nothin' happens to the man that makes the toy pistol, the feller that sells it or the guy that buys it for his little boy, but the kid, who don't know no better, gits the punishment, that's comin' to all the others."

Philadelphia Press: Tess—I hear you're engaged to Mr. Slim.

Jess—That's true, true.

Tess—They tell me he's a pretty sharp young man.

Jess—He is especially about the knees, but that sharpness doesn't bother me, for he always puts a cushion on them for me.

Washington Star: "There's wan lucky thing about work," said Mr. Dolan.

"What's that?" inquired Mr. Rafferty.

"The fact that it's a gredded easier to lave off than it was to begin. If it won't fur that beautiful provision in nature we'd all be dead wid industhry."

THE NEW COURTSHIP.

Time was, before the Age of Tin,
Ere woman took to Bridge or Euchre,
When Love was deemed a deadly sin
To sully Love with thoughts of Lucre.
Gone are the good old rules and now
The times (in Walker's phrase) mutandis.

Our girls in every lover's vow
Detect the possible Levanter;
Each careless fragment you indite,
The simplest ode, the merest sonnet—
They keep it tight in black and white
And clasp a business label on it.
—London Punch.

YOUR DUTY.

Learn to labor, learn to give;
Learn to love and learn to live.
Equal use of brawn and brain,
Makes your labor ne'er in vain;
Wealth of health and strength it brings,
Riches oft denied to kings.
Learn to labor, hands so strong,
Your whole nature spurns all wrong;
Right makes might, and might in mind
Crowns the king on heights sublime.
Know the crown of greatest worth;
Know the royal robes of Earth,
None so splendrous, none so rare,
None more glorious can you wear,
Robes are they of God's own grace,
Pure, kind thoughts on a pure sweet face
Soul's reflection just and grand
Lit with love for fellowman.

Milk In the Canal Cocoanut.

Cleveland Plain Dealer: It is well that Uncle Sam has two strings to his Isthmian canal bow. If the negotiations with Colombia fall through a deal can be made for the Nicaragua route. This alternative comes more to the fore as Colombia continues to spar for time over ratifying the canal treaty. The milk in the cocoanut lies in the fact that certain Colombians think they see a chance for their government to pocket $40,000,000 or more, instead of the smaller sum agreed upon in the pending treaty. According to the terms of the extension the canal must be completed in 1905. Failing that, Colombia would succeed to the French company's rights and privileges and be at liberty to dispose of them as it saw fit. With a rich and eager purchaser at its elbow it is easy to see how this argument appeals to a country whose normal condition is bankruptcy.

Step Lively Now.

New York Tribune: All over the land the college commencements are awhirl, and the sweet boy graduates are standing with reluctant feet, uncertain whether they shall found libraries or empires.

Apportioning the Devilment.

Pittsburg Dispatch: President Olyphant blames the 30-cent advance in the price of coal upon "the devilishness of the miners." The other 20 cents, we infer, is attributable to the devilry of the operators.

Was a Missing Word Contest.

New York Tribune: Assistant Secretary Brigham, of the department of agriculture, has been telling this one the last week. An Irishman and a Scotchman had some words about which was the better man of the two. Both were persistent in taking a rather egotistical view of the subject, and each resented any suggestion to the contrary from the other side. Finally they decided upon a friendly bout to test the issue. It was agreed between them that when either had enough the one ready to give in should shout "enough." The bout began. It kept up with fluctuating tides of fortune and misfortune, until finally the Scotchman cried, "Sufficient." "Sufficient," repeated the man from the "ould country." "Sufficient is it you say! Begorra, that's the dommed word I've been thrying to think of for half an hour."

AUTO DE FE

By Martha M'Culloch-Williams

(Copyright, 1903, by Daily Story Pub. Co.)

Blair was an upright man—bearishly so, without a soft spot anywhere. Thus at least said those who knew him upon the outside. He had friends, yet but few, who might have told another story. They would have done it indeed but for knowing the telling would displease him. Nature meant him for neither an anchorite or a crusader. Fate, under the disguise of modern conditions, made him instead a literary critic, and gave him such rank that his word, good or ill, was accepted as of the weightiest.

So much in preface. At 12 o'clock upon a particularly dull and rainy Thursday night, Blair scrawled the last line of his weekly task, pushed away the pile of sheet, stretched himself hard, lighted a cigar, and lay back at ease in front of a red fire. Smoking rested him amazingly—what wonder he was nice to the degree of whimsicality in choice of his weeds? Latterly he had struck a brand particularly fragrant, more particularly soothing. Therefore it was with a mind and soul at ease he turned to fish out from the huddled books upon his desk a thin volume, staring red as to cover, and aggressively lettered in the cheapest gilt. He smiled a thought grimly as he touched it—yet ended by half-sighing. Between him and the scarlet book there drifted a vision—young Hurry's eyes, as he had said, half-shamedly, huddling the words, to hide the catch underneath: "Old man, I know friendship does not count with you against judgment—but if you love me, the least little bit, see only what is good in this—and over—look the bad."

Hurry was young—very young for 25. His steadfast unlikeness bound him to Blair. They were close comrades, notwithstanding the 20 years between. And Hurry, Blair knew very well, was fathoms deep in love with the pretty south-country girl, who had dared to come up to the city with no other weapons nor credentials than the thin gilt-lettered volume, and a bulky untidy manuscript. Chance had thrown her across Hurry's path. He had raved of her after the first meeting, then fell so suspiciously silent. Blair knew he was hard hit. It had not in the least astonished him—Hurry's appeal. He had answered it with his most leonine growl, knowing the while that he would grant it.

For Hurry had said of the book: "It's not a masterpiece—even I can see that. In places it is so bad it is unintentionally humorous. But there are bits, sometimes whole pages, that stir and thrill—you read them wondering how the hand that wrote them ever penned the rest of it. Of course, the thing is 'Printed for the author.' It smells all over of the county paper and the provinces. I fancy she put into it all the money she had. Kind compatriots bought most of the thousand copies—that's how she happens to be here, with a more important venture."

Blair hated cant, pretense, sham of every sort, but if he had a weakness it was for discovering people otherwise undiscovered, and setting them on their proper literary pinnacles. Besides, there was Hurry. His eyes were kind, almost indulgent, as he glanced down the opening page.

After the first three sentences, his brow knit. At the end of two paragraphs he shut his eyes, remembering hard. Then he read breathlessly to the chapter end, flung down the book, opened a secret drawer in his desk, and took out a thinnish yellow volume, whose title page proclaimed in bold letters that it had been "printed for private circulation" by a famous university press, a good many years before. For the next 20 minutes he read hard, now from one book, now the other. Then he kicked both across the room, and flung up his head, saying half aloud: "It is the impossible, not the unexpected, that happens. Miss Marie Jean Randolph, I shall see you tomorrow. You are not worth the trouble—but how else shall I save the lad?"

The very next afternoon, carefully dressed, and of most severe aspect, he sat in wait for Miss Randolph. Her boarding house was so dun and frowsy it could not choose but be intensely respectable. Blair was glad of the frowsiness—it fell in with his plan of impressing the girl he had come to see. An air of high fashion, and authority, he did doubt, would go down with her sooner than anything else. He wanted to save himself from being brutal, though brutal he would be, if Hurry's salvation depended on it.

"You are good to come, Mr. Blair—still I do not know whether or no I am glad to see you," someone said behind him. A tall girl, slim to angularness, with tiny hands and absurdly small feet, had slipped between the shabby portieres, and stood looking at him with big, appealing eyes that were set under arched brows, beneath a creamy forehead crowned by waves of burnished copper hair. Her mouth, not too small, and of a wholesome red, dimpled into a half smile as she went on: "My hurry said you would come. I thought you would not—"

"Why?" Blair asked. He still held her hand. Somehow the touch of it brought a sensation of snow and rose leaves. Her smile broadened delicately as she said:

"I feared you, who are so busy, would never have a minute to read my book."

"Your book?" Blair repeated, incisively. "Are you sure it is yours? The most part of what I read, I wrote myself—back in my college days."

"O! Are you Psammetticuss?" she cried, almost joyously. "Oh, think of meeting you, and telling you myself how I love what you wrote—how I loved it from the very first? Our minister lent it to me—he said he was in college with the writer. It fascinated me. Yes, that is the word. I read it over and over until I know whole pages by heart."

Blair hated scenes, yet it is a question if hysteria would not have pleased him better than this joyous and infantine collectedness. Almost desperately he took the two books from his pocket, and held them toward her, saying: "There are whole pages alike—line for line. it is not the work I care about—I shall never acknowledge it—but the principle is the same. You—you look like a gentlewoman. Tell me how you ever prevailed on yourself to do a thing of this sort?"

"Why! I told you!" the girl cried, amazedly. "How I loved it, and all that. I couldn't help wishing it was mine—and then—then I copied a chapter, only one, and read it to—to somebody, saying it was the first of a book I meant to write. Then—well, then the minister died, my father too—and we were, O! desperately poor! mother and I. Something had to be done—"

She stopped, looking down at her child's hands in her lap. Blair's glance followed hers. In spite of himself he swallowed hard before he spoke again:

"I am sorry—so sorry—you chose that way," he said: "On your own account, understand. You—you have put so terrible a weapon in the hands of your enemies. Then there is—Hurry—"

The name came hard. He waited, his breath tense. He had meant to shame scorn and crush this adventuress, and force her to relinquish his friend. And he was here, himely suggesting—he shut his teeth upon an oath, and turned away his eyes. The girl laughed tranquilly. "He need never know," she said. "Nobody need know—if you do not care about—what I took. You see I knew nobody who would buy my book had ever heard of yours. So, after all, where was the harm?"

"Nowhere—if you look at it that way," Blair said, rising, his lip curling faintly. As he went through the dun doorway, he half turned his head. The girl was quite still, with two small hands over her face, and he fancied he caught the sound of a stifled sob.

Near midnight Hurry burst in on him with a face so radiant, the elder man wrung his hand, and said, grimly: "Congratulations are in order, I see—though I have none to give."

"But you will give thanks—all the thanks in the world," Hurry said, joyously, leaning affectionately against Blair's shoulder. "I don't know what you said or did, old man—she assures me you were more than kind; but somehow you left her shaken and fearful—and when I felt her hand tremble in mine—well, then I had to speak out. It's all settled. We are to be married in the spring. I know she would not have said yes if you had not found fault with her book."

"I don't think much of it—that's a fact," Hurry growled. "But all I said to her was, that at her age, I myself might have written much the same sort of stuff."

When he got rid of Hurry, Blair stirred open the red heart of his fire and flung his college effusion into the glowing depths. As he watched it flame, flicker, and turn to ashes, he smiled grimly, saying under his breath: "Your happiness is safe, Hurry. There is no other copy extant. But I can't help wondering a bit if even our friendship is worth this auto de fe."

THE TROUBLE IN SERVIA.

Whether suicide or homicide, no one knows which,
Hence the trouble at Belgrade is something what a mix,
But the one thing is sure that Alexandrovitch
And his Queen Draga are both out of fix,
And is their Premier Markovitch.
From the best information Mike Schtckovics,
With the aid of his pal, Oji Vlickovics,
Wished to right the wrongs of Colonel Naumovics,
And with the help or the regiment Sixth,
Commanded by Colonel Maschics,
Went to the palace of the Obrenovitch,
Began shooting at them without the least hitch,
Thereby extinguishing Draga and Alexandrovitch.
Immediately there followed Colonel Danijanovics,
Who was appointed prefect vice Major Nilosalivetcs.
They then hailed as king Alex Karageorgevitch.
All of which is confirmed by Doc Petrovitch,
And is furthermore approved by Minister Avakumovics.
Kallevics, Stojan Protics, Alanzokvics,
Genshics, Michin and Velickotics,
And the distinguished Ljubomir Schiokovics,
N. B.—Obituaries are in order in rhythmic ditsch
For Draga, Alex, Markovitch,
Lunjeviza, Milcovitch,
Kikodem and Palovitch,
Tudorovics, Petrovitch,
And with his guards Cap. Palovitch.

I SAVE WEAK MEN

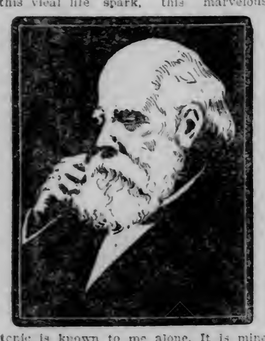
I Have Discovered the Marvelous Secret of Perpetual Youth and Undying Manly Vigor and I Give It To You Free.

My Mysterious Compound Startles the World With Its Wonderful Cures—With This Marvelous Secret No Man Can Grow Old and It Is My Mission on Earth Henceforth to Bring All Jaded, Worn-Out Men to This Fountain of Youth.

Send No Money—Simply Send Your Name and Address and This Marvelous Compound Will Be Sent You By Return Mail, Prepaid and Absolutely Free.

I have discovered the marvelous secret of perpetual life and vigor in men. To me it has been given to bring to the fallen, weary, worn-out brothers the knowledge of this priceless boon, and even to the uttermost ends of the earth I send my message of love and peace and hope and help. Unbelievers may scoff and cry "fake" but I heed them not. My work has just begun and I am saving men.

The secret of this mighty healing power this vical life spark, this marvelous



tonic is known to me alone. It is mine to give to whom I will and my works go before me. Doubt not! I ask no man to believe me, but I give to every weak man free this priceless boon and it restores him instantly to the strength and powerful vigor of youth. With this marvelous, mysterious compound, which I have discovered only after a lifetime devoted to search through all the realms of science, and the archives of the ancients, it is possible for every weak man to have the glorious manly power, the unfailing vigor and the long life of the patriarchs of Bible times. With this mysterious compound no weak man will ever again be troubled with impotency, vital losses, nightly emissions, spermatorrhea, varicocele, prematurity, defective power or lack of vital energy.

Send me no money. It is my duty, guided by an Unseen Hand—it is my mission on earth—my life work—to lift up the fallen, heal the weak and cure the maimed or undeveloped, and to every man who has lost his vital power or finds it waning, I send my message of love and peace and health. I can save him and I will save him and restore him to many years of happiness and the impetuous vitality and vigorous manhood of perfect health and youth.

Remember, it matters not how old you are; it matters not how you lost your manhood, or when you lost it. It matters not what doctors or quacks say. This is no ordinary drug or stimulating method of treatment, but it is the vital spark of life itself, and it matters not how many remedies and doctors have failed I have repeatedly and instantly renewed the youth of old men. My secret compound never fails I have often instilled into jaded men new vitality, health and strength. For worn-out men I have oft kindled, in an instant, and to stay, the sparkling vitality of youth. My private address is Dr. A. Sargent Ferris, 91 Strawn building, Cleveland, Ohio, and I urge every weak man to come to me for I will give him undying strength, the supreme joy and happiness of perfect manliness. My wondrous discovery has startled the world by its miraculous effects, yet I seek not fame nor glory. It suffices me if I may be the humble instrument to bring all men into the enjoyment of bringing al men into the enjoyment of their true manliness and I do it free. In the time allotted to me here on earth I shall do all that in my power lies to give my fellowmen the benefit of this great secret and my reward shall be in the knowledge that I have done unto others as I would that others should do unto me.

LOVE AND DOLLARS.

Wealthy Jew Sued By Gentile Son-in-Law.

Des Moines, June 17.—Professor Wallace Pike, music teacher and baritone soloist, having recovered from his honeymoon, has commenced suit for $20,000 against B. Seigel, his father-in-law, for false imprisonment and other things. Pike, as a musician, came in contact with Miss Minnie Seigel, a popular singer, and they wanted to get married. The elder Seigel made objections and vowed there should be no intermingling of the Jew and gentile families if he could prevent. As a last resort, he made accusation that Pike had offered to quit the game for $500. Pike was arrested and sent to jail, but when the case came up the justice decided it was no crime to offer to sell out of a love match for $500, and Pike was released. Pike and Miss Seigel promptly got married. Now Pike will go into court to collect $20,000 for the delay and annoyance incident to his marriage. Seigel is wealthy and refuses to be reconciled.

CALERO NOMINATED.

Mexico City, June 17.—Bernardo Calero has been nominated to be chancellor of the Mexican legation in London.

REYES RE-ELECTED.

Monterey, Mex., June 17.—Gen. Bernardo Reyes has been unanimously re-elected governor of Nuevo Leon.

WANTS THE MILL

Hines Company Would Compel Scofield Company to Rebuild.

Appeals to Federal Court at Milwaukee to Force It.

The Edward Hines Lumber company, of Chicago, has instituted an action in the federal court at Milwaukee, Wis., to compel the Scofield Lumber company to rebuild its mill, which burned at West Superior, and fulfill its sawing contract with the company. Pending a hearing in the case the insurance companies have been notified to withhold the insurance money.

The Hines company claims that at the time the defendant company bought the mill it entered into a contract with the plaintiff for several years' sawing, the price to be about $2.12½ per 1000 feet, a close figure for the times, and much more so since wages and the cost of operating have increased. The plaintiff company alleges that now it would be compelled to pay as high as $2.50 per 1000 feet for the same work under new contracts. It is claimed that in the three seasons of sawing in store for the mill company on its contract the loss at the rate mentioned would be practically enough to rebuild the mill complete.

It is also claimed that an agreement was made at the time of the making of the contract that in case the mill burned the insurance money should be used to rebuild it.

When at the head of the lakes a few days ago ex-Governor Scofield stated that the mill was to be rebuilt, but it is understood that complications arose which still made it a matter of doubt whether the plans would be carried out, so the Hines company resorted to the courts to compel the rebuilding of the plant and the completion of its sawing contract. The arrangement said to have been made was that a new company was to take the contract, and that the Scofield interests would drop out of it.

The Clark-Jackson mill is sawing day and night for the Hines company, the Peyton, Kimball & Barber mill is sawing days and the Red Cliff Lumber company's mill is to begin sawing the Hines' logs very soon. All of these contracts were made on a basis of $2.50 per 1000 feet, which is the sawing rate at the local mills this year.

THREE HELD UP SIX.

Robbed Butte Saloon of Money and Watches.

Butte, Mont., June 17.—Three daring holdups with guns in each hand early yesterday morning held up six men in Nick Balkovitz's saloon near Silver Bow park, lined them all up against the wall, and while two men stood guard the third rifled the cash register of its contents, amounting to about $20. The pockets of the victims were then gone through by the highwaymen and three watches secured. One a gold timepiece belonging to the proprietor of the saloon, was worth $250, while the other two were silver watches.

The robbers proceeded with coolness and dispatch and every drawer in the saloon was inspected.

While the robbers were preparing to take their departure the mask of the leader slipped from his face and for a mament the man's features were exposed to view. A good description of the robber was given the police and soon after an arrest was made of the suspect in the Butte concert hall, who was later identified as one of the holdups.

TROUBLE CAUSED

For Minnesota Women Homesteaders In Wisconsin.

Grantsburg, Wis., June 17.—A disturbance is being created in town 40, range 17, Burnett county, because of the canceling of homesteads filed on by women, mostly teachers, from Anoka, Minneapolis and other Minnesota points. The women took those claims two years ago and have built cabins and had breaking done, but on account of school work have not resided continuously upon the land.

Special Agent Miller, of the United States land office, on complaint of certain persons in 40-17, went to the claims last winter and recommended that they be canceled. The teachers have asked for a hearing, which will take place at Eau Claire, the time to be set by Agent Miller. The women have gone upon their claims since school closed and intend making a lively fight to retain them.

DYNAMITE PLACED

On Porch of Priest's House In Morrison County.

Little Falls, Minn., June 17.—Six pounds of dynamite were placed on the porch of the home of Father Pfeiffer, a priest at Pierz.

The fuse died out before reaching the explosive. The explosion would, no doubt, have wrecked the house and killed the priest and four other inmates.

The trouble at Pierz is over the public and parochial schools, and the community is cut up into factions. There is no clue.

ADVICE TO WOMEN

Be a Nobody and Sink Yourself, Says Fra Elbertus.

Suggestion to Those Who Find They Are Wedded to Genius.

New York, June 17.—While modestly disclaiming that he ever saw a genius, Elbert Hubbard, the founder of the Roycroft establishment, of East Aurora, N. Y., and the "Fra Elbertus," of the Philistine, takes occasion to publish in that quaint little magazine his observations concerning a genius and his wife. The epitome of his philosophy bitterly protests against the wife who is not content to be the nonentity of the marriage with a genium, but who seeks to be praised and admired and outrival her lord and master.

With peculiar interest these observations from Hubbard come, for his own marriage has turned out unhappily and he is now being sued for divorce by Mrs. Bertha Crawford Hubbard. Miss Alice C. Moore is named as co-respondent. Recently Hubbard settled a suit for $3000 brought against him by Miss Moore's brother, demanding payment for the board and care of the little child born to his sister.

In her suit for divorce Mrs. Hubbard declares that it was she, as much as her husband, that made the Roycroft shop a success. She declares that her services as "Bursar" did as much if not more than anything else, and that it was her money that made the project possible.

In the June Philistine, Hubbard writes, in part, as follows, concerning a genius and his wife, her envy of him and certain "floorwalkers, chartonet players and tenors," from whom she accepts attentions in lieu of the devotion which her genius husband, too busy thinking real thoughts, can find time to give her. Says Hubbard:

"This little extension of mental power which we call genius, has over gotten its owner into trouble. People cannot comprehend it, and so they resent it. It is an insult—the man does not conform—he goes his own gait—he forgets the the things that to others are vital; cards, curds and custards are nothing to him.

"Opinions, as usual, are divided as to whether the man is a genius or a fool. His kinsmen, who have known him from childhood say he is a fool or a rogue—his conduct to them is always an affront. The wife wishes to keep on good terms with her kinsmen and with society, and still she wishes to be loyal to her husband. She wishes to help him—to be his inspiration.

"The pace is too rapid—the woman grows breathless from running, and seeks to hold the man back. He tries to carry her, but soon finds he cannot. She wishes to minister to his 'higher nature,' but how can she when he seems to want nothing but to be let alone?

"She weeps.

"The great outside world of men and women does not know the man excepting by his work. They see his picture, his statue, his book, or they listen to his oration, his song, or watch his performances from the parquet. He gives to the public his best, and the public breaks into applause. The demand his autograph, his photograph, they want the honor of shaking hands with him. His wife is pointed out as a mere appendage—nobody cares for her! She is wrong and stung—is she a stock, a stone, a slave, a thing?

"Ah! She will show them! Straightway she sets out to be clever, too. She seeks to rival her own liege and turn the current of admiration her way. She writes a book or prepares a 'paper,' or sings in public, or 'recites,' or displays her beauty in unique and splendid gowns.

"But alas! the letters still come demanding her husband's autograph, the women stare at her coldly—it is all for him."

Hubbard then describes the mental process by which the wife brings herself to the viewpoint of the kinsmen of the genius that he is a faker and a fraud:

"He uses a tooth brush and a manicure set she bought him Christmas—or he doesn't. He stands before the mirror shaving, and makes horrible grimaces. He talks to himself, goes to walk and forgets lunch time. Company comes to see her, and he sits at the table stupid. And still the fools write for his autographs and the lunatics ask for his photograph.

"She chides, rebukes, and—he, awakening out of his lethargy, proves his common clay by railing back.

"Alas! It confirms her suspicions—he is only clay, and common clay at that.

"To show him how it is, himself, she now has company of her own—floorwalkers, clerks from the ribbon counter, players on the clarionet, tenors who sing in amateur operas.

"When a man ceases to pay court to his wife, other men are apt to. These callers are smart in attire, smart in repartee, clever, attentive.

"But not eternally—for one fine day a tenor being too smart, laboring under the popular delusion that the genius is a fool, finds himself kicked into the street."

Then Hubbard goes on and gives the following advice, as though out of his personal experience:

"My advice to all women who are married to men who love their work better than they love their wives: Do not nag; do not struggle; do not obstruct; do not fight; do not rival—just be yourself. You are only lovable when you are yourself. Be a nobody and sink yourself in your work, just as your husband sinks himself in his."

DOINGS IN MICHIGAN

Lumber Shipments Out of Upper Peninsula Are Light.

Calumet—The lumber market is very quiet. There have been no heavy buyers here and shipments have been light. Many of the mills have sold their cut ahead and have no more for sale.

D. J. Fisher, of Menominee, has started manufacturing cigar boxes. He expects to turn out between 600 and 700 boxes daily. Basswood is secured from Sheboygan, Wis., and stained.

Superintendent Leason of the Wolverine Lumber company and Edward Scott, formerly cruiser for the Bay Shore Lumber company, have left Escanaba for Canada. They will look over a tract of 80,000 acres of timber land on the north shore of Lake Superior, on which the company has secured an option.

Lindsley Bros., of Menominee, owning several large cedar yards in this section of the country, have a crew of men at work clearing the site for their new plant at Alfred, about thirty miles from Wells. A double-block shingle mill and post-splitting plant will be installed.

C. V. McMillan & Bro., of Ontonagon, are putting in a camp on the Big Cranberry river. About 750,000 feet will be put in this summer and brought down to the mill at Ontonagon. The bark on the hemlock logs will be saved.

William C. Baudin has been at L'Anse and Baraga several days looking after the interests of the Upper Peninsula Land company. Several thousand acres of timber land in Houghton and Baraga counties have been secured. The officers are: President, Michael Messner; treasurer, Joseph Strobel; secretary, W. H. Mylres.

The deal for the purchase of the old Menominee River Lumber company's mill by the Edward Hines Lumber company is still pending, but it will ultimately be closed. George Scofield left this week for Idaho to look over the timber interests there. The main river drive, which brings most of the logs down for the Menominee companies, was started last week and conditions are fair for a rapid and successful drive.

The J. W. Wells company, of Menominee, will saw several million feet of lumber for the Girard Lumber company, of Dunbar, this season. The logs will be railed to Menominee. The yards at Dunbar are said to be overstocked. The Menominee River Boom company held a meeting to fix charges for the year. Boomage charges were reduced 5 cents a thousand and the tolls and driving charges were left the same as last year. Reports from up the river country are to the effect that driving operations were favorable this year, and a good stock of logs was brought down everywhere.

Hancock—The annual reunion of the copper country tents of the Knights of the Macabees, held in Hancock Saturday, was a success in every way. Several hundred visitors were present, arriving from all parts of copperdom aboard special trains. The feature was a monster parade. Perry F. Powers, of Cadillac, auditor general of the order, was the principal speaker.

Calumet—Fred C. Wetmore, of Cadillac, grand master workman of the A. O. U. W., will make a ten days' tuor through the upper peninsula on his return from the supreme lodge session at St. Paul. Preparations are being made on a large scale for his reception. The Red Jacket lodge will initiate a large class of candidates, after which a banquet will be served.

Baraga— corporation, the promoters of which are not known, has applied to the township and village boards for a franchise for an electric street railway system to connect Pequaming, Baraga and L'Anse with Keweenaw Bay. The boards have appointed special committees to look into the question and to report their findings.

Ontonagon—The Ontonagon Lumber company has filed articles. The incorporators are Dennis J. Norton and John Hawley, of Ontonago; James T. Hurd, of Buffalo, N. Y., and Fred E. Rowley, of Port Allegheny, Pa. The company has a capital of $200,000, and it is understood it will build a large sawmill on the west branch of the Ontonagon river.

A FARMER'S SUICIDE.

Was Accused of Assisting to Destroy Dam.

Pine City, June 17.—O. P. Wicklund, a prosperous farmer living near Lake Pokegama, was found dead in his barn yesterday afternoon, he having hanged himself. He had written a note in Swedish stating that he had been so frequently accused of taking an active part in the destruction of the Chengwatana dam, of which he was innocent, that he took his life to save himself and his family trouble. Coroner Wiseman viewed the remains, but did not consider an inquest necessary. Wicklund was found lying on the road in a semi-conscious condition by the watchmen on their return to Pine City the morning the dam was blown up.

WORST OF EXPERIENCES.

Can anything be worse than to feel that every minute will be your last? Such was the experience of Mrs. S. E. Newson, Decatur, Ala. "For three years" she writes, "I endured insufferable pain from indigestion, stomach and bowel trouble. Death seemed inevitable when doctors and all remedies failed. At length I was induced to try Electric Bitters and the result was miraculous. I improved at once and now I'm completely recovered." For liver, kidney, stomach and bowel troubles Electric Bitters is the only medicine. Only 50c. It's guaranteed by all druggists.

HATES HER TITLE.

Lady Carlisle Would Like to Abolish It.

London, June 17.—Lady Henry Somerset, for many years president of the Women's Christian Temperance union of Britain, lately resigned because she had become converted to municipal ownership of public houses, and the countess of Carlisle has been chosen president in her stead.

Lady Carlisle is one of the most radical women in the British isles, not only on the drink question, but in other things. She would like to abolish all title of nobility. If her husband and friends did not insist on her using her title, a very old one, she would have dropped it long ago. The first earl was created in 1691, but the family was prominent in English history many generations before that time and is connected by numerous intermarriages with most of the great ducal families.

Lady Carlisle was a Stanley of Alderley and is a sister of the present baron. She believes so thoroughly in women's advancement that she has none but women servants in her houses and about her estates unless a man is absolutely necessary. She has the tallest woman servants to be found for "footmen." A stout and dignified woman is butler, and she has women gardeners and women even in the stable.

TURNING WHITE.

Remarkable Disease of a New York Negro.

New York, June 17.—When a faint spot of white appeared on the brown hand of Rufus Hurburt, a retail tobacconist, two years ago, he gave it no more than a passing glance. He and his family and physicians have become more interested since that for now it is seen that Hurburt is rapidly turning a clear white. At the rate of change now in five years it will be hard to realize that his skin was ever of any other color.

Hurburt is the son of a full-blooded negro from Trinidad and was born in Saco, Me. He is 72 years old, but does not appear to be more than 60, and has straight features, although he is positive that there is no white blood in his veins. He is well read, self-educated and came to this country thirty years ago. He began business with 50 cents' capital and is now comfortably well off. His mother and wife live with him in a pleasant home in Harlem.

"His case," said Dr. Richard Conwell, "is the most remarkable example of a bleaching of the pigment of the skin I know of. It is simply a failing of the nutrition in the cuticle."

THE DULUTH JULY FAIR AND CARNIVAL JULY 6TH TO 11TH

Waists! Waists! Waists!

White waists, colored waists, striped waists, plain waists, fancy waists, waists in lawn, waists in chambray, waists in madras, waists trimmed with lace, waists with piped trimming, waists with plaited effects—such a variety of easily laundered summer waists that you will surely buy enough for the season.

YOU can not make them for the price we are asking—you may not buy them again at the price. Every waist well made—correctly cut and perfect fitting. It is human nature to expect much for your money, but we can rarely give such values as this purchase of waists permits us to give you. A little aggressive merchandising on our part brought them to you. To simplify your selecting we place the entire purchase in but two great groups—

GROUP ONE: Waists of your choosing—some have sold as high as $1.25—on sale this week at 68c

GROUP TWO: Waists of higher value—some have sold here at $2.50—on sale this week at 98c

We have now added to our line of wool suits at ½ Price, all of our sicillian and voile suits making the best and most and complete line of suits we have ever shown at half price—a saving you cannot afford to lose—

$10.00 Suits at half price $5.00
$15.00 Suits at half price $7.50
$20.00 Suits at half price $10.00
$30.00 Suits at half price $15.00

White! White! White!

One table full only remains of those pretty, fresh white goods, splendid values, whose equal it is hard to find at 25c a yard; some from our own stock we sold at 29c. That they would sell so rapidly we anticipated, but some of the season's best patterns are still to be had at the special price of 15c the yard.

EVERY piece desirable and wearable. It would not pay to make up cheaper goods, which, after one wearing, come from the laundry limp and disappointing. Every pattern will improve in your estimation when compared with other offerings. It was rare good fortune that we secured such values for you—you will want several shirt waist suits or children's dresses for frequent changing this summer.

Ask for the 25c Values in White at 15c

BUFFALO LITHIA WATER

Has for Thirty Years Been Recognized By the Medical Profession as an Invaluable Remedy in Bright's Disease, Albuminuria of Pregnancy, Renal Calculi, Gout, Rheumatism and All Diseases Dependent upon a Uric Acid Diathesis. Time Adds to the Voluminous Testimony of Leading Clinical Observers.

Robert C. Kenner, A. M., M. D., Ex-President Louisville Clinical Association, and Editor of Notes on "Garrod's Materia Medica and Therapeutics," Louisville, Ky. (See "Garrod's Materia Medica and Therapeutics," fourth edition, revised by Kenner.):

"In the treatment of Gout and all the manifestations of Uric Acid Poisoning, BUFFALO LITHIA WATER is indicated and will be found very efficient. In Rheumatism, especially the chronic expression, we shall find the water very valuable. The waters of both springs have been found by extensive trial to possess remarkable solvent powers over Renal Calculi and Stone in the Bladder. We have the authority of that great clinician, Prof. Alfred L. Loomis, that BUFFALO LITHIA WATER is of great value in Bright's Disease, and Hammond and other great observers find it greatly beneficial in this condition. In dyspepsia and gastro-intestinal disorders the water has been found very efficacious. In vomiting and nausea of pregnancy there is no remedy more efficacious than BUFFALO LITHIA WATER frequently shows itself to be."

Medical testimony mailed to any address. For sale by druggists and grocers generally.

STATE MAY ACT

Liable to Prosecute St. Louis County Impure Whisky Vendors.

Adulterated Stuff Sold That Brings Insanity to Men's Brains.

The state may take up the campaign against impure whisky in St. Louis county and prosecute it vigorously.

As the lines from prosecutions for selling adulterated whiskey go to the state, the county authorities have not been particularly enthusiastic about taking up the fight.

Otto Gafvert, the local inspector, has reported the conditions to the state dairy and food commission, and the state authorities are now considering the plan of having the attorney general or one of his assistes come up to Duluth and wage war against the sellers of whisky charged with vicious chemicals that make men mad.

Since last October 300 pints of whisky have been purchased by the agents of the dairy and food commission in this district and sent to St. Paul for analysis. About 20 per cent of them have been found to be decidedly impure, while the other 80 per cent was able to pass muster, though not a very large proportion of it would come under the head of what is known as good whisky.

The 20 per cent that has been found to contain injurious spirits is evil stuff indeed. A few drinks of it will make a strong man almost insane, and it is under the influence of stuff like this that many of the crimes are committed. The state authorities believe that if the stuff can be ferreted out it will mean not only a saving in the health of consumers of whisky, but a saving in the expense of prosecutions for crime.

Some of the whisky that is sold on the ranges and on the Bowery in Duluth is fearfully and wonderfully made, and it sells at wholesale for about $1.25 a gallon. Retailed at 10c the stuff are a little careful about how they use it, and most of them keep better grades for those whom they suspect taleht know the difference.

The way the state agents got hold of the evil compound is something on the sleuth order. Should they go into a saloon and ask for a pint of whisky dressed in their ordinary clothes they would probably get a fair grade of liquor. So they dressed up as lumberjacks and hang afound sometimes until quite late at night before asking for whisky. By that time the theory of the bartender was that they ought to be too drunk to distinguish, so they get the poison.

The state has no idea of letting up on the vendors of such liquor. Reports of the sort of liquor sold in this county in certain places have gone forth, and if St. Louis county will not protect itself from the crime of selling it, the state intends to step in.

THE STAGE

The Northwestern Opera company repeated "The Mikado" at the Lyceum last night to a crowded and well-pleased house. The performance went off very smoothly in every detail, and principals and chorus both earned applause that was not stinted. Miss Rena Smith repeated her success of the evening before as one of the three little maids. She was received warmly upon her initial entrance, and she was given several recalls when she rendered her dainty little solo.

The performances of "The Mikado" this afternoon and evening are for the benefit of the Children's home, and they should result in a substantial return to that useful institution. The money is to be used to help build a suitable home, and the regular patronage of the company, with that called out by the special occasion, is expected to crowd the capacity of the house.

Tomorrow the company will begin the presentation of "The Bohemian Girl," for which the rehearsals have forecasted a distinct success.

* * *

The Wilbur Opera company's matinee last Wednesday at the Metropolitan was such a success that Manager Fullwood decided to repeat the idea again today, and allowed all children under 12 years of age admittance to the house free of charge. "Mascot," which was presented to a fair-sized audience last night, was the bill again this afternoon, and this evening will be heard for the last time. It is clever and funny, and the principal roles are well filled, the comedian, Charles Van Dyne, as the prince, being especially funny. The music is tuneful and the orchestra, under the leadership of Musical Director Pell, plays it well. The vaudeville features of the performance of the Wilburs continue to be popular. Beginning tomorrow night Planquette's romantic opera, "The Chimes of Normandy," will be the bill, and will hold the boards for three nights and the Saturday matinee. Henry C. Peakes will be seen in the role of the old miser.

INSPECTION OF DAIRIES

State Inspector Will Soon Be at It—New Law Different.

The annual state inspection of dairies will soon be begun by Otto Gafvert, the local inspector, and owners of milk factories will have to hurriedly study up the new dairy and food laws to see what is required of them.

In one particular the new laws necessitate a radical change in many of the dairies about Duluth, and if the change is not made before the inspection some there may be trouble for some of the milk dealers.

Under the new law milk cannot be kept in the same building as the cows, or in a building attached thereto.

In the past many milk dealers have partioned off a corner of the barn in which to keep the milk, or have kept it in a building constructed adjacent to the barn. Neither of these arrangements will be countenanced by the new law. The milk and cream that is to be sold must be kept in buildings entirely separate from the barns or from any unclean places, or it is condemned as impure.

TO TAKE UP LANDS.

Party of People Bound For St. Frances.

A party of land seekers bound for the Little Fork valley in Northern Minnesota, was in the city last evening on its way to Fort Frances, Ont., from which point it will go to Camp No. 3 of the Minnesota Cruising company on the Little Fork river.

The party included five women. Miss Mary Mckinnon, matron of the Stillwater prison; Miss Elizabeth Thompson, stenographer at the prison; Miss Clara Palmer, Miss Kate Thayer and Miss Bickford, of Minneapolis. The men in the party were Carl J. Johnson, usher in the state prison at Stillwater, William Kohlepel and Philip Dohm, employes of the Pabst Brewing company at St. Paul. The party was in charge of J. E. McCarthy, of Stillwater, one of the members of the cruising company.

Mr. McCarthy said last evening that his company sent out a party of seventy-three from St. Paul to locate lands in the Columbia river valley in Washington.

The company has a party that went to Fort Frances a week ago, returning through Duluth today or tomorrow.

MAY GET OFF.

Minneapolis Relative Comes to Superior Man's Rescue.

M. Laurie, a young man formerly residing in Nebagamon, who was arrested in Minneapolis and brought back to West Superior to stand trial for passing worthless checks on several merchants of that city, has an accommodating relative in a Minneapolis business man.

Since Laurie has been returned to West Superior his uncle has written to the authorities pleading for mercy in behalf of his nephew, whom he says has a wife and children that are destitute. In his letter he incloses a check of $27 to cover one of the worthless checks passed by the young man, and says that he will pay up all the other checks passed on the West Superior merchants by Lurie.

In view of the restitution to be made by the relative and the fact that the young man has a family that needs his services for its support, there is said to be a strong probability that the charges against him will not be pressed.

* * *

There was tremendous joy in Bugville last night.

Sublime luck and fine pitching by Morris, he of the offside fin, enabled Superior to beat Duluth in a game in which the victors were outplayed at every point.

After such an exhibition it is easy to see how Superior won two of the five games lost so far this season by Winnipeg—it was luck, nothing but luck!

Mueller pitched for Duluth and had plenty of speed, curves and control. Superior only got four hits and two of these would have been easy prey for the right fielder had it not been for the right field fence which is something less than one hundred feet back of first.

A hit over this fence is a two bagger and the Superior men put in about half their time practicing the art of knocking it over. In Athletic park or any other ground on the circuit the two baggers of Lagger and Cassibone yesterday would have been easy outs.

Cassibone's hit in the seventh is what won the game for Superior. With two out in Duluth's half of the seventh, Mueller reach first on a fumble, and, being anxious to win the game the big fellow took desperate chances stealing second and third on the first two balls pitched. he next man went out and the big twirler scarcely got his breath from his lase running efforts when called upon to face Superior's hardest hitters in the fatal seventh. Nehr hit a hard single to right, Lagger drove a fast one to Mueller who booted it. Blaire sacrificed and Cassibone dumped a tantalizing little pop fly over that contracted right field fence.

Up to the seventh Duluth had played an errorless game and only two hits had been made off Mueller. The score:

Winnipeg played Crookston clear off her feet again yesterday, winning by a score of 7 to 0. Beebe, the University of Illinois pitcher, performed nicely, but was not given very good support at critical moments. The score:

	R.	H.	E.

* * *

Fargo seems to have gone to pieces. The team began the season playing an article of ball that was faster than several teams in the Three-I league could; and in preliminary practice, but since the season opened the Fargoites have slumped terribly and yesterday Grand Forks had no trouble in defeating a ragged game by the following score:

	R.	H.	E.
Grand Forks	0 2 0 1 0 1 1 1 x—7	10	3

Pitchers—Foulkes and Schwalm; Slette.

Manager Lycan, of Crookston wants Mueller so badly that he has reopened negotiations offering to trade Outfielder Burns and Pitcher Collette for the Duluth twirler.

Manager Van Praagh wired him that when Burns and Collette reported here for duty the trade could be consummated, but Duluth would not entertain a proposition of any kind until the goods were delivered.

As for Mueller he is without doubt one of the best pitchers in the Northern league. He has been unfortunate and unlucky. Yesterday he twirled a game that would have shut out such a team as Winnipeg and yet Superior was just lucky enough to bunch two of the four hits in the seventh and score three runs on a sacrifice and an error.

Whether Mueller stays in Duluth or goes to Crookston those that know a ball player when they see one predict that he will finish the season as one of the best twirlers in the league.

* * *

Mueller stole three bases on Superior's new catcher.

* * *

Four different times there was a Cardinal runner on third with two out and could not score.

* * *

Stutsman, who played right for Duluth yesterday is a deaf mute and one of the fastest players on the Gallaudet college team of Washington, D. C.

Robillard, captain of the strong Baraga, Mich., desires a trial with the Cardinals. He has a good record as an outfielder and sticker.

* * *

Abbott is playing a nice game at first base for Superior. He puts plenty of ginger into his work.

* * *

The injuries sustained by Doar in last Saturday's game will probably keep him out of the game for the remainder of the season.

* * *

Girard caught a superb game for Duluth yesterday. In the two games he has played in the Northern league, he has a batting average of .571 and a fielding average of 1.000. Pretty fast work.

* * *

Quillan is hitting the ball right on the nose. Fast fielding by Nehr is all that kept him from getting three hits yesterday.

* * *

Randall should be playing with Duluth instead of Winnipeg. He was at the bat four times in the first Winnipeg-Crookston game, had three hits, scored three runs and accepted four fielding chances without an error.

Judging from the games out in the Red River valley during the past few days it is up to Duluth to cut loose and go after Winnipeg and Grand Forks. The Cardinals can do it.

* * *

The fast Cloquet team, which defeated the Freimuths by a score of 13 to 6 last Sunday, is looking for new fields of victory, and will go to Hibbing Sunday for a game with the strong team of that place.

* * *

The Universal Millers will play at Pine City next Sunday and the following Sunday will go to Aitkin. A new pitcher named McDougall will be given a try-out in the Pine City game and Bouska who has been playing short will go behind the bat.

FEDERAL TERM AT SUPERIOR

Court Opens With Judge Bunn Presiding—Criminal Cases First.

The new federal court established by congressional action in West Superior opened for business today in superior court room of that city. The court will first dispose of the criminal cases. The West Superior city bond cases are likely to be continued until the Madison term of court. The court officers are: Judge Bunn, of Madison, Wis.; Maj. Oakley, clerk; District Attorney Wheeler and United States Marshal Lewison. J. B. French, of West Superior, is deputy clerk of court.

The sessions of the federal court will be held in the superior court room until the new government building, at the corner of Tower avenue and Fourteenth street, is erected. The building will not be completed until some time next year, as the architects' bids for the plans will not be opened until September next.

ENTERS DEMURRERS.

C. P. Maginnis Questions Indictments Found Against Him

Demurrers to the indictments were filed yesterday afternoon in the United States district court by C. P. Maginnis, who was arraigned at the last term on a charge of subornation to commit perjury and conspiracy to defraud the government.

He bases the demurrers on the ground that the facts of the case were not sufficient to warrant the bringing in of indictments against him by the grand jury, and should the court sustain his demurrer, the case will be at an end. Should it not be sustained, he will have another opportunity to plead.

ITALIANS FOR ECUADOR.

Guayaquil, Ecuador, June 17—Enrique Broggia has signed a contract with the Ecuadorean government to bring parties of Italian emigrants to settle the eastern part of the country.

"THE DUSTY MILLER"

And White Bread.

Most millers are bitter enemies of Grape-Nuts for business reasons, for Grape-Nuts food is largely replacing white bread, for Grape-Nuts contains the whole of the health-giving grains while the patent white flour, in universal use today, is made with the most healthful part of the wheat left out.

A miller of Newark, Ohio, who has studied the subject, says of Grape-Nuts: "I began by using the food once a day, then twice a day, and for the last 6 months three times a day, and I confidently affirm that I have received more real substantial benefit from the use of Grape-Nuts than from all the other things I have tried. My trouble was indigestion and kidney disease.

"I began to receive relief at once and as I am a practical millwright and miller as well I can see and understand the philosophy of such a nutriment as Grape-Nuts and why its use gives us such good results. The continued use of patent flour bread will produce injury sooner or later, because the true life-sustaining and life-giving elements of the wheat berry are eliminated in the manufacture of patent flour.

"My unasked-for advice to all is to use daily a nutriment like Grape-Nuts that retains all the vitality of the grain. For this very reason there is more direct virtue in the daily use of Grape-Nuts than in all the medicinal tonics in the world that crowd to over-flowing the shelves of drug stores.

"The restaurant where I take my meals keeps Grape-Nuts on hand to accommodate me and others who eat to live and enjoy life and health." Name furnished by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

Grape-Nuts can be served in a variety of ways—from plain breakfast food to the novel and delicious Grape-Nuts Ice Cream. See the little recipe book in each package.

SLEEPS ON THE ROOF

How Mayor Jones of Toledo Recovered His Lost Health.

His Ideas as to Best Methods of Securing Health.

Toledo, Ohio, June 17.—Mayor Jones sleeps on the roof. In a cage of mosquito netting his cot is placed, and securely protected from insects the golden rule mayor sleeps "deep and free," as he says. Mayor Jones declares the idea is not half as peculiar as it sounds.

"Before I began sleeping beyond the confines of a close room," he said, "I was troubled with asthma and bronchitis, but this pure air treatment has completely cured me. I feel better than I did twenty years ago. Of course I sleep out of doors only in the summer months, but in the winter, unless it rains or snows, I have every window in the house open.

"A person cannot get too much pure air; it is nature's own medicine and everyone will agree with me that the more of the medicine you take reasonably the better you will be for it. It is better than any medicine our physicians can administer."

Asked to explain his ideas as to best methods of securing health Mayor Jones wrote the following:

"Up to two years ago I had given little attention to the care of my body, with the consequence that, through fifteen or twenty years of lack of exercise, overeating and general influence, my body had become pretty well filled with disease. I had catarrh and asthma dreadfully for six or seven years. I had pains rheumatic, neuralgic, lumbagic and diabolic.

"About that time my attention was called to the fact that good health meant rich, red blood, and plenty of it, coursing through one's veins; that it does not course in people's bodies who live as I had been living, and that those who live simply, eat sparingly, breathe deeply of fresh outdoor air and work (exercise) vigorously, have good health in abundance without the aid of drugs or doctors.

"Good health was about what I wanted. I changed my mode of life; threw open the windows of my sleeping apartment; reduced the amount of my eating about one-third or one-half; took plenty of exercise, mainly in useful, productive work as far as I could get it; made a practice of walking five to ten miles daily, not merely walking for fun, but walking instead of riding to places where I was actually going, and last summer found that by actually sleeping out of doors while up in Michigan the work of restoring the diseased respiratory organs went forward much more rapidly, with the result that I am now in possession of the strength and vigor that I had at 30 or 35, though I am nearly 57 years old.

"And because I have found that it is good for me I have determined to live as much as possible in the open air, summer and winter. For that reason I sleep in the open air whenever and wherever I can. I have not 'taken cold' in a year and have determined to quit that sort of foolishness.

"I have never said that 'everybody should do so.' I simply reserve the right to do it myself, leaving all others free to do as they like in regard to this, as well as in regard to matters of politics and religion."

HAPPENINGS IN DAKOTAS

Sickness Follows Drinking of Whisky Doped With Croton Oil.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

Vermillion—A prank that might have had a serious ending is reported from Wakonda, Clay county. H. E. Doane gave three companions whisky which had been doped with croton oil and the men were made very sick. State's Attorney Tilton was called from this city to investigate the affair. There is a heavy penalty for such jokes, the extreme sentence by law being ten years' imprisonment. In this case the blame is said to rest with some one other than the giver.

Vermillion is to have a baseball team. The players are all home boys, but promise to put up a good article of ball when they don the suits formerly worn by a Minneapolis league team, recently purchased from A. B. Beall, of Sioux City. The first game will be played with Yankton, on June 24, in this city. J. Partridge will do the twirling in this game, and A. H. Whittemore will be backstop.

Deadwood—An interesting case is before Judge Rice of the Eighth circuit. A few days since the board of health of this city ordered the school board to compel all children in school to be vaccinated. The board objected to the order and the case was argued before the court on the ground that the act of the legislature under which the suit was brought was unconstitutional. There is much feeling over the matter.

Sioux Falls—Relatives in this city have been advised of the death at Faribault, Minn., of Mrs. Julia C. Pheris, who was a pioneer resident of Sioux Falls. Death resulted from a stroke of paralysis.

The partnership which has been in existence for twelve years between Nels Amston and Robert E. Vreeland, clothing and dry goods men, has been dissolved, Mr. Vreeland retiring.

Fort Meade—Word has been received of the suicide of Hospital Steward John Byrnes, who went a few weeks ago to the Philippines with his troop from this fort. He was one of the oldest soldiers in the service, lacking but three years of retirement on full pay. He was well known throughout the northern Hills.

Clark—Mrs. Leon Alliott died suddenly at her home near this city. She had been in poor health for some time.

Lead, S. D.—Arrests are soon to be made of several well-known men in this part of the Hills who have been cutting timber from school lands. The state's attorney has been informed of the thefts.

Rapid City, S. D.—A popular wedding was that of Orlin Lampert, well known here, and Miss Mary Way, of Hill City. They will reside near this city.

NORTH DAKOTA.

Fargo—Several Fargo business men were victimized by a check forger. All the checks were made out for $14 and purported to have been issued by the Fargo Decorating company to John Dunn. They were indorsed in the same name and presented by a poorly dressed woman, who was accompanied by a 5-year-old child. The woman made small purchases in each case and the checks were cashed without question, wherever presented. The woman said her husband was a painter and was ill, and sent her out to get the checks cashed.

The trial of W. J. Locke, charged with counterfeiting, is on in the United States court. Locke was a resident of Mandan and while the officers were searching for some stolen property they unearthed a counterfeiting plant in his place. Locke denies ownership and pleaded not guilty. There are seven counts in the indictment and the government appears to have much testimony against the prisoner. Locke is said to have made two unsuccessful efforts to saw his way out of the Mandan jail.

Jamestown—With his face smeared with blood, his eye blackened and his back lame, William Brown, a sheep shearer came to Jamestown yesterday and, supported by his wife, made his way to a justice's office to get a warrant for the arrest of Jack and Alvin Vessey. He asserts that the Vessel brothers attacked him and took turns beating him, one of them saying to the other that Brown "should be finished." It is probable that an attempt to Bill will be the charge against the Vessey brothers, who are prominent farmers.

Mrs. N. C. Shaver was examined by the insanity board and it was decided to send her to the asylum. She threatened to kill her children.

The annual state camp meeting of the Free Methodist church will be held in Jamestown, beginning on Thursday, and will continue a week. The meeting will be in charge of Rev. Mr. Fay, of Illinois, and a large attendance is expected.

Grand Forks—The case of the state versus George Thornton, son of a St. Paul contractor, was begun here Tuesday, the charge being grand larceny. Thornton was accused of highway robbery in this city last winter, when a farmer was "touched" for $100. The case will be bitterly fought.

Kathryn—The Northern Pacific is making extensive improvements on this line this season. It has three gravel trains and a steam shovel crew and about fifty Italians here, and is surfacing the entire line.

SOCIALISTS WIN

They Make Great Gains In Election In Germany.

Hundreds of Women Were Engaged In Bringing In Voters.

Berlin, June 17.—The leading feature in the reichstag elections, which were held yesterday, was the success of the Social Democrats, who have probably increased their representation in the reichstag by fifteen seats and their total vote to upwards of 2,560,000 or 100,000 more than in 1898. All the parties concede the success of the Socialists, which has been at the expense of them all.

The Socialists gained one seat in Berlin and 63,000 votes, seats in Dresden, Solingen Pierrena, Plauen, Zittau, Doebling, Altenburg, Lorrstadt, Limbach, Schwartzberg, Bielefeld, Eberuth and Bremen. They lost seats in Sorau and Isernburg. The Socialists' gains in Saxony caused Herr Bebel to call Saxony "the red kingdom."

The most prominent Socialist success was in Essen, Kruppatown, where the Socialists increased their vote from 4000 to 22,705. The Center party also increased its vote there.

The Barth wing of the Radicals lost three members and the Nationalists and Conservatives have lost Saxony.

Bremen is lost to the Liberals, Herr Frae being defeated by a saloonkeeper named Shmalfeldt.

A confusing factor in fixing the relative position of the parties in the new parliament is the number of second elections which must be held on June 25 in all constituencies where no candidate received a majority. The number of these second elections in 1898 was 192 of 397 and probably second elections must be held this year in quite as many. The position of the parties based on the returns up to 5 o'clock this morning from 235 districts give: Total members elected, 117; requiring second election, 118. The elected are: Socialists, 49; Centrists, 35; Conservatives, 11; Alsatian, 6; National Liberals, 5; Free Conservatives, 4; Independents, 3; Poles, 2; Danes, 1; Agrarian league, 1.

In the foregoing districts the Socialists have gained twelve seats and lost two.

An extraordinary feature of the polling in Berlin was the part taken by Socialist women. Hundreds went from house to house bringing out laggard voters, waiting at the exits of factories and mills and accompanying the indifferent electors to the polls. While the other parties had paid workers the Socialists employed canvassers who were unpaid and alone of all the parties voted their full strength.

They had bought up space on the municipal advertising pillars and placarded doors and windows with party legends. Fifty thousand copies of a poem entitled "Vote ed," were circulated. At the most aristocratic balloting place opposite the residence of the Imperial cancellor were Socialist watchers and ticket distributers smartly dressed in frock coats and silk hats.

Chancellor Von Buelow did not vote as he is kept abed by gastric trouble, but nearly all the other members of the cabinet voted at this place. Baron Von Ichthofen came in as the judges were disputing the right of a Louisiana negro to vote. He averred that he was a German subject, but as his papers were incomplete the judges were in doubt. "He is my French cook," interrupted Baron Von Richthofen, and a naturalized German." The negro's ballot was thereupon accepted.

The affair of the late crown princess appears to have had some influence on the elections in Saxony, where great Socialist gains were made, for instance of 9000 at Chemnitz, and 4500 at Leipsic.

HARD MAN TO ARREST.

Neenah, Wis., June 17.—Joseph Barber, reputed to be an escaped convict from the Iowa state prison, was arrested here yesterday after a struggle in which Chief of Police James Brown, Andrew McCabe, an Oshkosh detective, and Barber nearly lost their lives. On attempting to take Barber from a boardinghouse, on which he was living, the officers were pulled into Lake Winnebago, and it was only after a desperate struggle that they were able to overcome and place him in a launch. Barber was wanted in Oshkosh on a charge of larceny.

MEXICO IS PROMPT.

Washington, June 17.—Ambassador Clayton has cabled the state department that the Mexican government has deposited to his credit $1,022,928 on account of the Pius fund award. This prompt ness on the part of the Mexican govern men in meeting its obligations has broken all records in arbitration. The money will be remitted to Archbishop Riedan, bishop of San Francisco, the titular claimant, as there have been an assignments to attorneys in interest.

CATARRH A COMMON COMPLAINT.

Catarrh begins with a stubborn cold in the head, inflammation or soreness of the membrane or lining of the nose, discharge of mucus matter, headaches, neuralgia and difficult breathing, and even in this early stage is almost intolerable. But when the filthy secretions begin to drop back into the throat and stomach, and the blood becomes polluted and the system contaminated by the catarrhal poison, then the sufferer begins to realize what a disgusting and sickening disease Catarrh is. It affects the kidneys and stomach as well as other parts of the body. It is a constitutional disease and as inhaling mixtures, salves, ointments, etc., are never more than palliative or helpful, even in the beginning of Catarrh, what can you expect from such treatment when it becomes chronic and the whole system affected? Only such a remedy as S. S. S. can reach this obstinate, deep-seated disease and purge the blood of the catarrhal poison. S. S. S. purifies and builds up the diseased blood, and the inflamed membranes are healed and the excessive secretion of mucus ceases when new, rich blood is coming to the diseased parts, and a permanent cure is the result.

I had a continual headache, my cheeks had grown purple, my nose was always stopped up, my breath had a sickening and disgusting odor, and I coughed incessantly. I heard of S. S. S. and commenced to use it and after taking several bottles I was cured and have never since had the slightest symptom of the disease.

AMERICAN DERBY

To Be Run at Washington Park, Chicago, Next Saturday.

Fifteen Starters Expected —Savable Favorite In Betting.

Chicago, June 17.—The sixteenth renewal of the American derby will be run next Saturday at Washington park. Fifteen of the 117 eligibles are now counted as certain starters. While the race has proverbially furnished an upset the turf experts of Chicago were of the opinion that the event looked like a duel between Irish Lad and Savable. The withdrawal of the former at almost the last moment makes it look like an easy victory for Salvable. But there is a host of possibilities, horses whose owners have as strong a hope as a Whitney or a Drake. There are in that list Dick Welles, who was regarded in the West as a better 2-year-old than Savable; Claude, the winner of the California and the Tennessee Derbies; Judge Himes, the winner of the Kentucky Derby and the Hawthornie handicap; Fore and Aft, the winner of the Cumberland Derby; Au Revoir, who next to Savable has made the best showing of the Western candidates; George K. Early and Linguist, who are only a little behind Au Revoir; Floearline, winner of the Preakness stakes, and others. There are also dark horses, such as Bernays and Ravel. On the latter Ed Corrigan stands to win $150,000, and the horse has not yet been seen in public.

From any one of these may come the winner. Au Revoir seems to have as much class as Sidney Lucas, Robert Waddell and Pink Coat, and they were strong enough on the day of the race to blast Eastern hopes, which are no higher now than they were then. He lost no prestige through his defeat by Early at Harlem on Wednesday. Coburn gave him an ill-judged ride. He made the mistake of holdign Early too cheap. He could have gone to Early, to whom he was giving eight pounds, at any stage in the three-quarters of the journey, which was a mile and half a furlong.

Just now Floearline, who has landed at the track safe and sound and is looked upon as a certain starter, must be considered as holding a slight marginal class over her stable companion, Early. Her races on the Western circuit were just as good as those of Witful, and what Witful did to Claude, the winner of the two so-called Derbies, is well remembered. Witful is now out of training, and if the performance of Modesty in the American Derby nineteen years ago is to be duplicated, it is up to Floevarline to do it. Floearline is a magnificent filly, and before the end of the Washington Park season she may be the popular about Chicago as Yo Tambien and Imp ever were. The Englewood Stakes, which is the Oaks of Washington Park, seem to be at her mercy.

Dick Welles, who has been snugly quartered at Harlem for the last week, has been the recipient of a great deal of attention. He has been well backed by the small betters in the future books, and is plainly the hope of many who make figures the basis of their calculations and are governed by the desire to win more than by sentiment. To the trained eye Dick Welles fits better into the Derby ideal than Savable. Rome Respess has another string to his bow in Bernays, who has been well but quietly backed and pointed particularly to the Derby. Little is known of him publicly except that he is a fine specimen of the thoroughbred, and has been working well at distances up to a mile and a quarter.

There is no getting away from William Gerst's sturdy colt, Fore and Aft. He will be a factor in the race if the going is fast. It was only the mud that beat him in the Detroit Derby last Monday. On firm footing he proved his superiority over Judge Himes, the winner of the Kentucky Derby and the Hawthorne Handicap.

High Chancellor, Savable's stable companion, is a good race horse and has shown quality at shorter distances. He may be sent out to serve the useful purpose of making pace.

The best that can be said of Linguist at this distance is that he is a certain starter. He likes soft going better than the majority of the field and cannot be held too cheaply.

Claude seems to have little business in a race of this kind, especially with a five-pound penalty on his back, still his owner, M. J. Daly, remains to be convinced.

The Corrigan maiden, Ravel, who has been so well backed by his owner, is still under cover. He was not shown in the Detroit Derby, in which the Corrigan following hoped to get a line on him. He is a beautifully bred horse and a good looker. His owner has saved his maiden allowance for this race. Mr. Corrigan sent a maiden to the post in 1892 and got third money.

Judge Himes, the winner of the Kentucky Derby, has been ailing of late, but Charley Ellison will endeavor to get him to the post even if he does not look to have a chance with 125 pounds up. This is the first time in his career that Ellison has owned a Derby candidate, and he is determined to get as much glory as possible out of it. Skillful, Ellison's other candidate, is a faster horse than Judge Himes, but he does not fancy a distance.

Frank J. Bryan, the noted Eastern turf critic, who is this season presiding judge at Hawthorne, was asked to review the American derby. "It is first of all the general one," he said, "that is, a race worthy of rank with the important turf fixtures, not alone of this country, but of the world, or that part of it where the sport flourishes. This prestige can best be explained by a glance at the records of the race. The long list of previous winners, with the many fleet ones that trailed home behind the victors, means the reviving of memories of many of the equine stars of the last twenty years, recollections not alone of old favorites, but of contests that showed them at their best. Few, if any, pages of turf history carry more brilliant facts for the lovers of greatness in racing.

"Next Saturday, at Washington Park, we will have a renewal, the sixteenth of the famous event, and so far as anticipations go it will bring a struggle well in keeping with that which has gone before. The question of the day, or to be more correct of the hour, is: Will the rich prize go to some colt or filly that rates as a Westerner or will success at last reward the invaders from the East?

"With the decision of the race now only a matter of days the answer seems harder to find than it did a month ago. At that time it looked as if the West would have a clear field, that is the opposition from the domains of the Jockey club would be insignificant. There was talk of the coming of Yardarm and Onatas, of the great things that could be expected of Mackey Dwyer, Mexican and others, but to me, familiar with the grade of these prospective bidders, these anticipations of danger were a little out of line. Later on came the running of the Brooklyn handicap, and soon the turf critics of the East sent forth predictions that the winner, Irish Lad, would come on and try to bring home a prize that so many from his part of the country had bid for in vain. What were at first rumors, backed up by a lot of hope, soon became a reality, and the latest report that he will not come is a great surprise and disappointment.

"As for his form as a 3-year-old, it stands out with a luster beyond all dispute. His performance in the Brooklyn handicap was astounding to the stanchest of his admirers. He was asked to compete with an all-aged lot, that with the exception of Hermis and Chuctanunda included the very pick of the Eastern stayers. He led from end to end and beat to the finish Gunfire, the mare who only a couple of weeks previously had won the Metropolitan handicap. No better test could have been provided. It was a race with speed from the very first jump. There was no chance for waiting tactics. It was away and to work at once, with a killing pace to the end. This was the question asked of the Irish Lad and we all know how worthy he proved. To make the showing even more meritorious it was the colt's first race after his winter's retirement. It is not then easy to see that this son of Candlemas is the hope of the East, no matter what others may come out with him. At times we hear of miracles in racing and it would mean one to see him beaten by his fellow invaders.

All ladies and children who cannot stand the shocking strain of laxative syrups, catharties, etc., are invited to try the famous Little Early Risers. They are different from all other pills. They do not purge the system. Even a double dose will not gripe, weaken or sicken; many people call them the easy pills. Sold by all druggists.

A DEADLOCK IN COMMONS

Between Wyndam and Redmond Likely to Cause Trouble.

London, June 16.—The deadlock which has arisen between Irish Secretary Wyndham and the Irish leader, John Redmond, as a result of yesterday's debate in the mond's amendment to the land bill abolhouse of commons, in which John Redishing the minimum price at which the landlord may sell, was opposed by Mr. Wyndham and rejected by the house, threatens to imperil not only the Irish land bill but the existence of the government.

During the present session the ministry has more than once escaped defeat because of the support of the Nationalists, and while Mr. Chamberlain's fiscal policy rendered the government's position precarious, the support of the Irish members is more than ever necessary to the ministers. Several Unionists supported John Redmond in the division lobby after having in the course of the debate vainly advised Mr. Wyndham to agree to a compromise. As a matter of fact, had the Irish leader challenged a division earlier in the evening, the government would then have been defeated and Redmond's omission to thus snatch an advantage from the absence of many Unionist members seems to indicate his desire to do everything possible to ensure the passage of the bill and endeavor to induce the government to reconsider its position. The whole body of Nationalists voted in support of John Redmond's amendment with the result that the government's majority was reduced to 11 votes. The Liberal leaders at a meeting tonight resolved not to challenge Mr. Chamberlain's zollervin proposals by a formal resolution in the house of commons, but to confine themselves to attacking his policy whenever an opportunity offers.

ECZEMA

The World's Greatest Skin Torture

Many Infants are Born with Eczema

It's the Only Thing Some Folks Have Left When They Die

THE ONLY INFALLIBLE CURE IS CUTICURA

It is in the treatment of this most distressing of torturing and disfiguring skin and scalp humours, with loss of hair, that the Cuticura remedies have achieved their greatest success. Original in composition, scientifically compounded, absolutely pure, unchangeable in any climate, always ready, and agreeable to the most delicate, they present to those suffering from Eczema the most successful curative of modern times. We know that this will be considered strong language by those acquainted with the character and obstinacy of the disease under consideration, but it is justified by innumerable successes where all the remedies and methods in vogue have failed to cure, and, in many cases, to relieve, even.

The first step in the treatment of the chronic forms is to remove the scales and crusts and soften the skin, by warm baths with Cuticura Soap. The scalp, ears, elbows, hands, ankles and feet will require frequently a thorough soaking in order to penetrate the thickened skin and crusts with which these parts are often covered. Dry carefully, and apply Cuticura Ointment, lightly at first, and where advisable spread it on pieces of soft cloth and bind in place. Take the Resolvent, pills or liquid, in medium doses. Do not use cold water in bathing, and avoid cold, raw winds.

STARTLING EVIDENCE.

Fresh testimony in great quantity is constantly coming in, declaring Dr. King's New Discovery for consumption, coughs and colds to be unequaled. A recent expression from T. J. McFarland, Bentonville, Va., serves as example. He writes: "I had bronchitis for three years and doctored all the times without being benefited. Then I began taking Dr. King's New Discovery, and a few bottles wholly cured me." Equally effective in curing all lung and throat troubles, consumption, pneumonia and grip. WHEAT IS HIGHER

Opening Weaker But the Strength Came to Market Later.

Strength of Corn an Aid —Flax Active and Lower.

Duluth Board of Trade, June 17.—The wheat market at the opening this morning looked rather sick. Indifferent cables, fine harvest weather and general selling causing a very weak tone. This feeling quickly passed off, however, and the market turned stronger and advanced to about the closing prices of yesterday, after which it held steady for some time and then again advanced principally under the influence of shorts covering. The closing was fairly strong and not far from the top prices of the day. St. Louis wired that new wheat is being offered there now and the volume of business is increasing. In the local market shippers found foreign bids for Duluth wheat getting closer to a basis upon which some business can be done. New York reported loads of wheat worked for export. The strength of corn aided the advance in wheat to some extent.

The Liverpool market closed ⅛ to ¼d lower and Paris ½c lower.

Primary receipts of wheat were 311,000 bushels, last year 392,000 bushels. Shipments, 254,000 bushels, last year 288,000 bushels.

Receipts of wheat at Duluth and Minneapolis, 273 cars, and at Chicago is, a total of 268 cars, against 302 last week and 311 one year ago.

Corn was very strong again today, the July option advancing ⅝c and the September almost as much. In Liverpool the close was unchanged to ¼d higher. July oats advanced ⅝@⅝c. Primary receipts of corn were 284,000 bushels, last year 320,000 bushels. Shipments, 680,000 bushels, last year 152,000 bushels.

Trading in wheat on the Duluth board was very light, July opened ⅝c off at 75¾c and 9-50, sold at 80¾c at 9:58 and 9-50 at 9:59 and unchanged later. It held fairly steady at that point for a couple of hours and then moved upward and closed at 80⅝c. This was an advance of ⅝c. September advanced the same, closing at 75¾c but sold as high as 74c. Minneapolis closed with the same advance as Duluth for both options. Chicago July was up ⅝c and September ⅝c up. St. Louis was up ⅝c on the July and ¼-¾c on the September. New York July advanced ¼c and September ⅝c.

Cash sales were 15,000 bushels and July price was paid for No. 1 northern and 1½c under for No. 2.

Flax was very active and again very weak, although there was a little better feeling at the close. July sold 1¾c off to $1.05 and then reacted to $1.05¾. The close was at $1.06¼. This was 5c lower than yesterday. September closed 3¼c off, October ⅝c off and November ½c off.

Following are the closing prices:

Wheat to arrive No. 1 hard 82¾c; No. 1 northern 80⅝c; No. 2 northern 79⅝c; July 80¾c; September 73¾c; December 72c; Flax in store $1.06¼; to arrive $1.06¼; on track $1.06¼; July $1.06½; September $1.05¼, October $1.03⅞; November $1.07½; Oats to arrive 37@37½c; on track 37@37½c, Rye to arrive 50; on track 50, Barley 35@51. Cars inspected: Wheat 46; last year 12; corn 1; oats 8; rye 4; flax 15, last year 1. Receipts: Wheat 46,467; oats 5626; barley 1422; flax 13,311. Shipments, none.

CAUGHT AT LAST

French Cleric, Who Was Adept Swindler, Arrested In Beyrout.

Paris, July 17.—The arrest of Canon Rosenberg by mistake in Beyrout ends, at least temporarily, a career which has exhibited a genius for crime.

In 1885 Rosenberg was a full-fledged canon, with the living of the Tours cathedral, worth $12,000 a year, obtained through the influence of the Duchess D'Albufera. His "way with the ladies," in fact, seems to have been his short cut to riches.

His first business venture was in advising titled women how to invest their money. When they became penniless and he was bankrupt, with liabilities amounting to $625,000, he was suspended by his superior. Then he began granting divorces to pious women for a consideration. He represented himself as the bishop of Cyprus, with power to annul marriages without appeal to the pope. He had got in fees many thousands of dollars when Mme. Civet's case attracted the attention of the police.

Mme. Civet had a civil divorce, but wanted to annul the religious ceremony. With the aid of Abbe Guillaumin and a banker named Malleval he obtained $4,000 from her. After a time she became convinced of his double-dealing, and yet she loaned him $4000 to go to America to "negotiate a loan for the Turkish government."

He had just helped a girl and her lover to elope and received a snug sum from the bride's dot on her reconciliation with her parents when Mme. Civet's inquiries made it imperative for him to move.

He contracted in Paris to send the son of a rich woman to America, for which he was to get a large amount. The boy had been spirited out of the country, but the money had not changed hands when again the Civet importunities forced him to flee. He used to send young women to Monte Carlo to gamble for him, and has a record covering many cities for obtaining everything from a house on credit and leaving without paying.

His disappearances when the detectives seemed on the very point of seizing him were little short of marvelous. At one time he was discovered decked with two pretty girls in a delightful cottage near Paris. The precautions to secure him were elaborate, but he vanished.

His quarters in the prison De la Santein, Paris, will not be far from those occupied by the banker, Boulaine, whose bogus companies he floated with so much ingenuity. Despite Boulaine's cleverness, however, Rosenberg once succeeded in relieving him of $40,000.

CONSULS INCRIMINATED.

Said They Have Aided Illegal Chinese Immigration.

Washington, June 17.—Assistant Secretary Pierce, of the state department, has secured evidence convincing him that certain United State consular officials in China have been aiding attempted evasions of the Chinese exclusion act.

These officials have intentionally or without knowing it, signed numbers of certificates averring that the bearers were Chinese "merchants," while in fact, they were only laborers in rank. How many Chinese have come into this country on bogus certificates issued in this manner it is impossible to determine, but the investigation now on foot will certainly have the effect of breaking up this particular kind of immigrant smuggling.

TEACHER'S NECK BROKEN.

San Juan, P. R., June 17.—Miss Jean Ankrom, formerly of Waynesburg, Pa., the only woman school superintendent in Porto Rico, was thrown from a carriage in a runaway accident at Ponce, last night, and died in fifteen minutes. Her neck was broken.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Wheat Opened Easy With Considerable General Selling.

Chicago, June 17.—Wheat opened easier on indifferent cables and the favorable harvest weather with quite general selling by longs and scattered selling by commission houses. July was off ⅛@¾c to ⅞@⅞c at 75¼c to 75⅝c, while September was a shade to ¼c lower at 73½@⅝c to 73¾c. Trading was only moderate and confined largely to local traders and prices showed little change the first hour. Minneapolis and Duluth reported receipts of 253 cars, which with local receipts of 15 cars, none of contract grade made total receipts for the three points of 268 cars, against 302 cars last week and 311 cars a year ago.

The strength in corn was a bull influence, and the market during the latter half of the day was strong, July advancing to 76⅛c and closing at 76⅝@¾c, a gain of ¼c. September closed ⅜c up, at 74⅜@⅝c, after selling at 74½c.

The excellent weather conditions offset the higher corn cables and caused a rather easy opening, July being unchanged to ⅛c lower, at 49½ to 49¾c with September a shade to ⅛@⅜c lower at 49 to 49¼. There was only a small volume of trade the first part of the session and prices held about steady. Local receipts were 284 cars, with 25 of contract grade.

Shorts were active buyers of the July delivery and there was an urgent general demand for the September option, due to adverse crop reports which resulted in a strong upturn in prices. July advanced to 0⅝c and September to 50c. The former closed ⅝c higher, at 50⅜c, with September ½c up, at 49½@⅝c.

Oats sympathized with other grains and opened easier, with July ⅛c lower at 35 and September ⅛c lower to ⅛c higher at 33⅝ to 34. The market was extremely quiet early in the day and prices about stationary. Local receipts were 102 cars.

Provisions opened steady influenced by the firmness in the hog market, but the volume of trading was light with practically no change in prices. September pork opened 2½ higher at $16.90. September lard was unchanged to 2½c lower at $8.97½ to 9.00 and ribs unchanged at $9.30.

GRAIN GOSSIP.

Logan & Bryan, Chicago: The wheat cables only show steadiness and there is no great activity in cash markets. We are inclined to advise the purchase of wheat. Our reasons are, in the first place stocks are very light and ther is no selling pressure from that cause, the record of the movement of the world's crop for the past year indicates a large consumption and little surplus. The winter wheat crop in our judgment will be at best a moderate affair, as compared with other farm products of every description wheat is low. The speculative conception at the moment is based upon perfect conditions for the spring wheat crop. As we have said before, perfect conditions are hard to maintain. The official bulletin shows that the rainfall for the past three weeks in the Northwest has been abnormally small. Already complaints of the result of this upon the crop are beginning to come. Any material deterioration in the Northwest crop would likely mean fireworks in the market. On the other hand a relief by rain in that section would mean but a small decline in our judgment. We feel therefore, that the odds are about ten to one in favor of the buyer of wheat at the moment, so far as a possible advance or a probable decline is concerned. Estimated cars for tomorrow, 35.

Corn—The market here was again active and strong. Small stocks, small farmers' deliveries and a considerable short interest are the principal features. The market still has the support of strong local operators. We are inclined to think the small movement from the farmers' hands is the strong feature of the situation. Demand is moderate. Estimated cars, 480.

Oats—The market is moderately active and strong. Small deliveries and good cash demand are still the supporting factors, with the corn market lending some strength through sympathy. Estimated cars for tomorrow, 135 cars.

Rycroft of Chicago: Our Liverpool house cables that weather in France is unfavorable but in England it is favorable. Their wheat market is quiet but steady, with very little speculation. Their corn market opened up strong in sympathy with our advance of yesterday but later eased off on profit-taking. There is a lull in the cash demand, buyers apparently filled up for the time being.

Broomhall cables that Paris considers that the official crop report indicates a yield of 304,000,000 to 320,000,000 bushels of wheat, compared with last year's crop of 350,000,000 and an average yield for the past five years of 330,000,000.

* * *

Calcutta—An official estimate just issued places the wheat crop of India at 7,780,000 tons, which is the largest ever known. The surplus for export purposes is estimated at 64,000,000 bushels.

REALIZING MADE

Inroads Upon Prices and the Stock Market Closed Heavy.

Gains Early In the Day Were Completely Wiped Out.

New York, June 17.—The tone at the opening was excessively irregular and the same groups of stocks showing a mixture of gains and losses. There were large dealings in Wabash at an advance of 1¼. Wisconsin Central preferred rose ¾. Colorado Fuel and Sugar declined ¾.

The opening hesitancy of the market was dispelled and rising quotations followed large buying of Reading, Baltimore & Ohio, Southern Pacific and the Wabash's. Wabash rose rapidly 2⅝ to 26 and then dropped to 24¼ on the next sale. The other stocks mentioned achieved gains of 1 to 1½ and there was a partial rise elsewhere over last day's close. Advances of a point were also made by Minneapolis, St. Paul & Sault Ste. Marie preferred, Kansas City Southern preferred, Twin City, Rapid Transit, Delaware & Hudson, Brooklyn Gas, Reading second preferred, Chicago & Alton and Hide and Leather preferred. North American improved 2, Cotton Oil 2¾ and General Electric 2½. Taking of profits on reports of possible gold exports turned the market downward and the active stocks fell below the opening level. Missouri Pacific declined a point and Canadian Pacific 1⅜.

The decline carried Union Pacific, Louisville & Nashville, Amalgamated and Colorado Fuel 1 to 1⅝ under last night's close. Reading again led the rally when the export of gold was reported to be abandoned with an advance to a point over last night. Pennsylvania, National of Mexico preferred and Northwestern also gained as much. Missouri Pacific, St. Paul, Union Pacific, Southern Pacific, Atchison, Canadian Pacific, Baltimore & Ohio, Louisville and Amalgamated rallied a point. Trading was light. Westinghouse Electric rose 5 and the first preferred 20 over the preceding sale prices. Bonds were irregular at noon. Colorado Fuel convertibles broke 4¾ and rallied 1. An additional break of 5⅜ to 30 in Colorado Fuel checked the upward tendency elsewhere and the market reacted a fraction. Renewed large orders for Pennsylvania and Reading lifted them as well as other active stocks to the best prices of the morning. Atchison rose a point net. Colorado Fuel rallied 4⅜, but the convertible bonds lagged. The market became quite dull and at the top prices but held well.

The lack of buying demand caused prices to fall back slight. Pennsylvania had risen about 2 points before any check was encountered and its reaction of ⅞ dragged back the coalers. Prices then rallied again sluggishly. Consolidated Gas declined 1½ from the highest, while Southern Railway preferred gained a similar amount.

Manhattan, Brooklyn Transit, Toledo, St. Louis & Western and Atchison preferred rose 1 to 1⅝. General Electric 4⅞, and New York, Chicago & St. Louis preferred 4⅝. Pennsylvania touched 127, before realizing began to make inroads upon prices. Selling was light but prices yielded easily and the gains were completely wiped out before the close, which saved a point. Selling fell off below last night's level of prices and there was a slight recovery. The closing was lifeless and heavy.

STOCK GOSSIP.

Waldorf & Astor Commission Co.: Despite the disappointing weakness of the market and the fact that the reaction went further than expected the theory that stocks are a purchase finds many advocates. There is no talk of any immediate bull movement, the latter being opposed by the large interests which though bullish for the pull, are against any great activity in speculation at present. But these interests believe that in the main, the tendency of the market will be upward and that there will be a gradual recovery from which it is regarded as abnormal depression. It is argued that heavy declines of the past six months and the prevailing low range of prices imply almost general crop failure, whereas the outlook notwithstanding a poor start for corn is for an average harvest. Money situation is giving less concern than of late and the indications are that the cash holdings of the banks will soon be augmented by arrivals of gold from the Klondike and Australia. The rumor is received tonight that the difference between the Pennsylvania and the Gould-Rockefeller interests and which are the outgrowth of the Wabash extension to Pittsburg, have been adjusted, but that official announcement will not be made until toward the end of the month. The matter has such an important bearing on the speculative situation that the report is discussed with great interest for there is a strong belief that the return of peace among these factions would be a great help to return confidence. Commenting on the day's market, brokers say that the decline uncovered buying orders by the same financial factors which turned prices upward last week. When the bears discovered the source of the orders they covered freely, which together with the purchases of the commission houses, gave the market a rally.

Logan & Bryan to Paine, Webber & Co.: The market is without material change. The bear element is still struggling for lower prices but aside from that there is very little selling pressure and the general tone is quieter. Nothing new in the gossip. The situation seems to us one where the properties are selling on a fair basis and that on the weak spots they will be well supported. Whenever the bears raid the market we would buy stocks. On the other hand think we will run into a quiet market the next few weeks unless something new develops.

* * *

Ridgeley to W. H. Laidley & Co.: The market looks like going higher. I hope you picked up some cheap stocks yesterday. The market declined to about as I told you it would. St. Paul is emphatically the best stock to buy. It has laid a fine foundation around 150 and ought to sell above 160 before this move is over. The break yesterday was manipulated so the insiders could pick up some more.

New York to Paine, Webber & Co.: The Missouri Pacific April net increase in earnings is $234,000, and the four month's net increase $1,221,000.

Town Topics: The action of the market yesterday demonstrated that their are two sides to it and that the largest interests are prepared to support it on drives. The outlook favors further short covering today and Mr. J. W. Gates has primed to come down and "whoop 'em up" a little. We do not look for anything more than a traders' market for a time and would buy good stocks only when they are weak and sell when the market is strong after rallies. Notwithstanding the Colorado Fuel explanation there are strong bear points on the stock in well informed quarters. It may be supported this morning, however. The stock is a very dangerous one owing to violent fluctuations. We are very bullish on Baltimore & Ohio and believe that U. P. should be bought on all drops. It is understood that Keene is getting ready to put up U. S. Steel bonds. London early market for Americans was firm.

THE COTTON MARKET.

New York, June 17.—The cotton market opened firm at an advance of 9@10 points in response to unexpectedly strong cables, which at the New York opening showed a net rise of 12½@13 on the old crop months and unchanged prices to a decline of 2 points on the new crop, instead of the decline expected to conform with the lower closing yesterday. There was a bullish rise elsewhere over last night's close. Advances of a point were also made by Minneapolis, St. Paul & Sault Ste. Marie preferred, Kansas City Southern preferred, Twin City, Rapid Transit, Delaware & Hudson, Brooklyn Gas, Reading second preferred, Chicago & Alton and Hide and Leather preferred. North American improved 2, Cotton Oil 2¾ and General Electric 2½. Taking of profits on reports of possible gold exports turned the market downward and the active stocks fell below the opening level. Missouri Pacific declined a point and Canadian Pacific 1⅜.

The decline carried Union Pacific, Louisville & Nashville, Amalgamated and Colorado Fuel 1 to 1⅝ under last night's close. Reading again led the rally when the export of gold was reported to be abandoned with an advance to a point over last night. Pennsylvania, National of Mexico preferred and Northwestern also gained as much. Missouri Pacific, St. Paul, Union Pacific, Southern Pacific, Atchison, Canadian Pacific, Baltimore & Ohio, Louisville and Amalgamated rallied a point. Trading was light. Westinghouse Electric rose 5 and the first preferred 20 over the preceding sale prices. Bonds were irregular at noon. Colorado Fuel convertibles broke 4¾ and rallied 1. An additional break of 5⅜ to 30 in Colorado Fuel checked the upward tendency elsewhere and the market reacted a fraction. Renewed large orders for Pennsylvania and Reading lifted them as well as other active stocks to the best prices of the morning. Atchison rose a point net. Colorado Fuel rallied 4⅜, but the convertible bonds lagged. The market became quite dull and at the top prices but held well.

The lack of buying demand caused prices to fall back slight. Pennsylvania had risen about 2 points before any check was encountered and its reaction of ⅞ dragged back the coalers. Prices then rallied again sluggishly. Consolidated Gas declined 1½ from the highest, while Southern Railway preferred gained a similar amount.

Manhattan, Brooklyn Transit, Toledo, St. Louis & Western and Atchison preferred rose 1 to 1⅝. General Electric 4⅞, and New York, Chicago & St. Louis preferred 4⅝. Pennsylvania touched 127, before realizing began to make inroads upon prices. Selling was light but prices yielded easily and the gains were completely wiped out before the close, which saved a point. Selling fell off below last night's level of prices and there was a slight recovery. The closing was lifeless and heavy.

IN MARINE CIRCLES

Capt. Thomas Johnson Becomes Chicago Manager of Tug Trust.

More British Boats Are Brought to the Lake Trade.

Chicago, June 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—Capt. Thomas Johnson, chief engineer of the Great Lakes Towing company on Lake Michigan, has been appointed local manager of the company, taking the place of the late Capt. James R. Sinclair. The appointment is but temporary but it is believed that it will be made permanent by the officials of the tug trust. The selection meets with general indorsement among marine men. Capt. Johnson has been with the Dunham company for over twenty years.

BROUGHT TO THE LAKES.

Two More British Boats Placed In the Trade.

Two more British built vessels have been brought to Canada by the Canadian Lake and Ocean Navigation company and will operate between Fort William and Montreal. These vessels are the second and third to be brought from England this year.

The boats are 239 feet long, 37 feet in beam and 24 feet in depth of hold and they will be placed in the grain and general merchandise trade between Fort William and Montreal.

This fleet will be the second line of vessels to be put on the run between Lake Superior ports and the Canadian seaports this year. The Great Lakes and St. Lawrence Transportation company has already six of a fleet of ten launched. Its terminals are Duluth and Quebec.

The placing of these two lines of vessels in commission is largely due to the encouragement offered shipping by the Canadian government to use the Canadian canals and the Canadian eastern terminals. The abatement of tolls and the extensive improvements to the dockage facilities at Montreal and Quebec are two methods used by the Canadian authorities to encourage shipping by the Canadian route.

The names of the two new vessels which are expected to reach Fort William this week with cargoes of steel rails are the A. E. Ames and the H. M. Pellatt. They were built in Newcastle, England.

VESSELS LAID UP.

The propellors Swain and the schooners Crosthwaite and Bacon of the Gilchrist fleet have been laid up at Cleveland, owing to the scarcity of cargoes and the increase in the crafts expenses in wages, the owners claiming that it does not pay to operate them.

It is reported that the propeller Waverly and the barges Montana, Moonlight, George and Twin Sisters of the same line will also be laid up.

TROY'S FAST RUN.

The freighter Troy of the Western Transit company, is claimed to have made record time between Sault Ste. Marie and Detroit on her last trip down the lakes.

She passed the Sault last Thursday evening at 9:20 o'clock and passed Detroit the following evening at 8:30 o'clock, making the run in twenty-three hours and ten minutes. The distance is 354 miles, which would make the average time for the trip 15.3 miles per hour. This is said to be the fastest time ever made by a freighter between the two ports.

SENT TO ASHLAND.

The M. B. Grover came up from Lake Erie this morning with a load of coal, but was turned back to Ashland to unload.

MORE GRAIN COMING.

Chicago, June 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—Considerable grain will be placed for shipment today at former Buffalo rates. Grain is coming in better than it has since the opening of navigation and is being sent forward as fast as it comes in.

THE GILLEN'S WRECK.

The following report of Maj. Lansing H. Beach, corps of engineers, dated June 3, 1903, in reference to the tug Gillen, wrecked in the vicinity of Superior Pier Head from light, has been published by the hydrographic office for the information of engineers:

The tug Edward Gillen was sunk in the lake near Superior entry, May 3, 1903, in a thick fog, by collision with the steamer Maunaloa. Its exact position is not known. The master of the sunken tug moored a buoy as near the position of the wreck as he was able to judge, and the latter was searched for, but without success. The position of the buoy is N. 20 degrees 45 minutes E. true (N. by E. ¼ E. Ely mag.), distant 2200 feet from the outer light at the Superior entry. The depth of water at this point is forty-seven feet at the present stage. The height of the tug's smokestack above the keel is stated by the owners to be twenty-five feet, so that if the wreck lay upright on the bottom there would still be twenty-two feet above the stack and it would not be an obstruction.

As, however, the wreck may be farther inshore and in shoaler water it would be better for masters of vessels to keep outside of the above described locality until in front of Superior entry.

TWO NEW HOUSES

Reported That Duluth May Have Two More Theaters.

Klaw & Erlanger Will Build New Popular Price Houses.

The merry war of theatrical organizations in Duluth is still being waged.

Since the first declaration of hostilities by Richard Ferris a month ago the tussle has been continuous.

Two opera companies have been plodding along and the scene was interpolated by court proceedings and announcement by Mr. Ferris of a $25,000 damage suit.

The situation, apparently has not been as expansive as it might, for rumors of the construction of two new theaters are now afloat.

It is said that the old Temple theater is about to be rebuilt; that figures on contracts for the work have been solicited and secured, and that those interested in it will go East to secure attractions and the fittings for a theater, and to Grand Rapids soon to have opera chairs figured on.

Klaw & Erlanger are also booked to put in a popular priced house on First street, with seating capacity for 2200 people, to be operated in connection with the Lyceum, which is booked to the limit with big attractions for next winter.

Today the report was rife, and practically confirmed, that a stock company would open at the Metropolitan theater, July 1, with old-time favorites in the company. It is understood that contracts have not been signed yet, but all is understood.

In connection with the rebuilding of the Temple, E. Z. Williams, who, with E. P. Alexander and others is interested in the property, had this to say:

"I am not going to rebuild the theater. Do I look foolish? If anyone desires to rebuild it, and wants to put the money into it, I will offer no objections, but so far as I am concerned I have no plans of that kind. There have been stories of the rebuilding of that theater in the air for years—ever since it was burned. It was foolish talk. Lately the stories have been revived, but the situation is the same. It looks to me as if it would be a heavy loser."

Nevertheless, parties who are supposed to be interested in the venture are said to still be talking it, and were together this morning.

Dick Ferris is also willing to rent a theater if he can find a builder.

In regard to the Klaw & Erlanger popular-priced house, C. A. Marshall, of the Lyceum theater, said:

"When I was in New York recently Mr. Ettinger talked of a new theater here. Later capital to build it was secured, and the plans are in the hands of an architect who has designed several of the new houses in the Northwest, in the Klaw & Erlanger string of houses. There is no hurry about its erection, though it could be put up within twelve months if necessary. It will be a theater house, with a 75-foot width, ample stage room and will seat 600 on the lower floor.

"The necessity for the house is quite plain, considering the future development of Duluth, and the arrangements perfected for the Klaw & Erlanger productions for next season. The house will be built, but when, it is hardly possible to state."

Manager Scott of the Twin Cities houses, Mr. Ferris and others have been to see Mr. Marshall recently, presumably to discuss that subject. The managers of several theaters in the Northwestern Theater Managers association, of which Mr. Marshall is president, have also conferred with the president recently and on the question of open time.

Klaw & Erlanger have now a string of seventy theaters between Seattle and Duluth. They are looked after by three managers, John Cort, of Seattle, C. P. Walker, of Winnipeg, and C. A. Marshall, of Duluth. These three men met in New York with the syndicate a month ago and made arrangements to take care of the booking of a score of heavy productions through from here to the coast the coming season, and establish a routing that will be of the greatest value to the system of theatrical distribution.

The new arrangement will permit the heavy productions to spend several weeks on the trip to the coast, and time is being made up at the present writing in New York for several of the big Broadway productions, which take to the road this fall, for several weeks on this string of houses.

The result of this will be that the Lyceum in Duluth will be crowded with them all season. Mr. Erlanger told the local management that the booking into the Lyceum this year would include more of the big attractions than there has been seen here in any two years previously. This has been done on account of the showing made by several of the big companies here last spring, notably the Warfield and the Heid engagements.

The new aggregation of houses practically means everything northwest of Chicago, for the Wisconsin and Michigan houses are all in the Northwestern association, of which Mr. Marshall is the president. Then comes the Middle West, with Mr. Walker's Minnesota, Dakota and Canadian houses, and the individual houses through Dakota, Montana and Idaho to the coast states. It means that no company can travel from Chicago to the coast by the northern route unless under Klaw & Erlanger booking, and the best of the companies are anxious to get to the coast.

In view of these circumstances, and the fact that the popular priced attractions must be taken care of, the arrangements for a new house were made, and Klaw & Erlanger are ready to hold the ground.

The theatrical situation still continues to be a tangled one in Duluth, however, and is attracting a whole lot of attention in New York and throughout the country. With 100 theatrical people here and a delicate situation, the outcome is awaited with eager interest both here and elsewhere, where the theatrical trust is operative.

A GREAT LABOR PARADE.

Philadelphia, June 17.—Probably the greatest labor parade demonstration ever witnessed in this city took place today, when thousands of striking textile workers marched from Independence hall to the city hall, where a mass meeting was held. The feature of the parade was the army of children who are employed in the textile mills. Each youthful parader carried a small American flag.

It was reported this noon that a good idea has been obtained of the definite location of the sunken tug.

WORKINGMEN ARE BEATEN

Berlin, June 17.—The Tagebiatt today in mail advices from Lodz, Russian Poland, gives an account of disturbances there on Monday last. About 5000 young workingmen, Jews, paraded the streets in an orderly manner, but as a Socialist demonstration. The police, in view of the number of those engaged, called on the Cossacks for aid and then the police and Cossacks charged the workingmen, beating them with the flat of their swords and with their fists, and mercilessly continued the beatings after a number had been arrested and helpless, and further beat them when the prisoners were taken into the police station, where, according to advices "blood ran in rivulets."

It is reported that ten men were beaten to death and that, of the 100 who were arrested, all were wounded seriously. Surgeons worked for five hours sewing up wounds, after the fury of the police had been spent.

ESTIMATES TOO HIGH.

Heppner, Ore., June 17.—Confusion has been so great here that no accurate estimate of the number of lives lost by the flood could be made, and it is believed that all estimates sent out heretofore have been too high.

Last night 130 bodies had been recovered, and it is believed that the total number of dead will not exceed 200.

FORGERY IS ALLEGED

Another Indictment Is to Be Asked Against Machen.

Important Developments In Money Order Department Expected.

Washington, June 17.—It is believed that the grand jury will shortly be asked by the postoffice authorities to find another indictment against A. W. Machen, the former superintendent of the free delivery system. The charge, it is said, will be forgery, based upon the cashing of a check for $389, drawn by the cashier of the New York postoffice in favor of Henry L. Lorenz, of Toledo, Ohio. It is claimed that the money was to have been sent to Mr. Lorenz. The check was cashed in this city, being endorsed by Frank K. Raymond, who says he had the check cashed for Mr. Machen. Mr. Lorenz has declared that the signatures, both on the check and voucher accompanying it, are forgeries. He declares that he has not received a cent of money, and has no knowledge of the transaction.

An important development in the postal investigation is expected this afternoon, but the utmost secrecy is observed at the department. It is believed that the affair concerns the money order service of the department, in which many millions of dollars are handled annually. James Metcalfe, the superintendent of this service, was summoned today to the private office of Fourth Assistant Postmaster General Bristow, where he was examined by Mr. Bristow, Inspector Fosnes, the general superintendent of the free delivery system of the department and Mrs. Barstow's chief assistant in the investigation, Assistant Attorney General Robb and others.

It is known that the controversy over the contract for the printing of the money order paper was thoroughly considered. The Wynecoop, Hallenbeck, Crawford company, of New York, of which Norman Metcalfe, a son of the head of the money order bureau, is an employe, has had the contract for many years and Paul Herman, of Rutherford, N. J., the lowest bidder whom the bidders claim is unable to fulfill the contract, is making a determined fight for the contract, his bid being $15,000 less than the others. Superintendent Metcalfe has urged that the lowest bidder is unqualified to fill the contract, as he has no plant. Immediately after the examination of Mr. Metcalfe, Mr. Bristow and Mr. Robb hurried to the office of Postmaster General Payne, where with First Assistant Postmaster General Wynne, who has supervision of the money order service and who granted the public hearing in the interest of the lowest bidder, the whole subject was discussed and the laws governing the matter were taken up. Later Mr. Payne went to the White House and spent half an hour in consultation with the president.

SHE SINGS IN THE BIG HALL

Harriet Packard, of Brooke's Band, Is In the City.

"Tom" Brooke still remembers Duluth. He used to be a bandmaster in Duluth, but since he left he has risen to pinacles of fame as a leader.

It was some regard for the town that held him in his earlier career that caused him last week to give Miss Harriet Packard, one of his soloists, a few days' rest here, and she will sing the rest of the week with the Northwestern Opera company in "The Bohemian Girl", as the gypsy queen.

Miss Packard has been here two days now, and is making a canvass of many of the old friends of Mr. Brooke.

Mr. Brooke is now conducting daily concerts at the Collseum, the rebuilt Collseum, at Chicago, and has been making a howling success. He has been in the building going on the third week now, having opened in Joliet, three weeks ago.

His Joliet engagement was shorter than many that are played there by professionals of other talents.

Miss Packard is the chief soloist of the organization, and sang at the opening engagement. Since then she has been at the Coliseum, trying out for solo work that will be done there in a few days.

Up to this time Mr. Brooke has not attempted to have his soloists, because he is not sure what the result would be. The building is just one block square, with a depth about half as high as the building is wide. Several singers are being heard in the building by Mr. Brooke and he will probably bring out the solo feature in a week or so.

Miss Packard says that her rehearsals there have been quite satisfactory, and she has been able to make her voice reach the block, though the accoustics of the building are anything but favorable in quality.

Football is usually played in the building in the winter time and at the side lines it is hard to hear the 15—24—18—17— business the captains use.

It will need several soloists, as one person would not be able to sing very often and retain any vestige of a voice.

"I have been with Mr. Brooke for some years now," said Miss Packard last evening, "and have sung in the east largely. For you must know that Mr. Brooke is the only man who ever has had nerve enough to form a musical organization of the kind out of New York, and go into that city and make a Metropolitan success.

"At the Collseum this year he is simply packing the people in. He went into the house after a rank failure of the organization which had the place last summer, and is going to stay there until late in September.

"Mr. Brooke used to have an organization here in Duluth that they tell me was a very good one. He always had some lively ideas in the conduct of bands and orchestras, and he put them into effect when he organized his traveling aggregation.

"For instance, he is the first leader who turned his band from facing the audience, and direct, himself facing the audience. He has also introduced other innovations in the direction of the Chicago Marine Band and Orchestra, which is the name of his organization."

BARGAIN $100 BARGAIN

We had the good fortune to get two car loads of PIANOS AT A GREAT SACRIFICE—Beautiful, rich, artistic designs—When we are fortunate in our purchases we give the prospective buyer the advantage of our good luck. These instruments—36 in the lot—are from one of the most prominent piano manufacturers in the East. This lot was made up for a merchant in the flooded district, whose business was so badly demoralized by ruined crops, etc., that the order had to be cancelled—just when ready for shipment. We purchased the entire lot at a saving of over $100 on every instrument. These instruments retail regular at $250, $300 and as high as $375. We have them in mahogany and walnut only—brand new 1903 models.

THE COMPLETE COLLECTION OF 36 MODERN, UP-TO-DATE PIANOS

WILL BE PLACED ON SALE TOMORROW AT

$167.50

We may say that this is the greatest opportunity ever offered by the Duluth Music Company, which is saying a great deal. The good fortune in securing these instruments was ours—we are making it yours too. Every piano is warranted to give fullest satisfaction or money refunded. It will be to your interest to be among the first to MAKE A SELECTION.

CAN EASILY GET AROUND IT

It is the opinion of those who have investigated the decision of the supreme court that West Superior will not be cut out of the itinerary of a trip to and from St. Paul over the Northern Pacific road. It is believed that all the state railway and warehouse commission can do in the matter is to see that all trains are run through Minnesota straight to and from the Union depot. If desired the company could then back its trains over to West Superior. In starting out it could start them from West Superior and on striking this side the run to St. Paul would be made entirely through Minnesota territory.

Some prominent West End citizens who have been largely instrumental in securing an order from the courts compelling the Northern Pacific to restablish the Twentieth avenue depot and run trains over the old St. Paul & Duluth tracks, are of the opinion that the city, in going into the matter at this late date, will only offer the Northern Pacific an opportunity or reasonable excuse for not reinstituting the old service as soon as had been anticipated.

Denies Its Negligence.

An answer has been filed in the United States circuit court in the personal injury case of Alden Anderson against the Drake & Stratton company.

The defendant admits that the plaintiff met with an accident which necessitated the amputation of a leg while in the company's employ, but denies that the accident was due to the negligence of the company or of any of the employees of the company, claiming that Anderson met with the accident while engaged in switching cars on a spur belonging to the Drake & Stratton company and sued to recover $30,000 damages, to which amount he claimed he had suffered.

DERBY TRIALS.

Chicago, June 17.—Derby trial at Harlem today brought one of the largest crowds of season. The other races had their features, of course, but the mass in the grand stand were more interested in the probable derby winner. The top notchers had their backers. Savable had many backers. Linguist found many friends and Bernays was believed to be the saviour of many o "sure thing" better.

The grand stand was filled completely with a semi-holiday crowd and the betting ring was doing a land office business. In the big race today Au Revoir, Manra and Claude are scratched, leaving a field of seven horses to battle for place and probably placing a candidate for a derby winner Saturday.

A. R. TALBOTT HEAD CONSUL

Woodmen Elect Officers After Considerable Wrangling.

Indianapolis, June 17.—Wrangling in the Woodmen's convention began early today. The administration forces wanted the consideration of insurance rates postponed until Friday and take up the election of officehs. The election resulted as follows:

Head consul, A. R. Talbott, Nebraska; head adviser, D. B. Horne, Iowa; head clerk, Charles W. Hawes, Illinois; head banker, P. R. Smith, Missouri; directors, G. W. Reilly, of Illinois; C. G. Saunders, of Iowa; R. P. Smith, of Missouri; E. E. Murphy, of Kansas; C. J. Byrnes, of Michigan.

The antis presented no candidates. W. H. Murray, representing the California promotion committee, is here working to secure the 1904 convention for his state.

THE DEWEY TRIAL.

St. Francis, Kas., June 17.—The same curious crowds were on hand today when the preliminary hearing of Chauncey Dewey, W. J. McBride and Clyde Wilson, charged with the Berry murders, was resumed. The same precautions against violence were taken, every one who entered the court room being searched, and soldiers stood guard at every door and around the prisoners.

The first witness called was E. M. Phillips, a member of the coroner's jury that examined the bodies of the Berrys, testified that of the dead, Birch Berry was the only one armed.

M. P. Week, who visited the Berry home immediately after the shooting, testified that Birch Berry's weapon had not been taken from its holster and that no weapon had been found on the others.

MORTGAGE FORECLOSURE SALE.—Default has been made in the payment of the sum of seven thousand two hundred and ninety-eight dollars ($7298.00), which is claimed to be due and is due at the date of this notice upon a certain mortgage, duly executed and delivered by Ronald M. Hunter and Josephine C. Hunter, his wife, mortgagors, to William E. Lucas, mortgagee, bearing date the seventh day of January, 1897, and with a power of sale therein contained, duly recorded in the office of the register of deeds in and for the county of St. Louis and state of Minnesota, on the 28th day of January, 1897, at 1:30 o'clock p. m., in Book 111 of Mortgages, on page 112.

Which said mortgage, together with the debt secured thereby, was duly assigned by said William E. Lucas, mortgagee, to the undersigned D. A. Burke, by written assignment dated the 28th day of January, 1897, and recorded in the office of said register of deeds, on the 28th day of January, 1897, at 1:30 o'clock p. m., in Book 108 of mortgages, on page 475; and no action or proceedings has been instituted, at law or otherwise, to recover the debt secured by said mortgage or any part thereof.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given, that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in and conveyed by said mortgage, situated in the county of St. Louis and state of Minnesota, viz:

An undivided one-half of lots numbered twenty-five (25) and sixty-six (66), St. Louis avenue; one hundred thirty-six (136) Minnesota avenue; one hundred twenty-five (125) and one hundred thirty-one (131), Lake avenue, Upper Duluth; also lots numbered two hundred seventy-one (271), one hundred sixty-nine (169), one hundred seventy (170), fifty-six (56), St. Louis avenue; three hundred and sixty-five (365), Minnesota avenue; fifty-three (53), sixty-four (64), one hundred thirty-eight (138), one hundred seventy-seven (177), two hundred twenty-six (226), two hundred forty-one (241), two hundred sixty-one (261), and three hundred and twenty-six (326), Lake avenue, Lower Duluth, according to the recorded plats thereof, with the hereditaments and appurtenances; which sale will be made by the sheriff of said St. Louis county, at the front door of the court house, in the city of Duluth, in said county and state, on the 16th day of June, 1903, at ten o'clock a. m. of that day, at public vendue, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said mortgage debt and interest, and the taxes, if any, on said premises, and fifty ($50) dollars attorney's fees, as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law; subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale, as provided by law.

Dated May 1st, A. D., 1903.

D. A. BURKE,
Assignee of Mortgage.
CRASSWELLER & CRASSWELLER,
Attorneys for said Assignee.

Notice is hereby given that the mortgage sale mentioned in the foregoing notice has been postponed to take place at ten o'clock a. m. of Tuesday, the 23rd day of June, 1903, at the same place mentioned in the said foregoing advertisement.

Dated, June 16, 1903.

SCANDAL OVER TIME CLOCKS

Why Was Four-Year Contract Suddenly Made?

Enough Clocks Bought to Last Several Years.

FROM THE HERALD WASHINGTON BUREAU.

Washington, June 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—Charges to the effect that the present contract with Bundy Time Clock company, of Binghamton, N. Y., was executed without legal authority, have been filed with Postmaster General Payne, and while the inspectors are busy in New York and elsewhere looking into the methods by which it is alleged clerks and carriers combined to fraudulently register their time, Fourth Assistant Postmaster General Bristow is trying to find out why a four-year contract with the Bundy company was suddenly executed in March, 1903, in the face of a favorable report on the Dey time register, made in Syracuse, N. Y., when, up to that time, the department had simply extended its contract with the Bundy company from year to year. He would also like to know if it is true, as has been stated, that Bundy clocks were sold to private firms in this city for much less than the price to the postoffice department. It is rumored that as a result of this investigation Mr. Bristow will recommend that the department dispense with the use of the clock altogether.

The Bundy clock is operated by means of keys, the time being recorded on a long piece of tape. It is said the keys cost 50 cents a piece and each carrier is required to have three or four of them, which have to be replaced frequently as the metal is so soft that they easily wear out. The time is assembled by time clerks. The Dey register is operated by a lever and the clock assembles the time mechanically.

Postmaster General Payne has referred to Fourth Assistant Postmaster General Bristow a letter from N. B. Baker, representing the Dey Time Register company, in which Mr. Baker does not mince terms in referring to George W. Beavers, late superintendent of salaries and allowances, or to John Masten, formerly chief clerk of the first assistant postmaster general. It is said that Beavers secured Masten his place as chief clerk, for the two had become very intimate in the Brooklyn, N. Y., postoffice, when they were employed there, but that they had a disagreement and their relations were not so pleasant during the last few months of Mr. Masten's incumbency. First Assistant Postmaster Genery Wynne had Masten transferred from his position as chief clerk as soon as he assumed office, and Beavers resigned at the commencement of the investigation which is now going on.

In his letter to the postmaster general, Mr. Baker alleges that Robert B. Brown, Jr., who is associated with the law firm of former Senator John M. Thurston, brought one of the Dey clocks to Washington in September, 1901, and that Mr. Masten directed Postmaster Merritt, of Washington, to give it a trial. He did so and he, the chief timekeeper, and the superintendent of the delivery, made a highly favorable report. Mr. Baker says that Mr. Beavers informed him that Masten had ordered the report to be filed away and no answer made. Up to this time the contract had been simply extended from year to year, but when the report on the Dey clock was received the situation was changed and while Masten was acting first assistant postmaster general, in the absence of then First Assistant Postmaster General Johnson, he executed a four-year contract with the Bundy company. Mr. Baker points out that the law reads: "The postmaster may, if the good of the service requires it, enter into four-year contracts for supplies for the delivery service." He comments on this in very caustic language, saying:

"The gentlemen who were responsible for this contract will lose all their teeth and their tongues will wear out in attempting to show the public that there was sthe necessity for it. * * * If the contract had been made under ordinary circumstances for four years without advertising, without competition, and without the public necessity, which the law requires, the act would have been absolutely indefensible. But when it was made in the face of a favorable report by officials of your department on another

CRIMINAL MANAGEMENT OF POSTOFFICE DEPARTMENT IS REVEALED BY BRISTOW

Reply of Fourth Assistant Postmaster General to Tulloch's Charges Causes Sensation.

Shows That Wholesale Frauds Were Known to Exist and Were Covered By High Officials.

Washington, June 18.—Postmaster General Payne yesterday made public the reply of Fourth Assistant Postmaster General Bristow to the charges of Seymour E. Tulolch, formerly cashier of the Washington city postoffice, regarding the irregularities in the postal administration and also reports of inspection and investigation of the Washington postoffice by inspectors between June 30, 1889, and July 31, 1900, together with the transcript of the Tulloch charges, made two years ago and the conclusions thereon then reached by Postmaster General Charles Emory Smith.

These papers constitute by far the most significant documents yet made public as a result of the sweeping postal investigation. The reports show the existence of many irregularities during the period involved. The inspector who instigated the investigation reports that the files of postoffices cases show direct orders from superior authority for the disbursement of all the questionable items therein contained. The inspector urged that the responsibility for the many illegal appointments, the payment of two salaries to one and the same person and the disbursement of thousands of dollars for which particularly no service was performed should be placed where it properly belongs and the many abuses corrected."

In the summary of the several reports the postmaster general says:

"The charge of Mr. Tulloch is in its essence against President McKinley and Postmaster General Smith. President McKinley is no longer living. Postmaster General Smith, who carried out President McKinley's policy, has answered for himself. With regard to the present management of the Washington postoffice and the conduct of any and all men charged with wrongdoing, who have been in the postal service under the present administration, a thorough and searching investigation is now being made and when it is ended all the facts in the case will be made public as also whatever action may be taken in view of such facts."

The postmaster general says:

"It will be seen that the whole subject was taken up by Postmaster General Smith and investigated by him. At the same time all matters referred to in the charge affecting the payment of bills, accounts and financial dealings generally were under investigation by the comptroller of the treasury and all expenditures referred to were allowed by the auditor and comptroller, with the exception of $180."

Mr. Payne quotes from the recently published reply of Mr. Smith and adds that "these papers are now published in order to complete the public understanding, a large part of which have already been published."

"The letters follow without review for the reason that they refer to the policy of the former administration.

"The subject matter is old and covered over two years."

The letters now published showed that Mr. Payne wrote a letter to Mr. Bristow on May 1 last, calling attention to a letter published by Mr. Tulloch, and asking Mr. Bristow what "truth, if any, there is in the statements, particularly that portion which speaks of your connection and of postoffice inspectors."

Mr. Bristow's reply in full, dated three days later, is as follows:

"In response to your inquiry of May 1, 1903, as to the truth or falsity of the as-

SUPERINTENDENT METCALF OUSTED

Head of Money Order Department Dismissed For Indiscretion In Awarding Contracts.

Washington, June 18.—As a result of alleged indiscretion in matters pertaining to the award of contracts for printing the money order forms of the government, James T. Metcalf, for many years superintendent of the money order system of the postoffice department, yesterday was removed from office by the postmaster-general. A full investigation of the case will be made later. The dismissal is the result of acts of Mr. Metcalf in opposition to the bid of Paul Herman of Rutherford, N. J., the lowest bidder by $45,000 and in favor of the next highest bidder, the Wynkop-Hallenbeck-Crawford company of New York, of which Metcalf's son is an employe.

The story is briefly told in the following letter of dismissal signed by Postmaster General Payne at 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon:

"Washington, June 17—Mr. James T. Metcalf, superintendent of Money Order System, postoffice department.

"Sir: You are hereby removed from the position of superintendent of the money order system.

"The charges upon which your removal is based relate to your actions in the matter of the letting of the contract for money order forms. These charges were made known to you this morning by Fourth Assistant Postmaster General Bristow and Assistant Attorney General Robb of the postoffice department and a transcript of your answer thereto is enclosed herewith.

"It appears from your answer that when the proposals of the different competitors for the contract of supplying money order forms were opened, Paul Herman of Rutherford, New Jersey, (formerly employed as foreman by the Wynkop - Hallenbeck - Crawford company of New York, by which company it seems your son is also employed) was found to be the lowest bidder, his proposal being $45,000 below that of the next higher bidder, namely, the Wynkop-Hallenbeck-Crawford company; that the bid of Herman as submitted, was regular in form and that he had deposited a certified check for $5,000 as a forfeit.

"It further appears that within a day or two the Wynkop-Hallenbeck-Crawford company filed a protest against awarding the contract to Herman, alleging that he was not financially responsible; that a short time thereafter Mr. Herman called at your office, and you advised him to withdraw his bid, and re-enter the employment of the Wynkop-Hellenbeck-Crawford company, understanding at the time that such withdrawal would result in the contract being awarded to said company and consequently in a saving to the government; that you offered to write, and did write a letter to said company, appraising them of your interview with Herman and using your good offices in his behalf; that you advised Herman that his $5,000 deposit would probably be returned to him if he adopted your suggestion.

"It further appears that you regarded Mr. Herman as possessing the mechanical qualifications requisite to the performance of the contract, and that it was not any part of your duty to pass on the question of his responsibility, financial or otherwise. It also

PROSECUTOR IS FEARLESS

Arraigns Jackson Assassins Mercilessly.

The Jett-White Case Has Gone to the Jury.

Jackson, Ky., June 18.—The case of Curtis Jett and Tom White, on trial for the murder of J. B. Marcum, was given to the jury at 11:30 this morning.

Jackson, Ky., June 18.—There was another "circus crowd" here today to hear the closing arguments in the case of Curtis Jett and Thomas White, on trial for the murder of J. B. Marcum. The pleadings of Judge B. F. French, John D. O'Neal and B. B. Golden for the defense, and of Capt. William L. Hurst and Thomas Marcum for the prosecution, yesterday and last night, had attracted so much attention that all wanted to hear Commonwealth Attorney Byrd close the case this morning. The mothers of the defendants, widows of feud victims, and other ladies, were again present. While all men entering the court room were searched every day for concealed weapons, extra precautions were taken today by the soldiers, as there are grave apprehensions as to what may happen with such a crowd in town after the trial is concluded. If it is a hung jury, it is stated that Governor Beckham, who has State Inspector Hines here looking on, will not have the next trials in Breathitt county, nor Judge Redwine sit in other cases. Inspector Hines came back to investigate the attempt to bribe Witness Ewen. Ewen had five witnesses to the attempt to bribe and threats of assassination and the destruction of his property.

There are grave fears today for some newspaper men. Two correspondents left yesterday, and their papers have sent new men, so they will not be known to the assassins. It is dangerous for one man to remain here long if his paper has a circulation in the town. When court convened today B. B. Golden, counsel for the defense, and Commonwealth Attorney Byrd made his argument, which was pronounced by attorneys as most convincing. Byrd has a reputation as a fearless prosecutor. When this case opened he announced that he proposed to do his duty, it mattered not who was hurt. Byrd has purchased a home in Winchester, Ky., and is preparing to remove his family to that place as soon as these cases are over. Byrd spoke of Ewen having to be protected by soldiers, fearing that he would be assassinated if he ventured from his home unprotected; of having been forced to remain under the protection of the soldiers since the trial. The defense objected frequently to his statements, and in some instances was sustained and the prosecutor reprimanded by the judge. O'Neal objected to a statement by Byrd that a motion had been made to dismiss the jury, which was sustained and Byrd proceeded. The case will go to the jury about noon.

Boyd asked the jury to be willing, if necessary, to make the same sacrifice that Captain Ewen had made for justice. Raising his hand aloft and shaking it threateningly toward two prominent men who sat in court, he said:

"I want to give warning to you and all of your followers that your blood thirsty duels must stop in Breathitt county.

"I leave this county and its people. God knows they have suffered enough, God knows the day has got to come when the arch assassins, the men who are the controlling powers behind the Jetts and Whites will be exposed to the world and either sent to prison or to the noose."

With clenched fists and shaking with emotion Boyd walked toward the jury and said:

"Gentlemen, you are on trial as well as Jett and White and you must answer to the bar of public opinion as well as the bar of Breathitt criminal court. You have got to do your duty or be pilloried by public opinion."

Boyd followed the testimony with merciless precision and lauded Ewen as a man, the superior of whom in manhood does not live. He was tierce in his denunciation of certain witnesses and others.

Lexington, Ky., June 18.—Captain B. J. Ewen was escorted to the Elks' hall here last night and given an ovation. He was brought into the room by a knight templar, whose lodge was giving a reception in honor of the sponsors and maids of honor from all over the state. The dance was stopped short and a rush was made for the refugee. Scores of young women clasped hands with him and declared him the bravest man in Kentucky.

"You are right, everbody is for you," was the chorus.

Captain Ewen was asked to go where the wines were flowing freely. He went but would not drink. He has never tasted intoxicating liquors nor used tobacco.

TRAGEDY IN CARD GAME ON LINER NARROWLY AVERTED

Poker Players on the Steamer Kaiser Wilhelm II Quarrel Over Game; Pistols Were Drawn and a Deadly Conflict Seemed Imminent.

New York, June 18.—Some of the passengers who have just returned from Europe on the steamer Kaiser Wilhelm II says a tragedy was narrowly averted two days before the liner reached port. The affair grew out of a card game. The names of the two men involved have not been learned. It was after midnight when the attention of persons in the smooking room was attracted by three men playing poker. One of the players who had called a large raise suddenly threw down his hand jumped up and struck the winner, whom he called a "cheat." In another moment the two men were locked together and struggling back and fourth about the room. Tumbling over a chair, both fell heavily. The smaller man managed to gain his freedom. As he jumped to his feet he reached for a weapon, but on the instant that he drew out a revolver the larger man dashed out on deck.

Running after him, the smaller man found himself looking down the barrel of a revolver heavier than his own. He hesitated for only an instant, and was whirling his own weapon into position to fire when the men who had been unwilling witnesses of the scrimmage rushed upon him from behind and pinioned his arms behind his back. The deck steward aided in quieting the two men and preventing further hostilities. The contestants were escorted to their state rooms and the affair was not heard of again.

TWENTY-SEVEN YEARS IN PRISON

New York, June 18.—After twenty-seven years behind prison bars Mrs. Emma Wimple is free through the pardon granted her a few days ago by Governor Odell. When the woman was escorted from the Matteawan hospital for the insane to the railroad station at Newburg, she appeared completely dazed at the strange sights.

Mrs. Wimple was sentenced to life imprisonment for poisoning her husband. She entered Sing Sing a pretty girl of 18 and emerged to liberty a gray haired woman of forty-five. Fifteen months ago she was found to be losing her reason and was taken to the asylum from which she has just been liberated. Apparently, she will soon entirely recover.

Mrs. Wimple will live with the sister of her husband. She poisoned the latter as the outcome of a love affair. The young man who was tried as her accomplice also was sentenced for life but died in prison many years ago.

INDIGNITIES AT HANDS OF MEXICANS

Tacoma, June 18.—R. B. Bryan and wife have arrived in Aberdeen, Washington, after an absence of six months in Mexico. He tells stories of many indignities suffered at the hands of Mexican officials at Guaymas. Bryan is a son of State School Superintendent Bryan and his word is not to be doubted. With his wife Bryan boarded a steamer at Alamosa for Guaymas, stopping at Mazatlan to put off mail. There they were quarantined and both men and women were treated in a scandalous manner. One Englishman, he says, tried to escape and was subsequently found dead with a bullet hole through his temple. Bryan says that the whole affair was presented to the American and British consuls at Guaymas before the officers took any action.

RIVAL CREWS WATCH EACH OTHER

Poughkeepsie, June 18.—There was something like fraternizing on the river today when the crews of Columbia, Pennsylvania and Wisconsin happened to get in each others' neighborhood, and the coaches and those with them on the launches had a favorable chance to see how their rivals were doing. The Badgers were first on the water. Coach O'Dea accompanied his men on the launch Queen City and talked to them almost constantly. The Badgers were just in front of the Pennsylvania boathouse when the Quaker crews came out, and after an exchange of salutations, Ellis Ward took his crews up the river, while Wisconsin followed in their wake. The Columbia crews were coming up the east shore. Their four, being in advance, fell in with the Wisconsin four. The two crews talked for a few minutes and then rowed away in an opposite direction.

STEAMER DAMAGED.

Naples, June 18.—The North German-Lloyd steamer Hohenzollern from New York June 4, has been slightly damaged in a collision with the Dutch steamer Konig. The latter sustained no damage.

CROCKER RE-ELECTED.

San Francisco, June 18.—Geo. Crocker has been re-elected a director and vice-president of the Kansas City, Mexico & Orient railroad.

THE CZAR HAS RECOGNIZED KARAGEORGEVITCH AS KING

Welcomes New Ruler, But Declares That Assassination of Alexander Must Be Avenged.

St. Petersburg, June 18.—An official note was published in the Gazette today recognizing Prince Peter Karageorgevitch as king of Servia and welcoming his ascension. In brief, the note declares that it is incumbent upon King Peter to avenge the assassinations of King Alexander and Queen Draga and expresses the conviction that he will know how to severely punish the regicides, whose misdeeds should not be visited on the entire Servian nation or army. The note adds that it would be dangerous to the tranquility of Servia to leave the crime unpunished. The text of the note follows: "A week has now elapsed since the day of the bloody revolution at Belgrade an intimation of which could not be given to the imperial government in the customary official form because legal authorities was lacking in Servia. Strictly adhering to her standpoint of non-intervention in the internal affairs of the Balkan states and at the same time finding it impossible to hold any intercourse with the persons who have arbitrarily usurped power, Russia has awaited the conclusion of the troubles in order to define clearly her attitude toward the events in the kingdom of Servia. The skupshtina and senate assembled in extraordinary session June 15, the legal order of things, was re-established and Prince Peter Karageorgevitch was elected king. The prince complying with the request of the national assembly has consented to ascend the throne of Servia under the name of Peter I. Immediately after the proclamation the new King telegraphed to the czar asking his imperial majesty to recognize him, whereupon the reply of his majesty in confirmation of this was sent.

"The imperial government, while hailing the election of the new monarch, scion of a glorious dynasty and wishing all success he has so well begun to the supreme head of the Servian people, which is allied to Russia by ties of religion, can nevertheless not refrain from expressing the confident hope that King Peter will be able to give evidence of his sense of justice and firmness of will by adopting measures at the outset to investigate the abominable misdeed which has been committed and mete out rigorous punishment to those traitorious criminals who have stained themselves with the infamy atttaching to regicides. Of course the entire Servian nation or army cannot be held responsible for the crime which revolts public conscience yet it would be dangerous to Servia's internal peace not to exact expiation for the revolution carried out with violence by the military. Such neglect would inevitably react in an unfavorable manner on the relations of all the states with Servia and would create for Servia serious difficulties at the very commencement of the reign of King Peter the First.

"Their Russian co-religionists offer to God supplications for the repose of the souls of King Alexander and Queen Draga who have met an untimely end and they invoke the blessing of the Almighty on the rule of King Peter for the welfare and prosperity of the Servian people."

Belgrade, June 18.—The telegram of Emperor Francis Jospeh of Austria to King Peter has not been published here, because of the emperor's strictures on the murders of King Alexander and Queen Draga.

Later in the day a leaflet, giving the text of Emperor Francis Joseph's telegram to King Peter, was circulated, but the strictures were so slurred in the translation that they were almost incomprehensible. The telegram, however, was otherwise so sympathetic that it was accepted here as being eminently satisfactory.

It appears that immediately after the assassinations the conspirators sounded the cabinets at St. Petersburg and Vienna and received assurances of their approval of the election of Prince Peter. The latter's eldest sister, Polixeni Pressoherun, the divorced wife of an Austrian landowner, who has been living for years in reduced circumstaonces near Vienna, has announced her intention of returning to Servia. King Peter is not expected to arrive here before June 24 or 25.

Vienna, June 18.—In his telegram of congratulation to King Peter, Prince Nicholas of Montenegro says: "To the whole of Servia I send wishes of happiness, but first of all to her heroes who, in the person of the grandson of George the Black, today received the long-desired knight of a knightly stock, that they may revive together with him the inborn virtue with which the freedom and independence of Servia was conquered and established. All the Serbs, from the sea to the Danube, greet your auspicious succession. The founders of our houses, Kara George and Vladika Danilo, will ever live and glow in Servian hearts. Hail to the justice of God, hail to you all, hail to the Servian people. The community of our feelings and blood is a pledge to all the Serbs that the indivisible friendship of Servia and Montenegro will ever gleam holy and healing for our people.

"Above this Servian concord hovers the angelic soul of Zorka, my daughter and your spouse, whose blood and love shall ever unite your children and mine. Long live the king of Servia."

Geneva, Switzerland, June 18.—King Peter attended a te deum service today. At the Russian church, in honor of his election to the throne of Servia. He was loudly cheered.

The Servian military mission arrived here today.

EVERYTHING "FIXED UP."

Chicago, June 18.—The Record-Herald today says: Threatened trouble in the American association on account of the disciplining which President Hickey administered to Manager Cantillon of the Milwaukee club has come to naught.

It had been reported that Owner Havener, of the Milwaukee franchise, would withdraw from the association on account of the fine of $100 imposed by President Hickey, but Mr. Tavener denied the story, and President Hickey said last night that everything had been "fixed up."

Mr. Hickey, at the first rift in the pleasant relations in the association, summoned the other magnates, and T. J. Bryce, of Columbus; C. J. Strobel, of Toledo, and George Tebeau, of Louisville and Kansas City, came to town, and after a conference, voted to uphold the president in his stand.

President Hickey said that there was absolutely no foundation for the report that Kansas City would withdraw from the association.

POSTMASTER OF CAMDEN HAS BEEN LEADING DOUBLE LIFE

Louis De Rousse Who Disappeared, Has Been Located at Baltimore In a State of Collapse—Inspectors Have Found Shortage In Accounts.

Camden, N. J., June 18.—Louis De Rousse, postmaster of this city and twice speaker of the New Jersey house of assembly, who disappeared yesterday, has been located at Baltimore. He is said to be on the verge of a physical and mental collapse and is under the care of a physician. His whereabouts were learned through a telephone message from Baltimore to J. Hampton Moore, city treasurer of Philadelphia. Mr. Moore notified Congressman Loudenslager of Camden, who, with Isaac Moffitt, collector of customs, and W. J. Browning, clerk of the New Jersey house of the legislature, left for Baltimore today. Former Judge Pancoast and H. H. Voorhees, Mr. De Rousse's bondsmen, are authority for the statement that the postal inspectors have found a shortage of $2000 in the accounts of the postmaster. Judge Pancoast said today that he had been informed that the postmaster was leading a double life. He summoned Mr. De Rousse and demanded an explanation, which was not satisfactory. A meeting of the postmaster's bondsmen was held last Monday, and it was decided to notify the postal inspectors. The inspectors began an investigation and are still working on the books.

MILITIA GUARDS NEGROES ON TRIAL

Maysville, Ky., June 18.—The trial of the three negroes for murderously assaulting the Farrow family continued today with the troops holding the large crowd at bay. Sanders was on the stand in his own defense and testified that Mann was the leader who interested himself and Morris. On the Sunday of the assault and robbery, Mann called for the witness in a buggy. Enroute to the Farrow farm, Morris was taken into the buggy, Morris being in waiting at a country cemetery. When they reached the Farrow home Sanders held the horse while Mann and Morris entered the house. Sanders heard the noise and then the shooting after which all returned to Maysville in the rig. After this confession the attorneys of Sanders withdrew the plea of not guilty and Sanders plead guilty and was sentenced to five years in the penitentiary. The cases of Mann and Morris will be called this afternoon.

THE POPE IS WONDERFULLY WELL

Rome, June 18.—Dr. Lapponi has given the Stampa a long interview contradicting the alarmist reports circulated concerning the pope's health. The physician says the pontiff is wonderfully well for a man of 94 and that his presence at the consistory to be held Monday next will be the best answer to the pessimists. Dr. Lapponi adds that the pope was painfully impressed by the Belrade tragedy. The pope today received in private audience Right Rev. F. C. Rooker, bishop of Jaro, Philippine Islands, and Right Rev. Dennis J. Dougherty, bishop of Nueva Segovia, Philippine Islands, who were recently appointed to the dioceses. The pontiff expressed himself as being certain that their work in the Philippines in conjunction with that of Archbishop Guidi, the apostolic delegate in the Philippines, will be most beneficial to the church in the islands and to the pacification of the archipelago.

LYDDITE EXPLOSION KILLS MANY

London, June 18.—Fourteen men were killed and thirteen injured by an explosion in the Lyddite factory at Woolwich arsenal this morning. Several of the victims were literally blown to pieces. The building was completely wrecked. The roof was blown off and the interior collapsed. The explosion is attributed to the bursting of a shell.

There were many pathetic scenes about the gates of the great arsenal where thousands of relatives of the employes besieged the officials for information. Six additional men are missing and it is believed they were blown to pieces.

Gentlemen:—"A few years ago I had to give up social life entirely as my health was completely broken down. The doctor advised a complete rest for a year. As this was out of the question for a time, I began to look for some other means of restoring my health.

"I had often heard of Peruna as an excellent tonic, so I bought a bottle to see what it would do for me, and it certainly took hold of my system and rejuvenated me, and in less than two months I was in perfect health, and now when I feel worn out or tired a dose or two of Peruna is all that I need."—Mrs. J. Catarrh Causes Female Diseases.

America is the land of nervous women. The great majority of nervous women are so because they are suffering from some form of female disease. By far the greatest number of female troubles are caused directly by catarrh. These women despair of recovery. Female trouble is so common, so prevalent, that they accept it as almost inevitible. The greatest obstacle in the way of recovery is that they do not understand that it is catarrh which is the source of their illness.

In female complaint, ninety-nine cases out of one hundred are nothing but catarrh.

Peruna cures catarrh wherever located.

HEARING HELD

E. Z. Griggs Is Administrator of Dr. Stuart Bates' Estate.

Widow Waives Right of Appointment and Accepts Griggs.

There was quite a gathering of legal array and of parties interested in Probate Judge Middlecoff's court this morning, when a hearing was had on the application of Mrs. Stuart Bates for the appointment of an administrator for the estate of her deceased husband, Dr. Bates, who died several weeks ago at Virginia, after drinking laudanum.

Mrs. Bates waived her right of appointment as administrator, and, on agreement of all parties interested, the court made an order appointing E. Z. Griggs, of Virginia, administrator of the estate.

The widow was represented by Cooley & Arnold, of West Superior; the minor child, Lorna May Bates, through her guardian, Dr. W. C. Corey, by Judge W. D. Edson, and Col. Robert Bates, brother of the deceased, by Theodore Hollister, of the firm of Davis, Hollister & Wilson.

The value of the estate left by Dr. Bates is not yet definitely settled. He had one life insurance policy of $5000, payable to his little daughter. The deceased left a drug store property estimated in value at $2500, a hospital valued at about $1000, a life insurance policy of $5000, besides other real estate and some mining stock.

ALLEGED INSANE PERSONS.

Two to Be Examined By Judge Middlecoff.

Judge Middlecoff will examine two alleged insane persons this afternoon. One of them, Isaac Kasuila, was brought down from Hibbing and is continuously asking for rope with which to hang himself. The second case is that of Huska Mikkleson, who will be brought down from Floodwood this afternoon. Little is known about Mikkleson's case. Vernn Holmlund, who, in a state of insanity, tried to butt his brains out in the city jail, was taken before Judge Middlecoff yesterday, who ordered him sent over to West Superior. It developed that Holmlund has a wife and family in that city and relatives who will look after him. Holmlund told the examining physician that he had been crazy for two days, that he could not help his inclinations to kill himself. It is claimed that his condition is not due to drink, as was first supposed.

$100 Reward $100.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages and that is catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment, Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers, that they offer one hundred dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials. Address

CRIPPLED TEAM

Duluth Baseball Team Is Having Hard Streak of Luck.

Much Trouble Experienced In Getting Needed New Men.

"One woe doth tread upon another's heels, so fast they follow," murmured the late lamented William Shakespeare anticipating by several years the heart-breaking experience of the Duluth baseball team.

The Cardinals are crippled and apparently in the worst sort of luck, seemingly unable to land suitable men to replace those that are out of the game through injuries.

Since Doar's injury last Saturday the management has been running up all sorts of telegraph bills in a wild endeavor to get a catcher. Girard, of the famous old Duluth club, was secured to help out in the emergency and has been doing great work, but he has another and to him more desirable position which cannot be sacrificed. Hubbard, the Racine catcher that accepted Duluth's terms, declines to report unless Disch, his pitcher does, and that deal is off. Clarke, a catcher from Eau Claire, has also failed to report though practically accepting terms. There has been considerable talk of giving Huol of Cloquet a trial. Capt. Murphy says he may have to go behind the bat himself, but the third baseman has a badly spl t hand. Lyons is also out of the game with a lame ankle and several other players are badly bunged up.

The deal with Crookston for the trading of Burns and Collette for Mueller is off for good, though until a late hour last night it was expected that Burns and the Crookston pitcher would report for duty here this morning.

Manager Lycan of Crookston wired that Collette had jumped his team and was not available and owing to the present crippled condition of his team he did not feel like weakening it in run-getting strength by letting the fast center fielder go at this time.

While this news has the appearance of a hard luck story, many of the real fans consider it a blessing in disguise, saying that Mueller is too good a man to trade unless Crookston would give about half the team for him.

In this afternoon's game Gehring was slated to twirl for the Cardinals and Hall for Superior. Hall enjoys the distinction of having won every game he has pitched on a losing team. It is probable that Stutsman, the deaf mute from Washington, will play right field in the place of McCoy, who is one of the players that is suffering from the streak of physical misfortune.

If the universe tips up in the direction of Lakeside Saturday afternoon, don't be frightened. The Lakeside team will play the police department team on the grounds at Forty-seventh avenue east. Fierce things are predicted in the advance notices.

The Eagle Clothing company team will play the Duluth Heights' team on the grounds of the latter next Sunday. The Eagles will line-up as follows: Schaffer, catcher; Stockman or Gebeau, pitchers; Larson, first base; Harris, second base; McDonald, third base; Schuler, short stop; Shean, right field; O'Brien, left field; Bennett, center field; Berlni, extra.

INTERURBAN METROPOLITAN

New York, June 18.—The trial of the suit for Isidor Wormser, Jr., to break the Metropolitan-Interurban lease was continued today. Luis Heinsheimer of Kuhn-Loeb & Co. explained that the $1,500,000 Mr. Schiff had testified Kuhn-Loeb & Co. received included all the preliminary expenses of organizing and starting the Interurban and Metropolitan Securities company as well as the $200,000 fees paid to the Morton Trust company. His firm made about $950,000, the witness said, just 2 per cent on the $20,000,000 for which it had assumed liability.

Col. Stickney, counsel for Mr. Wormser, called Henry Rodinson and began to question him about certain expenditures in construction shown on the fiscal reports of the Metropolitan Street railroad company. James Scott interrupted him by asking how that line of testimony was relevant.

"As I understand your contention," he said, "you base your action on two propositions; that the whole transaction between the Interurban and Metropolitan Railway company was fraudulent or tainted with fraud; that the persons who carried it out did so not in the interests of the general stockholders, but for their own advantage and profit."

"That is practically what we contend," Mr. Stickney replied. "Constructively there has been the greatest breach of trust although I do not doubt the gentlemen interested had kept within the boundaries of the law, but it is evident they have been led away."

DISCUSSED RATES

Various Plans of Readjustment Presented to Modern Woodmen.

Prizes For Drill of Senior Class of Foresters Awarded.

Indianapolis, June 18.—At this morning's session of the head camp of Modern Woodmen the question of rate re-adjustment came up for discussion. The report of the committee appointed to submit a plan of re-adjustment was submitted by G. W. Clark, and as was expected was rejected. Other plans were then presented and discussed. This was the day for competitive drills, for trophies at Camp Reece and the big parade through the downtown streets.

Los Angeles seems to have the lead for the next convention. Additional officers elected are: Head chaplain, Rev. W. B. Gardner, Providence, R. I.; head escort, C. D. Elliott, Seattle, Wash.; head watchman, W. E. Beachley, Hagerstown, Md.; head sentry, George H. Bowman, Oklahoma City, O. T.; auditors—Louis W. Otto, Crawfordsville, Ind.; P. W. Parrott, Clay Center, Kas.; John Denison, Clarion, Iowa; M. R. Carrier, Lansing, Mich.; E. B. Thomas, Columbus, Ohio.

The report of the law committee was discussed by sections. The large cities were admitted to the jurisdiction and power was given to the executive council to exempt anyone or any section of any city. The Woodmen month was changed to conform to the regular calendar.

The prizes for the drill in the senior class of foresters were awarded. They were:

First, Kansas City, Mo.; second, Omaha, Neb.; third, Rock Island, Ill.; fourth, Des Moines, Iowa; fifth, Denver, Col.; sixth, Lincoln, Neb.

Head Clerk of Modern Woodmen.

AT WEST DULUTH

The young lads of West Duluth are taking advantage of the holidays to plan fishing excursions up the river, and some of the boys have accomplished feats with the line and rod which are exciting the envy of the older followers of Isaac Walton in West Duluth.

Three youths from this part of the city, John and Andrew Ericsson and Phillip Martin, were out yesterday in the vicinity of Spirit lake, and in three hours' fishing succeeded in landing thirty wall-eyed pike weighing over eighty pounds. Andrew, the elder of the Ericsson brothers, secured sixteen of the fish, the remainder being about equally divided between the other two lads.

The pike in the river above West Duluth are reported to be biting better this spring than they have been for years past, and as they make delicious eating at this season of the year, fishing has become a very popular pastime in West Duluth.

AGED MAN DESTITUTE.

A pitiful case of destitution came to the notice of the West Duluth police last evening. An aged man, who gave his name as Pettit, applied at the station for a place to sleep and was taken in.

He gave his age as 87 years, and said that he had no friends in this part of the country and no home to which he could go. He was too old and feeble to work, and had no visible means of support.

He left the station this morning, saying that he was going to leave the city, but it was learned later that he had applied for aid to some people in the vicinity, and it is likely that he will again be taken in charge by the police and the case laid before the county poor authorities.

PAINFULLY HURT.

Daniel Wollette is suffering from painful though not serious injuries sustained while working at the St. Louis mill. He was assisting in taking down the band saw when it fell, cutting a deep gash in his right arm.

A serious and perhaps fatal accident was avoided only by a quick backward step. Otherwise the saw would have struck him on the head.

The cut on his arm was dressed by a physician, and he expects to be able to resume his work within a few days.

ROYALTY FIXED

Arbitration Board Sets Rate For Coal From State Lands.

Those Who Mine Will Pay State 7 1-2 Cents a Ton.

Royalty on coal mined in Minnesota will be 7½ cents per gross ton.

This rate, establishing a precedent for all future time, was fixed by a special state board of arbitration, which met in this city yesterday.

Last winter, when Duluth capitalists leased extensive tracts of state lands in Aitkin county for coal explorations, the promising new mining industry was almost killed at the start by state officers insisting that a royalty of 25 cents a ton should be paid on all coal mined in the state, the same as the royalty on iron ore.

After a long dispute it was finally agreed to leave the matter to an arbitration commission of three. The state land commissioner selected Hon. George Egerton, of St. Paul, and the Quodenaw Coal company chose Thos. A. Merritt, of this city. These two selected ex-Senator Hodge, of Pine City, as the third member of the commission.

The members were in session all day yesterday in Mr. Merritt's offices in the Palladio building, and last evening at the Spalding hotel. They finally agreed on the royalty of 7½ cents, which compares very favorably with that of other coal producing states west of the Pennsylvania bituminous region. In Michigan the royalty is 8 cents per ton, in Kentucky, 10 cents, and in Iowa from 6 to 20 cents.

With this perplexing question of royalty out of the way the Quodenaw company proposes an immediate development of its state lease land in the northern tier of Aitkin county, twenty-six miles south of Grand Rapids.

High grade bituminous coal, suitable for cooking purposes, is said to have been discovered on the property of the Willow River company, in Aitkin county. The vein, which is five feet in depth, was discovered at a depth of seventy-five feet below the surface. It is proposed that coal from these Aitkin property mines will be on exhibition in Duluth within the next sixty days.

FLOORS FALL.

Second and Third InSt. Paul Block Collapse.

St. Paul, June 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—The second and third floors of the eastern half of the Skidmore block, southeast corner of Fifth and Minnesota streets, occupied by the F. G. Leslie Paper company, collapsed under heavy pressure at 1:30 o'clock this morning, causing a loss of about $5000. If the accident had happened at another time of the day several casualties would have been inevitable.

Young Man Who Wanted to Run a Saloon.

Kingston, N. Y., June 18.—John J. Condon, Jr., whose father's will allows him only the income of an inheritance, because the young man intended, if he received the money outright, to buy a saloon in New York, has stabbed and probably fatally wounded his wife. Condon is said to have told his father that he intended to start a saloon with his inheritance, so that the father, intending to check his plan, willed his son only an income from the large estate. Young Condon regretted his having told about the saloon and brought suit to have the will set aside. Condon was immediately arrested.

STAR GROWS BRIGHTER.

Remarkable Discovery Made Concerning Omicron Cetti.

University of California, June 18.—Through a series of investigations, Dr. Joel Stebbins, fellow of the Lick observatory, has made the remarkable discovery that the variable star Omicron Cetti, which has been known to vary at uncertain intervals since 1596, is at present undergoing extraordinary fluctuations and a variation of brightness of at least 2000 times its ordinary intensity. The discovery is of unusual value to the astronomical world from the fact that the scientists had believed the star to be inert. A bulletin announcing the discovery has just been issued at the university.

DECISIONS FILED

Judge Dibell Hands Down Findings In Several Cases.

S. Powell Refused New Trial of Case Against City.

Judge Dibell this morning filed findings of fact and conclusions of law in several cases which have been submitted to him recently.

In the action brought by J. C. Hunter against Addie M. Mauseau and Walter Van Brunt to acquire title to lot 10, block 75, lots 6 and 7, block 74, lot 9, block 37, lots 15 and 16, block 34, lots 7 and 8, block 46, London addition, lots 74, 76, 78, and 80 Second street, north Albert Posey tract, and the south half of the southeast quarter of section 9, 50-15, the court decides that the title to the premises described is invested in the defendant Addie M. Mauseau, and that the plaintiff has no right or title to them.

The court finds that Walter Van Brunt owned the property described, March 1, 1898, when a judgment was entered against him in the amout of $704.35, in favor of Charles Espenchied, and that after the execution and levy the premises were sold to P. J. Neff for $965, February 5, 1902. Mr. Neff is found to have assigned all the sheriff's certificates and all his rights in the property to the plaintiff, J. C. Hunter.

The court also finds that Feb. 5, 1902, the defendant Addie Mauseau, a creditor of the defendant Van Brunt, having a lien on all the premises described by virtue of a judgment docketed July 23, 1898, in favor of indentors to redeem from the said execution sale.

In his memorandum, Judge Dibell closes by saying that the question whether the defendant was in a position to redeem, with no other title to the judgment than the individual assignment is not free from doubt, but thecourt is better satisfied with a holding that she was than otherwise; also, that the question whether a redemption thus made by a joint judgment creditor enures to the benefit of the co-judgment creditor of the one paying the redemption money, at their election, is not involved in the above action.

The court denies the motion of the plaintiff for a new trial in the case of Roger S. Powell against the City of Duluth and L. N. Case. The case was tried some time ago, the plaintiff seeking to compel the city water department to grant him a flat rate for water instead of a meter rate. The court held for the defendant, the plaintiff moving for a new trial.

In the personal injury case of Joseph Hebert against the Interstate Iron company, which was tried in district court some months ago, and in which the plaintiff was rendered a verdict of $2500 for injuries received from a fall while walking across the defendant's property, the court denied the motion to set aside the verdict and grant a new trial.

In the matter of the appeal of Mary McComber from the assessment for a sanitary sewer on Fifth street, between Eighteenth and Fifteenth avenues east and along Fifteenth avenue to the alley between Fourth and Fifth streets, the court reduced the plaintiff's assessment per lot from $128.18 to $80.09, making her total assessment $640.72. The plaintiff is owner of lots 9 to 16 inclusive, block 99, Endion division. J. B. Richards appeared for the appellant.

UNIVERSITY OF CHICAGO

Will Spend $3,000,000 on Secondary Schools.

Chicago, June 18.—Three million dollars is to be the sum represented in the building and land for the secondary schools of the University of Chicago, according to the statement of President Harper at the commencement exercises of the university secondary schools.

Dr. Harper said that the new buildings of the school of education, and the new manual training school, of which the cornerstone has just been laid, would cost over $600,000. "Other buildings for the same purpose," he added, "will cost as much more."

The equipment is to cost in the neighborhood of $936,000. The buildings and grounds of the Morgan Park academy are valued at $250,000. Thus far $1,600,000 has been expended for secondary education.

CARRIERS APPOINTED.

Washington, June 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—Harry H. Foster has been appointed regular, and W. M. McNish, substitute, rural carrier at Appleton, Minn.

THE REAL CRANK

Is Plainly Marked.

A crank is one who stays in beaten paths when common sense tells him to leave.

The real crank is one who persists in using coffee because accustomed to and yet knowes it hurts him. It is this one who always pays the penalty, while the sensible person who gives up coffee and takes on Postum Food Coffee in its place enjoys all the benefits of returning health.

A well known manufacturers' agent of New York City visited the grocery department of one of the big New York stores not long ago and there he tasted a sample cup of Postum made the right way. He said afterwards: "Just through the energy of that young woman who was serving Postum there I became a convert to the food drink and gave up the drug drink coffee and got well.

"I had used coffee to excess and was gradually becoming a complete wreck, getting weaker and more nervous every day. I paid the penalty for using coffee and when I tasted the delicious Postum I was glad indeed to make the change.

"So I gave up the coffee altogether and have used Postum instead ever since. My family at first called me a crank but seeing how Postum benefited me the first month they all got into line and as a result of Postum's remarkable benefits to me we all drink it now entirely in place of coffee and we are well." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

WORK OF WOMEN

Woman's Auxiliary of Duluth Episcopal Missionary District Meets.

Interesting Address Given By President, Mrs. J. D. Morrison.

This morning the annual meeting of the Women's Auxiliary of the Episcopal missionary district of Duluth began at St. Paul's church and after a communion service the meeting was called to order by the president, Mrs. J. D. Morrison. At the morning session delegates were present from Crookston, Duluth, Lakeside and Wadena.

The secretary's report was read by Mrs. F. H. Barnard and also the treasurer's report. Reports of the work of the Juniors and the Little Helpers' bands were read by Mrs. Henry Taylor and the work in these departments was shown to be flourishing and spreading. Informal reports were given by women from the societies out of Duluth and after noon prayers the meeting adjourned until the afternoon.

The noon prayer is a distinct observance of the Women's Auxiliary and is observed wherever a few of the workers are gathered together.

The afternoon session was called at two o'clock by Mrs. Morrison and her address followed. She said: "Another year has passed since last we met in council and again I have the pleasant duty to welcome you to our city of Duluth. That our parishes are so widely separated makes the welcome the heartier to those who have come. We need each other for sympathy, for advic, for interchange of experience, and my only regret is that we may not welcome some from each branch of the society.

"In reviewing my own work for the past year my first impression was one of disappointment. In the beginning our hopes are high and the result seems small. It is by gathering the little efforts together that we may hope to gain strength and accomplish things. We are apt to forget that small things count big in the end.

"In the fall of 1900 a new plan of action was determined upon by the executive board, viz., to decide upon a certain definite sum which we shall endeavor to raise in our district and we shall apportion this to the various branches, asking for their co-operation. The aid of all the missions where women's guilds have been organized will be asked for in this work. The object of this procedure is to secure a larger offering, to extend our principle of unselfish giving to God's service, and to secure if possible the interest and the prayers of every woman in our district.

"We chose three representative objects for our gifts; diocesan work being represented by the offering for the White Earth hospital, domestic missions by the offering for the school for colored children at Raleigh, N. C., and the foreign work by the offering for the orphanage at Shanghai. With a few exceptions I received cordial replies to the letters I sent out, so as we meet today we have the comfort of knowing that twenty-nine of our missions are co-operating with us, though we have but twenty-one branches organized for work. With this in mind may we not hope that some day every mission in our district will be enrolled and that all our women shall stand shoulder to shoulder in the ranks of the church militant.

"I have during the past year visited the parishes of Brainerd, Wadena, Moorhead, Fergus Falls, Detroit, White Earth and Lakeside, and have addressed women of the parishes in each place, giving in three places illustrated talks on our missionaries in Japan. At Brainerd a great desire for mission work has materialized in definite work. At many of the other places the united offering was not understood, and as that was made clear, the demand for the mite boxes has been great.

"During the year I have written ninety letters in regard to woman's auxiliary work, and traveled 1800 miles. In the work to be followed this coming year suggestions in the work would be: Decide upon a plan and follow it; get the younger women interested in the work, and always remember the necessity of prayer. Practice this. Call down the inspiration of the Holy Spirit upon our individual members, upon our councils, upon the methods we employ, and that Holy Spirit will breathe the breath of life into our feeble efforts, and the little spark that seems dying out will leap into a flame that shall expand and inspire every heart in our midst to take fire and burn with loving zeal."

The business of the afternoon followed and the officers for the ensuing year were to be elected. Interesting papers were read by Mrs. Hammond on "The Negro Work, by Sister Ellen on "Trained Workers" and Mrs. J. D. Morrison read a paper on "The Indian Convocation at White Earth," closing with a hymn, and the benediction was pronounced by Archdeacon Appleby.

MAXIMUM II WON

The Gold Cup at the Races at Ascot.

London, June 18.—King Edward, Queen Alexandra and other members of the royal family drove from Windsor castle to Ascot today in semi-state with post illions and outriders in scarlet and gold liveries. As usual the gathering of society on ladies' day at the races was very large, and their majesties were accorded an enthusiastic reception. The gold cup was won by Maximum II. Rising Glass was second and Elba was third. Archibald M. Cintere, the American jockey rode the winner. Mahar rode Abel.

NEW TRIAL FOR SULLIVAN.

Chicago, June 18.—The appelate court today granted a new trial to Alex Sullivan, who was convicted in the criminal court of conspiracy. In their decision the judges say that it is their belief that Sullivan was not given a fair and impartial trial in the lower court.

EXCITEMENT AT LIMA, PERU.

Lima, Peru, June 18.—There is considerable excitement in political circles here regarding the choice of a successor of Dr. Lilino Alarco, the vice president of Peru, who died June 13. It is understood that Senor De Pillero may be selected, which might result in calming the present stormy state of politics here.

AGAINST A CHANGE

District Episcopal Convocation Opposes Changing Church Name.

Convocation Labors Nearly Completed—Address By Bishop Morrison.

The members of the faith in the diocese of Duluth went on record in the district convocation this morning against making any change in the name of the Protestant Episcopal church.

The special committee appointed to consider the matter made a unanimous report offering the following resolution:

"Resolved, that in the opinion of the convocation of the district of Duluth it is not expedient at this time to make any change in the name of the church."

This resolution was unanimously adopted by the convocation. This action follows out the ideas of Bishop Morrison, who in his address to the convocation yesterday afternoon took a pronounced stand against the proposed change. The matter was brought up at the last general convention in San Francisco two years ago, and it will be disposed of when the next one meets, in Boston, in 1904. In the meantime the various convocations have been asked to express themselves on the matter.

In part Bishop Morrison's address on this subject was as follows:

"In bringing this question before you consideration it is proper that I should give my own judgment upon it, but in doing this, I ask each of my brethren in convocation to give his opinion on the matter at issue, with absolute freedom, whether he happens to agree with me or not. The question is not whether we prefer that the name of the church shall be changed, but whether it should be changed now. If we wish an immediate change, we are invited to declare what other name we prefer.

"Convincing reasons should be advanced for removing the title by which this church has been known throughout the world ever since it was organized, as a branch of the One Holy Catholic and Apostolic church.

"The Milwaukee petition insists that the right appreciation and estimation of this church, as the national branch, having jurisdiction in this country, of the historic Catholic church of the ages, founded by our Lord Jesus Christ Himself, is sadly preverted, and often entirely prevented by our present title. This is a grave charge if it is well founded.

"We can only test it for ourselves by the facts of our own experience. I can testify, as the result of nearly thirty-five years in the active ministry of the church, that I have yet to find a solitary instance where the name of our church misled any earnest seeker after truth and apostolic unity. On the other hand I have often found the name of the church of great assistance in combatting with prejudice and ignorance, but in every case, where a man is in earnest I have found that the facts he wants to know, are the principles for which this church stands.

"And he learns that our church in America has never been Catholic, has steadfastly professed the Catholic faith, and has never authorized a service which does not involve the confession of that faith, and obedience to the One, Holy, Catholic, and Apostolic church.

"I know that many good and earnest churchmen, like our brethren of the diocese of Milwaukee, are dissatisfied with the name Protestant Episcopal. Have they not suffered themselves to be prejudiced against the word Protestant by unconsciously accepting the popular, but false and unworthy interpretation of the term?

"The error is similar in kind to the popular significance attached to the word "Catholic."

"With the great mass of Americans it is a synonym for Romanist, while Protestant is supposed to be the equivalent of anti-Romanist. But notwithstanding the vulgar meaning attached to Catholic, we would not think of eliminating it from the creed, nor do we cease to insist on its real significance. If we stand for the primitive interpretation of the term Catholic, is it not illegal to surrender the real significance of the word Protestant, and accept the false meaning popularly attached to it?

"It is a good word, and it stands for our Catholic heritage.

Instead of repeating and harping on the cheap jibes of the Jesuits of the seventeenth century against the name protestant, it is the privilege and the duty of churchmen to refuse to be overcome by a false and vulgar prejudice, and to insist on the primitive meaning of our name.

"They need only tell the plain, historical facts; the heroic story of the Protesting Catholics of the sixteenth century; the evils that compelled them to act, and the solemn appeal to a free general council, which earned the name Protestants, to show that the name we confess in the creed on Sundays and the name by which we call ourselves on week days are the same. In fact, the term Catholic was a Protestant word. It was invented and used in the second century as a protest against Gnostic corruptions, and an appeal to Apostolic truth. On that appeal, the Church of England took its stand as a Catholic church, and the Anglican churches stand there today, and will stand until, in the Master's own time and way the appeal is determined.

"We cannot move from that position. We are Protesting Catholics, or Protestants, and we cannot change our name now. When our appeal is determined, then it will be time to change the name Protestant, not only on the title page of the prayer book, but on every other page, and call ourselves and our fellow Christians everywhere 'the church.' Until that time let the name stand."

This was the principal business attended to at this morning's session, from a standpoint of public interest.

George L. Hargraves read the report of the committee on the state of the church, which showed that work in the district during the year showed renewed vigor and gave great reasons for hope for the future. The range missions are in good hands, and are prospering. Under Archdeacon Appleby, whose work is highly complimented, the Indian missions are flourishing. The Swedish missions are showing substantial gain, and increased work in this derection is urged. Most of the parishes and missions of the district show decided gains.

Rev. William Watson, of St. Vincent, gave the report of the committee on Indian missions, which showed that owing to the migratory habits of the Indians, attendance fluctuntes, but the number of baptisms shows decided gains in results. As an instance of the results of Christian work Bishop Morrison mentioned having seen an Indian and his squaw, the man carrying the burden and the squaw carrying nothing. Rev. F. C. Coolbaugh said that in a long experience in this state he had seen this but once, and one of the Indian clergymen spoke up and said it was to be seen very frequently nowadays.

There was a discussion as to whether levies for missionary purpoes should be made according to the number of communicants in each parish or mission, or not. Rev. H. F. Parshall thought they should be made on this basis, but Bishop Morrison disagreed with him, saying that the number of communicants was by no means an indication of the power of a parish to contribute. The matter was left to the committee on apportionment, which is to be continued through the year.

A resolution by Rev. R. J. Mooney, of Morris, directing that proceedings be taken to straighten out property titles and insurance policies, in order that the trustees could keep informed of just how everything stood, was adopted.

The business of the convoation was not finished this morning, but was continued to this afternoon, when it was expected that it would be completed.

Yesterday afternoon the resignation of Henry F. Greene, as chancellor of the diocese was accepted, and Hon. Page Morris was named for the place. W. D. McKay, of Brainerd, and H. M. Peyton and F. L. Gilbert, of Duluth, were elected trustees for three years.

Treasurer W. S. Bishop and Registrar H. F. Parshall made their reports.

Pitchenopin, an Indian Episcopal clergyman from Pine Point, on the White Earth reservation, who is known as Rev. George Smith among the English-speaking people in the vicinity, addressed the missionary meeting in St. Paul's Episcopal church last evening. He spoke in his native Chippewa, which was interpreted sentence by sentence by his brother, Rev. Frederick W. Smith, who speaks the English language fluently.

In short, simple, yet eloquent sentences, he told of his life among his own people and described the conditions existing at the White Earth reservation and the work which is being done there by the missionaries sent out by the Episcopal church. In relieving the degraded conditions of the people. He also described his own life at the White Earth and Crow Wing schools, where he was sent many years ago by Bishop Whipple. He is the last survivor of a party of young men of his race, which was sent to these schools by Bishop Whipple.

Rev. George W. Renison, of Two Harbors, who before coming to this diocese was stationed for five years in the district about Hudson's bay, gave a short address describing life in the Hudson bay district. In an exceedingly interesting talk he told of the struggles and trials of the missionaries in the far northern district, where the principal means of transportation is by dog sled and the supplies are received from England each year by ship. The district is 500 miles from the railroad and civilization.

Bishop Morrison gave a brief address telling of the present conditions of the missionary work of the church and emphasizing the need for more missionaries among the Indians in the diocese.

REICHSTAG ELECTION.

Total Results From the Contest on Tuesday.

Berlin, June 18.—The total results of the recent reichstag election are as follows: Socialists, 54 elected and 122 re-ballots; Center party, 87 elected and 36 re-ballots; Conservatives and Free Conservatives, 37 elected and 53 re-ballots; National Liberals, 5 elected and 65 re-ballots.

Richter Radicals, 24 re-ballots; Barth Radicals, 11 re-ballots; South German Radicals, 8 re-ballots; Poles elected, 14, and 8 re-ballots; Alsatians, 6 elected and 4 re-ballots; Hanoverians, 8 re-ballots; Danes, 1 elected; anti-Semites, 1 elected and 8 re-ballots.

NEW AND BIGGER MERGER.

Another Story That Is Afloat In Wall Street.

New York, June 18.—The surrender by the Northern Pacific company of its half interest in the Burlington railroad to the Great Northern is part of the program of the Harriman faction, which is planning a dissolution of the Northern Securities company as now oconstituted. This is to be followed by a close alliance between the Northern Pacific and the Milwaukee road, amounting to a common ownership of the two systems.

The Northern Pacific, Milwaukee and the Great Northern-Burlington systems are then to take the Erie over in common, just as the Burlington is now held, and make that road their common outlet from Chicago to the Atlantic.

It is said that Hill and Morgan agree to the main features of this plan, but object to having them carried out until the court has finally pronounced the merger illegal. The Northern Securities company, as a company, being legal, and orders of the court being directed at its ownership of the Northern Pacific and the Great Northern roads, and not at its corporate life, it will not be necessary to dissolve if its promoters have any use for its charter. The Harriman bankers, being positive of their present control of enough of the stock that may be issued for the Northern Pacific to secure them control o fthat road are understood to be willing to compromise and leave the Northern Securities company in existence, if Hill and Morgan will release the original Northern Pacific stock to them.

NO SETTLEMENT YET.

New York, June 18.—Prominent banking interests who speak with authority state that no settlement of the differences between the Pennsylvania road and the Gould interests is yet in sight. It is understood that negotiations looking to a reconciliation are under way, but these negotiations are of an informal nature.

THE REPORTS OF OFFICERS

United Church Convention Hears Year's Record.

Formand Dahl Refers to Schmidt Controversy.

The convention of the United Lutheran Church of America, now in session at the high school in Duluth, is now organized and engaged in active work. The number of delegates in attendance last evening was 350, and this number is expected to be largely increased before the end of the week.

The most interesting, if not the most important, feature of yesterday afternoon's program was the discussion of the question of setting aside next Saturday afternoon for a steamboat excursion. Rev. N. E. Thvedt suggested two plans. One was to let each excursionist pay 50 cents and assume no further responsibility; the other was to have the united church charter a steamer and assume all responsibility, financial and otherwise. The strongest argument in favor of setting aside a certain time was, that otherwise some members would be absent from the meeting all the time to take in more or less fun on the lake, thereby impairing the working capacity of the meeting. The vote also showed that less than one-tenth of the members were opposed to setting aside saturday afternoon for this purpose.

There was only one person that spoke point blank against the proposition, Rev. A. Wright, of Rushford, Miss., who would rather work than have that much fun, though his 60 and odd years, and his silvery hair and beard, entitle him to quit work for good any day.

The question of arranging the details could not be settled, and Formand Dahl was instructed to appoint a committee to report on that subject as soon as possible. The committee consists of the Revs. N. E. Thvedt, of Duluth; Jens C. Rosaland, Austin Minn, and T. Bjornhom, Fergus Falls, Minn. Those three men will practically decide the character of the Saturday excursion.

Rev. K. Dalagar, of McIntosh, Minn., conducted the devotionals at the opening of the afternoon session.

Most of the session was taken up by the reading of the report from the committee on credentials, by Carl Rongland, of Minneapolis, who had been elected secretary of the committee. By the adoption of this report about 350 delegates were admitted as voting members of the meeting.

Formand Dahl appointed the following to serve as tellers during the meeting: Rev. F. C. Norman, Brookings, S. D.; Rev. C. K. Solberg, Vermillion, S. D.; Prof. Olaf Glaseoe, Northfield, Minn.; Rev. C. T. Quamm, Sheyenne, N. D.; Rev. E. Ekeland, Madison, Minn.; Rev. J. H. Meyer, Chicago; Henry Hovland, Stony City, Ia.; Tollaf Solverud, Hayfield, Minn.; Arne Larson, Madison, Wis.

Rev. T. Tjornhom of Fergus Falls was appointed chaplain, and the following ministers were appointed to equalize the traveling expenses of the ministers: J. B. Reinertsen, N. G. Holm E. Erickson.

The election of a committee on nominations was next in order. This committee consists of nine members, and twenty-seven candidates are nominated from the floor. The tellers were given until this morning to report results.

THE FORENOON SESSION.

Rev. L. E. Hammer of Roslyn, S. D., conducted the devotional exercises at the opening of the forenoon session.

There must have been between five and six hundred persons present at the opening exercises this morning, and new ministers and delegates kept dropping in during the day.

In view of the Siberian weather the overcoat tribe were a happy lot this morning, but they are not strong in numbers.

The committee on nominations reported the following result:

Rev. K. Skyberg, Aastad, Minn., 146 votes; Rev. Th. Eggen, Madison, Wis., 138 votes; Adolph Larson, Chicago, 127 votes; O. J. Wing, Goodhue, Minn., 126 votes; Rev. H. Roaltvam, Coon Valley, Wis., 125 votes; Rev. N. E. Tvedt, Duluth, 123 votes; Rev. M. Satorli, St. Paul, 122 votes; Rev. A. Wright, Rushford, Minn., 119 votes; Rev. J. Olsen, St. Ansgor, Ia., 118.

The great feature of the proceedings of the forenoon session was the reading of the reports of the officials of the United church.

FORMAND DAHL'S REPORT.

Formand Dahl read his official report. It is a bulky document, from which the following data was taken:

There is a general demand from all parts of the country for ministers for the United church. The cry comes from all quarters, "Come over and help us!" The field is increasing faster than the number of laborers.

The past year has been an era of good feeling and tranquility throughout the association. The congregations are more anxious than before to give their children a good religious training. But a goodly number of small congregations have neither parochial nor Sunday schools, which state of things was deplored by the formand. These were his words on this subject: "If we neglect to educate our children in the pure Lutheran faith we are not only committing a sin against our own children and proving ourselves faithless in husbanding the treasures confided to us, but we are dooming our own church to destruction.

Over one thousand young men and women are studying at the higher institutions of learning, which are controlled by members of the United church. The instruction given at these schools is not "leavened with the killing poison of rationalism, but with the saving truths of Christianity."

The fifteen young men who graduated from the theological seminary last spring have all accepted calls, but twice that number would not have satisfied the demand.

Considerable space is devoted to negotiations looking to a union between the United church and the Norwegian Lutheran synod. But this matter cannot be understood unless a digression is made.

The above bodies, which have a combined membership of 90,000, both claim to be strictly Lutheran, and attempts have been made to unite them, the preliminary steps being negotiations between their presidents and theological faculties. But these negotiations are no longer pushed as they were about two years ago, on account of difficulties of a peculiar nature.

The negotiations naturally covered some of the most delicate doctrines of the Lutheran church, and by some of the negotiators secrecy was considered one of the necessary features of the "colloquia," or discussions.

But one of the negotiators, Prof. F. A. Schmidt, D.D., of the United church seminary, reported part of the proceedings at the annual meeting of the United church in 1901.

This was strongly resented by the representatives of the Norwegian synod, and

FORMAND DAHL,

the annual meeting of this body made an appeal to the United church to elect another negotiator in place of Professor Schmidt.

No such thing was done, for the United church did not see anything morally wrong in the course of Professor Schmidt. For a few months past matters have been going from bad to worse with regard to this question. Last winter the church council of the Norwegian synod published, and distributed free of charge, a pamphlet in which attempts are made to prove that Professor Schmidt has been culpably inconsistent in his teachings.

This pamphlet gave rise to a general campaign in which Professor Schmidt is the central figure; but he can afford to take things coolly, for the leading men of his faith are defending his course. For the time being, Professor Schmidt is really the most discussed man among the Norwegian church people of this country.

It is not the first time, however, that Professor Schmidt has been in the fire. He, more than any other man, was responsible for the schism which rent the Norwegian synod in twain almost twenty years ago and which has since brought into the United church something like 125,000 persons who, it seems, would otherwise have remained in the Norwegian synod. This bit of church history may throw some light on the fact that the leading men of the Norwegian synod do not love Professor Schmidt very dearly.

There still remains a big gap in this discussion. Why do those parties disagree? No attempt will be made to state the positive doctrines held by each of the two parties. But something may be said, without fear of contradiction, about the charges made. The Norwegian synod holds that Professor Schmidt and his party are "Synergists;" that they lay too great stress on man's work in the plan of salvation; and the main counter-charge is, that the Norwegian synod, like the Calvinists, minimizes man's work and responsibility.

As Professor Schmidt's name indicates, he is a German, but he has been connected with the Norwegian church for more than forty years past. He speaks and writes Norwegian like a native, and he feels perfectly at home among the Norwegians.

But to return to the report of Formand Dahl. He holds that the officials of the United church have no right to put another man in place of Professor Schmidt. Nor does he think there is any need for such action because Professor Schmidt is a perfectly sincere man. On the contrary, Formand Dahl suggests that those synod negotiators who refuse to negotiate with Professor Schmidt ought to be replaced by others.

O. S. Houkom and B. Hagboe have withdrawn from the ministry.

The Revs. M. Andenas and William Ekman have returned to Norway.

Rev. Olaf Mathison and Rev. Edward O. Loe have resigned on account of religious scruples. The latter studied at Andover and Yale.

The following ministers died in the course of the year: O. Barikmo, A. O. Hagen, A. K. Flakoll, Ole Waldeland, J. N. Helseth.

Forty-four church buildings, a hospital at Northwood, N. D., and a deaconess institution in Chicago were dedicated in the course of the year.

Only twelve congregations have voted in favor of dividing the United church into conferences.

SECRETARY'S REPORT.

The secretary, Rev. Jens C. Roseland, of Austin, Minn., read a rather brief but pithy and pointed report. He had received statistical data from 321 congregations and for the remaining 300 congregations he made reasonable estimates in order that the figures might be as complete as possible for the whole association. It must be observed that about one-fifth of the church members enumerated below have not formally joined the United church, but they are served by United church ministers.

The whole number of communicant members is 139,127, and the whole number of men, women and children belonging to 257,092. The whole number of public services was 27,724. The number of children baptized was 9817 and 7118 young people were confirmed last year. There were 9,-948 persons who partook of the Lord's supper and the ministers of the association officiated at 2164 weddings. New members were admitted to the number of 6681 and the catechumens met as classes to receive instruction from the ministers on 18,653 different occasions. There are 712 parochial school teachers who taught 39,950 days, and 3577 Sunday school teachers who taught 17,008 days. The enrollment at the Sunday schools was 41,514.

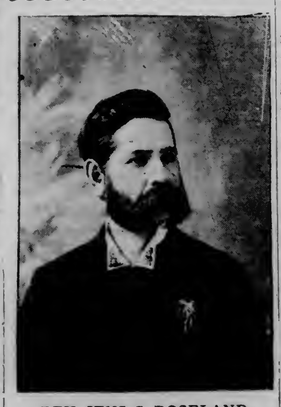
PROF. F. A. SCHMIDT, D.D.
The Most Talked-of Man In the United Church, and the Subject of An Existing Controversy. Prof. Schmidt is Professor of Theology at the United Church Seminary at St. Anthony Park, Minn.

There are 789 church buildings, 1224 congregations and 378 ministers and professors. Some of these figures are lower than last year because some of the ministers seem to have put their former estimates too high.

The secretary's report contains the following curiosity: "Rev. Olbue reports that in the Bluffen congregation, Nora, S. D., there remain only two members, namely, the minister and his wife, who constitute the whole charge. Whether this ministerial couple shall figure as a congregation in future remains for the annual meeting to decide."

Several ministers have taught parochial schools besides discharging their regular duties.

In some places the ministers admit children of all ages to the catechumen



REV. JENS C. ROSELAND,
Secretary.

classes, and the secretary suggests that the United church encourage this practice.

The secretary closed his report with the announcement that those who attend the meeting will receive their railroad certificates from 1 to 2 and from 5 to 6 o'clock p. m., next Monday and Tuesday.

TREASURER'S REPORT.

Hon. Lars Swenson, of Minneapolis, the treasurer of the United church, and the manager of the Augsburg Publishing house, read a businesslike report, the chief points of which are submitted.

The endowment fund amounts to $119,-116.54, of which $102,990 is loaned out on real estate mortgages. The interest collected from this source was $7704.69. The interest-bearing bequests amount to $11,-142.17, of which $1453.22 was added during the past year. There is a church extension fund of $4808.72.

The receipts of the orphans' home, at Beloit, Iowa, were $7985.34, and the balance $869.39. An attempt has been made to raise money for a chapel in memory of the late Formand Hoyne, of Eau Claire, Wis., but only $837.77 had been received for that purpose. The receipts for the running expenses of the association were $32,012.37, and though the expenditures were $13,000 in excess of those of any previous year, there is still a balance of $2748.90 to the credit of this fund.

The assets of the United church are as follows:

Endowment fund	$119,116 54
Theological seminary, St. Anthony Park	96,000 00
Professor's residence, Minneapolis	2,000 00
St. Olaf college, Northfield, Minn.	125,000 00
Augustana college, Canton, S. D.	30,000 00
Normal school, Madison, Minn.	31,000 00
Orphans' home, Beloit, Iowa	35,000 00
Bequests	11,142 16
Church extension values	9,974 16
Augsburg Publishing house	67,286 99
Total	$526,919 86

The increase of the assets for the past year was $26,709.

The receipts of the publishing house were $62,550.59.

The receipts for the famine sufferers in Finland, Norway and Sweden were $6,-522.08, $3886.18 and $566.45, respectively.

The receipts from all sources handled by Mr. Swenson were $139,989.12.

During the past three years the United church has raised $360,000 for new buildings and running expenses.

NEW CONGREGATIONS.

Congregations located at the following places were admitted into the United church this forenoon: Highwater, Cottonwood county, Minn.; Westbrook, Minn.; Pleasant Prairie, Worth county, N. D.; Zion, Nelson county, N. D.; Rolling, Clay county, Minn.; Thief River Falls, Minn.; Hubbard county, N. D.; Kabikona Valley, Minn.; Liberty, Beltrami county, Minn.; Stavanger, Otter Tail county, Minn.; Elim, Marshallhown, Iowa; Moland, Alberta, Canada; Beanlien, Cavalier county, N. D.; Nore, Cavaner county, N. D.; Elk Creek, Manitoba; Fairview, Ward county, Iowa; Jasper, Pipestone county, Minn.; Virginia, Minn.

Rev. A. Ofstedal, Fertile, Minn., and Adolf Larson, Chicago, failed to serve on the committee on credentials, and Formand Dahl appointed the following in their places: Professor J. F. Grose, Northfield, Minn., and Axel Arnesen, Lime Creek, Iowa.

Rev. T. Tjornhom reported from the excursion committee that a complete report could not be had until 4:30 this afternoon, but about 400 persons expressed their desire to take part in the excursion. This means success unless the weather should prove unfavorable.

Just before 12 o'clock it was whispered about in the audience that Rev. E. J. Homme, the manager of the Wittenberg orphans' asylum at Wittenberg, Shawnee county, Wis., was so sick that he could not possibly live over two hours. This man has distinguished himself by the establishment of the orphans' asylum and also by publishing Sunday school papers.

WILL PROVE A FAILURE

The Americanization of the Clergy In Philippines, Says Nozaleda.

Rome, June 18.—Monsignor Nozaleda, formerly archbishop of Manila, though repeatedly asked for his opinion regarding the appointment of American and Filipino bishops in the Philippines, has refused, saying that he had nothing to add to reports he made on leaving the islands, which he repeated verbally and amplified in writing when in Rome. In these reports Monsignor Nozaleda always has insisted that the Americanizing of the clergy in the Philippines would be a failure, ending in disaster to the Catholic church there. He also professed to have great distrust in the native clergy.

The vatican has little confidence in the native priests, hence the proposition of Monsignor Guidi, the apostolic delegate in the Philippines, in favor of the appointment of two native bishops has not been accepted. The vatican fears that these bishops might invest with the episcopal dignity some schismatic prelates whose position would thus become valid. Padre Aglipay and his followers, in the eyes of the church, are now outside of the Catholic pale and are merely playing a comedy.

DIME NOVELS

Responsible For Illinois Boy Becoming a Murderer.

Springfield, Ill., June 18.—Fred Mink, the young desperado who is now a prisoner in the Pike county jail at Pittsfield, charged with the murder f Newton W. Harris and his own stepmother, Mrs. Adam Mink, owes his imprisonment to reading of trashy literature. During school days he read only stories of the James boys and other desperate characters, and, while still a small boy, procured firearms and became efficient in their use. When in Walla Walla, Wash., Mink heard much about outlaw Tracy and his crimes, and followed Tracy's methods, even to carrying pepper in his pockets to sprinkle on his trial to put blood-hounds off the scent. There is no talk of lynching.

DID PIGEONS CROSS PACIFIC?

Bird From British Warship Reaches Salt Lake.

Salt Lake City, Utah, June 18.—Has a carrier pigeon the endurance to fly from Asiatic waters to Salt Lake City? This is the problem that was presented to local experts yesterday. Mrs. Kate Wiley was aroused by hearing a tapping on her back door. The noise ceased for a moment and then was renewed. When Mrs. Wiley investigated she found a carrier pigeon lying on the threshold tappin at the door with his bill. The bird had been seen a few minutes before falling exhausted in the air. Mrs. Wiley examined the carried and found a gold ring on one of its legs. On the ring was inscribed "J. H. K. Jr., H. M. S. Alliance." No. 8 also is engraved on the ring. Under the carrier's wings salt was caked. Its feathers also were dotted with hardened brine or spray. The English warship Alliance now is in Asiatic waters.

COLORADO GOVERNOR

Is Referee In a One-Round Bout.

Denver, Colo., June 18.—A personal encounter in the governor's private office resulted in the following casualties:

O'Donnell, T. J., world's fair commissioner and prominent Democratic attorney—Kicked in the legs and the side.

Peabody, James H., governor—Hand scratched and leg bruised by several kicks.

Stevens, I. N., world's fair commissioner and proprietor of the Pueblo Chieftian—Struck on the side of the head.

The encounter started over an investigation of the accounts of Commissioner in Chief Thatcher.

O'Donnell struck the first blow, but when the scrap was over Stevens had clearly won on points.

O'Donnell claims to have knocked out Stevens with the left swing he landed on his head, but it was the governor's action in pushing Mr. Stevens into a chair that made it look as if the blow had its desired effect. However, Stevens was only slightly hurt. While O'Donnell's anatomy is extremely sore at the point of contact with Stevens' foot. Both were counted out finally by the governor.

FACTORY GIRLS INJURED.

New York, June 18.—The third floor of a building at 42 Bowery, occupied as a box factory caved in today, burying some thirty young women in the debris of plaster and timbers. Several were seriously injured. The girls were at work on the second floor.

NEW PIER WORK

Government Is Actively Engaged at the Superior Entry.

Filling Marsh on Wisconsin Point Near Light Keeper's Home.

The government is getting all its preliminary work at the Wisconsin entry well under way before starting the construction of the new south concrete pier. All the dredging work has been completed and large quantities of material are being received almost daily at the work.

A large warehouse has been constructed at the inner end of the pier where the cement and other material which is not to be exposed to the weather is stored. Scows, dredges and other equipment necessary for pier work have been collected at the entry and arrangements have been made with the Northern Pacific railway company whereby one of the company's railway piers in Old Superior, near the Y. & L. coal dock, and unused for some time, is again utilized for the carloads of material which the government is receiving.

The arrangement will greatly facilitate matters as the pier is almost opposite the new work and will save transportation by scows from Duluth docks. The water is of a depth that will permit the scows to run close to the Superior dock and the materials can be unloaded on to them directly from the cars.

One of the improvements noted on the government premises on Wisconsin Point is the filling in of the marsh and low ground about the lighthouse keepers' house. Some of the buildings formerly stood on pilling to keep them out of the water but the dredgings from the new pier work have been utilized in filling in all low places and the government now has a wide level yard.

The new pier work is being carried on under the direction of Assistant United States Engineer Clarence Coleman.

Instead of having the new pier work done by contract as has been the former custom, the government will conduct its own work and will have it done by day labor.

TAKEN TO STILLWATER.

B. J. Campbell Goes to Penitentiary to Serve Time.

Benjamin J. Campbell, who pleaded guilty in district court to the charge of grand larceny in the second degree and who was sentenced to three years and nine months' imprisonment at the state penitentiary was taken to Stillwater this afternoon by Deputy Sheriff Randall, to enter upon his term.

Campbell was formerly chief clerk and bookkeeper in the Imperial council of the Modern Samaritans and embezzled the funds of the order in the amount of about $2000. The amount was made good by a bonding company that swore out the complaint for Campbell's arrest. Although he stated when first arrested that he was responsible for the money and pleaded guilty to the embezzlement, Campbell has since denied the theft and refuses to say what became of it. His action in the matter since the indictment has lost him much of the sympathy which was expressed by a large number of his friends when the trouble became known.

With two precincts to hear from, Bugville went razzle-dazzle daffy by a large majority last night.

It was a moist and clammy exhibition. Superior did not win the game as commonly supposed. It was presented the tail enders by L. Lee Quillan and S. Steve Cusick.

Mr. Quillan was the exalted erratic exponent of energetic errors and Mr. Cusick, is the peerless, popular, preserving promotor of epic enundiation epigrammatically expressed in stentorian vociferation in the presence of massive multitudes that always attend week day games in the sorrowful village across the sad sea waves.

Errors by Mr. Quillan and mistakes by Mr. Cusick gave Superior five runs. Little Shaw pitched a splendid game, giving the 'Longshoremen but four scattered and bleary biggies.

In the seventh inning with two men out, Quillan tried to redeem himself for letting in three runs in the first and fourth. He made a pretty catch and touched the last base runner out by fully three feet, but Cusick, standing at the pitcher's box instead of running out toward second where he could see the play, called the runner safe.

Quillan ran toward the umpire like a West Superior street car bent on a rear end collision and was ordered out of the game. Lyon was brought in to second and the last of the Mandans—Old Bug McCoy—went into right. Nehr hit him a red hot one that went through his legs and two men scored.

Just think of it and what it must have been—Duluth made nine well bunched hits and lost. Superior made four scattered and scratch hits and won. If that is not the limitless illimitable and unlimited limit of wierd performances, what is it?

Duluth started out like a whirlwind. Quillan broke off a neat single and was sacrificed to second by Murphy. All pitchers look alike to Kennally when a two-bagger seething in his system, and the big fellow smashed the ball to the far corner of right field, scoring Quillan and coming home on Shepard's single. In the third Murphy broke off a double and was on third a moment later with Lambert on second and only one out, but the hit so much needed petulantly lingered among the missing.

In the eighth Murphy singled, stole second and scored on Kennally's single, and that was all. The score:

Crookston seized the opportunity to get a little firmer grip on third place, defeating Winnipeg by a score of 6 to 4. It was a fast game judging from very meagre accounts received.

Fargo is making a great run for last place. Although outbatting Grand Forks yesterday the Fargoites managed to lose again. Burns was knocked out of the box by Grand Forks in the third, and Foulkes, who was ordered out the day before for assaing Umpire Owens, finished the game. The score:

The News-Tribune's percentage column would be all right if the sporting editor would only credit Winnipeg with nineteen victories and Superior with sixteen defeats. A victory and defeat respectively marked for and against these teams was thrown out recently by President Laxdal's sustaining Superior's protest of one of the first games of the season at Winnipeg.

Winnipeg may lose Annis, the crack short stop. Sioux Falls has filed a claim on him and taken the matter up with Secretary Farrell, of the National Association of Professional Baseball leagues.

BRIEF TELEGRAMS.

The British monitor Scorpion, which was in tow of the British tug Powerful, from Bermuda, for St. John, N. B., foundered Tuesday, eighty miles off George's shoal, the tug putting in shore tonight to report the disaster. The crew of fifteen men were taken off the Scorpion.

Chauncey Dewey and his companions were bound over without bail for the murder of the Berry family.

Robert A. Ammon was convicted of feloniously receiving stolen money, the proceeds of the 529 per cent Franklin syndicate frauds. The amount specifically stated in the indictment was $30,500 The jury was out just 51 minutes. Ammon took the verdict nonchalantly.

The body of H. W. Ibbings of Madison, Wis., was found on Wagner hill, Ashland, Ore. He had evidently been murdered as there was evidences of a hard struggle. He had been a student at Rush Medical college and came West about two months ago.

The trial of the eight trolley car strikers, charged with assault with intent to murder Conductor Monitor and Motorman George Morrissette on February 26, at Waterbury, Conn., resulted in acquittal of the accused. The verdict was greeted by a tumult of applause.

The mill and elevator of the Arkansas City Milling company at Kansas City, Kas., were destroyed by fire Wednesday night, entailing a loss of $100,000. Tom Yount, an employe, was so severely burned that he died in a few minutes. Major C. H. Severing, president of the company, was severely burned.

KUROPATKIN LEAVES TOKIO.

Yokohama, June 18.—Gen. Kuropatkin, the Russian minister of war, left Tokio yesterday. A sensational newspaper publishes a statement to the effect that a convention had been agreed upon between Gen. Kuropatkin and Baron Komura, the Japanese minister of foreign affairs, in regard to Manchuria and Corea, but the report is discredited here.

A DARK CHAPTER.

The postoffice department scandals continue to grow in number and extent. The report by Fourth Assistant Postmaster General Bristow on the Tulloch charges, adding fresh shame to the administration of affairs in the department, and the discharge of James T. Metcalf, superintendent of the money order department, for attempting to let a contract at $40,000 in excess of the lowest bid and induce the lowest bidder to withdraw his bid, furnish the latest sensations, but the reports from Washington indicate that more is to follow and the end of the scandals has not yet been reached.

Gen. Bristow's report shows the existence of many irregularities, pointing to wholesale fraud. It is shown that employes were paid twice for their work; that persons were carried on the payrolls who performed no work; that reports of inspectors directing attention to the irregularities were suppressed, and that honest officials were browbeaten into acquiescence in the looting that was going on. This was not the work of minor officials in the department. The frauds were known to exist and were covered up by the highest officials of the department. Not only was this the case, but the inquiry shows that the frauds were committed with the connivance of departmental chiefs who were the leaders in the law-breaking and corruption. The inspector who conducted the investigation reports that the files of the postoffice cases in question show direct orders from superior authority for the disbursement of all the questionable items contained, and the inspector says that the "responsibility for the many illegal appointments, the payment of two salaries to one and the same person and the disbursement of thousands of dollars for which particularly no service was performed should be placed where it properly belongs and the many abuses corrected." The documents indicate culpable neglect of duty and connivance in fraud on the part of that delectable politician and Republican distributor of patronage, Perry S. Heath, who was made first assistant postmaster general in 1897 for the announced purpose of being "official headsman." The reports also indicate culpable negligence on the part of Former Postmaster General Smith, who appears to have let Heath run the department, and even the name of President McKinley has been dragged into the dirty mess, but it will not be believed that the late president had any knowledge of the fraud and corruption. He was of an easy-going nature and placed implicit confidence in his political friends, and it was easy for the Heaths and Machens and Beavers to deceive him.

It is a black chapter in the country's history, for which the Republican party is responsible and must account to the people. Perry S. Heath, under whose "political administration" the grossest frauds were committed, still holds the office of secretary of the Republican national committee, and despite the revelations of his misconduct as first assistant postmaster general, he has not been asked to resign. Postmaster General Payne tried hard to stop the inquiry that has brought these scandals before the public gaze. As a Republican politician, he feared the effect upon his party of the shocking disclosures. Yet, although he did all within his power to burke the investigation and conceal the facts, he still remains in President Roosevelt's cabinet. The postoffice housecleaning will not be thoroughly completed until politicians of this stamp have been driven out, and the business principle has been substituted for the political principle in the management of the department.

Boston yesterday celebrated Bunker Hill day, and the Philadelphia Ledger was reminded of the story of an American woman who was being conducted through a London museum by a British army officer. Inspecting war relics, the officer pointed to a small cannon, saying: "That gun, madam, we captured from your army at Bunker Hill." The woman quickly replied, "Well, captain, you are welcome to the gun, but we've got the hill."

Mississippi has accomplished something that no other state has done in the construction of its new million-dollar capitol. It was built without issuing bonds; it was completed within the contract time, and competent architects say that it could not be duplicated now for $1,500,000. It stands upon the former site of the state penitentiary.

The price of seats on the New York stock exchange has declined from $80,000 to $70,000. This is ascribed to the belief that trading will be duller this summer than recently.

If the Duluth police department will enforce the regulation against cannon crackers, one of the Fourth of July horrors will have been done away with.

The Boston Globe very correctly says that no man has any right to express an opinion on the negro problem unless he has made a recent journey through the South.

Those American newspapers that are throwing stones at the Servians, should remember that glass house in Breathitt county, Ky.

The St. Louis Post-Dispatch thinks the silent woman and the noiseless Fourth of July will probably be contemporaries.

When the flood was at its height at St. Louis, some one stole a lot of bridge work from a dentist's office.

THE ELECTION IN GERMANY.

The election which occurred in Germany on Monday was the close of a most exciting campaign; about as lively as any ever witnessed in the German empire. As far as the results thus far determined, Emperor William, who has been making a vigorous fight to defeat the Socialists, has been badly beaten, and instead of reducing the Socialist representation in the reichstag, it has been greatly increased.

The legislative branch of the government of the German empire rests in two houses, much after the plan of our congress. The bundesrath, like our senate, is representative of the individual states comprising the empire. It has fifty-eight members and these are appointed, for each session, by the governments of the respective states. The second house, called the reichstag, represents the nation. It has very nearly 400 members, elected by ballot under universal suffrage, for a term of five years. For the empire, in the election of members of the reichstag, the registered vote is probably close to 10,000,000.

In every crisis in German politics the hand of the emperor is against the Social Democracy and that party's hand is against him. The Socialists are by far the largest single party in the German empire. From a small and discredited sect a quarter of a century ago, they have expanded until they comprise very nearly half of the entire number of voters of the empire.

The German empire's reichstag is made up in groups varied and numerous. There are at least a dozen "groups," some of them separated from others by lines not well defined and entirely without counterpart in American politics. Some of them are small. For instance, the so-called National People's party has eight reichstag members as against twenty-nine for the Liberal People's party. The Center, known as the Clericals, is the largest group, having about 105 members. The Alsatian group has eight members who are, essentially, anti-German. The National Liberals are more than forty members strong; the German Conservatives count, in the present house, fifty-four members. The government majority is ordinarily made up of these last two with the addition of smaller groups which, while having political tenets of their own on certain issues, generally fuse with the Conservatives and Liberals on significant questions.

The Social Democrats are strongly opposed to the chief features of the emperor's policy. They are against increased expenditure for the army and navy. They are against the severe laws which repress freedom of speech. They are against the new high tariff upon articles of food, forced upon the country by the agrarian aristocracy, at the expense of the industrial classes. They are in favor of reform of the system of representation and of laws relating to the suffrage. They are for fundamental measures of political reform which have long been established in Great Britain and the United States. The inequality of representation is probably the greatest grievance of the Social Democrats. The present system favors the rural communities at the expense of the cities. For instance, under the present system, the rural constituency of Ost-Prignitz, with 68,000 inhabitants and only 16,000 voters, has as much representation in the reichstag as the Sixth division of Berlin, with more than 500,000 inhabitants, whose voters number 142,226. Had the system of representation been equal in urban and rural districts, at the time of the last election, five years ago, the number of Social Democrats in the late reichstag would have been in the neighborhood of 120, whereas they had only fifty-eight members. They now claim fifty-seven members and say they expect to reach eighty through the second elections which are required in 169 constituencies, a majority of the total vote cast being necessary to elect. No one party will have a majority in the next reichstag. This was the case in the last reichstag, and for this reason the difficulties of the government leaders are greater than of those in other countries.

CANADIAN IMMIGRATION.

Canadian immigration which is increasing so rapidly, is far more desirable than that of the United States and if kept up for any great number of years will render the Dominion a dangerous competitor to the United States in many ways. The report of the committee on agriculture and colonization of the Canadian parliament shows that during the first four months of the present year the Dominion of Canada opened its doors to 40,672 immigrants, which is nearly twice as many as sought admission during the corresponding months last year, and three times more than came in 1901—the respective figures being 22,482 and 13,393.

Of the immigration this spring, a little over one-third has come from Great Britain—the figures being 16,457. This is three times more than the British emigration to Canada during the corresponding months of last year, and lacks only 2300 of equaling the number which the United States attracted from Great Britain and Ireland during the same period. The remaining portion of the Canadian immigration came from the United States and Europe—the former sending 13,770 persons. Continental Europe's contribution to the permanent population of Canada during the four months covered by the report aggregate 10,445 individuals, an increase of 40 per cent. During the same period of four months the immigration to the United States aggregated 207,070 persons.

The Canadian figures may look small in comparison, but Canada's population is only about one-sixteenth of that of the United States, while her immigration equals two-fifteenths of our own. It is also worthy of note that Canada's new blood flows in the veins of Anglo-Saxon and Teutonic people—while a large portion of the immigration to the United States comes from Southern Europe and brings with it a medley of sentiments and ideas that are the origin of most of the ills that now beset this nation. Again, the Canadian immigration in the Northwest goes largely into the country for the purpose of transforming the wilderness to a condition fit for the habitation of man, like farming, lumbering, manufacturing and mining—aiding to build up a citizenship that will make the nation stronger. In the United States a large portion of our immigration settles in the cities and contributes to make worse conditions that are already bad.

The showing is all in favor of the Dominion as far as this year's immigration goes.

Nearly all the geographies give Tahlequah as the capital of Indian territory, but the Kansas City Journal says that according to Tams Bixby, chairman of the Dawes commission, Tahlequah is not entitled to that honor. It is simply the capital of the Cherokee nation, and each of the remaining four nations has a capital of its own. Muskogee for the last several years has been used by the commission as the seat of government for the whole territory.

A Missouri couple, after waiting forty years, have just been married. It is hardly likely they will ever reach the divorce court.

It is now claimed that strawberries are a cure for rheumatism. An uncommonly pleasant cure, it must be admitted.

HOTEL GOSSIP.

"Unless there is some sudden halt," said Traveling Passenger Agent Frank H. Beach, of the Rock Island road, at the Spalding hotel this morning, "the railroad fare between the Twin Cities and Chicago will be a merry song within a very short time.

"I understand the Wisconsin Central has cut its rate out of Duluth to Chicago, from $13.50 to $12.25, or at least that was the cut last Saturday. It may be more now. The Wisconsin Central has cut the rate from St. Paul to Chicago to $5 now, and it looks as if it would continue to go down.

"I am not conversant with the reasons for the action, but have heard that the disdainful attitude of the Milwaukee & St. Paul road, which has recently cut the time between the two places to twelve hours and which has been giving very low rates into Chicago, Detroit and other places for parties, was the last straw to the Wisconsin Central, which was acting with the bigger roads on rates, though a weaker line for business.

"The Milwaukee road has been getting about all the business, or at least a large amount of it, for some time past and has been carrying out a great many parties, which caused the other roads to say ouch!"

There were some other railroad men present and one of them amplified the statement as to the cause of the trouble by averring that the Milwaukee road had been openly violating agreements.

The Western Passenger association has a rule providing that $2 plus one fare be charged on excursion rates, unless by special agreement, and it is claimed that when the Woodmen were leaving Minneapolis this week they went at a less rate than that.

It seems that the Milwaukee road applied to the Woodmen for business and offered a $13 rate. It secured many passengers for Indianapolis, and after arrangements were made with the ticket buyers the association was asked to permit the rate. The association refuser, and it was given anyway.

the start of slaughter rates, and it looks as if it would continue.

PERILS OF "BUTTING IN."

Chicago Tribune: "He butted in," said the policeman of the man who interfered in behalf of a prisoner, "and I had to arrest him."

"He butted in," said the husband who was having a somewhat spirited domestic debate with his wife, "and I threw him out of the window."

"He butted in," said the Nineteenth ward society gent, who was out at Ogden's grove with his steady company, "and I had to knock the block off him."

It will thus be seen that the individual who butts in stands an excellent chance to be hoosted out with more celerity than consideration. He is persona non grata everywhere. He is the successor of the person who used to "stick his nose into other people's business"—the man who was "too fresh," the individual who "talked too much with his mouth." He now butts in.

Unfortunately, the rebuffs which he receives do not in the least discourage him. He escapes the fool killer with a facility which almost justifies the belief that he is under the protection of a special providence. He continues to "butt in" everywhere, giving unsought advice, administering impertinent rebroof, obtruding his opinions and his wishes where they are not wanted, making a nuisance of himself from early morn to dewey eve.

He has a black eye most of the time, his nose is sore from continued hammering, and his trousers are torn and dirty as the result of his being thrown downstairs several times a day. Still he "butts in," and will continue to "butt in" until the end of time, for God hath made him so.

HOW SHE GOT READY.

She dressed up to go out with him,
'Twas on the topmost floor;
Before the mirror she had posed
A weary hour or more.
At last she started down the stirs,
And he was glad, but then,
She tarried on the second floor
To see herself again.

Before another mirror there
She turned and turned and turned,
And took her time and primed as though
She only was concerned.
She patted bows and touched up tucks
And felt her fluffy hair,
And rearranged her new "hat" that
With undiminished care.

And then she gathered up her skirts
And fixed them in her hand,
Coquettishly looked back once more
Into the mirror, and—
Went down another flight of stairs
To the reception room,
Where he was huddled like a chunk
Of rainbow colored gloom.

He smiled as any husband should,
But managed not to speak,
And it was well for he was sure
He'd waited there a week.
He rose to go, but she advanced
Upon the large pier glass
And back and forth in front of it
Began to pass and pass.

She started with her hat and hair
And gradually worked down,
Inspecting things, until she reached
The bottom of her gown.
She caught her skirts again and looked
To see how she'd appear,
And, evidently satisfied,
She said: "I'm ready, dear."

He heaved a sigh (but made it soft)
And headed for the street,
But hearing not the footfalls
Of her Louis XIV feet,
He turned—he staggered and then fell
Against the nearest wall—
She was gazing in the mirror
In the hat rack in the hall!

Subtle and Terrible Revenge.

Cleveland Plain Dealer: Senator Depew refuses to endorse the Pennypecker idea of cartoons. "Instead of drawing and quartering the cartoonist," says he, "I would take him out to dinner." And then—do you see the method of his madness?—he would get even with his hapless victim by inflicting an after dinner speech upon him!

Keen Home Thrust.

Philadelphia Ledger: The banishment from Russia of the correspondent of the London Times, for the offense of telling the truth about the government, is a procedure unprecedented in recent years, though the news of it causes no particular sensation in a state whose governor is inclined to speak with favor of the ancient practice of hanging, drawing and quartering newspaper writers who criticise officials.

Cut It Out.

Chicago Chronicle: We are inclined to think that a mistake was made in arresting A. Corn at Salt Lake City on suspicion of an intention to kill the president. A Corn might be a footpad, but hardly an assassin.

In Wisconsin.

Houston Post: "Now, Mabel—"

"Yes, Algie—"
"Now that we're engaged, I—er—er—"
"Yes, Algie—"
"Might—er—er—"
"Yes, Algie—"
"Might—er—give you a—er—kiss?"
"Oh, Algie!"
"Well, mightn't I?"
"I—I—guess so."
"Then here's my kissing certificate."
"And here's mine."
Then they clinch and indulge in one long ecstatic, non-explosive, bacilliless kiss, according to the statutes in such cases made and provided.

What Americanism Means.

Knoxville Journal: It means freedom for every man and woman, freedom of thought and of action, freedom to every one to go in pursuit of happiness and of life in one's own way, so long as one violates no law. He who would throw a stumbling block in the way of the poorest and humblest that will interfere with the enjoyment of his life lacks something of being a good American. A large majority of people of this country must earn their bread with their hands and with the sweat of their faces; it belongs to each individual man to say for himself at what he shall work, for whom he shall work and how much time he shall work, provided he does not do something that is forbidden by law. The man who would undertake to deprive him of this privilege in any respect is not a good American.

Reflections of a Bachelor.

New York Press: The average man saves money one place so as to be able to put it where he is squandering it somewhere else.

It takes a woman to convince herself that what is a scandal for other women to do is only indiscretion when she does it.

A POSTHUMOUS LOVER.

By Frances Marion Eddy.

(Copyright, 1902, by Daily Story Pub. Co.)

Miss Nellie's golden youth had long ago merged into the silver of middle age. In fact, it had never held the bloom and sunshine of most maidens, so she had trod an unloved path until she had long passed life's meridian.

When the Widow Hoban married for the third time, Miss Nellie reflected at length upon the unjust distribution of marital felicities and soliloquized audibly concerning the forwardness of some women. "Not that I'd care about changin' my way of livin' now—" she assured Phineas, the black cat, who received all her communications with feline reserve—"but I really would like to know for once in my life how it would seem to have some man say soothin' things to me with intentions."

She was in this receptive frame of mind one winter evening as she sat toasting her feet preparatory to retiring. The clock was wound, the doors were locked and the soapstone was warming itself at the fender. Miss Nellie sat swinging to and fro in her little rocking chair with her gray flannel dressing gown wrapped cosily about her, and her eyes fixed upon the glowing coals. Suddenly she felt that she was no longer alone and turning with a little apprehensive shiver she saw the door from the hall slowly swing inward. A tall person, completely enveloped in some dark wrap, entered and paused as though expecting a greeting.

"Do not needlessly alarm yourself, dear madam; I have not come to harm you, but simply to visit you as a friend; one, in fact, bent upon the most delicate embassy."

"Why you're a man!" gasped Miss Nellie, recovering from her semi-paralysis with a conversational jerk, delighted at the possibilities of the occasion.

"I have that honor, madam," responded the apparition with a Chesterfieldian bow, "but do not mistake me for one in the flesh. This is my astral body and even now my Karma lingers without yon doorway."

The significance of this address, couched as it was, failed to penetrate Miss Nellie's perceptions.

"Oh, do call your Karma right in. It is dreadful cold in the entry. It can lie right here on the rug; Phineas won't mind, he's real peaceable for a cat."

The spirit looked slightly pained and replied with an air of wounded dignity:

"My good lady, I am not speaking of an animal, but a disembodied intelligence. When in the bonds of the flesh I was a person of advanced thought! One of the very few who, perceiving the injustice of mundane conditions, sought to secure equality in all things for all classes. It was not, however, until after the disintegration of my mortal shell that the higher phase—the equalization of the affections—presented itself to my no longer obscured mental vision. One of the most pathetic sights to a sympathetic spiritualized intelligence," continued her guest with polished monotony of tone, "is the observation of some worthy, capable female soul passing through life unloved and unwooed."

With Nellie sniffed with embarrassment at this obvious personality, but without waiting for a reply from her the speaker continued earnestly:

"When we are in this abstract state we perceive charms where once we would have seen none. Inspired by motives too lofty to be understood by one whose ideas are still in a chrysalis of clay, I have arrogated to myself the right, nay more, the obligation to ameliorate this deplorable state of affairs."

"Elegant language!" was Miss Nellie's mental comment. "Shouldn't wonder if he'd been an exhorter of a campaigner he'd been an exhorter of a campaigner in his day." Then aloud: "If it wouldn't be presumin', sir, would you mind tellin me what your business was when you went around like other folks?"

"A perfectly natural question, madam, considering the circumstances and your sex. When in the bondage of the flesh I canvassed the country setting forth the virtues of a certain internal remedy known as 'The Helper to Happy Homes;' good for all nervous affections, palpitation of the heart, blind staggers and asthma. Unexcelled for the cure of chilblains and wonder-working in cases of earache! Lady, is your little child restless at night and fretful, take a teaspoonful of this great specific—" then recalling himself as Miss Neelie punctuated his speech with a faint gurgle of maidenly disclaim at so unseemly a suggestion,—"pardon me, madam! Your polite and deferential attention, united with the fact that only for a brief time I have been untrammeled by the grossness of my earthly environment, caused me to suffer a temporary illusion and for the nonce I believed myself again in the flesh urging the merits of a most worthy cause. Instead I find myself alone and at night with one whom I recognize as an affinity and whose yearning heart even now cries out to me for sympathy and consolation."

Miss Neelie, like many others, possessed that singular rectitude of character which is more the result of lack of opportunity than any especial inherent moral integrity. This delightful temporizing with the unusual and impeachable was as rain in the barren desert of her experience.

The oft-hoped for and long-deferred was here at last! She wished that the erstwhile Widow Hoban could be witness of her triumph, although she shuddered to think of what might be the results of that rotund lady's florid volubility if all the facts were made known.

In the meantime her guest had drawn nearer and now sat at the opposite side of the hearth eyeing her with spectral ardor. Miss Neelie bridled her gray flannel shoulders with rosy coquetry and implously thanked her guardian angel for the delay in putting up her hair in crimping pins. It could hardly be hoped that even so immaterial a suitor as hers would be entirely oblivious to such unbecoming externals as crimpers. At last she found voice again.

"I believe, sir, that your intentions are perfectly honorable, but how can a live woman and a —and a—well, you, get married? I don't for the life of me see!" This last rather explosively, as she felt that any allusion to her lover's unsubstantiality was tactless, not to say positively indelicate.

"Cornelia," the ghost replied, "you willfully misunderstand my meaning. My soul turned and looked upon yours and instantly knew its correlative. Such worthy traits of character, such noble and beautiful mental characteristics as you possess cannot be overshadowed by external appearances or dimmed by any eccentricities of speech! Physical attributes have no charm for us of the spiritualized vision; they are looked upon as mere carnal appendages of a fettered intelligence. As to marriage! In this relationship which I now seek to establish with you, such material ties are considered folly and weakness. No higher bond can be urged, no more holy union instituted, than the decongrition of spirit for spirit, even though one be hampered by the bondage of flesh. Cornelia, my soul-bride, my hitherto unloved! I see you yielding to the force of my reasoning and to your own inclinations. Permit me to console you with the assurances of my deathless devotion and press upon your lips the nuptial kiss."

So saying, the specter arose and stretching out his transparent hands, sought to draw Miss Neelie to his cadaverous breast when, with one great cry of terror and revulsion of feeling, she rose to her feet and looked wildly about the room.

The log had broken into beautiful glowing coals; the wind moaned down the chimney like a lost and thwarted spirit; Phineas lay upon the rug, a semi-circle of contentment.

"I must have dozed," said Miss Neelie.

FLASHES OF FUN.

Chicago Tribune: "When I went to work for you," protested the salesman, "you said I might stay here as long as I liked."

"So you may," replied the merchant. "But after next week your salary will stop."

Atlanta Constitution: "Railroad took off his leg?"

"Yes, and so providential!"

"Providential?"

"That's what. It was the leg with the rheumatism in it."

Washington Post: "Unbind our hands!" shouted an advocate of woman's rights at a meeting of suffragists yesterday. Not until we've had our hair cut.

New York Sun: Mr. Wetcellar (of Lonelyville)—We have got a green German girl at our house. How are you fixed at yours?

The Cheerful Idiot—About the same. We've got a Swede girl who is blue all the time.

Philadelphia Ledger: Citman—I suppose your town is getting a bit more fashionable now?

Suburbs—Yes, indeed; we used to complain of our "chills and fever," but now everybody refers to it as "malaria."

Philadelphia Press: "It must be understood," said the vestryman, who was extremely "low church" to the new rector, "that the rector here shall have no surplice—"

"Gracombe, "how could one have a surplus on the salary you offer?"

Brooklyn Life: "Whose frock is the prettiest?" said she.

"Why, yours, of course, my dear," said he.

"Are you a judge of frocks?" said she.

"Well, I'm a judge of girls," said he.

Mrs. Knicker—They say a fool and his money are soon parted.

Mrs. Bocker—It isn't so. George is a perfect idiot, and I can't get a cent out of him.

Chicago Post: "Speaking of lucky numbers, they are the ones with the dollar sign before them, aren't they?"

"Well, that depends on whether they represent what is coming to you or what you owe."

Three of a Kind.

Lippencott's Magazine: While we were visiting a small village in one of the Carolinas we went one afternoon to see one of the old negro mammies in her own log cabin. She was highly honored at the condescension of "de ladies," and was much concerned that the call might not be disturbed by the presence of her children—"fo'teen pickaninnies," she called them. Of course, curiosity was too strong for the youngesters, and soon the one door was blocked with curly heads and wide-open eyes. When mammy perceived them, she just turned around and, gathering up her skirts as one does in front of a flock of trespassing chickens, cried out "Shoo!" and the coughdrops disappeared.

But toward the end of our visit mammy heeded the services of a helper to put out the jelly and cake that she insisted we eat. Stepping to the door, she called:

"Mariana!"

Soon three girls in single-piece coverings came bashfully, but curiously, through the door and all were given orders by the bustling mother.

"But," said one of the callers in a half-jesting way, "are all three named Mariana, mammy?"

"Yes," the old woman explained, "all three. You see, when de lil' gi'ls came, 'fo I got 'round 'gain, de folks jest call 'em all Mariana, an's no good changin'. An' anyhow, when I wants a pickaninny, I jest calls 'Mariana' an' one's sho' to come."

His Only Recompense.

New York Times: Governor Odell's declaration concerning the incorruptibility of the present state legislature led Assistant Corporation Counsel "Charlie" Whitman, who is looking after the interests of the city in Albany, to tell this:

A certain New York city "statesman" came to Mr. Whitman after his pernicious activity had defeated a certain measure of doubtful character and asked:

"Say, Whitman, what are you making out of all this?"

"My salary and enemies good and plenty," replied Whitman.

"Nothin' doin' on the side?" inquired the politician.

"Nothin' doin'," answered Whitman sadly.

"Say," interpolated the statesman, "the game you are stacked up against reminds me of the story of the country-man who drove to market the largest bunch of hogs his county had ever seen. When he got to the village, pork was plenty and he couldn't get his price, so the drove his pigs home in disgust.

"'Silas,' inquired his wife sarcastically, 'what did yer make out o' yer trudge?'

"'Nothin' much, I cal-ate,' growled Silas. "'ceptin' only the sassiety of the durned hogs.'

"'And you, Mr. Whitman, how do you enjoy your sassiety?'"

HIGH POINT FOR BOTH

Production and Consumption of Iron Running Close Together.

Imports Will Mean an Increase In Domestic Stocks.

Cleveland, June 18.—The Iron Trade Review this week says: Production and consumption in iron and steel appear to have come close to an equilibrium at high point for both. As to the side to which the balance will fall in the immediate future there does not appear to be any disagreement, but the week has given little new light on the mooted question of the price basis on which large buying will be stimulated. Indications point to limited and careful buying until the effect of recent financial developments can be measured. With the production of pig iron in May at a rate almost equal to 21,000,000 tons a year, there was an increase in reported stocks for the month of 4000 tons, while pig iron imports amounted to 45,000 tons. This would indicate that pig iron imports in the immediate future will mean simply so much accumulation of domestic iron. New furnaces continue to be added to the producing list, and several more will be ready in the next month or two. Meanwhile the number of state circuits under repair seems not to decrease, but the new stacks are of high capacities.

The expectation that the rail mill's would open their books this week for business for 1904 has aroused some interest in the steel market. There is no other price talked of than $28, and at this figure large orders will soon be placed, inquiries being in hand for several hundred thousand tons, including the 100,000 tons from the Harriman interests, incorrectly reported this week as a sale. It is reported that close to 400,000 tons of rails placed for 1903 will be carried over. While the railroads may have gone above their real requirements in their early estimates, the mills, with what came over from 1902, likewise sold beyond their capacity. An early statement is promised from the steel corporation's authorities as to tonnage now booked and the prices on which business in its other principal products will be entered for 1904. The action of the plate manufacturers at their New York meeting in continuing the $1.56 basis indicates the line of procedure. At $32 it is believed plates, shapes and steel bars are in accord with present conditions and the outlook. The pig iron market is not inactive and inquiry is of good proportions, but foundry iron has not yet found its place.

THE STAGE

The romantic and popular old opera by Planquette, "The Chimes of Normandy," will be presented by the Wilbur Opera company at the Metropolitan this evening. Henry C. Peakes will appear in the role of the Miser. Miss Richardson appears as Serpolette, the good for nothing, and sings the part admirably. Gus Vaughan takes the part of the Marquis and Martin Pache the Fisherman.

At the conclusion of the afternoon's performance yesterday the three Gardner children received the little folks of Duluth, who were admitted to the play free of charge. "The Chimes of Normandy" will be presented for the balance of the week, and the company will conclude its engagement here next week with "Giroflo Giroflo" for the first three days and the Wednesday matinee, and "Olivette," the last three days and the Saturday matinee. There will be changes in the specialties tonight and next week.

The Northwestern Opera company will present the third of its series of operas for the summer season at the Lyceum theater this evening, when the production of "The Bohemian Girl" will be offered. The whole company has been at work on this opera for almost three weeks now, and it is expected the opening performance will be better and note perfect, as most of the principals are well versed in the business and parts of the piece.

Last night the company presented "Mikado" for the last time before a crowded house. The business was large, both at the matinee and evening performances, the management having tendered the performances for the benefit of the Children's Home fund.

There will be a matinee of "The Bohemian Girl" Saturday.

POLICE ARE NOT MULCTED

David Fosner Gets Verdict Against David Frankfort For $25.

One night in jail was worth only $25 to David Fosner who recently brought suit for $500 damages against Chief of Police Troyer, Jailor Robert Johnson Patrolman Stanis Milostan and David Frankfort, for false arrest.

After hearing the evidence and receiving instructions from the court the jury found for the defendant police officers but a verdict of $25 was awarded against Mr. Frankfort, the plain citizen co-defendant.

On December 19th last, young Fosner appeared in a Superior street clothing store where Frankfort was employed as a clerk and after making some purchase endeavored to have a check cashed.

Frankfort became suspicious of the paper and summoned officer Milostan telling him that the young man was trying to pass a worthless or forged check. Mr. Milostan, on Frankfort's representations took the young man in tow, marched him to a patrol box and later he was locked up in the city jail in direct custody of Jailor Robert Johnson and under the general custody of Chief Troyer. That is where all the defendants were brought in.

City Attorney Mitchell, appearing for the police officers, held that there was no dispute whatever as to fact between the plaintiff and the defendants he represented but maintained that the officers simply did their duty under the circumstances and quoted many decisions in support of this argument. The court accordingly directed the jury to find for the three police officer defendants, but the jurymen simply drew their own deductions from the evidence in respect to the citizen-defendant and this morning handed in a verdict assessing $25 damages against him for his mistake in causing the arrest of Fosner.

CROP REPORTS.

Weather Fairly Favorable—Frosts Do No Injury.

According to the Northwestern crop reports for last week, the frosts did not injure grains, although vegetables were touched. The North Dakota report states:

"The fore part of the past week was quite cold, the temperature going near the frost line in most parts of the state, and light frost is reported from quite a number of places, but were damaging only to corn, potatoes and gardens. It is not thought that any of the small grains were injured at all, although it was expected that flax would be badly nipped. The latter part of the week was warm, with light showers in most sections, and very favorable for crops of all kinds.

"Wheat is still doing well, although in most sections it is in need of rain. In some few places it is turning yellow, and most fields are very weedy, but the late cool weather retarded the growth of the weeds while it favored the growth of grain, and as it now covers the ground, it is possible that it will soon crowd out many of the weeds. Wheat on fall plowing is doing better than that on spring plowing and is not so weedy.

"Oats, rye and barley are doing well; the latter is still being sown, but the growth has not been as rapid as should have been, on account of the cool weather, and most of the fields are behind the season.

"Flax seeding is still in progress, although most of the crop was in some time ago. That sown early is up and doing well; that sown late, where not favored by heavy showers, has not yet germinated, and will not without rain.

"Corn is still behind the season; in many places it was injured by the recent frosts, and it has been retarded by the cool weather, but the few warm days of the past week made a decided improvement in it. It is, as a general thing, quite uneven, and in some instances that planted lately is in advance of the earlier planted.

"Grass is still doing well, but is in need of rain, especially in the eastern portions, where it is making slow progress, except on low land."

The South Dakota report is as follows:

"The weather during the week was generally cool and dry, except that there were general showers, mostly light, the early part of the week which were generally beneficial. In the middle and upper James and Missouri River valley counties more rain would be very beneficial, and in some limited localities it is greatly needed for late planted crops, grass and pasturage. There was a general frost on the 11th, mostly light except in localities in the middle and upper Sioux River valley and the Black Hills region. The frost affected corn, potatoes and tender garden stuff to some extent, principally on lowlands, but no permanent injury is reported, and it is expected that recovery from its effects will be prompt.

"On the whole, wheat, oats, barley, rye and spelt are in very thrifty and promising condition, especially wheat, except on some wet lowlands in extreme southeast counties and in limited dry northern counties. The cool weather was very favorable for wheat; it has stolled very well. The permanent injury to small grains on wet lowlands in the extreme southeastern counties was greater than anticipated, but the acreage was small.

"The cool weather retarded the growth of corn, and the stand is not generally good. Planting is still being done on lowlands in the extreme southeastern counties that can be worked; and some replanting is being done elsewhere, due to poor seed. Cultivation has progressed favorably. Some southeastern fields are weedy. Lowlands are drying well.

"Flax and millet sowing is still in progress. Early flax is doing well, except in dry localities, where also some late sown is not yet up.

"Potatoes, notwithstanding the frost, are reported generally as growing well.

"Grass has made good growth, except in the dry northern localities. The hay outlook is very good over the southern half of the state and in the Black Hills region, but would be much improved by rains in the northern sections.

"Alfalfa is generally in very satisfactory condition.

"Strawberries are ripening, a good crop. Plums promise fairly well."

A GOLDEN OPPORTUNITY

Our New Method of Introducing the TRANSVAAL DIAMONDS!

You have probably noticed by our previous advertisements that we sell the Transvaal Diamonds by the karat and mounted in solid gold only. In order, however, to introduce the Transvaal Diamonds to the Duluth public and vicinity, our factory has manufactured a special line of goods for our Duluth Branch, set in heavy 14-karat gold filled mountings. These goods, consisting of rings, pins, brooches, scarf pins, earrings, cuff buttons, etc., etc., are to be sold the next few days for advertising purposes at less than the cost of the bare mountings.

PRICES RANGING FROM $1.00 TO $4.50.

ALL WARRANTED FOR FROM FIVE TO TWENTY YEARS.

Don't confound the Transvaal Diamonds with other imitations whose principal merit are their cheapness. Transvaal Diamonds are positively the finest imitation on earth and the only ones that will retain their brilliancy and are so warranted by us.

While others who have attempted to build up a trade on inferior imitations have failed, we have established one of the largest business ever known in the history of jewelry. Our stores reach from coast to coast and Transvaal diamonds are designed to replace real diamonds to a very large extent, even with people who can well afford to pay the outrageous prices to which real diamonds have been forced by the diamond trust.

Transvaal Diamonds have all the gorgeous color and brilliant flash of the perfect white mine stones, giving them an appearance of richness that will baffle the most gifted expert to distinguish from the genuine.

HAPPENINGS IN DAKOTAS

Hamilton Young Woman Elopes In Her Graduation Gown.

NORTH DAKOTA.

Hamilton—With her graduation flowers still fragrant and still wearing the gown in which she received her diploma from the Hamilton high school, Mabel Collins, daughter of Mayor Collins, and one of the most popular young ladies in this city, is the wife of Eph Armstrong, a young farmer near here, who stole her away Sunday morning, although both young people knew the wrath of her parents would be terrible, they hurried to Cavalier and were married.

Now the bride is imprisoned at the home of the groom's father, fearful of the vengeance of her infuriated parents. She still wears her graduation gown.

Jamestown—William Brown, a sheep shearer, arrived in the city bloody and bruised and alleged that he was set upon by two brothers, Alvin and Jack Vessey, who said they would "finish" him. He escaped from them and came to Jamestown. Warrants were issued for the men and the sheriff sent out to secure their arrest. They are prominent farmers.

Elevator men who have been around the state a great deal during the past week, say that the frost has done no damage to growing flax as far as can be seen. The damage, if any, was confined to a very few localities.

Finley—Tuesday evening, while examining a 22-caliber rifle, a 12-year-old boy shot a hired man, Ole Bjustad. The wound is in the head, and it is thought the man will die.

Fargo—W. J. Locke, the alleged counterfeiter from Mandan, pleaded not guilty when arraigned on an indictment containing seven counts. He was arrested at Mandan several months ago, and it is alleged that a full counterfeiting outfit was found.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

Lead—All of the sheriffs of the Black Hills counties have been informed that after July 1 they will be required to inspect all shipments of horses from their respective counties. There will be a fee for each inspection, which is to be paid by the county. It is believed that this strict inspection will prevent the shipping out of stolen horses.

Deadwood—There is an interesting case before Judge Rice, of the Eighth circuit. A few days since the board of public health of this city ordered the city school board to compel all of the children in the city schools to be vaccinated. The school board objected to the order and the case was argued before the court on the ground that the act of the legislature under which the suit was brought was unconstitutional.

Pierre—The Locke hotel, which has been the scene of many legislative work than ever the state building did, had a close call from fire today. A blaze started in the kitchen portion of the building and the whole of the upper story of that addition was burned off before the fire was under control. No damage was done to the main building.

Mellette—John Touse, while riding on a load of timber, fell from it and struck on his head, from the effects of which he died. He was about 29 years of age and was a stranger here. He claimed to have a brother in Oregon and two sisters in Chicago, but no trace of them could be found.

Rapid City—The fourth annual meeting of the South Dakota Federation of Women's clubs is in session in this city. Officers present are: Clara D. Coe, Deadwood, president; Mrs. E. L. Marriette, Gettysburg, vice president; Mrs. W. T. Coad, Rapid City, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Annie E. Lumley, Pierre, treasurer. Forty delegates are here. The federation is being entertained by the Currents club, of Rapid City.

DOINGS IN MICHIGAN

Negaunee—While at his homestead near Goose lake one day recently, Phil Hogan of this city found a piece of wax which had been used years ago in an effort to bring lost diamonds from a drill hole. When he picked up the wax and saw a stone sticking to it, Mr. Hogan suspected that it was a diamond, but it did not look any more attractive to him than an ordinary pebble. After arriving home Mr. Hogan was advised that Geo. J. Maas conducted drill work near Goose lake sixteen years ago. He also learned that some diamonds had been lost in a hole and that wax had been used in an effort to bring them up. Mr. Hogan sent for Mr. Maas and gave him the diamond, believing that he had found the rightful owner. Mr. Maas presented Hogan with a $20 bill. The stone is nearly a karat and a half in weight and consequently it is worth about $75, as black diamonds are selling at something like $50 a karat. In recalling his experience at Goose Lake Mr. Maas remembers the work he did in an effort to recover the stones. At that time black diamonds could be bought for less than half what they sell for now.

Menominee—There is a finish fight on between the Rev. Martin Dybvig, pastor of the Norwegian Lutheran church at Menominee, and a number of the prominent men of his congregation. So far it has resulted in more than twenty-five withdrawals from the church society, and a bitterness now marks the dispute which may not end short of the courts. The minister is accused of defaming some of his congregation and the charge is supported by affidavits. The preacher, the affidavits say, declared in the presence of the witnesses on July 25, 1901, that "all business men of this city are thieves, rascals and defrauders, without any exception." Since that time, up to now, the matter has been allowed to slumber.

Crystal Falls—Eleven men working at the Great Western mine at Crystal Falls narrowly escaped serious injuries the other day. They were working underground and got onto the skip to come to the surface, giving the signal to hoist. The brakeman thought the skip was loaded with ore and hoisted it to the landing, dumping the men into the pocket. Only two of the men were injured.

Escanaba—Typhoid fever is spreading in Escanaba with alarming rapidity. There are probably between thirty and fifty cases of the disease in the city at present, with excellent chances of there being a large increase in the near future. The fact that in a majority of cases this disease is caused by impure water leads many to believe that the trouble lies with the city water supply, as in nearly every instance where the disease has appeared those afflicted have been drinking this water.

Alfred Beach, of Minneapolis, has been taken from Escanaba to the asylum for the insane at Newberry. Beach was brought down from White's camp on the E. & L. S., in the custody of several men. Beach is a young man about thirty years of age and powerfully built. He has seen service with the regular army in the Philippines and his insanity is the result of sickness contracted while in service. His learning is remarkable, he being able to converse and write in five different languages. He has caused considerable trouble to the authorities of Escanaba and was arrested several weeks ago for creating a disturbance. At times he becomes violent.

Houghton—The annual meeting of the Copper Range Railway company, William A. Paine, Boston; Cameron Currie, Detroit; S. L. Smith, Lansing; R. R. Goddell, J. H. Rice, F. M. Stanton, J. H. Seager, R. T. McKeever, Houghton, and Frederick Stanwood, Boston, were elected directors for the ensuing year. The directors have not elected officers, but it is said they will be the same as last year.

A MONSTER AT SEA

One Hundred Feet Long Scared Crew of a Steamship.

Was the Most Hideous Monster That Man Ever Saw.

Philadelphia, June 18.—News of the first sea serpent of the season was brought to this city upon the arrival of the British steamship Tresco from Santiago. An authentic account of this monster of the deep was written in a letter to the Record by I. Grey, second mate of the Tresco, which account is attested by W. H. Bartlett, master of the Tresco. The story of Mate Grey follows:

"Apparently the age of sea monsters is not yet past, that is, if one can credit his own eyes, so perhaps the following will be of some interest to you. Some people say believe only one half of what you see and none of what you hear. Be that as it may, let me tell you my story and let those disbelieve it who choose.

"We were on a voyage from Philadelphia to Santiago, Cuba, and when about ninety miles south of Cape Hatteras a great disturbance was seen in the water to the southeast and coming directly toward us. After watching it awhile I put it down to be a school of porpoises, but upon getting a better view I discovered instead of porpoises, sharks, and a great number of them, tearing through the water at a great rate in a northwesterly direction toward the coast. By the way, have there been any reports of sharks on the coast?

"Something like an hour afterward, when taking a look round, I saw a black object on the horizon in the direction from which the sharks had come, and, thinking it to be a derelict, steered toward it. The appearance of the thing puzzled me a great deal, until, approaching close to it, the 'derelict' raised itself out of the water, disclosing to my terrified gaze the most hideous monster man ever saw.

"At once the deck was deserted, and, telling the man steering to go down to the pilot house, I followed pretty smartly myself and barricaded all doors. All this was the work of an instant, and on looking through a porthole in the wheelhouse I got a fair view of the monster.

"Half dragon and half serpent, it was the most hideous and loathsome reptile, with its gaping jaws and bloodshot eyes. From each side of its horrid mouth two huge teeth protruded, similar to those of a walrus; its lips were dripping with a discolored saliva, from which emitted a most offensive smell. In length I should say it was about 100 feet, with its huge neck and horrid head reared at least fifteen feet out of the water.

"After gazing at us for a moment, instead of making an attack it turned tail and with a swish and a swirl of water disappeared in the depths. After a reasonable time, and with many a fearful glance around, the men gradually came out, and on being assured the work of the ship once more went forward."

CRIMINAL MANAGEMENT OF POSTOFFICE DEPARTMENT REVEALED BY BRISTOW.

sections of S. W. Tulloch, published in an interview with him in the Washington Post of that date. I beg to enclose three reports regarding the Washington postoffice.

"The first, Exhibit A, refers to the transfer of the Washington postoffice to Hon. A. J. Merritt, incoming postmaster, by James Willett, retiring postmaster, which occurred June 30, 1899. At this time this inspection was in progress, as nearly as I remember, Inspector Cochran and Inspector in Charge Smith called on me and advised me that the inspectors in the investigation of the postoffice had discovered many irregularities of a serious nature which seemed to be authorized by the department. After discussing the matter with them at some length I advised that a report relating generally to the transfer be submitted in the regular way and copies of the same referred to various divisions or bureaus of the department, as followed in other similar cases and that a special report affecting the irregularities that seemed to be authorized by the department be submitted.

"During the progress of the inspection I was advised by the chief inspector that when he came to certain appointments in some of the stations that appeared irregular, he had bet er make no reference to them as they had been ordered personally by the postmaster general. I told the chief inspector to instruct the inspectors to report the facts as they would in any other inspections; that I did not believe the postmaster general had knowingly authorized any irregularities.

Capt. W. B. Smith, inspector in charge, submitted a special report on July 6, as directed, an abstract of which is herewith submitted, marked "Exhibit B." This report disclosed what seemed to me glaring irregularities and I submitted it personally to the postmaster general, suggesting to him at the time that it contained matters to which I thought he would want to give his personal attention.

"Referring to the statement that I had demanded a thorough investigation of the office of the first assistant postmaster general, I beg to state that Inspector in Charge Smith, in his special report, heretofore referred to as marked 'Exhibit B' stated that he had discovered a condition of affairs which in his judgment required an immediate, thorough and exhaustive investigation. I submitted this report to the postmaster general with my approval, but I did not consider such a proposal as a demand on my part that the office of the five assistant postmaster general be investigated.

"The third report, dated July 21, 1900, an abstract of which is herewith submitted marked "Exhibit S," sets forth a number of irregularities that prevailed at that time in the Washington postoffice. This inspection was begun when I was absent from the department.

When I returned I was informed by the chief inspector that complaint was made to the postmaster general that Inspector Little, who was engaged on the work was asking unnecessary questions and seeking information which was not called for in an inspection. I advised him to instruct Inspector Little to make the same kind of an investigation of the Washington postoffice that he would make of any other office under similar conditions and to submit in a special report anything which he thought should be called to the personal attention of the postmaster general. This he did and I submitted the special report to the postmaster general stating to him that I understood from the chief inspector that complaint had been made that Inspector Little was asking unnecessary questions with the possible view of embarrassing the department with regard to certain conditions in the Washington postoffice, but that after inquiry I was clearly convinced that the questions were not unnecessary or improper and that I believed he would hold the same view after he had read his report. Very respectfully,

J. L. BRISTOW,
"Fourth Assistant Postmaster General."

"Exhibit A" which is a report on the inspection concluded June 30, 1899, calls attention to "the fact that credit has been given in the postal account for advances and expenditures for the military stations in Porto Rico," as follows:

Value of stamped paper advanced $12,-769; military postal service, Miscellaneous $15,065; military service pay roll, $30,259; and it is sugested that this account be promptly adjusted, more especially the item of postage stamps and stamped paper advanced to the following persons assigned to duty in connection with the postal service in Porto Rico, viz: McKenna, $146; Whitney, $3046; Van Alystine, $1246; Grafflt, $555; Bristow, $5000. Total, $12,769.

It says that Robert V. Willett, a son of the postmaster at that time, drew two salaries, from July 1 to Dec. 1, 1899, one as a mechanic at $2 a day for each working day on what appears to have been a special roll of the postoffice delivery service, and that N. H. Barter likewise was designated as a laborer on the postoffice roll April 28, 1899, at $700 per annum, and on the same date as mechanic on the face delivery roll at $2 a day. The inspector continuing says, that on June 30, 1899, twenty-two employes were borne on the rolls and paid on what has been known as the military roll, while the "military roll" shows thirty-four names as having been paid by the cashier of the Washington postoffice.

There was also found a "special roll" of employes, paid for miscellaneous allowances, said appointments being under control of the postoffice department. This roll consists of nine "cleaners" with salaries from $300 to $900 and one "physician" at a salary of $1,000. Some of these "cleaners" appeared to have performed very little service and others none at all.

The most important exhibit is the confidential report of Postmaster Inspector in Charge Smith, of the Washington division, made in July, 1900, s+ . 2g forth irregularities, which he urged should be investigated. He names four employes on the military roll who appear not to have performed any service in connection with military postal matters and for whose original appointment or continuance on the rolls no good reason exists. The payment to W. S. Lagner, a military postal clerk under prot— by the cashier of $118.33 subsequently disallowed by the audtor of the treasury on January 4, is gone into at length, and it is shown that this matter was entirely irregular and that payments were directed without proper vouchers. The inspector says that while the cashier was out of the office temporarily and having left instructions no final payment could be paid to Lardner until his expense account was adjusted by the auditor.

Larner called and demanded an immediate settlement, and when settlement was not made at once he appealed to the department and the acting postmaster on demurring further was informed by the department that the "Washington office held a letter from the first assistant postmaster general directing payment to be made to Mr. Larner and if that was not good enough perhaps it would obey one signed by the postmaster general." The amount was finally paid under written instructions. On December 12 and 14 Larner was requested to call at the Washington office and furnish information required by the auditor and return $8.16 overpayment of salary obtained by misrepresentation, but no answer was received to such requests."

Attention is called to certain items of expenditures authorized for the military postal service of supplies, furniture, traveling expenses, aggregating $8750.75, with the statement that whether the foregoing items were purchased in the open market or as the result of competitive bids, the inspector is unable to say, but that the prices paid for some of the articles enumerated, such as washstands at $40 each, appear to have been highly excessive and lead to the belief that the feature of competition did not enter into the transaction.

Attention is also called to additional irregularities in connection with payrolls of clerks and laborers and to charging premiums on the bonds of the military postal clerks notwithstanding such expenses are not chargeable to the United States.

An interesting feature concerns irregularities in the appointment, compensation and promotion of Oliver H. Smith. On November 30, 1897, the first assistant postmaster general authorized an allowance of $600 per annum for his appointment as laborer, stating that the free delivery division would also allow $2 per day to cover car fare and incidental expenses. Smith drew pay from Nov. 23, 1897, to Nov. 30, 1898, making his compensation for one year approximately $1345.00. The inspector reports "no one has certified to the actual time Smith was employed nor has any statement been attached to his pay vouchers showing what particular service he rendered. He was continued in the dual capacity of clerk and mechanic until April 1, 1899, when he was promoted to be finance clerk at $1700 a year." The inspector says he knows of no authority of law for his appointment or promotion. The inspector calls attention to a letter of the cashier of the Washington office addressed to the postmaster dated December 20, 1898, to the effect that on that day Smith asked for his per diem as a mechanic and was informed by the cashier he had no authority to pay him and that it would be necessary for him to obtain the usual letter from the department; that Smith stated that Gen. Heath said no authority other than that given was needed; that Towers remarked, "That is your answer, then. Gen. Heath wants to know why you do not pay Mr. Smith," and cashier replied that he would furnish Gen. Heath a full statement of the case, but that such request should come through the postmaster.

When Towers replied: "Shall I report to Gen. Heath that you refuse to give him the information?" to which the cashier replied that he was under no obligations to take orders from Towers or communicate with the department through him, but would write a statement and deliver it to the acting postmaster (the postmaster had left the building); that Towers then made an effort to telephone the first assistant postmaster general without effect; that Towers then said he was in Gen. Heath's room at the department when Smith called and said he could not get the money; that Gen. Heath then called up the S. & A. division and was informed that no further authority was needed; and told him (Towers) to go down with Smith and see why he could not get his pay.

The cashier reported that Towers was under the influence of liquor and disposed to be abusive.

Attention is next called by the inspector to certain vouchers authorized to be paid by the first assistant postmaster general, such as July 22, 1898, expenses of Perry S. Heath and George W. Beavers, incurred in visiting Philadelphia and New York on official business, $87.25; Sept. 30, expenses of George W. Beavers, traveling on official business, $7.15; July 26, expenses of M. W. Louis and Blain W. Taylor, traveling on official business, $50.15. The inspector states that these vouchers do not appear to have been itemized in proper manner, nor is the necessity for the expenditure of this money by the Washington postoffice apparent, and that a full and complete explanation should be made, especially as many of the parties drawing money on these accounts are officials or clerks receiving money from the department.

Attention is called to seven cleaners, placed on the payroll of the Washington office under authority of the first assistant postmaster geral, to be charged to the appropriation for miscellaneous expenses. The names of these cleaners—all females—are given.

The inspector states that neither the postmaster nor anyone connected with the Washington office was able to give any information as to where they were employed or the nature of their work, and the inspector is of opinion that practically no service whatever has been rendered for the money expended.

The inspector says that by the overlapping of a lease executed July 28, 1897, by the Union Building company of Washington and the postmaster general, Sept. 13, 1897, the government is $625 and that the building was paid for one month beyond its occupancy.

The inspector reports that when the cashier of the Washington postoffice, on letters from the comptroller, suspended payments to certain persons mentioned he was "required to continue these payments upon direct written order of the postmaster," who states he was verbally instructed in his action by the first assistant postmaster general. The payments were made, under the cashier's protest.

In conclusion, the inspector states that the files of the cashier's office show full, direct and positive orders from superior authority for the disbursement of all the questionable items mentioned in the inspector's report: that the responsibility for the many illegal appointments, the payment of two salaries to one and the same person, and the disbursements of thousands of dollars for which practically no service was performed, should be placed where it properly belongs, and the many abuses corrected.

Reference is made by the inspector to discovery of the names of three charwomen whose duties the station superintendents did not know, and it is added: "Mr. Beavers, chief of S. & A. division, requested the inspector to inform the inspector in charge that when he struck the names of the charwomen off the station it would be well not to mention them in his report, as they were personal appointments of the postmaster general, and their appointment had been authorized by the department, and that they had been only temporarily assigned to the station until they could be assigned elsewhere."

The inspector cites payments to Catherine Endsley, Charles A. Machen, A. B. Hurt, H. L. Lorenz, John S. Leach and F. W. Walt, on the authority of the first assistant postmaster general of per diem in connection with claims of letter carriers for overtime charges, aggregating $4655. The inspector says this amount, disbursed from July 1, 1898, to May 1, 1899, was disbursed without authority of law. The comptroller of the treasury, in a letter to the postmaster at Washington, dated April 26, 1899, calls for a statement from each of these persons, showing what payments they have received of the government for services or expenses from July 1 to Sept. 30, 1898.

Machen, Lorenz and Hurt, it appears, were paid per diem covering the same period by the disbursing clerk of the department of justice, from the appropriation for defending suits in letter carriers' claims against the United States before the court of claims. These parties continued to draw pay until the receipt of the comptroller's letter, the necessity for such services suddenly and finally ceasing with final payment for the month of April. Referring to voucher of letter carrier A. A. Erb, July 1 to Sept. 1, 1898, for $195, the comptroller called attention to the death of this letter carrier Sept. 10, while the coucher shows payment to him while the vaucher shows payment to him up to an including the date of death. The comptroller says that if these receipts were signed in blank by persons on the pay roll, and says the existence of such practice would make receipts of little value.

Voucher 4, John E. Stanton, is for six days, while it appears that this carrier actually served only one day, but signed for five other carriers employed on the same day.

The report of Inspector Little on the investigation of the Washington office, dated July 31, 1900, says that a number of clerks were added to the rolls without request of the postmaster, and that the postmaster states that at times it has been difficult to find employment for all assigned to his rolls. The inspector says the roster appears to be elastic—to be added to as circumstances arise, whether the postmaster requests it or.r not.

The aggregate salaries paid to those not connected with the office amounted to $16,186. The inspector says the postmaster knows nothing about these names beyond the fact that they are on the payrolls by written authority of the postoffice department, and the reason, therefore, is undoubtedly clear to that department. The inspector recommends that the roster be confined to bona fide employes of the office, and only such retained as the needs of the service require. This, he says, will reduce the expenditure many thousands of dollars, without impairing the efficiency of the service.

The original charges of Mr. Tulloch, made to Postmaster General Smith, and the conclusions reached by Mr. Smith in his report on them, follow publications recently printed. Mr. Smith says that the payment of bonds of military clerks by the government were in order to protect Postmaster Willett and his sureties when the service was organized, many of these clerks being comparatively unknown to the local postal authorities, and that the comptroller has since rather inclined to the opinion that these payments, while not entirely regular, were warranted under the circumstances. As to the dual compensation to O. H. Smith, Former Postmaster General Smith says that it was the opinion of the department that any employe receiving $2500 or less could be paid compensation on two different rolls, but that the technical irregularity was discontinued as soon as the comptroller of the treasury called attention to it. Concerning the vouchers for expenses of Beavers, Heath and others, the necessity for the expenditure of the money by the Washington office being questioned, Mr. Smith says that the vouchers were furnished where possible and the entire account regularly sworn to.

He defends certain alleged irregular appointments, and says the appointments were regular, and that the postmaster should have detailed the persons to duty. Mr. Smith says it was the postmaster's duty to provide employment for the cleaners appointed, or to report to the department that there was no employment for them. He says the department was liable for the full month's rental of a temporary postoffice building mentioned. Concerning the overtime claims of Lorenz, Hurt, Machen and others, Mr. Smith says that this expenditure was understood by the auditor for the postoffice department, both in this and the previous administration, and that no question was ever asked as to the propriety until May, 1899, when the practice was discontinued. Mr. Smith contends that the result of the investigation of the overtime claims shows that approximately $9,000,000 has been settled for about $2,500,000 within about five years, for which judgments have been rendered in the court of claims, saving the government, as compared with the old method of settling claims, about $5,500,000.

There is nothing on either the memorandum of Postmaster Merritt nor on the conclusions of Former Postmaster General Charles Emory Smith regarding the investigation of the original charges, to indicate the date of these two portions of the documents.

SUPERINTENDENT METCALF OUSTED

appears that you did not acquaint your superior, First Assistant Postmaster General Wynne, with the fact that you had endeavored to have Mr. Herman withdraw his bid. It further appears that a hearing has been had before General Wynne on the question of the financial responsibility of Mr. Herman; although it has developed since the submission of your answer this morning, that you discouraged the granting of such a hearing and manifested a desire that the contract be awarded to the Wynkop-Hallenbeck-Crawford company. Very respectfully, H. C. Payne, postmaster-general."

Postmaster General Payne in announcing his action, said that there was no charge that Mr. Metcalf had done anything that was amenable to the law, but said that his conduct was serious indiscretion that could not oe overlooked.

Mr. Metcalf, he said, always had been considered a faithful, efficient, painstaking and honest employe.

The postmaster general, on his arrival at the department today, sent for Fourth Assistant Postmaster General Bristow and Attorney General Robb, and after detailing the information that had reached him regarding the money order printing bids, instructed them to send for Mr. Metcalf and immediately to investigate the case.

Bristow and Robb, with Inspector Fosnes, examined Mr. Metcalf closely for two hours, and he, it is said, corroborated the facts given in the letter of dismissal. Messrs. Bristow and Robb immediately afterward had a long conference with the postmaster general, who also sent for First Assistant Postmaster General Wynne, who has immediate supervision of the money order system, and who has insisted on the lowest bidder being given a hearing and an opportunity to demonstrate his ability to fulfill the contract. The postmaster general later conferred with President Roosevelt regarding the case and the order of dismissal followed.

Mr. Payne's voice trembled with emotion as he announced the dismissal to the newspaper men late yesterday afternoon. He said it had become his duty to make the removal and was a step which he could not avoid in the proper discharge of his duties. In reply to questions, he said that no consideration had been given as yet to the appointment of a successor but that the duties of superintendent for the present would devolve on Mr. Metcalf's assistant. He is Edward F. Kimball, of Massachusetts, who has been in the service for sventeen years.

Mr. Metcalf was originally appointed from Iowa and has been in the postal service since 1882. During his administration of the office the money order service has been widely extended by mutual arrangements with a large number of foreign governments throughout the world, and Mr. Metcalf has had cordial personal relations with many foreign postal officials. His salary was $3000 a year.

The Wynkop, Hallenbeck, Crawford company has been the contractor for the money order blanks for sixteen years. Paul Herman, the lowest bidder for the next contract, formerly was in the employ of that company, as also is Norman Metcalf, the 27-year-old son of the deposed superintendent, who now draws a salary of $2250 from the company. Herman assisted in the drawing of the specifications for the contract, and when the bids were opened it was found that Herman had become a competitor of the old company, undercutting their bid by about $45,000. The company protested against Herman's bid on the ground that he lacked the facilities for doing the work, and Herman asked for a hearing, which First Assistant Postmaster General Wynne gave last Monday. Mr. Metcalf was opposed to the letting of the contract to Herman on the ground that he was not able to do the work. Herman insisted that he could furnish satisfactory evidence of his ability to meet the requirements. A hearing was held Monday last, when Herman offered to furnish bonds in any amount that he would fulfill the contract. No decision was reached at the hearing, both sides being granted permission to file briefs with Mr. Robbs.

Mr. Metcalf, when seen last night, said that he had done nothing wrong and had nothing to conceal; that his son's employment in the bidding firm could have no effect on the award; that he suggested Herman's return to his old company to handle the government work there because he (Mr. Metcalf) knew that Herman's means were limited and that a stoppage of supplies in the midst of a contract term would have proved serious. He says that on Herman's consent he wrote Mr. Hallenbeck, advising that Herman be restored to his old place, and that he told Herman he had little doubt that the government would allow Herman to withdraw his forfeit check of $5000.

Married Women

Every woman covets a shapely, pretty figure, and many of them deplore the loss of their girlish forms after marriage. The bearing of children is often destructive to the mother's shapeliness. All of this can be avoided, however, by the use of Mother's Friend before baby comes, as this great liniment always prepares the body for the strain upon it, and preserves the symmetry of her form. Mother's Friend overcomes all the danger of child-birth, and carries the expectant mother safely through this critical period without pain. It is woman's greatest blessing. Thousands gratefully tell of the benefit and relief derived from the use of this wonderful remedy. Sold by all druggists at $1.00 per bottle. Our little book, telling all about this liniment, will be sent free.

Klondike Gold Decreasing.

Although thousands of prospectors have been exploring the Klondike region for over a year, no new mines have been discovered, and the government expert reports that this year's production will be $10,000,000 less than last year. In this respect the Klondike resembles the majority of new medicines that spring up from time to time. They seem to flourish for a season, but because of lack of merit soon play out. Not so, however, with Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, which has been before the public continuously for fifty years, and is today more in demand than ever. Its wonderful success is attributed to the fact that it positively cures indigestion, dyspepsia, flatulency, headache, constipation, biliousness and malaria, fever and ague. Try a bottle and see for yourself.

As it never spoils or changes in any climate, Satin-Skin cream is a useful curative everywhere. 25c.

PICTURE IS TAKEN

While a Surgeon Operated in a Philadelphia Hospital.

The First Accomplishment of the Kind on Record.

Philadelphia, June 18.—It has become possible to make moving pictures indoors. At St. Joseph's hospital, one day recently, while a surgeon operated, a moving picture was taken of the operation under the direction of S. Lubin. The Philadelphia inventor's accomplishment is the first of the kind on record. The photographs were made at the rate of 1500 a minute, and in the pale and weak light it was hardly thought that they would be good. But they were developed with care, and they proved to be excellent.

This new field of the moving picture offers great possibilities. Because the first set of pictures happened to have a surgical operation for their subject the vistas opening up before the enthusiastic inventor are, so far, vistas of surgery only. He only sees, as yet, the value of his new work to the physician. But that it will develop values of other and equally important kinds there can be no doubt.

This will be its value to the physician. There are certain surgical operations of great importance and of great rarity. Maybe not once in five years will one of these operations be performed in a given hospital. Yet it is necessary for the students of medicine at this hospital to know how the operation is done, so that they may, if the occasion should arise, do it themselves some day. How, at present, do the students learn about this operation? Only by verbal descriptions of it. How in the future, will it be possible for them to learn of it? By its projection, as large as life, from start to finish, upon a screen behind the lecturer.

Thus it is likely that hereafter a moving-picture apparatus will be as much a part of the paraphernalia of the instructor in surgery as are his knives, his antiseptic solutions and his anaesthetic now. When he shall wish to describe a rare operation he will not have to content himself with vague weak words, but at a sign from him the lights will fall, and on the white screen the operation itself will be performed, benefiting the students quite as much as though they had been present at it.

A photographic specialist to whom the taking of the pictures at St. Joseph's hospital was described told how it had been possible to accomplish this unprecedented feat.

"To three things," he said, 'the photograph's success was due. These things were a film of extraordinary sensitiveness, a lens of extraordinary rapidity and a camera peculiarly constructed—a camera of the photographer's own make—that admitted to the film a tremendous quantity of light."

On the operating table, unconscious, lay the patient, a woman. The etherizer, dressed in white, stood at her head The operator, in white also, sent his knife quickly through the living flesh, and with a click-click-clicking sound, the moving picture man made photographs at the rate of 1500 a minute.

At the end of the operation and of the picture taking a tall, robust man, one of the photographic assistants, fell suddenly to the floor. His head struck a sharp piece of brass. Blood gushed from a deep cut beneath his eye. The ghastliness of the operation had been too much for him, and he had toppled over in a faint.

THE DERBY FAVORITES

The Race on Saturday Will Prove a Puzzling Proposition.

Chicago, June 18.—Judge Himes, the winner of the Kentucky Derby and the Hawthorne Handicap, is now one of the second choice for the American Derby. After his race in the Derby special at Harlem yesterday, his price was cut to 8 to 1, making him an equal choice with Claude and Bernays. It is the belief of horsemen that Jude Himes could have beaten Savable yesterday had the race been a slightly longer one, and his performance on a fast track was surprising.

Savable remains a favorite at 2 to 1, despite his narrow victory in the Derby trial. The fact that he was driven out in a mile and an eighth race makes him a weaker candidate and leaves the race a puzzling proposition. The tendency will be to enlarge the field, and the number of horses that go to the post may exceed fifteen.

Fore and Aft, the Tennessee candidate, arrived at Washington park from Detroit and was breezed six furlongs. He resembles Irish Lad and is being strongly supported.

The probable Derby field has undergone some changes. Dick Welles may not start in the race, and Skillful, a stable companion of Judge Himes, is also out of it. There is doubt as to whether Au Revoir will be started.

John F. Schorer has announced that he will send Gold Bell in the Derby. Bad News is now a certain starter and Colonade may accompany Bergnaye, of the same stable, to the post. Banter is also regarded as a certain member of the field.

John A. Drake denied that he had made an offer to Jockey Bullman to take a Derby mount. Drake said he had never entertained such a thought, and had made final arrangements for Lester Reif and Charles Gray to ride Savable and High Chancellor. Reif will probably ride Savable.

J. B. Respes has engaged Jockey Milton Henry to ride one of his Derby horses. The regular jockey, T. Knight, will ride Bernays, and Henry will be up on the other Respes starter.

Chicago, June 18.—The Derby trial special at Harlem yesterday furnished one of the most sensational finishes of the year. Savable, Linguist and Judge Himes, in a fierce drive that commenced at the head of the stretch, came under the wire as named, heads barely apart. Savable, the American Derby favorite, held at 1 to 2 in the race yesterday, showed wonderful gameness at a time when he appeared beaten, but Gray, who had the mount, held Savable together and hand rode him out to victory. Probably the most remarkable run by any of the seven starters was that of Judge Himes, winner of the Kentucky Derby and Hawthorne Handicap. Trailing along far back until reaching the stretch, he closed with a hair-raising rush and would certainly have won had the distance been a mile and a quarter or the Derby route of a mile and a half, according to the belief or the majority of horsemen and trainers at the track. Bernays, highly touted for the Derby and second to Savable in the M. Lewis Clark stakes, was never a factor in the contest.

LYING ALL RIGHT

French Professor Out With Defense of Telling Untruths.

The Circumstances Under Which He Thinks Falsehood Is Justifiable.

Paris, June 17.—A French theologian has published a set of rules to govern the ethics of lying. The rules tell when a witness in a law court may depart from the truth, when a man may lie to his wife, or a wife deceive her husband.

The rules for lying are contained in a pamphlet under the title, "Lying Properly. So-Called." It is signed by a professor of theology.

"Timid, simple souls," says the professor, "often find a moral stumbling block in the fact that truth is not always possible, or desirable." For the support of such the professor lays down rules for the regulation of lying, giving illustrations of cases wherein the truth may legitimately be sacrificed.

According to the professor's "completed" definition, a lie consists of an endeavor to deceive someone who has a right to know the whole truth. Permissible lies may be brought under two heads, those told to guard a secret, and those told in self-defense. These include lies told to avoid revealing a confidence, lies to the enemies of one's country, and even lies whose only purpose is to save the teller's own skin.

A witness in a law court legitimately may lie if he has grave reason to fear resentment of the criminal, or if the evidence required of him would damage his own character.

A wife may deceive her husband on the subject of her infidelity, regarding her crime as a secret to be kept.

Even a confessor has not under all circumstances the "right to truth." For instance, if he asks questions concerning a sin already absolved, or questions concerning the temporal affairs of his penitent.

Illustrations are given of circumstances wherein children may lie to parents, scholars to teachers, servants to masters, if the liar fears that from his frankness some notable detriment to himself will follow, he has sufficient reason for not speaking the truth.

"A Demoniacal Revenge."

A startling situation with dread possibilities is the above named story by Kennett Harris in the July number of 10 Story Book. It is one of the best things of the month in the short story line.

IS TURNING WHITE

Strange Case of Negro Whose Skin Changed In Color.

The Transformation Began More Than Two Years Ago.

New York, June 18.—A remarkable case of a colored man turning white is that of Rugus Hurburt, a retail tobacconist of No. 195 West Twenty-third street. The transformation began more than two years ago, and has been progressive, with the singular phase that it is more rapid during the summer than in winter. The new color is very much like that of a normal white person. It is not precisely a pallid white, such as comes from sickness or a haggard condition. It more nearly resembles the pale color of one who has been a stranger to sunlight for a long time.

A little more than two years ago he noticed white spots appearing on his hands. There was no chipping of the skin or signs of irritation. Neither were there any symptoms of sickness or other disorder. The skin seemed to change insensibly from brown to the clear white. The white spots grew larger and larger, and Mr. Hurburt, though feeling perfectly well, thought it wise to get medical advice. He called in his family physician, Dr. Richard Conwell, of No. 63 West One Hundred and Thirty-fourth street. Dr. Conwell immediately detected the cause, and explained, to his patient's astonishment, that a process was beginning by which the color of the skin was changing from brown to white. From that time Dr. Conwell has been especially interested in observing the gradual extension of the change.

Long before the hands were even nearly covered by white skin the scalp began to turn white, then the whole body, and finally the nose. Mr. Hurburt's hands are now almost wholly white. Isolated specks and small streaks of brown show here and there, particularly between the knuckles, but they are the last vestiges of brown skin on the hands, and will probably disappear by the end of the summer. The body is now partly white, every month showing a steady progression in the change. The scalp is more than half white. The nose is partly white, and will perhaps be wholly white by September, according to the present rate of progress. The rest of the face is giving perceptible evidence of a change.

"Mr. Hurburt's case," said Dr. Conwell, "can best be described, perhaps, as a freak of nature in that individual. The cause of the change is pigmentation—a lack of nutrition to the cutica. But what more immediately operates on the cutica so as to produce this remarkable change is rather obscure, and at best intricate. Though the cutica is subject to non-nourishment by the blood, Mr. Hurburt is not anaemic. On the contrary, he is in a perfectly healthy condition. He has never been seriously ill, and he takes good care of himself. He is a man of regular habits and temperate life. Now, why the body as a whole should be free from anaemia and the cutica suffer from lack of nutrition is a question. Yet the evident cause of the change clearly proceeds from pigmentation.

"It is, as I say, a very extraordinary case, and such as is rarely met with. Probably within eight or ten years he will be wholly white—a clear, normal white. His case is one that cannot be duplicated in tens or hundreds of thousands of colored persons. So far as I know, there is no particular treatment; the transformation is simply having its own mysterious way."

ENGLISH LUTHERANS.

Synod of Northwest Meets at La Crosse.

La Crosse, Wis., June 17.—The English Lutheran synod of the Northwest convened in this city this morning with an attendance of fifty delegates from various churches in the Northwest. Rev. George H. Talbert, D.D., of Minneapolis, delivered the convention sermon this morning. He called attention to the fact that a spirit of worldliness is growing in the churches of this country, and that churches were getting to be regarded more as social clubs than as houses of worship, and predicted the gradual downfall of Christianity unless ministers got out in the fields and worked with more zeal.

The annual report of the president, read at the afternoon session, showed that the English Lutheran church has taken in many new members in Minnesota and Wisconsin during the past year. Election of officers is being held this afternoon.

MAY SUSPEND PLEHVE.

Czar Dissatisfied With Report on Kishineff Massacre.

London, June 17.—The Moscow correspondent of the Morning Leader gives under reserve a rumor which meets with credence in quarters usually well informed to the effect that M. Plehve, minister of the interior, is likely to be superseded shortly.

It is known in official circles that there was recently a protracted and very grave interview between the czar and M. Plehve. The former was not fully satisfied with the minister's explanation of certain late events, it being at variance with the report of the officer specially sent to Kishineff to investigate.

EWEN AT LEXINGTON.

Reaches That City Under Protection of Soldiers.

Lexington, Ky., June 17.—Witness B. L. Ewen arrived here today, accompanied by his little daughter Mattie and twenty soldiers under Sergt. Swope. He was met at the depot by friends and taken to the Gordon home. Capt. Ewen said:

"I can work at almost anything and will seek employment in Lexington, Winchester or Louisville. I had contracts with Hargis Bros. involving several thousands of dollars, which, of course, I will lose now."

FORTUNE

Of Million Dollars Hinges on Legal Technicality.

Indianapolis, Ind., June 18.—What promises to be one of the most interesting cases in the history of Marion county will come up before Judge Carter of the superior court. The entire estate of the late Mason G. Osgood, valued at over $1,000,000, is involved. The parties to the action are Mrs. Ida Osgood Stanley, the adopted daughter of the millionaire, to whom the property descended, and Mrs. Rovanne Nims and Charles Osgood, who say they are the legal blood heirs.

The outcome hangs upon a mere technicality. The parents of Ida Osgood Stanley reside in Hamilton county. Mason J. Osgood was a resident of Indianapolis, where he accumulated his fortune. He wanted to adopt the little girl. Her parents consented; so he went into the courts here and procured the necessary papers. The girl was brought up and loved as his own daughter, and on his death he left his fortune to her. But Mrs. Nims and Charles Osgood raise the point that she was not legally adopted, because the papers were taken out in this county, whereas they should have been procured in Hamilton county, where her parents resided. If the court sustains them, the large estate will, as a matter of course, revert to them, and Mrs. Stanley, who is well known and popular socially, will not receive a penny. The case is attracting much attention, and it promises to be one of the prettiest legal battles ever witnessed.

FIRST PRIEST

To Enter Yale College Is Dominican Father.

New Haven, Conn., June 18.—Rev. Francis D. McShane, one of the Dominican Fathers connected with the St. Mary's church in this city, has just completed arrangements with the officials of Yale university by which he is to become a member of the senior academy class for '04. He will begin his studies with the seniors next fall for the degree of bachelor of arts. This is the first instance of a Catholic priest with a parish appointment entering Yale for a degree or for study of any kind. Rev. Father McShane was born in New York city and is a graduate of the public schools there. He studied for the priesthood in the Dominican seminary in Ohio, and later went to Belgium to study. A month ago he obtained permission from his superiors in the Dominican order to go to Yale, and the Yale faculty has just informed him that he can enter with the 1904 seniors next September. The priest will take part in the class room work just the same as any of the seniors.

STRICKEN DUMB

While Making Speech In West Virginia Court.

Wheeling, W. Va., June 18.—Judge Reese Blizzard, United States district attorney for the Northern district of West Virginia, was suddenly stricken dumb while making an oral argument before Judge Jackson in the United States court, and it is feared he has suffered the permanent loss of his vocal organs.

He was in the midst of a heated speech in the case of the State vs. Bowers, a Wheeling mail carrier, charged with opening mail matter, and had asked for a continuance of the case. He suddenly began to stammer, halt in his speech and in his peculiar manner excited the spectators to mirth, they thinking that he was taxing the patience of the judge. Finally, however, he lost full control of his power of speech and the excitement in the court room was intense.

A physician was called, who has insisted upon complete rest of the patient, believing that he may recover from the shock. Judge Blizzard has been prominently mentioned as the Republican candidate for governor in 1904.

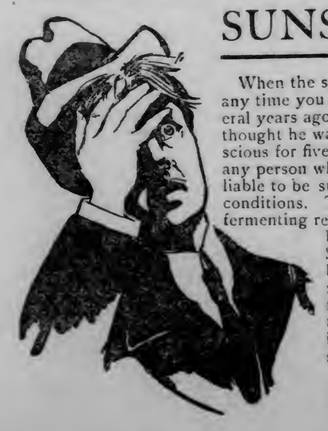
SUNSTROKE INSURANCE



When the summer's heat gets about 90 degrees, you are liable to be sunstruck any time you are out in the sun, unless you take the proper precautions. Several years ago, the writer of this, who has spent much of his life in the tropics, thought he was safe from sunstroke. One day he collapsed, remained unconscious for five hours, and at times his life was dispaired of. As a matter of fact, any person whose stomach and bowels are in bad shape in the summer time, is liable to be sunstruck in temperature that would be harmless under normal conditions. That's all there is to it. Stomach and bowels full of festering, fermenting refuse that forms acids and gases, raise the heat of the body and blood many degrees. Scientists have found that natives of the South Sea Islands, living on laxative fruit, bananas, cocoanuts, bread-fruit, have a temperature 20 degrees lower than that of white men who are careless about their food or their bowels. It has been found in years of experience, that a CASCARET Candy Cathartic taken at bed-time every night will keep the body clean and cool inside all day, and forms a safe and thoroughly reliable form of sunstroke insurance.

Cascarets Best for the Bowels. All druggists, 10c, 25c, 50c. Never sold in bulk. The genuine tablet stamped C. C. C. Guaranteed to cure or your money back. Sample and booklet free. Address Sterling Remedy Co., Chicago or New York. 549

WILLIE AND IDA

Two Harbors Friends Have Fun With Newly Married Couple.

Distribute Hand Bills on Train Requesting Kindness For Them.

The Management Presents
Willie and Ida
"Mrs and Mrs. Newly Wed."
From Two Harbors to the "Soo." They are new in the business and any kindness shown them will be appreciated.

A copy of the above document neatly printed on a small slip of paper was handed to every passenger on the evening train on the Duluth & Iron Range road to Duluth yesterday afternoon at Two Harbors.

"William" and "Ida" are two well known young people of Two Harbors who yesterday entered into a state of wedded bliss and the "management" was a party of their numerous friends in the little North shore city who endeavored in this manner to see that every comfort and convenience was shown the newly-wedded pair on their trip.

Each passenger as he received the little billet immediately cast his eyes over the car in an attempt to find the young turtle doves and if the stern faced groom and the blushing bride did not meet his gaze in his own coach he started out for a trip through the train in an attempt to find them. The passengers in the coach with the young couple grew accustomed to seeing heads thrust through the door of the coach and the car swept by a pair of curious eyes in an attempt to find "Willie" and "Ida" and each new-comer was the subject for a fresh burst of laughter.

The young people sat in grim silence throughout the journey doubtless vowing dire vengeance on their friends who had thus endeavored to make their wedding trip a pleasant one. They left last evening over the Duluth South Shore & Atlantic for the Soo, but the talk had been handed on by the tradsmen on the Duluth & Iron Range road to their fellow workmen on the South Shore and it is rumored that a few of the small bills were also passed on. At any rate the young couple will have an opportunity of "appreciating any small kindness shown."

COUNTY BOARD.

Commissioners to Clear Up Business of the Month.

The board of county commissioners is meeting this afternoon for the purpose of cleaning up matters not disposed of at the last regular meeting of the board. The principal business for consideration this afternoon will be that of township division with a view to the formation of new townships, several petitions now being before the commissioners with that end in view. The petitions have been referred to the county attorney, and Assistant County Attorney Crosby will report this afternoon on the legality of the proposed division.

The largest proposition is that of dividing the township of Kelsey into several new townships, the argument being made by the residents of the township that it is too large, cut up by swamps, and the polling places are so located that it is difficult for the settlers to reach them.

For Trapping Deer.

An Indian by the name of Gebebitang, who has been trapping for some years near Tower, was brought to Duluth yesterday to serve a term of forty-five days in the county jail for killing moose out of season. He was arrested at the instance of a game warden, who has been investigating the violations of the game law in the northern part of the county. Gebebitang was taken before Municipal Judge Fuller, of Tower, where he pleaded guilty to the charge and received sentence. He was brought to Duluth by the chief of police at Tower.

Damages Allowed.

Thomas Hughes was given a verdict of $2000 damages against the Omaha company in circuit court of Douglas county, Wis., yesterday afternoon. He sued to recover damages for the injuries received by his son, who had a foot crushed by an engine on the defendant company's road in West Superior. This was the second trial of the case, the plaintiff getting a verdict of $1250 at the first trial. By stipulation effected before the second trial, the mother of the boy is to receive $243 in addition to the verdict.

WE HEREBY CONDEMN, repudiate and openly challenge as false and malicious, all statements to the effect that SOZODONT, the well-known dentifrice, is or ever was acid or contains any ingredient injurious to the teeth or mouth. The origin of these statements has been traced to certain irresponsible and unprincipled persons desiring to benefit thereby. We, therefore, publicly state and stand ready to prove SOZODONT to be not only non-acid but an acid destroyer, for by its alkaline reaction it neutralizes all destructive mouth acids. This statement is corroborated in hundreds of letters from our most eminent dentists.

MILWAUKEE VISITORS.

Business Men to Be Guests of Superior.

The citizens of West Superior are making every arrangement to entertain on a large scale the merchants' and manufacturers' excursion from Milwaukee, which is due to reach the head of the lakes this afternoon. A reception committee of the leading citizens will meet the visitors at the depot, form a parade headed by a band to the West Superior hotel, where a banquet will be tendered by the commercial organizations of West Superior. Friday morning the Milwaukee visitors are to be taken for a boat ride about the Superior harbor.

The excursion will probably reach Duluth Friday afternoon, and the Commercial club will look after the entertainment of the Wisconsin men.

WARMLY COMPLIMENTED.

Alfred Moe's Essay Meets Commendation of A. O. H.

Division No. 1, A. O. H. held a regular meeting in the Odd Fellows' hall last evening and the attendance was large. Four new candidates were obligated into the order and a number of new applications were received. At the next meeting of the division the degree team will con fer the degrees on a class which will be initiated into the order at that time.

Resolutions on the death of the Rev. T. J. Mackey, who was a member of the division, were passed.

J. D. Murphy of Tower was present at the meeting and delivered a stirring address on past and present events in Ireland. It was an interesting talk and at its conclusion Mr. Murphy was warmly applauded.

Under the head of good and welfare of the order, A. Murphy called attention to the scholarly essay of Alfred Moe, read at the high school exercises last week and published in The Herald, on "Ireland's Dream of Nationality." It was read last night before the division and was warmly received. The local Hibernians feel very proud of the sentiments uttered by the young man and congratulate him on his excellent paper. Many remarks highly complimentary to the young Duluthian were made. A resolution to that effect was passed and Mr. Moe will receive an official communication from the division showing their appreciation of his effort, which has pleased them very much and hoping that he shall continue his study of the subject which is so dear to the heart of every Hibernian.

A MEMORIAL MEETING.

Irvin Missionary Society Honors I. H. McCollum's Memory.

The regular monthly meeting of the Irvin Missionary society was held yesterday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Manley, London road. The exercises partook of the nature of a memorial service for the late I. H. McCollum, who died at Los Angeles, Cal., while attending the meeting of the Presbyterian general assembly. In the corner of the room, on an easel, was the picture of Mr. McCollum, wreathed in flowers.

The meeting was conducted by Vice-president Mrs. Sutherland, and throughout the services loving characteristics of the decedent were referred to, many of the ladies being visibly affected by the solemnity of the occasion. The late Mrs. I. H. McCollum was one of the founders of the Irvin Missionary society.

Mr. McCollum was an ardent worker in the Lakeside Presbyterian church, from its inception and at the time of his death was one of the oldest elders, and held the position of clerk of the session.

TENNIS TOURNAMENT.

Play Begins at Endion Court ---The Score.

Play commenced yesterday afternoon in the tennis tournament of the Endion Tennis club. Two interesting matches were completed and two others commenced when rain interfered.

Wright beat White 6-4 and 6-3, and Kitchill won out from McBeal 6-0 and 8-6.

Stone won a deuce set from Fregeau 8-6 and was five games to the good in the second when rain interfered. Peck won from O'Brien one set 7-1 and had a nice lead in the second when the rain drove them to the club house.

Play will be continued this afternoon if the weather permits. The first round in the tournament must be completed by Saturday evening, according to the rules made by the tournament committee.

May Sell Property.

Judge Vinje, in circuit court of Douglas county, Wis., has decided that the tax sales in that county should not be interfered with by the filing of tax suits. The case in point arose in the action of the St. Croix Consolidated Copper company, which withheld its property from sale under the order of a court commissioner. The district attorney moved that the order be dissolved, and the court held with him, contending that the sale of the lands in question should proceed and the owner could seek redress afterward.

STRONG EVIDENCE OF FAITH

S. F. Boyce Guarantees That Hyomei Will Cure the Worst Case of Catarrh In Duluth.

When one of the most reputable concerns in Duluth guarantees that a medicine will effect a cure or he will return the money, it speaks volumes as to the merits of that remedy. It is in this way that S. F. Boyce is selling Hyomei, the treatment that has made so many remarkable cures of both acute and chronic cases of catarrh in Duluth and vicinity.

Hyomei is not a pill nor is it a liquid that has to be taken with a tablespoon or wine glass. Just breathe it in by the aid of an inhaler that comes in every outfit, and benefit will be seen from the first treatment.

It destroys all germ life in the air passages and lungs and enriches and purifies the blood with additional ozone. It cures catarrh of the head and throat, or of the stomach, liver and kidneys. Wherever mucous membrane contains catarrhal germs, there Hyomei will do its work of healing. When using this treatment, the air you breathe will be found like that on the mountain high above the sea level, where grow balsamic trees and plants which make the air pure by giving off volatile antiseptic fragrance that is healing to the respiratory organs.

Remember that if Hyomei does not cure you, S. F. Boyce will refund your money. This is a good time to cure catarrh by this natural method and prevent catarrhal colds that are so common at this season.

LORENZ WAS SUCCESSFUL

Armour Girl Runs and Plays Like Other Children.

Milwaukee, June 18.—A statement, authorized by Dr. Adolph Lorenz, of Vienna, was issued last night to the editor of the Milwaukee Sentinel, by two local physicians, who were hosts of Dr. Lorenz during his Milwaukee visit, answering repeated attacks which have been made on Professor Lorenz' treatment of hip dislocations. The statement is as follows:

"To the Editor of The Sentinel: We deem it due to the reputation of our late visitor and distinguished guest, Professor Adolph Lorenz, of Vienna, to contradict the rumors that have been afloat for some time, and have in one form or other been printed in the newspapers of this country and to the effect that Professor Lorenz' treatment of little Miss Lolitia Armour was not a success. Professor Lorenz treated but one hip in this case the other having been more or less successfully treated by other surgeons in a former operation by Lorenz' method. During our visit to Oconomowoc, in the course of a conversation, Mrs. P. D. Armour, Sr., grandmother of the little patatient, voluntarily made the statement to us that the operation performed by Professor Lorenz was highly successful, and that the family is more than satisfied with the result, that Miss Lolitia now runs about and up and down stairs and plays like other children. Louis G. Nolte, M. D., Franz Pfister, M. D."

This is the first statement on this subject issued by Professor Lorenz' authorization, and it was only after some argument that he gave his consent to this course.

WAITERS' STRIKE SETTLED

All Differences Will Be Settled By Arbitration.

Chicago, June 18.—An amicable adjustment of the hotel and restaurant strike was reached last night, and the strikers will return to work Friday morning, after two weeks' idleness. All differences between employer and employe are to be settled by arbitration. The obstacle which for the past week has prevented a settlement, the decision of the joint board that union workers only be employed, was waived by the strikers in a formal proposal to hotel and restaurant owners asking for peace and offering to treat with the employers' association. As soon as terms in the communication were found to be what the employers had insisted on all along, the proposal was accepted without delay. A conference of representatives of both sides will be held to select the board of arbitration.

YOUNG IN YEARS

Though Old In Crime Is Harry Rubloff, Formerly of Duluth.

Swindles Philadelphia Clothing Firm, Using Duluth Merchant's Name.

One Harry Rubloff, a young man well-known among local clothing stores, appears to be pursuing a course of conduct through the country that holds tremendous possibilities of trouble for him some day, according to correspondence received by B. J. Cook, of the Eagle Clothing company, and statements by other Duluth people that know something of his career.

Rubloff is only 20 years old, but he has been a soldier of fortune for some time, according to those who know him, and he is particularly smooth in his efforts to collect an easy living from society.

His latest effort was in Philadelphia. June 13 Mr. Cook received a telegram from S. Stamm & Co., manufacturers of trousers in Philadelphia, asking if B. J. Cook & Bro. had an authorized buyer there.' An answer in the negative was immediately returned, and yesterday a letter of explanation was received. From this the following facts appear:

On Thursday of last week a young man entered the Stamm store and introduced himself as Mr. Cook, junior member of the firm of B. J. Cook & Bro., of Duluth. After looking through the stock he purchased a few spring goods to be shipped at once, and ten dozen of corduroy suits, to be shipped Sept. 15.

Before leaving the store the young man succeeded in getting his measure taken for a pair of special trousers for himself, for which he was to stop in the next day. He gave New York and Baltimore references, also R. G. Dun & Co. He said this was his first visit to Philadelphia, so he could give no Philadelphia references.

Friday he was in a couple of times, and added to his order until it amounted to nearly $1000. He got his trousers, and made some remark which led the Stamm people to think everything was not just as it should be, but as it was too late to make any inquiries that day it was postponed until Saturday noon. The Stamm people say they know that he bought goods from another clothing house and from a hat and cap firm in Philadelphia.

On Friday the young man had stated that he knew a party in the clothing business in Philadelphia, and mentioned his name. Saturday the Stamm people spoke to this party, who said the young man had asked for a line of children's clothing for Minnesota, as he wished to travel through the state. He gave his name to this party as Harry Rubloff, which is his real name. This discovery induced the Stamm people to telegraph to Mr. Cook, with the result that his deception was discovered.

The Stamm people state that they had a warrant issued for his arrest, but supposed he had skipped out, as no trace of him could be found after 11:30 o'clock Saturday night. He took with him the "special trousers" from Stamm's, a coat from another firm, and an unpaid board bill at his hotel, according to the Stamm letter. The letter gives his description as follows, and it corresponds with the Rubloff that is known in Duluth: He was 5 feet 3 inches tall, dark-complexioned, dark hair, weighed about 120 pounds, wore blue serge suit and black derby hat, which he wore down over his eyes; also carried gun metal open face watch.

I. Lieberman, of the Van Guard Clothing company, knows Rubloff well, and he says he is something of a genius in his line.

He has not been in these parts since last spring, when he left the range country rather hurriedly and hastened to Michigan. He was then traveling for Hyman, Newman & Well, Minneapolis manufacturers of shirts, pants and overalls, and his pathway through the ranges, from the complaints that came in, must have been paved with hard sight drafts. He is said to have borrowed $5 or $10 or more from everybody he could, giving them sight drafts on his Minneapolis house. After doing all of this he could in one town, he hurried on to the next.

From one range merchant he not only got $20 in money, but a fine overcoat, which the merchant had made for himself, but did not like. Rubloff took it with the promise to pay next day, which promise he reconsidered as he fled to Michigan.

Mr. Lieberman had a little experience with him last winter. One day two letters arrived from New York, both dated Dec. 23. One was from Rubloff and the other was from Davidson & Blankfort, clothing manufacturers. The latter communication stated that "Mr. H. Rubloff, who desired to represent us in the West, referred us to you."

The letter from Rubloff was couched in an exceedingly plaintiff tone. His "dear friend Mr. Lieberman" was implored to stand by him and throw a nice line of "con" into the New York clothier, in order to fix him right. In order to spare Mr. Lieberman the trouble of composing a suitable eulogy, Rubloff told him just what to say. In part the letter is as follows:

"I am obliged to ask you for a favor which I hope you will grant me, for if you don't I am a goner, and if you do I am the happiest man in New York, and will be in Duluth in a week or ten days. Dear friend Jake, it all depends upon you.

"Should they write you please answer it in this manner: That you have known me for five years, and that you have been buying goods of me for the past three years; also, please state that I worked for you several times on my vacations and proved to be all right in every respect. Should they ask with whom I was connected before don't answer that question, as I don't want them to know that I sold furnishing goods. I am supposed to be a clothing man, and this is the largest in New York and best for cheap clothing. Hoping you will help me out, and thanking you in advance, I remain your dear friend," etc.

Mr. Lieberman did not answer the letter.

Rubloff has already attained considerable distinction, having had his picture published in the Police News April 13. He is known to the local police. He has worked in several local stores and put in a week once with Mr. Lieberman.

His present whereabouts are unknown, though anxious inquiriers at Philadelphia and various range towns, and perhaps elsewhere, would be glad to hear information that would assist them to locate him.

A CUTTING AT CLOQUET

Frenchman and Finlander Involved In a Serious Affray.

A cutting scrape that may have a fatal termination occurred yesterday afternoon at Cloquet.

A Frenchman and a Finlander having an old grudge, and both being under the influence of liquor, sought to wipe out the grudge in a fierce fight at "The Island."

Eugene Alzaoier, the Frenchman, was severely stabbed close to the jugular vein, and during the night it was thought that he would not live till morning. However, he passed through a fairly restful night and up to noon today seemed to be slowly fighting his way back to life, though the attending physicians still hold that there is but little hope.

The murdereous assailant is known as John Keunnen. Immediately after the cutting he slipped out of the crowd and was at large until later in the evening, when he was apprehended and taken in custody by the authorities of Carlton county.

The affair created a good deal of excitement in "The Island" district, where the two principals were well known. Those that saw the fight say they are not sure how it started, or who struck the first blow, but all that will probably come out in the preliminary examination, to be held at Cloquet today.

SCANDAL OVER TIME CLOCKS

device, the responsible party is either a knave or incompecent and should be dismissed from the department at once. * * * The public is at liberty to draw its own conclusions as to the motives that actuated a high official in filling away Postmaster Merritt's report and rushing headlong into a four-year contract when, for the past several years, the department had simply extended the clock contract from year to year."

It is said that considerable stock in the Bundy company is held by prominent New York politicians who, from time to time, have visited the department on matters connected with this contract. Postmaster General Payne has stated that under the contract enough clocks have been purchased already to supply the department for several years to come. He has informed Mr. Baker that the matter has been referred to the fourth assistant postmaster general for investigation.

Postmaster General Payne has decided to prosecute Ex-Postmaster Edmunds H. Driggs, a Democrat, of New York, who wil, be charged with bribery growing out of acceptance of a fee from the Brandt Automatic Cash Register company for representing that company while Driggs was a member of the house. The automatic company will be prosecuted on the charge of offering a bribe.

Driggs, who was charged with accepting a fee of $12,500 a year for the four years he was in congress, has admitted in a letter to the postmaster general that he did accept the fee and asserts that he committed no wrong in doing so.

One of the most significant facts in connection with this transaction is that as soon as Driggs' term expired the Brandt Automatic Register company ceased to pay Driggs the $12,500 a year.

The officials of the postoffice department do not agree with the congressman that he was within the law when he accepted the fee. They contend that Mr. Driggs has violated one of the criminal statutes of the United States in that he was practically under the pay of the Brandt Automatic company while he was performing his duties as a member of congress when the postal appropriation bill was under consideration.

The appropriation for the purchase of the registers of the company by the government was contained in the appropriation measure although it is not mentioned specifically.

VISITORS TO TALK

Norwegian Clergymen to Address Union Temperance Meeting.

Gathering Will Be Held Sunday Afternoon at Lincoln Park.

Several months ago plans were outlined for a big temperance meeting in connection with the convention of the United Norwegian Lutheran church of America, to be held in Duluth this year. Gustav Eide, secretary of the Minnesota Total Abstinence association, made the suggestion when visiting her last winter to Chairman A. Thoren of the local temperance committee, and the arrangements have been enthusiastically worked out. The members of the committee are looking for an interesting meeting.

The fact that the United Norwegian Lutheran church takes an active part in the temperance reform movement is worthy of note, and this interest has been felt in the local work for the cause. The Norwegian people of the Northwest are, in fact, supporting a prosperous strictly temperance newspaper, the Reform, published at Eau Claire, Wis. It has during the last year attained a high standing as a medium for the temperance campaign west of Chicago.

Rev. Jens C. Roseland, of Austin, Minn., and Rev. A. G. Hulteng, from Grand Forks, N. D., will be the speakers next Monday afternoon at the meeting at Lincoln park. The program is as follows:

Music ..... The Army Band.
Song—Selected ..... The Zenith Quartet.
Invocation ..... Rev. C. H. Hjortholm.
Address—"Hvorledes vi som Kristue bor Stille os til Drikkeondet" (Norwegian) ..... Rev. Jens C. Roseland, Austin, Minn.
Music ..... The Army Band.
Song—Selected ..... The Zenith Quartet.
Address—"Why I Fight the Saloon (English) ..... Rev. A. G. Hulteng, Grand Forks, N. D.
Music ..... The Army Band.

In case of unfavorable weather the meeting will be held in the Norwegian Lutheran church, Twenty-fifth avenue west and Third street.

SINGERS MADE BY SURGERY.

Voices Coaxed Into Existence By Operations of Larynx.

A wonderful tenor and an equally wonderful soprano voice made to order at twenty months' notice by a man combining the title of doctor of music with that of master of surgery is the latest. This manufacturer of voices of the highest quality is Dr. Rietti, of Bologna, Italy; the man and woman who are enriched by the greatest of money-making organs are citizens of Bologna, moving in ordinary walks of life. Their friends knew them as musical enthusiasts and sensible performers on certain minor instruments, but at the same time they knew that neither had a voice worth cultivating. The present singers did not know it themselves until about a year ago. Dr. Rietti proposed to make them millionaires.

They thought he was joking and accepted in the same spirit, also signed papers promising to submit to certain operations and restrictions at the same time acquitting the physician before hand of drowning the idea his method might work.

Sig Rietti and Signora Schalcha, with a hundred other people, attended a musical soiree at the doctor's house recently and, the program being finished, Rietti begged permission to introduce some "musical prodigies lately discovered."

When Rietti stepped to the piano those knowing him best began to laugh. Surely the doctor was fooling. The mock applause greeting Rietti subsided only when Signora Schalcha appeared on the platform from the opposite side. Everybody knew that the lady had no voice to speak of, but her sex entitled her to a hearing. If nothing else.

"Ernani and Marguerite," said Dr. Rietti to the accompanist, handing him the music. The artist looked at Rietti and Schalcha, then broke into a laugh. "A burlesque I suppose?"

"You will please play the music straight" replied the doctor, adding in an undertone: "I hired you with that understanding." Now it was the accompanist's turn to look bewildered. "At your service, Mme. Patti." "At your service, Sig. Campanini," this with a profound bow.

The prelude was over. The accompanist had outdone himself in timeless by way of heightening the contrast, he thought.

Then the great garden scene opened with a Marguerite singing as sweetly and birdlike as Patti used to in her salad days, and a Faust as manly and fine as Campanini when the tenor commanded thousands a night.

Both used full chest notes; no falsetto or other artificialities. Indeed, there was a buck of the latter, but of that even the Patti enthusiasts had no time to think. What impressed them was the breadth and clearness, the "timbre," of the two voices and the high notes the signor and signora achieved.

Before the duet was finished the audience broke into wild bravos and finally the tumult became so great that Dr. Rietti gave the sign to stop at the end of a certain flourish. Then men and women stormed the platform to shower kisses, questions and exclamations upon the singers in effusive southern fashion.

Miss Schalcha and the new tenor had great difficulty in making themselves heard. When finally they succeeded, they cried: "Like Verdi where it is due, to Master Rietti."

Rietti invited the professional musicians, operatic impresarios and the critics in the audience to his study and requested them to give their unbiased opinion. There was a great deal of talk, but finally a consensus was had.

It was to the effect that whatever method had produced these exceptionally fine singing voices in persons heretofore bereft of that quality or talent deserved the highest praise, being pregnant with good things, with untold happiness for the great mass of musical people, who have the will but not the power to sing, and for untold millions, delighting in hearing good voices when such pleasure is to be had for love or money.

After that Dr. Rietti consented to give a plain statement as to how he built voices in the two persons previously considered voiceless in a musical sense.

"As the phonographic records taken with the assistance of well-known medical and musical experts show, Signora Schalcha and Sig. Buetti had no singing voice when I took them in hand a year ago," said Dr. Rietti. At the same time these photographs prove that both the lady and the gentleman were blessed with an excellently constructed larynx and vocalizing mechanism, organs. Their lungs worked to perfection. Upon this healthy condition of lungs and larnyx my method is built.

"Let me interpolate here that I was a musician before I became a surgeon. For tens of years I built up voices in the old way, improved on them, too, but never to such an extent as to satisfy me. All over the world great singers were becoming rarer, while the most high-priced masters and mistresses seemed unable to recruit new ones.

"I gave this matter much thought. I knew, of course, that with the vocal cords in a certain position, air driven through the glottis sets them in motion. The stronger the blast the louder sounds the singing or speaking voice.

"Again I considered that the pitch of the voice is primarily dependent on the size of the larynx and that this pitch can be modified owing to the action of certain muscles in the larynx that changes the tension of the vocal cords. The more tightly these are stretched, for instance, the higher pitched is the tone of the voice, other things being equal.

"Aside from all musical art, singing, then, is merely a mechanical process. I argued after studying the anatomy and physiology of the human voice as well as a human mind.

"But how improve on this mechanism? When that was settled in my mind I concluded that my method could never hope for realization lest I studied medicine surgery in particular. I was 35 years old then and needed at least a year's preparation to fit myself for the undertaking.

"Two years ago I started my first attempt at voice creating, a good natured friend lending himself for that purpose. I experimented with him for five months and then had to give up. The practical value of my theory. It seemed, was nil. It was worse; instead of improving my patient's voice, it had made it hoarse and hard. However, I am happy to say, he soon got over these ill effects and his normal voice returned.

"Disappointed as I was, in the end I profited by this experience, for observation taught me that the surgical operation I deemed the alpha and omega of my method counted for little lest assisted by musical exercise and methodical massage of the vocal chords.

"The next subjects on whom I experimented were Sig. Buetti and Signora Schalcha, who are at liberty to describe my method to all interested. As to medical gentlemen I refer them to professional notes, photographs, phonograph records, etc., soon to be published in a medical journal.

"All I care to say today is that my surgical operations were principally on the vocal cords. I changed that apparatus, so complex of structure, as to deny description. In several places, allowing it to lengthen here and again cutting it down somewhere else. And while the small wounds were healing I once more turned teacher and taught my patients the best method of singing I know of. Simultaneous with the operations, etc., was a methodical and peculiar massage of the larynx and the vocal cords.

"The whole process lasted about three months. Since then the signor and signora have been taking singing lessons with me—the rest you know. I repeat, that all the records of the case are at the disposal of the medical fraternity."

WILBURS MOVE

Opera Company Will Go to Winnipeg After June 29.

Will Be Replaced at Metropolitan By Stock Company.

The Wilbur Opera company will close its engagement in Duluth a week from Saturday. The company will move to Winnipeg and other houses of Manager C. P. Walker at Grand Forks, Fargo and Crookston.

Manager Fullwood of the Wilbur company held a long conference with Mr. Walker when he was in the city early this week, and time was arranged. Manager A. W. Walle of the Northwestern Opera company, who had the time at the house for the fair week, courteously relinquished his title to it, and permitted the Wilbur company an open field there.

"There is hardly room for two opera companies in Duluth," said Mr. Fullwood, "and as the opportunity for successful business seems good at Winnipeg, I have decided to go."

The move was decided upon Sunday, but Mr. Walker was not certain as to time, other than that held by the Northwestern Opera company, and had to go to Winnipeg to find out. He wired this afternoon that he could take the company for six weeks.

In the meantime the management of the Metropolitan Opera house is arranging for the opening of a stock company, to be put together for the rest of the season at the Metropolitan.

Gus A. Forbes, who was the leading man for Dick Ferris all this year till the latter was forced out of the house, has, it is understood, been selected as leading man. His contracts have not been signed, it is said, but the arrangements have been made. He intended going to Canada for a month's rest, just after his benefit, Friday, but it will have to be much shorter if he desires to open with the company, as the house will want the company working by carnival time, July 6.

It is expedient that the stock company will open June 29, just after the Wilbur company moves out, though it is possible that the house may be closed for the week intervening before the carnival.

The management of the house has been in communication with Isabelle Fletcher, who has been at Boston, and it is said has closed with her to do leading female roles.

Some other members of the Ferris company are also expected to return. From the meager information procurable it seems to be the plan to offer two plays a week of stock company work, and it is likely that a paint frame and scenic artist will be brought up to keep the shows up in scenic embellishment.

Manager Condon has announced that he is not ready to give out full details of the organization of the company.

SUPPLY IS SHORT

Not So Much Hard Coal Here as Should Be.

Eastern Buyers Are Snapping It Up By Cash Payments.

There is a shortage of about 175,000 tons of hard coal at the head of the lakes, according to the statement of one of the leading coal agencies in the city of Duluth this morning.

According to his estimate there are not more than 25,000 or 30,000 tons of hard coal here at present, and of that the nut and special sizes used most are almost gone.

There should be at least 200,000 tons of hard coal here at this time of the summer, but the coal is not coming this way.

Of soft coal there is more here than last summer at this time, or than there usually is at this time.

Coal has taken one small jump of 10 cents since May. The operators and big dealers in the East have decided on what they will do with the hard coal retail business. They have ordered a raise of 10 cents a month in price, and while it is $7.45 today, it will be $7.75 in September, and is likely to stay there, unless there is another big shortage on coal next winter.

"It is the opinion of some coal men," said the local representative this morning, "that the shortage will be a very heavy one again this winter, but that is a question of conjecture.

"The reason for the shortage of coal at the head of the lakes," said he, "is that the Eastern yards are taking it, and paying the cash for it at the mines. It doesn't get a chance to start this way at all. The use of the hard coal at the Eastern yards has begun, and they want all they can get.

"The average date for the beginning of coal deliveries in large quantities here is Jan. 1. That gives the coal men the benefit of six months' interest on their money by selling East. That is the reason we are getting little; that is the reason that unless the Eastern yards are filled before the close of navigation the people in this part of the country are going cold again this winter or use soft coal."

At present consumers can order coal at a known saving of 30 cents over the September price, and as the price is uncertain, it may be a far greater saving.

ADVANCES AGAIN

Wheat Market Continues Upward Course With St. Louis Dragging.

Corn Strength Helps It—Flax Active and Changes Little.

Duluth Board of Trade, June 18.—This was another day for bulls in wheat and higher prices were made in all markets, but St. Louis, which for a long time led the other markets, finds it hard to keep pace the advance there being less than in other markets. The opening was weak and lower, but the market quickly steadied and under the influence of favorable cables and the strength of corn sold upward to more than a cent above the low point. There was a recession from the high point, but the closing was strong. There was no export trade, the foreigners not getting in line with the prices here. The Liverpool market closed ½d higher, Paris ½c lower to ¼c higher and Antwerp unchanged.

Argentine estimates for the shipments of this week are for 1,840,000 bus as compared with 1,880,000 bus last week and 740,000 bus last year.

Primary receipts of wheat were 228,000 bus, last year 281,000 bus. Shipments, 124,000 bus, last year, 175,000 bus. Clearances of wheat and flour were 134,000 bus.

Receipts of wheat at Duluth and Minneapolis, 238 cars, and at Chicago 26, a total of 264 cars, against 205 last week and 274 last year.

The corn market was very strong. In Chicago the July option made an advance of 2¢ and in the Liverpool market the close was unchanged to ½d higher. July oats in Chicago closed unchanged. Primary receipts of corn were 463,000 bus, last year, 334,000 bus. Shipments, 568,000 bus, last year, 227,000 bus. Clearances were 25,000 bus.

Trading in the Duluth market was very light in wheat, but the price was strong and July opened ⅝c off at 80⅝c but no sales were made until 9:55, when the price was 80¾c. It sold at 80⅝c ten minutes later and continued its upward course, selling to 82c at 11:35. From there it receded and closed at 81¾c. This was a decline of ⅝c. September closed ⅝c off at 74⅜c and sold ½c higher than that. The advance in Chicago was ⅞-1⅛c for July and ⅝c for September; in Minneapolis ⅞c for July and ⅝-¾c for September; in New York ⅝c for July and ⅝c for September, and in St. Louis ¼c for July and ⅝-¾c for September.

Cash sales were 25,000 bus and prices unchanged at July price for No. 1 northern and 1½c for No. 2.

Flax trading was very active and the market generally stronger, although it settled back at the close. July opened weak and sold ¼c off to $1.65¼, but rallied and sold up to $1.66½. It fell off from that, however, and closed at $1.65⅜-½. Cash sold today at $1.53⅜-⅝. September and October were off ⅛c and November was up ¼c.

There was an advance of ⅛c in oats.

Following are the closing prices:

Wheat to arrive, No. 1 hard, 85½c; No. 1 northern, 85½c; No. 2 northern, 80⅝c; July, 81¾c; September, 74⅜c; December, 72¾c. Flax—In store, $1.65½; to arrive, $1.65½; on track, $1.65½; July, $1.65½; September, $1.07½; October, $1.07½; November, $1.07⅜. Oats to arrive, 37½-38c; on track, 37½-38c. Rye, to arrive, 49c; on track, 50c. Barley, 55@56c.

Cars inspected—Wheat, 51; last year, 11; oats, 8; rye, 2; flax, 15; last year, 1.

Receipts—Wheat, 55,152; oats, 2480; rye, 1698; flax, 17,454.

Shipments—Wheat, 63,921; oats, 1306; rye, 27,000; flax, 40,192.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Wheat Steady With Considerable Free Selling.

Chicago, June 18.—Wheat opened steady on cables, July being a shade to ⅛c higher at 75¾c to 75¾@75⅞c, and September was a shade lower to a shade higher at 74¼c to 74¾c. There was quite free selling early by commission houses on the excellent weather and the market eased off a trifle. July selling at 75⅜c and September at 74c but the strength in corn caused a rally and July advanced to 75⅞c, while September sold up to 74⅝c before the end of the first hour. Minneapolis and Duluth reported receipts of 238 cars, which with local receipts of 26 cars, none of contract grade, made total receipts for the three points of 264 cars, against 205 cars last week and 274 cars a year ago.

Bullish reports from French as well as some rather unfavorable reports from the West, combined with the strength in corn, resulted in a strong market the latter half of the day, and under a good demand July advanced to 77¼c and September to 75¾c. Realizing late in the day caused a decline, but the close was strong, with July 1@1⅛ higher at 76⅝c, and September up ⅝c at 75¼@75⅜c.

The demand for July corn was the feature in that pit during the early part of the day, shorts being extremely anxious to cover sales in that delivery. As a result of the urgent demand with but light offerings the market was decidedly bullish the first hour, July advancing to 51c, after opening ⅛c lower to ¼c higher at 50¼c to 50½c, while September sold up to 50⅝c after opening a shade lower to ⅛@¼c higher at 49¼c to 49¾c. Commission houses were the best buyers of the more distant futures. Local receipts were 485 cars, with 28 of contract grade.

The market continued active and strong throughout the entire session, July advancing to 51½c, and September to 50⅝c. A reaction occurred during the last hour on liquidation, but July closed with a gain of ⅜c at 50⅞c, while September was ⅜@⅝c higher at 50⅝c.

Oats opened firm with a good general commission house demand and with shorts covering freely in the July option, but selling by locals on the favorable weather caused a slight recession soon after the opening. Later the market firmed up again on the strength in corn, July holding firm at 39⅝c after opening a shade to ⅛@⅜c higher, at 39⅝c to 39¾c. September opened unchanged to ⅛c higher at 33⅞ to 34c. Local receipts were 170 cars.

There was very little trading in provisions and prices showed scarcely any variations after opening steady with September pork a shade lower, at $16.85. September lard was down 2½c, at $8.95, while ribs were unchanged at $9.27½.

Close: Wheat—July, 76¾c; old, 75¾c; September, 74¾@74⅞c, old, 74¾c; December, 73½c. Corn—June, 50⅝c; July, 50⅝c; September, 50⅜c; December, 44@43⅝c; May, 45½c. Pork—July, $17.00; September, $16.95. Lard—July, $8.80@8.87½; September, $8.95@9.00. Ribs—July, $9.25; September, $9.30; October, $9.05. Rye—July, 52¼c; September, 52½c. Flax—Cash, Northwest, $1.67; Southwest, $1.66; July, $1.66; September, $1.68. Timothy—June, $3.35. Clover—June, $11.50. Barley—Cash, 47@55c.

Cash wheat—2 red, 78c; 3 red, 74@77c; 2 hard winter, 77c; 3 hard winter, 72@76c; 1 northern spring, 80@81c; 2 do, 77@78c; 3 spring, 74@77c. Corn—2, 51@51½c; 3, 51c. Oats—2, 38c; 3, 37@37½c.

GRAIN GOSSIP.

Logan & Bryan, Chicago: Wheat—The market here was decidedly more active and the trade is becoming general and has a much broader appearance. Cables are still dull and the cash situation a quiet one. With light stocks, however, a moderate cash demand keep cash wheat in every position at a premium. Reports from winter wheat sections still have a bullish sound. Trade is gradually coming to the conclusion that the winter wheat crop will in the end prove to be a very moderate affair. With the exception of light local showers, the Northwest is without needed rain. With these conditions on hand, as heretofore expressed, that wheat should be bought on the soft spots. More than a scalding decline is not likely and very much higher prices are quite within the range of possibilities in the next few weeks. Estimated cars, 30.

Corn—Liverpool, 8d@9d higher. Market was again active and higher. It did not hold all the advance, as there was a good deal of profit taking on a very active market. The strongest feature in our judgment is the continued small farmers offerings, and the strong bulls on the cash article. Country buyers in the interior report the demand from the South and East are in excess of the supply all the time. Locally, there has been a strong speculative holdings. Estimated cars, 550.

Oats—Market was moderately active and firm. The strength in corn and wheat contributed to the buying of oats. No change in conditions and receipts still promise small. Estimated cars, 170.

* * *

The Milwaukee chamber of commerce has amended their rules allowing No. 1 hard winter wheat or No. 2 hard winter wheat, Chicago receipts, to be delivered on contracts, provided, however, that on all No. 1 hard winter and No. 2 hard winter delivered on such contracts, 5c per bus shall be deducted. Consider all orders sent after June 18, "new style," unless otherwise specified. Be very particular in marking your orders "old" or "new" style. All privileges bought and sold yesterday for today are old style.

* * *

Cincinnati Price Current: The week has been favorable for growing winter wheat, but late correspondence indicates that short comings previously apprehended are being realized. Corn cultivation and planting are in rapid progress. There is slow growth and the average is fully two weeks late. Early planted corn has generally a good stand. Oats have improved, but average results are not likely.

LOW LEVEL STRUCK

In the Stock Market By a Brief Selling Movement.

A Few Rallies and Closing Was Dull and Weak.

New York, June 18.—The favorable effect upon the London market of the reduction in the Bank of England discount rate was reflected on the International group here on the opening. Canadian Pacific and Atchison rose a point and the coalers, St. Paul and Missouri Pacific large fractions. Pennsylvania was bought in large blocks. United States Steel was a conspicuous exception with a decline of a fraction.

The demand for stocks carried prices upward for a time and St. Paul, Union Pacific, Wabash preferred and Erie were benefited a point. Prices did not hold very long and there was general pressure to realize following liquidation in United States Steel, Colorado Fuel and Metropolitan Street Railway. The earlier gains were generally wiped out and some of the important stocks yielded below yesterday's close. Metropolitan Street Railway lost 2¾, Metropolitan Securities and Colorado Fuel 1¾, Delaware & Hudson 1½ and New York Central, St. Louis & San Francisco certificates, Rubber preferred, United States Steel and Tennessee Coal a point. The market was still drooping at 11 o'clock, but offerings were light.

The selling of Metropolitan Street Railway which carried it down 2¾ was due to statements regarding the company's earnings made by its president on the witness stand. The stock then rallied a point. Large selling orders appeared in the United States stocks, which carried the common down to 25⅞, its previous low record, and the preferred to 75¼, compared with a previous low record of 78¾. The second mortgage bonds lost a point. The yielding tone of the steel markets were offered as an explanation of this selling. Colorado Fuel lost 2¼, Tennessee Coal 2, and Consolidated Gas 2 points. Southern Railway, preferred, declined 1⅝.

Trading was almost lifeless and the movement neither way was slight. Some of the minor stocks broke sharply on small offerings. Metropolitan declined 3, Car, preferred 2½, Virginia-Carolina Chemical 2, Reading second preferred 1¾ and Brooklyn Transit 1. Toledo, St. Louis & Western, pref-red, advanced 1.

Prices were driven to the lowest level to day by a brief selling movement. Colorado Fuel was forced 2¾ under last night, Hocking Valley 2⅞, National Railroad of Mexico, preferred, 2½, North American 2⅝, and Baltimore & Ohio, Union Pacific, Rock Island, Wabash preferred, Chicago & Alton, Lead, Locomotive, Smelting preferred, Consolidated Gas and Pressed Steel Car 1 point. Selling was discontinued and Colorado Fuel recovered 1¾ and United States Steel preferred nearly a point. Elsewhere the rally was feeble and the market became stagnant. The closing was dull and weak.

STOCK GOSSIP.

Logan & Bryan to Paine, Webber & Co.: The market is a little easier. It is a quieter market although bear traders continue to look for weak spots and most of the pressure is short selling. There is nothing new. On conditions as they are, we think the better properties are low enough and whenever they are raided by short sellers we would buy them. On the other hand, we see nothing to bull the market at present and would accept moderate profits. The only thing which we see which threatens the general market is the unfavorable tendency of the crop reports. However, it is a good time to pursue a conservative course.

Ridgley to W. H. Laidley & Co.: I still think the gradual trend will be upward until around July 4. There ought to be some reaction Thursday afternoon, however. Thursday is reaction day in a bull market. If prices go up all day today and are strong Friday morning profits should be taken. But if weak this afternoon and Friday morning you can buy. The situation has been so thoroughly gone over in the newspapers that it is a waste of words to discuss it. I do not expect any boom but I do think the market will have a fair advance within three weeks and that purchases on moderate recessions were never safer. I hear L. & N. is due for quite a move up.

* * *

Waldorf to Cox Commission Co.: In brokerage circles it is generally agreed that the market acts well. Stocks are concentrated in the hands of the magnates to a greater extent than at any time since May, 1901, when the big interests rebought at panic prices stocks sold in the unprecedented buying craze which culminated the month before. This means a strong technical position. Rockefeller, Morgan, George J. Gould and the Kuhn-Lead interests are chedited with purchases in the past six weeks, aggregating enormous figures. The mass of securities thrown over by schwob and Hawley fell into the lapse of the foreging financiers. Along with this phase of the speculative situation is to be placed a very large short interest, much of which is ostensibly for foreign account, beneath the bullish views grow more coy and the best commission houses taking the ground that while the market will not go up without moderate setbacks, on each of the latter it should be bought. The favorite stocks are Pennsylvania, New York Central, Missouri Pacific, Louisville & Nashville, Baltimore & Ohio, Erie, and the low-priced coalers. The sudden development of strength in the Pennsylvania shares is believed the augur for the general list as it's sides interest are said to be in sympathy with a forward movement. New York Central is also regarded as significant, as is that of St. Paul. In each of these stocks increased scarcity is attributed to Rockefeller, who by reason of these additions to his investment holdings is a greater factor in the affairs of Eastern trunk lines than ever before. This extension of the oil king's power is impelled, Wall street believes, by his desire to further the interests of the Missouri Pacific and Wabash, and his pet scheme of an outlet for the great system to the Atlantic seaboard. The fact that the drive at C. F. I., had no more than passing influence on the general list is accepted tonight as fresh evidence that the market has touched the bottom. A fortnight ago the incident would have demoralized things. Today it was ignored. The support of powerful cliques who have been apathetic for months explains speculations better.

COPPER GOSSIP.

Dow-Jones to W. H. Laidley & Co.: An authority says that although there is no denial of reductions in the price of refined copper, it is possible to buy the best lake copper from the United Metal Selling company for August delivery at 12¾ cents. The officials of the company admit that the great number of building strikes have affected consumption unfavorably. Consumption in England is also reported to have fallen off somewhat during the past week.

Boston to Paine, Webber & Co.: Weakness of Steel stocks, sagging prices for copper and rumors that copper could be bought for 13½ cents caused sellers to sell fractionally lower today. The metal declined a pound sterling in London over the holiday. It is claimed in New York that consumers are buying on a fairly good scale at current prices, and it seems to be good opinion that the metal will not decline much if any further. We have not changed our opinion on the general market. Good stocks should be a buy on weak spots and a sale on the sharp rallies.

* * *

New York to W. H. Laidley & Co.: Reports of a cut in the United Metal Selling company's prices of lake and electrolyte copper was denied officially, but it was said that there had recently been some falling off in the demand.

SHARPSHOOTERS

Participate In Central Marksmen's Annual Tournament.

St. Louis, June 18.—Sharpshooters from several states participated in the fourth annual tournament of the Central Marksmen's union, which began at the Bobrangville range of the local branch of the organization today.

About 200 marksmen are on hand to take part in the shoot. Chicago, Milwaukee, Boston and various other large cities sent delegations. Among the contestants is Harry Folke, of Chicopee Falls, Mass., holder of the championship.

In all $650 in prizes are being contested for in the following events: Point target, people's target, man target, World's fair target, honor target, stitch target, king's target, and team contest. The first four events are open to the world, but the last four are open only to members of the organization.

The contest will continue Friday and Saturday, and on Sunday a meeting of the union will be held.

Fourth of July Excursions.

On July 3rd and 4th, excursion tickets will be on sale to points on the C., St. P., M., & O. railway, within 200 miles of Duluth, at one one-third fare for the round trip. Good for return July 6th, 1903. City Ticket office, 405 West Superior street.

IN MARINE CIRCLES

Grain Rate to Lower Lakes Steady and Business Slow.

Government Sounding For Reef In Lake Michigan Near Racine.

The Duluth grain rate situation is unchanged, the rate continuing steady at 1¼c to the lower lakes with business slow. A small amount is chartered daily to go out on line boats, but no large lots are being placed. Shipments for the week will aggregate about a half million bushels according to present expectations.

SOUNDING FOR REEF.

Government Working In Lake Michigan Near Racine.

Soundings have been conducted by United States government engineers in Lake Michigan off Racine have revealed the existence of a dangerous shoal reef. The naval charts show a depth of sixty feet in the vicinity of the reef, but recent soundings show a depth of twenty-one to twenty-three feet.

The possibility of the existence of a reef at this point was first called to the notice of the United States hydrographic office by the accident to the steamer Saranac, which struck at this point and was almost broken in two, narrowly escaping sinking and necessitating repairs costing over $30,000. The Saranac was headed for Chicago in a heavy storm and was drawing only 17 feet of water.

The matter was at once reported to the hydrographic office and an investigation was immediately begun.

Lighthouse Keeper Knudsen, of Racine, and George Breckenfield, of the Racine lifesaving station had charge of the work, and they report that the reef is of considerable area and is covered with large rocks and boulders showing soundings in places of as low as twenty feet.

The following bearings were taken for the guidance of ship captains:

"Windpoint lighthouse tower bears S.W. by W. ½ W. Pintch light crib on Racine reef bears S. by W. There is a large tree standing alone on the shore opposite the reef which bears W. by S. ½ S. The shoal is two and one half to three miles off shore."

Two temporary buoys were placed to warn approaching vessels. One floats a white flag with the words "lighthouse tower" painted on it. The other has a red flag with "shoal" painted on it. The depth under these buoys is twenty-two feet.

After the accident to the Saranac it was thought by many lake captains that the hidden obstacle was a sunken wreck, but the soundings of the hydrographic office have pro

WILL CUT RATES

Tickets to Chicago May Soon Reach Very Low Figures.

Duluth Will Be Affected By the Row In Twin Cities.

Duluth will feel the effects of the rate war now on between Chicago-St. Paul railroads by Saturday.

At that time there will be a rate on the Northern Pacific and Omaha of $11.75 to Chicago. The present rate is $13.35.

The Great Northern will probably come in with an announcement of a rate via St. Paul, as the Northern Pacific will sell 108 $11.75 tickets that way.

The Wisconsin Central road, which is the cause of all the rates going down, will make its rate via Ashland, and the local passenger ticket men feel that a prophesy of $10 for the rate will not be too low.

When General Passenger Agent Pond was at St. Paul last week to attend the meeting of the passenger association he was quoted as saying that his $8 rate would be a permanent rate, if it was put into effect.

The announcements were made day before yesterday that the $8 rate would go into effect between St. Paul and Chicago or Milwaukee Saturday, June 20.

If the business resulting from this cut is not up to the expectations of the general agent, he says he will cut it in two and make a rate of practically a cent a mile.

Duluth passenger men look for a rate from Duluth to Chicago on that road at the same basis as the rate of $8 from St. Paul, which is 2 cents a mile. This will make the rate from here less than $10.

Yesterday the Rock Island, Burlington, Omaha and Great Western decided to come down to the Central's rate from St. Paul, and the only road maintaining the $11.50 rate is the Milwaukee road, which is alleged to be the cause of all the trouble.

A local representative of the Milwaukee road said this morning that he did not believe there would be any cut whatever by the Milwaukee road from the present rate. He said the road was doing the business, and the class of people who rode on the Pioneer Limited and other palatial trains of the Milwaukee road could not be tempted from it by a cut of a few dollars.

The time of the run was also something in favor of the Milwaukee, as it and the Northwestern have the lines that can make the time. At present the time is twelve hours, but an hour or even two might be cut off that, if it became a necessity.

What is in store for Duluth can only be based on the conditions at the Twin Cities. If a $4 rate to Chicago is made it will mean a rate of not more than $7.50 from Duluth, either directly or via the Twin Cities.

It was the opinion of passenger men who were here yesterday and today that the rate would not be shut off, and the slashing would continue indefinitely. If that is the case a rate even lower than $4 may be expected, and in that case the rate at Duluth may get down as low as $6 for a trip to Chicago.

THE LITCHFIELD CASE.

J. B. Cotton Is Before That Railroad Commission.

Attorny Joseph B. Cotton, for the range roads, is at St. Paul today attending a meeting of the state railroad and warehouse commission, which is hearing reasons why it should not order a reduction of tariffs on coal and lumber maintained by the railroads in the state of Minnesota.

It was intended to have held a meeting of the commission here on June 12, but the railroads desired more time in which to prepare arguments, and it was postponed and located at St. Paul.

The meeting is a continuation of the hearing of last month, when the merchants of Litchfield appeared before the commission and showed that the rate on coal from Streator, Ill., to Litchfield was but a few cents more per ton than from Duluth to Litchfield.

A large number of other rates were brought into the evidence placed before the commission, and afterwards published, with comparative figures from railroad tariff books in other states. It was found the rates in Minnesota were a great deal higher than elsewhere.

The railroads then asked if they could have more time to prepare an answer, and it was given.

Representatives of all the roads operating in the state are present at the meeting of the commission. They held a meeting yesterday at the office of Vice-president Hannaford of the Northern Pacific railroad.

The commission asks the roads to state their mileage, the cost of their equipment and property and the cost of operation in Minnesota as compared with the cost in the adjoining states and the rates maintained by the roads in other states.

Business Is Growing.

Assistant General Freight Agent H. E. Sill of the Northern Pacific railway came up from St. Paul this morning, and has been looking around Duluth a little. He says he has not received any information regarding when the new addition to the Northern Pacific freight house will be started. He says the freight business from the head of the lakes is increasing every day, and the reports at the close of navigation will show big gains over last year. One reason for it is the movement in coal.

Deerwood and Return.

The Northern Pacific railway sells tickets to Deerwood and return as follows:

Leaving Friday or Saturday, returning Monday ..... $ 2 85

Leaving any day, returning thirty days 3 80

25-ride book ticket 25 00

Here is the place to enjoy good fishing for a few days.

For tickets and full information call at city office, 332 West Superior street, or Union depot.

MAKE GOOD TIME

Duluth's Firemen Do Fast Work In the Annual Inspection.

Fast Hitching Records Made and Fine Ladder Work Shown.

Firemen did splendid work on annual inspection this afternoon.

The members of hook and ladder company No. 1 made a night hitch with four horses in 14 seconds and a day hitch in 10 seconds.

In making the night hitch firemen were in bed with their clothes off and the horses were in their stalls. Inside of fourteen seconds after the alarm sounded the men were out of bed, dressed, down the poles to the first floor, had the horses hitched and apparatus moving.

The members of hose company No. 1 made the night hitch in 16 2-5 seconds.

The salvage and chemical men at headquarters were tied in honors for making the quickest day hitch. With the men scattered about the building and the horses in the stalls, they had their apparatus hitched and moving within six seconds after the tap of the gong. One of the most interesting features was the practice drill in life-saving with a net. Frank Meddaugh, pipeman of house No. 3, jumped from the second story of the rear of the headquarters building into a net held by other firemen, and the affair was pulled off so nicely that Mr. Meddaugh did not even lose his hat where most people in his predicament would have lost their heads.

The pompier ladder work was especially interesting, the pompier squad scaling up an elevation of five stories in 1 minute and 25 seconds. This is not quite as fast as the squad does in ordinary practice, but the men were handicapped by the strong northwest wind.

The inspection was witnessed by city officers, aldermen, a large number of small future aldermen, representatives of insurance companies and citizens.

After the inspection at headquarters the invited guests rode to No. 3 fire hall in hacks, and from No. 3 visited No. 4 in the East End, thence the program was a return trip to No. 2 in the West End and to No. 8 at West Duluth. The complete records of the various events and companies will be published tomorrow.

THOSE WHO HAVE DIED

New York, June 18.—Hiram S. Armstrong, prominent for many years in the clothing trade of New York and widely known in Masonic circles, is dead from heart failure. He retired from active business several years ago.

Philadelphia, June 18.—John Paul Bocock, well-known as a writer of fiction and travel, is dead at Wayne. He came here from Richmond, Va., where his family were prominent in political and social circles.

New York, June 18.—Dr. Isaac N. Love died suddenly on the Cunard liner Etruria at Quarantine today. Dr. Love was formerly a physician in St. Louis, but came to this city two years ago. He was returning from Paris when he died.

Pittsburg, June 18.—Ex-Mayor B. McKenna died at noon today, after a prolonged illness.

New York, June 18.—Hugh D. McIntyre, secretary of the Brooklyn Jockey club, died at his home in Brooklyn today. He was secretary of the National Jockey club, Washington, in the early '70s.

TWO GREAT EXCURSIONS

Coming Friday Over the Northern Pacific and Omaha Roads.

The big excursions from Southern Minnesota, Iowa, South Dakota and Nebraska, to come over will not reach Duluth till tomorrow morning. The numbers of excursionists expected is in the neighborhood of 3000, part of whom will come on the Northern Pacific and part on the Omaha road.

Among the excursionists are scores of merchants and buyers, who have business with Duluth jobbing and wholesale houses, and who have been awaiting the opportunity to come to the city cheap. The rates are very low, and the reports at the city offices this morning showed that the trains would be packed.

Caterers, restaurant men and the hotels are making arrangements to take care of large crowds tomorrow and Sunday.

The Commercial club, headquarters for excursionists, will be opened tomorrow morning in the new Cook building, at 212 West Superior street. C. D. Barrett will be in charge of the headquarters during the two days that it will be at the convenience of visitors in the city. A general bureau of information will be maintained at the location, and every courtesy shown strangers who are not acquainted with Duluth, her points of attractions, or who are seeking boarding and lodging places.

BREAK IN TANNERS' STRIKE

One Milwaukee Concern Makes Concessions to Men.

Milwaukee, June 18.—The first break in the tanners' strike occurred today when the Zoehrlaut Leather company agreed, through a committee of its former workmen, to take back the entire force with a straight increase of 5 per cent.

This increase also includes the employes of the beam house. Grievances in all departments will be settled by the men and employers when they come up. All the men, between 275 and 300, will return to work Friday morning.

The union is not recognized, but there will be no discrimination.

Favorites Were Nearly All Withdrawn From the Race.

New York, June 18.—Afrikander won the Suburban today. Herbert second and Hunter Raine third. Time, 2:10 2-5.

The following horses entered in the Suburban were scratched: Water Boy, Glenwater, Goldsmith, Irish Lad, Injunction, Zoraster, Sambo.

New York, June 18.—A heavy rain during the night and the drizzle this morning made a sloppy, sticky track at Sheepshead Bay, which was opened today for the June meeting of the Coney Island Jockey club, the great event of which is the Suburban Handicap, scheduled for this afternoon. The bad track served to make the Suburban an even more puzzling proposition.

There were twenty-one horses named to start, and of these it was felt that perhaps a dozen had no chance to win. As in the Brooklyn Handicap, the W. C. Whitney entry was the favorite, in this case Goldsmith, with Redfern up. He was quoted during the early day at 4 to 1. His most dangerous rivals, it was believed, would be Igniter, Heno, Irish Lad and Maj. Dangerfield, but there were others that carried money on past performances.

Goldsmith, although he has not been seen under silk in nine straight months, was strongly supported. He likes the turns at Sheepshead Bay, and besides Trainer Rogers confirmed his reported work of a mile and a quarter at Brigeton Beach in 2:10¾, a sure indication of his return to perfect form. Burns will ride Irish Lad, but his impost of 115 pounds was considered too heavy a handicap. Heno, defeated by Irish Lad in the Brooklyn Handicap, is picking up four pounds, making a difference of eighty pounds over the weights for the Brooklyn, but in that race Irish Lad gave Heno a decisive beating. On the other hand, Heno has improved since the Brooklyn, so he was reckoned as a contender. Bruce, who piloted Hermis in a number of victories, was engaged to ride that horse, which improved his chances in the minds of race goers. Others that were mentioned as possible winners were City Bank, Col. Bill, Water Boy, Herbert, Articulate and Yardarin. The value of the race is $19,090.

THE BOARD OF CONCILIATION

To Adjust Miners' Complaints Will Meet June 25.

Scranton, Pa., June 18.—The board of conciliation which will adjust the differences between the mine workers and the coal operators, will meet in the offices of the Lehigh Valley Coal company, in Wilkesbarre, on June 25.

Notices to this effect were sent out today by R. C. Luther, superintendent of the Reading Coal company, after a conference by telephone with E. W. Warriner, of Wilkesbarre, and W. L. Connel, of Scranton, and other representatives of the operators on the board. President Nicolls, of No. 9, had not received official notification of the call at noon. The other representatives of the miners are District Presidents John Fahey, of Shamokin, and William Detwey, of Hazelton. President Nicolls, when told of the call for the meeting, seemed to be pleased with the promptness with which the operators' representatives had acted.

THE ENTRY IS CANCELED

Land Officials Rule In Timber and Stone Controversy.

The land office case of the United States against Oscar Olson and C. R. Stone and Smith, of the local land office.

The case is one of an alleged fraudulent stone and timber entry which was investigated by Special Agent Colter.

On May 20, 1901, Olson entered certain lands in section 5-53-20 under the stone and timber act. Circumstances surrounding the entry made the authorities suspicious and Special Agent Colter was detailed to make an investigation. He reported that the claimant had never visited the land in question; that the entry had been made at the instigation of Bernt N. Johnson, who had furnished the money and that the claimant had deeded the land to Ole Sether, who represented Johnson. The deed was filed May 22, two days after the entry was made, and the claimant admitted upon being cross-questioned, that he had received $50 for his trouble. Later the land was transferred to C. R. Smith. Upon the report of Special Agent Colter the entry was suspended and the owner of the land, C. R. Smith, and the entryman, Oscar Olson, were given notice that they would have a certain length of time in which to ask for a hearing.

At the hearing the evidence was found to be strongly against the defendants and the local officials handed down a decision in favor of the plaintiff, cancelling the entry. The title to the land will revert back to the government unless the defendants appeal the case within thirty days.

TO INDICT FIVE

Federal Grand Jury Expected to Bring In True Bills.

Will Include Machen, the Two Groffs and Two Lorenz.

Washington, June 18.—The federal grand jury, which has been investigating postal affairs, probably will bring in five indictments today against persons involved. Assistant District Attorney Taggart, who has the cases in charge for the government, was at his office earlier than usual this morning, and was busily engaged in going over the indictments. He denied himself to all callers.

Although every effort has been made to keep the public in ignorance of the action to be taken until the papers were ready for presentation by the grand jury, it is learned on unquestioned authority that the jury has has voted to return indictments against August W. Machen, D. B. Groff, Samuel A. Groff, George E. Lorenz and Miss Lorenz, the two latter being residents of Toledo, Ohio. The specific charge, it is understood, will be conspiracy to defraud the government.

The fact that new indictments would be returned against Machen and the Groff brothers has been talked of for some time around the court house, but it was not expected that action would be taken so soon. The sensational feature of today's probable proceedings is the connection of Mrs. Lorenzo's name with the transactions which led to the arrest of Machen and the Groffs. At the time of the arrests stories were in circulation that there was a go-between, but the information at hand then was not conclusive enough to establish the identity of this particular party.

Whether or not Mrs. Lorenz acted in this capacity is not known, but it has been suggested that this go-between was a woman.

The postmaster general today designed Edward F. Kimball, the chief clerk of the money order system to act temporarily as superintendent to succeed J. T. Metcalfe, who was removed yesterday on the charge of indiscretion in contract matters.

A MASSACRE WAS AVERTED

But Jews at Novgorod, Szjewersk, Were Greatly Alarmed.

Berlin, June 18.—The Tageblatt's St. Petersburg correspondent telegraphs that a report gained circulation at Novgorod Szjewersk, in the government of Chernigof, precisely similar to that which caused the massacre at Kishineff, namely, that the government had ordered the extermination of the Jews. The people began to make preparations most openly, talked the matter over publicly and appointed May 27, coronation day, for the massacres. Terror seized the Hebrew population, which assembled in the synagogue on the day appointed. There were 500 persons within and without the building, awaiting the beginning of the massacre, but the police paraded the streets in force and prevented the gathering of mobs, although some persons formed crowds and shouted "strike the Jews dead." The day, however, passed without any serious outbreak.

HELD UP MANY.

Three Highwaymen Were Very Successful In Oklahoma.

Guthrie, Okla., June 18.—Three outlaws, led by Ben Cravens, for whom $700 in rewards are offered, stationed themselves in a lonely wood in the country and held up 100 men and women. Every man passing was stopped and searched and his valuables taken. He was then marched off a half mile and placed under guard. The robbers secured $800 in money and selected nine good horses. At dark the victims were released. The outlaws joked with the prisoners, among who was David Ware, a Texas ranger. A posse is in pursuit of the outlaws. Cravens escaped from the Kansas prison three years ago.

SULLIVAN MUST SHOW

Why He Should Not Be Punished For Contempt.

Chicago, June 18.—George T. Sullivan, the broker, whose place of business was recently raided by the police, has been ordered by Judge Kohlsaat to show cause by June 24, why he should not be punished for contempt for violating the injunction restraining him from securing board of trade quotations without the authority of telegraph companies. A number of affidavits have been filed in court, charging Sullivan with having appropriated and used continuous quotations of the board of trade on various dates after the injunction was issued.

STOLE DIAMONDS.

Former Express Driver Arrested at Peoria, Ill.

Peoria, Ill., June 18.—Robert McDermott, son of Capt. McDermott, a leading citizen, was arrested today, charged with the theft of $300 worth of diamonds belonging to Thomas Webb, of this city, and W. H. McGetrick, proprietor of one of the leading buffets, was arrested for receiving the stolen property. The diamonds were consigned from Chicago early in May and came by the Adams Express company. The package left Chicago, but was missing when the local office was reached. A number of detectives were engaged in the search, resulting in today's arrests. McDermott was a driver for the express company at the time of the robbery.

HARVARD-YALE BASEBALL.

Cambridge, Mass., June 18.—The first Harvard-Yale baseball game of the season of 1903, was played here today in the presence of a great crowd of spectators.

A FEMALE BLUEBEARD.

Berlin, June 18.—The trial of a so-called "female bluebeard," Frau Przygodda, began at Allenstein, East Prussia today. Her fifth husband, Przygodda, a hotel keeper, caught her putting arsenic in his coffee and remembering her other husbands, all prosperous peasants, died suddenly, the authorities exhumed their remains and found arsenic in each of them.

TUG GILLEN IS LOCATED

Thirty-Four Feet of Water Over Her—Not an Obstruction.

The wreck of the tug Gillen, of the Lake Superior Contracting & Dredging company, which was sunk in a collision while a heavy fog was prevailing over this end of the lake on the morning of May 18, was located last evening by the local United States engineer's office, the soundings being taken by Assistant United States Engineer J. H. Darling.

The Gillen lies in 44 feet of water, 1775 feet from the outer end of the pier at Superior entry, true bearing north, 36 degrees east, or northeast, three-quarters north. There is 34 feet of water over the wreck at the present stage so that she is not an obstruction to navigation.

One of the officers of the dredging company stated yesterday that as soon as the weather permits steps will be taken to have a diver examine the wreck and the tug be raised.

Major Lansing H. Beach, United States engineer in temporary charge of the district, will leave this afternoon for Detroit. He will return again June 28, and the local office will probably be turned over to Captain Potter about that date.

Major Beach says that the press of business during the few days he has been here has kept him from calling on his friends, which he hopes to do when he next visits.

UNIVERSITY OF MICHIGAN

Senator Quarles Delivers Commencement Oration at Ann Arbor.

Ann Arbor, Mich., June 18.—U. S. Senator J. V. Quarles, a Michigan alumnus of 1883, delivered the commencement oration at the university of Michigai today. The 818 graduates gathered at their various departments and then marched to university hall, where the commencement exercises were held. President Angell presented the diplomas. In his oration Senator Quarles took up the trust question and said:

"Whatever may be the ultimate influence of trusts on society, the steady process of consolidation is making every department of business more complicated and superintendence more difficult. Brains never before commanded so high a premium and educated man never had so many avenues open to him outside the learned professions. There is at least some comfort in the fact that intellect has never been organized into a trust. The educated man will become not only independent, but indispensable."

OFFICERS RE-ELECTED

Three Unanimously Chosen to Again Serve the United Church.

At the convention of the United Norwegian Lutheran church of America this afternoon the following officers were unanimously re-elected:

Vice president, N. J. Ellestad, of Kenyon, Minn.

Secretary, Jens C. Roseland, of Austin, Minn.

Treasurer, Hon. Lars Swenson, of Minneapolis.

Bishop Chr. Bang, of Christiana, Norway, is now on his way to America, and was invited by the United church to be its guest in Duluth.

About 400 lay delegates have been seated.

AROUND THE GLOBE.

Mr. and Mrs. John N. Currie Coming Home.

Mr. and Mrs. John N. Currie, formerly well-known Duluth young people, are on their way back from the Philippines, where Mr. Currie is a member of a municipal government. They sailed from Manila May 15, coming by way of the Suez canal, and are due to land in New York in a week or ten days. They will visit for a time with Mr. Currie's relatives in New York and Ottawa, and then with Mrs. Currie's parents in Cleveland. Then they will come on to Duluth to visit with Mrs. Currie's sister, Mrs. A. E. McManus, before going on to San Francisco on the return trip to Manila. Their round trip will be a circumnavigation of the globe.

TO RECEIVE COMMISSION

Which Is To Discuss International Financial System.

Paris, June 18.—Ambassador Porter is making arrangements for the reception of the United States international exchange commission, which is expected to arrive here early in July and join Senor Limantour, the Mexican minister of finance, who has already arrived here. The Chinese minister will also take part in the negotiations. Conferences will be held with Finance Minister Rouvier, who will probably name a committee of experts from the ministry of finance and Bank of France to consider the American propositions.

It is anticipated that there will be numerous difficulties, owing to the long established usage of both metals, and the international responsibilities of France and other countries of the Latin union. It appears to be the view of the leading French financiers that instead of assisting China and Mexico to maintain a silver system it would be better to induce them to acept a gold system.

STRIKE BREAKERS ARRIVE.

Richmond, Va., June 18.—About one hundred and fifty conductors and motormen arrived today, having been engaged to break the strike of the trolley lines. The strikers, however, claim to have won over a third of them. The company started four cars this afternoon. At points along the route rocks were hurled at them and the strike breakers were hissed. No one was hurt.

OF ORGANDIE AND LACE.

Charming costume of black and white organdie, with applications of black Escurial lace. First made with circular flounce. Waist trimmed in bolero effect, with deep yoke over shoulders of the lace. The sleeve opens over undersleeve of white soft muslin. Girdle of black ribbon. Hat of white straw, trimming of tulle lace and jet.

CHANGES IN CLERGY.

Several to Be Made In Catholic Church.

New York, June 18.—Many impending changes among the pastors and diocesan officials of the Catholic church in this city have been brought to light, following the announcement that the Rev. John P. Chadwick, formerly of the battleship Maine, has resigned his commission as chaplain in the navy to resume parish work. It is said these changes will bring back the Rev. Dr. Richard L. Burtsell to his old charge, the Church of the Epiphany, from which he was removed by the late Archbishop Corrigan at the time of the famous Father McGlynn controversy.

CASKETS ARE SCARCE.

May Have to Bury the Dead In Boxes.

New York, June 18.—If the coffinmaker's strike shall spread much further among the factories of this city, it may become necessary to bury the dead in union-made boxes put together by ordinary carpenters in the next few weeks. The surplus of caskets on hand is said to be quite small.

The strikers, who desire shorter hours, say the work makes them melancholy and they need more time in the sunlight and to mingle among those who are not always thinking about death.

WILL NOT REPLY.

Former Postmaster General Has Nothing to Say.

Philadelphia, June 18.—When Former Postmaster General Charles Emory Smith was informed of the Bristow-Tulloch statement anent the postoffice department investigation, he said:

"There is no occasion for me to reply to Mr. Bristow, and I will not."

MURASCH WILLING TO ACT.

San Francisco, June 18.—Superior Judge Murasch has announced his willingness to act as commissioner to take the testimony of the contending parties to the differences between the United Railways and the Carmen's union. He will begin to hear the evidence Friday and when finished a copy will be forwarded to Oscar S. Strauss, of New York, who has been chosen by the arbitrators as umpire.

HALF OF MINERS RETURN.

Clifton, Ariz., June 18.—Fully one-half of the miners have returned to work on the company's terms. The remainder are discontented. As only twenty-five strikers were disarmed, the miners still have possession of their arms and the absolute withdrawal of troops is not deemed advisable. It is expected by the end of the month all miners will be working.

OIL COMPANY BANKRUPT.

Cleveland, June 18.—The Adams & Sarber Oil company today filed voluntary bankruptcy proceedings in the insolvency court here. The asserts are placed at $170,000; liabilities $331,000. The company operated extensively in oil lands and controlled many large tracts of property and oil wells in Ohio, West Virginia and other states.

TRAIN DISPATCHERS ELECT.

Nashville, Tenn., June 18.—The Train Dispatchers' Association of America today elected the following officers: President, F. H. Heldy, Pennsylvania; vice-president, J. R. Love, Canada; secretary-treasurer, J. F. Mackie, St. Louis was chosen as the next place of meeting.

FIRE AT AURORA.

Aurora, Ill., June 18.—The general store of S. S. Senzenbaugh & Co., was badly damaged by fire this afternoon. The loss is stated to be $100,000, with $75,000 insurance. Adjoining buildings were endangered and four engines came from Chicago to assist the local fire department. The fire is not yet under control.

KEROSENE FROM WATER.

Fearing the wrath of the Standard Oil company and of all Pennsylvania's oil operators, on account of the remarkable substitute for petroleum which he says he has made, Charles Fitz de Morgenstern waits at the Hotel Lafayette for future developments, says the New York Herald.

He came to this country two weeks ago with his idea and with a box of chemicals by means of which he says he can make many barrels of artificial petroleum at a cent a gallon.

"Then it could be sold for 5 cents a gallon," said the inventor yesterday, "and that would be at half the price which is obtained for the kerosene which we burn in lamps. I might sell my invention for $1,000,000 and an interest in the company. Perhaps I could sell the secret and Mr. Rockefeller could keep it locked up in his safe for a while, or I could show him how to make kerosene non-explosive."

Mr. Morgenstern is of French descent and he is also connected with the family of James II of Scotland, he says. Educated as a physician, he also took several courses of chemistry. He exhibited certificates from the university of Brussels and of Bonn and from an English school. His home is at Diano Marina, Italy, not far from Monte Carlo.

He said that two years ago he began his experiments with a view of obtaining a fluid which could be used in motor cars, and quite by accident he discovered the remarkable substitute for kerosene.

The inventor says the liquid is largely water and that its properties are imparted by the addition of a chemical salt, which is obtained from vegetable matter. The wick which is used in lamps filled with his petroleum substitute is soaked with acetic acid.

"The new fluid," continued Mr. Morgenstern, "will burn with five times the light of ordinary kerosene, and it will not explode under any circumstances. It has no flash test because it will not flash at any temperature. It is not adapted for use in motor cars because it gives forth an explosive vapor, but at the same time for heating and lighting it is all that could be desired.

"Once the world knows the value of my invention," he said, "the petroleum business will be revolutionized. The Standard Oil men will be amazed. They will want to kill me when they see what can be done. I would want at least $1,000,000, for I was led to make this discovery because I wished to have money. I hardly know what I would do with a million, yet still I think I should have it if wealthy men organize a company."
